In a recent number of the Journal of the Franklin Institute is a description of a remarkable machine, designed and constructed last summer by a student at the University of Pennsylvania, Frank T. Freeland, class of 1879. It is called "an Automatic Tit-tat-to Machine," and with it any one can play that game, as if it were a person. It is a true automaton, that is there is no one concealed in or around it who governs its move by electrical or any other means, as was the case with all the "automatic chess players." The principle upon which it works is this: There is in it a mechanical table of all the possible games, and two hands having nine fingers each. When the opponent makes a move the machine hunts with its left hand in the table for that move. Opposite it is set down the proper answering move. By pushing a lever the right hand discovers that move and transmits it to the board.

The machine was exhibited at the Franklin Institute. It is now at the University of Pennsylvania, where it has played a number of games without loosing a single one. The problem of designing a machine which would play one of the games of skill was never seriously attempted before but once, when the results arrived at were such as to present serious difficulties to the construction of the machine.

Indiana Patents.

List of patents issued to citizens of the State of Indiana, February, 4 1879, and each bearing date February 4th, 1879. Furnished this paper by C. Bradford, Solicitor of patents, 18 Hubbard Block, Indianapolis, Ind.

To J. H. Fenton, of Indianapolis, for improvement in toe weights for horses.

To J. H. Fenton, of Indianapolis, for improvement in combined horse boot and weight.

To F. B. Hunt, of Richmond, for improvement in corn planters, assignee, by mesne assignments, of S. Harper, deceased.

To E. Murray, of Rushville, for improvement in harrows.

To J. Miltenberger, of Peru, for improvement in mill staff gauges.

To D. A. and W. N. Green and J. H. Roberts, of Rushville, for improvement in wardrobe bedsteads.

To M. Carter, of Plainfield, and J. F. Coppack, of West Newton, for improvement in automatic gates.

To J. O. Gregg, of Elkhart for improvement in manufacture of paper.

To V. P. Harris, of Greensburg, for improvement in vapor burners.

To J. Hunsinger, of Metamora, for improvement in air-blast regulators for threshing machines, etc.

To C. Thompson, J. F. Petty and J. D. Coner, of Frankfort, for improvement in washing machine.

To W. Wines, of Union City, for improvement in draw bars.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1879.

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

Richard H. Dana, the well-known poet and author, died in Boston the other day, at the advanced age of 91.

The business center of the town of Lee, Mass., has been wiped out by fire. Loss, $116,000....A Boston dispatch announces the failure of two heavy Connecticut wool firms—S. H. Sayles, of Dayville, and S. L. & T. D. Sayles, of Versailles. They were very large manufacturers, and the liabilities are heavy.

THE WEST.

One of the captive Cheyenne Indians at Fort Robinson—Wild Hog by name—attempted to end his unhappy life. He stabbed himself four times in the region of the heart, and is dangerously wounded.

The remnant of the Cheyenne Indians have been transferred from Fort Robinson to Leavenworth. There were but seven bucks in the lot, and they offered no resistance.

That charming little actress and vocalist, Alice Oates, is drawing crowds at Haverly's Chicago Theater the present week. Her attractiveness seems on the increase, instead of showing any signs of waning, and the public will flock to hear her and laugh at the absurdities of opera bouffe.

Judge L. B. Vilas, one of the leading citizens of Madison, Wis., is dead....George Ward, of Columbia City, Ind., killed his son, aged 21, by splitting his head open with an ax. Both were drunk....Twenty-one Cheyenne Indians are to be tried at Leavenworth, Kansas, for murders and depredations....Several persons were bitten by a mad dog in Floyd county, Ind., whereupon the excited citizens began an exterminating war against the canines, and hundreds of them were slain.

THE SOUTH.

The city alms-house at Louisville, Ky., was destroyed by fire, last week. There were 340 inmates in the institution, and it is fortunate that a great many of them were not burned to death. Several of them leaped from the windows to save their lives. Four persons were killed and a number of others injured in the wild stampede to escape from the building. The structure cost $160,000, and was insured for $70,000.

A large number of persons have been arrested in Caddo, Tensas and Natchitoches parishes, La., on the charge of violating the Federal election laws. They were taken to New Orleans and held for trial in bonds of $3,000 each.

Herman, Frederick, and Arthur Heinrich, three brothers, aged respectively 16, 14, and 10, were drowned in the Ohio river, near Louisville, Ky., by the overturning of a skiff....For the first time since 1860 the New Orleans mint is coining money.

A report to the Internal Revenue Office at Washington, from Collector Clark, at Atlanta, Ga., gives an account of a whisky raid in Cherokee county, that State, in which the United States officers were fired upon by a party in ambush, and several, including the guides, wounded.

GENERAL.

A Baltimore dispatch says the oyster schooner Adamantine has been found sunk in the bay. Her Captain, Horace Baker, of Philadelphia, was lashed to the topmast, and the bodies of nine men composing the crew were lashed to the deck, which was several feet under water. The schooner went down on the d of January last.

It is reported that the Mexican Government is seriously considering the advisability of asking for the removal of Minister Foster. It is said that a coolness exists between Mr. Foster and the Mexican Government on account of the letter of the former to the Chicago Manufacturers' Association, and that for that reason little can be accomplished in diplomacy while he remains....Joseph, the chief of the Nez Perces has agreed to the sale of forty-eight hundred square miles of his people's land in Idaho to the United States Government. The tribe will get in exchange six townships of land in Indian Territory and 4 per cent. interest on a quarter of a million dollars from the treasury.

The Signal Service Bureau at Washington promulgates the following weather prognostics for the month of February: For the upper lake region, winds blowing from the southwest or southeast, or from directions between those points, are found to be the winds most likely to be followed by rain or snow. Winds blowing from the north or west, or from directions between those points, are found to be the winds least likely to be followed by rain or snow.

Canada has temporarily prohibited the importation of American cattle.

The report that Sitting Bull has returned to American territory is denied by Canadian papers.

POLITICAL.

The Kansas Legislature has re-elected Hon. John J. Ingalls United States Senator for six years from the 4th of March next....Louisiana's new United States Senator, B. F. Jonas, is a native of Quincy, Ill. He went South before the war and served as a private in the Confederate army.

An analysis of the vote on the confirmation of Gen. Merritt as Collector of the Port of New York shows that fifteen Republicans voted to sustain the administration by confirming the nominations, namely: Burnside, Conover, Kirkwood, Matthews, Oglesby, Cameron (Wis.), Ferry, Hoar, Saunders, Windom, Dawes, McMillan, Morrill, Christiancy, and Plumb. Twenty-three Republicans ranged themselves on the side of Mr. Conkling and voted against confirmation, viz.: Allison, Booth, Howe, Patterson, Spencer, Anthony, Bruce, Conkling, Jones (Nev.), Mitchell, Rollins, Teller, Blaine, Chaffee, Hamlin, Kellogg, Paddock, Sargent, Edmunds, Ingalls, Sharon, Dorsey, and Cameron (Pa.). The Democrats voted largely in favor of confirmation—Barnum, McPherson, Cockrell, Eaton, McDonald, Garland and Voorhees (seven) being the only Democrats recorded as voting in the negative.

A Washington dispatch says, that at a joint caucus of Democratic Senators and Representatives, it was decided to add a clause repealing the test oath to some important appropriation bill, and insist upon its passage. They also agreed to support a bill abolishing national banks and replacing national-bank currency with greenbacks.

There is a movement among Ohio Republicans looking to the nomination of Judge Taft for Governor....A State Convention of the National party of Michigan has been called to meet on the 28th of February....There is talk among New York Democrats of running Horatio Seymour for Governor.

James H. Maddox was before the Potter Investigating Committee at Washington last week, and denied all of the testimony of the witness St. Martins, so far as it related to him. Maddox swore that St. Martins had offered to correct or withhold his affidavit for a money consideration, but that he (Maddox) declined to entertain the proposition.

WASHINGTON.

A Washington dispatch says it is the general opinion among lawyers familiar with the subject that the Arlington ejectment suit, which the United States District Court has just determined in favor of the Lees, will also be decided by the United States Supreme Court, to which it has been appealed, in their favor.

The Army Reorganization bill was suddenly and effectually disposed of in the House of Representatives last week, much to the consternation of its friends. The House did not take a direct vote on the bill, but indicated unmistakably that should it ever reach a stage when a vote can be taken the bill will be defeated by a large majority....Nearly 40,000 bids have been received for carrying the mails in Missouri, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. A month will be required for opening them and making the awards.... The President has tendered to ex-Gov. Boutwell the position of Assistant Treasurer at Boston.

The Senate Committee who have had under consideration the matter of opening the Indian Territory have agreed unanimously upon an affirmative report. A sub-committee has been appointed to prepare a report and bill embracing the following points: 1. To establish a United States Court within the Indian Territory for the better protection of life and property, with the same powers and jurisdiction as other United States District Courts. 2. That each of the five civilized nations be allowed to send a delegate to Congress. 3. That the lands now held in common by the tribes can be held in severalty among the Indians.

The public-debt statement for Feb. 1 is as follows:

Six per cent. bonds	$656,689,000
Five per cent. bonds	703,266,650
Four and a half per cent. bonds	250,000,000
Four per cent. bonds	330,300,000
Total coin bonds	$1,964,406,650
Matured debt	6,909,080
Legal tenders	$346,738,081
Certificates of deposit	40,940,000
Fractional currency	16,027,465
Gold and silver certificates	20,107,800
Total without interest	$428,908,406
Total debt	$2,395,222,186
Total interest	21,094,600
Currency held for redemption of fractional currency	$8,599,124
Special deposits held for redemption of certificates of deposit	40,940,000
Total in treasury	$392,450,696
Debt less cash in the treasury Feb. 1, '79	$2,025,896,180
Decrease during January	2,751,980
Decrease since June 30, 1878	9,890,711
Bonds issued to the Pacific Railroad Companies, interest payable in lawful money: Principal outstanding	64,623,512
Interest accrued and not yet paid	323,117
Interest paid by the United States	41,773,745
Interest repaid by transportation of mails, etc.	10,657,028
Balance of interest paid by the United States	31,116,717

The President has removed Collector Smith, at New Orleans, and nominated General A. S. Badger, the present Postmaster, as his successor. He also nominated William L. McMillan, the present Pension Agent, to be Postmaster.

Federal appointments: John Parker, United States Marshal for the Western District of Michigan; N. P. Banks, United States Marshal of Massachusetts; J. N. Patterson, United States Marshal of New Hampshire; and Martin I. Townsend, United States Attorney for the Northern District of New York; James Torrence, United States Marshal for the Eastern District of Arkansas; Sherman Conant, United States Marshal for the Northern District of Florida; Decius S. Wade, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Montana; and John B. Allen, United States Attorney, Washington Territory....The bill which passed the lower house of Congress, known as the Mississippi River Improvement bill, provides for the appointment of a commission of five, three of which shall be army engineers, who shall survey, and report upon a plan for the permanent improvement of the Mississippi, from Alton, Ill., to the Gulf. The bill appropriates $250,000 to pay the expenses of survey.

FOREIGN.

Gambetta has been elected President of the French Chamber of Deputies, receiving 314 votes, out of a total of 405....A dispatch from St. Petersburg says the Czar of Russia has ordered the burning of Wetlianka and other villages where the plague has broken out, together with all the furniture in them, and the removal of inhabitants to healthy places.... A St. Petersburg dispatch says the Ameer of Afghanistan has arrived on the Russian frontier. His followers were disarmed. The Russian authorities endeavored to persuade him that it would be useless to go to St. Petersburg. The Ameer appears to be astonished at his treatment.

Two of the Directors of the broken Glasgow Bank have been sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment for embezzlement, and five other Directors to eight months' imprisonment for uttering false balances....Paul de Cassagnac, whose election was invalidated by the French Chamber of Deputies, has been re-elected by a majority of 600....The Czar of Russia has dispatched Gen. Melikoff to Astrakhan with power to adopt extraordinary measures to stop the march of the plague. He is appointed Governor General of the plague-stricken districts, which are created into a province during the continuance of the epidemic. In Austria an imperial ordinance identical with that of Germany prohibits the importation of a large number of articles from Russia, and orders the disinfection of all arrivals therefrom. The Galician authorities memorialize the Government for the immediate establishment of a cordon against Russia. In Rome, the Sanitary Council has been convoked to take precautionary measures against the plague. Roumania has determined upon the establishment of a quarantine and military cordon to prevent the spread of the pestilence.

Col. Percy Wyndham, the distinguished soldier of fortune, formerly with Garibaldi and with the Union army in the American civil war, has been killed at Rangoon, India, in attempting a balloon ascension....Albert Grant, the well-known English speculator, has failed for £682,000....The following is given as the origin of the plague now raging in Russia: A Cossack returning from the war to Wetlishka, in Astrakhan, brought his lady love a shawl, which she wore two days and then sickened, with all the symptoms of the plague, and died. The following four days other members of her family died. The disease spread rapidly, the local authorities not paying any attention to it till half of the inhabitants died, and the remainder were unable to bury the victims. The dreadful pestilence has continued to spread ever since.

The new French Cabinet has been constituted, and the following are the changes: M. Waddington, President of Council and Minister of Foreign Affairs; Senator Leroyer, Minister of Justice; M. De Marcere, Interior and Public Worship, ad interim; M. Jules Ferry, Public Instruction and Fine Arts; M. Lepere, Agriculture; Admiral Jaurequiberry, Marine.

Arthur, Duke of Connaught, is to be appointed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.

James Gordon Bennett has promised the Russian Government to send his Arctic exploring vessel, Jeannette, in search of the Nordenskjold expedition....A serious dispute has arisen between Russia and Roumania touching the ownership of certain territory. The question will probably have to be settled by the powers....Venezuela has a revolution on her hands, and Spain is threatened with one.

THE CIPHER TELEGRAMS.

The Potter Committee, at its meeting on the 31st ult., conducted the proceedings in secret. No witnesses were examined. A resolution was adopted that a committee of five be sent to New York to take testimony. Messrs. McMahon, Stenger, Springer, Cox, and Hiscock were designated as the committee.

The Potter Sub-Committee, sent to New York to prosecute the investigation of the cipher telegrams, began work on the 5th inst. Smith M. Weed, of New York, was the first witness. He acknowledged having done a good deal of telegraphing in cipher while the electoral count was pending, and said the translation of the dispatches published, so far as he knew, was pretty correct. Mr. Weed testified that while in South Carolina a proposition was handed him offering a decision of the State Canvassing Board for Tilden, in consideration of $60,000 or $80,000, but he declined to entertain it. He subsequently sent the proposition to New York; Pelton stirred himself around to raise the money; the matter came to the ears of Mr. Tilden, and, according to the witness, "he brought us to order in very forcible terms for having attempted to make a trade with the Returning Board, and repeated his positive abhorrence of any such scheme."

Col. Pelton, the nephew of Gov. Tilden, was before the Potter Sub-Committee at New York, on the 6th inst., and told what he knew about the cipher dispatches. He said that all the telegrams sent by Smith M. Weed were by his instructions, and that in his absence they were opened by the National Democratic Committee. Telegrams from Florida signed "Marble," stating that propositions looking to the purchase of the Returning Board had been made, and asking if he (Pelton) could raise the required funds, were shown to witness and acknowledged to be correct; also the replies of Pelton, in which he notified Marble of the acceptance of the propositions, and that the money would be forthcoming. Dispatches touching similar negotiations in South Carolina were also exhibited and their authenticity acknowledged by witness. Gov. Tilden was entirely ignorant of these negotiations, and had no hand in them whatever. Witness said he had an idea that the Returning Board propositions, even if carried out, would result, if assented to, in a delay which would be favorable to the Democratic party. He had made no arrangements for raising money, but intended eventually to lay the matter before the Democratic National Committee, and let it decide. In the meanwhile he thought it best to commit the members of the Returning Board to the proposition in question. He acted wholly on his own responsibility without consultation with any one. He had no authority to act for the Democratic National Committee in the matter.

THE BLAINE INVESTIGATION.

The Teller Committee resumed its sittings at Washington, last week. E. W. Mackay, defeated Republican candidate for Congress in South Carolina, was the first witness. He testified that the Republicans were, in numerous ways, prevented from having a full and free vote in Charleston county, and that the Democrats resorted to frauds for that purpose. Witness, in order to counteract the Democrats, had 5,000 tissue-tickets printed, and these were to be used only in the event that the Republicans were certain the Democrats were using tissue-tickets. R. M. Wallace, United States Marshal for South Carolina, testified to arresting Democrats for breaking up Republican meetings, but no conviction resulted. The Democrats regarded the voting of tissue-ballots as a huge joke on the Republicans, saying that they had learned tricks from the Republicans, and were now beating them at their own game.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Friday, Jan. 31.—Senate.—Mr. Saunders, from the joint committee to inquire into the expediency of transferring the Indian Bureau from the Interior Department to the War Department, reported that the committee had been unable to agree, and submitted a report, signed by four members of the committee, in favor of the proposed transfer.... In executive session, after reading the President's message and Secretary Sherman's letter regarding the New York Custom House nominations, Senator Conkling made a speech, closing with an expression of opinion that the Senate should proceed to consider and act upon the pending nominations without further postponement. A motion by Mr. Matthews to postpone further consideration of the nominations till Monday, Feb. 3, was adopted by yeas 35, nays 26, the Democrats all voting in the affirmative.

House.—The House spent the day in wrangling over another Southern claim—a bill to pay for rent for a college building in Virginia used by troops during the war. It was defeated by a vote of 69 yeas to 121 nays.

Saturday, Feb. 1.—Senate.—Mr. McCreery, from the joint committee appointed to inquire into the expediency of transferring the Indian Bureau from the Interior Department to the War Department, submitted a report, signed by four members of the committee, in favor of the transfer....Mr. Hoar, from the Committee on Privileges and Elections, presented a minority report in favor of a sixteenth amendment to the constitution prohibiting a State disfranchising persons on account of sex. The report was signed by Messrs. Hoar, Cameron (Wis.), and Mitchell.... Consideration was resumed of the resolutions of Mr. Edmunds, declaring the validity of the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments to the constitution, and Mr. Morgan continued his argument in favor of the substitute presented by him.

House.—The war-claims discussion was resumed in the House, Mr. Chalmers, of Mississippi, leading off. He said he did not envy the cheap political capital that a Union soldier, meaning Gen. Bragg, could make by telling the few in the South who had professed loyalty during the war that he had no more confidence in their loyalty than a mouse had in a stuffed cat-skin. He charged Bragg with shaking the bloody shirt, and said he was stretching his legs in a frantic effort to climb up to the Republican platform and rob it of its last banner. Mr. Mills, of Texas, followed Chalmers, and spoke in the same strain. He reasserted that no true Southerner asked to have the war claims allowed, and favored a constitutional amendment which would forever exclude all claims growing out of the war. Mr. Hooker, of Mississippi, made a very eloquent speech, in which he charged Bragg with taking up a role which had been abandoned by liberal-hearted men on the Republican side of the House. It was not his purpose to create sectional strife, but to avoid it. He denied the right of any man to speak for the Southern Democracy and charge them with presenting fraudulent claims against the Government. Mr. Singleton, of Mississippi, closed the discussion. He said that Gen. Bragg had been so long abusing the Democracy when running on the Republican ticket for Congress and other offices that, like the old harper whose harp refused to sing of aught but love, his mouth refused to give out anything but abuse of the Democracy. The Democrats of the South were Democrats of principle. If they had only been influenced by "loaves and fishes," they could have sold out long ago to the Republicans.

Monday, Feb 3.—Senate.—Mr. McCreery introduced a bill to transfer the office of Indian Affairs from the Interior to the War Department. ....Mr. Matthews introduced a joint resolution providing for a commercial treaty with Mexico.... Mr. Teller presented a petition from the colored people of Louisiana, claiming that they are not protected either in life or property. They therefore invoke the protection of the Federal Government. Referred to the Teller Committee....Mr. Harris, from the select committee on epidemic diseases, reported a bill to prevent the introduction of contagious or infectious diseases into the United States, and to establish a Bureau of Public Health....The Senate had a lively and interesting executive session, the New York Custom House nominations forming the bone of contention. Mr. Conkling attacked the administration, in a two-hours' speech, which proved to be an effort by the side of which all previous speeches of his life in the direction of bitterness are declared by good judges to sink into insignificance, and were made to appear as the very essence of mildness and suavity. Mr. Edmunds, in a mild speech, opposed the removal of Gen. Arthur. Messrs. Howe, Voorhees and Kernan also opposed the removal of Arthur. Mr. Bayard advocated the confirmation of the President's appointees. At the close of the debate the roll was called, and Gen. Merritt was confirmed as Collector of Customs at New York by 33 yeas to 24 nays, and Silas W. Burt was confirmed as Naval Officer by 31 yeas to 18 nays.

House.—Mr. Cutler introduced a bill appropriating $100,000,000 for the payment of arrearages of pensions. The same subject was brought before the House on a motion to suspend the rules, and pass a bill introduced by Mr. Burchard, of Illinois, authorizing the issue of 4-per-cent. bonds to the amount of $40,000,000 to pay the claimants under the Arrears of Pension act. Defeated—two-thirds failing to vote in the affirmative.

Tuesday, Feb. 4.—Senate.—Mr. Cameron (Wis.), from the Committee on Privileges and Elections, submitted a majority report, signed by the Republican members, declaring David T. Corbin duly elected Senator from South Carolina, and duly entitled to a seat. Mr. Hill, from the same committee, submitted a minority report, signed by the Democratic members, in favor of the incumbent, M. C. Butler. Both reports were ordered printed, and placed on the calendar....Mr. Coke spoke at length in favor of constructing a railroad in Texas to the Rio Grande, after which consideration was resumed of the resolutions of Mr. Edmunds, declaring the validity of the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments, and speeches were made pro and con by Messrs. Edmunds and Bayard.

House.—The House devoted the day, in committee of the whole, upon the Army Appropriation bill. Several propositions for a reduction of the army were made and voted down....An evening session, for consideration of the Mississippi Levee bill, was held.

Wednesday, Feb. 5.—Senate.—The Senate, after a protracted debate lasting until nearly midnight adopted Mr. Edmunds' resolutions affirming the validity of the later constitutional amendments. A number of amendments were offered by the Democrats and rejected. The Morgan substitute, adopted by the Democratic caucus, was also voted down—18 yeas to 26 nays. The Edmunds resolutions, as originally introduced, were then adopted by a vote of 28 yeas to 17 nays. ...Nothing else of importance transpired in the Senate.

House.—The report of the Committee on Elections in the Florida contested case was submitted in favor of Jesse J. Finlay, and adverse to the claims of Horace Bisbee. The minority submitted dissenting views, and both reports were recommitted. The House passed the Mississippi Levee bill and spent the rest of the day on the Army Appropriation bill.

Thursday, Feb. 6.—Senate.—Mr. Paddock submitted a resolution instructing the Committee on Agriculture to inquire in regard to the reports concerning infectious diseases among horned cattle. Agreed to....Mr. Wallace submitted a resolution requesting the Committee on Commerce to report the House bill, known as "The Inter-State Commerce bill," at the earliest possible moment. Laid on the table. He gave notice that he would call it up at an early day....The bill to provide for taking the tenth and subsequent censuses was passed.

House.—Mr. Hayes introduced a bill, appropriating $50,000 for the improvement of the Illinois river, and enlarging the Illinois and Michigan ship canal....Mr. Cummings introduced a bill making appropriations for the payment of the arrears of pensions.... The Army Appropriation bill was discussed at length. The main features of the Burnside Army Reorganization bill were incorporated into the bill by the committee of the whole, and a motion was made to engraft upon it also the proposition to transfer the Indian Bureau from the Interior to the War Department, pending which the House adjourned.

The Terrible Black Death.

Some very remarkable statements are made by the Austrian press in regard to the disease ravaging the Volga valley in Russia. Ninety per cent. of the persons attacked by the plague have died. It has decimated Astrakhan, and the survivors have fled in all directions, carrying the disease with them. It has traveled rapidly westward, and appeared within a short distance of Moscow. There is danger that it will pass the limits of the empire, and appear in Austria and Germany. An exchange says:

"This is the same disease which, in the fourteenth century, desolated the globe, and gets its name from the black spots, symptomatic of a putrid decomposition, that show themselves at one of its stages on the skin of the sufferer. It is thought to have its origin in China in 1333, some fifteen years before its outbreak in Europe, and it raged for fifteen years, while drought, famines, floods, earthquakes that swallowed towns and mountains, and swarms of locusts spread destruction everywhere. During the same period Europe had as many abnormal conditions as the East. The order of nature appeared to be reversed. The seasons at various times were inversed; thunderstorms were frequent in mid winter, and volcanoes, long considered extinct, burst forth afresh. The theory is that the extraordinary activity of the earth, accompanied by the decomposition of vast organic masses—myriads of locusts, brutes, and bodies of human beings—produced some change in the air inimical to life. Some writers say that the impure air was actually visible as it approached with its burden of death. The plague owed its extension almost wholly to infection and contagion.

Bismarck's Life.

Prince Bismarck's mode of life, according to a writer in the Fortnightly Review, is peculiar. He gets up late, toward 10 o'clock, because he does not succeed in going to sleep till toward morning. At breakfast he takes tea and two eggs, and after that nothing until dinner, when he eats and drinks freely. Bismarck himself complains of such a regimen, but the habit is formed. In one of the conversations he tells how the nights pass. "My brain," he says, "is incessantly at work. All the combinations of policies come back to me as in a nightmare, and I see everything on its dark side. I fall asleep as soon as my head is on its pillow, but I soon awake and remain awake until dawn. Now and then a dream gives me rest for a while. I see Varzin—all the trees that I know so well, and the blue sky, and I fancy that I am enjoying it all."

Some Things a Girl Can Do.

There is a young lady in Louisville whose "bosom friend" recently removed to New York, and of course they were to write long, long letters to each other every week. The Louisville girl received the first letter Saturday and lost it the same day sleigh-riding. Yesterday she sat down and wrote the following:

> My Dear Old Fannie: I have received your sweet letter and lost it. Please forgive me, won't you? I have forgotten your address and write this to ask you to send it immediately, when I will answer your letter and tell you ever so many nice things that have happened since you left. Lovingly, your Annie.

Whereupon Annie folded her letter, sealed it, and then discovered that she had forgotten Fannie's address. And there is not a drop of Irish blood in Annie's veins.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

How to Buy a Horse.

The Rural New Yorker says: "An intending purchaser should have the horse brought out before him, and watch the animal as he stands at rest. If the owner is continually starting the horse into motion, and urging him to 'show off,' something may be suspected, because it is when the horse is at perfect rest that his weak points are divulged. If the horse be sound he will stand square on his limbs, without moving any one of them, the feet being placed flat upon the ground, and all his legs plumb and naturally posed. If one foot be thrown forward, and the toe pointing to the ground, and the heel raised; or, if the foot be lifted from the ground, and the weight taken from it, disease or tenderness may be suspected."

The Cincinnati authorities have decreed that bakers must stamp the weight upon every loaf of bread they offer for sale.

SCARLET FEVER.

Some Facts as to Its Origin.

The prevalence of scarlet fever in New York induced the World to interview Dr. Fordyce Barker concerning the disease. The following is the result:

"It was first described by Sydenham in the seventeenth century," said Prof. Barker, "as a distinct disease."

"Are there great differences in the severity of such epidemics?"

"Very great differences, some epidemics being mild and some attended with severe and dangerous cases. But there are always mild cases during the most severe epidemics."

"What are the causes of scarlet fever?"

"The specific cause is infection by a specific poison which is communicated by direct contact either with the exhalation from the lungs of patients, with their skin, or by means of clothing or various substances with which the patients have come in contact. Scarlet fever is said to have been communicated by milk, or even by a letter. Taylor, an eminent English writer, reports the beginning of one epidemic as being in the family of a milkman who delivered milk to twelve families. Of these families six had scarlet fever as a consequence. A certain individual predisposition must exist, as it is frequently found that one child in a family may take the disease, while others of the children who have frequently been exposed in the same degree do not get it."

"Are individuals who have had the disease in a mild form more liable to the second attack?"

"I should say not. On the contrary, those who have a constitutional predilection to the disease are more liable to a second attack. Ordinarily one attack secures immunity from a second, but there are many exceptions to this. It is very rare that patients die from a second attack. In fact not more than three or four cases of this kind have been reported in medical literature."

"How long does the poison retain its activity in clothing, furniture, rooms, etc."

"This is very uncertain. There is conclusive evidence that it has been retained in clothing sometimes for months."

"How soon is the disease developed after infection?"

"Trousseau reports a case in which the disease was manifested in twenty-four hours after exposure, and other cases are reported; but usually the period of development is from three to ten or twelve days after exposure. This is probably due to the difference in the susceptibility of the patients."

"At what period of the disease, and how long, is it infectious?"

"It is infectious throughout its whole course. It is believed to be most intensely so during the period of disquamation, or when the skin is peeling off; but so long as there is evidence of disturbance of the system from the localization of the poison in any organ it is not safe to assume that the disease is not communicable."

"What is the comparative susceptibility and danger from the disease at different ages?"

"The most susceptible period of life is from 1 to 15 years. Murchison, a very high authority, states from the statistics of nearly 150,000 cases that about 24 per cent. of deaths from scarlet fever are under 5 years, and nearly 90 per cent. under 10 years, 95¼ per cent. under 15 years, and only 1¼ per cent. over 25 years. Scarlet fever is very rare in young infants. Only one-ninetieth of all the deaths are under 1 year, and one-fifteenth between 1 and 2 years."

"How can scarlet fever be prevented and alleviated?"

"To prevent scarlet fever complete isolation of the patients is absolutely essential, as well as the prevention of all contact with those in attendance on the diseased persons. It is essential also that the house should be thoroughly ventilated, so that the poison which may escape may be as diluted as possible. All clothing should be thoroughly disinfected, and even the soiled linen of the sick should not be mingled with that of the other members of the household. The relief of the patients pertains to the medical treatment. After the disease is recovered from the sick-room should be thoroughly disinfected, as well as the bedding, the furniture, the carpets, and even the walls. It is found that dry heat to the point of 212 degrees, kept up for some hours, effectually destroys the poison; and this, perhaps, is as good a method as any of disinfecting the bedding of those who cannot afford to have it destroyed."

"Does the term scarlatina mean a mild form of scarlet fever?"

"No; the two terms are precisely identical."

Serenity in Death.

Perfect serenity in regard to death is not to be attained by any effort of the will, or by any process of reasoning; it is rather the result of a happy combination of bodily and mental conditions. The chief of these conditions, the assured hope of a future beyond the grave, in comparison of which the brightest earthly visions fade like a candle before the dawn, is not given to all; and in these days, especially, it is for many overshadowed, if not altogether blotted out by doubts and questionings which can no longer be hidden from the multitude. Even to those who most earnestly cling to the hope of immortality it would seem that our troublous inheritance of sympathy must cast many a distressing side-light upon prospects in which of old the faithful were able to take undisturbed delight. However this may be, the mere prospect of prolonged existence beyond the grave, apart from other reasons for joyful confidence, must be taken rather as enlarging the scope of our hopes and our fears than as necessarily altering the balance between them. Habitual hopefulness may color the prospect beyond the grave with the same glowing tints which it throws over this world, so that in some cases the same cause which makes life delightful makes death not unwelcome. Such a state of mind, though rare, is not unknown. But perhaps a perfect balance of feeling is more readily to be found at a lower level of expectation.—Cornhill Magazine.

Fashion Fripperies.

Coiffures tend to compactness, and are worn lower in the back.

Ceremonious dinner toilets demand elbow sleeves and lace ruffles.

Braids or short curls down the back are worn with dressy evening coiffures.

Ball and evening shoes must be trimmed with a flower or bouquet, but it must be very small and flat.

Oriental silks, Persian and Egyptian silks, satins, velvets, brocades, and corduroys are all used for waistcoats.

Very small figures, checks and stripes on white grounds, are the feature in the new spring calicoes and percales.

A double cape of heavy silk chenille, with tinsel thread twisted in the same, is the latest novelty for the neck in place of a scarf.

White satin dresses of creamy or leaden tint are worn by the elderly ladies for full dress, with full trimmings of creamy old point laces.

The long waistcoats worn with dressy toilets are separate garments and may be worn with several different kinds of coats and skirts.

Snake bracelets, winding several times around the arm, and having jeweled eyes, are among late novelties in jewelry and ornaments.

Square necks are much worn on low corsages. V necks are also seen, but round, low necks are preferred by most young ladies for ball toilets.

The hat of the passing moment is the equestrienne, in rough gray felt, banded with three narrow ribbons placed at intervals around the crown.

Birds of paradise, butterflies, and insects of all sorts in form of gold filigree and Impegan feather ornaments are worn in the hair for full dress.

Who Heard This!

The Louisville Courier-Journal has of late presented its readers with some stage stories. Among them is the following in relation to the elder Booth:

Once "Richard III." was played in Rochester, and at a rehearsal the members of the company warned the gentleman to whom Richmond was assigned, and who had never played against Booth's Richard. He was told that Booth frequently made the duel a very serious matter, and his apprehensions were worked upon to such a degree that he resolved to prepare himself for the encounter. Instead of applying to the property man for the sword usually used by Richmond, he obtained the immense weapon reserved for the [illegible]eliens. The play was duly produced, and, when the final scene came about, Booth thundered on and met his Richmond holding aloft a blade of enormous size. "What the —— do you mean by having such a sword as that?" exclaimed Booth, sotto voce. "Look here, Mr. Booth," whispered Richmond, "I've heard of your doings in this scene, and if you come any of your tricks upon me I'll beat the life out of you." Booth was so astonished that the combat and death of his Richard is said to have been on the occasion exceedingly tame and disappointing.

MacMahon's Letter of Resignation.

The following is the text of Marshal MacMahon's letter announcing his resignation of the Presidency of the French Republic:

> At the opening of this session of the Chambers the Ministry presented to you a programme which, while affording satisfaction to public opinion, appeared to the Cabinet such as might be voted without danger to the security or good administration of the country. Putting aside personal views, I had given the programme to which conscience commanded me to remain faithful. To-day the Ministry, thinking to respond to the opinion of the majority in the two Chambers, proposes to me in regard to the military commands some general measures which I consider contrary to the interests of the army, and consequently to those of the country. I cannot subscribe to them. Any other Ministry, taken from the majority, would impose upon me the same conditions. I consider myself, therefore, bound to shorten the duration of the mandate which the National Assembly confided to me, and I therefore tender my resignation. In quitting power, I have the consolation of thinking that, during the fifty-three years I have devoted to the service of my country as a soldier or citizen, I have never been guided by sentiments other than by absolute devotion to my country. I request you to communicate my decision to the Chambers. MacMahon, Duke of Magenta.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	$7 00 @$10 00
Hogs	3 40 @ 4 20
Cotton	9¼@ 9½
Flour—Superfine	3 15 @ 3 50
Wheat—No. 2	1 01 @ 1 03¼
Corn—Western Mixed	44 @ 47½
Oats—Mixed	30½@ 31½
Rye—Western	56 @ 61
Pork—Mess	8 62½@10 50
Lard	6½@ 6¾
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	4 70 @ 5 25
Cows and Heifers	2 40 @ 3 50
Medium to Fair	3 65 @ 4 10
Hogs	2 50 @ 4 00
Flour—Fancy White Winter Ex.	4 75 @ 5 10
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	3 75 @ 4 25
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	86 @ 87
No. 3 Spring	70 @ 72
Corn—No. 2	31 @ 32
Oats—No. 2	20 @ 22
Rye—No. 2	43 @ 44
Barley—No. 2	78 @ 80
Butter—Choice Creamery	24 @ 28
Eggs—Fresh	27 @ 28
Pork—Mess	7 50 @ 9 60
Lard	6¼@ 6½
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	91 @ 97
No. 2	86 @ 87
Corn—No. 2	30 @ 30
Oats—No. 2	19 @ 20
Rye—No. 1	42 @ 43
Barley—No. 2	75 @ 76
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red Fall	93 @ 94
Corn—Mixed	30 @ 31
Oats—No. 2	20 @ 23
Rye	43 @ 43
Pork—Mess	9 50 @ 9 62½
Lard	6¼@ 6½
CINCINNATI.
Wheat—Red	90 @ 95
Corn	33 @ 34
Oats	25 @ 26
Rye	50 @ 51
Pork—Mess	9 75 @10 00
Lard	6¼@ 6½
TOLEDO.
Wheat—No. 1 White	95 @ 96
No. 2 Red	94 @ 95
Corn	33 @ 34
Oats—No. 2	23 @ 24
DETROIT.
Flour—White	4 40 @ 4 75
Wheat—No. 1 White	93 @ 94
No. 1 Amber	93 @ 96
Corn—No. 1	34 @ 35
Oats—Mixed	23 @ 24
Barley (per cental)	1 00 @ 1 20
Pork—Mess	9 50 @ 9 75
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Cattle—Best	4 75 @ 5 00
Fair	4 00 @ 4 40
Common	3 25 @ 3 75
Hogs	3 75 @ 4 20
Sheep	3 00 @ 5 00

AUBURN COURIER:

THEODORE REED, Editor.

FARM NOTES.

It is now admitted that the crow destroys more grasshoppers than any other bird.

The best of all soils on which to establish a poultry-yard is gravel or sand, resting on a substratum of gravel.

Too many of our young men think that they can make more money by running a horse than by running a farm.

It is a duty every farmer owes to himself, his family and his creditors to have a safe insurance on his farm buildings and contents.

If a farmer or a business man wants to find out how great a spendthrift he is, let him keep an exact memorandum of all the time idly spent.

Cooked meat chopped up and mixed with other feed is not only relished by fowls, but gives back the strength lost during the moulting process.

Mr. Meeham, a horticulturist of much experience, says he never saw blight on pear trees that were whitewashed. He believes it to be an absolute remedy.

Farmers as a class do not look ahead enough—do not plan for the future in their crops, etc., and therefore many of their failures are for want of forethought.

If you intend setting an orchard next spring, it is time to begin to select the list of suitable trees. Run no risks. Nothing is more discouraging than to cultivate trees five to eight years, and, when they begin to bear, find they are not true to name. It is a disaster for which there is no remedy, and, while to get trees direct from a nursery of reputation may cost a few dollars more in freight than to buy them from a peddler, the difference is as nothing compared with the risk of ordering from unknown and irresponsible parties.

How strangely we overlook the value of the liquid excrement of our animals! A cow under ordinary feeding furnishes in a year 2,000 pounds of solid excrement, and about 8,000 pounds of liquid. The comparative money value of the two is but slightly in favor of the solid. The urine of herbivorous animals holds nearly all the secretions of the body which are capable of producing the rich nitrogenous compounds so essential as forcing or leaf-forming agents in the growth of plants. The solid holds the phosphoric acid, the lime and magnesia, which goes to seed principally; but the liquid holding nitrogen, potash and soda is forming the stalks and leaves. The two forms of plant nutriment should never be separated or allowed to be wasted by neglect.—Montreal Gazette.

Two years ago I took out the stumps of ten acres. With a stump-puller and three men we took out, in two and a half days, 129 stumps, most of them very large ones. The cost of stump-puller and hands, including the boss, was ten dollars. In one day and a half two hands hauled all the stumps to an adjoining wood; then the whole job was done except filling up the holes. I took the front of my wagon carriage and attached two "skids" fifteen feet long, spread them and spiked old planks on them, and it worked well. Some of the stumps were so large that we took two horses and log-chain fastened on the opposite side, and tumbled them over on the platform attached to the wagon. This, I think, is the best and cheapest plan, and makes a clean job of it in a short time. The stumps in my section of country [Cumberland county, Pa.] will nearly pay for removing them. They can be used to put under lime stacks, or will answer for butcher wood. Those that are too rough can be used for stove fuel, etc., in a few years, provided the wood is an object, as it is in this section.—Letter to Practical Farmer.

Some years ago, says an experienced farmer, I had a lot of sheep wintered in a building and yard fenced in with palings to keep out worthless curs. In the second story of the building hay was kept for the sheep, and fed to them under the building, which was open at one end, some six or seven feet high, into the yard where troughs were kept for feeding grain. During the winter manure accumulated under the building to twelve or fifteen inches in depth and extended, gradually taping to the ground, out into the yard. At the edge of the building the manure was about twelve inches deep. In the following autumn, when I went to haul out the manure for wheat, I found that immediately outside of the edge of the building, where exposed to the weather, it had rotted and sunk till it was only six inches deep, while that immediately under the shelter was still about a foot deep. I took a cart and oxen and drew the manure which was on the outside of the building, and put it on a strip across the field intended for wheat, then drew out the same quantity in bulk from under the building, and put it in like manner upon an adjoining strip of the same size and quality. All was sowed with wheat of the same kind and at the same time. The crop from those two lands was not measured, but every one who examined the crop before cutting decided there was about twice the quantity on the land manured by the covered manure.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY.

Mountain Cake.—Two cups of sugar, one cup of butter, the whites of four eggs, one teaspoonful of soda, two teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar, one pound of raisins, a pinch of salt.

Tea Stains.—Tea stains should be wet in equal parts of alcohol and ammonia, and then washed in tepid soapsuds. If the spots be firmly fixed, expose them to the fumes of burning sulphur.

Polishing Floors.—Some persons will persist in scrubbing and scouring polished floors, which is both silly and injurious. They should be swept with a broom covered with flannel, and polished twice a year.

To Clean Cloths.—The best way is to steep them in warm water for half an hour, then use borax soap, rubbing it freely on the most soiled parts, finally washing well with very hot water. Afterward rinse in cold water.

Corn-Starch Cake.—One cup of butter, two cups of sugar, two cups of flour, two cups of corn-starch, four eggs, one cup of milk, one teaspoonful of soda, and two teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar, pinch of salt, flavor to taste.

An Excellent Winter Dish.—Six pounds of brisket of beef, roasted for half an hour; but it into a stewpan, with four quarts of water, some carrots, turnips, celery, onions, cloves, herbs, salt, pepper, and vermicelli. Let it stand four hours, simmering slowly, but it must not boil. Skim frequently.

Cement for Sealing Bottles.—Mix three parts of resin, one of caustic soda, and five of water; this composition is then mixed with half its weight of plaster of paris. The compound sets in three-quarters of an hour, adheres strongly, is not permeable like plaster used alone, and is attacked only slightly by warm warm.

To Cure a Ham.—One ounce of saltpeter, one ounce of black pepper, ground, and one ounce of juniper berries, bruised, one pound of common salt, two pounds of brown sugar; mix all this together, and put on your ham; rub and trim it every day for a month, then hang it up in a chimney where wood is burned.

To Cleanse Glass Globes.—If the globes on a gas fixture are much stained on the outside by smoke, soak them in tolerably hot water in which a little washing soda has been dissolved. Then put a teaspoonful of powdered ammonia in a pan of lukewarm water, and with a hard brush scrub the globes until the smoke stains disappear. Rinse in clean cold water. They will be as white as if new.

Chicken Pie.—Take two chickens weighing about two pounds each; cut in pieces the size you wish to serve; put them in water enough to cover them, add one table-spoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of white pepper; let them cook slowly until tender—that should be about one hour—then remove them to a plate and take out the largest bones—such as drumsticks and neck. Make a crust of two cupfuls of chopped beef suet, one of butter, and three of flour—prepared is the best. Line a four-quart earthen pie-dish with two-thirds of the crust, put in the chickens and the liquid they are boiled in, which should be a quart; if not, add cold water enough, one teaspoonful of pulverized sage, and a lump of butter the size of an egg. Let it cook one hour in a moderate oven.

A Burr in the Heart.

A lady residing near Cleveland, Ohio, died a short time ago from an unknown disease which greatly puzzled the attending physicians, the symptoms being similar to those experienced in rheumatism of the heart. After her long suffering ended in death, a post-mortem examination revealed one of the most wonderful things known to the medical profession. A large burdock burr was found securely imbedded in the heart, against the posterior surface of the aorta, just at the point where it emerges from the body of the heart, completely covered with cystic-like tissue which had firmly enveloped all the large blood-vessels leading to and from the heart, which organ was in a high state of inflammation, the left ventricle being greatly enlarged. A feature which greatly puzzles the doctors is the fact that the large aorta about three inches from the heart is found to be worn as thin as tissue-paper for about the space of an inch, only the outer covering of the large artery remaining. This is supposed to have been produced by the close proximity of the burr in its passage toward the heart. The specimen was forwarded to the Museum of the Bennett Medical College, of this city, and has been inspected by a large number of leading physicians, who unite in pronouncing it one of the most extraordinary cases on record. Prof. Davis and others are of the opinion that the burr must have been breathed into the lungs while the woman was a child, as she has been a great sufferer for a number of years, during which time the burr was migrating from the bronchial tubes through the tissues of its final lodging-place.—Chicago Tribune.

A Creditable Contrast.

We have under one Government and one flag a territory larger than that ruled by a dozen Governments in Europe, and the difference in the salaries paid to Kings and royalty and those paid the servants of our people in our republic is striking. The Czar of Russia gets $8,250,000 per year, or $25,000 a day. The Sultan of Turkey gets annually $6,000,000, or $18,000 per day. Napoleon III. had a salary of $5,000,000 annually, or $14,000 each day. Francis Joseph, of Austria, receives $4,000,000 a year, or $10,000 a day. King William of Prussia, is paid $3,000,000 per year, and Victor Emmanuel $2,400,000, and, good Queen Victoria manages to live on $2,000,000. Now, in addition to these salaries, each sovereign is furnished with a dozen or more first-class residences free of cost. In this country our President gets only $50,000 a year just as much as the Czar of Russia gets in two days. Gen. Sherman receives in all some $18,000 per year—only a fraction more than the Sultan of Turkey gets each day. The whole expense of an American Congress for a session of six months will not exceed—incidentals and all—$4,000,000. The people in this country complain of hard times. Let them study the pauperism of England, and, our word for it, they will deem the condition of our poorer classes a comparatively happy one.

Electric lights are used on the mastheads of the French steamers, which are also provided with a steam fog-horn that utters the most harrowing and unearthly yells.

WAR CLAIMS.

Extract from a Speech of Hon. Benj. H. Hill, of Georgia, Delivered in the Senate of the United States.

Mr. President, perhaps I ought not to take the time of the Senate, but I will give my idea of the character of these war claims, loyal and disloyal, by an illustration from real incidents. I will give you first the character of a claim that will not be paid, and it is a type of many millions. Early in the month of September, 1865, it became necessary for me in the discharge of a professional engagement to travel 100 miles in the immediate track of Sherman's march through Georgia. One day about 2 o'clock in the afternoon I became exceedingly hungry. I said to the youth who was driving the horse, "You must stop at the first favorable opportunity and let me get something to eat." I shall never forget the expression of the young man. "Ah," says he, "mister, I don't reckon you will find anything you will consider fit to eat in this part of the country. Sherman has been along here." "Well," I said, "but the people in this part of the country live on something, do they not?" "Oh, yes, but I don't hardly know how it is they live. They seem to live, though." "Well," I said, "I can live one day on what they live on constantly, I am pretty sure, and, therefore, we will stop at the most favorable chance apparent." It was not long before we came to a very good-looking frame dwelling two stories high, a dwelling of a character well known in the South, containing six rooms, well built, and indicating, in former times, a country family well to do in the world. The fencing was all gone, the chimneys were standing on the outside, showing that all the out-houses had been burned, but there stood the main building, and I said to the young man, "Stop here and I will see if I can get something to eat," and I went in and was met at the door by a very excellent-looking lady, modest, and evidently refined and educated. She turned out to be a country lady of great hospitality, but with evidence of poverty all around her, and she looked prematurely old. She said to me when I made known my purpose of stopping: "Why, my dear sir, I would be glad to give you anything that I could, but I have nothing that you will have, I suppose, and nothing that I feel inclined to offer you." "Anything that you have," I said, "will suit me, because I am exceedingly hungry." She said: "I can prepare for you nothing but some potatoes and some eggs, but I have nothing in which to cook the potatoes except the embers. We are in the habit of roasting them in the ashes. I have nothing in which to cook the eggs except the ashes or a broken skillet. I have not a whole piece of furniture or a whole kitchen implement on the premises. Everything is broken." She handed me a seat. Said she: "I have handed you the best seat I have. The back of that is broken as you see." "Why is all that?" "Why," she said, "Sherman's army passed along here and did all this." Well, I told her I would take the potatoes and eggs, and she put them in the ashes accordingly, and while they were roasting I said to her: "Will you please give me an account of your experience and trials when Sherman's army passed here?" She said she would. I cannot give it all to the Senate, but certainly it was one of the most interesting narratives I ever listened to in my life. The lady was one who had married about eight years before the war. She was well raised and graduated at a female college in Georgia. She and her husband settled in that place and built that house. They had about 1,000 acres of land, thirty slaves, and all they needed personally, and were entirely out of debt and perfectly happy. They had three children born to them, the oldest one at the time of my visit being only 12 years old.

Mr. Beck—Mr. President, I desire to ask whether Warren Mitchell got any of that woman's eggs and potatoes or not. We are trying his case now, not her.

Mr. Hill—I will come to Warren Mitchell's case. I will show you how it applies to Warren Mitchell's case, but I shall do it in my own way. It turned out that her husband went into the Confederate army and lost his life in one of the battles in Virginia. His remains were brought home and were buried in sight of where we were sitting. About a year after her husband was in Virginia, in the Confederate army, Sherman's army passed through Georgia and all her slaves except one, her cook, called Aunt Millie, left. This Aunt Millie was raised with this lady and had nursed her in her infancy, and was given to her by her father, and she said she would never leave her under any circumstances, and she remained with her. But, to make a long story short, everything they had was taken. All the stock, all the provisions, were taken away. Everything that could not be carried away was killed or broken, or burned, except one cow, two banks of potatoes and a small crib of corn. The cow was saved by Aunt Millie claiming her as her own, which she did for the purpose of having it. The corn-crib was saved in this way: The lady sat in the house with her three children and saw everything being burned. Seeing the torch about to be applied to the last corn-crib she summoned courage and went out with her babe in her arms and her own little children by her side and said to the officer who seemed to have charge of the sport, "Sir, have you a family at home?" The officer said he had a wife and two children. "What would you think," said she, "if a Southern army should pass through your country and take the last mouthful of bread your wife and children had?" The officer was a man. He lifted his hat most gallantly, and then said to his squad, "Don't fire that crib," and said to the squad in the garden, "Don't disturb further those potatoes," and that is the way the lady saved the crib of corn and banks of potatoes. In the meantime the squad had gone into the house, pulled down all the pictures, defaced the walls, broke all the furniture, broke everything she had in the shape of kitchen utensils, and carried off all her silverware and cutlery. The last she saw they were pulling the covering off the grave of her husband, and, supposing they were going to take his body off, she fainted away, but Aunt Millie stopped them by telling them for God's sake not to make war on the dead, and they left. This is a literal fact. This woman had raised a patch of one acre of potatoes and one small field of corn, working with her own hands and aided by this good woman, Aunt Millie, and her three little children, and they had lived on that scant allowance from the time Sherman's army passed by until I met her. Now that woman will never come here to have her losses repaid. She will never come here with a claim before Congress and ask for compensation. And now I will give you another claim. A few weeks after I took my seat as a member of the other House in the Forty-fifth Congress I received a card one day by a messenger, who said that a lady desired to see me in the Speaker's reception room. I went in. She was exceedingly well-dressed. She had velvet and diamonds and laces all over her, and the first speech she made to me was to express the great gratification of all Georgians that I had been elected to Congress. "For now," she said, "all Georgians will get their rights." She soon made known the animus of that speech, for in the next sentence she said she had a claim before Congress which she desired me to support, and she knew I would support it because she was a Georgia lady, born and raised in Georgia and she knew I would support her claim. "Well, who are you? If you were born and raised in Georgia and had losses in Georgia, why are you here in the condition I see you?" "Oh!" she said, "when Sherman's army passed through Georgia they destroyed my property, but," she added, "I married one of the Federal officers and came North."

Mr. Hoar—She took her revenge in that way.

Mr. Hill—Yes, sir; she married a Federal officer. The first woman mentioned lost her husband in the Confederate army and therefore is disloyal. The second woman married an officer in the Union army and therefore is loyal. Well, her statement was true because she produced a very complimentary and flattering letter from Gen. Sherman. Evidently the letter was genuine and not dictated by a woman, but I will say, in justice to Gen. Sherman, that I am satisfied he gave that letter more on account of the woman's husband, who was a Federal officer, than on account of her claims. I assume and believe he did. "But," I asked this lady, "what is your claim for?" Said she: "Why, for personal property destroyed by Sherman's army." "How much is your claim for?" "Eight hundred thousand dollars," she said, whereupon I became bewildered. "Eight hundred thousand dollars of personal property of one person destroyed by the war?" "Yes," she said; "it was well proved by the very officers and men who destroyed it—who set fire to it," and she named quite a number of Republicans in the House, who, she said, had promised to vote for her bill, but they had told her that it would be very important for her to get a Democrat, and, best of all, a Southern Democrat, to introduce it. Therefore she came to me as a Democrat, and a Southern Democrat from her own State—her dear Georgia—to introduce her bill. She said the Republicans assured her that if she would get a little reinforcement from the South and from the Democratic party, her bill would certainly become a law. I said to the lady: "It will be very difficult to make me believe that the whole country ever at one time had $800,000 worth of personal property." "But," she said, "it is all proved. It is all right, and the Republicans are ready to vote for it." I do not say they were. I can only tell you what the woman said, and as she is loyal you ought to accept her as a good witness. Seeing that her entreaties could do no good, she finally said to me that I had to vote for her bill; that she had a great many among the newspaper men, and she friends sometimes wrote for the newspapers herself, and, looking at me with all the air of command and of one having authority, she said: "Mr. Hill, if you don't vote for my bill you will never go to the Senate." Thereupon I made the lady a bow, gave her a flat refusal to have anything to do with her or her bill, and left. These are specimens of what you call Southern claims. This first claim will never come here. The second, and cases like it, will always be here, and I saw this claim of $800,000 for the woman who became loyal by marriage, and for whom the Republicans were ready to vote—I saw the same claim paraded through the Northern press in the campaign of 1876, as evidence that, if the Southern Democrats ever did get here in power, and the Democratic party had the majority, they would take everything there was in the treasury. Now, should I vote to tax that woman who fed me on the eggs and potatoes to pay this woman in velvet, laces and diamonds? All over the South there are hundreds and thousands of people, limping, weak, poor, impoverished by the war, laboring as best they can for a bare sustenance, asking Congress for nothing, not looking to the Government for compensation for their losses, and here and there is some man who has lost something, who has lost some property or failed to make what he hoped for in some speculative venture, coming here and asking Congress to pay his losses, and that we shall tax these poor people to pay his losses. I for one shall not do it. I am against those bills, therefore, upon principle. I do not need any constitutional amendment to make me against them. There will be a great many hard cases. I consider that war is nothing but an ordeal of hard cases. I do not know anything produced by war except hard cases. You cannot repair all those hard cases. Mr. Mitchell has a hard case, but his case is not harder than thousands of others who lost like property or other property, and who were just as loyal as he was. You cannot repair these losses. Let it go forth, therefore, that we take the position distinctly and emphatically that this talk of paying Southern war claims must end. Teach it to our people, and teach it to all the people, and let all this political excitement on the subject end. Mr. President, I am the humblest man in the Democratic party. That party after eighteen years of absence I trust and believe is about to return full-fledged to power. I think it will have possession of every department of this Government. It certainly will have it if we convince the people North and South that we deserve to have it, for, evidently, the people are satisfied that the Republican party does not deserve to be continued in power, and the only question with the people is whether the Democratic party does deserve to be intrusted with power. If I had control of the party—as I have not, and never shall—if my voice were worth anything, there are four things I would have the Democratic party to proclaim to the world in most convincing terms and adhere to it with unflinching fidelity. I would have the party to say:

1. We will not pay war losses, loyal or disloyal, unless we make a few exceptions of religious, educational, and charitable institutions, and very few of these.

2. We will vote no more of the public credit and no more of the public lands to build up or enrich mammoth monopolies in the shape of corporations.

3. We will in good faith pay every dollar of the public debt, principal and interest, in good money of the standard value.

4. We will restore the constitution to the country and honesty and economy to its administration, confining the General Government to its limited delegated sovereign power to promote the general welfare, and leaving the States unmolested in the exercise of their reserved sovereign powers to promote the local welfare of the people.

Do these four things, and, in my judgment, the child is not born who will witness the termination of Democratic administration in this country, and the tongue has not been gifted with language that can express the prosperity which will follow to all our people in every section of our country.

INDIANA LEGISLATURE.

Friday, Jan. 31.—Senate.—The only business of importance transacted by the Senate today was the consideration of the act concerning married women. The bill, after being amended, was ordered engrossed. It gives married women almost complete control over their separate property and earnings from business labor.

House.—The consideration of the constitutional amendments was resumed. The amendments striking out the provision denying the right of suffrage to negroes and mulattoes, striking the word "white" from the constitution, giving the Legislature powers to grade fees and salaries in proportion to the population, vesting the judicial power of the State in a Supreme Court, Circuit Courts, and such other courts as the General Assembly may establish, and limiting the indebtedness of municipal corporations to 2 per cent. of the value of taxables, were adopted without much discussion. The amendments extending the length of the sessions of the General Assembly, and increasing the number of Supreme Judges to seven, were rejected. The amendment changing the time of holding general elections from October to November, and providing for a registry law was discussed at length, and finally adopted by a vote of 61 to 34.... The remainder of the session was occupied in reading Senate bills the first time.

Saturday, Feb. 1.—Senate.—Bills were introduced: To furnish stationery to county officers; prohibiting railroads from discriminating in favor of officials; to prevent tramps from riding on cars, by making it a misdemeanor; authorizing the election of Marshal by Common Council.... The Judiciary Committee were instructed to prepare a bill to prevent the Insane Asylum being used as a reformatory for drunkards.... A communication was received from the Superintendent of Public Instruction in relation to the reduction of local school levies. He recommends a reduction in the levy allowed for the purpose of building school-houses, etc., and also a reduction in several of the other levies now allowed by law.

House.—A bill was introduced by Mr. Works providing for the appointment of Trustees of all reformatory and benevolent institutions by the Governor.... Mr. Faulkner introduced a bill for the appointment of a joint committee to investigate the business of the State every two years.... Other bills were introduced as follows: To establish a State militia; providing for a cumulative system of voting for Senators and Representatives; repealing the law appropriating money to the State Normal School; fixing the time of election for the ratification of the constitutional amendments; to make hanging public; for the election of County Superintendents, and preventing their acting as book agents; regulating the sale of liquor.

Monday, Feb. 3.—Senate.—The Senate met at 2 p. m., and, on motion of Mr. Streight, took up bills on second reading. After several bills had been read a second time and the reports of committees thereon acted upon, an amendment to a pending bill was offered and the ayes and noes demanded thereon. The call of the roll showed no quorum present, and the Senate adjourned.

House.—The House this afternoon had before them three reports from the Judiciary Committee upon the right of this Assembly to elect full Boards of Trustees for the benevolent institutions, deaf and dumb, the blind, and the insane. The Democrats hold the election of 1877 by the Republicans in joint convention to be null and void, and therefore treat the Presidency of the boards and one of the Trusteeships as vacancies, while for the other Trustee this is the regular time of election. The law provides that the elections shall be by concurrent vote of the two houses, and, as the election of two years ago was in joint convention, they hold it illegal and void. The Republicans claim that the election was a substantial compliance with the statute; that no fraud violated it; that the Legislative will was properly expressed, and, although the Governor refused to commission the persons so elected, they were, notwithstanding, duly elected and qualified, and are entitled to hold for the full term of four years. The National member of the committee makes a second minority report, taking the ground that the election of 1877 was null and void, but that each biennial General Assembly can only elect one member of the board. In his conclusion he sides with the Republicans. The debate was by Representative Heath for the Republicans, Chairman Osborne for the Democrats, and by Mr. Works for himself. At a late hour, the majority report of the Democratic members of the committee was adopted by yeas, 48; nays, 30.

Tuesday, Feb. 4.—Senate.—Bills introduced: To prohibit the marriage of drunkards; repealing the act for the appointment of students to Purdue University; for the appointment of public administrators, to have control of all estates in each county; providing for a system of cumulative voting; giving laborers preferred liens; regulating the practice of dentistry; abolishing the office of State Geologist.... At the close of a protracted afternoon's debate, the Senate ordered to engrossment a bill allowing to medical colleges properly incorporated the bodies of all persons who die in the public hospitals, asylums or poor-houses, which are left unclaimed by the relatives for twenty-four hours after death. Sheriffs are also directed to give over to the authorities of such colleges the bodies of executed criminals. A provision to make this a part of the sentence of the court was stricken out. The vote on the bill was—yeas, 27; nays, 13.

House.—Little business was transacted in the House, the entire session being occupied in disposing of committee reports.... The bill prohibiting appeals from Justices, when the amount is less than $20 was ordered engrossed.... A communication was received from the Superintendent of Public Instruction, showing where local school levies might be reduced from 24 to 50 per cent.... A bill was introduced authorizing the State of Maryland to transfer all the title of the State of Indiana to the national cemetery at Antietam to the General Government.... Mr. Humphreys' Legislative Apportionment bill was made the special order for Friday.... The joint resolution favoring resumption was reported back with the recommendation that it be indefinitely postponed. On a call of yeas and nays on the question of concurring in the report no quorum voted, and the House adjourned.

Wednesday, Feb. 5.—Senate.—Senator Winterbotham occupied considerable time upon a question of privilege, the charges of the Indianapolis Journal that he was the head of a ring controlling the Northern prison. He denied the charges, and courted investigation.... The Senate then passed Senator Streight's resolution asking Congress for the passage of the Inter-State Commerce bill regulating the charges of railway transportation.

House.—Indiana members of Congress were instructed to vote for a bill to amend the Revenue law so as to allow farmers to sell tobacco raised by them in leaf or twist, without being compelled to take out the usual Government license, and to reduce the fees and salaries of Federal officers.... The bill making seventy pounds a bushel of corn was ordered engrossed.... A number of committee reports were received and acted upon.

Joint Convention.—Both houses met in joint convention, and elected the following officers: State Librarian, Miss Maggie Fitzgibbon; Directors of the State Prison, South, Col. Thomas Shea, of Scott county, and P. S. D. Mitchell, of Monroe; Directors of the Northern Prison, Col. John Lee, of Montgomery; Frederick Hoover, of Jasper; and Simeon Wile of Laporte county.

Bro. Gardner's Lime-Kiln Club.

"Gem'len, an onpleasant dooty am forced upon me by de pressur' of circumstances," began Brother Gardner, as the hall grew quiet. "De odder evenin', as I war reclinin' on de kitchen lounge, a rap was heard at de doah and de follerin' note was put into my hands:

> "Brother Gardner—If you will follow the bearer of this you will discover a number of your club engaged in a very disreputable business.
>
> X.

"I followed de boy. In a barn in an alley off Hastings street de diskivery was made. A member of dis club was dar, engaged in puttin' up a dog-fight, an' about forty specktators were on han' to see de fun. I looked frew de cracks and seed de hull performance. De dog owned by de Lime-kiln man licked de odder canine in about ten minits, an' $5 changed hands, but de blush o' pride didn't come to my cheek on dat account. If dar ever war a time when I liked to see a dog-fight it war way back in de forties. It am a cruel, bad bizness, too low for decent men to encourage or engaige in, an' it am now my painful duty to ax Brudder Philbrick Gladstone to stan' up an' let himself be seen."

The member mentioned slowly arose. The proceedings were a perfect thunder-clap to him. As he reached his feet and found sixty or seventy pair of eyes turned upon him he would have resumed his bench if the thoughtful Jan. Harrison hadn't been behind him with a darning-needle.

"I—Ize heah, sah!" he gasped, as he turned to the platform.

"De brudder will step seben or eight paces dis way," said the President.

He walked slowly forward, his knees playing a tune and his color fading to the complexion of French wall-paper, and when he was in position the President arose and said:

"Brudder Philbrick Gladstone, you hez heard de charges. Am you guilty or innocent?"

"I war dar, an' I owned de winnin' dorg," was the reply.

"Well, de sentence am dat you hand over de $5 to de library fund o' dis club, an' dat you sign a pledge nebber to engaige in such low bizness agin. In case you refuse to han' over an' sign, your name will be crossed from de roll, an' dis hall won't see you any more."

The brother handed over the cash without hesitation, signed a written pledge, and as he returned to his seat he had to unbutton his vest to give play to his heartfelt emotions. He will doubtless be found in the front rank of philanthropists and humanitarians after this.—Detroit Free Press.

In addition to the ancient ceremony of serving up a boar's head at Queen's College, Oxford, on Christmas day, another curious and ancient custom, that of presenting a threaded needle to each person dining in the college hall on New Year's day, is still observed. After the drinking-horn has been passed round the Senior Burser presents each guest with a needle, threaded with silk of red, black and blue, representing the three faculties of medicine, divinity and law, enjoining them to take it and be thrifty.

ALL SORTS.

Boston has 400 miles of street lights.

Richmond, Va., claims 79,000 inhabitants.

Deaths on the Atlantic steamers have been unusually numerous of late.

An unprecedented amount of lumber is being cut in the Michigan pineries this winter.

It costs Russia nearly $125,000 to have her newspapers supervised in the interest of order.

Workingmen in Philadelphia have over $70,000,000 invested in co-operative loan associations.

The total debt of the city of Philadelphia is $71,835,101, a decrease of $1,000,000 on last year.

The estimated number of horses in the United States is 8,000,000. Illinois ranking first in number.

The distress among the poor in Halifax is considered greater than it has been for many years past.

If a woman were to change her sex, why could she no longer be a Christian? Because she would be a he(a)then.

There are now 186 American vessels employed in the whale fishery, with an aggregate tonnage of 40,603. New Bedford, Mass., owns 132 of them.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" was produced in Berlin, recently, with great success. The play was done in German, but the colored fraternity sang in English.

The quails were made to quail during the cold weather in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois, and sportsmen say that most of these birds have either frozen or starved to death.

She fell from the arms of a well-dressed woman, alighted upon a curbstone, cutting her frail form in twain. Brutal policeman grinned in glee over the catastrophe. She was a doll.

In Buenos Ayres a great open-air meeting of 12,000 to 15,000 persons was held to protest against the enormous taxes just imposed by the Provincial Legislature on tobacco and alcoholic drinks.

An Irish gentleman having purchased an alarm clock, an acquaintance asked him what he intended to do with it. "Och!" answered he, "sure I've nothing to do but pull the string and wake myself."

Dried apples and cord-wood are not taken at par for subscriptions by the Watsonville (Cal.) Transcript, which adopts as its motto:

We do not belong to our patrons;
Our paper is wholly our own;
Whoever may like it may take it,
Who don't may just let it alone.

There are forty-eight tramways in the United Kingdom, with £4,207,350 expended capital and 268½ miles of track, 1,124 cars and 9,222 horses. The roads carried, last year, 146,001,223 passengers, their total receipts being £1,145,465, and the net receipts £230,956, or 5¼ per cent. on the capital.

Two thousand Indians dwell in Lower Canada, one-half of whom are Catholics. They join the Kanuck Caristian names to those of beasts and wear them as family names, viz: Jean Baptiste Horse, Charles Louis Bear. They speak French and are industrious, but poor.

It is said that the future Prince of Bulgaria is likely to be Price Louis of Battenberg, the son of Prince Alexander of Hesse, who is an Austrian cavalry general and honorary colonel of the Eighth Russian Hussars. Prince Louis is now serving in the British navy, and is an intimate friend of the Duke of Edinburg.

Very young girls of 12 or 14 years of age wear the hair in two long Swiss braids, tied with ribbons to match the dress; for a full dress a little bunch of lilies-of-the-valley or roses or forget-me-nots are worn on the side of the head. Older girls wear the hair in rolled curls turned up at the back, thus forming a low chignon, at the side of which is worn a bunch of flowers.

The Useful Snow of Norway.

It is always with a slight feeling of anxiety that we read about heavy snowstorms in this country, for we know that they mean, or may mean, the stopping of traffic at this point or that. So much the more curious it is, when opening a Norwegian paper, to meet with passages like this:

"Fortunately, we have had much snow in this part of the country, and there is good hope that it will now remain solid on the ground for the season." But, in Norway, the snow is itself a means of traffic, and that an important one. When the snow fails, the lumber trade, for instance, one of the most important branches of the industry of the country, is seriously embarrassed. The trees are felled during the fall and winter, and those huge, giant trunks which it would be next to impossible to transport in the summer time over the steep, rugged ground, where horses cannot be employed, are in winter time drawn easily along on the smooth, solid surface of the frozen snow. Tied together in immense bundles, they are thrown down in the dry river-bed, and, when spring comes and the snow melts, the bundles are carried down by the stream to the very gates of the lumber yard. Thus the snow, which to us is an impediment, is to the Norwegians an aid, and it is even something much more, for it is, indeed, one of the great national poets of the country. It makes the house so warm and so cozy, it makes the landscape so soft and so mild, and it makes people so merry and full of new plans and new ideas, for it brings them together. Neighbors, who in summer time cannot visit each other because the journey along the bad roads—which creep in zigzag through the glens, along the clefts, over the peaks—takes two or three days, can now reach each other in a few hours, setting out on their snow-shoes or in the light sledges drawn by reindeer, in a straight line across the glens, the clefts, the peaks, everything being buried under the snow or bridged over by it.

None of the scientists have explained why it is that a man is always the sleepiest just before the fire is built in the morning.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, FEB. 18, 1879.

THEODORE REED, - - Editor.

Ex-Governor Hartranft has been appointed post master at Philadelphia.

Senator Christiancy has tendered his resignation to the Governor of Michigan. Old Zach Chandler will jump into the shoes. Hurrah for Grant!

Indianapolis Sentinel.—"The cipher committee pulled up stakes and left New York for Washington suddenly after examining Mr. Tilden. They were in the same fix of the bear hunter, who excused himself from pursuing the "bar" because the trail was getting "too durned fresh."

The new Treasurer of State.

(Indianapolis Sentinel.)

To-day Hon. William Fleming becomes the custodian of the funds belonging to the State of Indiana. He comes into office with a record of which any citizen of the State might well feel proud, and his selection for the important trust imposed by his office reflects credit upon the Democratic party of the State. As a citizen his record is unsullied; as a financier and business man he is justly regarded the peer of the most far-seeing, and as a politician he has been for years recognized as a power in the section of the State where he resides. During his administration millions of money will pass through his hands, and we doubt if there is any party or individual who entertains doubts as to the integrity and fidelity which will distinguish his administration. He starts out under flattering auspices, and we believe that he will meet every reasonable expectation. His bond filed with the secretary of State is for $150,000, and is signed by 13 sureties who represent an aggregate wealth of over two millions of dollars. They are as follows, and all reside in Fort Wayne: Stephen B. Bond, Charles McCulloch, August C. Trentman, Charles F. Muhler, George H. Wilson, Montgomery Hamilton, Henry Mouning, J. H. Bass, Henry C. Graffe, O. P. Morgan James Lillie, Joseph K. Eagerton, Oscar A. Simons.

Notwithstanding all the discussion relative to the interest question during the last campaign in this state, and the many pledges made by candidates of each party, there seems to be some doubt about the legislature reducing the rate to 6 per cent. as promised. The subject was agitated in every county, in convention, out of convention, on the stump and in private conversation, and the people everywhere favored six per cent. as the legal rate. It was generally understood that the legislature would comply with the demands of the people early in the session without debate, but it seems now that capital has put in appearance and is about to silence enough of "the people's servants" to secure the continuation of an exorbitant legal interest. It is argued by the representatives of capital, that no law can regulate the amount to be paid for the use of money, any more than the price of grain can be regulated by law, if so, then the law makers of the several states of the Union have been acting upon a false theory for many years, for there is not a state that does not provide for legal interest at some rate. We admit that the legal rate of interest cannot govern all cases, and that private contracts are often made contrary to law, but it does and will regulate loans made by agencies of eastern capital, and loan associations operating upon a large scale. It is said that a lower rate of interest will drive capital out of the state, and thereby ruin those who are so unfortunate as to have an eastern blanket mortgage upon their property which they could not renew at a lower rate; such are the threats of the capitalists now being brought to bear upon our legislature, but there is nothing in the argument, there is no place that money could be placed at more than six per cent. with as good security, besides eastern money lenders do not want to foreclose mortgages and take lands, if they do, let them take them now, for the loans will never be paid without a sacrifice of the property, the income from the property will never pay the debt. As a general thing the largest and best farms in the state are the ones upon which loans have been made, and we would be pleased to learn of a single instance where the incumbrance has been removed without a loss to the borrower, such loans only furnish temporary relief—only delay the final result. Another argument advanced is, that it would not be just to compel capitalists to loan money at six per cent, while the school fund of the state is being loaned at eight per cent. If that is unjust, let the rate for school funds be reduced to seven per cent. the old rate, at which it was loaned for years when the legal rate of interest in the state was only six per cent., borrowers would rather pay one per cent. more for school funds, for the reason that loans are made for five years, and can be renewed as often as desired. We insist that the legal rate be fixed at six per cent. that the many borrowers may be able to protect their interests, and the few lenders get all their money is worth. The legislator who violates the pledge made to his constituents, will be entered in the invoice record and marked SOLD, for CASH.

In the case of Weaver vs. Umber, before Esquire Altenberg, the jury rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, in the sum of $48.12 The costs in the case will probably be greater than the judgement.

Popular.

So popular are Dr. Price's Special Flavoring Extracts, that few kitchens can be found where they are not used; and their introduction to any household is the advent of new pleasures at the table. Dr. Price has succeeded in producing flavorings peculiarly delicious.

Some over-jealous person furnished an editorial for the Republican of last week in relation to the apportionment for legislative purposes, in which he "shot his wad" entirely to quick. The bill is subject to amendments, and when finally passed will show the article in question to be entirely uncalled for and unjust.

Representative Foster, of Ohio, has introduced a bill in Congress making it unlawful for banks to allow interests upon deposits of any character. It further provides a tax of 5 per cent. upon the gross amount of deposits in each year, such tax to be remitted on proper affidavit being made that no interest has been allowed on the deposits by the bank.

A bill has been introduced into the Texas Legislature making highway robery a capital offense: also fixing death penalty or penitentiary for life for burning dwellings and business and manufacturing establishments, and death for burning public buildings of the state or counties. Pretty rough, but desperate cases requires desperate remedies.

—Mayor Zollinger, of Fort Wayne, appears to have the inside track for the Wardenship of the northern prison. If chosen for that position he will make an energetic officer, and will no doubt maintain the creditable management of that institution, by which it has gained a reputation under the direction of our friend Chaley Mayne, the present warden.

At a joint session of the State Legislature, the following officers were elected: State Librarian—Maggie Fitzgibbons, of Johnson county. Directors of the prison south—Col. Thos. Shea, of Scott county, Lorenzo Dow, of Menroe county. Directors of the northern prison—John D. Lee, of Montgomery county; Frederick Hoover, of Benton county; Simon Wile, of Laporte county.

We have just received Nellis' Floral Instructor, which is an elegant, Illustrated Quarterly devoted to gardening in all its branches, containing a complete list of Seeds, Plants and Bulbs at greatly reduced prices, and much other useful information. The subscription price is only ten cents a year.

He sends a sample copy and packet of choice flower seed as a trial to any one who sends him a 3 cent stamp. His address is A. C. NELLIS, Canajoharie, N. Y.

70,000 Acres of Government Lands Open to Settlement.

PROCLAMATION BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE U. S.

In pursuance of an Act of Congress, approved March 3, 1877, directing the President of the United States to restore to market, by proclamation, and open to settlement and purchase under the homestead law of the United States only, all lands withdrawn for the benefit of the grant to the State of Kansas to aid in the construction of the Kansas and Neosho Valley railroad and its extension to Red River, now known as the Missouri River, Fort Scott and Gulf railroad, which remain undisposed of, I, Rutherford B. Hayes, President of the United States of America, do hereby declare and make known that such lands will be open to entry under the homestead laws only, at the Land Office at Independence, Kansas, on Tuesday, February 11th, 1879:

South of base line and east of Sixth principal meridian: Townships 18 and 21, range 20; townships 18, 19, 20, 21 and 22, range 21; townships 20, 21 and 22, range 22; townships 18, 19, 21 and 22, range 23; townships 20, 21 and 22, average 24; townships 18, 18, 20, 21 and 22, range 25. South of base line and east of Sixth principal meridian: townships 25, 26 and 35, range 21; townships 23, 24, 25, 26 and 35, range 22; townships 23, 24, 25 and 26, range 23; townships 23, 26 and 35, range 25.

The lands lying within the ten mile limits of the grant of the Leavenworth, Lawrence and Galveston Railroad, and those lying within the same limits of the grant for the Missouri River, Fort Scott and Gulf Railroad are double minimum in character, and will be subject to entry under the homestead laws as other double minimum. All others are mimium in character, and will be subject to entry under the homestead laws as other mimimun lands. Lists of sectional subdivisions are in the hands of the district officers, and will be open for the examination of those who desire to enter.

Given under my hand at the City of Washington, this 28th day of October, A. D. 1878. By the President:

R. B. HAYES,
President of the United States.

J. A. WILLIAMS,
Commissioner General Land Office.

—What a breeze our last week's communication raised among the singers. How they squirm. If the communication misrepresented the musical talent of the place why don't some one put in a denial, and not act like a lot of litte children at play, where some get mad and go home pouting with the common expression "I jist ain't a goin' to play, so I ain't" or, "I'll tell my pa on you an' he'll"—stop his paper. Personally we know nothing about the merits of the criticism of last week, we expected when we allowed it space in the COURIER, to have the pleasure of publishing a reply this week, for which our columns are open, but up to this time no vindication of the singers has been received.

Spencerville.

—School closes in two weeks.

—Mr. Granvil Erick has been very sick with the mumps.

—Father Snyder, is better, but his recovery is still doubtful.

—Mr. Jesse Headly living east of town was buried on Sunday

—Mrs. E. W. Erick is slowly recovering from her late severe illness.

—Rev. T. Lancaster preached in the M. E. church Satuday evening.

—Mr. George Miller, living southeast of this place is suffering with cancer in the stomach.

—Mr. George Barney is confined to his room suffering from an attack of rheumatism.

—Mr. Joseph Snyder and lady from Mich., are at George Wises' attending upon his father.

—Rev. E. W. Erick is engaged in holding a protracted meeting at the Springfield church.

—In the language of the immortal J. N. "The pressure was brought to bear.' Will, saw the Serfice and skipped.

LaOtto.

—Business dull.

—Upton has been seen in Delphos.

—Mrs. Cannon has removed to Garrett.

—Melt Himes of Albion spent last Sunday in LaOtto.

—Joe Miller will again take charge of the LaOtto House.

—The Teachers Institute will meet at this place next Saturday.

—Henry Holbrook is preparing to put up an immense building in the spring for agricultural implements.

—We feel so much relieved, those young rustics who were creating such a sensation have gone, and we suppose a certain young lady of LaOtto is just a little bit wiser than she used to be.

—That "intelligent boy" arrived last Friday, and the people of LaOtto are standing back to give his "highness" room to swing, we have not heard when he (the boy you know) will enter the Medical College.

—About half a dozen young ladies visited the pianning mill one day last week and that awful Newt got the girls in the garret and then took down the ladder. Oh, it must have been good to be there.

BIDDY.

Angola Items.

—Albert Markle, of Auburn, was in town visiting last week.

—Hon. R. M. Lockhart, of Waterloo, was in town on Monday.

—Miss Emma Kemery has recovered from her late spell of sickness.

—Dr. Sol A. Wood, of Fort Wayne, was on our streets one day last week.

—Chas. N. Buckland, of Waterloo, was in town last week visiting friends.

—R. A. Marvin, of the Herald office, has been indisposed for several days past.

—It took a young student one hour to say "good night" to his girl the other evening.

—Another man and wife parted a few days ago after living together for twenty years.

—There were no services at the M. E. church last Sunday, owing to the sickness of the pastor.

—Willie Hickwalt, who has been in Michigan for some time, is in town visiting his friends.

—John Danetord, of Pleasant Lake, committed suicide on Sunday evening by taking laudanum.

—Miss Blanche Stiefel started for Hudson, Mich., this morning to visit her sister, Mrs. A. Hirsch.

—E. N. Croxton was arrested and committed to jail again last Saturday for breaking down the rear door of ——'s saloon.

—A number of the young folks were entertained by Miss Lizzie and Mr Don C Wood last evening. Games, dancing, etc., were the different amusements.

—Quite an excitement was created on our streets Monday afternoon by the running away of John Snyder's team. By the coolness of John no damage was done.

—A very interesting temperance meeting was held at the Congregational church last Sunday. Messrs. Gale, Stoker and James McConnell were the speakers.

A REPORTER.

Application for License.

NOTICE is hereby given that I intend to apply to the Board of County Commissioners of DeKalb county, Ind., at their next regular session in March, 1879, for a license to retail spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time, to be drank on on the following described premises, to-wit: Lot number six, [6] block number nineteen [19] in the town of Garrett, DeKalb county, Indiana.

CHARLES LINKENHELT.

Feb. 6th, 1879.

St. Joe.

—Bad colds are very prevalent.

—Jesse Headley, one of the pioneers of Concord township died Saturday morning of lung fever.

—Will Dilley left our village last night for Iowa where he intends to remain the coming summer.

—Lung fever seems to have got quite a start throughout this neighborhood, giving the M. D's. a good harvest.

—Newville can certainly feel proud of the auctioneer from that place for of all the men we ever heard (Old Steph as he is familiarly called) he beats them all.

—What might have resulted in something serious only succeeded in Rich getting his dry bones shook up pretty lively. Keep your distance Rich, when you have something aggravating to say for Joe's arms are long and strong, and be sure and keep your shooting irons at home where they will be of some service.

—Crowds of people attended the sale of the personal property of Washington Tustason on Saturday last, and everything passed off pleasantly. We noticed a few persons that had rather more hard cider than was convenient to carry, but it only had a tendency to make them a little noisy and perhaps saved them some money as they could not stay long enough in one place to make a bid on any article.

—It has long been said that the people of Coburn's Corners were unable to do a mean thing, and we still think there is some good in Isreal. Nevertheless Nelse Ulm thinks there must be some black sheep in that neighborhood or his traps with their contents would not have been molested. Some chap stole two traps, and Nelse thinks from the signs that one contained a mink and the other a skunk. What any one in that community could want with the last named, surpasses our comprehension. Let the chap who wears boots pretty well run over beware, Nelse is on his track.

Newville Items.

—The Disciple's have been having a series of meetings in the evenings at their church for the last week. Services by the Rev. A. Q. O'Viatt.

—H. V. Lawrence has gone to Bourbon, to visit his brother, of the firm of Lawrance & Matchet of that place, and will not return for some time.

—Times are still dull, or at least this is the best reason that we can get when we ask a man to subscribe for the COURIER, for they can find no fault with the paper.

—Mrs. Henry Maxwell is dangerously sick with pneumonia. Call and see "Aunt Vi," and render whatever assistance is necessary, as she has always been ready to do.

—We learn that Hon. S. S. Shutt is at home sick. We are sorry to hear this as he is needed at this time in the Legislature, and hope that he may not be detained long.

—Mrs. Henry Robinson is expected home from Cleveland where she has been for some time having her eyes operated upon by Dr. Scott, of that city. She was accompanied by Mrs. Willis Andrews, and both are expected home to-day.

—Moses Ashelman and wife transfers the Allen farm to Wilson Countryman, and Wilson Countryman the undivided one-half of the saw mill over the river to Moses Ashelman. Also William Countryman to Moses Ashelman, forty acres of the farm formerly owned by Jacob Countryman, deceased.

—More excitement—the fool-tax collector is in town to-day, G. G. Grady is here with something to amuse small children and likely some of larger growth, with his slight-of-hand performance, and perhaps those that have no money when they are asked to subscribe for a paper will be able to pay their fool-tax.

ALPHA.

To Township Trustees and School Boards.

We keep in stock a full line of copyrighted Records and Blanks for the use of Trustees, School Directors and road Supervisors, which we offer at low figures. We have the most complete system ever introduced in the state. For simplicity our Records excel all others. Call and examine the goods.

The Pople Want Proof.

There is no medicine perscribed by physicians, or sold by druggists, that carries such evidence of its success and superior virtue as Boschee's German Syrup for severe coughs, colds settled on the breast, consumption, or any disease of the throat and lungs. A proof of that fact is that any person afflicted, can get a sample bottle for 10 cents and try its superior effect before buying the regular size at 75 cents. It has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderful cures are astonishing everyone that use it. Three doses will relieve any case. Try it Sold by W. McIntyre & Son.

Wood Wanted.

Our subscribers will please bring in their wood now, which they intend to apply on subscription. Bring it now.

Family Groceries!

LANNING'S PRICE LIST.

TEAS! TEAS!

Young Hyson	60c very best	70c
Imperial	" "	65c
Japan	" "	60c
Oolong	" "	50c
Gun Powder	" "	40c

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Arbuckels' [Roasted]	23c per lb.
Rio	15c very best 18c " "

SUGARS! SUGARS!

White	10½ pounds for one dollar
Extra C	12 " " "
Grocers C	14 " " "

White Beans per lb. 3½c., Dried Peaches per lb. 6c., Hominy per lb. 3c., Cranberries per qt. 8c, Dried Sweet Corn 13 lbs. for $1.00, Oat Meal 7 lbs. for 25c., cucumber Pickles per doz. 8c. Besides a complete stock of Confectioneries, Canned Fruits, Soaps, Notions, Flour, Butter, Eggs, Syrups, &c., &c.

Goods delivered at all times.

Geo. L. Lanning.

Davenport the Druggist.

Pure Drugs and Medicines,
Choice Soaps and Perfumery,
Excellant Combs and Brushes,
Fine Hair Oils and Pomades

ALL SOLD AND WARRANTED BY

DAVENPORT THE DRUGGIST

Also a splendid stock of Stationery Goods, such as

Wall Paper, Window Shades, Pocket Books,
School Books, Blank Books, Pens, Pencils,
Inks, Mucilage, Stationery, Gold Pens, etc.

All to be sold at the lowest prices by.

Davenport the Druggist, Auburn, Ind.

8-31-1 yr.

Buy it in Cans.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder should be bought only in cans, securely labeled, as it is sold by the proprietors in no other way. Loose Powder is often sold as Dr. Price's, when it is not. It has stood the test of chemical analysis, and is decided to be the most perfect made.

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

Celebrated American

WORM SPECIFIC

OR

VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a gnawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy, not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,
DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE
will certainly effect a cure.

IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY

in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

The genuine DR. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrapper.

—:0:—

DR. C. McLANE'S

LIVER PILLS

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine.

As a simple purgative they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Each box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

Each wrapper bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS.

Insist upon having the genuine Dr. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

WOOD'S HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE

Is a monthly, [illegible]-page Scrap Book of the cream of the World's Literature. Single copy, [illegible], or $[illegible] per year. An Oil Chromo ([illegible] inches) of "Yosemite Valley," price, $[illegible]; "Black Sheep," a $[illegible] book, in paper binding; "Christian Oakley's Mistake," a $[illegible] book, in paper binding, and a sample copy of "Wood's Household Magazine"—all post-paid, for only [illegible] cents in money, or in one-cent postage stamps. Agents wanted. Most liberal terms, but nothing sent free. Address S. S. Wood, Tribune Building, New York City

Portable Mulay Saw Mill,

With improvements recently added [illegible] as a neighborhood mill. It can be run by either steam or water power, and is especially adapted to the engines used for threshing.

It may be operated by either [illegible] men, and will cut as much lumber in proportion to the power and number of hands employed as mills of larger capacity.

It makes smooth and even lumber, leaves no [illegible] and will cut any sized log up to [illegible] diameter. It may be transported from one locality to another and [illegible] ready for sawing in from two to three days, and can be made profitable in localities where there is not sufficient timber to justify the erection of a large mill. Send for descriptive circular, price, etc., to CHANDLER & TAYLOR, Indianapolis, Ind.

THE

INDIANA STATE SENTINEL

FOR 1879

HAS BEEN REDUCED IN PRICE TO

One Dollar Per Year

The merits of this paper are well known among a large majority of the farmers and stock raisers of this State. No paper furnishes more news for less money. It has been the acknowledged leading Democratic newspaper of Indiana for almost half a century. It has ever stood with the Democracy. Its reputation throughout the Union is firmly established. Indiana to-day is democratic by 15,000 majority, and the Sentinel's circulation and influence has increased in like proportion in the last six months.

The Weekly Sentinel

Will be in many respects an epitome of the Daily, championing the same cause, and aiming to fill the same wants of the general reader, but it will be prepaired with special reference to the character of its circulation. In every respect it will be the best weekly we can make, and we think it will more than

Compare Favorably

With any weekly circulating in the State of Indiana. It will contain our ablest editorials upon current political events and other topics of interest, and will be

Newsy, Literary,

And full of entertaining and instructive miscellany, and more particularly adapted to the family circle. Its splendid market report will continue to be a leading feature, and, for this reason alone, no farmer should be without it.

Every reading and thinking man in the State who can afford to take a newspaper ought to subscribe for the Weekly Sentinel.

Farmers, Merchants

and Lawyers, without respect to party, particularly stand in need of it, for, in addition to its political and literary merits, the Sentinel is confessedly the Commercial Paper of Indiana.

The Indiana State Sentinel is the paper for everybody—the farmer, mechanic and professional man. At our greatly reduced rates no one can afford to be without it.

Hundreds of millions of dollars of wealth have been gathered from the fields of "golden grain" during the past harvest, and what is better, this wealth is distributed among the people. As the Sentinel's share of this happy result, we ask every reader to aid in gathering our share of the harvest of 50,000 new subscribers.

Agents wanted at every postoffice in the State. Send for outfit.

TERMS;

Weekly.

1 copy one year	$ 1.00
Clubs of five one year	5.00
Clubs of eleven one year	10.00
Clubs of twenty two	20.00

In clubs of ten or more, one copy extra to getter up of club furnished free.

Daily.

1 copy one year	$ 10.00
1 copy six months	5.00
1 copy three months	2.50
1 copy one month	.85
Clubs of five or more one year, $8 each	40.00
Clubs of 5 or more 1 month 70c each	3.50

Clubs of seven or more, one copy extra to getter up of club.

Special terms to agents. Send for circular. Specimen copy furnished free. Address

Indianapolis Sentinel Co.
Indianapolis, Ind.

JOHN J. COOPER, Pres't.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous

—West's pills cure liver complaint.

—Elsy Shaffer is visiting friends at Liberty Center.

—Washington's birthday—how shall it be celebrated.

—Crance, the murderer of Corson, is now on trial at Fort Wayne.

—An Auburn lady holds stock in one of the Fort Wayne National Banks.

—We acknowledge a very pleasant call from Bro. Kist of the Butler Record.

—The New Orleans Mint is again in operation, after standing idle nineteen years.

—Another installment of the "beautiful," it is needed for the protection of the wheat.

—Something of importance to the people, examine the supplement for particulars.

—Rio Coffee, good quality only 11 cents per pound at the Fort Wayne Fruit House.

—Read the grand concert "extra" contained in the COURIER. Great inducements offered.

—Erskin Williams, son of E. E. Williams, formerly of this city, was in the city Wednesday last.

—A change in the proprietorship of one of Auburn's drug stores will take place in about ten days.

—Canada will not allow the importion of American cattle. The order took effect on the 6th inst.

—Good alpaccas for 18 cents per yard and all other dress goods in proportion, at Schaab, Beugnot & Co's.

—The fourth Quarterly Meeting for Conference year at the M. E. Church next Saturday and Sunday.

—Take a look at Lanning's price list in another column. We bespeak for Mr. Lanning a liberal patronage.

Choice dark prints 4c. per yard at Patterson's, Waterloo. 6-2w.

—Ladies cloaks at bankrupt prices to close out the stock. Call at Schaab, Beugnot & Co's. and examine goods and prices.

—We learn that Joseph Columbus Loveland will pull up stakes at Garrett and hereafter the "Head Light" will be issued at Corunna.

—A large and well selected assortment of hats and caps just arrived at the mammoth establishment of Schaab, Beugnot & Co. to-day.

—The Methodist Sabbath school is said to be in a prosperous condition, well managed, well attended and accomplishing much good.

—Rev. Johnson will preach at Waterloo next Sabbath morning. Services at the Presbyterian church in this place in the evening as usual.

—The sermon delivered at the Presbyterian church last Sabbath morning by Rev. Johnson is very highly spoken of by those who heard it.

—The "King" killed one man in Whitley county and will send another to the penitentiary for life. Read the account in another column.

—The Franklin Democrat has had a trial of its right to publish Sheriff's sales four times and charge for four insertions, and has been sustained by court in doing so as necessary for a legal notice.

OVERCOATS. OVERCOATS.

The remainder of our winter stock of overcoats must be closed out at once. Come and examine the goods. Prices no object. Schaab Beugnot & Co.

—We have a communication from some person at Mansfield, Ohio, proposing to walk from Auburn to New York and return in thirty days for the sum of $1000, which amount he modestly asks the people of Auburn to donate.

—A son of Mr. and Mrs Rex of Newville is the great great grandson of Mrs Betsey Adams of Bethel, Mich. The old lady has passed her 90th year, is still in good health and is able to read without glasses.

—FOR SALE.—One third interest in the Orangeville Grist Mill. Will take eastern or western land as part pay. For particulars enquire at Mill or address Rob't Sands. Newville, Ind. This is a bargain for some one. 7-2w-

—COMPOUND ELIXIR OF BUCHU for diseases of the kidneys, bladder and urinary organs is the best remedy known for rheumatism. It removes the cause, and effects a permanent cure in all cases. Sold by DAVENPORT the Druggist. tf.

—A. C. Smith, successor of J. E. Shilling has a good assortment of heavy and light harness. Also a fine line of good saddles, and a large assortment of whips. Which he is selling at bottom prices. Don't fail to call if you want anything in his line. 7-2w

—Wabash Courier:—Luther Benson has lately been adding to his already fifteen years experience in hell. He has again fallen, and was in Kokomo last week drunker'n a one legged tramp. The frequency with which Mr. Benson "falls" and reforms" is becoming mon o onous.

—Mr. W. M. Kist former publisher of the Butler Record, trots in double harness, having assumed the work of editor in addition to his former duties. Wishes for his success would be superfluous as he has already demonstrated his ability to manage the newspaper business successfully.

Old Settlers Meeting.

The officers and executive committee of the Pioneer Association of DeKalb county, are requested to meet at Auburn February 22d, 1879, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

S. B. WARD, Pres.
W. H. DILLS, Sec'y.

Strayed or Stolen.

From the residence of the undersigned, one mile east of Auburn, on Saturday, Feb. 8th, 1879, one dark red two year old heifer, in good condition. Any person giving information of her whereabouts or returning her to the owner, will be rewarded for their trouble.

CHRISTOPHER ASHELMAN.

—The entertainments given by the Mason & Morgan combination last Friday and Saturday evenings were well attended. In "Uncle Toms' Cabin" Legree, Gumption Cute and Eva are worthy of favorable mention, the other characters were only fairly personated. Taken as a whole, the troupe is above the average.

—We this week give space to an article written by Mr. C. A. Thurston in reply to articles heretofore published in this paper from other sources concerning school matters. Mr. Thurston's side of the case shall be presented through these columns, when further correspondence upon that subject will be rejected

Educate the Nose.

"To the 'unlearned' nose all odors are alike, but when educated, no member of the body is more sensitive." The nose is the gate to the lungs, and when well tutored it often proves a life preserver. Educate the nose, and the most sensitive will find that Dr. Price's Unique Perfumes are the gems of all odors.

—Money to loan on improved farms. Time, five years—loan can be paid at any time—interest 9 per cent., payable at the end of the year; no advance interest. Will loan in sums of $300 and upwards. Reasonable commissions. For full particulars call on John L. Davis, Auburn, Ind. 5-4w.

Sale of Durham Cattle.

The undersigned will sell at public auction at the late residence of Samuel H. Smith, deceased, in Fairfield township, three miles north of Corunna, on Friday, February, 21st, 1879, twenty-five head of THOROUGHBRED and FULL-BRED DURHAM cattle, and a lot of valuable personal property.

TERMS: Seven months credit.
5-3w F. E. THOMPSON, Adm'r.

Angell will soon arrive in Chicago, and the Pullmans will probably be able to recover some of the money he stole from them. If the matter could be arranged so that the public could get back some of the money the Pullmans have extorted by charging exorbitant prices for sleeping-berths, the thing would have a pleasing and proper ending all around.

—Seymour, Ind. is a bad town for burglars. Last week five men were arrested and confined in the calliboose, during the night a party of masked men took the prisoner to a grove near town where each in turn were tied to a tree and cow-hided until their shirts were flayed into shreds and their flesh cut until the blood ran down into their boots. They were then released and have not since been heard from.

—A clock made entirely of bread has lately been received in Milan, Italy, from Peru. It was constructed by an Indian, who having no means of purchasing material, saved a portion of the soft part of his daily bread for the purpose. He solidified it with a certain salt which rendered it very hard and insoluable in water. The clock keeps good time, and the case, also of hardened bread, displays artistic talent.

—The building of the Wabash and Erie narrow-guage railroad seems to be a settled fact. The road will first be completed from Fort Wayne to LaFayette, thence into the coal fields of Park county, and from there to Terre Haute. The eastern terminus will be Toledo, to which place the route will follow the old canal to New Haven, there take the line of the old Tiffin road to where it formerly connected with the Grand Rapids & Toledo line. It will be a formidable competitor of the Wabash line.

—Mr. Reynolds, one of the oldest residents of the county died at cedar Creek, and was buried at this place yesterday afternoon. The funeral was preached at the Presbyterian church, and was largely attended by the pioneers of Auburn and vicinity. James Reynolds was born at Wilmington Delaware Jan. 19th 1795, was united in marriage with Mary McClelland in Pennsylvania in Sep. 1815, emigrated to Ohio 1822, united with the Presbyterian church 1823, removed to Ind in 1835, died Feb. 10th 1879, aged 84 years and 22 days

A new sect of Mormons has sprung up in Southern Indiana, and two Evangelists of the Latter-Day Saints are preaching with success. The peculiar tenents of this wing of Mormonism are anti-polygamy, healing by laying on hands, immersion, second coming of Christ in the near future, intervention of God in the temporal and spiritual affair of believers, and miracles, or special Providence, in the interest of the Saints. The sect numbers about sixty members in Floyd, Washington and Clark counties, made up from the most respectable farmers.

MURDER.

A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY IN WHITLEY COUNTY.

George Ward, Sr., Kills George Ward, Jr.

[Columbia City Post]

Another chapter to add to the dark history of crime. A murder most foul—adding to its horror that it should have been committed by a father striking a death blow which sent a son into the cold embrace of death without a moment's warning—has been committed, this time in Whitley county. As near as can be learned, pending an investigation, the particulars of the terrible tragedy are as follows:

George Ward, a resident of this township for many years, and at present living about four miles west of Columbia City, near the Richland township line, in company with his two sons, George Ward, Jr., and William Ward, both young men, came to town yesterday afternoon, and while here all of them drank until they were in a semi-state of intoxication. Toward night they wended their way homeward, arriving there between six and seven o'clock. Upon arriving at home the father, George Ward, Sr., commenced to abuse his wife as seems to have been his custom when intoxicated, finally in his rage striking her. This so incensed his two sons, George and William, that they rushed to the defense of their mother. In the general melee which followed, the two sons threw the father on the floor when George, Jr., commenced striking him. William at once protested, saying to his brother, "Let the old man up; he's our father." Almost as soon as William had spoken, the two sons released their hold upon the father and got up. The father finding himself freed, sprang to his feet and grabbed an ax setting behind a wood-box. William observing that his father, now doubly infuriated, had this dangerous weapon in his hands cried at the top of his voice to George "to run, that the old man had the ax." The demoniac father with uplifted ax in his hands rushed at George, and before the latter could get out of the house, was struck with the bit of the axe near the base of the brain, the blow literally splitting off the entire upper part of the skull, the lifeless body of George falling in the doorway of the parental roof. Death must have been instantaneous.

This was the closing scene to the melee and tragedy which followed. The cries and shrieks of William and his mother soon brought a number of neighbors to the house of death, who found the old man sitting in a chair, perfectly stolid, near the dead body of the son whom he had most infamously murdered. To the upbraidings of the wife and mother for the terrible crime he had committed, his only reply was, "They beat me."

Mr. Charles Dimmick, a near neighbor, and one of the first who arrived at the home of the Wards after the murder, upon learning the facts at once came to town to notify the Coroner and get out a warrant for the arrest of the murderer, whom he left in charge of some neighbors. Coroner Yontz, in company with officers Arlin and Eckenroad, into whose hands the writ was placed, at once proceeded to the scene of the tragedy. The officers found Ward at his house and took him into custody. The Coroner impanneled a jury who found a verdict in accordance with the facts above stated. This (Wednesday) morning the murderer had a preliminary trial before Esquire Campbell, the Justice remanding Ward into the custody of the Sheriff without bail.

Of the history of the Wards we know but little, other than they were generally regarded as an inoffensive, duless family who belonged to the lowest class having no higher aspirations than the gratification of their appetites and the eking out of a scanty living.

How to Obtain Arrears of Pension.

The following circular explains how to obtain arrears of pension without the aid of an attorney to prosecute the claim.

Persons who are entitled to arrears of pensions under the act granting arrears, approved January 25, 1879, and whose pensions were granted previous to that date, will not require the assistance of a claim agent in obtaining the amount due them. All correspondence in relation to any claim for such arrears will be with the person entitled and no claim agent will be recognized in such claim.

A letter addressed to the Commissioner of Pensions, signed by the person who was in receipt of the pension at the date aforesaid and by two witnesses, in the presence of a magistrate, will be the only application required and upon which the rights of all parties concerned will be adjusted.

The pension certificate should not be sent to that office but it must be exhibited to the magistrate. The letter should be in the following or equivalent form:

TO THE COMMISSIONER OF PENSIONS:

I ——, a pensioner under pension certificate No. —, hereby apply for the arrears due me under the act granting arrears of pension, approved January 25, 1879. My post office address is—— [Here insert the name of the post office and, if the claimant resides in a city, the name and number of the street and residence must also be given].

Two witnesses. Name of claimant.

STATE OF——COUNTY OF——. ss.

Signed in my presence by——, who is known to me to be the person he describes himself to be, and at the same time he exhibited to me his pension certificate which is numbered—.

Magistrate's signature.

SICKENING HORROR.

A BOY IN ALLEN COUNTY BURNED TO DEATH.

Another Person Fatally Burned.

(Fort Wayne Sentinel.)

The log dwelling house of Mr. Daniel A. Null, three and a half miles east of New Haven, and one and a half miles north of Maples, caught fire from a defective chimney and was totally destroyed with all of its contents. Mr. Null and his wife were sleeping on the first floor. On the second floor his son Jesse, aged about sixteen, and a young man named Harler, who worked for Mr. Null, were asleep. They occupied different beds in the same room. Mr. Null's daughter was not present, as she was passing the night at the house of a neighbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Null were awakened about 3:40 by Harler and found their HOUSE WRAPPED IN FLAMES.

They hastened from the burning building, escaping with nothing on but their night clothes. Harler was found to be terribly burned about the head, neck, arms, shoulders and legs. He was removed to the residence of Mr. Kelly, a neighbor, where he was lying in the at last accounts, no hope being entertained for his recovery.

MOST EXCRUTIATING AGONY

The boy, Jessie Null, was burned to death. But a small portion of the trunk of his body could be found, being the portion extending from the collarbone to below the sternum. The legs were burned completely off. A part of the head was found and pieces of the feet and hands.

Harler was in the habit of rising very early. It is supposed that he started down stairs to see what time it was, when he was struck in the face by the blaze as he descended. Although badly burned he succeeded in saving Mr. and Mrs. Null. He then went to the stable and turned the horses out, Mr Null made a futile attempt to get up stairs to burning his hands shockingly in the endeavor.

RESCUE HIS SON,

The following letter to the Fort Wayne Daily News, we consider to the point, concerning the Fort Wayne lottery.

DREW A PRIZE.

MENDON, Mich., February, 3d, 1879.

DEAR SIR—In relation to disposition of prize, I am so overcome with the magnitude of the great good fortune that has so suddenly overtaken me, that it is very difficult to allude to it with becoming modesty. However, please go at the witching hour of twilight, just as the last lingering note of the barn-yard dung-hill floats away upon the wings of the trembling night wind, and take up the bottle carefully, draw the cork tenderly, and if its distilled odors are not of sufficient strength to overcome the genial exhalations of a college stiff, please add at my expense one dram of double concentrated extract of skunkem (which is very odorous,) and present the same with my compliments to the board of gentleman whose massive brains and tender consciences conceived and carried into execution this grand scheme to which I am so deeply indebted. May it prove to them in the sweet bye-and-bye, the heaven scent nucleus around which shall cluster tender memories of the most gigantic fizzle since the morning stars sang together and Adam began the contest with his mother-in-law for supremacy in his own household. The gentlemen may take exceptions to the historical allusion to the mother-in-law of Adam; but I believe it is now generally conceded that everybody and everything has a mother-in-law; but who the devil is mother-in-law to the Masonic Gift Enterprise.

Yours both off and from.

A. M. T.

Bolan, one of the Indianapolis murderes has been tried and acquitted. The jury wrestled all night, first standing eight for acquittal to four against, and in this condition they remained until morning, when a verdict of not guilty was reached. The Court-room was crowded when the return was made, and as the Court promptly suppressed all demonstrations there was very little applause. Mrs. Bolan, the faithful wife who has clung to her husband throughout, fell upon his neck and fainted, and there were few witnessing this scene unmoved. On the street the result is generally accepted, although among the murdered man's special friends there is strong feeling, owing to Major Blackburn's very bitter attack upon the Irish Catholic Church, which he charged with conspiracy against the defendant.

The Penn Yan Mystery Fraud.

(Fort Wayne News.)

Leon Lewis, a story writer for Bonner's Ledger and other periodicals, lost his wife a year ago, and this year started a paper at Penn Yan, New York, called the Mystery. It was modeled after the Ledger, and in the first number Lewis eulogized his wife and printed the first chapter of a story purporting to be dictated by her spirit, with which the editor claimed to be in constant companionship. The second number of the Mystery never appeared. Lewis has in the meantime slipped off to Europe with his dead wife's niece of sixteen years, taking $20,000 along, and eaving his creditor's $30,000 behind.

That School No. 4.

BY C. A. THURSTON.

MR. EDITOR:—As Mr. Lowe in his second communication to the COURIER on the affairs at the above mentioned place, expresses himself in the language of a plaintiff's counsel when their evidence is all given in, viz: "We rest the case," I propose under the above heading to furnish for the readers of your paper a detailed account of the circumstances attending this remarkable transaction. I do so for the following reasons:

1st. It is an uncommon occurrence; nothing like it I suppose having ever happened in the county wherein a district winter school of three months has been taught with only two small pupils in attendance.

2nd. It unfolds the unseen results that may arise from the decisions and requirements of school trustees, especially when such requirements are not directed by law.

3rd. That the unbiased reader by understanding all the influences brought to bear in bringing about the present difficulty, may place the blame where it rightly belongs.

In writing this somewhat lengthy account for the papers of Old DeKalb, although the diction may be imperfect (not being accustomed to writing for the press,) I ask the careful perusal of the subject matter, and hope that as far as possible the reader may compare the arguments and accusations produced by Mr. Lowe in the COURIER with those herein stated. Furthermore, I will make no statements except such as I am fully able to prove, and will hold myself responsible to the editor for such statements, and will at any time, if requested by the editor, furnish the proof of such statements, but will not enter into any bickering with any other party. I beg your pardon, one and all, for using the pronoun I so often, but do so because it takes less time and space than to say "we" or "the writer." I have thought best in most cases to give the names of persons connected with the transaction, although this may be unpleasant to some who may be unfavorably affected by my so doing, still the delineation of truth is my object, and in so doing I fear not the frowns nor court the smiles of any.

The public will remember that on Nov. 15, 1877, there appeared over my signature an article in the "Record" and "Press" giving an account of the attempted murder of John P. Wagoner, by Ben, Cal. and Sam. Noragan. Since that time those young men as well as their parents have been my bitterest enemies.

Last October at a school meeting in No. 5, (the district I live in,) I applied for the school and received a majority of the votes cast. I did not go to the trustee to contract for some time, and when I went I found that those of the Noragens, who live in No. 5, had circulated a petition requesting the trustee not to hire me. To this petition they had the names of quite a number of voters attached, and although it did not originate in a school meeting according to the requirements of the law still the trustee chose to regard it in the light of a peremptory challenge, and held that it debarred him from hiring me Afterward I went to some of those whose names were on the Noragon petition and who had always been my friends as far as I know, and wished to know their reasons for so doing. Some explained in one way and some in another I made a memorandum of the expressions I received, favorable and otherwise, and subsequently showed it to the trustee. That officer, however, still held that as the opposition was so bitter, and it being a small school at best, I had better take some other school and he would hire a stranger for No. 5, and the better please both factions. At this time Mr. E. J. McOscar had contracted for No. 4 and the trustee according to his wish to benefit the schools as much as possible, and with the consent of Mr. McOscar made the change, assigning Mr. McOscar work at No. 5 and placing me at No. 4, for the reason given in the answer to Mr. Lowe's first communication. And here in justice to Mr. McOscar I would add, that the ability he has manifested this winter, proves him competent to teach any district school. Mr. Lowe's supposition that I answered his first communication, is wholly an erroneous one. That explanation being written by a friend of the trustee whom I shall call Mr. A., and without my knowledge until it was sent to the publisher. It was written to prove that the trustee had not exercised arbitrary power as complained of by Mr. Lowe; and as it satisfies Mr. Lowe's objection and the trustee is exhonerated from any blame, Mr. A. does not wish to take any further part in the controversy. This takes all the backbone out of Mr. Lowe's last article, wherein he makes me to say a good many thing I have not said. Mr. Lowe prevaricates when he asserts that Mr. A. (the person he calls Mr. Thurston) says that his previous communication is true. It reads thus, viz: "In the first place the statement is true, but now, why was this change made." The statement that Mr. A. referred to is Mr. Lowe's statement, that such a change of teachers was made and not by any means that I went to the trustee before day-light on the day that their petition was to be presented, and contracted for the school, as Mr. A. had no intention of conveying any such an idea The truth is, I contracted on Thursday, Nov. 14, as the contract shows, and the school meeting in which their petition originated was not held until Saturday evening the 16th, and at that meeting the director was requested to present the petition to the trustee on the following Monday, the 18th. Thus the candid reader will observe that I took a greater advantage of them than even Mr. Lowe claims, as I hired two days previous to the origin of the petition and four days previous to its being carried to the trustee, and I suppose if I had hired a month previous, I would have committed a still greater error. Mr. Lowe and others knew at the time their school meeting was held that I had contracted with the trustee. Why Mr. Lowe should thus "calmly and dispassionately" as he says, pen such an article for the press, I will not venture to express an opinion, and to do this too when he knows while penning it that the date of the contract and of the petition, both in the hands of the trustee (unless the latter has been taken away recently) can be seen by anyone, and he be unavoidably convicted of sending out a deliberately prepared falsehood to be read by thousands, does not look like the work of a sane man.

[To be Continued.]

CAUGHT AT LAST.

Another excitement at Waterloo. Patterson & Smith have received and are now offering for sale a large lot of choice dark prints at 4c. per yard. 2,000 yards of fine brown sheeting, 1 yard wide at 5c. 1000 yards double width dress cashmeres at 30c worth 50c. 2000 yards Knickerbocker dress goods 6 to 12½c. worth 15c. 500 yards table linen at 40c., best bargains ever offered. These are a few bargains of a recent cash purchase, and we defy anybody to beat them. Please give us a call before they are all gone.

6-3. PATTERSON & SMITH.

—The large stock of winter clothing at Schaab, Beugnot & Co's. is being closed out at cost to make room for the spring stock. Now is the time for bargains.

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER AND SPECIAL FLAVORING EXTRACTS.

Trade Mark.

Eminent Chemists and Physicians certify that these goods are free from adulteration, richer, more effective, produce better results than any others, and that they use them in their own families.

DR. PRICE'S UNIQUE PERFUMES are the Gems of All Odors. TOOTHENE. An agreeable, healthful Liquid Dentifrice. LEMON SUGAR. A Substitute for Lemons. EXTRACT JAMAICA GINGER, From Pure Root.

STEELE & PRICE'S LUPULIN YEAST GEMS. The Best Dry Hop Yeast in the World.

STEELE & PRICE, Manfrs., Chicago, St. Louis, and Cincinnati.

A CONUNDRUM.
Answer Given March 1st.
WATCH IT! WATCH IT!
SAM, PETE & MAX,
Managers Star Clothing House, Fort Wayne, Ind.

THE SHINING LITTLE HOUSE.

It hung in the sun, the little house,
It hung in the sun, and shone;
And through the walls I could hear his voice
Who had it all for his own.

The walls were of wire, as bright as gold,
Wrought in a pretty design;
The spaces between for windows served,
And the door was clean and fine.

There was plenty, too, to eat and drink
In this little house that shone;
A lucky thing, to be sure, you'd say,
A house like this for one's own!

But the door was shut, and locked all tight,
The key was on the outside;
The one who was in could not get out,
No matter how much he tried.

'Twas only a prison, after all,
This bright little house that shone;
Ah, we would not want a house like that,
No matter if 'twere our own.

And yet, through the walls I heard the voice
Of the one who lived inside;
To warble a sweeter song each day
It did seem as if he tried.

To open the door he never sought,
Nor fluttered in idle strife;
He ate, and he drank, and slept, and sang,
And made the best of his life.

And I, to myself, said every day,
As his cheery song I heard,
There's a lesson for us in every note
Of that little prisoned bird.

We all of us live a life like his;
We are walled on every side;
We all long to do a hundred things
Which we could not if we tried.

We can spend our strength all foolishly
In a discontented strife;
Or we can be wise, and laugh and sing,
And make the best of our life.
H. H., in St. Nicholas for February.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

Some Curious Cases.

There is one grim old story told in ancient law books, of a murder committed at an inn. It was a little country inn, in a rather unfrequented place, and there on one wintry night arrived two sets of guests. One party consisted of an elderly invalided gentleman and his man-servant; the other, of two gentlemen, friends, traveling together. The accommodation was rather limited, and the man-servant was stowed away in a loft. The two friends agreed to share one chamber, while the old gentleman was to occupy that next to theirs. The three gentlemen spent the evening together in the common room, the landlord and the man-servant coming to and fro in attendance. It transpired, somehow, that the elderly invalid was traveling in possession of considerable valuables. This matter was touched upon but lightly; in fact, it was little more than an inference which might be drawn from something he said. About midnight all the travelers retired to rest. An hour or two after, one of the friends awoke. Lying in silence, he heard something like a groan, and, on its being repeated, he aroused his companion, and both listened. The sound came from the next apartment. They sprung to their feet, and, thinking their neighbor might be suddenly and dangerously ill, they hastily struck a light and went to his room. But they found they had been anticipated; light already streamed from his opened door, and at his bedside stood the landlord, with a face of horror, and in his hand a bloody knife. As the gentlemen entered the room, the invalid gave a last groan and expired from a deadly wound in his throat.

Naturally, the two gentlemen seized and secured the landlord. Between the telltale weapon in his hand and the extreme dismay and trepidation which he manifested, he might almost be said to be taken in the act. They roused the house. The few sleepy servants came hurrying in, among them the footman of the murdered man. So great was the host's terror that it was some time before he could utter a single word which might put a different complexion on the case. At last he found wits to declare that, like the gentlemen, he had been roused by the groans, and, fearing robbers, had armed himself with a knife and hurried forth, hoping to be in time to give help; that when he saw the awful sight in the bedchamber the knife had fallen from his hand into the blood, and he had remained for a few moments powerless.

Such a story seemed credible enough, but there were sundry circumstances which instantly falsified it. The room where the landlord had slept was too remote from the scene of the murder for any groans to have reached it; and the knife was not one of those in ordinary use, which might have been hastily snatched up, but resembled others which were kept locked in a chest in his bedroom. Of these circumstances he could offer no explanation, nor yet of sundry ejaculations he had uttered when first surprised.

In spite of his protestations of innocence, in which, somehow, there seemed always a curious reservation, he was condemned to die. The night before his execution he made a singular confession. He acknowledged that his cupidity had been so excited by the idea of his visitor's valuables that he had resolved to kill him, and to possess himself of them. For this purpose he took out a knife and stole from his bedroom. Probably in the preoccupation of his horrible enterprise he had heard no footstep nor any groan; and the first thing that warned him that all was not right was the finding of the visitor's bedroom-door unlatched. When his light fell on the awful scene, and he saw his own crime had been anticipated, his knife fell from his palsied hand, and when he found himself in the grasp of his accusers he had cried that "God's judgments were on him." He owned that, though he was in act guiltless of the murder, yet he was justly judged. But though he died with every appearance of sincere repentance, the general impression was that even his final confession was but another vagary of a criminal nature, playing with truth and falsehood to the very end.

But, years afterward, a clergyman was summoned to receive the last confidences of a man sinking in consumption. This was the servant of the murdered invalid. Then he owned that it was he who had slain his master. He had stolen from his remote loft, and had just inflicted the mortal wound when he was disturbed by the landlord's approaching footsteps, and fled barefoot in an opposite direction, regained his bed, and remained there until he was summoned by the cries of the other lodgers. He indicated how and where he had disposed of the weapon with which he killed his master, details which were subsequently verified. He was too near death to be seized by justice, but the particulars of his confession were made public, though in this case the story cannot be concluded by the formula with which the prim old law reporters generally sum up such tragedies, "That the innocence of the other man was thus completely vindicated."

Far more piteous was the story of William Shaw, who lived in Edinburgh in 1721. He was a respectable tradesman, and he had a daughter named Catherine, who, unhappily, had troublesome love affairs. Her own heart inclined to one John Lawson, to whom her father objected, saying that he was a profligate youth, addicted to every kind of dissipation. Shaw forbade the lover his house, and, when he found that Catherine still saw him clandestinely, the father imprisoned the daughter on his own premises.

Whether Shaw was too hard, or whether Catherine was too willful, nobody can say. There is one element in the case which draws sympathy to the girl. There was not only a lover to be given up, but a lover to be accepted. While Shaw banished John Lawson, he urged forward the suit of one Robertson. Catherine passionately declared that she would die sooner than marry this man, and many altercations were overheard between the father and daughter. The family seems to have consisted of these two only, and they lived in one of those "flats," or suites of rooms, opening from a common stair, which were common in Edinburgh then, as now, though in London, except in the Inns of Court, they are a modern innovation. Under somewhat imperfect arrangement this plan of building offers facilities for hearing high voices or heavy falls. The nearest neighbors of the Shaws, a family named Morison, often overheard the quarrels of the father and daughter. Without troubling themselves to listen, they could hear words which the girl screamed shrilly in her grief and rage. James Morison, as he sat following his occupation as a watch-case maker, heard Catherine giving vent to such expressions as "barbarity!" "cruelty!" and "death!"

Presently he heard somebody leave the room, shutting the door noisily and locking it. For some minutes afterward there was silence. Then he heard several faint groans in what seemed Catherine's voice. He felt alarmed, and called the attention of others to the sound. They went to the door of Shaw's flat and listened there. Presently they heard the daughter faintly exclaim: "Cruel father, you are the cause of my death!" They knocked imperatively for admittance; there was no answer; and, calling the aid of the town guard, they forced the lock. Catherine was found lying in a pool of blood, with a knife beside her. She was in the agonies of death, and quite speechless, but when a neighbor bent over her and inquired if it was her father who had done this, she was just able to make an affirmative motion with her head, and then expired.

At this very moment William Shaw returned. At the sight of his daughter he turned pale, trembled, and was ready to sink, which after all was only natural. Blood upon his shirt bore less doubtful witness against him.

He was hurried before the magistrates, and on his trial he fully admitted the angry terms on which he and his daughter had lived of late, also the bitterness of the quarrel before their last parting; but he declared that he left her then unhurt and well. He persisted that the blood on his shirt was there in consequence of his having bled himself, some days before, and the bandage becoming untied, but of this he could offer no corroborative evidence. So he was found guilty, and hanged in chains at Leith Walk.

Exactly one year later the new tenant of William Shaw's flat was making some rearrangements in his room, setting up a cupboard, or shelves, or something which led him to pay particular attention to the skirting-board round the fireplace. Suddenly he caught sight of a paper which seemed to have fallen behind it. He took it out, and when he had unfolded it he read the following letter: "Barbarous father, your cruelty in having put it out of my power ever to join my fate to that of the only man I could love, and tyrannically insisting on my marrying one whom I had always hated, has made me form a resolution to put an end to an existence which has become a burden to me. My death I lay to your charge. When you read this, consider yourself as the inhuman wretch who plunged the murderous knife into the bosom of unhappy Catherine Shaw."

Many relations and friends readily recognized the handwriting. The high-flown language, the egotism of tone, alike reveal a mind poisoned by the style of romance in fashion at that epoch, and make us feel with the poor father, who was probably honestly desirous to save his child from real misery, though, perhaps, he did not take the best way to do so. It reads like solemn irony that the Magistrates of Edinburgh ordered the body of William Shaw to be taken from the gibbet (the bones were still hanging in chains, according to the ghastly old custom) and given to his family for interment. And "as the only reparation to his memory, and the honor of his surviving relations, they caused a pair of colors to be waved over his grave in token of innocence!"

Far less pathetic, but scarcely less grim, is the story of three gentlemen supping together at a Norfolk tavern in the year 1684. One became deeply intoxicated; then the others, also somewhat inflamed by wine, quarreled, and one snatched up the sword of the drunken man and stabbed the other to the heart. And not till years after the drunkard had been tried and executed for the murder did the other, then dying in extreme misery in France, acknowledge that he, and he only, had done the deed.

In the year 1660 two men named Perry and their mother were hanged for the murder of a man who had never been murdered at all. Mr. Harrison, Lady Campden's steward, having been collecting his rents, suddenly disappeared. John Perry accused his mother, himself, and his brother of having robbed Mr. Harrison in the previous year, and of having again robbed him and murdered him on the night when he was missed. The mother and Richard Perry denied all knowledge of the matter; but at length pleaded guilty to the first indictment under some pressure of policy. The other indictment was not then proceeded with, on the ground that the body was not found. But John persisted in his story, and at the next assize they were all tried for murder. John then retracted his confession, and said he must have been mad. Nevertheless, they were all condemned. Some years after Mr. Harrison appeared alive, and thus accounted for his mysterious absence: "After receiving his rents he had been set upon by a gang of ruffians, carried to the seaside, put on shipboard and sold as a slave to the Turks. After his master's death he escaped, and with great difficulty, working his way, first to Lisbon, and thence to Dover, he arrived in England, as our law book coolly says, to the surprise of all the country."

The last story we shall tell is another tale of an inn. The Rising Sun was the name of a public house on the high road between York and Newcastle. It was kept by a man named Harris, assisted by two servants, a man named Morgan, and a maid. One evening a blacksmith stopped at the Rising Sun, supped and slept there. Early next morning the hostler, Morgan, went to a neighboring magistrate and gave information that his master, Harris, had just murdered the traveler in his bed. The traveler was found at the public house lying dead, with every appearance of having been strangled. Harris was apprehended, but positively denied the charge. Morgan as positively affirmed it. Morgan deposed that he saw his master on the bed strangling the stranger. Harris declared that he found the man in a fit, and tried to assist him. Morgan further said that he had afterward seen his master rifling the pockets of the deceased.

Harris denied everything, and medical evidence was brought forward to prove that all the marks on his body might have arisen from natural causes. The inn-keeper was on the point of being discharged, when the maid-servant requested to be sworn. She deposed that almost directly upon Harris coming down on the morning of the traveler's death, she (being in a back wash-house, unknown to her master) saw him go into the garden, take some gold from his pocket, wrap it up, and bury it under a tree in a certain corner. Harris was observed to be confused at this information. An officer was sent with the girl, and he dug up a packet containing £30 at the spot which she indicated. Harris then acknowledged having hidden the money, but he did so with such reluctance, and with so many evasions, that he was instantly committed for trial.

At the trial Morgan again deposed that he had seen the murder committed. The girl again swore to the concealing of the money, and the constable proved having found it according to her statement.

Harris had nothing to say except that Morgan's evidence was entirely false, that the buried money was his own, put away for better security. The Judge summed up; the jury found the prisoner guilty, and he was condemned to die.

Harris seems to have taken his sentence meekly. He persisted in his innocence, and only lamented the sordidness of temper, which, he said, had led him into a general distrustfulness, and into such ways as this of hiding his money, which had proved his ruin.

After his master's death Morgan and the maid were married. They lived very unhappily, and at last the wife disclosed the whole story. They had both known their master's miserly temper, and the girl had found out that he buried money in the garden, a fact which she reported to Morgan. They resolved to let him go on doing so until it should amount to a considerable sum, when they purposed to seize it and to decamp.

One day Harris and Morgan had a bitter quarrel, and the master struck the man, whose sullen temper instantly formed a resolution to revenge himself. At this crisis the blacksmith arrived. The next morning Morgan himself found him dead in his bed. With diabolical inspiration he resolved to charge his master with the murder, and to plunder that master's hoard while he was in prison, thus at once gratifying his hatred and his greed. Of this scheme he apprised the girl, and secured her approval. But when she found that the accusation was not sufficiently supported, while some words dropped in court led her to fear that if her master was released her lover might be apprehended, she resolved to sacrifice both the money and her master to secure the safety of the wretch Morgan.

After this confession she and her husband were both thrown into prison, but escaped their public punishment by dying of jail fever. It was afterwards found, by some quite unexpected information, that the blacksmith had had two previous attacks of apoplexy, and had never, at any one time, owned as much £5 in money.

Enforced Silence for Twenty Years.

There has just died in this county a lady who, at the age of 16 years, from some cause or other, stopped the use of her tongue, and, until just before her death, twenty years after, she was never known to utter a word. As her last hours were drawing near, she sent for some of her friends and dictated her will in a manner that proved her sound in mind and fluent in language. She spoke of many things that occurred in the country during her apparent dumbness, but gave no reason for her strange conduct. An attempt was made to break her will on the ground of insanity, but it failed.—Oglethorpe (Ga.) Echo.

THE ex-Empress Eugenie leads the quietest and most monotonous of lives.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

FOR A SPRAIN OR WEAKNESS.—Take the well-beaten white of one egg, add a teaspoonful of salt, and rub it well over the sprain once or twice a day.

CHAPPED HANDS.—A correspondent writes us that a simple mixture of equal quantities of rich cream and strong vinegar will make a compound which, if used on the hands after washing them, will cure chaps.

CINDERS IN THE EYE.—The simplest method of removing cinders from the eye is to pass a camel's-hair brush dipped in water over it. The operation requires no special skill, and occupies but a minute.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR BURNS.—Common whiting, mixed with water to the consistency of a thick cream, spread on linen, forms an excellent local application to burns and scalds. The whole burned surface should be covered, thus excluding the action of the air. The ease it affords is instantaneous, and it only requires to be kept moist by occasional sprinkling of cold water.

ADVICE IN BRIEF TO DYSPEPTICS.—Avoid pork, fat meats, grease, gravies, pastries, spices, confectioneries, tea, coffee, alcoholic drinks, beer, malt liquors of all kinds. Let your food be plain, simple, wholesome—chiefly fruits and vegetables. Let your bread be made of unbolted wheat meal. Take your meals regularly; if three, let the supper be very sparing. Eat slowly, lightly, masticate thoroughly. Beware of hot food and drinks. Avoid luncheons by all means. Exercise freely in the open air; never sit moping, but turn your mind entirely from your disease and troubles. Keep regular hours; rise early; exercise half an hour gently before breakfast. Bathe frequently; keep the skin clean, the pores open. Keep your feet dry; let the soles of your shoes be thick, that no dampness may penetrate them. Keep your sitting and sleeping rooms well ventilated. Impure air is enough to kill one—it kills thousands. Wear loose-fitting garments, especially about the region of the lungs. Banish the pipe, quid and snuff-box as the plague, forever and forever. Of all dyspepsia breeders and promoters, nothing exceeds the use of the "Indian weed." Keep away from the apothecary; avoid all quack medicines and nostrums. Finally, keep a conscience void of offense; pray God to forgive your past sins of gluttony and intemperance; for no one who lives temperately, as he should live, will ever be troubled with dyspepsia. The violation of law cries out for vengeance—and vengeance it has sooner or later.

Congressional Deadheadism.

"I cannot save any of my salary," said Senator Lamar to your correspondent. "It is impossible. I never paid a cent beyond livery hire and a few little kindred items of election expenses, in my life, and I have been in politics a long time. I could save $1,000 a year if I would do certain things, but I do not think my conscience would be satisfied if I did. For instance, I pay about $300 a year for newspapers. I like to read them. I have passes over railroads. I could travel all over the United States free. But I pay my fare. It costs me $57 apiece fare for my family every time I come and go between here and home. I have telegraph passes. I never use them. I do not think it would be right. I can send anything I please over the express lines, yet I pay my express bills. I spend my salary and never have any money. Some Senators use all these privileges of deadheading, and they say it is right. I think otherwise. But there is one thing that I think should be done, and I shall propose it as soon as I get a chance. Every Senator should have a private secretary. He has more correspondence, committee work, etc., than he can do. And each Senator should be allowed a private secretary. The Senator gets $5,000 a year, and cannot support his family in keeping with his position and employ a private secretary on that sum." The conscience of this Senator should be embalmed. If you were here and saw a car-load of deadheads on the street-cars when Congress adjourns you would be disgusted. They haul out cards and give their names each time to save 5 cents. I paid my fare one day, and the conductor told me it was the only fare he got, though the car was crowded, and I was standing on the rear platform. The car was full of Congressmen. This incident is a fact that the people should know.—Washington letter in Brooklyn Union-Argus.

The Death of Mr. J. Blair Scribner.

The New York Tribune says the irony of fate has seldom been more strikingly illustrated than in the sudden death of Mr. J. Blair Scribner. At an age when many young men are just casting about for a start in life he found himself at the head of one of the richest and most distinguished publishing houses in the United States, managing an extensive and varied business, and taking a position which might be thought ample reward for the intelligent labor of a long life. He seemed to be one of the most fortunate of men, prosperous in his affairs, happy in his home, a favorite with all his acquaintances, the associate of artists, poets and scholars, and all the world predicted for him a still brighter future. It rarely happens that the death of a young man makes so deep an impression in the best circles of American society and brings sorrow to so many hearts.

Suspended.

The Rev. Dr. Justin D. Fulton, the widely-known preacher, has been suspended from fellowship in the Baptist Ministers' Conference, which includes New York, Brooklyn and New Jersey pastors. Dr. Fulton's offense was in saying publicly of Rev. Dr. Sampson, a brother minister, that during the war he had never been known to utter a word or perform a single act in the cause of liberty. These words Dr. Fulton refused to withdraw or apologise for, and, after a stormy discussion, in which Dr. Fulton took part, it was voted, by 58 to 13, to suspend. Dr. Fulton said, on leaving the room: "I thank you all for what you have done, and may God bless you all." This action will not affect his pastorate, as he has long been independent.

Gems by the Wayside.

Men who complain of the miseries of this life are, for the most part, such as are unwilling to practice self-denial or submit to those rules of their animal and moral economy upon which salutary and uniform happiness is founded.

He cannot be called an accomplished or a polite man in company who is continually betraying a fear to offend or a desire to please—though his behavior ought to be regulated internally by both these motives.

The sweetest flowers are those which shed their odors in quiet nooks and dingles; and the purest hearts are those whose deeds of love are done in solitude and secret.

The self-denial which vice exacts is greater by far than that involved in the struggle of virtuous endeavor.

God is too merciful to let us have a full view of our character or a panoramic prospect of our vices.

The cultivation of the heart should be like that of a garden, where we prune and weed before we begin to plant.

He who dreads giving light to the people is like a man who builds a house without windows, for fear of the lightning.

The best thoughts are ever swiftest winged, the duller lag behind.

To abstain from a small thing is more difficult than to undertake a great one.

The love of public opinion is often mistaken for the dictate of genuine bravery.

When men speak ill of thee, live so as nobody will believe them.

The man of knowledge lives eternally after his death, while his members are reduced to dust beneath the tomb. But the ignorant man is dead, even while he walks upon the earth; he is numbered among living men, and yet existeth not.

Every moral sentiment, every intellectual action, is to me a hint, a prophetic sign of spiritual power to be expanded forever, just as a faint ray from a distant star is significant of unimaginable splendor.

A Chinese Review.

A Chinese review has just been witnessed and described by a correspondent of the Shanghai Courier. The men, clad in uniforms of red and blue, were ranged in two ranks, every tenth man holding a bright scarlet flag, while a sergeant in the middle gave the time to the advance by waving a huge crimson standard. At the sound of a horn, which resembled the humming of a gigantic bee, the batallion prepared to receive cavalry. Out popped a soldier brandishing a pike, which he poked at an imaginary assailant; then, uttering a shriek like an owl, he flourished his shield, turned a somersault, and trippingly retired to the ranks. When everybody had popped out, brandished and poked his pike, shrieked like an owl, flourished his shield, thrown a somersault, and retired, the big bore hummed once more, the soldiers formed in square, and one of them danced gravely but energetically forward, throwing out his right leg with a graceful jerk; then, bounding backward, he again danced forward, this time throwing out his left. Then he jumped, he waltzed, he capered, he pranced, he turned head over heels, rolled himself well in the dust (which rose in clouds), stood on the back of his neck while he flourished his legs in the air, recovered himself, grasped wildly with his arms at nothing in particular, made a grotesque courtesy to the Viceroy, and retired. With this martial spectacle the review concluded.

Pardoned.

Dr. Kerwin, the famous Ireland's Eye murderer, has just been released from Spikes' Island prison, in Queenstown harbor, after twenty-seven years of incarceration. The murder for which this man was convicted, in 1851, was one of the most celebrated criminal cases Ireland has ever known. Dr. Kerwin was a wealthy and very distinguished physician in Dublin. During the early summer of 1851 he visited the island in the harbor of Dublin known as Ireland's Eye. Soon after, the body of his wife was found on the beach of this island. The woman had been stabbed to death with the blade of a sword-cane. The visit of the doctor to the island was readily established, but there was little or no evidence going to show that his wife had accompanied him. Indeed, the evidence throughout was of a circumstantial nature, and the efforts put forth by the doctor's many wealthy friends to save his life were unceasing and multiform. The ablest legal talent in Great Britain defended him. The jury, after a protracted trial, convicted Dr. Kerwin of murder in the first degree, and he was sentenced to death. The Queen, taking into consideration the fact that the evidence upon which the prisoner was convicted was wholly circumstantial, commuted the sentence to penal servitude for life. From this sentence he is now released.

NIGHT AND MORNING.

I stood alone in the porch last night,
And watched the moon rise over the lea,
Till the shadows waved in the silver light,
And the night-wind sighed to me.

And down in the garden-paths I knew
That last year's leaves were lingering yet,
Leaves that had taken the sun and the dew
Of days I would fain forget.

I found no peace in the summer night;
"Old joys," I said, "like the leaves lie low,
And I cannot rest in this tranquil light;"
So I wept, and turned to go.

I stood again in the porch at morn,
While the boughs shook down their sparkling spray,
And the sun rose over the springing corn
And the fields of scented hay.

A wain went by with its fragrant load;
The wagoner whistled loud and clear,
But I heard a step on the quiet road,
And knew that my love was near.

Blow, morning wind, over the sun-lit slope,
And carry the dead leaves out of sight!
For my heart beats high for its new-found hope;
Ah, why did I doubt, last night?

THE sledge in which Napoleon crossed the Alps, or rather that in which he rode from Martigny to Bourg St. Pierre, is still doing duty at Lausanne, Switzerland.

A COUP D'ETAT.

As little seeds by slow degrees
Put forth their leaves and flowers unseen,
Our love had grown into a tree,
And bloomed without a single word.

I haply hit on six o'clock,
The hour her father came from town;
I gave his own peculiar knock,
And waited slyly, like a clown.

The door was oped. There she stood,
Lifting her mouth's delicious brim.
How could I waste a thing so good?
I took the kiss she meant for him.

A moment on an awful brink—
Deep breath, a frown, a smile, a tear;
And then, "O, Robert, don't you think
That that was rather—cooler?"
—London Society.

PITH AND POINT.

A STILL alarm—Bursting of a whisky copper.

MANY a son of toil is worth many a ton of soil.

HALF a loaf is better than a loaf all the time.

EVERY tramp is in favor of the ate-hour law.

"'Tis sever thus," said Alexander when he cut the Gordian knot.

THE only people who really enjoy bad health are the doctors.

WHAT is every one doing at the same time? Growing older.

NOT an author, and yet righter of books—The expert accountant.

VENICE is overrun with blind men, although she is mistress of the sea.

DID you ever hear a hogshead speak? If so, what was it the hogshead?

A SOCIETY for the prevention of cruelty to travelers is needed to take the railroad depot waiting hackman in hand.

HOOD, in describing the meeting of a man and a lion, said: "The man ran off with all his might, and the lion with all his mane."

A ROMANTIC young man says that a young woman's heart is like the moon—it changes continually, but always has a man in it.

IT was a little Scotch girl of 7 years who, upon being asked whether she would marry or remain single, said: "Neither; I shall be a widow."

BY the way, when Eve presented her husband with a Cain, did the local paper print an account of the affair and head it: "Another Man Cained?"

SAID a philosopher: "I don't like a man who is intimate on short acquaintance, because he is almost sure to be 'short' on intimate acquaintance."

A COUNTRY doctor announces that he has changed his residence to the neighborhood of the church-yard, which he hopes may prove a convenience to his numerous patients.

THE plumber came down like a wolf on the fold,
His pockets were laden with solder and gold;
And for four mortal hours he made love to the cook,
And seventeen dollars were charged up in his book.
—Wheeling Leader.

A HEALTHY bridegroom, an army musket and an ounce of birdshot, all working harmoniously together, will discharge a serenade quicker than a thunder shower.

ABOUT this time Prince Bismarck steps around to his tailor and remarks: "Say, Schneider, just put a copper lining to dem goats and bants, vill you? I dinks ve have anoder Zocialistic schutzenfest poody sudden, maybe."

A FISHERMAN who found his tackle gone and a crooked pole in its place remonstrated: "This ain't square; give us a new deal." "If you want a nude eel," replied one of the party, "you must catch it and skin it yourself."

DURING the recent cold weather it is said that Wilhelmj was compelled to saw the j off the end of his name and wrap it up in hot flannels. It is feared, even now, that the frost has undermined its constitution.—Atlanta Constitution.

SMYTHE—"Ugh, it's cold as a barn here, and I'm almost frozen to death. I never did know you to have a fire when you should have." Mrs. S. (meekly)—"Well, Henry, if you should be frozen to death, you would soon thaw out, dear."—Boston Transcript.

IT never rains in Peru, and a man can let his umbrella stand in an open doorway two weeks at a stretch without having it borrowed by a stranger. But we prefer to have an occasional rain and bor—and lose an umbrella now and then.—Norristown Herald.

THE school is still; a hand is raised—
"May I go out, please, sir?"
And, 'tween his handkerchief and nose
Do ruddy stains appear.
"Why, certainly," the master says;
The urchin straightway goes;
He takes his cap from off its peg,
The cranberry from his nose.

THE family physician was congratulating the lady of the house on the good health of her 6-year-old son, who, she said, had not had an ache or pain for a year. The youth spoke to his father afterward, saying: "Ma is mistaken about that; I had a hard pain last summer, after she whipped me."—Rome Sentinel.

A WOMAN'S "NO."

O no! I could not say you, no;
But I hope you won't forget
I love you as a sister should—
O please, Will, don't go yet.
Yes, love you as a sister should,
But marry you? Ah, no!
I'm grieved you should have thought of it—
Oh, Will! Don't leave me so.
Come back, sit down and talk to me;
Don't! Don't frown when you go.
One cannot love just when she would,
Though she's a girl, you know.
And I don't think you love me much,
I don't, upon my life;
But, if I really thought you did—
Yes, Will; I'll be your wife.

Horse Biscuits.

The German army horses are now fed on biscuits of three parts each of rye flour, oat flour and dextrinated pea flour. The biscuit are made with a hole in the middle of each, so they can be strung on a string and hung to the saddle-bow or be carried by the trooper around his waist. Each biscuit weighs, when baked dry and hard, about two ounces. Seven biscuits are broken up and given to the horse in the morning, moistened with water, if convenient, otherwise dry; twelve at noon and seven at night. After careful experiment in camp, on the march and campaigning they are reported by all the cavalry and artillery officers better than oats. A trooper can easily carry thirty pounds of these biscuits, which will furnish his horse with full rations for eight days, or will serve, with forage, for twenty days' hard marching.

GOSSIP FOR THE LADIES.

A Distracted Parent.

Five daughters—four of them engaged
  Good heavens! I shall go mad!"
For such a surfeiting of love
  No parent ever had.
The very atmosphere is charged
  With it; no matter where
I go about the house I trip
  Upon some whispering pair.

At evening when I take my pipe
  And seek a quiet nook
To read the Evening Times, or
  Some new and tempting book
I ope, perhaps the parlor door,
  When a familiar sound
Quite unmistakable, suggests
  It is forbidden ground.

So then thence cautiously I turn
  [illegible]
But lo! again upon my ear
  From its romantic gloom
Comes softly, yet with emphasis,
  That warning, when I start
And leave, as Lady Macbeth wished
  Her guests would all depart.

My next resort is then the porch
  Where roses trail and bloom;
Ha! is it echo that betrays
  The joys of yonder room?
Ah, no! a startled "change of base"
  Reveals the presence there
Of Cupid's votaries, and, alas!
  There's still another pair.

"But sure," I think, "my library
  Will be a safe retreat,"
So there at once with quickened step
  I take my wearied feet.
Vain hope—that warning sound again
  Breaks on my listening ear;
Thank heaven, my youngest hath not yet
  Attained her thirteenth year.

Hark, there she is! and bless my heart,
  That popinjay, young Lunn,
Is at her side—I do believe
  That she, too, has begun.
Oh, ye, who love to sit and dream,
  Of future married joys,
Pray heaven with honest fervor that
  Your girls may all be boys.

—Albany Journal.

The Newest Thing in Wraps.

Nightingales are coming in. No premature coming of the sweet songsters of the spring, but a timely arrival of comfortable bed-wraps, called after the lady who invented them, for the wants of the sick room. As needlework they take the place of stockings in fashionable drawing-rooms, or may either be developed into works of art or retain their original simplicity. Two and a half yards of flannel can at a pinch be converted into a bed-wrap in two and a half minutes. No cutting, no shaping being required; you (ladies generally) fold the flannel together and tack the two sides by the selvage about a quarter of a yard from the double end. This forms the hood of an elegant bernouse. You have only then to fold back the two lower corners and tack again—tack, I am told, is the correct word—and you have the cuffs through which the hands are slipped; and the thing is done.—London World.

Street Costumes.

Street costumes grow plainer and plainer. Short, undraped princess dresses with the front of the skirt laid in plaits and the back breadths trimmed with folds of velvet, are made up for walking dresses, with jackets that are almost tight fitting and which are double-breasted to the waists and cut away below it. The cuffs and collar are perfectly flat, and the effect of the whole costume is trim and elegant. The buttons are of polished wood or of velvet. An elegant basque for house dresses has the center forms of the back lengthened into square tabs, which are trimmed with straight bands of the same material as the vest. The only apparent fastening of the basque is the two buttons which hold the outside together at the waist. The sleeves are small and are trimmed with four flat bands, the uppermost of which comes nearly to the elbow. This basque may be made of blue cashmere with trimmings, and vest of white astrachan and tufts of curled woolen are introduced into the fringe of the tunic. A new in-door garment is of Indian silk, forming a blouse above the belt line and a tight basque below it. It fits very closely on the shoulders, and is trimmed with cascades of Breton lace on the cuffs and down the front.—Boston Transcript.

European Etiquette.

Something like a key to "Daisy Miller" may be found in the following extract from a letter written to the Boston Advertiser by a Goettingen correspondent:

It is notorious that the forms of social life are far more stringent in Europe than in America; Americans care for the substance, the European demands the externals; provided these are cared for no questions are asked. And American girls have gotten into more than one scrape by neglecting the European forms, even when their intentions have been the best, by endeavoring to transplant their off-hand native customs. E. g., no unmarried lady on the continent receives gentlemen unless in the presence of her mother or other natural protector, and in France and Italy (?) no lady goes into society until after marriage. (No little scandal has been caused in Germany by American girls demanding to receive their gentlemen callers alone). I heard of an American girl who was studying music in Milan; she had a fine voice, belonged to a good family; but having been introduced to a young Milanese count, she accepted an invitation to take a ride with him in the park; from that moment her character was gone, and none of the Milanese aristocracy would meet her, when her voice began to give her a reputation, very much to the young lady's astonishment.

Why is it Thus?

"Why is it that when a woman has a worthless husband—not necessarily a vicious man—but one of your never-do-wells—a fellow who cannot dig, is ashamed to beg (though he is willing that his wife should beg for him) and has really not energy enough to steal—why is it, we ask, that such an unfortunate wife is generally the mother of from a dozen to a score of children? Look over the records of your charity organizations, and your aid societies, and find a miserable, worthless, slimpsy, moaning, lazy, shabby genteel husband with a downright hard-working wife, and ten to one half that poor woman's time in the year will be taken up with the care of an infant—the latest addition to a litter of human beings all destined to lead miserable, many of them disgraceful, lives. Now in the good old Puritan times the parents had large families, but then they did not throw their offspring upon the public alms for support. Prof. Tyler tells us that twelve children was the orthodox number; fifteen was not unusual, and not a few had over twenty. Many a New England mother had over twenty children, and reared them all, looking after the dairy and other work of a large farm, and spinning the thread and weaving all the cloth worn by her household.

Girls' "Ies."

The regular annual editorial tirade against girls who spell their names with a diminutive ending in "ie" such as Sophie, Minnie and Lillie, has begun with unabated sarcasm and fury. We have investigated this matter a little, and having read seven exchanges that are utterly disgusted with this girlish practice, we find that of the seven editors, one of them is a crusty old bachelor, forty-nine and ugly, with a bald head and a glass eye, who was jilted by three girls before he was twenty-five years old; one of them calls his wife "Lize;" another calls his wife "Sal;" the fourth calls his wife "old gal;" the fifth man married an "injun" woman whose name he can't pronounce at all, and the sixth man calls his wife "Nance" because her name is Nellie, and allows her two calico dresses and one pair of cowhide shoes a year. And the seventh is a young man twenty-two years old, who recently wrote to his sweetheart, and called her his "own 'ittle darling ducksome duckie dearie" and "his p'cious 'ittle toopsie tootsicums" to that extent that the old married man who picked up the letter in the street and tried to read it was seized with violent convulsions, and fell down in the street, frothing at the mouth, and was taken to the hospital in great agony. That's the complexion of the opposition, girlies, write your names just as you (omission) please.—Burlington Hawkeye.

Letter Writing.

Many women complain a great deal, and not without cause, that they have so much to do that the days are never long enough; that the darkness finds them with sundry duties undischarged. One reason is, no doubt, that they are not trained as men are, or ought to be, to concentration and continuity. Another reason is, we suspect, their habit of writing long letters to one another—not on matters of consequence, but of no moment whatever. A large number keep up correspondence with a dozen or more of their feminine acquaintances or friends, and devote a dozen or a score of hours a week to it. It is not astonishing how much the average woman can write about nothing—the endless details she can give in regard to trifles, gossip, and the like. It is not the young unmarried alone that do this. The sex will adhere to the time-consuming custom long after they have reached middle age and become mothers of large families. They will neglect things that ought not to be deferred to inform their country cousin of how much they enjoyed their last party or the new opera, and sit up half the night to describe the final shred of the gown just received from the modiste. Men, as a rule, never write to one another except on business, and usually very briefly. Women might do the same—if they were not women. The typical women can no more be brief than sue could be profane. Both brevity and profanity are totally unnatural to her. If she wants to write letters, it is purely her affair; but she surely might save much time by making them shorter.

The Senorita.

Even if a Spanish woman is not pretty, which, when young, is seldom the case, she carries a charm with her which never fails to assert itself. Her figure is rounded and graceful—she has, unfortunately, a tendency in after-years, to grow stout—and her bearing such that no other race of women I know of can pretend to. The little arched foot treads the ground lightly but proudly, and her step and carriage are the very poetry of motion. The robe, which has generally a sweeping train, is worn somewhat clingingly, showing the contour of the form, but not impeding free action in ever movement. A gauzy mantilla, falling artificially from the admirably-arranged, luxuriant tresses, is the simple head-dress, with perhaps the addition of a rose or camellia, planted just where one would have it. And she carries a dangerous, and often killing, weapon, which in other hands but hers loses its power—the fan. How it opens and shuts with a dexterous yet careless turn of the ivory wrist; how it taps the pink tips of the dimpled fingers, to give emphasis to some arch expression; how in the sun-glare it is spread, and poised gracefully as a shield against the rays; how, when desirous of addressing, unnoticed, a gallant, and stabbing him with a glance of the lustrous eyes, it is made to act as a screen; how, by an almost imperceptible movement, it beckons an expectant but irresolute admirer; how it imposes silence on some too presuming caballero, by being passed lightly over the speaker's lips; how it indicates impatience in its quick fluttering; and how it is sometimes so manipulated that its softly-cadenced breath fans both the wielder and the supremely happy lover. Yes, the Spanish woman is by no means deficient of the elementary powers of fascination, and if one can only induce her to descend from the realms of artificial complimentary speech, and to speak naturally, she is perfectly charming. She has a fashion of saying what she thinks—in this she differs from the lords of her race—and of calling a spade a spade. She is bright, and even sparkling in her badinage, which, however, seldom rises above triviality; and if one would not break the momentary attractive spell, one should never attempt to change the superficial character of the conversation.—All the Year Round.

A Business Woman.

A Mrs. Minor, of Bridgewater, Vt., says a correspondent of the Springfield Republican, owns three farms, two of which she has purchased from the profits of the first one, and which she carries on precisely as her husband did in his lifetime, when he was the head and she assisted him in his work. She has two or three hired men, but she takes entire charge of the work, buying and selling cattle, marketing produce, driving cattle to market, and directing operations generally. She also does her share of the heavy work, frequently plowing all day in the spring, riding a mowing machine in the summer, pitching on hay, and even occasionally shearing sheep with the hands. All this she does as well as a man, and to accomplish it she wears a "bloomer" costume, consisting usually of a loose jacket reaching just above the knees, a pair of pantaloons, of the same material, and a pair of men's boots. Her summer working suits are usually made of calico, and she wears a costume of this pattern everywhere—"to mill and to meetin'." When very young she married, and her husband died, leaving her three daughters. She then adopted the "bloomer" costume, and became a practicing "cold water doctor." In her practice she met Mr. Minor, a French farm hand, who could neither read nor write, and married him. His employer sold them a farm on trust, which they worked and paid for, and from which they made enough to purchase two adjoining farms. One child was born to them, a daughter. Her own children became very fond of Minor, and taught him to read and write. Before his death, which occurred two years ago, he became a good man of business, and he and his wife were highly esteemed. All her daughters are well educated and good musicians, and two of them well married. She is a woman of good education and judgment, and is consulted by farmers on matters of business, as well as called on for neighborly kindnesses in case of sickness. She is now about forty-two years old, and is worth about $25,000, but works as hard as ever.

Wives of the Khedive.

The day before yesterday was the first day of Bairam, a great Moslem festival, something like our New Year's day. On this day we were allowed to visit the three princesses, wives of the Khedive. We had been admonished to wear our best clothes, and, if possible, to avoid black, as the Egyptians are very superstitious about visits from people wearing that hue. My daughter, fortunately, had a dress of lilac silk, which was not unsuitable to the occasion. I was obliged to appear in black velvet, modified by a white bonnet, which, though hastily improvised, had a gay and festive appearance. We were also told to wear all our jewelry, which was not a very laborious thing to do. So we went, and a row of black eunuchs stood before the door of the palace. Two of them helped us to alight. Having crossed the threshold we found ourselves in a little world of women, where one man only has the right to come. Here cigarettes were brought us, which etiquette required us to accept. A whiff or two quite satisfied our entertainers. We were presently introduced into the presence of the three wives, of whom the third one, also much the youngest and prettiest, spoke French tolerably. After shaking hands with each in turn, we were invited to take seats, and chibouks were brought us, whose length reached from our mouths to the carpet. I wrestled with mine as well as I could, and I only got one good puff of the tobacco, which caused me to cough with some violence. Then we had coffee brought in porcelain cups, the stand for each cup being richly set with diamonds. Then with profound courtesying, we took our leave. In the great hall below several attendants brought us beautiful bowls of porcelain set with diamonds, filled with a sour-sweet spiced drink, which we were afterwards told, was sherbet. These women also carried napkins with golden fringes. Then our carriage was brought to the door. The eunuchs helped us to get into it, our "dais," or footman, ran on before, and we drove away.—Julia Ward Howe, in Woman's Journal.

Service in the English Royal Family.

Formerly a king or queen took nothing from the hands of any person who was not of gentle blood; and until the close of George II.'s reign the royal family were waited upon at table by gentlemen pages, to whom the servants handed the dishes, and who presented them standing when the court dined in private, but on bended knee at public banquets. These formalities have now been abolished to some extent, but the Prince Consort when out shooting would never take his gun from the hands of a game keeper; he required that it should be handed to him by one of the equerries, and the queen herself is strict in requiring that all the personal attendance she requires, except at table, shall be done by the ladies and gentlemen of her court. M. Guizot used to relate that when her majesty visited Louis Philippe, at the Chateau d' Eau in 1843, the king having heard that it was the queen's habit to drink a glass of water before retiring for the night, ordered that one should be brought her, it was presented by a lacquey, and her majesty refused it. Louis Philippe, seeing there was something wrong, whispered to one of his sons, who went to fetch the tray, and this time the queen took the glass graciously enough. It does not seem to have struck M. Guizot that the king would have done better to have offered the glass himself; and that in this remissness he showed himself much less of a fine gentleman than Napoleon. III, who, during the queen's visit in 1855, took care on all occasions to treat her majesty not merely as a fellow monarch, but as a lady.

Where Tomatoes Were First Eaten.

It is a Newport tradition that tomatoes were first eaten in this country in about 1823, in a house still standing on the corner of Corne Mill streets. About that time there came an eccentric Italian painter, Miceele Felice Corne. He bought a stable on the street now called for him, fashioned it into a dwelling house, and there lived and died. Previous to his coming, and long after, tomatoes, then called "love apples," were thought to be poisonous. A gentleman told me to-day that in 1819 he brought them from South Carolina and planted them in his yard, where they were looked upon as curiosities and prized for their beauty. They became later, however, a very unpleasant missile in the hands of the small boy. A charming old lady told me to-day that in 1824 she was sitting with a sick person when some one brought the invalid as a tempting delicacy some tomatoes. "Would you poison her?" was the exclamation of the astonished attendants; and yet Corne in this section of the town had been serving them for a year previous. As late as 1835 they were regarded as poisonous throughout Connecticut. —Boston Transcript.

COOKED AIR.

Some of the Cold-Weather Follies of the American People.

[From the Philadelphia Ledger.]

There is one very good reason why people "take cold" in winter time. Most of the well-to-do spend their lives, when in-doors, in cooked air. The lower down the thermometer goes the higher the burning coal is piled; all the chinks and cracks are stopped that would let any fresh air in, and its main chance, indeed, is when the front door opens for twenty seconds, or when the beds are made in the sleeping-rooms. In the living rooms of the family there is no occasion, many people think, to raise the windows ever, except to wash them on periodical cleaning days, or to shut in the shutters. So carpets and furniture and people, lungs and skin, are dried and baked in the hot, dry rooms, until ingenious persons can bring out electric sparks from their finger ends by skating rapidly up and down the room in their woolen slippers.

Out from this kiln-dried atmosphere into the winter streets and into the very cold or very damp air plunge the folks who live in these air-tight rooms. They put on plenty of wraps, but they wear the same foot-gear and they carry the same lungs out into the streets with them, and the same sensitive skin. Then they go into friends' houses and sit in other hot rooms with all their wraps on, or they sit in church-pews, the women, at least, heavily muffled in furs and woolens, for a matter of two hours.

(Why a man will take off his overcoat in church and women cling to their jackets as to an article of faith, is among the puzzles for the wise to settle, or for the next hundred questions of an inquiring world.) Again, they go out into the damp streets, and it is a wonder to all doctors and thinkers that they do not all "take," and keep, too, that congested state of the lungs and membranes, and chilled blood vessels that we class under this one convenient term of "cold."

Perhaps the houses are not kept any warmer than they ought to be, when people are taking but little exercise. But they certainly are nearly all of them too dry and lacking in constantly renewed pure air. It has been before remarked in the Ledger that folks who are extremely particular about wearing their own clothes, and who would by no means consent to take the cast-off garments of a neighbor—one and all of them are perfectly comfortable to breathe over and over again the cast-off and soiled air from each other's lungs, when it is cooked especially; for in summer time they do insist on a change of it, and do get their houses ventilated. Janitors of public buildings, in a short-sighted economy of fuel, will shut up all the apertures by which fresh air might get in, lest they should suffer some heat to escape thereby, and are rewarded by sleepy audiences, especially when the gas burners are at work, also draining the cooked air of what little life it has. There are some people—many it is to be hoped—who open an inch of two of their bedroom windows every night to insure a modicum of fresh air to sleep by. But these do not in the least care to have fresh air to be awake in, it seems, for they are content to have their furnace draw all supplies from the tightly-sealed cellar, and from the stale atmosphere of the ash-boxes and vegetable bins in the subterranean apartment. When we live in fresh air within doors as without, with its proper proportion of moisture for the skin and breathing apparatus to keep up their healthy tone, it is likely we shall have found out one way at least of how not to take cold.

The Small Boy's Fun.

He had a long string and a brass key tied to the end of it, which he said was the instrument of torture. Over the front sidewalk a maple tree sent some pretty strong branches, making a seat hidden by leaves. Into this after dark, the boys climbed. "Now wait," said the principal, "till the first victim comes, and don't make a noise." Pretty soon an ordinary dressed woman came along, and, just as she passed, he let drop the key on the hard sidewalk, immediately pulling it up again. Both now watched developments. The woman came to a sudden stop, began fumbling in her pocket wondering what she could have dropped. She started on, but had not gone far before she came back, impelled by curiosity, and began a careful search of the walk. Meanwhile the boys in the tree had stuffed their fists in their mouths to keep from scaring the game, and dared hardly look below for fear of laughing out. A sympathetic sister came along, and together they picked up stones and turned over all the chips on the walk. No money, no key, nothing did they find, and so went on to their homes, perhaps to worry all night; or, perhaps a giggle in the tree turned their looks of disappointment into a cheap smile, and a laugh from the same place made them have awful wicked thoughts about boys. The trick is harmless; no one breaks a leg or loses an eye in the process. It might be recommended to constitutionally tired boys as a good way to sweep the walk. The victims will throw all chips and stones into the street by curiosity power, as it were.—Rochester Express.

Wolves in Roumania.

In these wild Moldavian provinces, with the great steppes of Russia on one side of them and the fastnesses of the Carpathians on the other, life is maintained under conditions very different from those to which we are accustomed in western Europe. Robbers and wild beasts are the dread of the population, and if all that I was told by the people themselves may be trusted, they form no merely apocryphal peril. I have said already that I do not believe all the stories that were told me of Roumanian brigandage; but I had no difficulty in accepting the tales, both of robbers and of wolves, which were current at Roman and Jassy. One of the latter had the advantage of dramatic completeness. A Jassy farmer last winter was driving in the direction of Roman when his sledge was attacked by wolves. Being armed, he shot one of the brutes, and the others forthwith disappeared. Some sudden impulse led him to propose to his servant that they should secure the carcass of the dead wolf, and accordingly, having left his sledge, he began to drag the dead body toward it. Unhappily, the horses scented the vermin, and, wild with terror, bolted at full speed back to Jassy, leaving the farmer alone with his prize. He had not been left many seconds before the pack returned and tore him to pieces. "We got his boots," said my informant in pathetic tones, "and that was all."—The Fortnightly Review.

Hangman Foote.

The sobriquet of "Hangman Foote" came about in this wise: A number of southern members of congress had brought with them to Washington their negro servants for domestic use. One morning in the summer of 1848 it was discovered by their masters that several of these had mysteriously disappeared from their homes, spirited northward undoubtedly by white sympathizers. on the day after their exodus Mr. Calhoun arose in the senate and denounced the "outrage" in the most vehement terms, and was followed by Senator Hale, of New Hampshire, who spoke no less vehemently from an abolition standpoint. Mr. Calhoun, who was in poor health, asked Mr. Foote to come forward to his relief, and he did so, in, as he himself afterwards characterized it "one of the most fumy, rabid an insulting speeches that have ever dishonored a grave and dignified parliamentary body." He told Mr. Hale that were he to visit any thickly-settled portion of Mississippi, and there use such language as he had just uttered, he would incur the hazard of being "strung up" on one of the loftiest trees of the forest; and in such a case, should there be any want of a willing executioner, he (Foote) would turn hangman for the senator's benefit. "These frantic and indecent words," says the penitent ex-senator, in commenting upon them many years afterward, "had scarcely been enunciated ere I became painfully sensible of the stupid and unbecoming nature of my conduct, and I would really have given worlds to recall all the nonsense I had spoken. In less than 48 hours I received hundreds of anonymous letters, filled with the most caustic revilement, and others inclosing hideous caricatures, denominated 'Hangman Foote!' I positively writhed in agony. Never had my self-respect suffered such severe humilation."

The jolly senator from New Hampshire laughed at both Foote's harangue and his mortification thereat, and their personal relations, which have always been friendly, were not interrupted in the least by this unpleasant episode.

A Mouse Story.

A gentleman who was exceedingly averse to that little animal denominated a mouse, was one day traveling in one of the northern counties, and, as night set in, put up at a country inn. After dinner and the customary libations "for the good of the house," he retired to his room, carefully examining the corners and crevices to acertain if there were any holes from which these little marauders might be likely to issue forth, but finding none, he divested himself of his wearing apparel, and consigned himself to the guardian care of Morpheus. After sleeping soundly for about three hours, he again became conscious of his existence in this world of transitory bliss, but being somewhat in a dreamy state, he had no clear perception as to what might disturb his disordered imagination. As he was thus lying, midway between sleep and conciousness, he heard something going pit-pit-pit-pit upon the table which closely approximated to the head of the bedstead on which he was sleeping. He listened more attentively, and observed very softly to himself. "As I live, this house is beset with those infernal mice, and there is one now gnawing at something on the table." So saying he slipped as noiselessly as possible, and feeling for his boot, took hold of the toe part of it, and heel upraised, very softly approached on tiptoe his intended victim. When close enough to be in striking distance, he again listened, and to his delight found the noise still there; he then raised his arm, and with unerring precision, let fall the heel of his boot upon—his beautiful gold repeater, that he had placed upon the table on going to bed, that had made the noise, and which now lay smashed and destroyed.

The Color of Clothes.

The color of clothes is not a matter of indifference. White and light-colored clothes reflect the heat, while the black and dark-colored materials absorb the heat; hence it is that in summer we wear light-colored dresses. But, after all, light colors are really best at all seasons; for, though black and dark substances absorb heat best, they also radiate or give it off soonest. There is no doubt that white clothing retains the heat of the body longer than dark clothing. The coachman will tell you that his white duffel coat is warmer in winter and cooler in summer than any other kind of coat, and the brewer's drayman will wear his white stockings all the year round. The true reason for our preference of dark colored clothing in winter and during bad weather is economy. It is a question of soap and washing, not of comfort, which decides us to choose those colors in materials which do not bear constant washing, such as wool and silk, which show the dirt least and retain their color longest. In the summer, when ladies wear linen and cotton fabrics, which do not suffer in the wash-tub, they can indulge in their love of white and delicate tints of color.

AN aged deacon at Mamakating, N. Y., becoming wearied of the nocturnal visits of his neighbor's dog to his sheepfold, caught the animal, tied him to a tree and shot him. The owner of the dog asked the deacon why he had killed the animal, and the good man replied that he had mistaken it for a wild cat, which indeed the dog resembled as closely as it did a rhinoceros. Then the owner said, "Why did you tie the suppositious wild cat to a tree before shooting it?" and the deacon answered meekly, "Because I was afraid of it!"

WHEN Emerson recklessly wrote "Every natural action is graceful," had he ever seen a woman wriggling through a snow drift?—Waterloo Observer.

SONG.

The fire-light listens on the floor
  To hear the wild winds blow.
Within, the bursting roses burn,
  Without, there slides the snow.

Across the flower I see the flake
  Pass, mirrored, mystic, slow.
Oh, blooms and storm must blush and freeze,
  While seasons come and go!

I lift the sash—and live, the gale
  Comes leaping to my call.
The rose is but a printed one
  That hangs upon the wall.

—Harper's Monthly.

COMICALITIES.

SOME men are like brooks, they are always murmuring.

THE lapse of half-a-century—Those of of old maids fifty years old.—Puck.

THERE isn't a lighthouse on the coast that weighs less than a ton.—Utica Observer.

A MAN never wants to laugh when a fly lights on his nose, but he is greatly tickled.

A LIVELY female gossip, with but one arm, is known as "the short-hand reporter."

IT isn't the small boy's whistle per se that is objected to; it is the blowing of it that arouses indignation.

A BOOK is a man's best friend, and the only one he can shut up without giving offence.

WHEN does the rain become too familiar with a lady? When it begins to patter on her back.

EVERYTHING will turn when trod upon, even the treadle. It turns the grindstone.

THE bigger and grander the wedding, the more glaring the headlines in the papers when the divorce is announced.

UNDER the New Hampshire tax law "two hogs to a family are exempt." That would exempt the whole family in some cases.—Lowell Courier.

WHAT is the difference between a magazine writer and a paragrapher? One says "symposium," the other "hash."

BUSINESS prospects are certainly stiffening. Four new starch factories are to be erected in Maine.—Lowell Courier.

"Fie! Mollie," quoth Reuben to Mary; "'tis a pity we can't agree." "Fie! Mollie, is good, sir," she answered, "but you'll find you can't Mollie-fie me."

"THE Sioux are not contagious," said an old frontiersman. "What do you mean?" asked a by-stander. "I mean that they are hard to catch," was the reply.

"I WALKED the floor all night with the toothache," said he, to which his unfeeling listener replied: "You didn't expect to walk the ceiling with it, did you?"—Syracuse Times.

JUST at this present date there is not a first-class stage coach robber in the whole country, and every newspaper is crying out "Learn your boy a trade!"—Free Press.

A BABY imagines that he can sleep all day and cry all night, and still be the "darling of the household." On this rock we split.—N. H. Register.

ADOLPHUS—"Angelina, why ith a man cutting wood like melting thnow?" Angelina—"I can't tell, Dolly. Tell me, dear." Adolphus—"Becauth he'th thawing."

THE following is posted in front of a grocery store near Harvard square: "Wooden pails, six cents each. Notice—We did not steal those pails, but we think the man we bought them of did."

SOME men are endowed with the clinging nature of cobwebs, and like them are continually hanging around the house until cleared out by the end of a well-balanced broom, with an industrious female at the other end.—Hack. Rep.

IT was in a Stumptown Sunday School, a visitor, who was interrogating the children, asked the question: "Why was Lot's wife turned into a pillar of salt?" There was a small boy, with a preternatural growth of hair, piped out: "I s'pose it was because she was too fresh."

THE man who waits to get three cats in line before he shoots will some day find the poor house waiting for him. It is the man who peppers away at cats whenever chance offers who will lay up ducats for his old age.

HISTORY, modern and ancient, shows that a party of fishermen may start off and forget their bait or some of their tackle, but the quart bottle containing "medicine" in case of the number is bitten by a shark or a sea serpent, or an aligator, is never, never left behind. —Buffalo Com. Advertiser.

"Do you mean to say, positively, madam," said the lawyer to a witness, "that the person referred to never left his native village after the day of his marriage?" "I do." "How do you know he never did?" "Because I saw him buried in the village grave-yard the same afternoon."

"SOUND," said the schoolmaster, "is what you hear. For instance, you can feel a sound." "Oh, yes, you can," said a smart boy. "John Wilson, retorted the pedagogue, "how do you make that out? What sound can you feel?" "A sound thrashing."

A MAN who had gone out fishing caught several splendid bass, which he promptly threw back into the river. Being remonstrated with for this apparently foolish act, he replied: "I take no interest in bass. I came out to catch catfish, and when I come out for catfish I want catfish.—N. Y. World.

IT was proposed to erect a monument in the village square to the Father of his Country, and old 'Squire Higgins was called upon for a liberal donation. "I can't give anything this time," he said, "but you may know that I always carry Washington in my heart." "Well," answered the man with the subscription paper, "all I can say is that you've got the Father of his Country in a very tight spot."

"NOW," said the last bore we had in our office Saturday afternoon, when he had finished favoring us with his opinion as to how a humorous weekly should be run, "now I want to give you a little sage advice—" "Hold," we exclaimed, our patience lost entirely, and we flourished the paste-brush in his face, "your advice may be sage, your breath is decidedly oniony, and, taking them both together, we think you're 'stuffing' us." And we pasted him in the—"Next!"—Puck.

FRUIT HOUSE BULLETIN

Great Reduction in Goods.

Syrups and Molasses all down ten cents per gallon.
Coffees reduced another two cents per pound.
Leghorn Citron down fifteen cents per pound.
Zantee Currents down five cents per pound.
Best Teas reduced 10 cents per pound.
Candies down three cents per pound.
Sugars all down one cent per pound.
Raisins down three cents per pound.

ALL REDUCED 10 and 20 per cent.

Rio Coffee.

The very best, 15 cents per pound. Second grade, 12½ cents per lb. Roasted coffee, 15 cts., best 20 cts. per lb.

Teas! Teas!

At no time in the history of the trade have Teas been so low. Another decline of 10c. per lb. brings the best of Teas within the reach of all. We now sell a good Tea for 20c. A choice extra drawing Tea for 40 and 50c, and the best Tea in the market for 70c. Young Hyson, 20, 40, best 70c., Imperial 40, best 70c., Oolong 20, 40, best 70c., Uncolored Japan 20, 40, best 60c., Gunpowder, extra choice, 40, best 50 and 70c. per pound

Sugars Down 1c.

Coffee A Sugar 8½c, Extra C 7½c, Yellow 6c, Grushed, Powdered and Granulated 9 cents.

Raisins, Currents, Citron, Lemon and Orange Peel,

Down 3 to 10c. per lb., best Valencia Raisins 8c., choice Zantee Currants 6c., best Leghorn Citron 15c, Lemon and Orange Peel 20c., Sicily shelled Almons 35c., Brazil Nuts 10c., Filberts 12c., Texas Peacans 10c

Toy Candies of all Descriptions.

Apples, Pears, Plums, Apricots, and the finest Candies at 25c per lb. Last year they were sold at 40c. Choice French mixed candy 15c, and the best stick candy 12½c. 8ct. reduction on candy.

Tobaccos.

Good plug 40c., best 50c. Twin Brothers 65c. Smoking 30c., best 35c. Golden Shorts, finest goods 35c. Uncle Ned, Fancy Turkish 45c.

Fish Oil and Neat's Foot Oil Down 15 cents per Gallon.

Best Fish Oil 70c, and Neat's Foot Oil 70c; Machine Oil 20c, best 40c. Coal Oil 12½c, Head Light 18c

CIGARS—In ½ boxes, full boxes and one-fourth boxes, extra choice Cigars $1.25 per 100; good Havanas $2, best $3 per 100

Fresh Oysters.

12c. per can. Select Frying 17c and 28c per can. Cove Oysters 5 cents per can.

We are doing a rushing trade, continually increasing, and we guarantee our customers a saving of at least 20c. on the dollar at the

FORT WAYNE FRUIT HOUSE.

Trustee's Notice.

NOTICE is hereby given that I will be at my residence in Franklin township, for the transaction of township business, on Tuesday of each week.
B. F. GREENWOOD,
Trustee.
2-6m.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examinations begin at 10 o'clock A. M.
JAMES A. BARNS Co. Sup't.

J. BRINKERHOFF,

BOUNTY AND PENSION AGENT.

LAND WARRANTS

Obtained for Soldiers, their Widows and Heirs for services in the Revolutionary War, the Indian Wars, War of 1812 and the Mexican War. Bounties for Soldiers', their Widows and Heirs for services in the war of 1861. Also Pensions for Soldiers', Widows and Heirs for military services in any war of the United States. Many soldiers now drawing pesions are entitled to

INCREASE OF PENSION.

If you think you are more disabled now than when you received your pension certificate, give me a call. Having been engaged in this business for the past 20 years I hope to render satisfaction. Counsel in regard to all claims against the Government, gratis.
J. BRINKERHOFF.
Main street, Auburn, Ind.

Improved and Unimproved

FARMS and CITY PROPERTY

—IN—

MONTGOMERY, LABETTE

—AND—

Chautauqua Counties.

Cultivated farms in this vicinity, with plenty of good water, convenient to coal and timber, and with

Church, School and Railroad

Advantages can be purchased at as low prices, per acre, as wild lands two or three hundred miles farther west, and far beyond our Coal and Timber districts. This is acknowledged to be one of the most

Extensive Farming Districts

in Kansas. We can consistently advise seekers of homes in the west, to examine our locality before purchasing elsewhere. Business houses, dwellings, and a large number of lots in the city of Coffeyville, at the terminus of the L. L. & G. R. R., either for cash, exchange, or on liberal credit.

We guarantee a good title to all lands sold by us. So if you want to buy, sell or exchange real estate, call on or address, (inclosing stamp for return postage),

F. McCREARY & CO.,
Real Estate Agt's. Coffeyville, Kan.,
or, THOS. H. SPROTT, Auburn, Ind
34-1 y.

Wanted to Cure one Case of
CATARRH.
Agents Wanted
in each neighborhood to introduce our BLACK FOREST OIL CATARRH REMEDY. One dollar package free to those willing to pay express charges (25c. if reached by Adams or Union Ex. Co's.)
Address, F. H. BOWER & CO. Gen. Agt's.
Pittsburgh, Pa.

SAVE MONEY.

Collar and Milker free to Agents. Neat, light, durable, cheap. No hames required—excells all others. Farmers want it. Outlasts all others. Adjustable. Fits any horse.

OUR MILKER, the best on earth, ensures pure, clean milk, saves its cost every week. Sells rapidly. Sent by mail to any part of the U. S. Send stamp for particulars.

J. W. GUERNSEY, Gen. Agent,
78 Courtlandt St., N. Y.

Sick Headache

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively Cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, &c. They regulate the Bowels and prevent Constipation and Piles. The smallest and easiest to take. Only one pill a dose. 40 in a vial. Purely Vegetable. Price 25 cents. Sold by all Druggists.

CARTER MEDICINE CO., Prop'rs, Erie, Pa.
Five Vials by mail for one dollar.

TUTT'S PILLS!

A NOTED DIVINE SAYS THEY ARE WORTH THEIR WEIGHT in GOLD READ WHAT HE SAYS:

DR. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended to me; I used them (but with little faith). I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and I have gained forty pounds solid flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.
REV. R. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

A TORPID LIVER

is the fruitful source of many diseases, such as Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Dysentery, Bilious Fever, Ague and Fever, Jaundice, Piles, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint, Colic, etc.

Tutt's Pills exert a powerful influence on the Liver, and will with certainty relieve that important organ from disease, and restore its normal functions.

The rapidity with which persons take on flesh, while under the influence of these pills, of itself indicates their adaptability to nourish the body, hence their efficacy in curing nervous debility, dyspepsia, wasting of the muscles, sluggishness of the liver, chronic constipation, and imparting health and strength to the system.

CONSTIPATION.

Only with regularity of the bowels can perfect health be enjoyed. When the constipation is of recent date, a single dose of TUTT'S PILLS will suffice, but if it has become habitual, one pill should be taken every night, gradually lessening the frequency of the dose until a regular daily movement is obtained, which will soon follow.

Sold Everywhere, 25 Cents.
OFFICE, 35 MURRAY ST., NEW YORK.

Put on Your Thinking Cap.

Below we append a list of hidden names of authors which will afford some amusement to those whose taste are literary. This list was prepared by an Indianapolis gentleman for the Herald of that city. Those who think they have guessed the correct answers will please send them to this office.

1. A darkey's description of the enemy.
2. What is lighter than air?
3. The side of a hog.
4. A curse and a paddock.
5. A Yankee child's request for its mother to accede.
6. A fop and a mountain.
7. To plead.
8. One who woos.
9. Used to gain power.
10. What you do when you get his books?
11. A river of two letters in Europe.
12. A berry and the tree on which it grows.
13. To cleave and depart.
14. A bee's bote and a shaft.
15. Whose middle name counsels amity.
16. Used to secure things with.
17. To wed and a proposition.
18. Greater than many and less than most.
19. The garb of a clown.
20. Indicates two.
21. Continue to seperate.
22. A raw hand, but the keenest of wits.
23. A kind of bread and a hotel.
24. Not so grim as his name and the author of "Tempereth the wind to the shorn lamb."
25. What faithless wives on the Bosphorus fear.
26. What an old man should be.
27. Who took his own life as his last toil.
28. Bad for fish.
29. A low female.
30. Whose work gave what his name implies, to the strictly orthodox.
31. To find the poet's name, do among names what his suggests.
32. A gratified hard substance.
33. A tale in itself.
34. The extreme suburbs. A well known correspondent.
35. A part of maize. A popular writer of trashy tales.
36. If you have a sharp specimen of his name you will see it at once.
37. A kind of horn attached to a place of abode.
38. Necessary for a newspaper and a kind of bed.
39. A people of Europe and an essential part of a ship.
40. A French name, which, pronounced in English, means in the neighborhood, or nearly.
41. A wit the namesake of equally famous rocket maker.
42. Novels and barrels are his specialties.
43. Cuts with a heavy axe. The author of two famous books for youth.
44. The title of Scotch official. Famous for only one book of note.
45. Whose middle name is a church and whose last one a color.
46. What gas companies sell besides gas.
47. Short weight for 2,000 pounds and a law writer.
48. Also a law writer, a dark mineral.
49. The English Cervantes and the namesake of a living American politician.
50. His first name indicates a doubter of old, his second a dead American of prominence, his last advice to the would be literary.

◆

A wealthy German in New York has just purchased a $15,000 clock. He wants to see if it will have run ninety years "when the old man dieu."

◆

An organ-grinder who stoped before a savings bank to play "Pull Down the Blind," was ordered to move on by a hasty message from the Board of Directors.

◆

"As a rule cheating is never attempted in games played on a chessboard, for the moves in such games, it is obvious, are bound to be on the square."—London Fun.

◆

A grave rebuke: Individual (fresh from his club): "My good sir (hic), can you (hic) tell me where this w(hic)way leads to?" Sedate party: "To the church yard."—Fun.

◆

Said a friend to a bookseller: "The book trade is affected, I suppose, by the general depression. What kind of books feel it most?" "Pocket-books," was the laconic reply.

◆

A schoolmaster in New Jersey sends us a poem entitled "Lovly Spring," and asks us, "Would $10 be too much for this?" No: $10 wouldn't be a cent too much. Send along the money.—Graphic

◆

The expression of a boy's face at the end of a straw that lacks two inches of reaching the cider in a barrel is supposed to be the model that the artist selected in the delineation of Adam leaving Paradise.—Detroit Free Press.

◆

Heartless Scientist—"Miss Adelina, permit me to ask pour acceptance of my hand—" Gushing Maiden—"O, Professor, so sudden—" Heartless Scientist—"My—er—Hand-book of the Buddhist Psychology and Ethnology of the Hindoos." (Collapse of G. M.)—Puck.

◆

"Doctor, you must really prescribe something for me." "My dear lady, you need no medicine—only a little rest and then you'll be as well as ever." "But doctor, surely I ought to be given some medicine of some sort or other. You've only felt my pulse, examine my tongue. (He does so.) Precisely, madam; your tongue needs rest too."

◆

At an auction art sale the other day a marine view was about to be knocked down at a handsome figure, when a bluff sailor, who had happened to wander in, exclaimed earnestly: "My stars, if there ain't a vessel drifting on to the rocks with a strong breeze blowing off shore!" The artist took his work home to rearrange the wind.—Boston Globe.

◆

The Hess Opera Troupe gave a few performances in an Eastern town. The manager, meeting the editor of the village paper, asked him his opinion of the opera given the evening previous. "Magnificent," replied the critic. "To-morrow you will have the opportunity of witnessing a still better opera," replied the manager. "You know, I suppose, 'The Barber of Seville?'" "No sir," he replied, "I don't know any barber; I shave myself."

◆

A witness upon a liquor trial.—"How do you know it was brandy?" asked a lawyer. Well," replied the ready witness, "I smelled of it first, and then I welcomed about a glass of it." The unexpected verb wholly upset the gravity of the Court, jury and miscellaneous people; and they were not at all assisted in recovering their equanimity by his further testimony that the man who bought the brandy drank of it himself "till he was quite salubrious."

◆

"A thousand pardons darling, for not being here in time to claim you for the first dance, an important business engagement kept me," said a perspiring youth to his heart's idol, at a ball recently given in this city. "Yes," was the calm reply, "she came directly from your house to mine and told mamma and me that there was very little probability of your being here at all to-night, as she really could not leave your washing any more unless you paid her for it."

◆

A Remarkable Result.

It makes no difference how many physicians, or how much medicine you have tried, it is now an established fact that German Syrup is the only remedy which has given complete satisfaction in severe cases of lung disease. It is true there are yet thousands of persons who are predisposed to throat and lung affections, consumption, hemorrhages, asthma, severe colds settled on the breast, pneumonia, whooping cough, &c., who have no personal knowledge of Boschee's German Syrup. To such we would say that 50,000 dozen were sold last year without one complaint. Consumptives, try just one bottle. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by Wm. McIntyer, & Son.

◆

Sorrow.

Every man feels, and not strangely, that there never were such such experience of life as his own. No joy was ever like our joy, no sorrow ever like our sorrow. Indeed, there is a kind of indignation excitied in us when one likens our grief to his own. The soul is jealous of its experiences, and does not like pride to be humbled by the thought that they are common. For, though we know that the world groans and travels in pain, and has done so for ages, yet a groan heard by our ear is a very different thing from a groan uttered by our mouth. The sorrows of other men seem to us like clouds of rain that empty themselves in the distance, and whose long-traveling thunder comes to us mellowed and subdued; but our own troubles are like a storm bursting right overhead, and sending down its bolts upon us with direct plunging.—H. W. Beecher.

◆

Is It All Here.

What would we have? Beauty? The world is full of it. Opportunity? The world is crowded with the elements of happiness. If Heaven means rest here is the divine bosom to rest on—just as warm, and tender, and broad, as it ever was or ever will be. If Heaven means action, we are solicited on all sides to engage in it. Do we live in our affections? Here are parents and kindred, wife and children, friends and lovers, people who need us, and people whom we need. There is nothing else in all the Universe that can make the heart happy, but just what it has now. Here is work every day for the gods. Why, we may stand in imagination any day, if we will, by the side of those men and women who are the glories of the race, whom all are praising, of whom all are confessing the power.

Is anything grander than personal worth or dignity? Is anything more celestial than the spotless conscience or the blameless heart? Is anything more beautifying than human esteem, veneration and love? Is anything more transporting than the sense of communion with those who are nobly influencing public opinion; who are strengthening the bonds of justice; who are augmenting the sum of honorable principle in the community; or are redeeming the misery, the infamous from their infamy? If there be any celestial angels anywhere, they are such as these, and we may have these here as well as elsewhere.

1879.

The Four Reviews

—AND—

Blackwood.

AUTHORIZED REPRINTS

—OF—

Edinburgh Review (Whig)
Westminster Review (Liberal.
London Quarterly Review (Conservative.)
British Quarterly Review (Evangelical.)
AND
Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine

These Reprints are not selections; they give the originals in full, and at about one-third the price of the English editions.

No publication can compare with the leading British Periodicals above named, reprinted by the Leonard Scott Publishing Company. In respect to ability of research, accuracy of statement, and purity of style, they are without any equal. They keep pace with modern thought, discovery, experiment and achievement, whether in religion, science, literature or art. The ablest writers fill their pages with most interesting reviews of history, and with an intelligent narration of the great events of the day.

TERMS FOR 1879

(Including Postage); Payable in Advance.

For any one Review	$4 00 per annum
For any two Reviews	7 00 " "
For any three Reviews	10 00 " "
For all four Reviews	12 00 " "
For Blackwood's Magazine	4 00 " "
Blackwood and one Review	7 00 " "
Blackwood and two Reviews	10 00 " "
Blackwood and three Reviews	13 00 " "
Blackwood and four Reviews	15 00 " "

POSTAGE.

This item of expense, now borne by the publishers, is equivalent to a reduction of 20 per cent. on the cost to subscribers in former years.

CLUBS.

A discount of 20 per cent. will be allowed to clubs of four or more persons. Thus: four copies of Blackwood or of one Review will be sent, to one address, for $12.80, four copies of the four Reviews and Blackwood for $48, and so on.

PREMIUMS.

New subscribers (applying early) for the year 1879 may have, without charge, the numbers for the last quarter of 1878 of such periodicals as they may subscribe for.

Or, instead, new subscribers to any two, three or four of the above periodicals, may have one of the "Four Reviews" for 1878; subscribers to all five may have two of the "Four Reviews" or one set of Blackwood's Magazine for 1878.

Neither premiums to subscribers nor discount to clubs can be allowed unless the money is remitted direct to the publishers. No premiums given to clubs.

To secure premiums it will be necessary to make early application, as the stock available for that purpose is limited.

Printed by
The Leonard Scott Pub. Co.,
41 Barclay St., New York.

RAILROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R. R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after Sep. 29 1878, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accom
Toledo	11 05 a m	12 01 a m	[illegible]
Wauseon	12 16 "	1 02 "	"
Bryan	1 05 "	1 54 "	"
Butler	1 42 "	2 25 "	"
Waterloo	2 00 "	2 40 "	"
Sedan	2 10 "	2 50 "	"
Corunna	2 16 "	2 56 "	"
Kendallville	2 30 "	3 09 "	"
Ligonier	3 07 "	3 40 "	"
Goshen	3 38 "	4 10 "	"
Elkhart	4 00 "	4 30 "	[illegible]

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	1 10 p m	9 50 p m	3 00 "
Goshen	1 29 "	10 10 "	"
Ligonier	1 56 "	10 42 "	"
Kendallville	2 20 "	11 18 "
Corunna	2 40 "	11 32 "
Sedan	2 47 "	11 38 "
Waterloo	2 55 "	11 45 "
Butler	3 10 "	12 01 a m
Bryan	3 45 "	12 40 "
Wauseon	4 27 "	1 27 "
Toledo	5 40 "	2 40 "	9 10

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. R. CURTIS, Division Supt.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card Nov. 10, 1878.

GOING WEST.

	No. 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 12	2 55	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 50	2 26	7 13	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 55	11 25
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 55	2 40
Plymouth	3 50	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 00	7 58

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 30 a.m.	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 48	8 55
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 25 pm	11 30
Lima	8 55	4 20	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 27	2 33
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 05
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 15	4 05 am
Mansfield	12 35	7 45	4 55	6 55
Orrville	2 29	9 38	7 00	9 15
Alliance	4 00	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 20 am	11 06	2 00pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15 pm	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line.

75 Miles Shortest to Indianapolis, Louisville and all points South. 34 Miles the Shortest to St. Louis, Kansas, Texas, and all points West. Direct Route to Detroit and all Michigan and Canada points.

TIME CARD IN EFFECT DEC. 29. '78.

SOUTH.	MAIL.	EX.	ACC.
Bay City		6 30am
Saginaw		7 15am
Lansing		9 00am
Detroit		7 10am	2 50pm
Ann Arbor		8 20am	4 05pm
Jackson	6 10am	11 42am	5 40pm
Jonesville	7 18am	12 55pm	7 55am
Bankers	7 36am	1 12pm	8 20pm
Waterloo	9 30am	2 50pm	11 5 pm
Auburn	9 46am	3 00pm	11 25pm
Auburn Junc	9 57am	3 09pm	12 01am
Ft Wayne	10 45am	3 50pm	1 25am
Indianapolis	6 15pm	10 55pm
Cincinnati	9 20pm
Louisville	10 25pm	8 20am
St. Louis	7 30am	7 30am
Washington		8 10pm
Baltimore		9 10pm

NORTH.	EX.	EX.	ACC.
Baltimore		7 10am
Washington		9 15am
St. Louis	8 00am	7 00pm
Louisville	2 0 pm	6 50pm
Cincinnati			5 00am
Indianapolis	6 55pm	4 30am
Ft. Wayne	5 00am	11 40am	4 30pm
Auburn Junc	5 55am	12 30pm	4 45pm
Auburn	6 08am	12 35pm	6 10pm
Waterloo	6 14am	12 46pm	6 25pm
Bankers	[illegible]	[illegible]	10 10pm
Jonesville	8 18am	2 39pm	10 35pm
Jackson	9 25am	3 45pm	12 30am
Ann Arbor	10 40 am	5 10pm	2 05am
Detroit	12 0 am	6 30pm	3 35am
Lansing		3 55pm
Saginaw		9 13pm
Bay City		10 00pm

All trains daily except Sunday. Through tickets to all principal points. For information as to routes and connections apply to

P. B. LOOMIS, Pres't & Gen'l Mang'r.
S. K. HOOPER, Gen'l Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT Nov. 10, 1878.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS.	Fast Line	Express	Com'l A
lv New York	9 55pm	8 15pm
Philadelphia	11 30	11 45
Baltimore	7 10am	6 15pm
Washington	8 35	7 30
Wheeling	11 15pm	8 05am	4 15 pm
Bellaire	11 50	8 30	4 40
Barnesville	12 59am	10 05	6 01
Cambridge	1 55	11 10	7 09
Zanesville	3 10	12 20pm	8 17
ar Newark	4 15	1 25	9 25
Columbus	5 50	3 10	11 00
Shawnee	9 35	4 35	mixed
lv Columbus	11 00pm	12 25
Newark	4 25am	2 10	5 00 pm
Mt Vernon	5 24	3 05	7 15
Mansfield	6 50	4 25	11 00
Shelby	7 18	4 53
Monroeville	9 10	6 08
ar Sandusky	10 00	7 00
lv Chicago Junction	8 16	6 00	5 20 a
Republic	8 54	6 45	6 35
Tiffin	9 12	7 00	8 20
Fostoria	9 35	7 40	9 55
Deshler	10 32	8 45	1 24 pm
Defiance	11 2	9 49	4 45
Hicksville	12 11pm	10 40	6 18
Auburn Junction	12 50	11 22	7 35
Garrett	1 25	11 40	6 10 am
Avilla	1 40	11 55	7 10
Albion	2 10	12 21am	7 58
Milford Junction	3 00	1 12	9 50
Walkertown Junction	4 19	2 21	12 51 pm
Chicago	7 05	5 40

GOING EAST

Chicago	8 50am	8 10pm
Walkertown Junction	12 10pm	1 12am	10 42am
Milford Junction	1 20	2 24	2 20pm
Albion	2 10	3 10	4 25
Avilla	2 34	3 30	5 20
Garrett	3 15	3 55	4 40am
Auburn Junction	3 28	4 03	5 10
Hicksville	4 00	4 42	6 25
Defiance	4 45	5 27	8 50
Deshler	5 43	6 25	12 12pm
Fostoria	6 40	7 20	2 32
Tiffin	7 00	7 54	3 42
Republic	7 20	8 18	4 30
Sandusky	7 10	7 45	10 45am
Monroeville	8 10	8 30	12 15pm
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 30	1 45
Shelby Junction	9 15	10 10	3 05
Mansfield	9 43	10 31	4 25
Mt. Vernon	11 13	12 05pm	7 18
Ar Newark	12 15a m	1 10	9 10
lv Columbus	5 50	3 10
Shawnee	4 50	9 55am
Newark	12 35am	1 55pm	6 05am
Lv Zanesville	1 40	2 57	7 15
Cambridge	2 38	3 53	8 14
Barnesville	3 31	4 58	9 18
Ar Bellaire	4 50	6 10	10 40
Wheeling	5 35	6 35	11 30
Washington	8 00pm	7 30am
Baltimore	9 10	8 40
Philadelphia	3 20am	1 45pm
New York	6 45	4 45pm

Mixed Accommodation leaves Deshler at 2:30 a. m. daily except Monday, and arrives at Garrett at 9:30 a. m., stopping at all stations.

Figures west of Bellaire inclusive are Columbus time, except at Chicago.

Express trains run daily. Fast Line trains run daily on Central Ohio Division and Main Line; daily except Sunday on Lake Erie and Chicago Divisions. Accommodation trains run daily except Sunday.

L. M. COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect November 10, 1878.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1 Mail.	3 Express
FORT WAYNE	1 06 pm	5 40 pm
Bluffton	2 12 pm	6 53 pm
Montpelier	2 52 pm	[illegible] pm
Hartford	3 11 pm	7 58 pm
MUNCIE	4 05 pm	8 30 pm
Newcastle	5 00 pm
Cambridge City	5 38 pm
Connersville	6 17 pm
Cincinnati	9 20 pm
INDIANAPOLIS	6 15 pm	10 55 pm
Louisville	10 00 pm	6 30 am
Terre Haute		5 52 am
St. Louis		7 30 am

STATIONS	GOING NORTH 2 Mail.	4 Express	6 Accom.
St. Louis		4 00 am	7 00 pm
Terre Haute		2 27 pm	[illegible]
Louisville		2 00 pm	6 50 pm
Indianapolis		6 40 pm	6 15 am
Cincinnati	8 00 am
Connersville	11 13 am
Cambridge City	9 40 am
New Castle	12 25 pm
Muncie	1 25 pm	9 20 pm	6 55 am
Hartford	2 13 pm	10 08 pm	7 47 am
Montpelier	2 40 pm	10 31 pm	8 19 am
Bluffton	3 18 pm	11 00 pm	9 15 am
Fort Wayne	4 25 pm	12 15 am	10 45 am

Trains Nos. 1 and 2 run through between Fort Wayne and Cincinnati without change.

Through cars are attached to trains Nos. 1 and and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis via Muncie.

All trains daily except Sunday.

Trains run on Columbus time.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

Detroit Eel River & Illinois R R.

TAKE EFFECT DEC. 2, 1878.

GOING EAST.

Stations.	MAIL No. 2.	ACCOM. No. 6.	LOCAL FT No. 8.
lv. Logansport	8 30am	7 30pm	6 45am
Mexico	9 15	8 28	7 51
Denver	9 27	9 06	8 45
Chili	9 36	9 12	9 08
Roann	9 55	9 37	9 55
Laketon	10 13	10 00	10 38
N. Manchester	10 25	10 17	11 10
Liberty Mills	10 35	10 30	11 27
Collamer	10 51	10 50	12 20
S. Whitley	10 55	10 55	12 30
Columbia City	11 25	11 30	1 40
Collin's	11 45	11 55	2 25
Churubusco	12 00	12 12	2 55
La Otto	12 25	12 41	3 55
Cedar Creek	12 34	12 53	4 15
Auburn Junct'n	12 50	1 12	4 54
Auburn	12 55	1 17	5 05
Butler	1 27am	2 00am	6 30pm

GOING WEST.

Stations.	No. 1.	No.	No. 7.
Logansport ar	7 10pm	1 0 p.	[illegible]
Mexico	6 38	11 55
Denver	6 23	11 39
Chili	6 17	11 27
Roann	6 03	11 08
Laketon	5 46	10 25
North Manchester	5 30	10 18
Liberty Mills	5 28	10 13
Collamer	5 15	9 53
South Whitley	5 11	9 47
Columbia City	4 48	9 12
Collin's	4 30	8 46
Churubusco	4 18	8 29
La Otto	3 55	7 57	9 03
Cedar Creek	3 43	7 45	8 20
Auburn Junction	3 25	7 23	8 00
Auburn	3 20	7 18	7 15
Butler lv	2 45pm	2 30am	6 30

FRANK J. HECKER,
Gen. Sup't

METROPOLITAN RESTAURANT
AND
Confectionery Establishment

The best brands of oysters always on hand in season, and served to suit customers. Warm meals served at all hours. Day boarders taken at low rates. Fancy candies and fine cigars made specialties.
42-6m. SHERMAN HOLLISTER, Prop.

COMPETITION

Is the life of trade; therefore

Henry Gugerli!

Has opened a new Merchant Tailor establishment, in which he makes a specialty of

Ladies' Cloakings!

Which will be cut and fit, and made up if desired. For Gents' wear a

FULL LINE OF PIECE GOODS!

Always in stock to select from, at

Five to Ten Dollars

a suit less than the same goods can be bought for elsewhere. A full suit made to order, in the latest style, ready to put on, in

24 Hours Notice!

Remember that all work is done in the latest style, and satisfaction is guaranteed in every particular. 42-6m.

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SETS

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry neatly repaired on short notice.

Recorders Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 9. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, FEBRUARY 20, 1879. Number 8.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

THE COURIER CO.

THEODORE REED, Editor.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will be inserted under this head for $[illegible] per annum For each additional line 50 cents extra will be charged.

ATTORNEYS.

H. C. Peterson.

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

Guy Plumb,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over First National Bank. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for the Home Insurance Company

A. F. Pinchin

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

Thos. H. Sportt.

REAL ESTATE, COLLECTION AND INSURance Agent. Loans effected on improved farms. Kansas lands for sale or trade.
Auburn, Indiana

D. D. Moody

ATTORNEYS AT LAW. NOTARY PUBlic Office, in Court House, Auburn. Ind.

Best & McClellan,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances Made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

PHYSICIANS.

Dr. J. Miller.

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON AND ACCOUCHER. Gunsenhouser's Corners, two miles east of Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind.

Dr. T. G. Matheny,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, OFFICE ONE Door North of City Bakery, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

Dr. W. S. Allen,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store, Auburn, Ind.

Drs. Cowan & Allyn,

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. OFFICE over McIntyre & Son's, Drug Store; 1st door south of First National Bank, Auburn, Ind.

Dr. T. J. Dills,

Especial attention given to Diseases of the EYE and EAR. Rooms 1 and 2 Odd Fellows' building. Office hours—9:30 to 12 a. m.; 1 to 3 p. m., 7 to 8 p. m. Fort Wayne, Ind.

Dr. T. W. Tritch.

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Carr's Block,
Auburn, Indiana.

Dr. S. B. Johnson,

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

D. J. Swartz, M. D.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO DISEASEs of the Eye and Ear, Fistula in Ano, Hemorrhoids or Piles and Chronic Ulcers. Office on Main street, over Shaffer's Furniture Store, Auburn, Ind.

HOTELS.

Mayer House.

Fort Wayne, Indiana. Under the Management of W. W. REED, rates, two dollars per day. Street Cars to and from the Pittsburgh, Wabash and Grand Rapids R. R. Depots.
S. BRUBAKER, } In Office.
W. W. REED, JR., }

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

TENTH STREET, EAST OF MAIN. GOOD Sample rooms, and low rates.
T. D. Gross, Prop'r Auburn, Ind.

Sands House,

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished Only $2.00 per day.
GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk. O. SANDS, Proprietor

Tonsorial Artist.

HAIRDRESSING AND SHAVING EXECUted with special care, and in good taste. Room on West Seventh street. WM. EDGINGTON Prop'r. Auburn, Ind.

The Great English Remedy.

GRAY'S SPECIFIC MEDICINE

TRADE MARK. TRADE MARK.

Is especially recommended as an unfailing cure for Seminal Weakness, Spermatorrhea Impotency and all diseases that follow as a sequence on Self Abuse; as Loss of Memory, Universal Lassitude, Pain in the Back, Dimness of Vision, Premature Old Age, and many other diseases that lead to insanity, consumption and a premature grave, all of which, as a rule, are first caused by deviating from the path of nature and over indulgence. The Specific Medicine is the result of a life study and many years of experience in treating these special diseases.

Before Taking. After Taking.

Full particulars in our pamphlets, which we desire to send free by mail to every one.

The Specific Medicine is sold by all druggists at $1 per package or 6 packages for $5; will be sent by mail on receipt of the money by addressing

THE GRAY MEDICINE CO.
No. 10 Mechanic's Block, Detroit, Mich.
Sold in Auburn by F. E. Davenport, and druggists everywhere.

Trustee's Notice.

NOTICE is hereby given that I will be at my residence in Franklin township, for the transaction of township business, on Tuesday of each week.
B. F. GREENWOOD,
2-6m. Trustee.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1879. Examinations begin at 10 o'clock A. M.
JAMES A. BARNS Co. Sup't.

—COMPOUND ELIXIR OF BUCHU for diseases of the kidneys, bladder and urinary organs is the best remedy known for rheumatism. It removes the cause, and effects a permanent cure in all cases. Sold by DAVENPORT the DRUGGIST. tf.

Application for License.

NOTICE is hereby given that I intend to apply to the Board of County Commissioners of DeKalb county, Ind., at their next regular session in March, 1879, for a license to retail spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time, to be drunk on on the following described premises, to-wit: Lot number six, [6] block number nineteen [19] in the town of Garrett, DeKalb county, Indiana.
CHARLES LINKENHELT.
Feb. 6th, 1879.

SAVE MONEY.

Collar and Milker free to Agents. Neat, light, durable, cheap. No hames required—excells all others. Farmers want it. Outlasts all others. Adjustable. Fits any horse.

Our MILKER the best on earth, ensures pure, clean milk, saves its cost every week. Sells rapidly. Sent by mail to any part of the U. S. Send stamp for particulars.
J. W. GUERNSEY, Gen. Agent,
78 Courtlandt St., N. Y.

J. BRINKERHOFF,

BOUNTY AND PENSION AGENT.

LAND WARRANTS

Obtained for Soldiers, their Widows and Heirs for services in the Revolutionary War, the Indian Wars, War of 1812 and the Mexican War. Bounties for Soldiers', their Widows and Heirs for services in the war of 1861. Also Pensions for Soldiers', Widows and Heirs for military services in any war of the United States. Many soldiers now drawing pesions are entitled to

INCREASE OF PENSION.

If you think you are more disabled now than when you received your pension certificate, give me a call. Having been engaged in this business for the past 20 years I hope to render satisfaction. Counsel in regard to all claims against the Government, gratis.
J. BRINKERHOFF.
Main street, Auburn, Ind.

45 Years Before the Public.

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

CELEBRATED

LIVER PILLS

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. MCLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

Mendacity Ventilated.

His course is destitute alike of truth and of honor. He does not maintain even the honor common among thieves. * * * * * * * He has proved himself to be either the biggest noodle or the biggest liar in America, and has left his party convicted of attempting to buy for him the chief magistracy of the nation. * * * * * What would a jury say to this evidence of Mr. Tilden if taken in and applied to a case in the courts? They would be compelled to return a verdict from the box that he had lied. There would be no escaping from it; they might recommend him to mercy, but the whole surroundings are such as to force home upon the mind the conviction that he has lied. * * * * * —Journal.

The foregoing is the language of a Rebublican organ in Indiana which, in its present management, has been the apologist of partisan frauds, the defender of political villainies and the advocate of methods of partisan supremacy which, were they punishable by statute, would fill every penitentiary in the land with convicts, and as they shuffled off the immortal coil would people Hades so densely that, in the language of the Republican representative, Overmeyer, "their feet would stick out of the windows of the abodes of the damned."

The Republican party anticipated a triumph, if by their stratagems they could force Samuel J. Tilden upon the stand. They believed that his testimony would embody equivocation and prevarication, and that hereafter they could point to Hayes, and to the methods that made him president, as illustrations of virtue worthy of commendation; but in all of this the republican leaders, conspirators, thieves, perjurers and vagabonds have been foiled, and we instance the Journal's petulant and flatulent tirade as a conspicuous evidence of the fact. The New York Herald, which is large in its independence, servere in its criticisms and generous in its approvals, and withal occupying a position in which it can afford to be just, does not hesitate to say that Mr. Tilden's testimony "was clear, decisive and unequivocal," and that "the very evidence now produced proves the infamy of the men who controlled the canvass of the States which he feels assured carried by him, and seems to confirm the belief emphatically announced by the witness that the votes and certificates of Florida and Louisiana were bought by the Republicans," and the Herald might have added with equal propriety that the votes of South Carolina were obtained by the same infamous method. Here, then, we have the case, and it only remains for the Potter committee to add its report embodying, as it will, additional facts with regard to the proceedings of Republican conspirators to bring before the American people once more the perfidious villainies, by virtue of which the Democratic party and the American people were robbed of the victory obtained at the polls in November, 1876. The Republican party has miscalculated the temper of the American people, if they suppose that the remedy for the crimes is in subsequent slander of Samuel J. Tilden and the tactics which they are now employing, only brings into bolder relief the perjuries by which they triumphed. In 1880 the American people, pledged to an administration of the Governmen of absolute justice and integrity, will examine with microscopic vigilance every transaction of the vile crew who in Louisiana, Florida and South Carolina, made it possible for the bullets and bayonets, fraud and falsehood, duplicity and lying, bargain and sale, to dethrone the right and bring American institutions into disgrace; and as certain as lightnings execute the will of God, so certain will it be that the ballot will hereafter execute the will of freemen. The time is at hand—the music is already in the air, when such men as John Sherman, J. Madison Wells, R. B. Hayes, and their co-conspirators, will be compelled to pass through the exacting ordeal of an investigation before the high tribunal of public opinion, and their acts receive the execrations of all honorable men, and when the verdict is pronounced, the perjured scoundrels who are now quartered in federal offices as a reward of their crimes, will be dragged forth, and with their benefactors, made to sit in the public pillory.

Such a verdict is demanded by the "eternal fitness of things." It is in consonance with the "logic of events," and the mills of the gods, though grinding slowly, will grind the men who plotted the downfall of American liberties "exceedingly small." We congratulate the American people upon the investigations which brought Samuel J. Tilden and the Democratic party upon the stand. Tilden's character was never more luminous with truth and right, and the Democratic party has been made, in all regards, more potential for good by the majesty of his declarations. —Indianapolis Sentinel.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

An Account of the Business Methods of the Department.

[Washington Letter to Boston Herald.]

The number of official communications received at the State Department, and which require an official answer, varies from 50 to 100 a day, and perhaps 75 is about the average. The mail is opened in the index bureau, and the first thing done is the making out of an index of all the communications. The letters are then distributed to the different secretaries and to the consular and diplomatic bureaus. Only the most important ones reach the eye of the secretary of State. All that the chief clerk is sure Mr. Evarts will not desire to see he distributes to the heads of bureaus for their attention. Those which he may or may not need to see go to the assistant secretaries, who can use their judgment about consulting Mr. Evarts. But when the answers are prepared, all of them must be seen by Mr. Evarts or by Mr. Seward, the work of signing the mail being one of the final matters of each day. The correspondence is removed from one office of the department to another in closed wooden boxes, so that the messengers do not actually handle any of the papers which they carry, and there is no opportunity for anything to get "lost, strayed or stolen."

After Mr. Evarts and Mr. Seward have signed the letters of the day, they are sealed up by a trusted messenger, under the eye of the chief clerk, and put in mail bags, which are sent to the city post office. The department has the option of making up closed mails for foreign parts, in which case the sealed mail bag is transmitted to New York and sent abroad without being opened. Besides its regular official correspondence, the department has an immense amount of other correspondence. Letters are constantly coming in from all over the world in every civilized language, and from foreigners of many nationalities who happen to be in the United States, asking for information, documents, etc. The chief clerk states that many letters come from Greece and from Sweden, and the requests that are made are as manifold as the ingenuity of man can devise. These letters, whenever any useful purpose can be subserved, receive an answer. It is here that the services of the translator are often in request. He is a man of large acquirements, but the department is not poor in linguistic fluency, and all communications in the language of every civilized nation of the world can be turned into English at short notice. Among the clerks is one who speaks Japanese fluently, and another is a master of conversational Russian. French, German and Spanish scholars are of course plenty.

The department finds the use of the telegraph a daily necessity, and has its own special operator, who is a regularly paid clerk. The department is connected with the offices of both telegraph companies here, and the department can get a special wire to New York or elsewhere at any time by simply asking for it. When important negotiations are going on messages are sent in cipher, and cable messages of some kind are passing to and from the department nearly every day. One of the busiest men in the department is the pardon and commission clerk, who makes out all the papers in connection with presidential appointments and pardons.

When the president decides to appoint a person to an office, he makes a notification of the fact to the Secretary of State and the nomination is made out and sent to the Senate. When the nomination is confirmed, the parchment commission, something less than a yard square, is made out and forwarded to the White House for Mr. Hayes' signature. Then the State Department transmits it to the persons appointed.

The Kentucky Giant's Baby.

[Seville, O., Letter in Cleveland Leader.]

A few weeks ago the wife of Captain M. V. Bates, the famous Kentucky giant, who lives on a farm about a half a mile east of this town, gave birth to a child, the second since her union of marriage with her present husband, and in both instances the child was stillborn. It is to be greatly regretted by all that life should have been extinct from this child body, which is nothing less than a wonderful prodigy of nature in its remarkable size. If the child should have lived and grown up to maturity, we would have beheld a being beside which we would be nothing but mere dwarfs. The child, fully developed in every feature on the day of its birth, measured 30 inches, a length which many children of normal growth have not attained after two or three years of age. It weighed 22 pounds; its chest measure was 16 inches, and its feet six inches long. To the sorrow of all, and more particularly its parents, the child came into the world dead and never saw the light of day.

The Manufacture of Toys.

Toy making by hand cannot bear high wages for labor nor high prices for wood. Hence the most important centers of the toy industry were established on the high mountains of Germany and Switzerland, where forests abound and the population were willing to work long hours for small pay. What can be done in the way of cheap productions is illustrated at Leitten, in Saxony, in a manner almost terrible. For making 180 toy kitchen utensils, as they are usually furnished to this country, three cents are paid. Sixty small boxes for packing these toys are paid for with from ten to fifteen cents. The making of wooden toys is almost the sole industry in many parts of central Europe and the united labor of all, from the grandchild to the grandfather, formerly sufficed to obtain for the toiling families only a bare subsistence.

Here, one would think, if anywhere, the introduction of machinery would prove disastrous to hand labor. With the machinery now employed one man, working one machine ten hours a day, can turn out an amount of work which was formerly accomplished by a whole family working from eighteen to twenty hours a day for several weeks; and during recent years such machinery has been widely and rapidly introduced in the toy-making regions.

What has happened? The starvation of the poor hand worker? That ought to be the result, if the socialist's objections to machinery were true; but such is not the result. On the contrary, the condition of the toy makers has been directly improved by the influence of machinery. In this way: The cost of toys, small as it used to be, has been enormously reduced, and the market for toys correspondingly widened. And though machinery now does the larger part of the work, the amount of work to be done has been so increased that the demand for hand work, in putting the parts of the toys together and the like, has been largely augmented. The result is the employment, at fair wages, of all the population, including aged peopled, cripples, and children, who otherwise would have nothing to do. Besides, the multiplication of factories has brought the scattered peasants together, schools have been established, and artistic taste has been developed in a way to make the work done of greater value and more attractive, with a corresponding increase in the value of labor. From Nurnberg alone there are now sent out some 23,000 tons of toys, the price list of which number 16,000 different designs. Since the introduction of steam machinery into the toy industry of this place the annual product has increased twenty-fold. At Sonneberg, in Thuringia, not long ago a small hamlet, but now quite a city, the annual production of toys amounts to some $10,000,000.

Having Fun.

[Golden Rule.]

Unless we are unfortunate in our opportunities for observation, there isn't half enough fun in the homes of this land. There is reading and decorum (in some of them!) and frequently music; there is peace, harmony and love; but too seldom does one find evidences that merriment and frolic have their legitimate place. The father—when he is at home—is apt to be devoted to his easy chair and newspaper, and to have a rooted dislike to noise "Don't!" and "keep quiet!" are his audible contributions to the evening's enjoyment. Even the mother gets nervous over the innocent cuttings up of the children; as natural to them as friskiness is to a kitten. The older brothers and sisters take themselves out of the way of the youngsters, or else wonder "why children need to keep up such a racket."

It is strange that children grow either grave or petulent so early, considering the repression they undergo, and the slight encouragement they receive to in so many homes to be joyous and happy in their own way! Almost everything in the line of merriment is better than moping, and nothing is really bad except quarreling and hurtful mischief. And yet children often fall into those ways because no better vent is found for their natural activities of mind and body. A child is a product that does not improve by being "bottled up." It needs vent and freedom in its little channel, and a chance to ripple and and make the natural music of happiness, as much as a bubbling spring of water does, to keep pure and sweet.

In the wisely managed household, therefore, there will be a time for fun—fun, too, in which the older members may join. For it was a true saying of the ancient philosopher, that "The wise man is he who keeps his child's heart."

Wood Wanted.

Our subscribers will please bring in their wood now, which they intend to apply on subscription. Bring it now.

Maple Sugar.

(Indiana Farmer.)

The general use of sugar in domestic economy is of comparatively recent date; and in many countries of Europe it is still regarded as a luxury. In almost every part of the United States, however, the rapidly increasing consumption of sugar indicates that it is fast becoming a necessity of everyday life. This fact raises the serious question of how we shall be able to meet this enormous demand for sweets. Sugar-cane is a tropical plant, and our experiment in cultivating it in the Southern States demonstrates the inferiority of the crop as compared with that of the inter-tropical regions. The beet may be made a profitable sugar plant in the extreme Northern States—south of these, the intense summer heat will defeat the enterprise. Moreover, the machinery necessary to success in beet-sugar making, demands that whoever may raise the beets, the sugar must be made in a regular factory.

The sorghum, in domestic practice, has proved a failure as a sugar-producing plant. What might be the result if the plant was treated, as the Southern cane is on the sugar-plantation principle, where proper machinery is brought to bear under the guide of science and experience, remains as yet an unsolved problem. The sugar-maple, however, opens to us a source of sugar supply much larger than most persons suppose. It is, indeed, the only source of sugar that is available for home manufacture. At the proper season, the water which drips from the tapped sugar-maple contains pure crystallizable cane-sugar (Saccharose) with scarcely a trace of any foreign substance, except a small amount of coloring matter. But pure sugar is a very unsubstantial product; readily changing into a grape sugar (glucose) which crystallizes with difficulty and but imperfectly, and its presence, even in small quantities, interferes materially with the crystallization of true sugar.

The chief secret in successful sugar making is to avoid the formation of glucose. This demands, first—absolute freedom from the presence of any acid. Care should be taken that the buckets, or other vessels used for catching or storing the water, be kept clean and sweet. If small amounts of water be suffered to remain in the vessels a day or two, fermentation will take place and the acids thus formed will convert enough sugar into glucose to give great trouble in "stirring off." Keep the boilers perfectly clean and free from burnt sugar, or from any other impurity. But glucose may be formed without the presence of anything sour. If a solution of loaf sugar be kept at the boiling point, exposed to the air for twenty-four hours, sufficient glucose will be formed to prevent crystallization. In boiling sugar-water, therefore, it should be reduced to syrup every four hours; and if the weather is warm, this syrup should not stand long before it is "stirred off."

The syrup should be strained through heavy flannel, and albumen, either in the form of eggs or milk, should be mixed with it cold and as it approaches the boiling point, this coagulates and rises to the surface, carrying with it all the impurities that have escaped the strainer.

Late in the season, after the vegetative processes have begun in the tree, the water shows a constantly increasing per cent. of grape sugar, with a portion of gum as well as several mineral substances, such as soluble silica, potash, lime, etc. Glucose once formed cannot be returned to the condition of true sugar. The best that can be done in this case is to reduce the syrup as low as possible without scorching it, and then drip the glucose from it in the form of molasses. The sugar groves of Indiana have been recklessly destroyed, yet we have a vast amount of ungathered sweet, still in our "sugar camps."

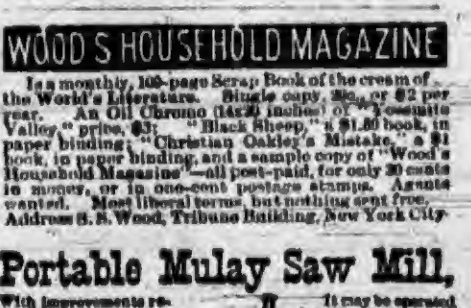
WOOD'S HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE

Is a monthly, 100-page Scrap Book of the cream of the World's Literature. Single copy, 20c., or $2 per year. An Oil Chromo (14x20 inches) of "Yosemite Valley," price, $3; "Black Sheep," a $1.50 book, in paper binding; "Christian Oakley's Mistake," a $1 book, in paper binding, and a sample copy of "Wood's Household Magazine"—all post-paid, for only 30 cents in money, or in one-cent postage stamps. Agents wanted. Most liberal terms, but nothing sent free. Address S. S. Wood, Tribune Building, New York City.

Portable Mulay Saw Mill,

With improvements recently made is unequaled as a neighborhood mill. It can be run by either steam or water power, and is especially adapted to the engines used for threshing.

It may be operated by either two or three men, and will cut as much lumber in proportion to the power and number of hands employed as mills of larger capacity.



It makes smooth and even lumber, leaving no [illegible] and will cut any sized log up to four feet in diameter. It may be transported from one locality to another and re-erected ready for sawing in from two to three days, and can be made profitable in localities where there is not sufficient timber to justify the erection of a large mill. Send for descriptive circular, price, etc., to CHANDLER & TAYLOR, Indianapolis, Ind.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1879

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

A shocking domestic tragedy was enacted at Troy, N. Y., a few days ago. The wife of one G. F. Simmons eloped with another man, which so crazed the husband that he killed his three children by giving them poison, and then ended his own existence by cutting his throat.

THE WEST.

Articles of impeachment have been presented against State Treasurer Gates, of Missouri. The articles charge the corrupt use of the State funds in connection with the operations of the Mastin bank, at Kansas City.

The Reno court of inquiry at Chicago has adjourned, after examining some twenty-four witnesses and taking a vast amount of testimony. Most of the evidence was favorable to Gen. Reno, in going to show that he did about all that could be expected of a brave and efficient officer in the unfortunate affair of the Little Big Horn. The accused is severely criticised, however, for making an uncalled-for attack upon the lamented Custer, in declaring that he had no confidence in him as a soldier.

The commanding officer at Camp Sheridan telegraphs the particulars of the massacre of Frank Moorehead, James Ashbaugh and two others on Cunning Water, by Little Wolf's Cheyennes, who also took a large number of horses from ranches.

At Kansas City, Mo., a few days ago, while forty workmen with four teams were engaged in excavating a track for the Chicago and Alton railroad, the deep cut in which they were working caved in, burying them under 6,000 yards of earth. Six of the unfortunate men were killed, and several others received various injuries.

Charles McGill was hanged at Cleveland, Ohio, on the 18th inst., for the cold-blooded murder of Mary Kelley, in December, 1877....The Northwestern Dairymen's Association has just held its annual session in Chicago. The meeting was an interesting one, and was largely attended....A dispatch from San Jose, Cal., says a fire-damp explosion in a tunnel of the Southern Coast railroad, near Alma, injured fourteen men. Nine Chinamen will die.

THE SOUTH.

At Sumter, S. C., Sam Lee, colored Republican leader, recently appointed Postmaster at that place, was tried and found guilty of official misconduct while Judge of Probate.

A national conference of colored citizens will be held at Nashville, May 6. The object of the conference is stated to be "to consider the situation of the colored people in the South relative to the enjoyment of life, liberty and property; also their educational, moral, social and political condition, and the question of emigration."

Reports come from Tennessee and Mississippi that the yellow fever has again broken out in those States, and that several deaths have occurred. It is believed that the disease has been caused by the disinterment and removal of bodies of persons who died from the disease. These cases indicate that the germ of the fever was not killed by the recent severe weather, and create great uneasiness as to the consequences next summer....Thomas S. Drew, elected Governor of Arkansas in 1844 and re-elected in 1850, died recently in Texas.

United States Judge Baxter, of Tennessee, has appointed a receiver to take charge of the effects of the late city of Memphis, including taxes unpaid, amounting to nearly $3,000,000, with power to sue, and collect in any way, by garnishment or otherwise.

GENERAL.

Contrary to popular belief, the American Indians are not decreasing in numbers, but are actually growing in population. Official statistics at Washington reveal this curious fact....The most important railroad news of the day is that which announces the lease of the Atlantic and Great Western line by the Erie Company.

WASHINGTON.

The Senate Committee on Finance has voted to reduce the tax on tobacco to sixteen cents per pound, on snuff to twenty-four cents per pound, and on cigars to $6 per thousand.

The President has made the following Philadelphia appointments: John T. Hartranft, Postmaster; James Pollock, Naval Officer; and A. L. Snowden, Superintendent of the Mint. He has also appointed Martin P. Kennard Assistant Treasurer at Boston.

The President has nominated Alexander L. Russell, of Pennsylvania, United States Consul at Montevideo....Hon. Joseph Casey, formerly Judge of the Court of Claims, died a few days ago. He was a member of Congress from Pennsylvania from 1849 to 1851.

The proposed reduction of the tax on tobacco, treasury officials estimate, will lessen the annual revenue about $9,000,000, and it is said that their influence will be used to induce the President to veto the measure should it pass Congress.

POLITICAL.

Col. George W. Carter, of Louisiana, testified before the Potter Committee, at Washington, in relation to St. Martin's statements. He denied the allegations of St. Martin, so far as they concerned him, and said he had no knowledge whatever of how subpenas were served, of the coaching of witnesses, etc. A. M. Gibson, of the New York Sun, also testified before the committee that St. Martins' story, so far as it related to him, was a tissue of falsehoods.

Hon. Isaac P. Christiancy has tendered his resignation as Senator of the United States from Michigan.

Gen. Garfield positively declines to be the Republican candidate for Governor of Ohio. This, it is claimed, enhances the chances of Judge Taft, of Cincinnati.

It was resolved, at a caucus of Republican Senators in Washington, on the 12th inst., that Mr. Edmunds' constitutional amendment, prohibiting the payment of disloyal claims, shall be pushed to final action at this session.

FOREIGN.

The ship Van Dieman has been sunk in a collision with an unknown vessel in the Atlantic. Only two of the crew are known to have been saved.

A cable dispatch of the 8th inst. reports that from 30,000 to 35,000 men were on a strike at Liverpool. Many sailors had joined the strikers, and the demeanor of the idle crowds was threatening.

The Russian troops are to be immediately withdrawn from Turkish territory, the definitive treaty of peace having been signed at last....Heavy commercial failures continue to be of frequent occurrence in England and Scotland, and the cry of hard times grows louder and louder.

The Director of the Mint at Bordeaux, France, has been sentenced to six years' imprisonment and 425,000 francs fine for embezzling 1,400,000 francs in bullion lodged in the mint by the Rothschilds. He substituted galvanized copper bars for the bullion embezzled....The British have suffered a terrible defeat at the hands of the Zulus in South Africa. A column of the invading forces, 1,000 strong, was attacked by 20,000 blacks, and half of them wiped out of existence....All the evils of Pandora's box seem to have been let loose upon Russia. In addition to financial straits, Socialistic troubles, and the dreadful plague, which has carried panic and desolation into many districts, smallpox and spotted fever are now decimating the inhabitants of that unhappy realm, and the cattle are dying by the thousand of some fatal plague.

The news of the disaster to the British arms in South Africa caused a great sensation throughout England. A court of inquiry has been ordered to collect evidence regarding the affair. It would seem that the troops were enticed from their camp, as the action took place about a mile and a quarter outside of it.

It is reported from St. Petersburg that the plague has entirely disappeared from Astrakhan....A Liverpool dispatch says trade is almost paralyzed by the great strike....The German Parliament, at its meeting on the 12th inst., was opened by the old Emperor in person. In his speech, he declared that Germany would continue its influence for the preservation and continuance of peace in Europe.

The English Parliament reconvened Feb. 13....Ex-President Grant arrived at Bombay, India, on the 13th inst....A St. Petersburg dispatch says that, since the thaw set in, the number of the plague-stricken at Zaritzin has increased. Prof. Jacobi, head of the Medical Commission sent into the infected district, has been attacked with the disease, and was worse at last accounts....A revolution has broken out in Hayti....Negro disturbances of an alarming character have occurred in the island of St. Vincent.

THE CIPHER TELEGRAMS.

Manton Marble testified before the Potter sub-committee, at New York, on the 7th inst. He said that he went to Florida on his own volition to look after the electoral vote; did not go under the instructions of the Democratic committee, at the request of Gov. Tilden or anybody else. He was furnished by Col. Pelton with a cipher before he left New York, and used it subsequently. He neither sent to, nor received from, Gov. Tilden any telegrams. All his dispatches were addressed to Pelton. He said the cipher telegrams, as published in the New York Tribune, were simply rubbish, so far as he (Marble) was concerned. He did not remember the dispatch to Pelton stating that the vote of Florida could be purchased for $200,000, and to which the latter replied that the figure was too high. The second dispatch, in which Pelton was informed that the vote could be had for $50,000 the witness recollected. He stated, however, that none of these propositions were his, and that he only telegraphed them as matters of news. The witness explained the meaning of certain phrases in the telegrams he sent to Pelton, and said that none of them had reference to money or purchasing transactions.

Samuel J. Tilden was summoned as a witness by the Potter sub-Committee at New York, on the 8th inst. He was sworn the same as any other witness and testified substantially as follows: "I never entered into any arrangements to purchase the vote of South Carolina or Florida. I had no information and no suspicion that any such communications were being carried on until I saw the dispatches published in the New York Tribune. I had no knowledge and no dealings with any parties to these negotiations. I never authorized any such negotiations in any form whatever. On the morning of Nov. 20, 1876, Mrs. Col. Pelton mentioned in my presence that her husband had gone for the day. I didn't know that he had gone or was going out of the city. He went to Philadelphia, I believe. Later in the day I was called on by Mr. Cooper, who was on his way down town, and was told by him that he had received an offer from some party, offering to obtain, for money, the vote of South Carolina. I said that I would authorize no such transaction, nor spend money for any such purpose. The whole conversation occupied only a few minutes. I obtained Col Pelton's address in Baltimore, and telegraphed to him to come home. I know nothing of the ciphers that had been passing between him and others, and could not have translated them. In regard to the Oregon dispatches, I did not know that they came in cipher until after the meeting of the committee to investigate them. From the 7th of November, 1876, until Dec. 6, of the same year, under no circumstance did I enter into any combination for seeking certificates by venal inducement. There never was an hour nor a minute that I entertained such a thought. To the people who, as I believe, elected me as President of the United States, to 4,000,000 of citizens who were defrauded, I owed it to proclaim that I would not yield one jot or tittle of my right. Whatever evil may result from this subversion of the electoral system, and of a free Government, I resolved that I would enter into no auction for the purchase of the Chief Magistracy. I was resolved that I would continue to protest against a wrong by which the people were defrauded out of their rights. I declare before God and my country that the votes of Louisiana and Florida were bought (meaning by the Republicans). I would scorn and condemn my righteous title if the Democratic party had secured my seat by fraud." The committee decided to examine no more witnesses in New York, and left immediately for Washington.

THE BLAINE INVESTIGATION.

Gen. Reuben E. Davis, defeated Greenback candidate for Congress at the late election in Mississippi, testified before the Teller Committee, at Washington, on the 12th inst. He said he was at first informed he had been elected, but was afterward told Muldrow was successful. Senator Garland, of the committee, called the attention of witness to his testimony before the Boutwell Committee in 1876. The witness said he indorsed every word he then uttered. He had said the Radicals were bulldozers, and they operated on negroes by superstition, threatening to put snakes and lizards into them. The Democrats now are obnoxious to what he then said of the Radicals. The white man could not vote in the South against the Democracy without being ostracised. William Vasser, a white Republican politician, testified to being bulldozed and intimidated in the late campaign, and thought, on a fair vote, Mississippi would go Republican.

At a meeting of the Teller Committee at Washington, on the 13th inst., J. H. Field and W. W. Humphreys, of Mississippi, were examined in reference to the recent election in that State. Both testified that it was conducted fairly and peaceably, though actively and energetically: that nobody was prevented from voting, and that there was no disposition to deprive the colored man of any of his rights, except, perhaps, on the part of a few extreme men.——Messrs. Hoar, McMillan, Kirkwood, Garland and Wallace were constituted a sub-committee to investigate the election-fund assessment. The committee then adjourned subject to the call of the Chairman.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Friday, Feb. 7.—Senate.—The Committee on Foreign Relations reported back the Senate bill to restrict the immigration of Chinese, and also the House bill for the same purpose. They were placed on the calendar....Mr. Harris, from the select committee to inquire into the best means of preventing epidemic diseases, reported a bill to prevent the introduction of contagious diseases and to establish a bureau of public health....Mr. Windom called up his resolutions in regard to the migration of colored people, and spoke in favor thereof....The Senate took up and passed—40 yeas to 20 nays—the bill allowing women to practice law in the United States Supreme Court.

House.—The House devoted the day to dull routine business and the consideration of private claims.

Saturday, Feb. 8.—Senate.—The Senate passed the House bill providing for the payment to officers and soldiers of the Mexican war of three months' extra pay provided for by the act of July 19, 1848, and devoted the remainder of the day to routine business of trifling interest.

House.—The Army Appropriation bill was passed, including the two important amendments relative to the organization of the army and to the railroad telegraph, and defeating the amendment which proposed to transfer the Indian Bureau to the War Department. No other business was transacted.

February 10.—In the Senate, the House bill authorizing an issue of certificates of deposit of the denomination of $10, to aid in refunding the public debt, was amended by increasing the rate of interest from 3 to 4 per cent., and then passed....Mr. McCreery addressed the Senate in favor of the transfer of the Indian Bureau to the War Department, and Mr. Paddock made a speech on Agriculture....Mr. Morrill introduced two financial measures—one authorizing the conversion of national gold bonds, and the other amending the Revised Statutes relative to the deposit of bonds by associations.——In the House, motions to suspend the rules and pass the bill repealing the law in regard to the test oath of jurors, and also the law for the appointment and payment of Supervisors of Election and their aids, were rejected—yeas, 136; nays, 119—not the necessary two-thirds voting in the affirmative.... A motion to suspend the rules and pass the bill to establish postal savings banks was defeated—yeas, 99; nays, 104....Mr. Aiken introduced a bill to restore the franking privilege....The General Appropriation bill was discussed.

February 11.—In the Senate, a resolution was adopted ordering the Committee on Agriculture to consider what can be done by the General Government to better encourage and foster agricultural interests....Mr. Cameron (Pa.) submitted a joint resolution providing for a commission to consider and report what legislation is needed for the better regulation of commerce among the States.——In the House, the entire day was devoted to the consideration of the General Appropriation bill.

February 12.—In the Senate, the Committee on Indian Affairs reported that they were unable to make a report at this session upon the Indian slaughter at Fort Robinson, and, at their request the matter was referred to a select committee.... Mr. Saunders addressed the Senate in support of his bill to authorize the temporary transfer of the control of certain Indians from the Interior to the War Department.——The House was engaged all day upon the Legislative Appropriation bill.

February 13.—In the Senate, the bill authorizing the conversion of gold bonds was passed.... There was a long debate on the bill to restrict Chinese immigration—Messrs. Sargent, Grover and Morgan advocating, and Messrs. Matthews and Hamlin opposing the bill.——In the House, the day was devoted to the Legislative Appropriation bill, and to memorial exercises of the late Julian Hartridge, of Georgia.

Population of France.

It appears from the French population tables drawn up from the returns of the census of December, 1876, that the foreigners resident in France numbered 801,700 persons, thus forming 2.17 per cent. of the total population. In 1851 the proportion was 1.06 per cent., and in 1861 1.33 per cent. Of these 801,700 foreigners 374,500 were Belgians, 66,500 Germans, 165,000 Italians, 62,500 Spaniards, 50,000 Swiss and 30,000 English. The most striking fact shown by the tables is the relatively great number of adults in France, and the small number of children. Whereas in England children under 15 years of age form about 36 per cent. of the population, and persons of above 15 years 64 per cent., in France the former number only 29 per cent., and the latter 71 per cent. The figures are as follows: Under 15 years, 10,008,000; from 15 to 60, 22,527,000, and over 60, 4,361,000. As regards the occupations of the French people, 18,968,000, or 53 per cent., are engaged in agriculture; 9,274,000, or 26 per cent., in manufacturing and similar industries; 3,837,000, or 14 per cent., in trades, and 1,231,000, or 4 per cent., in liberal professions—2,150,000 being of no occupation. Of the agricultural population, 10,620,000 cultivate their own property; 5,708,000 are farmers (metayers), and 2,639,000 are laborers and gardeners. Of those engaged in other industries, 3,133,000 are devoted to manufacturing. The number of those engaged in the liberal professions are as follows: Religion, 229,600; police, 567,500; public instruction, 222,600; law, 148,900; medicine, 141,800; art and science, 90,600.

Caucus.

Mr. Charles Mackay writes to the Pall Mall Gazette on the meaning and origin of the word "caucus." He says: "In default of any other suggestion, the derivation of the word from the ship caulkers has been unwillingly accepted. I venture to assert that the true root of the word is to be found in the language of the early Irish and Scottish immigrants into the United States, and that it is no other than the Celtic 'comn' (pronounced 'co')—a prefix implying concord or agreement with—and 'cuis,' signifying cause, affair, concern, business, procedure, etc. From this comes 'co-cuis,' or 'caucus'—a meeting of those who agree with the business in hand, whatever it may be—a packed meeting, in fact. Very many words that are traceable to the same Gaelic source exist in the American vernacular."

Victoria to Become a Great-Grandmother.

In the London World I read a statement of an important fact, which, however, was delicately made known at Windsor a month ago, namely, that her Majesty expected to become a great-grandmother in a few weeks' time. No other reigning sovereign of this country lived to see his or her great-grandchildren. Yet Queen Victoria is quite young enough to render it not improbable that she may live to see her great-great-grandchildren.—London letter.

The English Exodus.

There are indications of a speedy and great migration of English agricultural laborers to some land less crowded than that which gave them birth. Four hundred of the sons of Kent, shut out from all chance of employment at home in consequence of a strike, took shipping for Australia the other day.

Horace Binney Sargent, in his recent address to the Grand Army of the Republic in Massachusetts, referred to the first Tramp law of England, enacted some 300 years ago. It ordered the beggar who was able to work to be whipped back to the place where he was born, there to get his living by compulsory labor; and, if he repeated his offense, to have the gristle of his right ear cut off; and for the third offense to be adjudged and executed as a felon.

A gentleman who lives in Indiana, but who has been sojourning in Mississippi for two or three months, states, in a recent letter, that yellow fever is still lurking around Vicksburg, and several cases have been reported, notwithstanding the cold weather.

All the guns recently captured from the Afghans are of Cabul manufacture, and are rifled, firing very accurately up to 2,500 yards.

THE EDMUNDS RESOLUTIONS.

Interesting Debate in the United States Senate.

The resolutions of Mr. Edmunds, declaring the validity of the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments to the constitution, being under consideration—

Mr. Bayard (Democrat) declared that the first one to throw doubt upon the validity of the amendments was the Senator from Vermont (Edmunds). The resolutions were not part of the legislative business of the Senate. They were accompanied by the odor of the caucus, and not that from the committee-room. They savored more of party tactics than true statesmanship, and did nothing to relieve the wants of the people of the country. If it were proper for this Senate to declare the validity of these amendments, then another party in power could bring in a resolution declaring their invalidity. To such doctrine he could never consent. Armies arrayed to overthrow a Government by force were not half so dangerous as this subtle attempt to place a false construction upon the constitution. It was a design to bring within the control of Congress the civil rights of citizens, which had always been intrusted to the States. It was a most dangerous centralization of power to give the Federal Government that unlimited sway over the rights of citizens which had been left wholly to State Governments. It was against every step in that direction that he now protested. He referred to the cases to be tried in the Supreme Court of the United States testing the validity of the Civil Rights law, and said these cases could not be tried too soon. If the power claimed in that bill did exist, then the political party, whichever it might be, that got possession of the Government had almost limitless and crushing power to sustain itself forever. The whole object of this resolution was to procure from the Senate an approval of the unconstitutional legislation heretofore enacted against which he struggled in vain at the time of its enactment. He would be of no party; he would aid in no legislation, that did not recognize the rights of every man in all parts of the country. There was an unwritten law which would crush every man with indignation who sought to secure the dominion of party over the peace, the security and rights of the entire American people.

Mr. Edmunds (Republican) said he concurred with his honorable friend (Bayard) that every man should have equal rights. If that was the attitude of his friend and his party then there was no difference in the parties on the question of equal rights. The only question was how to get them. It was the mission of legislation somewhere to see to it that this equality of all was made real and should cease to be a hollow pretense under which a minority might control States. The party to which he had the honor to belong had always believed in the rights of States in the Union, but they also believed in the rights of the Union. He then read from the substitute of Mr. Morgan in regard to its being the duty of the States to punish violations of these amendments, and then quoted from the Fifteenth amendment to show that it was within the power of the Federal Government to punish offenders. He denied that the Supreme Court of the United States in the Reese case had decided against the constitutionality of any act of Congress. On the contrary, the court said the indictment would have been good had it stated that the man was deprived of his right to vote on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude, and it fell clearly within the jurisdiction of the United States to punish the offenders. When a State, either by law or the want of law, either by the administration of its executive or judicial departments, or the want of administration, fails to give equal protection to every citizen, the Supreme Court of the United States said Congress had the right to enforce that protection against all comers, and everywhere. If there was anything in this liberty of ours, this brotherhood, not only of States and of communities, but the brotherhood of man everywhere, and if the State could not protect the man, then this common-brotherhood Government of ours should extend its protecting hand. He deplored the condition of affairs in some Southern States, and said it was bearing its necessary fruit, which was bankruptcy, ruin and distress hanging over some of them, on account of which they could not pay their honest debts. He was not for rectifying wrongs in one section of the country and not in another. There was not the slightest inclination on the part of Senators on his side of the chamber to shut their eyes against real or imaginary wrong anywhere in the North. It was for the Senate to say whether it was ready to extend its constitutional power for the protection of civil rights that are essential to the existence of the States.

Mr. Whyte (Democrat) spoke in opposition to the resolutions. He denied that the whole power of controlling elections for members of Congress belonged to Congress. It was for the State to protect its citizens in the right of suffrage. It was under control of the State and must be protected by the States. The United States had no right to interfere except in cases of abridgement of that right provided for in the Fifteenth amendment. The United States had no voters of its own, and there was no one to protect until the State denied a man the right to vote on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

Mr. Garland (Democrat) moved to amend the substitute of Mr. Morgan, so that it should read; "that, although the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments to the constitution were not adopted in a legal manner, yet, having been accepted, recognized and acquiesced in by the States, they are as valid and binding," etc. Rejected.

Mr. Hill (Democrat) said this discussion had developed the fact that all accepted the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments. The Democrats accepted them and obeyed them. He trusted now his friends on the other side of the chamber would not go home and tell their people that the Democrats did not accept them. He did not think any good could come from this discussion, and he thought it time to close it now, and with it close the door on the war. He said the Senate got into differences on account of discussing the form of these resolutions rather than their substance. It was useless to take up the time of the Senate in this discussion, and he did not see how any good was to be accomplished by continuing the wrangle over these resolutions.

Mr. Edmunds said no one could have any difficulty in finding out what the resolutions meant. They meant what the honorable Senators on the other side did not agree to. They meant legislation to protect voters. He referred to the tissue ballots in South Carolina, and said there was no law in the United States to punish persons for using them, and the State law seemed slow to vindicate the rights of citizens.

Mr. Hill said it must be conceded by every Senator on the floor that no legislation contemplated by the Senator from Vermont could be matured at this session of Congress. There were important subjects to act on, many of which could not be acted upon, if this discussion was continued. Of course suggestions of fraud in one portion of the country from one side of the chamber would bring forth replies from the other side. The country would not be benefited nor the Senate enlightened by the opinions of gentlemen on these resolutions or the substitute of the Senator from Alabama (Morgan). He frankly confessed that none of them suited him.

Mr. Edmunds said the whole matter was just this: That while the political party to which his friend, Hill, belonged voted against the Thirteenth, Fourteenth, and Fifteenth amendments, they now declared them valid. These amendments had been adopted, although every State having a Democratic Legislature had refused to agree to them, and some Legislatures which afterward became Democratic attempted to withdraw the ratification given by previous Legislatures. There had never been any legislation to carry out any of these amendments which did not meet with the opposition of the Democratic party, and if that party would be consistent to its opinions and come into power, all these amendments and the laws to enforce them would be swept from the statute book—under State laws. In one section wrong, tyranny and oppression had entered into the election of members of the other branch of Congress, and the Senate should act promptly to correct these evils. The real difficulty was that the Democratic party professed to do as South Carolina insisted upon in 1832-'3, and that was that there should be left to the supreme power of the States the opportunity practically to nullify.

The resolutions were then put to a vote and adopted. Yeas, 23; nays, 17. Following is the text of the resolutions:

Resolved, As the judgment of the Senate, that the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendments to the constitution of the United States have been legally ratified and are as valid and of the same paramount authority as any other part of the constitution; that the people of each State have a common interest in the enforcement of the whole constitution in every State in the Union, and that it is alike the duty of Congress to enforce said amendments, and to protect every citizen in the exercise of the rights thereby secured by the laws of a general character already passed for that purpose, and by further appropriate legislation, so far as such enforcement and protection are not secured by existing laws, and that it is the duty of the executive department of the Government faithfully and with diligence to carry all such laws into impartial execution, and of Congress to appropriate all moneys needful for that end.

Resolved, further, That it is the duty of Congress to provide by law for the full and impartial protection of all citizens of the United States duly qualified as the right to vote for Representatives in Congress, and to this end the Committee on Judiciary be and it is hereby instructed to prepare and report as soon as may be a bill for the protection of such rights and the punishment of infractions thereof.

A Base-Ball Romance.

In the bulk window of a Chestnut street auction-house is exposed a magnificent mahogany mace, tipped with elaborately-worked silver. For over an hour a very seedy individual, with red hair and a broken nose, lingered about the window with such a mysterious manner as to lead the officer on the corner to believe that his intentions were not good, so he "took him in" on general principles.

When the officer related to the court his ground for the arrest, and, finding them not tenable, the magistrate quizzed the prisoner as to who and what he was.

"What where you doing there?" queried the Court.

"Nothing, Jedge simply admiring and meditating."

"Admiring what?"

"That bat, Jedge the beautiful base-ball bat."

"You are evidently an admirer of the game of base-ball," interposed the court.

"No more, 'Squire. Was once. I'm a martyr, I am. I'm no good any more. It's gone down now, has the game. How I could scoop in a fly-scraper? Shy thet inkstand at me, Jedge. Toss her sharp. Bounce her now. Hot, me boy, an' I'll show yer how to stop her. No, they won't have me no more; I'm played, they say. Gimme something. Bu'st off that table-leg and gimme a smack at that inkstand. Fire her this way hot, and if I don't show yer a homer yer can send me down, for good. Ten years ago I was a big crac on the field; short-stop, you know. All broke up now. Couldn't get a job now scraping the stick. I could skin over the bases like greased lightning runs. Throw open that door once. Just hold her open two minutes, and see me get up and git. But, I reckon, I'm no account now'days, though."

"You don't look as though you'd bring a prize," put in the court.

"Not for beauty, no. But for scars, Jedge; for scars I'm prime cheese; head of the heap. I'm a martyr, I am, but nobody would guess it."

"A martyr to what?" said the court.

"To sky-scrapers, Jedge; daisy-cutters—homers, yer know. Taking 'em hot, right off the tip of the bat. Oh, yes, I'm a martyr. Do you see that hand?" and he exposed a palm about as broad as a deal-table, with five horribly damaged fingers starting from its edges. "Them tells the tale. All of them bu'sted time and again. Had 'em druv in clear up to the second j'int, and pulled out with tweezers dozens of times. Every finger broke in six places; five times six, thirty; thirty breaks on the right hand, thirty bu'sted on the left. Twice thirty, sixty; five twelves, sixty. Five dozen broken fingers in the cause, and ain't worth a continental. Pulled in for gazing and meditating on a prize bat. This is too hard!"

"It is indeed hard," said the court.

"Do you see that smelling apparatus on my countenance? Looks as though it was too big for the face, don't it? I sacrificed her. Once it was the beautifullest nose as ever your eyes sot on, but a ball took her on a fly, with three fingers. But I'm no good. Oh! no, I don't understand the game. Can't even gaze on a prize bat, or meditate, but am run in. All right, Jedge. Sock 'er to me. Send it hot. I'm on the home run, and you might as well put me out."

He was put out in the street, and was heard to say, as he went through the door, that he knew he would be called upon to die for the cause some time, to save it from disgrace.—Philadelphia Record.

Earth Eating.

In different parts of the world there are people who eat earth; among them are some of the natives of Java, who eat a red kind of earth as a luxury. This earth, which is soft and smooth to the touch, has been analyzed by a German chemist, who finds it very rich in iron, with a small quantity of potassa and soda. Some tribes eat earth to stay the pangs of hunger by filling their stomachs, and because at times they can get nothing better; but the people in Java eat their earth, baked in thin cakes, as an agreeable variety in their general diet. The cakes, when slightly moistened, are rich and unctuous, and the enjoyment in eating is supposed to consist in the sensation produced by a fatty substance. It is a curious fact in the history of human habits.

The Death-Rate of Europe.

A Russian statistician has lately undertaken to find out at what rate people die in Europe, and the result of his labors shows the following yearly proportion of deaths out of every thousand souls:

Russia	37.5	Germany	27.8
Hungary	37.2	France	26.2
Bavaria	31.7	Switzerland	23.8
Wurtemburg	31.7	Belgium	23.7
Austria	31.3	Great Britain	22.3
Spain	30.5	Denmark	19.5
Italy	30.3	Norway and Sweden	18.2

It will be seen from this that the mortality is greatest in Russia, whereas Norway and Sweden seem to be the healthiest of the countries. France ranks fourteenth on the list, and shows a slight advantage over Germany, but a difference for the worse of 4 per cent. between herself and England.

The Lieutenant Governor of Colorado is worth $5,000,000, owns two mines, is President of a bank and proprietor of a large wholesale store. A few years ago he was a poor stone-cutter in Augusta, Me.

THE SENATE.

How It Will Stand After the Fourth of March Next.

[From the Boston Advertiser.]

The elections of Senators have now been nearly completed. Including the elections made last year, the new class of Senators for the term beginning in 1879 and ending in 1885 will be as follows (Democrats in italic, Republicans in roman):

State.	New Senator.	In place of
Alabama	Geo. S. Houston	Geo. E. Spencer.
Arkansas	J. D. Walker	S. W. Dorsey.
California	J. T. Farley	A. A. Sargent.
Colorado	N. P. Hill	J. B. Chaffee.
Connecticut	O. H. Platt	W. H. Barnum.
Florida	Wilkinson Call	S. B. Conover.
Georgia	John B. Gordon	John B. Gordon.
Illinois	John A. Logan	R. J. Oglesby.
Indiana	D. W. Voorhees	D. W. Voorhees.
Iowa	Wm. B. Allison	Wm. B. Allison.
Kansas	John J. Ingalls	John J. Ingalls.
Kentucky	John S. Williams	J. B. McCreery.
Louisiana	Sawyer Jonas	James B. Eustis.
Maryland	James B. Groome	Geo. R. Dennis.
Missouri	George G. Vest	James H. Shields.
Nevada	John P. Jones	John P. Jones.
New Hampshire	A Republican	B. Wadleigh.
New York	Roscoe Conkling	Roscoe Conkling.
North Carolina	Zebulon B. Vance	A. S. Merrimon.
Ohio	G. H. Pendleton	Stanley Matthews.
Oregon	James H. Slater	John H. Mitchell.
Pennsylvania	J. D. Cameron	J. D. Cameron.
South Carolina	Wade Hampton	J. J. Patterson.
Vermont	Justin S. Morrill	J. S. Morrill.
Wisconsin	M. H. Carpenter	T. O. Howe.

Twenty-four Senators have been elected, and only one is still to be chosen. The retiring Senators are seventeen Republicans and eight Democrats; the new Senators, including one Republican yet to be chosen, are fourteen Democrats and eleven Republicans. Twelve of the Democrats will be new to the Senate, and two are present members. Six of the Republicans are now in the Senate, two others have been members, two will take their seats in the body for the first time, and one is yet to be chosen. The Democrats gain seven Senators—four in the South, two in the Pacific Coast States, and one in Ohio; the Republicans gain one in Connecticut.

The new Senate after the 4th of March will, it is now certain, consist of forty-three Democrats, counting Mr. Davis, of Illinois, as one of that party, and thirty-three Republicans. Sectionally they will be divided as follows:

No. of States	Section	Republicans.	Democrats.
6	New England	11	1
4	Middle States	2	6
15	Southern States	2	28
9	Northwestern States	13	5
4	Pacific States	5	3
38		33	43

Otherwise stated, the Northern States are to be represented by thirty-one Republicans and fifteen Democrats; the Southern States by twenty-eight Democrats and two Republicans.

The next class of Senators—those whose present term ends in 1881—includes eleven Republicans and fourteen Democrats. On the basis of the elections last autumn, the Republicans would be unable to elect their present Senators in the States of Maine and Mississippi; the Democrats, on the other hand, would fail to re-elect their Senators in the States of Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, and Pennsylvania. If no change should occur in the next two years, the Senate, after the 4th of March, 1881, would be composed of forty Democrats and thirty-six Republicans. Maine will probably go Republican this year, and Mr. Hamlin will have a Republican successor; but nothing more than this can be expected. In all probability, therefore, the Senate will hereafter contain at least a Democratic majority of two until 1883.

Hebrews in Congress.

A New York paper refers to Edward Einstein, Congressman-elect from the Seventh district, as the second Israelite who has been elected to Congress from that city. The first was Emanuel H. Hart, elected in 1861. Henry M. Phillips, a prominent Hebrew of Philadelphia, was elected to Congress in 1857 and re-elected in 1859. Boston elected Leopold Morse to the present Congress and has re-elected him. There have been two Israelites in the Senate. Judah P. Benjamin, of Louisiana, served from 1853 to 1861, when he withdrew, and subsequently took a part in the Rebellion. David L. Yulee, of Florida, was elected for three successive terms, serving from 1845 to 1861. He, too, was prominent in secession. He was a political prisoner in Fort Pulaski in 1865, but was released in 1866.

The tenant farmers of England pay a larger sum per acre for the use of land than they would be obliged to give in purchase money for better lands in this country.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	$8 50	@10 00
Hogs	3 40	@ 4 20
Cotton	9⅛	@10 00
Flour—Superfine	3 20	@ 3 85
Wheat—No. 2	1 05	@ 1 09¾
Corn—Western Mixed	44	@ 45
Oats—Mixed	30	@ 32
Rye—Western	60	@ 61
Pork—Mess	9 00	@10 75
Lard	7	@ 7¼
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	4 75	@ 5 40
Cows and Heifers	2 40	@ 3 50
Medium to Fair	3 80	@ 4 30
Hogs	3 00	@ 4 15
Flour—Fancy White Winter Ex.	4 75	@ 5 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	3 75	@ 4 25
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	88	@ [illegible]
No. 3 Spring	79	@ [illegible]
Corn—No. 2	31	@ 32
Oats—No. 2	21	@ 22
Rye—No. 2	43	@ 44
Barley—No. 2	77	@ 78
Butter—Choice Creamery	24	@ 27
Eggs—Fresh	12	@ 14
Pork—Mess	8 25	@ 9 75
Lard	6½	@ 6¾
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	96	@ 96½
No. 2	88	@ 89
Corn—No. 2	30	@ 31
Oats—No. 2	20	@ 21
Rye—No. 1	43	@ 44
Barley—No. 2	73	@ 74
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red Fall	96	@ 97
Corn—Mixed	31	@ 32
Oats—No. 2	24	@ 25
Rye	43	@ 44
Pork—Mess	9 75	@10 00
Lard	6½	@ 6¾
CINCINNATI.
Wheat—Red	90	@ 96
Corn	33½	@ 34
Oats	25½	@ 26½
Rye	51	@ 58
Pork—Mess	9 75	@10 00
Lard	6½	@ 6¾
TOLEDO.
Wheat—No. 1 White	97	@ 98
No. 2 Red	[illegible]	@ 99
Corn	34	@ 37½
Oats—No. 2	24	@ 25
DETROIT.
Flour—White	4 40	@ 4 75
Wheat—No. 1 White	93	@ 94
No. 1 Amber	95	@ 96
Corn—No. 1	34	@ 35
Oats—Mixed	[illegible]	@ 34
Barley (per cental)	1 00	@ 2 10
Pork—Mess	9 75	@10 00
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Cattle—Best	5 00	@ 5 25
Fair	4 00	@ 4 75
Common	3 25	@ 4 00
Hogs	3 90	@ 4 40
Sheep	3 50	@ 5 50

AUBURN COURIER.

THEODORE REED, Editor.

MORE GRASS AND LESS GRAIN.

BY C. F. CLARKSON.

[Read before the Iowa Fine-Stock Breeders' Association.]

It is not alone to the heavens that we must look, in the majestic and unfaltering march of the planets, for lessons of the fulfillment of the laws of the material world. All about us there are physical agencies just as exacting, and the violation of which are as destructive to our interests, as chaos would be in the terrestrial world.

When a farmer violates the physical laws of vegetable growth, his feet become poison to the soil, and barrenness and desolation follow his footsteps. The richest parts of the earth, which were the gardens of the Old World, by man's perverse system of husbandry have long since become a desert. Disobedience to God's laws, whether they be moral, physical or material, are followed as inflexibly by expulsion from the garden as though it were specially enumerated in the decalogue.

It is a matter of indifference, so far as the prosperity of the Northwest is concerned, whether the 300,000,000 of surplus corn and half that amount of wheat be shipped to our Atlantic States or to Europe. It is as certainly impoverishing the country as the steppings of time. The earth is unlike the sun, which is never exhausted by giving. It is undying, undecaying, and in perennial glory fructifies and vivifies the earth, and, like its Maker, changes not.

We need not go to the Old World to illustrate the folly and wickedness of selling the cream of the earth to feed the hungry. Fifty-eight years ago I traveled through Western New York and the Western Reserve in Ohio. On the newly underdrained lands of the former State, and the virgin soil of the latter, every farmer vainly imagined he was getting rich by raising the finest wheat and exporting it at enormous cost. At that period those soils were capable of producing large crops, especially of grass, an acre of which would pasture a cow or steer. The quality of that soil has departed with the annual shipments of wheat. Long since, however, the wiser and more prudent saw the inevitable result. They immediately commenced to bring it back to its original fertility by the use of commercial fertilizers, and the prudent accumulations and use of barn-yard and green manures. And this practice has had its partial success. But the largest portion of those beautiful sections of country under unwise management are still receding in productiveness. Lately a very reliable writer and close observer, of Ohio, informs us that now it takes five acres in the Reserve to pasture a cow or a steer.

The same policy which has rendered almost barren the fairest portions of the earth in other places is as certainly being done in Iowa. Skimming the soil of Iowa of its cream by shipping away millions of bushels of unprofitable wheat, and covering our farms with 10 per cent. mortgages, have already brought our people to the door of bankruptcy.

To change our policy, it is not necessary that our farmers should rush pell mell, like a herd of frightened sheep, into dairying, or any other particular branch of agriculture. There are thousands of ways the energies of our farmers might be directed profitably.

Not one-third pasture enough is now furnished to the 4,000,000 of hogs raised annually in the State. Too much grain is fed to them in summer for either health or profit.

There is not one-tenth of the early-cut and sweetly-cured hay now fed to neat cattle that could be profitably done. Many of the idle hours in winter should be spent in manipulating and preparing such feed for stock in warm quarters. More flesh, bone, muscle and fat can be put on in this way than by feeding raw corn, with stock standing in mud or snow, exposed to the Borean blasts.

More steers should be raised and fully prepared for market on our small farms, instead of being sold in a lean and lank condition to large stock feeders. For this purpose the small farms must be radically changed and improved from their present condition. And this leads us to the main question of grass.

The popular question is, what kind of grass seed should be sown for pasture and meadow? For pasture our experience, dearly learned, is to sow all kinds and varieties you can possibly obtain. Follow the lessons taught by nature. Truly in pasture "variety is the spice of life." Abundantly larger crops can be raised, greater variety of food furnished, and diversity of grasses will almost certainly guarantee a succession of good pasture from early spring to mid-winter. As to the quantity of seed per acre, the best advice is, sow all the seed you have, and be careful that it is not spread too wide.

But the field here widens, and our limited time forbids us indulging in our favorite ideas on this subject.

Grass is King. In its direct money value, and in all its collateral and indirect benefits, it is worth more to the world than all the cereal crops combined. Its direct is nothing in comparison to its indirect value in the influence it has in preserving the fertility of our farms by its manurial wealth in all its forms. Without the modest grass which we tread under our feet, the earth would soon become a barren waste, uninhabitable for man or beast. And we are prepared to say that no man can thrive on a farm—no farm can be self-supporting—where grass is wholly neglected or advantage is not taken of stock raised on other grass farms.

It is supposed by many that only such soil as is not fit for cultivation in the cereals or roots should be devoted to grass. This is a mistake. We can afford to take our best soils for the production of this crop, and this is the real plan of bringing them up to the highest point of fertility.

It only pays to raise the best crops, and, with all the richness of our virgin soil, on our best farms we only attain to about half a crop in comparison with the farms that have been tilled for a thousand years in the Old World. And it will require only a few more decades at our present way of cultivating to render our farms equal to the mullein fields of Virginia or the Carolinas.

Our salvation from such a result depends upon the practical recognition of the old Belgian proverb: "No grass, no cattle; no cattle, no manure; no manure, no crops." A district of country like ours, which is capable of producing all the grasses, cereals and roots in prolific abundance, has within itself the elements of independence, as well as the sources of private and national wealth. It can live within itself, depending in a very limited degree upon other districts for the exchange of a few articles. On such a soil as ours the farmer has at hand the means to secure whatever he desires; or, to apply the proverb just quoted, he has corn, cattle and manure. Grass and stock husbandry, in a country prolific of corn as well as grass, is the most independent branch of man's occupation on earth. And herein consist our great advantages over any nation of the Old World.

The preservation of the fertility of our soils, and consequently the increased production of the cereals, can only be profitably secured by grass extensively. France, outside of her vineyards, is poor in comparison with England, Germany or Holland. The soil of England or Germany naturally is not equal in fertility to that of France, yet their crops are nearly double per acre to that of the latter country. In France the manure of one acre of grass has to be diffused over two and a half acres of grain, while in England one acre of grain receives the fertilizing products of three acres of grass. England adopts nature's laws in her system of husbandry, while France is robbing the earth of its fertility and starving her half-fed peasants.

An intelligent system of farming must be adopted here. By a wise and thorough plan of stock and grain husbandry, there is no more limit to the capability of these rich prairie lands, that stretch away in almost endless perspective, than there is in the atoms that exist in the atmosphere, the waters of the ocean, or the rocks of the solid earth.

We must have more grass. Not the coarse, sour, useless grass of our sloughs, but sweet, nutritious grasses—grasses that make milk, butter and cheese. Grasses which make the higher order of beef and mutton. Grasses which will develop the highest type of that noblest of animals, next to man, the horse. Grasses which will produce that animal which is worshiped more than the bird of liberty—the hog.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY.

Wall Ornaments.—An old horseshoe painted in two bright colors makes a pretty wall ornament. Red and blue a very good combination, provided it accords with the other decorations of the room. Gild the nails and fasten close to the wall.

Lemon and Orange Tincture.—Never throw away lemon or orange peel; cut the yellow outside off carefully, and put it into a tightly-corked bottle, with enough alcohol to cover it. Let it stand until the alcohol is a bright yellow, then pour it off, bottle it tight, and use it for flavoring when you make rice pudding. Add lemon and alcohol as often as you have it, and you will always have a nice flavoring.

A pretty pattern for a sofa pillow, for the benefit of ladies who dislike to try their eyes by counting stitches, may be made by taking worsted of four colors, dividing the length of the cushion into four parts and making each the base of a pyramid. Work each row in a different tint, and, when the four pyramids are done, turn the canvas and fill in the spaces either with plain pyramids in the darkest tint or with dark garnet. If the right colors be used, the effect will be something like that of a Cashmere shawl.

When hard water is used for cooking or washing, it is best to boil it for a few minutes before using it, as then the fur or sediment is thrown down on the sides of the boiler and not on the food or clothes. Hard water isn't good for making tea, as the strength of the tea leaves is very slowly extracted. The bad effects of hard water in cooking may be partly remedied by using a small quantity of carbonate of soda, or even common washing soda, which softens the water, though if much be added it gives a soapy, unpleasant taste.

To Keep Things from Moths.—Fold up your things, sprinkling a little dry camphor in between. Then sew them up in bags, made of some strong material, containing no wool whatever; linen, of course, is excellent, but common bed-ticking answers very well. The bags should be stitched very closely, best by machine, and leaving not the smallest opening anywhere. This keeps the goods perfectly safe. You need never use any other precaution, even for furs, but you must, of course, make sure that the moths have had no chance to lay their eggs in the things before they are packed.

Mince Pies.—Boil a fresh tongue; chop it very fine, after removing the skin and roots; when cold, add one pound of chopped suet, two pounds stoned raisins, two pounds currants, two pounds citron cut in fine pieces, six cloves powdered, two teaspoonfuls cinnamon, half teaspoonful mace, one pint brandy, one pint wine or cider, two pounds sugar; put this all in a stone jar and cover well; in making pies, chop some apples very fine, and to one bowl of the prepared meat take two of apples; add more sugar, according to taste, and sweet cider enough to make the pies juicy, but not thin; mix, and warm the ingredients before putting into your pie-plates; always bake with an upper and under crust, made with one cup of lard, one of butter, one of water, and four of flour.

There has been a failure of the winter rains in the North of India, and the people are apprehensive of another famine.

FARM PRODUCTS.

How They Varied in Price During the Last Half Century.

[From the Minnesota Farmer.]

The following table of the prices of farm produce for fifty-three years was compiled for the "American Almanac," and the figures are said to be very accurate. The prices given are the average prices in New York city for the month of January for each year:

YEAR.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
1825	$ .41	$1.01	$ .37½	$13.37	$ .20½
1826	.74	.90	.45½	11.75	.34
1827	.76	.98	.36	11.67½	.25
1828	.57	1.15	.34	14.12½	.35
1829	.50	1.62	.30½	11.95	.29½
1830	.54	1.04	.38	11.50	.31½
1831	[illegible]	1.25	.31½	13.87	[illegible]
1832	.75	1.36½	.50	13.50	.27½
1833	.83½	1.19	.40½	13.25	.32½
1834	.59½	1.06	.44	14.00	.30½
1835	.74	1.06	.49	13.75	.27½
1836	.90½	1.78	.46½	16.25	.28½
1837	1.05	1.77	.57	23.50	.45
1838	.86	1.92½	.42½	21.50	.50
1839	.98	1.34½	.56	25.25	.30½
1840	.59½	1.06	.32½	14.25	.30½
1841	.56	1.03	.52	13.25	.27½
1842	.67	1.25	.49	9.62½	.20
1843	.50½	.98½	.33½	8.87½	.19
1844	.48	1.00	.48	10.12½	.20½
1845	.51½	1.02½	.31½	8.30½	.22
1846	.74	1.31	.47½	15.56	.27
1847	.80	1.02½	.40½	10.25	.22
1848	.77	1.25	.50½	11.00	.20
1849	.64½	1.32½	.41	14.18	.26
1850	.61	1.25	.44½	11.81	.21
1851	.64½	1.20	.48½	12.18	.31½
1852	.70½	1.06	.47½	14.68	.21
1853	.82½	1.32	.51½	19.62	.20
1854	.88½	2.04	.49½	12.43	.20
1855	1.01	2.57	.55½	18.62	.25½
1856	.90	2.14	.46½	17.37	.24
1857	.75½	1.76	.47	10.87	.25
1858	.81	1.37	.40½	15.75	.29½
1859	.80½	1.40	.50½	17.67	.28
1860	.91½	1.45	.46½	16.18	.22
1861	.73	1.14	.38	16.12	.22
1862	.67	1.36	.40½	12.25	.47
1863	.75	1.58	.70½	14.46	.63½
1864	1.26	1.82½	.80½	19.87	.28½
1865	1.94	1.85	1.08	35.25	.56
1866	.95½	1.57½	1.20	29.12	.70
1867	1.16½	3.00	.80	19.12	.60
1868	1.20	2.45	.85	21.00	.48
1869	.90	1.70	.75	28.00	.57
1870	1.12	1.30	.78	29.75	.61
1871	.80	1.48	.75	19.75	.48
1872	.78	1.50	.54	14.50	.70
1873	.66	1.67	.48	13.25	.70
1874	.84	1.65	.77	16.50	.55
1875	.97	1.25	.65	20.50	.36
1876	.71	1.30	.52	20.75	.30
1877	.59	1.47	.55	17.50	.40

This is a good table to keep for reference. It will be seen that prices of leading farm products have not been controlled so much by war at home or abroad as by the supply. For instance, the price of wheat during the first two years of our Rebellion was less than in January, 1877. And again, during the prevalence of the Franco-German war prices were lower than last year. The maximum price, $3 per bushel, was reached nearly two years after the close of our Rebellion. A foreign demand may make an active market, but unless there is a short crop at home it seldom carries the price up very high.

Pneumonia.

Hardly any one who has a large acquaintance, or who reads obituary or death notices in the public prints, can fail to have noticed how fatal a disease pneumonia is, especially in this city. It really seems sometimes as if it caused half the deaths that occur. Each winter it appears to grow more dangerous. This season it has been very virulent, owing, probably, to sudden changes and the unusual amount of snow. Pneumonia invariably begins with a cold, to which scarcely anybody attaches any importance, and the cold is neglected until it results in the painful, and always alarming, disease. "Only a cold!" echoed the renowned Abernethy. "A cold is always to be feared. Colds have killed more men than battles have." There seems to be no way of guarding against pneumonia. One person is as subject as another to it. Rugged constitution, vigorous health, general attention to hygienic laws, have no power to prevent it. Pneumonia slays a giant as quickly as it slays a pigmy; an accomplished athlete as quickly as a puny invalid. One meets this morning a friend flushed with youth—energy. Within three or four days he is dead. Pneumonia has cut him down. Persons who care to live—and the fact that they do live shows that they care to—cannot be too watchful of the beginnings of pneumonia, which is one of the most insidious and formidable foes of human existence.—New York paper.

Humps.

There lately died in Paris a humpbacked man, who, for the previous fifty years of his life, had given his time to researches upon his humpbacked brethren. His heirs found, instead of a will, a voluminous manuscript of 2,000 pages upon humps. He was rich, and traveled in every direction for information. It was in the milder regions of Europe that he found the misfortune the most prevalent. Spain supplied the greatest number, and in a circumscribed locality at the foot of the Sierra Morena there existed one humpbacked individual to every thirteen inhabitants. They were also found very numerous in the valley of the Loire in France. The writer's conclusion was that for every thousand persons on the globe there was one humpback, or an aggregate of a million against the thousand millions of the entire earth. The last page of the manuscript contained the will of the deceased, which said nothing regarding the disposition of his property, but simply desired that a hump of marble should be raised upon his tomb with the inscription: "Here lies a humpback, who had a taste for humps, and knew more about them than any other humpback."

Substitutes for Liquor.

A curious feature of the operation of the No-License law at Norwich, Ct., is the substitution by drinkers of other stimulants in place of liquors. Perhaps the most natural substitute of all is Jamaica ginger. This extract has about double the alcoholic strength of whisky, and, as it is a medicine in constant demand, and kept by all druggists, it makes a very satisfactory substitute for the habitual old toper who is bound to get drunk on something. That it is used in this way to a considerable extent is shown from the increased sale of the drug, as well as the confession of the user. One dealer estimates his sales of Jamaica ginger since the 1st of November as fully three times as great as they were before; another sells perhaps a third more now than before that date; another has noticed but a small increase not over 5 per cent.; while a fourth estimates the calls upon him as five times as large now as they were up to Nov. 1. It is also said that the sale of paregoric has slightly increased in some cases. Boston Journal.

Excessive Brain Work.

One of the clergymen of Worcester, Mass., in the course of a sermon recently, uttered the following cautionary suggestions in regard to immoderate brain work:

"It is a lesson that we are slow to learn—one that has to be enforced by an occasional thrilling fact—that the most robust physique has its limit of exertion; that well-compacted and toughened mental fiber may succumb to undue stress at a single point. A piece of steel wire can bear only a given amount of longitudinal tension. Beyond that limit it snaps. By the annealing process of intense study or application to exacting business a man's brain gets toughened. It can bear an immense, prolonged strain, but there is an unknown terminus of your powers; exceed that point and the subtle thread of reason snaps. A ruptured capillary on the brain paralyzes that center of thought, and the stalwart, brilliant man of yesterday, full of hope, projecting grand schemes, the pillar of strength to his family, the pride of many, the possible envy of more, is to-day an enfeebled or quite broken-down victim of intemperate brain work. You might charge me with an exaggerated idea of the perils of over-exertion among business men, did not facts justify all I have suggested. Have we not seen some of the brightest stars in the cluster of enterprising citizens, of which we are justly proud, wander from their orbit of reason and pass, unless God shall disappoint our fears, into the shadow of permanent mental eclipse? The saddest feature of this phenomenon is that it seems to fall upon the highly organized, generous, sympathetic natures first. A cold-blooded, grasping Shylock, who cares little for the good name so highly prized by another, appears to be in no danger of such a calamity. Better far to confess poverty, be an honest bankrupt, than to be broken down in body or mind under too great an exertion to avoid such a calamity. With emotions of unspeakable pity for every man harassed by his unsatisfactory affairs, I turn to expostulate with the coming generation. Keep a sound mind in a sound body. Do be contented with 'things honest,' with comfortable mediocrity. Husband the stock of physical and mental life God has given you, that you may not grow prematurely old—useless before your time."

Indolence.

When young Aime Maillard was at college, the professor of rhetoric gave the class as a subject "A Eulogy of Indolence."

On the given day the compositions were handed in, and the professor, after casting his eye over the papers, remarked:

"M. Maillard, where is your essay? I don't see it among these."

"Didn't I hand it to you? I beg your pardon," said the student, and passed up a neatly-folded package of manuscript.

The professor opened it, turned over the pages, got very red, and exclaimed: "Sirrah, this is a miserable joke. This paper is blank—not a word in eulogy of indolence anywhere on it."

"Oh, I thought that the highest eulogy of indolence I could give," replied the student, "would be not to write anything."—Paris paper.

Very Rich.

He had been sitting still so long that the mother expected to find him asleep when she looked around and asked:

"Well, Harry, what are you thinking of?"

"Ma, are we very rich?" he solemnly inquired, by way of reply.

"In one way we are," she said; "your father says he values me at three million dollars, you at two millions, and the baby at one."

That closed the conversation on that subject, but next morning, as Harry was getting on his overcoat, he examined the new patch which had been added, and coolly observed:

"Well, I think father had better sell off about half of you or the whole of the baby, and get the rest of us some decent duds to put on."

A Celebrated Case.

John P. Phair will be hanged at Rutland, Vt., on April 4, the Supreme Court of Vermont having refused to grant him a new trial. Chief Justice Pierrepont read the opinion of the court, which is, in brief: The only reason produced by Phair why he should be again tried for the murder of Mrs. Fries is the impression (not oath) of W. D. Downing, of Boston, that he saw and talked with Phair on the cars between Boston and Providence at a time when, had he committed the murder, he could not have been there. Downing does not swear that Phair was the man he saw; therefore his testimony is of no weight. This ends one of the most remarkable of New England's criminal sensations, and a man is again appointed to die whom many think guiltless.

Bismarck's Pig-Sticking.

When the German law against the Socialists was first passed, it is said that Prince Bismarck burst out with, "Now, off we go for the pig-sticking!" ("Jetzt geht die Sauhatz los"). And, apparently, the chase has been tolerably active, for 187 clubs and societies, and fifty-eight periodicals, as well as 210 non-periodical publications, have been suppressed. In addition to this, sixty-two persons have been banished. The belief in Germany is that the law has been really a success, in the sense of driving Socialism out of the field.

A Mother's Devotion.

A little negro, about 2 or 3 years old, fell into Mr. J. D. Pace's well, near Hodges, and was almost miraculously delivered from death by its mother. The well was forty feet deep, and the child fell to the bottom. The mother was some fifty yards distant from the well at the time of the accident, but rushed to the rescue and descended the well, holding to the wall-rock and the piping of the pump. The child was found clinging to the pump, up to its mouth in water, and beyond the power of speech. The woman placed it in a bucket which had been lowered to her, and with this load on her head, safely climbed back to the surface again. But few such instances as this of miraculous escapes and motherly devotion ever occur, and as such it is worth recording. —Abbeville (S. C.) Medium.

LET US HAVE PEACE.

Senator Bayard's Protest Against the Passage of the Edmunds's Buncombe Resolutions.

We have in many of the States punished, and in the adjoining State of Maryland I read daily of prosecutions continuing against men, convictions followed by fine and imprisonment for violation or interference with the abridgment and denial of the right of voting. There is no pretense in these cases that there was an abridgment of the right of any colored man. In Maryland I read the review of the trials and they are for not holding polling places in convenient places, for abridging the right of voting by the inconvenient locality of the polls, and under such charges men are being sentenced and deprived of their liberty and their property. The Supreme Court of the United States in these two cases of Cruikshank and Reese have clearly and emphatically excluded any such jurisdiction. They have declared that the United States had no class of voters of their own creation, that they never made a voter, that they never bestowed the right of suffrage, that they have no control over it, but that there was simply the inhibition of a State or of the United States to abridge or deny the right of suffrage by reason of one of three particular causes—the race, the color or the previous condition of servitude of the party concerned. For any abridgment for any and all causes except those three are no more within the power of the Federal Government by legislation to prevent or direct than they are to decide in any question between two citizens of the same State in regard to any matter of their private and local contracts. This is the language of the Supreme Court of the United States. This is their decision, made, I believe, almost unanimously in the two cases to which I have referred. Yet we are asked by these resolutions to continue the enactment of general laws "of the character already passed" for that purpose. I am as clear as I ever was of a proposition in my life that the oath I have taken to support the constitution would compel me to vote against such a proposition as that.

Therefore, the whole object of these resolutions is to procure from the senate an approval of this class of unconstitutional legislation, against which, at the time of its enactment on this floor, I struggled in vain, and to extend this usurping and fatal attempt at the centralization of all police powers of the States in the hands of the Congress of the United States.

Mr. President, this is nothing but the overthrow of our inherited system of government. Such a construction cannot be accepted; it would be utterly fatal to freedom and local self-government. There is no necessity for such a construction. All over this land, and I challenge the denial, there is no law in any State in conflict with these amendments. All over this land there is acquiescence in their provisions; all over this land there is obedience. The language, as Justice Miller says, which prohibits a State from passing a law which violates the obligation of a contract and gives the Congress of the United States power to pass laws to make that effective, is just as full as that which prohibits a State from abridging the privileges and immunities of citizens. It is just as reasonable to find power to penalize by fine and imprisonment a citizen in a State who fails to pay his promissory note as it is to punish by fine and imprisonment the man who interferes with another's right to vote at an election.

The inhibitory language of the constitution is the same and as full in the one case as in the other. No State shall pass a law violating the obligation of a contract. The State shall not pass a law discriminating in favor of one race or the other. Both are addressed to States as States. A law passed by a State in violation of that provision is null and void. By writ of error it can come either before the State court, or that failing in its duty it can be transferred to the Supreme Court of the United States. Every decision which involves the interpretation of the constitution of the United States, every decision which is in alleged conflict with any provision of the constitution of the United States, is subject to review by the Supreme Court of the United States.

The guarantee is full and the protection by the judicial branch is complete. No law can be sustained that gives to a man of one race or color a right withheld from his fellow-citizen of a different race or color. Any law so pretending must meet with speedy overthrow at the hands of the judicial branch.

These amendments have brought more and more fully into recognition and force the great object of our Government, which was to secure to all men the great equality, the equality of opportunity. But it was not intended that individual or class differences, weaknesses, or imperfections, on one side, or the extraordinary powers on the other, should be all leveled down by force of statutes, and that we should be forever vainly enacting laws to destroy all the natural inequalities with which God has marked his creations. These amendments do give equality of opportunity. Any law that attempts to do more will prove futile and mischievous, nor can it be executed, and it is vain in the exigency of party, in the exigency of a false and sentimental philanthropy, to be attempting to do more than this. All men are equal before the law. Every day of our lives we see instances—where from ignorance or poverty or imbecility men fail to obtain their legal rights—and no general statutes can prevent this. A thousand reasons prevent it, and all that we may do is to say that when the law does speak it shall speak with the same voice to all alike, and be administered equally and freely to all.

I believe that I can see in these resolutions and in others of a similar tenor a desire to renew doubt, suspicion, and distrust in one party and one section of our country against the other. Sir, we have had too much of that already. I believe that all the difficulties that have arisen in our land, that have darkened our houses with mourning, and spread their baleful shadow over the face of our country, have chiefly come from the fact that our countrymen were ignorant of each other; it was the want of proper mutual understanding, it was the want of proper confidence that bred strife and confusion. If this spirit of renewed confusion is to be invoked, if the exigencies of party shall still call upon men to raise the standard of strife and distrust among their countrymen, whatever may be the result, I shall be found on the other side invoking the methods of peace and good will and not those of war, invoking generous confidence and kind feeling and not suspicion and hostility, asking our countrymen to dwell not upon their mutual faults but upon their mutual virtues, of which every day and every hour we can witness happy illustrations if we do but seek to realize and comprehend them.

This country to-day needs peace and rest, recuperation from the losses of war and from the unwisdom of angry legislation. The man serves his country best who seeks to avoid confusion and strife, who seeks to disarm suspicion and to recreate confidence; and, if this is to be the issue that this hateful, dangerous geographical line of sentiment and action is sought to be established, I, for one, will not accept it; I will be of no party, I will aid in no legislation that shall not recognize the right of each man in all parts of this country and their duty to do that which no legislation can enforce, I mean the great duty of the creation of a spirit of nationality among the inhabitants of this broad land. How can that be created if men are to be permitted to stand on this floor and elsewhere and denounce with railing accusations, and unmeasured assaults whole sections and States of a Union and hold them up to scorn, to opprobrium, to detestation? Mr. President, there must be, and please heaven there shall be yet the unwritten law that will visit with popular execration and denunciation the man who seeks to establish the domination of a party at the cost of the peace and security and welfare of the entire American people.

A health article in a contemporary is entitled "How to recuperate." After a slaving good time, probably. Hoop-la!

INDIANA LEGISLATURE.

Thursday, Feb. 6.—Senate.—The joint resolution that each house vote for one President of the Board of Benevolent Institutions and two Trustees each for the Blind and Deaf and Dumb institutes, and two Commissioners for the Insane Asylum, was considered. Mr. Grubbs moved to amend by electing one Trustee for each of these institutions, and not to elect a President of the Board. It was finally made the special order for next Thursday.... Indiana Congressmen were again instructed to vote for the Inter-State Commerce bill.... The afternoon session was taken up in considering the Interest bill. The first section, as adopted, fixes the rate at 6 per cent., with the privilege of contracting for 8. Section 2, as adopted, fixes the rate of interest on judgments the same as expressed in the contract, and in other cases at 6 per cent. Before finishing the consideration of the bill the Senate adjourned.

House.—The morning session was taken up on a bill in relation to an election to ratify the constitutional amendments. The bill was so amended as to fix the time of holding that election on the 4th of March, and then the bill was recommitted to the Judiciary Committee, with instructions to revise and report to-morrow.... A number of bills were read a second time and referred to committees, and several legalizing bills were passed.... The committee to investigate into the manner of selecting plans for a new State House and the charges against the Commissioners were given power to employ a stenographer.

Friday, Feb. 7.—Senate.—The bill abolishing the offices of City Assessor and Town Treasurer, and providing for the election of Town Marshal, was ordered engrossed as it came from the committee.... Mr. J. T. Campbell tendered his road system to the State for $150.... Then Senate then took up the Interest bill and made a few unimportant amendments to it and passed it.... The bill making it a felony to rob a grave, and relating to dissection, was ordered engrossed.... The Auditor of State was ordered to furnish the Finance Committee a list of all claims filed by special judges which have not been paid.... Several unimportant bills were introduced.

House.—The bill fixing the first Tuesday of March as the date for a special election upon the amendments failed to pass.... The balance of the day was passed in discussion of the Apportionment bill, which was the special order for this time. The bill was ordered engrossed.

Saturday, Feb. 8.—Senate.—There was no quorum in the Senate, and no business was done.

House.—Bills introduced: To revise the law in relation to the Illinois and Michigan canal, authorizing the State to sell the canal lands; to amend the act in regard to practice in courts of record; to amend an act for the assessment of property and for the levy and collection of taxes.... A number of committee reports were made and acted upon, after which the Committees on State Institutions, Public Buildings and State Charities asked and obtained leave of absence, notwithstanding the opposition of several members.... Mr. Wentworth introduced the General Levy bill for 1879 and 1880. The bill authorizes to be raised a much less sum than heretofore. The amount for 1879 is $1,300,000 and for 1880 it is $1,500,000. The amount raised for 1877 was $2,000,000, and for 1878 it was $1,500,000.

Monday, Feb. 10.—Senate.—The Senate did not meet until 2 p. m., and then proceeded with the consideration of the special order, the drainage bill. After discussion, the bill was again made a special order and its further consideration set down for next Monday, and the Senate adjourned without transacting any other business.

House.—The House was in session this morning, and bills were introduced: Providing that voters at the general election in 1880 shall vote yes or no on the proposition to call a Constitutional Convention, and if a majority be in favor then it shall be called, and delegates shall be elected to such convention; regulating fees and salaries of State officers; regulating sale of lands forfeited to the school fund; to secure to colored children the same school privileges as white; providing for organization of agricultural societies; limiting fines for contempt to $500, and a number of others of little importance.... The remainder of the session was taken up in reading bills a second time.... This body was only in session a few minutes in the afternoon, no quorum being present.

Tuesday, Feb. 11.—Senate.—The Senate settled down to business and disposed of fourteen bills which were up on second reading. Of these four were passed to a third reading.... A resolution was laid on the table authorizing an investigation into the charges made by the Indianapolis Journal, against D. D. Dale, principal Secretary of the Senate.... The remainder of the session was taken up in discussing a motion to indefinitely postpone an act providing for voluntary assignments.

House.—The morning session of the House was taken up in receiving committee reports and acting on them. Among the most important ordered to a third reading are the following: Requiring County Commissioners to appoint inspectors of elections from the party having a majority in the precinct; making it unlawful to insert a provision for attorney's fees; forfeiting rights of a foreign corporation as a punishment for removing cases to the Federal courts.... The Committee on Election reported unanimously in favor of Robert W. Meirs, the sitting member from Monroe county, holding that the office of Prosecuting Attorney, which he held at the time of his election, is not a judicial office, and therefore did not disqualify him from being elected to the Legislature.... Mr. Gordon introduced a bill regulating the boarding of prisoners by the Sheriffs in counties of 30,000. They are allowed 50 cents a day for each prisoner, and in smaller counties 40 cents.... During the day thirty bills were passed to a third reading.

Wednesday, Feb. 12.—Senate.—Bills passed: Legalizing the acknowledgement of certain instruments, where the commission of the notary taking the same has expired; defining the crime of grave-robbing, and prescribing the punishment therefor; providing subjects for anatomical dissection; permitting either party to a civil suit to render instructions before argument, and if the court agrees to give the same then the party may read them to the jury as the law of the case; allowing but one change of venue in preliminary examinations; making Jefferson and Switzerland counties the Fifth judicial circuit; permitting cities and towns to abolish the office of City Assessor; abolishing the office of Town Treasurer, and providing for the election of Town Marshal.... Bills introduced: To admit incurably insane persons into the asylum; amending the Railroad Aid law; to create a board to audit claims between the State and counties growing out of the late war; to create a State Board of Charities.

House.—The following bills were reported favorably on: Creating a Bureau of Statistics; amending the School law; to enable Boards of Trustees of cities of 3,000 or more inhabitants to establish a school for special paupers; to encourage the growing of forest trees, and to prevent the sale of adulterated fertilizers; to permit the arrest of boys who should be in school, but are staying away.... The claim of Benton county for prosecuting the murderer of Wm. S. Morgan, in 1865, was indefinitely postponed.... Mr. Compton's Mining bill, and the bill repealing the Railroad Aid law, were passed.... Delayed statements of expenditures of benevolent institutions for the past two years were received.... Bills were ordered engrossed: Making householders competent grand jurors, supervisors and witnesses when trespassing animals are taken up; reducing salaries of Circuit Judges to $1,500 per year.

Froth.

In all cities there are three grades of people, the substratum, the substance, and the froth. The substratum are the vicious poor who hide in dark alleys. The substance are the mechanical and commercial industries. And on top of these floats the worthless, fashionable froth.—Des Moines Register.

Tom Moore's birthplace is now a candy shop.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, FEB. 20, 1879

THEODORE REED, Editor.

A Son of a Prophet.

The following letter to the New York Sun may be of some interest to those who expect to figure in politics within the next 300 years. The only thing necessary to make the prophecy read well, is the name of Gen'l. Grant, which the prophet should have introduced along about the time of the civil war in 1885.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE SUN, Sir:—In 1880 the National Greenbackers will poll more votes than any other party, but will be cheated out of their officers. In 1888 there will be a great change in the Government of the United States—probably the disfranchisement of a part of the people. About 1885 there will be civil war. One-third of all the property in this country and thousands of lives will be lost. Anarchy will rule three (3) years. In 1893 the West and South will seperate from the Eastern States and become an independent nation. California and all west of the summits of the Rocky mountains will remain with the Eastern States one (1) year and eight (8) months afterward. Then it will become an independent nation. In 1897 the Pope of Rome will visit this country. Catholicism will then have power over all the States east of the Rocky mountains, and continue in power three hundred (300) years. In 1907 Canada will be free, and four (4) years afterward will unite with the Eastern and Western states, except a small state in the extreme east of Canada. In 1954 Central Canada, New York, Vermont, New Hampshire, and Maine will be united under one government. Now look forward three hundred (800) years and a dark pall has fallen over our nation, and the people are fast going backward into barbarism.

E. M. BULLARD.

WALKER, Mich., Feb. 9.

Senator Christiancy.

The Chicago Times Says: "Senator Christiancy was born in New York, and is of a Gipsy parentage and stock. His real name is said to be Yancey and his given name Christopher. When he went west, which was 45 years ago, in order to take a new departure, he abbreviated both of his names and joined them together under the style of Christiancy. The selection of Isaac as a handle to the newly manufactured surname was probably out of respect for Isaac's rescue form the appointed sacrifice."

The Senator has recently been appointed minister to Peru for the benefit of his health, when he went to Washington as U. S. Senator from Michigan he was a robust old widower, but he soon became smitten with a Treasury girl of twenty summers and made her his wife, his health began to fail at once, the new wife kicked up a row in the old gentlemans family. Zach Chandler being a sympathetic old cuss, laid the Senators case before his "Frandulency" and asked that the Senator might be sent to a "warmer climate." The appointment was made, Christiancy returned to Michigan, old Zach found a purchaser for the Senators home property at $11,000, which could have been bought for $4,000, some time ago. Christiancy accepted the appointment, sent in his resignation as Senator, and Zach Chandler was appointed to fill the vacancy. It is said that "it takes two to make a bargain," but in this case it required three—Hayes, Christiancy and Chandler, the latter proved to be the sharpest trader and walked away with the prize.

As a sample of republicanism we refer our readers to Secor Robeson, Grants secretary of the Navy. Of all the men that have from the foundation of the Government until the present hour made it their business to prey upon the Government and rob the Treasury, he appears to be the worst.

It is within the recollection of men now living that a public officer who was a defaulter to the amount of $50,000 or $100,000 lost caste at once, and if he could escape the penitentiary, was glad to sink into oblivion but here is a man who is proved to have destroyed the United States Navy during his term of office, and robbed the Treasury of millions of dollars while so doing, who by means of his ill-gotten wealth has secured an election to Congress from the district in New Jersey where he resides, and will claim a seat in the House of Representatives of the Forty-sixth Congress.

It is sincerely to be hoped that before that Congress assembles there will be found virtue enough in the Administration to turn him over to the courts, which can hardly fail, in view of all the facts of his career to visit upon him the severest penalties of the laws which he has so flagrantly violated.

About one thousand bills have been introduced in our state legislature, but few have been disposed of. The people do not want as much legislation as the number of bills would indicate, but they would like that which is necessary, to receive some attention as soon as possible.

Senator Bruce was called to preside over the United States Senate for a short time last Friday. He is the first colored man that ever filled that position.

That School No. 4.

BY C. H. THURSTIN.

Mr. Lowe in his second communication to the COURIER pleads in behalf of the parents of the district, and says that "between Mr. Thurstin and the larger scholars there exists an antipathy, and for this reason they quietly met in the school house and petitioned the trustee to not hire him, etc." In reply, I have to say that I did not know before this that a single scholar in the district had an unkind feeling toward me, unless it was Mr. Lowe's own children, and he being father-in-law to Sam. Noragan, it would be a little bit natural for them all to hang together, and the more so, as Sam. and Cal. Noragan, although they have no children to send, both live in No. 4, and adjoining Mr. Lowe's farm. So I think when Mr. Lowe is pleading so pathetically for the parents, he simply means Mr. Lowe. The next evening after I had contracted for the school I passed by Mr. Lowe's house, when he came out and we walked along together as far as we went on the same road, talking about crops and other everyday affairs, and I afterward ascertained that at this time he had just started on his errand of agitation. It is the current belief in this vicinity that Mr. Lowe is the moving spirit of the whole difficulty. The reason for this belief will hereafter more fully appear. But it may be asked by the reader, how he was able to unite the greater part of the district in an effort to keep me out of the school. The explanation is this: There is another well to do farmer living in the district by the name of Elias Kepler. Mr. Kepler has a daughter to whom a son of Mr. Lowe's is paying his addresses, and this is the next thing to a relationship existing between Mr. Kepler and Mr. Lowe. So these two men could lay their heads together, and by representing to the others that (as Mr. Lowe complained of in his first communication) "the trustee had been guilty of assuming arbitrary power and taking away their chosen teacher and placing another in his stead without their consent," and all they would have to do would be to call a school meeting and send a petition to the trustee stating that they were not satisfied with the change and all would be well. Mr. Lowe had hard work to induce Mr. Samuel Haverstock to attend the meeting, but he finally got him drawn in. This formed a nucleus around which others gathered. They met in school meeting, and this august body proceeded to consider the best worded petition they could devise, and at length hit upon the following delightful composition. "We, the undersigned, are dissatisfied with C. H. Thurstin to teach our school," and all of Mr. Lowe's converts signed their names. Mr. Lowe also entertained the assembly by arguing that we have no need of a County Superintendent, and the money paid him could be used to keep up a longer term of school each year, and that each district could manage its own school affairs. I presume Mr. Lowe thinks there is some chance for him to become shool director on the greenback ticket and he would like to have his sphere of usefulness widened. Mr. Kepler also averred that he "would show Old Barns and the useless stick of a trustee that they had not all the say, and that No. 4 was able to take care of its own school matters." They also agreed that if the petition failed to produce the desired effect they would not send their children to school for the first week, and as the former trustees, Mr. Sewell and Mr. Ash had hired teachers with the provision in their contract that if at any time the average attendance for a week fell below ten the school should be discontinued, of course the requirement must be law, and if they did not send to school the school would have to stop; as it would never do to have the public money squandered. After the trustee had received their petition he came to me and wished to know if I would not take the school in his district as it would perhaps be pleasanter for me than at No. 4. I told him that it was too far for me to go, and I could not do so. The time set for school to commence arrived, and only ten scholars came. The director (James Rohrbaugh) had said that his children could not come the first week as their clothes were not ready; but would probably come after the first week. So I continued the first week, thinking that after that more would come. But it came to my ears that the Noragans were boasting that that week would end it. But it didn't. Believing there was a balm in Gilead somewhere if they could only find it, the ringleaders of the disaffected ones began to worm around for something else, and Mr. Lowe says "they called a school meeting and preferred charges hoping to get him dismissed." It was a query in my mind at this time what had happened at the school house, for it looked as if fifteen or twenty tramps had roosted there over night, but Mr. Lowe has unwittingly answered this query. The charges that Mr. Lowe says they preferred were in substance the following: To the trustee we, the undersigned, pray you that C. H. Thurstin be dismissed from the school at No. 4, because it has been rumored that he has been guilty of immoral conduct in obtaining names to a petition presented to you for the school at No. 5." This paper Mr. Lowe's son-in-law (Sam. Noragan) carried in high spirits to the trustee; but his feathers fell when the trustee told him that he had nothing to do with their rumors and would not commence suit. It seems that they did not wish to tell a greater whopper than was necessary to get me out, so they mildly put it rumored, etc. But this was not large enough to fill the bill and shortly afterward Cal. Noragan, Lowe's other neighbor, carried another love letter to the trustee which read as follows: "We charge C. H. Thurstin with immoral conduct in getting names to a petition presented to you for school No. 5. This so called petition for the school at No. 5 is the memorandum mentioned in my last article. It will be seen that in their last paper they left out their prayer for dismissal. But the trustee evidently took the intent for the deed and opened fire. He sent a notice to each one who had signed the charge, requiring them to meet at No. 5 (the Center) at 2 o'clock, p. m., on Dec. 14, and also notified me to meet him at that time and place and answer charges. In my next article I will give an account of the trial, proceedings and subsequent events.

[to be concluded.]

Indiana Patents

List of patents issued to citizens of the State of Indiana, February, 11 1879, and each bearing date February 11th, 1879. Furnished this paper by C. Bradford, Solicitor of patents, 18 Hubbard Block, Indianapolis, Ind.

To Price H. Fellows, of Kokomo, for Improvement in Pruning Implements.

To S. W. Kershner, of Indianapolis, for Improvement in Water Elevator Buckets.

To George Kelly, of Chicago, for Improvement in Steam Boiler and Pipe Covering.

A Remarkable Result.

It makes no difference how many physicians, or how much medicine you have tried; it is now an established fact that German Syrup is the only remedy which has given complete satisfaction in severe cases of lung disease. It is true there are yet thousands of persons who are predisposed to throat and lung affections, consumption, hemorrhages, asthma, severe colds settled on the breast, pneumonia, whooping cough, &c., who have no personal knowledge of Boschee's German Syrup. To such we would say that 50,000 dozen were sold last year without one complaint. Consumptives, try just one bottle. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by Wm. McIntyre & Son.

—Mr. C. C. Boyer, the Waterloo Phrenologist, is giving a series of lectures at Green's Corners, near Sedan, this week.

Attachment Notice.

Before Jacob Walborn J. P., of Union township, DeKalb county, Indiana.

William L. Penfield,
Charles Emanuel,
vs.
Albert C. Dawson

WHEREAS, the plaintiffs in the above entitled cause have filed with me their affidavit and bond in attachment, and a summons having been issued and returned not found and a writ of attachment having also been issued thereon, and the plaintiffs having also filed their affidavit in garnishment, and a summons issued thereon, and by virtue of said writ, property, moneys and effects having been attached of said defendant and it also appears that said defendant is a non-resident of the state of Indiana

Therefore the said defendant and all persons interested are hereby notified that said case is set for trial on the 12th day of April, A. D. 1879, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon before me, the undersigned, at my office, in the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

JACOB WALBORN,
Justice of the Peace. [SEAL.]

February 19th, 1879. 8-4w

Administrator's Sale of Real Estate.

NOTICE is hereby given that by virtue of an order of the Circuit Court of DeKalb county, in the state of Indiana, the undersigned administrator of the estate of Enos Weaver, deceased, will offer for sale at auction on the premises, on the following real estate;

SATURDAY the 15th day of MARCH, 1879,

Town lots number eighty-five (85) and one hundred and forty-eight (148), in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county Indiana. Also the north half of the north-east quarter of section thirty (30), in township thirty-four (34), north, range thirteen (13), east, in DeKalb county, Indiana; except a piece out of said tract of land heretofore set off to the widow of said decedent and bounded as follows: Commencing at the south-east corner of said tract of land and running thence west one hundred and twenty-one and two-fifths [121 2-5] rods, thence north twenty [20] rods, thence east to the east boundary line of said tract, thence south to the place of beginning, said piece excepted containing fifteen and two-fifths [15 2-5] acres.

TERMS OF SALE:—One-third cash, the residue in equal payments at twelve and eighteen months, with notes at interest, waiving benefit of appraisement laws, and secured by mortgage on said premises.

8-4w WILLIAM LESSIG, Adm'r.

February 19th, 1879.

TUTT'S PILLS!

A NOTED DIVINE SAYS THEY ARE WORTH THEIR WEIGHT in GOLD

READ WHAT HE SAYS:

DR. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended to me; I used them (but with little faith). I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and I have gained forty pounds solid flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

REV. R. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

A TORPID LIVER

is the fruitful source of many diseases, such as Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Dysentery, Billious Fever, Ague and Fever, Jaundice, Piles, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint, Colic, etc.

Tutt's Pills exert a powerful influence on the Liver, and will with certainty relieve that important organ from disease, and restore its normal functions.

The rapidity with which persons take on flesh, while under the influence of these pills, of itself indicates their adaptability to nourish the body, hence their efficacy in curing nervous debility, dyspepsia, wasting of the muscles, sluggishness of the liver, chronic constipation, and imparting health and strength to the system.

CONSTIPATION.

Only with regularity of the bowels can perfect health be enjoyed. When the constipation is of recent date, a single dose of TUTT'S PILLS will suffice, but if it has become habitual, one pill should be taken every night, gradually lessening the frequency of the dose until a regular daily movement is obtained, which will soon follow.

Sold Everywhere, 25 Cents.

OFFICE, 35 MURRAY ST., NEW YORK.

METROPOLITAN RESTAURANT AND Confectionery Establishment

The best brands of oysters always on hand in season, and served to suit customers. Warm meals served at all hours. Day boarders taken at low rates. Fancy candies and fine cigars made specialties.

42-6m. SHERMAN HOLLISTER, Prop.

HIGHEST REWARD

Cheap Homes in Michigan,

$5 to $10 per Acre.

STRONG SOILS! SURE CROPS!

Railroad through Centre of Lands.

HEALTHY CLIMATE! SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES! INTELLIGENT POPULATION!

These lands are a long distance EAST of the Mississippi River. Large amount saved in travel and transportation of crops.

Descriptive pamphlet in English and German.

Address, W. O. HUGHART, Commissioner, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

To Township Trustees and School Boards.

We keep in stock a full line of copyrighted Records and Blanks for the use of Trustees, School Directors and road Supervisors, which we offer at low figures. We have the most complete system ever introduced in the state. For simplicity our Records excel all others. Call and examine the goods.

Improved and Unimproved

FARMS and CITY PROPERTY

—IN—

MONTGOMERY, LABETTE

—AND—

Chautauqua Counties.

Cultivated farms in this vicinity, with plenty of good water, convenient to coal and timber, and with

Church, School and Railroad

Advantages can be purchased at as low prices, per acre, as wild lands two or three hundred miles farther west, and far beyond our Coal and Timber districts. This is acknowledged to be one of the most

Extensive Farming Districts

in Kansas. We can consistently advise seekers of homes in the west, to examine our locality before purchasing elsewhere. Business houses, dwellings, and a large number of lots in the city of Coffeyville, at the terminus of the L. L. & G. R. R., either for cash, exchange, or on liberal credit.

We guarantee a good title to all lands sold by us. So if you want to buy, sell or exchange real estate, call on or address, (inclosing stamp or return postage),

J. McCREARY & CO.,
Real Estate Agt's. Coffeyville, Kan.
or, THOS. H. SPROTT, Auburn, Ind

34-1y.

COMPETITION

Is the life of trade; therefore

Henry Gugerli!

Has opened a new Merchant Tailor establishment, in which he makes a specialty of

Ladies' Cloakings!

Which will be cut and fit, and made up if desired. For Gents' wear a

FULL LINE OF PIECE GOODS!

Always in stock to select from, at

Five to Ten Dollars

a suit less than the same goods can be bought for elsewhere. A full suit made to order, in the latest style, ready to put on, in

24 Hours Notice!

Remember that all work is done in the latest style, and satisfaction is guaranteed in every particular. 42-6m.

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SETS

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry neatly repaired on short notice.

FRUIT HOUSE BULLETIN

Great Reduction in Goods.

Syrups and Molasses all down ten cents per gallon.
Coffees reduced another two cents per pound.
Leghorn Citron down fifteen cents per pound.
Zantee Currents down five cents per pound.
Best Teas reduced 10 cents per pound.
Candies down three cents per pound.
Sugars all down one cent per pound.
Raisins down three cents per pound.

ALL REDUCED 10 and 20 per cent

Rio Coffee.

The very best, 15 cents per pound. Second grade, 11 cents per lb. Roasted coffee, 15 cts., best 20 cts. per lb.

Teas! Teas!

At no time in the history of the trade have Teas been so low. Another decline of 10c. per lb. brings the best of Teas within the reach of all. We now sell a good Tea for 20c. A choice extra drawing Tea for 40 and 50c, and the best Tea in the market for 70c. Young Hyson, 20, 40, best 70c., Imperial 40, best 70c., Oolong 20, 40, best 70c., Uncolored Jpa n 20, 40. best 60c., Gunpowder, etra choice, 40, best 50 and 70c. per pound

Sugars Down 1c.

Coffee A Sugar 8c, Extra C 7 c, Yellow 6c, Grushed, Powdered and Granulated 9 cents.

Raisins, Currents, Citron, Lemon and Orange Peel,

Down 3 to 10c. per lb., best Valencia Raisins 8c., choice Zantee Currants 6c., best Leghorn Citron 15c, Lemon and Orange Peel 20c., Sicily shelled Almons 40c., Brazil Nuts 10c., Filberts 12c., Texas Peacans 10c

Toy Candies of all Descriptions.

Apples, Pears, Plums, Apricots, and the finest Candies at 25c per lb. Last year they were sold at 40c. Choice French mixed candy 15c, and the best stick candy 12½c. 3ct. reduction on candy.

Tobaccos.

Good plug 40c., best 50c. Twin Brothers 65c. Smoking 30c., best 35c. Golden Shorts, finest goods 35c. Uncle Ned, Fancy Turkish 45c.

Fish Oil and Neat's Foot Oil Down 15 cents per Gallon.

Best Fish Oil 70c, and Neat's Foot Oil 70c; Machine Oil 20c, best 40c, Coal Oil 12½c, Head Light 18c

CIGARS—In ½ boxes, full boxes and one-fourth boxes, extra choice Cigars $1.25 per 100; good Havanas $2, best $3 per 100

Fresh Oysters.

12c. per can. Select Frying 17c and 2c8 per can. Cove Oysters 5c ents per can.

We are doing a rushing trade, continually increasing, and we guarantee our customers a saving of at least 20c. on the dollar at the

FORT WAYNE FRUIT HOUSE.

Family Groceries!

LANNING'S PRICE LIST.

TEAS! TEAS!

Young Hyson..........60c very best 70c
Imperial.......... " " 65c
Japan.......... " " 60c
Oolong.......... " " 50c
Gun Powder.......... " " 40c

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Arbuckels' [Roasted]..........23c per lb.
Rio..........15c very best 18c " "

SUGARS! SUGARS!

White..........10½ pounds for one dollar
Extra C..........12 " " "
Grocers C..........14 " " "

White Beans per lb. 3½c., Dried Peaches per lb. 6c., Hominy per lb. 3c., Cranberries per qt. 8c., Dried Sweet Corn 13 lbs. for $1.00, Oat Meal 7 lbs. for 25c., cucumber Pickles per doz. 8c. Besides a complete stock of Confectioneries, Canned Fruits, Soaps, Notions, Flour, Butter, Eggs, Syrups, &c., &c.

Goods delivered at all times.

Geo. L. Lanning.

Davenport the Druggist.

Pure Drugs and Medicines,
Choice Soaps and Perfumery,
Excellant Combs and Brushes,
Fine Hair Oils and Pomades

ALL SOLD AND WARRANTED BY

DAVENPORT THE DRUGGIST

Also a splendid stock of Stationery Goods, such as

Wall Paper, Window Shades, Pocket Books,
School Books, Blank Books, Pens. Pencils,
Inks, Mucilage, Stationery, Gold Pens, etc.

All to be sold at the lowest prices by.

Davenport the Druggist, Auburn, Ind.

8-31 1 yr.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous

—West's pills cure liver complaint.

—Prospects are good for more sleighing.

—John Faegler is the happy father of a "bouncing baby boy."

—Court convenes next Monday with Judge Tousley presiding.

—Immense quantities of stave and heading bolts coming to market.

—Buy Kings' combination spectacles sold only by Abright the jeweler.

—Elzy Shaffer returned home Monday from extended visit to Bluffton.

—Mrs E. C. Emanuel, of Antwerp, Ohio, was in the city, Tuesday visiting friends.

—The boot up-side down is offering better inducements than ever. See page 8.

—Notice the new sign of the Michigan Stove Co., in front of Kiblinger's hardware store.

—Mr. Ed. Baker was called to Fremont, Ohio, last week to attend the funeral of his brother

—Abright the jeweler has just received a fine assortment of clocks which he is selling at greatly reduced prices.

—Hon. S. S. Shutt came home last Saturday and remained over Sunday, looking after the welfare of his sick folks.

—A number of our citizens attended the Knight Templer entertainment at Ft. Wayne last week, and report a grand time.

—QUERY: "Why will men smoke common tobacco, when they can buy Marburg Bros, "Seal of North Carolina" the same price.

—Babcock, the inventor of apparatus for the extinguisment of fires, is now a drunken outcast at Oakland, California. A few years ago he was wealthy.

—The large stock of winter clothing at Schaab, Beuguot & Co's. is being closed out at cost to make room for the spring stock. Now is the time for bargains.

—The Fort Wayne Sentinel gets its item credits badly mixed sometimes. Our mention of Mayor Zollinger last week was credited to the Kendalville News.

—Hon. S. S. Shutt is the happy father of a bouncing boy baby, born Saturday February 15th. Mr Shutt just arrived at home from Indianapolis in time for the event.

—Mr. M. Boland and Mr. D. D. Snyder were both in Toledo the latter part of last week, the former to see his father who is in poor health, and the latter on business.

—The mite social of the M. E. church will be entertained by Mrs. John McCune on next Wednesday evening. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

MRS. A. ROBBINS, Sec'y.

—The bachelors and widows are just a little indignant. If the 'Daily' persists in such personalities they will "stop their paper and withdraw their support." Be careful Harry.

—We are glad to know that our worthy representative, Hon. S. S. Shutt is using his utmost endeavors in the legislature to reduce the legal rate of interest to six (6) per cent.

—Adams county, in this state, is the home of Elisha Gulick, a Baptist minister, who is in the 95th year of his age, he preached his last sermon about eighteen months ago, so says the Union.

—Haverly's Minstrels in Fort Wayne next Monday and Tuesday evenings. The troupe consists of Forty first-class performers. Those who enjoy a good hearty laugh should not fail to see them.

—Why will you buy inferior spectacles of peddlers when by consulting Abright the Jeweler, you can get a perfect fit at one half the price you will pay peddlers. He will sell you peddlers' spectacles at 25c per pair.

—FOR SALE.—One third interest in the Orangeville Grist Mill. Will take eastern or western land as part pay. For particulars enquire at Mill or address Rob't Sands. Newville, Ind. This is a bargain for some one. 7-2w-

—Hartford Journal.—The Elmira Gazette recently published an article headed "An afternoon in the poorhouse." Even an editor gets homesick sometimes, and likes to visit his home, if he can't stay longer than half a day.

—A. C. Smith, successor of J. E. Shilling has a good assortment of heavy and light harness. Also a fine line of good saddles, and a large assortment of whips. Which he is selling at bottom prices. Don't fail to call if you want anything in his line. 7-2w

—Money to loan on improved farms. Time, five years—loan can be paid at any time—interest 9 per cent., payable at the end of the year; no advance interest. Will loan in sums of $300 and upwards. Reasonable commissions. For full particulars call on John L. Davis, Auburn, Ind. 5-4w.

—Down in Harrison county, in this state, a vigilant committee waited upon a worthless fellow last week, took him out of his house, tied him to a wagon and gave him fifty or sixty lashes with hickory switches, for abuse and neglect of his family. Another man was also whipped for being drunk.

Two More Victims.

Notwithstanding the warnings of the COURIER and other county newspapers, against having anything to do with the traveling thieves and swindlers now canvassing the country in search of victims, there still appears to be those among us who either do not take the papers, or cannot read. Last week Mr. Uriah Thomas and Mr. Daniel Shaffer, living east of Auburn, were "taken in" to the tune of $750.00 each. The following are the particulars in Mr. Shaffer's case as near as we could ascertain them. Two men called upon him at his farm, representing (as they said) the firm of Sinker, Davis & Co., of Indianapolis. They showed him a sample hay-fork for which they desired him to take the agency, the forks to be sent to the express office at Auburn, and to be delivered to him as he needed them. He was to sell the machines at the price they named and retain the money until they came to make settlement with him, when he was to have one-half of the proceeds as his commission. In order to have something to show the firm for which they were acting as agents, they said that it was necessary that he should sign an article of agreement as agent, simply as a memorandum, which they read to him. Mr Shaffer being an old man spoke of going to the house for his glasses, when they told him it was unnecessary as all he had to do was to sign his name. They were evidently afraid to have him go to the house for fear that the old lady might spoil the trade. After the papers were signed, the agents handed Mr. Shaffer three papers, one showing where the machines are made, who by, etc., another authorizing Shaffer to act as agent, the third being a copy of a note made payable to Shaffer's order at the First National Bank of Auburn. Mr. Shaffer says that he knows nothing about the transaction after he proposed going to the house for his glasses, don't even know how many papers he signed, and thinks that he must have been under the influence of the agents in some way. When the parties approached Mr. Thomas they found him to be a different man, he refused to "bite" at the agency dodge and they adopted a somewhat different mode of operation.

They found him in his barn, and said to him (after he refused to act as agent) that he was well fixed, had a good farm, was an influential farmer, and that they would like to have the privilege of putting up a fork for the inspection of his neighbors, it should cost him nothing, and that he should invite his neighbors in to see the fork operate, and sell as many of the forks as he could, telling him where he could be supplied with all he wanted. To this proposition Mr. Thomas consented and signed what he supposed were papers authorizing the use of his barn for the purposes named, copies of which were left with him. Upon examination the documents proved to be the same as those signed by Mr. Shaffer. A day or two after the notes were signed, a third party was here looking up the responsibility of Mr. Shaffer and Mr. Thomas, and their notes are now probably in possession of some bank and will be sued in the United States court when due.

Who next?

South Bend Herald.—"Will it pay to keep a cow, in village or city?" asks a reader of the American Agriculturist, a professional man, living in a village. We can answer that question. It will not pay unless said cow can forage freely in the door yards where the green lawns look the most tempting without getting crippled. We have tried it and speak from experience. When we moved to town we could not bear the idea of giving up sweet fresh milk and butter. We invested in a full-blooded Devon cow. It took about one-third of our time to hunt her up. In foraging she had one of her teats cut off. She came home one night with a horn loosened. After fully recovering from that, she came up without any tail. We then gave it up and at the same time gave the cow away. Since that we are satisfied it will not pay to keep a cow in a village or city. We have bought our milk and butter ever since. We do not believe that it will pay to keep stock or raise produce in any town or city if you have anything else to do.

—The article published in last week's COURIER in reference to the Methodist choir did not increase the circulation of that lately improved (?) periodical.—Republican.

"The Methodist choir" has not been mentioned in the COURIER, nor has the circulation been decreased, we never fail to get ONE subscriber at least for every one we lose, but in this instance we were favored with more. Has the circulation of the Republican ever been increased by anything which appeared on the Auburn side of that NOT lately improved sheet?

—List of unclaimed letters in the post office, at Auburn, Ind., Feb. 15th, 1879. Jennie Dudley, Albert Freadichson, Charles Faber, Charles Hoy, Johnson Lawhead, John W. Lawhead, James Oggard, John Reed, Robert Shippy, Winfield C. Snyder.

JOSEPH RAINIER, P. M.

—It is wonderful what an amount of "sucking" one of DeKalb's newspaper men can do in order to get a job out of our county officers.—Republican.

Which one? We hope there is no jealousy in the happy family.

—The fact that editors were not invited to the Bar Association banquet, prevented the COURIER from reporting the last one.—Waterloo Press.

And what prevented the Press from reporting it?

LaOtto Items.

—Upton has returned, let us kill the "fatted prodigal."

—Dick Dudley has skipped for the west.

—Miss Calla Whetsel, was the guest of Miss Martha Sinon last Sunday.

—Rev. Loman will preach at the Wesleyan church next Sunday at 11 o'clock.

—A. Zerns left for Adams Co. Ind., last Monday.

—Rev. Worth of Albion former pastor of the W. M. Church at this place was in town over Sunday.

—A young lady will lecture at the Wesleyan church next Saturday and Sunday evening. Subject temperance.

—Prof. C. R. Reed of Waterloo was in town last Sunday to attend the funeral of his aunt Miss Holbrook.

—Miss Martha Holbrook died at her residence Feb. 14th, 1879, of lung feaver, aged 60 years.

Friend after friend depart;
Who hath not lost a friend?
There is no union here of hearts
That hath not here an end

BIDDIE.

Newville.

—News items like money are scarce.

—School will close in two weeks.

—Once more are we under the necessity of recording the departure of one of our old citizens.

Died—Mrs. Grenawalt, on Tuesday last, leaving two children to mourn her loss, her husband died last September. They emigrated to this county from Berks county, Penn. about twenty-eight years ago.

—Mrs. Henry Maxwell is still living and while there is life there is hope. That is all we have to cheer us in her case.

—Rev. O. Q. Oviatt still continues to keep up his services every evening at the Disciple church. We learn that he has been successful in getting two persons to unite with the church.

—Last Friday was St. Valentine's day. St. Valentine was a martyr, he suffered martydom by being beheaded at Rome under the reign of the Emperor Claudius. The idea of sending valentines on the 14th of Feb. is supposed by some to have arisen from the birds choosing their mates on this day, and by others from his many virtues, and love for his fellow man, and by others from a reference to the feast of Lupercal, a feast celebrated by the Romans on the 15th of Feb. by sacrificing two goats and a dog to the God Pan. They chose two youths and sprinkled them with the blood of the victims, and then cut the skins of the animals slain into thongs, and sent them out to lash every one that came in their way.

ALPHA.

Angola.

—Miss Josie Jackson, who has been visiting in Ft. Wayne for a few weeks, returned home last Saturday.

—Several of the young folks of this place spent the Sabbath in Hudson.

—The Lyceum was very poorly attended on Monday evening.

—Mr. C. T. Mosher, editor of the Bristol Banner, was in town over Sunday, visiting the family of C. H. Daugherty.

—The M. E. church held quarterly meetings on last Saturday and Sunday.

—Rev. C. G. Hudson who has been on the sick list for a few days is able to be about again.

—Mrs. Henry Delancey, who has been sick with lung fever has nearly recovered.

—Court adjourned last Saturday.

—Mr. D. L. Pence is on the sick list.

—The temperance meeting at the Desciple church on Sunday afternoon was addressed by Rev. W. P. Walsworth, Mrs. Henry Nichols, and Mr. A. J. Corbin.

—Brown Clark, of Waterloo, was in town over Sunday.

—Fremont Nobles delivered a temperance speech at Richland Center, and Jno. R. Morrow at Salem Center.

—The public schools close on Friday.

—Mrs. J. M. Gale is reported quite sick.

—They had a case of suicide at Orland last week. Will try and get the particulars for next issue.

—The Concert Hall is being elegantly decorated for the Fireman's dance on Friday evening. A number of foreign dancers are expected to be present, and a general good time is anticipated.

—Miss Lola Bigler is able to be around again after a long spell of sickness.

A REPORTER.

—On last Sunday morning the Soldier's and Sailors' and Orphans' Home at Xenia, Ohio was destroyed by fire. The Institution was the home of about six hundred children, who have since been sent to Cincinnati, Columbus and elsewhere to await the completion of a new building. A number of State Senators and representatives were there to spend Sunday and were still in bed when the fire broke out, most of whom were compelled to jump out of the second story windows to save their lives. The children had just taken breakfast and left the building. No lives were lost, but a number made miraculous escapes. The loss of building, account books, library, etc., will amount to $[illegible]000, besides property belonging to teachers and other employes which amounts to $5,000 more.

One of the most important measures enacted by congress for many years was the passage of the Anti-Chinese bill which passed the Senate last Saturday, and is now in the hands of the President. The first section provides "That no master of any vessel owned in the whole or in part by a citizen of the United States, or by a citizen of any foreign country, shall take on board such vessel at any port or place within the Chinese Empire, or at any other foreign port or place whatever, any number exceeding fifteen Chinese passengers, whether male or female, with intent to bring such passengers to the United States, and leave such port or place having such passengers or any number exceeding fifteen on one voyage within the jurisdiction of the United States."

The remaining sections of the bill provide penalties for violation of the act &c. The bill will take effect July 1st 1879 if signed by the President. This is, says the Cincinnati Enquirer 'a consummation devoutly to be wished.' Congress has done well. While there may be diferences of opinion as to the exact propriety of the method chosen in this case, the exigency was such as clearly to justify the means. It is a radical departure from our traditional policy in the treatment of the subjects of foreign Powers, but the Chinaman is so radically different from any other human being that the rules applied in the cases of all other people are utterly inapplicable to him. The right to quarantine against infectious diseases is admitted; the right to quarantine against a human and locomotive pestilence should be as universally recognized. That is just what Congress has done. It is a measure passed, not in response to the demands of mere politicians, but in answer to the united appeals of the suffering people of the Pacific Coast for relief from a terrible incubus which is weighing them down. It is one bill passed by Congress not in the interest of the Money Power, but for protection of the working people, not alone of California, but of the whole country; for, unrestricted, it would not be many years till our laborers would be entirely supplanted by Chinamen, as those of San Francisco have been.

It is unfortunate that in considering the Chinese question so large a portion of the public press is laboring under such a total misconception of the real facts of the situation. It is also to be sincerely regretted that in the discussion of a matter so nearly involving the welfare of the whole people, so many of the leading journals have been able to view it only from the low plane of the mere politician, and consider it of importance simply as a means of securing a temporary partisan advantage. This is a matter so far above the questions which ordinarily divide the people into parties, so far-reaching in its consequences, that it should be entirely removed from the domain of politics. Despite all the information that has been furnished upon this subject by the California press and people, the ignorance of a majority of the Eastern press is appalling They persist in regarding the Chinese in the same light as other immigrants, and treating the question solely from a commercial and humanitarian point of view. The almighty dollar, and the flimsy flapdoodle about America being the refuge of the oppressed of all lands, are sufficient, in the estimation of the organs of the Money Power, to overcome all considerations for the welfare of our suffering people. They either do not know, or do not care, that to the Pacific States the presence of the Chinese is a plague more disastrous than those inflicted upon Egypt—that in California alone tens of thousands of workingmen are driven to beggary and crime by Mongolian competition. Say rather substitution, for no American or European laborer can compete with the Chinaman—he must abandon the field.

The rules which apply to the intelligent European immigrant are no more applicable to the Chinese than they would be to a colony of Brazilian apes, or a boat-load of man-eaters from the Cannibal Islands. They are, and will always remain, completely alien within the State, practicing their heathen orgies and all their heathen customs—bringing with them their Chinese laws and enforcing them in defiance of our Courts, even to the death penalty—buying and selling women for the basest purposes, and keeping them in a bondage worse than death. The single fact that the wealthy men among them are all slavetraders and the poor men nearly all slaves, should alone be sufficient to forever exclude them from the country. That such slavery does exist in California, protected and inforced by Chinese laws, and in defiance of the State and National Constitutions, is a notorious fact. If the Chinese are permitted to come here it is a virtual recognition on the part of our Government of their right to hold slaves here for while they remain our laws are powerless in the face of Chinese edicts. Thus they are accorded superior privileges to our own citizens. And it is demanded that this thing be permitted to go on forever, because years ago the Government, before really comprehending the character of the people it was dealing with, permitted itself to be deluded into signing a treaty negotiated by Burlingame, who at the time was in the pay of the Chinese Government, and of course working in the interest of his employer.

It is a monstrous doctrine that, having been thus deceived, we may do nothing to right the wrong which has been perpetrated upon us. It is very strange if, in our intense anxiety to protect the treaty rights of these aliens, we have bound the Government hand and foot, and rendered ourselves powerless to protect our own people. It would seem, indeed, that our native and naturalized citizens are entitled to some consideration at the hands of our beneficent Government, and that it should not lavish all its tender care upon the alien heathen. The life and preservation of the Republic, and the happiness and vital interests of our own people, are considerations superior to all treaties, and to the welfare of all the aliens in the world. If the power which has made a disastrous treaty is dilatory in repairing its wrong, it becomes the duty of the legislative department to apply the remedy until the superior power can be induced to move.

Had the early colonists not given encouragement to the slave-trade, for slave-labor, there never would have been destroying elements of hate and discord which finally culminated in the terrible civil war, which has left its deep and indelible scars. And, with this sorrowful and fearful example before us, of the consequences of the forced and involuntary African immigration of two centuries back, who can at this period fail to contemplate the more alarming dangers and horrors to flow from the pestilent influx of hundreds of thousands—aye, of millions—of Mongolians in the century to come? The tremendous evil it must inevitably inflict upon the country can not be estimated.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all, who desire it, this recipe, with full directions for preparing and using, in German, French, or English. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. Sherar, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y. 6-eow 6-m.

Sedan Items.

—Roads rough.

—Mr. Harrison Jones, who has been quite ill for some time, is recovering slowly.

—Our school is prospering finely under the supervision of Jos. Shull. Between fifty-five and sixty scholars are on the roll. Mr. Shull can not be excelled as an instructor of the youthful minds.

—At the temperance meeting last Saturday evening, the club re-organized and elected their officers as follows: N. McIntyre, President; M. Seydell, first Vice President; L. W. [illegible], second Vice President; W. M. Kruse, third Vice President; J. A. McIntyre, Secretary; J. W Bateman, corresponding Secretary; Miss Ellie Seydell, Treasurer; J. A. McIntyre, M. Cheney, Marshals: Samuel Austutz Sargent at Arms; Mrs. Kimball, Mrs. Seydel, Miss Tillie Wherley, financial committee. May the organization prosper with its new officers.

J. A. M.

CAUGHT AT LAST.

Another excitement at Waterloo. Patterson & Smith have received and are now offering for sale a large lot of choice dark prints at 4c. per yard. 2,000 yards of fine brown sheeting, 1 yard wide at 5c. 1000 yards double width dress cashmeres at 30c worth 50c. 2000 yards Knickerbocker dress goods 6 to 12½c. worth 15c. 500 yards table linen at 40c., best bargains ever offered. These are a few bargains of a recent cash purchase, and we defy anybody to beat them. Please give us a call before they are all gone.

6-3. PATTERSON & SMITH.

1879 SPRING 1879

Messrs. Root & Company's

CARPET DEPARTMENT!

Our constantly increasing business in this department warrants our offering to the public this spring a much larger variety and assortment than ever before.

PRICES THIS SPRING

Are lower than ever before, and parties who have delayed refurnishing their houses can now do it with economy and a certainty that they will never buy carpets any cheaper than they are at present.

The Choicest Designs Tapestry Brussels Carpets, 75c., 85c., 90c., $1.00 per yard.

The Choicest Designs Extra Super Ingrain Carpets, 75 cents per yard

All Wool Ingrain Carpets, 50, 60 and 65c.

Single and Double, Cotton Chain Carpets, 25, 30 and 35c per yard.

Hemp, Cottage, Rag and Dutch Carpets, 12 1-2, 15, 18 and 20c per yard.

New lines of Upholstery Goods, Curtain Goods, Floor Oil Cloths, Mattings, Rugs, Stair Rods, Cornices, Fixtures, Shades; Hollands, Picture cords, Tassels, &c.

N. B.—Parties desiring any repairing done to Curtains and Cornices, or to have Carpets relaid, will find our MR. BARRETT a competent and superior workman, who will attend promptly to any orders we are favored with.

ROOT & COMPANY,
FORT WAYNE, IND.

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER AND SPECIAL FLAVORING EXTRACTS.

Trade Mark.

Eminent Chemists and Physicians certify that these goods are free from adulteration, richer, more effective, produce better results than any others, and that they use them in their own families.

DR. PRICE'S UNIQUE PERFUMES are the Gems of All Odors. TOOTHENE. An agreeable, healthful Liquid Dentifrice. LEMON SUGAR. A Substitute for Lemons. EXTRACT JAMAICA GINGER. From Pure Root.

STEELE & PRICE'S LUPULIN YEAST GEMS.
The Best Dry Hop Yeast in the World.
STEELE & PRICE, Manfrs., Chicago, St. Louis, and Cincinnati.

A CONUNDRUM.

Answer Given March 1st.

WATCH IT! WATCH IT!

SAM, PETE & MAX,
Managers Star Clothing House, Fort Wayne, Ind.

WHEN I MEAN TO MARRY.

BY J. G. SAXE.

When do I mean to marry?—well,
'Tis idle to dispute with fate;
But if you choose to hear me tell,
Pray listen while I fix the date.

When daughters haste with eager feet
A mother's daily toil to share;
Can make the puddings which they eat,
And mend the stockings which they wear;

When maidens look upon a man
As in himself what they would marry,
And not as army soldiers scan
A sutler or a commissary;

When gentle ladies, who have got
The offer of a lover's hand,
Consent to share his earthly lot,
And do not mean his lot of land;

When young mechanics are allowed
To find and wed the farmers' girls,
Who don't expect to be endowed
With rubies, diamonds and pearls;

When wives, in short, shall freely give
Their hearts and hands to aid their spouses,
And live as they were wont to live
Within their sires' one-story houses;

Then, madam—if I'm not too old—
Rejoiced to quit this lonely life,
I'll brush my beaver, cease to scold,
And look about me for a wife.

THE GREAT PLAGUE.

Horrible Episodes in the Last Pestilence Period in London.

The comparative immunity which nations have enjoyed in the present century from all forms of pestilence must be attributed to better modes of living, as the restraint of the spread of epidemics when they do appear is to be attributed to more intelligent methods of dealing with them. In Carthage, Rome, Athens, Egypt, Ethiopia, and Syria, plagues raged within the five centuries preceding the Christian era; and nearly every Century until the present contains the awful record of similar devastation. At Constantinople, in the eighth century, 200,000 persons died in three years, without assistance, except such as superstitious charity—not a very generous virtue in any age—supplied, and large numbers died from the spread of the infection in Sicily and Greece. England and Ireland were visited in the eleventh and twelfth, and cattle, fowls, and domestic animals died of the same pestilence as the people. It was the plague which drove Henry II. out of Ireland in the next century; and, in the thirteenth, it extended all over Europe, and was especially malignant in the British islands. In the fourteenth, the fifteenth, the sixteenth and seventeenth, plagues were frequent throughout the world; doctors and governments were alike ignorant of their causes and equally incapable of checking them. Indeed, all classes of people appear to have considered them in a spirit of faith, and the pious, no less than the wicked, anticipated their dread approach with as certain a conviction that they were special visitations of God as did the children of Israel in their day. Many fanatics even urged that it would be blasphemy and presumption to attempt to escape from what was manifestly God's wrath, which had to be appeased.

Probably many of the so-called plagues in the cities of Western Europe were engendered by causes wholly within the control of cleanliness and good sense, and were not kindred to the Asiatic pestilence, although always believed to be of the same nature. There was an epidemic in London in 1407, of which 30,000 died. It was produced, no doubt, by local neglect. The Irish famine probably produced the so-called plague of 1466 and 1470, and, although there was a pestilence in Oxford in 1471, and a general and deadly epidemic all over England in 1478, there is no reason for believing that the malady, whatever its type, was imported. Henry VII. fled with his court to Calais to escape the distemper in 1500; Oxford was literally depopulated seventeen years later by what was called the "sweating sickness," which did not then appear for the first time, and the plagues in Ireland a few years later were of the same still unexplained character. In the beginning of the seventeenth century a large part of the population of London perished of a malignant epidemic which the chronicles of the time describe as Asiatic plague, and seven years later it swept France with a besom of destruction. In 1656, 400,000 died of plague in Italy, and the great English pestilence of 1665 has been graphically described by De Foe. The fire in the following year seems to have had the effect of a disinfectant, for England remained free from pestilence of every kind for nearly 200 years, until the arrival of the cholera from Asia in 1831. But the rest of Europe was not equally fortunate during the interval. In 1720 it is estimated that 60,000 persons died in Marseilles of what was probably Asiatic plague, brought there in a ship from the Eastern Mediterranean ports; and before the close of the century Syria, Persia, Egypt, Barbary and Spain were afflicted in turn, and their cities and towns turned into charnel-houses. Cholera, appearing at intervals during the present century, seems to be the natural successor of the plague of antiquity and tradition; its most fatal irruptions were in 1831-'32, '36-'37, '48-'49, '65-'66.

Medieval literature is replete with vivid and often wholly incredible accounts of these periodical scourges. The idea of associating them with natural causes, or checking them by scientific remedies was practically unknown. Indeed, there were no scientific remedies. The black death in Florence was Boccaccio's inspiration in the "Decameron," and Dante paints the awful specter in the opening lines of the seventeenth canto of the "Inferno:"

> Lo! the fell monster with the deadly sting!
> Who passes mountains, breaks through fenced walls
> And firm embattled spears, and with his filth
> Taints all the world!

Tom Moore uses the plague with excellent effect as a dark spot in his rococo picture of "Paradise and the Peri:"

> Who could have thought that there, even there,
> Amid those scenes so still and fair,
> The Demon of the Plague doth cast
> From his hot wing a deadlier blast,
> More mortal far than ever came
> From the red desert's sands of flame!
> So quick, that every living thing
> Of human shape, touched by his wing,
> Like plants where the simoon hath passed,
> At once falls black and withering!
>
> The sun went down on many a brow,
> Which, full of bloom and freshness then,
> Is rankling in the pest-house now,
> And ne'er will feel that sun again.
> And, oh! to see the unburied heaps
> On which the lonely moonlight sleeps—
> The very vultures turn away
> And sicken at so foul a prey!
> Only the fierce hyena stalks
> Throughout the city's desolate walks
> At midnight, and his carnage plies.
>
> * * * * * * * *
>
> "Poor race of men!" said the pitying spirit,
> "Dearly ye pay for your primal fall—
> Some flow'rets of Eden ye still inherit,
> But the trail of the serpent is over them all."

In English prose, the author of "Robinson Crusoe" has written the story of the plague in London in 1664 with a simplicity verbose, indeed, and, at times, even tedious; but with a circumstantiality which makes the ghastly recital at once valuable as history and exciting as the most absorbing romance; and with a masculine diction which, considering the time in which he wrote, would have been sufficient of itself to give him a high place in English literature. De Foe was a child during the plague; some of the harrowing scenes he describes he may have witnessed; but, although most of it is necessarily hearsay, and some of it invention, it bears the stamp of nature on every page, and might have been absolutely true in each detail. The reported approach of the plague, after the close of the war with Holland, demoralized the people, and in their fright they became easy victims to quacks, astrologers and fortune-tellers. Signs appeared on many doors: "Here lives a fortune-teller," and crowds visited these impostors every day to find out who was to be attacked by the disease. "Infallible Preventive Pills," the "Only True Plague-Water," and similar nostrums, were energetically advertised and brought large profits to the frauds engaged in selling them. One doctor advertised "an infallible preventive, and shrewdly added: "Advice gratis to the poor." Hundreds flocked to his door. His advice was—given gratis, of course—to sell furniture or personal effects, and buy his bottles. Many deluded wretches were so overcome with fear that they robbed travelers on the highways in order to raise the money to get the doctor's decoction. At last, the mob began to appreciate the character of the fellow, and he was compelled to distribute his stock among them and fly for his life. The churches were the favored resorts, also, for the ignorant and superstitious, as well as for the pious and educated. Extraordinary seasons of devotional exercises were carried on, in the hope that Providence would stay His hand—as the plague was generally considered. Praying was considered much more effective than soap and water and disinfectants; in fact, nobody thought of cleanliness, ventilation or any hygienic rule as of any value at such a time.

Many of the regular clergymen fled in precipitation as soon as the approach of the plague was heralded; and dissenters entered their pulpits unresisted, and kept the religious spirit at a high temperature. De Foe says that while the plague lasted these objects of legal and popular disfavor were very much appreciated for their generosity and self-sacrifice; their theology was unquestioned, and their construction of the scriptures satisfactory to the most orthodox. As soon as the plague was over, and the paid clergy returned, the dissenters were attacked as violently as ever, and their services were forgotten with the same promptitude with which they had been accepted.

Nothing is said about the churches doing anything in the form of practical relief or benevolence.

Nor is it clear that, on account of the regulations adopted by the Government, anything could have been done. As has always been the habit of monarchs when danger of this kind approached, the King, Charles II., and his court, ran away. The Lord Mayor and municipal authorities undertook the administration of business, civil, moral and scientific, during the plague season. The plague provisions were extremely simple. They consisted in shutting up the doors, windows, and even the chimneys, in every house in which the disease was known or suspected to have found its way; the inmates were expected to die as speedily possible; and when a proper interval as elapsed the dead-cart stopped, the dead bodies were dragged out, and, uncoffined, unshrouded, the corpses were flung into pits, as many as could be accommodated. Watchmen were employed to see that no inmate of an infected house escaped; and, when moved by cowardice, or bribery, or humanity, any of these failed in his assigned duty, he was tied to a cart-tail and whipped up and down the streets. These were, of course, deserted after the pestilence had taken its hold on the city. Their stones heard no livelier rattle than the dead-carts, the shrieks of maniacs, the groans of the sick and dying, and the lamentations of faithless watchmen, as the bloody lash welted their naked backs. Other sounds occasionally disturbed the profound silence when these were absent. Fanatics, lunatics, fools of high and low degree, went about singing psalms, praying obstreperously, and calling upon the people to prepare for death by repenting of their sins. All trade was dead. The shops were closed, except here and there where some huckster, borrowing courage from his greed, kept his door ajar to catch the shillings of the creatures who still hunted for nostrums. All the worst human passions were excited into frenzy. The buriers, who went about with dead-carts, were brutal and avaricious. They tossed the dead about as if they were hogs in packing-time; sex received no respect; neither age nor condition in life made the least difference. So swiftly did the poison of the plague affect the vital organs that, in the beginning, many robust men dropped dead in public places. They were, of course, robbed. As the season extended, families prepared for their fate by getting ready fitting garments for the grave; these were, as a rule, torn off in the journey from the dwelling to the cemeteries. There was no pretense of ceremonial. The contents of the carts were spilled like coal into bins.

Many blood-curdling stories are told of the excesses and the indecencies committed even while the pestilence was at its height. The theaters and all public places were closed, and the dram-shops were supposed to be included in the general prohibition. Many were kept open, of course, and victims were dragged out whose last hour was shortened by maudlin drunkenness. One of these resorts flourished nearly opposite the "great pit," in which 1,100 bodies were deposited before the legal limit was reached—nobody was to lie within six feet of the surface. One night, as the carts rolled up to the pit, a man's piteous lamentations filled the air and attracted the attention of a carousing party in the dram-seller's. They rushed to the door, and a gentleman whose wife and children had just been cast into the pit tottered toward them weeping and giving way to heart-rending exclamations. The wretches taunted him with cowardice for not going into the pit with his family; but the keeper gave him some refreshment and laid him upon a bench to rest. The revelers fell upon the host and beat him for his charity. Their career was doomed to a sudden close. All had caught the infection, and in a few hours were themselves occupants of the pit. No modesty, no regard for the proprieties, remained in the lower class of the people. Nurses were said to murder their patients in order to get rid of and rob them. Thieves broke into infected dwellings, and pillaged even the chambers in which the dying and dead lay extended. Exorbitant prices were demanded for the smallest service; and it was even charged that fiends who had recovered from the disease stealthily caused it to be introduced into families who, by accident or cleanliness, had escaped it in its usual course. Delirium was one of its common effects. It is hard to believe the chronicle that madmen were let loose into households to murder their own children, in order that pillagers might get possession of money, jewelry and clothing.

The story of the blind piper is one of the grim legends of the time. De Foe says he was not blind, but weak, ignorant and poor, and that he went at night from door to door, piping, and thus obtained food and drink—of which he was fonder—and some kind of lodging. One night, overcome with liquor, he lay down upon a street-stall and fell sound asleep. The practice of the buriers was to ring a bell to announce the coming of the dead-cart, and as a signal to bring out the bodies ready for interment. As the blind piper forgot, in the unconsciousness of intoxication, the plague and its horrors, the bell rang around the corner. A door opened, and a dead body was laid upon the stall beside him, he, too, being supposed to be dead. The cart halted—the piper and his lifeless companion were thrown in, and other occupants soon joined them in the vehicle. It is said that his pipe was thrown in with him, and that, when the jolting over the stones partially disturbed his stupor, he, all unconscious of the ghastly company, put his pipe to his mouth and set up a merry tune. The animals drawing the cart reared and ran—the buriers nearly died of terror, and the piper and his dead associates were scattered along the road. De Foe affects to discredit a part of this marvelous tale, which is probably all fiction. He says the piper awoke, struggled to free himself from the heap of dead bodies, and cried, to the astonishment of the cartmen; "Where am I?" One of them, recovering his senses, quickly said: "You are in the dead-cart, and we are going to bury you." "But I am not dead, am I?" inquired the piper. The cartmen's terror turned to merriment, they released him, and he ran away.

There were fully 100,000 persons carried off by the plague in London alone during the summer months of the year. It is extremely probable that there would have been another and a deadlier outbreak had not the fire of the following year destroyed the germs and fumigated the city. The conflagration lasted three days and nights; 400 streets and 13,200 houses were laid waste, eighty-nine churches, including St. Paul's, were destroyed, and a stop was put to the flames only by blowing up a large belt of houses in their way.

The "Black Death" of the fourteenth century, which in Europe caused, during a little more than three years, at least 25,000,000 to perish, was preceded by remarkable natural phenomena.

There were earthquakes, floods and famines, swarms of locusts, comets and celestial as well as terrestrial storms; the order of the seasons seemed to be inverted. It is said that a dense fog was seen in the east moving toward Italy. It appears to have been believed that the disease was attributed to an atmospheric poison attacking the organs of respiration. The route of the "Black Death" was distinctly traced over the great caravan roads; the northern shore of the Black sea sent it to Constantinople, thence it entered Italian ports and was distributed all over the European continent. It is estimated that 13,000,000 died in China and 24,000,000 in the other countries of the East. The rivers were dammed with the dead. Dead crews putrified on their vessels on the open seas, and their fatal crafts floated about from shore to shore, disseminating death. The plague was stupidly attributed to the Jews, and in Mayence 12,000 were massacred by infuriated mobs.

The lessons which Western Europe and the United States have learned from the cholera have not been without general effect. Europe is armed and mailed against the Eastern visitant; and diphtheria in the North and yellow fever in the South have taught us that eternal cleanliness is the price of liberty from epidemics. The quarantine regulations in use at all American ports are believed to be comprehensive in principle, and efficiently enforced. If it be the genuine plague in Astrakhan it will undoubtedly make some progress westward. There is abundant reason for prudence, and none for panic.

Save Your Breath.

"Gem'men," said Brother Gardner, as he glanced at the clock, "we am on de pint of refrigeratin' to our homes. Let de speerit ob harmony dat allus prevails heah foller us inter de outer world. De wind-mill costs no more dan de humble and quiet-workin' cider-press. It is de empty hogshead which gins out de loudest soun' when struck wid a club. In your dealin's wid men say what you mean, do as you say, an' save yer breath for de buck saw an de wood-pile."—Free Press.

OUR PRESENT POPULATION.

And the Census of 1880.

[From the New York Tribune.]

The present Congress has few more important duties to perform than to provide for the taking of the new census. Very useful suggestions have been made to the committee by Prof. Walker, who superintended the last census, and who is specially qualified, both by experience and scholarship, to point out the defects in the mode hitherto adopted. No effort should be spared to make the next enumeration more thorough than any taken during the first century of the republic. It is particularly desirable that the many and obvious defects in the method of collecting industrial statistics should be removed, for it is well known that the statistics thus far obtained have had but a moderate value. But the important political interests which depend upon the enumeration of population also make it exceedingly desirable that the work should be more accurately and faithfully performed than has been possible under the old system. It is a notorious fact that in many localities the rivalry of towns has had some influence upon the thoroughness of the work, and the results will inevitably be distrusted as long as returns from one place can be held back for revision until those from other places have been forwarded and made public. The plan of dividing the work so that the actual enumeration can be performed within a very short time, and simultaneously in all parts of the country, on many accounts deserves especial consideration.

It is singular that writers and speakers, contrary to the usual American habit, have almost without exception understated the population of the country for some years past. Probably the nation is now growing too modest, as it formerly was too much inclined to boasting. But those who have occasion to refer to the present population almost invariably mention a number which the country has undoubtedly passed several years ago. It is customary to speak of the population as about 44,000,000 or 45,000,000. But the calculations of Prof. Elliott, of the Census Bureau, which thus far have been singularly sustained by facts, give 47,983,000 as the probable population July 1, 1878, and 49,395,000 as the probable population July 1, 1879. These calculations, based upon the principle of constant second differences, give an increase of about 32 per cent. for the decade now approaching an end. They are strongly confirmed by the census taken in fifteen of the States by State authority, during 1874 in Michigan, during 1875 in Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Carolina and Wisconsin, and during 1876 in Missouri and Nebraska. With allowance for the unavoidable incompleteness of every census taken by defective State machinery, it must be granted that the actual increase for the whole country to 1875 must have been at least as great as the increase apparent in the returns from these States of the dates named. The population of the fifteen States in 1870 was 14,610,636, and, according to the census taken by the States about the middle of the decade, it was 16,963,020, the gain being 16.1 per cent. in about five years, or at the rate of 32.2 per cent. for the decade. It is, therefore, probable that the estimate of Prof. Elliott will not prove greatly in error and that the present population, Jan. 1, 1879, is not far from 48,600,000.

The question of greatest political interest connected with the census is in regard to the reapportionment of representation. Taking as guides, first, the increase ascertained about the middle of the decade in some States, and, second, the well-established fact that since the panic of 1873 there has been a very important readjustment in the occupation and location of laborers, with extraordinary increase in the population of the newer agricultural States, we have prepared an estimate of the probable population at this time by States, and find that the aggregates for the several sections are as follows:

	Population.
Eastern and Middle States	14,303,000
Western and Pacific States	16,370,000
Former slave States	16,800,000
Total States	47,568,000
Territories	662,000
Total population	48,035,000

If Prof. Elliott's estimate is fully sustained, the population of each of these divisions should be slightly increased, the Western States and the Territories the most. It is possible that the allowance made for recent increase in Texas and Arkansas is too large, but the gain in those States and Western Louisiana has certainly compensated in part the retarded growth of older Southern States. If a new apportionment were to be made upon the present population, there would be little difference in representation between the South and the West, if those estimates are correct. But the Western States are growing much the more rapidly, and within the eighteen months remaining of the decade it is probable that they will considerably outstrip the former slave States in population, and secure a larger representation than any other section.

Ran Away---A City.

The city of Memphis has levanted. She has run away from her creditors. This is the first instance of a city's taking to her heels to avoid the constable. A decree of the United States Court was about to issue, commanding the city to levy a tax to pay its debts, when the city absconded. Strictly speaking, she did not run away bodily, but disappeared, dissolved, vanished. She suppressed her charter, and declared that she ceased to exist as a municipal corporation. She committed felo de se. The inhabitants and the houses remain, and also the ground, but it is no longer Memphis, but simply the territory of Tennessee. Memphis has ceased to exist. The debtor was the city of Memphis. As she is no more, is not the debt paid? The constable will find it so. There being now no City Council nor city officer, there is no one upon whom the judicial mandamus can lie. Cities ere now have been swallowed by earthquakes, have been buried by belching volcanoes, have been destroyed by a shower of fire, drowned by a deluge, and have gone gradually to decay; but this is the first instance on record of a city's suddenly vanishing from the ground whereon it stood.—Cincinnati Gazette.

A SILENT MAN.

A Man Who Swore Off from Talking Fifty Years.

[Utica (N. Y.) Corr. Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Asael P. Inman, whose funeral took place two miles east of Utica this morning, was a highly eccentric character. Seventy years ago he built a log cabin on one of the hills that slope to the Mohawk river. He was then 16 years of age, had a wife and $30. Some time during the first year of his wedded life Inman informed his wife that he intended to preserve silence for the remainder of his days. This conclusion was the result of an exciting dialogue which Inman overheard between his father and a near relative. Expressing a belief that more harm than good is wrought by speech, he announced his determination to place a permanent padlock upon his lips. This was in 1810.

The following year his first child was born. When that interesting event was approaching a near climax Inman rode several miles in the night to Fort Herkimer in quest of a physician. He carried slate and pencil, wrote a statement of the situation, and returning with the medicine man received the announcement of his paternal responsibilities in silence. The following year—in 1812—when the yeomen of Central and Northern New York were summoned to the defense of Sackett's Harbor, Inman reported for duty at a post near Adams, Jefferson county, riding alone nearly 100 miles through the forests to the recruiting station. Producing his slate he wrote: "I come to fight, not to talk." The commanding officer declined to give him a place in the ranks, and Inman remained at the post, working without pay for many months.

He was noted for his strength. With Ezra Grinnell (who is now living at the age of 87), Inman carried a cannon from the St. Lawrence river to Adams, Jefferson county, a distance of forty miles. The men were four days making the trip. Two days of this was spent in search of a lost trail. Both were without food during the journey, but Inman uttered no word of comment or complaint. After five or six years of this remarkable silence other eccentricities were developed. He would never read after sunset; he refused to drink well water, and for sixty-five years slaked his thirst with rainwater that had not touched the ground. His diet was extremely simple. Any article of food susceptible of adulteration was shunned. He always sat by a wood fire, and of late years, when traveling, carried a box or trunk containing a supply of fuel. Inman visited New York city once—some twelve years ago—riding as far as Albany one day and completing the journey the day followieg. For fifty years he has not been out of doors after 6 o'clock at night. When asked why he remained indoors evenings, he wrote: "Man should rest with nature."

Some years ago Inman had occasion to visit Buffalo, and as a suit at law was in perspective he went prepared for a siege. Entering one of the leading hotels in Buffalo, the old gentleman wrote: "Best room. No meals. I burn wood. Thought you might not have enough, so I brought some along." The big trunk, packed with wood, was taken up to his room, and it sufficed to keep the eccentric warm and cook his simple meals during his sojourn in Buffalo. Kerosene oil was a pet aversion. His theory was that the glare strained the eyes, while the oil left an unhealthy taint in the atmosphere. He was never known to sit by a coal fire, always avoided gas, and his son, from whom I gather these details, assures me that, rather than sit in a car heated by a coal fire, the old gentleman preferred to ride twenty-six miles on the platform on a bitter cold day in winter.

Inman never used tobacco in any form, never tasted liquor, avoided tea and coffee, and never had personal occasion to seek medical advice. He confidently expected to live to be 100 years old, and but for the accident which was the immediate cause of his death it is highly probable he would have tallied a century. Last spring he sowed thirty acres with oats, assisting in the fall harvest and performing from choice the full quota of a farm-laborer's work. The oats were stored in a granary connected with the dwelling by a covered passage-way. Mrs. Inman, returning from this granery last Monday, informed her husband that the mice were making sad havoc with the oats. The old gentleman mounted a high stool to look into the oat-bin, lost his footing and, falling, sustained injuries that speedily resulted in his death.

He leaves a carefully-written record of his life during some sixty years of silence. Portions of these diaries are quite interesting, but as a rule he enlarges upon the absurdity of giving utterance to frivolous thoughts. He seems to have regarded speech as a sacred gift, to be indulged in only when it promised benefit to the human race. Here are some of his "axioms:" "Most lives are productive of empty noise." "As 1,000,000 is to one, so is sense to sound." "He who talks most feels least." "The fool talks while the wise man thinks." Inman leaves a snug fortune which his son inherits. His last written message was: "Silence is golden." His oft-penciled admonition to his son was, "Keep your mouth shut." In the neighborhood he was known as the dumb man. He was quick to read character, loved a good joke, and insisted that there was so much in the world to learn and think about that time spent in talking was time squandered. Inman's funeral was largely attended, neighbors coming through the snow-drifts for miles to manifest their respect for the silent man.

PRACTICAL repudiation has taken a peculiar and summary form in the bankrupt city of Memphis, Tenn., which has virtually abrogated its municipal charter, and whose Mayor and other principal officers have resigned their positions. As a city corporation Memphis is a magnificent failure.

DON'T STOP MY PAPER.

Don't stop my paper, printer;
Don't strike my name off yet;
You know the times are stringent,
And money hard to get;
But tug a little harder
Is what I mean to do,
And scrape the dimes together,
Enough for me and you.

I can't afford to drop it;
I find it doesn't pay
To do without a paper,
However others may.
I hate to ask my neighbors
To give me theirs on loan;
They don't just say, but mean
Why don't you have your own?

You can't tell how we'd miss it,
If it, by any fate,
Should happen not to reach us
Or come a little late;
Then all is in a hubbub
And things go all awry,
And, printer, if you're married,
You know the reason why.

I cannot do without it,
It is no use to try,
For other people take it,
And, printer, so must I.
I, too, must keep me posted,
And know what is going on,
Or feel, and be accounted
A fogy simpleton.

Then take it kindly, printer,
If pay be somewhat slow,
For cash is not so plenty,
And wants not few, you know.
But I must have my paper,
Cost what it may to me,
I'd rather dock my sugar,
And do without my tea.

So, printer, don't you stop it,
Unless you want my frown,
For here's the year's subscription,
And credit it right down;
And send the paper promptly
And regularly on,
And let it bring us weekly
Its welcomed benison.

PITH AND POINT.

WILLIAM TELL was an arrow-minded man.

WHEN is a railroad track like a ship? When you see a cargo on it.

THERE is nothing like a short-hand reporter to take a man down.

HOW TO produce a telling affect—Communicate a secret to a woman.

JOHNNY was whipped at school for a piece of mischief done by another boy. Verdict: A misplaced switch.

"EVERYBODY," says an exchange, "likes radishes in Japan." It's a mistake. We don't, for one. We like ours here.

"WHAT shall be done with our children when they leave school?" asks a contemporary. Why, give them their dinners and send them back.

THERE is this difference betwen a magistrate in his office and the violation of another's rights: One is a Justice in, and the other is an injustice.

> THEY called the doctor in to staunch
> The blood that flowed like rain;
> But artery had tried awhile
> He said it was in vein.

—Yonkers Gazette.

A BANQUET was recently given at one of our hotels in honor of a distinguished guest; whereupon Spilkins observed that he was not in favor of such inn-ovations.

"IS THAT the second bell?" inquired a gentleman of a colored porter. "No, sah," answered the porter, "dat am the second ringin' ov de fust bell. We hab but one bell in dis establishmum."

WHAT city in France is a man about to visit when he goes to get married? He is going to Havre (have her). An old bachelor being asked the question promptly replied, "To Rouen" (ruin).

SOME men never lose their presence of mind. In New York a man threw his mother-in-law out of a window in the fifth story of a burning building, and carried a feather bed down stairs in his arms.

> "WILL ye love me thus forever?"
> And she looked into his eyes
> With a glance that seemed a token
> Of the fervor of her sighs.
> "I wudn't guaranty it,"
> With a smile responded Pat •
> "For I'm hardly av the notion
> That I'll lasht as long as that!"

"KEEP 'way from dat nigger, I tell you," said Uncle Rube to his sable daughter; "keep 'way from him. He's like what de 'Postle John lived on in de wild'ness." "How's dat?" she asked. "Low cuss, and wild, honey," replied Uncle Rube.

"GEORGE," said a school-mistress to one of her unruly scholars, "why is it you behave so badly? When you first came to school you were obedient, submissive and willing to learn; now you are just the contrary." "Well, to tell the truth, marm," said George, "I was not much acquainted then."

"ARRAH, Pat, wouldn't you be afther bringing home the shovel I lent ye last Christmas?" "Divil a bit! I haven't done with it this three months." "Be jabbers! and what'll I do for a shovel meself?" "It's perfectly aisy for ye to borrow one, as I did; so be off wid yerself, and not be afther bothering me ag'in wid yer nonsense."

A WETZEL COUNTY man went into a Wheeling restaurant, the other day, and asked for a dozen oysters. The polite waiter asked him how he would like them dressed. "Dressed," exclaimed the fellow; "hang it, I don't want 'em dressed at all. I want 'em naked, and don't you forgit it." This was a nude departure in the oyster trade.—Wheeling Leader.

PRIMEVAL paragraphers were philosophers, as are those of to-day. Diogenes was one of them. The best pun he ever perpetrated was "Tub he, or not tub he." The only difference between Diogenes and a modern paragrapher is, Diogenes went about the streets carrying a lantern in daylight looking for a man, while the latter goes out after twilight to "see a man."

THE other day a little "Hub," 4 years old, while playing in the nursery, came across an old doll, rather the worse for wear, and being in a generous mood he took it to his mother and said: "Mamma, I dess I better div dis to the swill man when he tums wound, an' p'aps he will take it home to the swill lady and let her fix it up all nice for the little swill children to play wis—wouldn't you, mamma?"

AN Irish agent having been instructed to raise rents, called a meeting of the tenants and apprised them of the intention. "You can afford it," said he; "see how prices have risen." Silence was broken by an old farmer, who said, "yes; there is no denying of that. It used to cost a pound to get an agent shot, and now, be jabbers, it can't be done under two." The rents have not yet been raised.

GOSSIP FOR THE LADIES.

At the Masquerade.

It was at the masquerade
Where I pressed
Dainty fingers of a maid—
I was blest!
What I murmured in her ear,
Which inclined to mine so near,
May be guessed.

She was masked, but yet I knew
That her face
Rivalled rosy dawn in hue,
And the grace
That her presence fair distilled,
And my raptured senses thrilled,
Grew apace.

Oh, the batteries of her eyes
Thrilled me through
With their fury like the skies,
Azure blue.
How I trembled when she glanced,
Charmed, bewildered, [illegible]
[illegible] you.

Why do bright dreams ever fade,
Leaving chills?
Why are bitter doses made
Sugared pills?
Why so near and yet so far,
Almost through the gates ajar?
When it kills?

While I urged my Love to dare—
Like a knife
Came her cutting answer there,
Taking life:
"George, you are the biggest fool Ever 'scaped from woman's rule"—
'Twas my wife!

—Oil City Derrick.

Hen-Pecked Husbands.

Olive Logan declares that for her part she never saw a "hen-pecked husband," and does not believe there is any such being. She classes that ignominious creature with Mrs. Harris' William Tell, and the other myths. "There ain't no sich person," she says. She cannot find any excessive difference to a wife's desire, or devotion to a wife's comfort in American husbands—more's the pity. She once knew a husband whose business began going to demnition bow wows five years ago, and, finally arrived there, last winter, when she saw him shaking his fist in his wife's face because she was too conscientious to run into debt to her dressmaker any further, but continued to wear her clothing a second season. "I'll disown you," he roared, "if you don't keep looking as well dressed as other men's wives." This may have been a coarse way of putting it, but there are many ladies who would like to have their husbands cultivate an unhallowed ambition of this sort.

Startling Jewelry.

The letter-writers of Paris give us startling descriptions of the wonderful inventions now worn in the shape of jewelry, but it has been reserved for a New York belle to introduce the ghastly grotesque to our notice in its worst form. At Wallack's last week a pretty girl of twenty wore a hat—her hair puffed and elaborately carried up, and a circlet of ribbon about it, which she styled an evening hat. This ribbon was very wide, indeed. An enormous bow covered the top of the head, but in the center of this bow an ingeniously contrived lizard of gleaming colors, twisted, squirmed, and wriggled in life-like manner. A more repulsive head-dress could not be imagined, and on the caput of one of the sisterhood, who, in summer time among our parks, will scream for the police if only an innocent measuring worm drop on their bonnets. A friend assures me that on a lady's hat in Paris, he saw a dancing, merry skeleton, made of white enamel, dangling from a golden gibbet. Tiffany has a multitude of scarf-pins (for ladies) some representing rats walking on gold gridirons, big, fat, green worms on enameled leaves; two monkeys struggling for a pearl nut; skeletons in armor and under umbrellas. But the skeleton of the Paris hat did the greatest execution, and one should be imported to go with the brown and red dress I detest so cordially.—N. Y. Letter to St. Louis Republican.

Our Lax Marriage Laws.

We are glad to see that the press generally is taking up the discussion of the lax marriage laws which prevail in many parts of the country and notably in this state. We have in mind a case which occurred not long since in one of the eastern counties of this state, and which illustrates in a striking manner the harm that flows from this condition of things.

A poor widow living on a farm which yielded her and her only daughter a meagre subsistence, employed a young man to work for her as a field hand. He won the affections of the daughter, a girl less than fourteen years of age, and proposed a secret marriage. Sunday they borrowed a conveyance from a farmer near by and crossed the mountains ostensibly to go to church, but actually to seek a minister who had a local notoriety for careless practices. They found the gentleman at home, resting from the fatigues of the morning's sermon; he left his sofa to answer their call, summoned as witnesses his son and a villager who was passing, hurried through the ceremony, pocketed the fee of fifty cents, gave his visitors a little fatherly advice as to mutual forbearance and fidelity to their vows, bade them good-bye, and stretched himself out again to finish his nap. The couple returned home, resolved to keep the affair private for a while. Some days afterward the bridegroom found leisure to repent of his rashness and decamped. The girl, for whom the whole business had had little significance, shed a few tears at his sudden departure and then settled herself down to forget all about him.

Another young man came along in search of work, was engaged, and in the course of three months wooed the deserted bride and suggested marriage. In her ignorance of the law, and supposing herself to all intents a widow, she assented, and they repeated the escapade, we have described, even to the point of going to the same clergyman. This time the mother overheard some conversation between her daughter and the hired man a day or two after the wedding, and discovered their secret. She was very angry and reproached the girl, who admitted what had been done, innocently confessing the former marriage at the same time. In her dismay the mother hastened to a neighbor's house to ask advice, and the story soon spread all over the surrounding country. A malicious wretch who hoped, by driving the widow to the wall, to obtain possession of her little land at a low price, went to the district-attorney and laid the matter before him to be brought to the notice of the next grand jury as the foundation for criminal action for bigamy. The prosecuting officer pigeonholed the affidavit and allowed it to pass from his recollection for a time. The second husband, fearing lest the penalties of the law should in some way attach to him, and generally discomfitted by the turn matters were taking, fled as incontinently as his predecessor. The widow, rather than stay in the neighborhood as a butt for current gossip, sold her farm for a mere pittance and removed to a village in the west. The scandal followed close upon her track, and one night the two women disappeared together, never to be heard from more.—Syracuse Herald.

Quarreling Women.

It is often said by man that it is impossible for three women to live together without quarreling. Of course we deny the statement, as the instances to the contrary are innumerable, and many of them in modern times, and some within our own knowledge; although that it depends on the quality of the women concerned we freely admit, as fish-women, to one general classification, would undoubtedly open their disputes where ladies would keep the peace; and of course the more one partakes of the fish-woman's character, the more one is likely to lose no opportunity for retort and the inauguration of the quarrel.

Still, while denying the statement, for the sake of argument and of humanity we are willing to waive facts and look at the question as if there were some truth in it. Admitting three women cannot live together without quarreling, can three men do so? Can three men live in exactly the same close relations and under the same circumstances, which enforce a perpetual contiguity not merely in the larger but in the smallest things of daily life? It is our own impression, to be taken without offense, that where women can worry along for years before the smouldering fire breaks out, men would have a grand explosion in less than a month.

Public opinion is made up in the loosest manner; this person thinks "what if a thing were so?" and then that person thinks "it is so," and the work is done. Certain women, who see a good deal of each other, are observed to quarrel—therefore all women quarrel; certain men, who mingle only in business hours, are found to get along without quarreling—therefore no men quarrel.

When men are congregated together in camp or other life, a certain rude law compels each to his share of the labor without words; and if one is inclined to be a shirk, he has but little chance; and the account is between him and his employer, and not between him and his mates. But when one of several women in a house is inclined to shirk, there is no time to parley usually; the work is to be done, and the others have to do it for her—a thing which can hardly help creating a little ill feeling, for if it is not indignation at injustice, it is contempt for laziness; and even the effort to repress either becomes visible in some coldness or stiffness that is usually resented by the injuring party as an injury; as a rule it is always the injuring party that is most occupied in resenting. In mills and workshops there is seldom, if ever, question of anything of the sort. From all which it would seem to result as a deduction that the mental horizon of women should be enlarged, that they as well as men should be expected to think upon the greater topics of the day, and that it should cease to be a subject of derision when a woman has views; for it is only "views" that can so occupy her that she will not want gossip for conversation, and it is only right views that will help her to extinguish selfishness, jealousy, suspicion, and all uncharitableness. Jealousy and suspicion are, after all, vast assistants in the matter of breeding disturbances between those under one roof, but they are qualities belonging to little souls, and can be uprooted by planting a larger growth in their place, as scandal-loving and selfishness can be. Those who go about suspecting evil in every opportune place, can only find evil there, their eyes being open to nothing else, and one suspicious person in a family can diffuse poison there as effectually as the cuttle-fish can darken the water around it. Leaven will always work, and leaven forever warm and fermenting with life can only produce a great agitation. Any one who has had experience or thought upon this subject will realize that in two-thirds of the cases of the sort of trouble in question the mischief is made not by women living together, not by any number of women living together, not by any quarreling for the lighter flat iron, or concerning the best way of making a pudding, but by one suspicious, not to say malicious, woman, living with those who are unsuspicious, harmless, and naturally gentle, and pursuing the path of her poor powers to the torture and torment of the rest, till endurance becomes impossible without retort and recrimination, drawing into dispute and the final quarrel. Thus, in simple truth, the statement that no three women can live together without quarreling, should be altered into a statement that, if of a suspicious turn, one of those three women, as it might be one of any three men, can not live with any body without quarreling, would introduce discord among the saints, and probably make heaven itself a place for her innuendoes, charges and counter-charges. One uncomfortable disposition can sting all around it into discomfort, as the sting of an insect ripens and rots a peach, as one diseased creature will communicate disease to a whole herd; and because one such instance often produces long unhappiness and at last rupture in a family, we refuse to let the ascription rest on all women in general instead of on that one woman in particular.—Harper's Bazar.

Fashion Notes.

SPANISH lace veils are again fashionable.

MANY handsome ball dresses shown by the leading dressmakers are without a train.

FANCY camel's hair will be worn for spring suits in light tints thickly covered with different designs.

LADIES who have slender figures add the Garrick or coachman's capes to their home dresses, and trim them with flat galloon braid.

YOUNG LADIES for evening wear large bows of ribbon on the front of the crown braid of hair. They are called Alsace bows, and viewed from in front look like bonnets.

ONE of the most beautiful dresses recently seen in Europe was of rose-leaf satin with a tunic of English point lace draped across the front with garlands of "oeillets" and heather.

LIGHT summer silks, which will be much employed for street suits, have chinchilla stripes, or narrow clouded chine stripes set close together on brown, cardinal, garnet, blue, and other colored grounds.

AMONG the prettiest street costumes are short dresses of brown camels' hair of the Princess Carita style, a long, coat-shape seal-skin jacket, and seal-skin cap, or walking hat of brown felt, trimmed with raw silk, the brown of which is brightened with dashes of gold and crimson.

WHITE cravats are "a la Camargo;" they are of white India mull or Bishop's lawn, the edges plaited with falls of old lace or Briton lace; they are tied and worn very large. When knotted and allowed to hang down they are called "Steinkerques," from a fashion of the same date.

FINE cashmere and delaine are considered quite as stylish as black silk for polonaises. They are trimmed down the front with black woolen lace, quilled very full and interspersed with bows and ends of black satin ribbons; or else a bit of cardinal lace; red or blue silk is put under the lace and just shows through it.

DRESSES for dancing are made extremely short in front; some reforms have also taken place since the beginning of winter in the matter of trains; they are very inconvenient for dancers, and are, therefore, much curtailed, and in some instances done away with altogether, and a "Directoire" dress is the result.

EMBROIDERIES of fine jet are still very much used; long vests, reaching to the knees, glisten with fine cut-beads, in closely-worked designs; Mme. Nilsson recently appeared with a black dress thickly covered with blue jet, the sleeves of tulle also embroidered to match. Many black dresses for evenings of silk or velvet have tulle sleeves covered with embroidery of fine jet beads.

BOUQUETS for the evening of real or artificial flowers, are much worn on the left shoulder if the dress is low; if it is high they are worn on the left side of the waist at the belt. Square-neck dresses have a bouquet on the right side very high up, and with a low square dress with short sleeves, two little curled ostrich tips are often worn in place of a bouquet, with a jeweled pin to fasten them on.

THE little red silk handkerchief turbans which are now fashionably journeying around the world, were first started in Paris last spring, the Princess of Wales having appeared in one at a Paris fete; they were immediately adopted in Paris. This lady is said to have perfect taste, and she now sets the fashions for both London and Paris, in the absence of any high authority in Paris, such as the Empress Eugenie used to be.

Hampton's Cat.

GOV. Hampton has a remarkable Maltese cat—very large, intelligent, very fond of his master. When the governor was in health, Tom was his constant companion in his daily walks about the yard, and would occasionally accompany him on longer rambles through the adjacent woods. It made but little difference to Tom that his master was sometimes mounted on such occasions. Nothing daunted, he would trudge along at his horse's heels for hours together, perfectly satisfied so long as he could "keep up" or even keep his owner in sight. The governor's election to office was a severe blow to his queer follower, as it involved a daily separation which was eminently distasteful to him, but, like the sensible animal he is, he finally reconciled his own affections to the claims of public expediency, and contented himself each morning with escorting his excellency to the gate, at some distance from the house, when he would bid him a sad, if silent, good-by, and return to the house until evening. The governor always observed as regular hours as possible in the discharge of his duties at the State House, and generally returned to his home about the same time every evening. This regularity Tom seems to have remembered for his own benefit, as he proceeded to avail himself of it to the extent of hurrying back each afternoon a little before the appointed time to the gate where he ever and anxiously remained to welcome his to too long absent friend on his return. During the Governor's illness Tom has been a constant and evidently sympathizing attendant.

A Pat Reply.

The warmth of the true Irish heart and the quickness of the true Irish tongue are proverbial, and feeble must be the cry of distress, or brilliant the wit that does not solicit a sympathetic response from the genuine son or daughter of the Emerald isle. Not very long ago, a little boy whose parents died, was sent to the orphan asylum, but the place was so distasteful to him that he ran away, and back to his old neighborhood. Living in the vicinity was an old Irish woman, whom we will call Kate, and poor though she was, with a large family, she took the orphan in and cared for him as her own. The other day she was in the city making some purchases, and in one of the stores a gentleman who was conversant with the facts in the case, asked for the boy.

"Oh, an' he's a foine by, sir, an' glad I am to have him wid me."

"Well, well, Kate, if there is a heaven in the next world you will get to it."

As quick as lightning came the reply, with all the heartiness of the race: "God bless ye Mr. P——, an' sure if I do, I'll lave the gate open for you."

WELL, if you must know we abandoned the idea of going to Europe, it was because we were afraid of being mistaken for a king, or an emperor, or a czar, or something that way, over there, and utilized as a target by some socialist with blood in his eye and a sixty-shooter in his breast pocket. And it is very unhealthy for Americans to be utilized as targets in foreign lands. They are not used to it.—Norristown Herald.

A SOLDIER OF FORTUNE.

The Life of Col. Sir Percy Wyndham—Believing Fighting to be Man's Normal Condition.

The death of Col. Sir Percy Wyndham, at Rangoon, India, by falling from a balloon, recalls a queer soldier of fortune who figured for some time in the United States, and afterward in New Jersey. In the latter annex he was made colonel of the First New Jersey cavalry by Governor Olden, after Colonel Halstead had been court-martialed out of service. He was with the regiment in the earlier West Virginia and Shenandoah valley campaigns, and he was a man of dash, impetuosity and high temper. He knew little about the American method of fighting and less than little about the principles of entering into the conflict. At some place, Harrisburg or Harrodsburg, or some town with a name like that, in leading a charge, he lifted his horse over a confederate earthwork, in full run, and, of course, was taken prisoner. He was exchanged soon after and was manœuvered out of the service in which he was really of no use. English named and French born, he spoke our language as imperfectly as any one of the frog eaters John Leech ever caricatured. At the close of his military service some one questioned his title in the New York Herald. In a reply he showed that Victor Emanuel gave it to him for gallantry at Solferino, and he left a challenge for the writer of the Herald letter. On being told that that would lead the grand jury to indict him, he expressed his willingness to challenge the grand jury in detail, and could not get it through his head that the law had any right to interfere with "the private pursuits and differences of gentlemen." He was a splendid specimen of manhood in appearance, was six feet high, of a commanding mien, and could tie his moustaches in a double bow-knot behind his ears. He made some amusement in Trenton social circles when he told ladies that their charms would make them invaluable in Turkey, and he wondered that their fathers and brothers did not export them thither, instead of letting them pine in a country where all the gentlemen had gone to war. On one occasion, at a dinner, he pronounced some canvas-back ducks a great deal better than "se pig and tack in se armee." His favorite method of dealing with refractory servants was throwing them out of the window, and in a justice's court he made an able defense of the practice by showing that he always roomed on the ground floor, and that his course of discipline did not injure those who were subjects of it. He fitted into American manners and customs about as well as the housekeeping arrangements in Hugh Chalcote's hut, in the comedy of "Ours" would fit into the habits of an English home. His career since he left this country has not been revealed by any account of his death. The probability is that he was engaged, indifferent as to sides or causes, in every war that has occured on the other side of the sea, since our own rebellion was put down. He was, in every respect, a soldier of fortune. He would let himself to any government that had fighting to do, and he would faithfully serve the cause he was hired to, entirely regardless of the right or wrong of it. He was a soldier by profession, and he believed that fighting was the normal state of man, and war the theatre in which the best virtues came to the highest exercise. There was no humbug and there was very little knowledge outside of military matters in him. Our American life was a constant series of surprises to him, and he could never understand the idea of the subordination of the military to the civil power, and he was convinced that the right way to Richmond was to take Washington first, and hang the men who called themselves the government there. The freedom with which officers and privates who had been friends and cronies at home mingled in quarters was inexplicable to him. The word equality was not in his vocabulary, except as it referred to size or weight, or the like. Nor could he understand why elections were not suspended until after the war was over, and congress told by the president that when he needed it he would let it know. The service on him, when in camp, of a writ of habeas corpus, in the case of some private required for civil process, nearly threw him into a fit of apoplexy. Every point at which American life touched him was certain to yield a fund of irascible comedy. He was, however, as consistent as could be desired. No officer below him could complain of the respect and formality he exacted, because he was just as careful to conduct himself with punctillio to his official superiors. A brigadier general who sent an aid to him in action with a request for a "pinch of tobacco," was a person whom he always regarded with suspicion and astonishment. The uniform of his regiment was of a Hussar style, bright with yellow and blue and white, and he made every man in the force keep his clothes, horse and accoutrements almost frantically neat. If every week had had a battle in it he would never have been dispensed with; for in action he was the idol of his command, literally leading them at every point, and handling them with a skill which was thought remarkable. In camp, he would not seldom declare he had made a mistake and got into the wrong army, because "those you call the rebels are much better horsemen." The habit of the soldiers in discussing measures and candidates and proclamations, and in sitting in criticism on their commandants, was something which had been unthinkable to him, and when he actually perceived it he was first amazed and then amused beyond bounds. He came to regard Orpheus C. Kerr's "Mackerelville Brigade" and Artemus Ward's regiment of brigadier generals as in no sense satires, and he would not have been surprised to have encountered them at any time. The practical management of the interests of his command was the rock on which he split, and when he left the service he left it an embittered man. To learn of his death in India by falling from a balloon excites no surprise to those who knew him, because any singular fate at a remote point would be just what would be expected of him.—Albany Argus.

IT is the brake of day that prevents night from going too far.

A Story About Pearls.

I will tell you a circumstance that happened twenty-five or thirty years ago, when I was residing in Calcutta. One morning our friend, the late Dr. Vass, surgeon of the royal army, brought to my husband, Dr. John Grant, a box containing twelve or thirteen pearls of various sizes, saying: "Grant you are a well known man in Calcutta, and I want you to hear the curious account of these pearls, and to take charge of the box, and let me know any change you may see in them. Their history is as follows: About forty years ago a lady at Amboyna gave a pearl to each of two sisters, saying. 'These are breeding pearls; take good care of them; never touch them with the hand, as heat injures them, and feed them on rice.' One of these sisters has just come to Calcutta, and she has lent the box to me to show to you. In the forty years she has had it this is the result—twelve or thirteen young ones." The box was opened, and there lay on cotton the mother pearl, a rather large but ill shaped individual. The eldest daughter, as I called it, was a lovely pearl about the size that jewelers generally set three in a ring. The others were perfect in shape, but gradually decreased in size; two very small I called the twins, as they stuck together, and the last was a very wee seed pearl. According to instructions, rice was put into the box, which was locked in a secret drawer in the cabinet, of which my husband alone kept the key. After some days we opened the box, and to our astonishment we found that every grain of rice had been nibbled. I cannot think of a better word. How nibbled, I cannot imagine, but that one fact I can vouch for. A few weeks after we had to leave Calcutta. The box was returned to Dr. Vass, and what became of it I know not. I have often mentioned it to my friends, and some years ago I saw in a book that lay upon my friend's table that people in the east believe in breeding pearls.—Land and Water.

Not Taken.

While a Woodward avenue merchant was yesterday standing in his door to boss the job of cleaning off the icy walk, he was approached by a stranger who was badly warped in looks and dress. The merchant had already made up his mind not to give the fellow a nickel, when he said:

"If you were me would you take the Berlin mission?"

"You take the Berlin mission?" gasped the merchant.

"Just so. I can take it like a book, but I don't want to if it will hurt anyone's feelings. I thought I'd inquire and see how the public felt."

"You'd better take a wash and then a walk!" exclaimed the astounded merchant, as he got his breath.

"Very well," was the quick reply. "If you think I'd better take a wash I'll drop the Berlin mission. I am in the hands of my friends—Good day!"

He walked away as stiff as a bean pole, and the German vacancy isn't likely to be filled from Detroit.—Detroit Free Press.

Wanted an Indorser.

A Vallejo butcher was over in the mountain wilds of Contra Costa the other day, buying meat on the hoof. He found an old Missourian with a thousand cattle on the hill, living in all the simplicity of primitive life as it is generally discovered a thousand miles from the outposts of civilization. In appearance he looked something like the picture one sees of Robinson Crusoe in in the books, after the latter had worn out all his good clothes. But the cattle were fat, and the Vallejoan bought what he wanted. When it came to settling for them, he handed the Contra Costa Crusoe some greenbacks as part of the payment. The man did not seem to know what to make of such a kind of circulating medium, and it was found necessary to explain to him that they were government notes for the sums indicated. "Waall," said he, after much hesitation, "ef yer'll agree to indorse them ar, I'll take 'em." But the Vallejo man, not being in the business of indorsing Uncle Sam's paper, refused, and he had to pay him gold.

Bismarck's Appetite.

Prince Bismarck is not only a "man of iron" but if we may trust Herr Busch, his biographer, he must be copper-lined.

He could at one time dispose of eleven hard-boiled eggs at a sitting. He is fond of middle sized trout, weighing not over half a pound, but can eat marane all day long. Carp and sand eel, on the contrary, are not grateful to his palate. Besides his favorite drink of porter mixed with champagne, he strongly recommends another compound, said to be the invention of Field Marshal Moltke, consisting of hot tea, sherry and champagne. He enjoys good mutton, but is less addicted to filets of beef or to roast beef in general. He even suggests playfully that a plump child or a fresh young girl would be anything but bad eating; and once when an unpleasant onion smell greeted his olfactories as he was driving near the smoking village of Bazeilles he pronounced it to be the odor of burnt Frenchmen.

The Beauties of English.

Hugh Gough, of Bor*ough*bridge, was a r*ough* soldier on a furl*ough* but a man of d*ough*ty deeds in war; th*ough* he f*ough*t for his country he was a thor*ough* d*ough*-faced pl*ough* man. His horse having been h*ough*ed in an engagement with the enemy, Hugh was taken prisoner, and I *ough*t to add was kept on a short en*ough* cl*ough* of food, and suffered from dr*ough*t as well as from hunger. Having on his return home drunk too large a dra*ugh*t of usqueba*ugh*, he became intoxicated and was la*ugh*ing, co*ugh*ing and hicco*ugh*ing by a tr*ough*, against which he s*ough*t to steady himself. There he was accosted by another r*ough*, who showed him a c*ough* which he had ca*ugh*t on a cl*ough* near, also the sl*ough* of a snake which he held at the end of a t*ough* b*ough* of a eugh tree, and which his shaggy sl*ough* had found and br*ough*t to him from the entrance to a sl*ough* which ran thr*ough* and drained a sl*ough* that was close to a sl*ough* in the neighborhood.—Albany Argus.

"I PAIN nobody," said a dentist when asked if he hurted people much. And a creditor of his said he told the truth.—Chicago Tribune.

TWO BABIES IN BED.

MRS. S. M. B. PIATT.

"Think of the baby at home," I said:—
"(How pretty he is to kiss!)
It is white and warm in his little bed,
It is dark and cold in this."

He laughed and said, with his hand in the dew
Of the sweet, small grave close by,
Where the grass of the loneliest summer grew:
"This baby does not cry."

HUMOROUS.

TWINS are the parapets of a house.

AFTER the loan—Lent.—Meadville Republican.

A BILL head—The bust of Shakspeare.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

CUTTING rates—Well, they vary, but the best [illegible] artists charge [illegible] cents.

A TEN dollar bill is of the feminine gender when it is the fair's X.—Whitehall Times.

A GOOD deed—One conveying you $50,000 worth of real estate.—Norristown Herald.

ONCE upon a time the French worshiped de Bouillon, but now they have exalted Grevy.—Cincinnati Gazette.

A BAREFOOT Syracuse girl kicked a burglar out of the house, and an observing mule went behind the barn and wept.

"SEE how I ride o'er the raging mane!" exclaimed a man who was thrown over his horse's head into a ditch on the other side of the fence.

"A MAN who attempted to pass counterfeit money said he did so to encourage home manufactures."—Oil City Derrick.

"As to having half a husband," says a Mormon lady spitefully, "that is a good deal more than many of you eastern women are likely to get." Oppressive silence.

IF Ajax had only booted a lightning-rod agent at the time that he defied the thunder bolt, his renown would not rest on a more solid basis than it does now.—Stamford Advocate.

OH! that incomprehensible small boy! He'll turn from five acres of clear smooth ice to work his way through the half-foot of slush where the danger sign is.—Puck.

"WHAT tunnel is that?" asked a stranger in our city who was driving round in a sleigh taking in the sights, yesterday. "Tunnel? Why, that's no tunnel; that's a livery man smiling," was answered.—Wheeling Leader.

THE Queen of Greece washes her own dishes. We have often suspected that the lady in question washes the dishes in our restaurant and leaves a goodly portion of herself on them also.—Jersey City Journal.

IT is now fashionable to take opera glasses to church, and the day is not far distant when the members of Mr. Talmage's Tabernacle will go out between acts to get a liquid clove to chew.—Norristown Herald.

"CAN a man belong to a brass band and be a Christian?" asks an exchange. We see no impediment in the way. But if he is given to practicing at home, it is an utter impossibility for the man living next door to be a Christian.

THE day approaches on which the freckled boy will send to the cross-eyed girl over the way, a picture of a flat heart stuck through the center with a barbed stick. He will call it a valentine, and the stick shows he is stuck on the gal.—New Orleans Picayune.

"WERE there cats in the ark?" is a question that is troubling the religious editor of an exchange. Certainly there were, and the first thing they said after leaving the ancient craft was "If there's Ararat 'round here we want to gopher it."—Waterloo Observer.

WOMEN derive a pleasure, incomprehensible to the other sex, from the delicate toil of the needle.—Exchange. She does, does she? Then why does the old woman trot out the slipper after Johnny has been sliding down the cellar door?—Oil City Derrick.

AN exchange says: "Kerosene will make tea-kettles shine as bright as new." "Yes," remarks another paper, "kerosene will do wonders; it will make a whole house shine so that it can be seen for miles, but it is dreadfully destructive to paint."

SEVERAL solid silver snakes twined round each other are the latest ornaments for bracelets, and when a man who drinks heavily looks, in one of his sober moments, at a fashionable lady's wrists, his feelings may be more easily imagined than described.—New York Mail.

A MERCHANT of this city, who recently failed, has addressed to his creditors an explanatory circular, in which he says: "After having fought the tiger of adversity for several years I have been compelled to succumb!" The "tiger of adversity" is good.—Troy Press.

Two little children went to church alone in Westfield, Mass. They became tired during the long sermon, and the older one, supposing that school rules held good in churches, led his sister up in front of the preacher and said: "Please, sir, may we go home?" He said "Yes," and they soberly walked out.

MRS. DUNSHUDDER fed a tramp yesterday because he wore an old army coat of faded blue. "You went through the war?" said the sympathetic soul. "Yes'm; I was drummer," and when the fellow reached the sidewalk he concluded the sentence, "for a hardware store in Chicago."—Utica Observer.

"MAMMA," said a wicked youngster, "am I your canoe?" "No, my child, why do you ask?" "Oh, because you always say you like to see people paddle their own canoes; and I didn't know but may be I was yours." The boy went out of the door with more reference to speed than grace.

WHEN a nice-looking young lady yields to the iciness of the pavement and gently falls down, every young fellow in sight will rush to her assistance, lift her up, inquire tenderly if she is injured, and be rewarded by a grateful smile; but when an old and homely woman meets with the same mishap, she will clamber to her feet by the aid of the nearest hitching post, and all the male lookers-on will remark, "The old gal got down, didn't she? ha! ha!" and there is no smile on the part of the accidentee.—New Haven Register.

EVERYBODY IS GOING!

GRAND CONCERT

Will be given at the

BOOT UP-SIDE DOWN!

Commencing Saturday morning

FEBRUARY 15, '79

And continuing for sixty days and evenings.

Admission Free!

The exercises will consist of a distribution of 500 pairs of the very best custom made

KIP BOOTS, WATER PROOF,

And every pair warranted for four months, at

ACTUAL MANUFACTURERS COST.

This is no humbug; we mean just what we say, for we must have room for our spring stock.

Mens'	hand-made	kip	boots,	$2.25	former	price	$3.00
"	"	"	"	2.50	"	"	3.25
"	"	"	"	2.75	"	"	3.50
"	"	"	"	3.00	"	"	3.75
"	"	"	"	1.50	"	"	2.00

Womens' shoes from 90c to $2.50.

All other goods 25 per cent. below all competition. Come early and get some of these bargains, at the

BOOT UPSIDE DOWN

Recorders Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 9. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, FEBRUARY 27, 1879. Number 9.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

THE COURIER CO.

THEODORE REED, Editor.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will be inserted under this head for $5,00 per annum For each additional line 50 cents extra will b charged.

ATTORNEYS.

H. C. Peterson.

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

Guy Plumb,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over First National Bank. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for the Home Insurance Company

A. F. Pischlo

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

Thos. H. Sportt.

REAL ESTATE, COLL ION AND INSURance Agent. Loans ected on improved farms. Kansas lands for or trade.
Auburn, Indiana

D D Mo

ATTORNEYS' NOTAR PUB lic Office in , Auburn, Ind.

Best & McClellan,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Wate o, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of I Kalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances de on all first-class Claims left in our hands for ection.

PHYSICIANS.

Dr. J. Miller,

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON AND ACCOUCHER. Gunsenhouser's Corners, two miles east of Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind.

Dr. T. G. Matheny,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, OFFICE ONE Door North of City Bakery, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

Dr. W. S. Allen,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store, Auburn, Ind.

Drs. Cowan & Allyn,

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, OFFICE over McIntyre & Son's. Drug Store, 1st door south of First National Bank, Auburn, Ind.

Dr. T. J. Dills,

Especial attention given to Diseases of the EYE and EAR. Rooms 1 and 2 Odd Fellows' building. Office hours—9:30 to 12 a. m.; 1 to 3 p. m.; 7 to 8 p. m. Fort Wayne, Ind.

Dr. T. W. Tritch.

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block.
Auburn, Indiana.

Dr. S. R. Johnson,

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

D. J. Swartz, M. D.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO DISEASEs of the Eye and Ear, Fistula in Ano, Hemorrhoids or Piles and Chronic Ulcers. Office on Main street, over Shaffer's Furniture Store, Auburn, Ind.

HOTELS.

Mayer House.

Fort Wayne, Indiana Under the Management of W. W. REED, rates, two dollars per day. Street Cars to and from the Pittsburgh, Wabash and Grand Rapids R. R. Depots.

S. BRUBAKER, } In Office.
W. W. REED, JR.,

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

TENTH STREET. EAST OF MAIN, GOOD Sample rooms, and low rates.
T. D. Gross, Prop'r Auburn, Ind.

Sands House,

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished Only $2.00 per day.
GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk. O. SANDS, Proprietor

Tonsorial Artist.

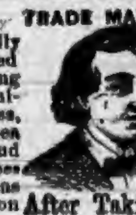
HAIRDRESSING AND SHAVING EXECUted with special care, and in good taste. Room on West Seventh street. WM. EDDINGTON Prop'r. Auburn, Ind.

The Great English Remedy.

GRAY'S SPECIFIC MEDICINE

TRADE MARK. TRADE MARK.

Before Taking



Is especially recommended as an unfailing cure for Seminal Weakness, Spermatorrhea Impotency and and all diseases that follow as a sequence on Self Abuse; as Loss of Memory; Universal Lassitude, Pain in the Back, Dimness of Vision, Premature Old Age, and many other diseases that lead to Insanity, consumption and a premature grave, all of which, as a rule, are first caused by deviating from the path of nature and over indulgence. The Specific Medicine is the result of a life study and many years of experience in treating these special diseases.

Full particulars in our pamphlets, which we desire to send free by mail to every one.

The Specific Medicine is sold by all druggists at $1 per package or 6 packages for $5, or will be sent by mail on receipt of the money by addressing
THE GRAY MEDICINE CO.
No. 10 Mechanic's Block. Detroit, Mich.
Sold in Auburn by F. E. Davenport, and druggists everywhere.

Something to Think About.

[Washington Post, Feb. 13.]

In the absence of any formal test on the floor of the House, and judging solely from the drift of comment on the part of individual members and senators since the joint caucus, of Monday night, we are reluctantly compelled to admit that while there is no serious doubts as to the repeal of the jurors' test oath, the far more important question of repealing the Federal election law is still unsettled. The unfortunate and, as it seems to us at this time, almost suicidal attitude assumed by Senator Bayard appears to have found adherents in the house; not many indeed, but enough to jeopardize the narrow majority which enables the Democratic party to protect the rights and conserve the liberties of citizens. We have already pointed out the reasons why we consider a repeal of the election law absolutely vital and that of the test oath merely secondary or subordinate in relative importance.

The bill most available as an instrumentality of repeal—the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill—is now under consideration, and a test vote on the matter under discussion is likely to be reached this week. It seems to us that, after the speech of Hale, on Tuesday, there ought to be no further doubt among Democrats as to their duty. But when a repeal of the election law is urged, there are a few Democrats who meet it with set repetition of the unfortunate doctrine advanced by Mr. Bayard, to the effect that it would be "revolutionary," "contrary to usage" and "violent."

Very well. We will not attempt to argue the case. But we will say that unless that election law is repealed; unless the desperate hand of frantic Radicalism is stayed now, and stayed with an emphasis admitting of no cavil as to its meaning, the next House will not be organized as a Democratic body.

The Radical programme, fully resolved upon and completely calculated is this: To carry all four of the California districts by the aid of the corruption fund and the election law; to buy or bribe with chairmanships and executive patronage, all the Independents Nationals and Greenbackers elected in the next House; and, finally, to indict, convict and imprison, under the election law, seven Democratic members elect. The men selected for this treatment are King, of Louisiana, and Hull, of Florida, who are already under indictment; Elam, of Louisiana; Shelley, of Alabama; Connor, of South Carolina; Chalmers, of Mississippi, and one other, to be chosen out of three or four names now under consideration by the chief prefect of the national police, under our present imperial form of Government, Devens!

This is all we have to offer. We hope the Democrats in the House will fully consider what they are doing, and what the consequences will be, before they act. And we repeat that if this Congress passes the appropriation bills, leaving the election law unrepealed, the speaker and committee chairman of the next House will not be Democrats.

If, in the face of facts like these, the Democratic majority in the House choose to accept the untimely "conservatism" of Senator Bayard as their guide, it will not be because of any failure on our part to suitably warn them of the consequences. We do not believe they will be so infatuated. But if they should prove to be, we only ask that our protest may be recorded and our prediction borne in mind.

Again, we state that if this Congress fails to repeal the election law, or, in default of repeal, fails to force Hayes to the wall, and obediently votes him the money he needs to carry out his infamous designs, the Democratic party will not control the organization of the Forty sixth House of Representatives, and, when that body meets, seven of its members elect will be serving out sentence in the penitentiary if there is force enough to put them there in accordance with the sentences of packed juries and corrupt judges.

* * *

Persons applying for arrears of pension need not send their Pension Certificate. A letter in the following form is all that is necessary in presenting their claim.

"TO THE COMMISSIONER OF PENSIONS: I, ——, a pensioner under pension certificate No. —, hereby apply for the arrears due me, under the act granting arrears of pension, approved January 25, 1879. My post-office address is [here insert the name of the post-office, and if the claimant resides in a city, the name and number of the street and residence must also be given.] Name of claimant.]

[Two witnesses.]

State of ——, County of ——, ss.: Signed in my presence by ——, who is known to me to be the person he describes himself to be, and at the same time he exhibited to me his pension certificate, which is numbered—.
[Magistrate's signature.]

Official Thieves.

[New York Sun.]

The thieves who stole the Presidency, from the highest to the lowest, have been rewarded with office, and to-day they are all quartered in the Treasury, drawing pay in proportion to the services they rendered, whether as counsel, or as experts in fraud, forgery and perjury, from John Sherman down to the husband of Agnes Jenks. A quarter of a million a year is required for the salary alone of these rogues, to say nothing of the other spoils they enjoy in contracts, jobs, and the vast operations of the Treasury.

It was quite regular, therefore, and entirely consistent with the nature of the Fraudulent Administration, that the thieves who stole the Democratic cipher despatches and destroyed those of the Republicans should also be billeted on the regular budget. The appointment of Bullock as Consul to Cologne was a recognition of his devotion to "the cause," which the Republican Congressmen from Indiana, aided by Brady and Tyner of the post office department, secured as a share of the patronage due to that State.

Bullock, in a letter to the Hon. J. L. Evans of Indiana, in whose custody he left the stolen telegrams, and who transferred them to the keeping of the Very Hon. Thomas J. Brady, Second assistant Post-mater General, says: "You know the opposition papers would make all sorts of changes of how I got them, and it might result in my losing my position here." The Consul in his anxiety, was unduly exercised in mind when he wrote this confidential communication to his friend in the House of Representatives. His merit, and only ground of appointment, was the theft of the despatches. Consequently he may dismiss all fears about removal, while Mr. Evarts is laboriously engaged in extending our commerce abroad, and wants agents who understand that business.

Brady, too, is not only quite sure of being retained, but may aspire to promotion. He went to the committee room of Privileges and Elections of the Senate, where Republican politicians had free run, and "carried of," as he mildly describes it, the telegrams which he had sent from Florida, when he went there by Grant's order to prop up the Returning Board Rascals. He did not steal them, of course. A Second Assistant Postmaster General, trained in the school of the late Oliver P. Morton, would not be guilty of that sort of indiscretion. He merely took them away and kept them, knowing that the despatches were delivered by the Western Union Company to the Senate Committee under a commanding subpœna, and that taking them without formal authority, secreting them as he did, and treating them as his personal property, was a felony which should send him to the penitentiary.

All the great mail contracts pass through the hands of Brady, and it is notorious that he and Tyner practically run the Post Office Department, control its policy, and direct the bulk of the forty thousand appointments. Mr. Key is little more than a figurehead, and his want of the experience which these men have had make him an easy, if not a willing, instrument in their hands.

After these developments, which excite no surprise among those familiar with the previous practices of Tyner and Brady, the public will form an opinion as to the safety of correspondence passing through the mails, which might attract the interest of these patriots. They belong to a shade of the Indiana politician, which that State has been so prolific in producing in almost every variety, from Morton, Colfax, Holloway, Tyner, Brady, Hanna, Browne, and Hunter down to Bullock, who is not a particle worse than the rest of them, though he did steal the cipher telegrams, which Brady only "carried off" those found in his possession nearly two years after they were supposed to have been returned to the Western Union.

* * *

Spencerville Items.

[Last week.]

Hon. S. S. Shutt returned home Saturday evening just in time to witness the birth of a son.

—Mr. and Mrs. G. Barney are ill.

—Happy father—a son to Mr. and Mrs. A. Kinsey.

—Frank is out of business, and Will K. has knocked the sole off, and does not buy goods at the lower end store.

* * *

Of the $45,000,000 of fractional paper currency issued by the Government, about $16,000,000 is yet outstanding. It is estimated that not more than $4,000,000 will ever be presented for redemption, which will leave $12,000,000 profit to the Government, that amount having been lost or destroyed.

A Thirst for Knowledge.

Edward Eggleston, writing in SCRIBNER for March, of "Some Western School-master," tells this anecdote:

"While the good Presbyterian minister was teaching in our village, he was waked up one winter morning by a poor bound boy, who had ridden a farm horse many miles to get the "master" to show him how to "do a sum" that had puzzled him. The fellow was trying to educate himself but was required to be back at home in time to begin his day's work as usual. The good master chafing his hands to keep them warm, sat down by the boy and expounded the "sum" to him so that he understood it. Then the poor boy straightened himself up and, thrusting his hard hand into the pocket of his blue jeans trowsers, pulled out a quarter of a dollar, explaining, with a blush, that it was all he could pay, for it was all he had. Of course the master made him put it back, and told him to come whenever he wanted any help. I remember the huskiness of the minister's voice when he told us about it in the school that morning. When I recall how eagerly people sought for opportunities of education, I am not surprised to hear that Indiana, of all the states, has today one of the largest, if not the largest school fund."

* * *

A Successful Specialist.

Any one who has seen the rivalry of the contestants in a westrn spelling-school will appreciate this incident from Edward Eggleston's reminiscences of his school-days, published in the March Scribner. He says:

It was in the same old Bethel school-house, about the same time, that the master, one Benefield, call out the spelling class of which my mother, then a little girl, was usually at the head. The word given out was "onion." I suppose the scholars at the head of the class had not recognized the word spelling it in studying their lessons. They all missed it widely, spelling it in the most ingenious incorrect fashions. Near the foot of the class stood a boy who had never been able to climb up toward the head. But of the few words he did know how to spell, one was "onion." When the word was missed at the head he became greatly excited; twisting himself into the most ludicrous contortions as it came nearer and nearer to him. At length the one just above the eager boy missed, the master said 'next,' whereupon he exultingly swung his hand above his head and came out with: "O-n, un, i-o-n, yun, ing-un,—I'm head, by gosh!" and he marched to the head while the master hit him a blow across the shoulders for swearing.

* * *

A Word to Farm Laborers.

(Indiana Farmer.)

It is important to impress upon young men who are seeking employment the truth that it pays to form good habits. The idea too often prevails among this class that it makes but little difference upon a man's business prospects how he spends his minority. No matter what habits he forms, or what excesses he indulges in if only he is a good workman he expects to succeed in getting employment and good wages. But employers even of farm hands, have more regard to the character and morals of those they hire than the latter often suspect. Not long since one of our subscribers, a prominent farmer in the eastern part of the State, was telling us of his method with hands who wished to hire to him. He questioned them closely about their habits, as to temperance and good morals. Profanity, disregard of the Sabbath and the use of liquor or tobacco were sufficient to rule out any one applying to hire. If the record of the applicant is clear on these points our friend gives him a trial, and if he finds him a competent workman, intelligent in his duties, industrious and faithful, he makes an advance upon his wages. He regularly pays his men two dollars a month above the average rate paid to other farm hands in his neighborhood, because he values good morals as well as good labor, and is willing to pay a bonus for respectability and good character. His present hired man is a fair musician and helps to instruct and entertain the family by his accomplishments. While he is a faithful laborer in the fields and trusty with the stock, his worthy character is of great value to the children of the family. His example is one to be imitated by them, and not, as is too often the case, one to be held up as a warning. Many a young man who knows himself to be a competent workman fails to secure employment because his habits are such as to unfit him to be the companion of children. Profanity, obscenity, a disregard for God's day as well as intemperance and uncleanly habits, have kept many a young man from securing good places, good pay and advancement. It pays to be moral.

How to Shoe Horses.

As so much mischief results from ignorance as to how shoes should be put on the feet of our horses, we give place to the following good horse sense directions, which we find in the Prairie Farmer:

"Why do we shoe horses? It is because we at the present day have macadamized and paved roads and streets, and the horse's feet can not stand the hard work required of him, barefooted. Consequently we put iron on them to protect them, the same as ferules on canes, tires on wagons, etc. When we put iron on a horse's feet we should put it on so that it will not be a source of torture instead of a benefit. The way to shoe a horse properly is to first take a look at the foot, and find out what it is made of, and try to come to some rational understanding as to the intention of the Creator when he made it and leave it as we find it except to protect the wall against wear, and prevent them from slipping. For, if we undertake to improve on what the Creator has done, I think we will fail. The way I shoe a horse is this: Look and see if the foot stands in a natural position, so that he stands upright as we do. If so, level the wall to receive the shoe, and nothing more. Never cut the frog braces and sole, nor the heels; let nature do its own work. If let alone, once in six weeks or two months, the frog braces and sole will shed. Make the shoes light at the toe, heavy at the heels (for the heels are the tender part of the foot). Put the nails well forward of the quarters. Use light nails; concave the shoe until you get to the quarters to protect the soles. Then convex the heels a little, and you can not make norrow heels, corns, quarter cracks or contracted feet. Fit the shoe cold, and fit it to the foot, not the foot to the shoe. Follow the wall nicely; fit the shoe as broad as you can; bring the heels around to the frog, but not touch it. Never make the shoes longer than the foot; never use bar shoes. In every case they are wrong and hurtful. Never rasp the outside wall; for you destroy the glass or enamel that protects it against decay, and prevents it from growing rough and ridged. This improper method of shoeing is the cause of more lameness than any other one thing. It causes corns quarter cracks, and contracted feet. Whosoever pares or allows to be pared a horses' sole, brace or frog, and burns the foot with a hot shoe, or puts clips on the shoes in front or sides is guilty of cruelty to the horse whose foot is so mutilated. No frog, no foot; no foot, no horse.

* * *

Attendance at the Schools.

We publish this week a list of the names of pupils in Auburn schools who were neither absent nor tardy during the five weeks ending Feb. 7th.

HIGH SCHOOL.

Cora Shugars, M. I. Hoffman, Eliza Stahl, Melissa Turner, Rebecca Shull, Jas. McClellan.

SCHOOL OF MISS POWERS.

Flora Hoffman, Mary Griswold, Bertie Robbins, Saxby McIntosh, Bell Lanning, Louie Henry, Albert Houghton, Ida Swihart, Lillie Lobmiller.

SCHOOL OF MISS DANIELS.

Katie Otto, Frances Otto, Ada Spake, James Hoffman, Charles Ervin, Marion Willis, Althea Houghton, Nanie Peterson, Cora Widney.

SCHOOL OF MISS CLARK.

Harry Rainier, Willie Culbertson, Charles Rice, Cora Culbertson, Dora Jones, Lena Cloy, Minna Mitchell, Geo. Clark, George Hoffman, John Thomas, Clara Altenberg, Freddy Lobmiller.

SCHOOL OF MISS M'TRIGH.

Blanche Peterson, Jennie Jones, Maggie Snyder, Lewis Willis, Harry Henry, Asa Brandon, Eugene Gerardot, J. E. Jones, Jno. Clark, Wright Armstrong, Oliver Fulman, Wm. Fox, Lettie Kinmont.

SCHOOL OF MISS TRITCH.

Jona Treesh, Henry Cloy, Hannah Bennington, Anna Strebe, Eva Ensley, Lillie Grosh, Rilla Hollopeter, Estella Hague, Katie Berg, Eddie Mason, Chas Hoffman.

The following named pupils have not been absent nor tardy since the opening of the schools in September.

M. I. Hoffman, high school.
Flora Hoffman,	A	intermediate
James Hoffman,	C	"
Louie Henry	B	"
Nannie Peterson	D	"
George Clark	A	primary
Blanche Peterson	B	"
Eugene Gerardot	C	"
Eva Ensley	D	"

M. SEILER, Supt.

* * *

Wood Wanted.

Our subscribers will please bring in their wood now, which they intend to apply on subscription. Bring it now

The Origin and Use of the Motto, "E Pluribus Unum."

Mr. A. Loudon Snowden, of Philadelphia, thus discribes the origin and use of the motto, E Pluribus Unum: "It is ascribed to Colonel Reed, of Uxbridge, Mass. It first appeared on a copper coin, struck at Newburg, New York State, where there was a private mint. The pieces struck are dated 1786, in 1787 the motto appeared on several types of the New Jersey coppers, also on a very curious gold doubloon, or sixteen dollar piece, coined by a goldsmith named Brashier. It was there put 'Unum E Pluribus.' Only four of these pieces are known to be extent, and they are very valuable. One of them, in possession of the mint, is supposed to be worth over $2,000. When Kentucky was admitted, in 1791, it is said copper coins were struck, with 'E Pluribus Unum.' They were in England. The act of Congress of 1792, authorizing the establishment of a Mint and the coinage of gold, silver and copper, did not prescribe this motto, nor was it ever legalized. It was placed on gold coins in 1796, and on silver coins in 1798. It was constantly used thereafter until 1836, when it was withdrawn from the quarter dollar of new device. In 1834 it was dropped from gold coins to mark the change in the standard fineness of the coin. In 1837 it was dropped from the silver coins, marking the era of the revised Mint Code. It has been thought proper to restore it recently to our new silver dollar, without any sanction of law, although the expression is one very proper for our coin."

* * *

A Simile from Niagara.

And in thus commencing the growing history of the present with the possible history of the future, may I be allowed to use a figure which I employed in one of my farewell speeches to my kind American hosts? In that memorable hour—memorable in the life of every one as the moment when he first sees the pyramids of Egypt or the Alps of Switzerland—when I first stood before the cataracts of Niagara, it seemed to me that the scene which I witnessed was not an unapt likeness of the fortunes of America. It was midnight: the moon was full, and I saw from the vast bridge which spans the river the ceaseless contortion, confusion, whirl, and chaos, which burst forth in clouds foam from that central chasm which divides the American from the British dominion, and as I looked on that ever changing movement, and listened to that everlasting roar, it seemed an emblem of the fermenting, perplexed bewildering activity, the ceaseless restless beating whirlpool of existence in the United States. But into the moonlight sky there rose a cloud of spray, twice as high as the Falls themselves—silent majestic, immovable. That silver column, glittering in the moonlight, seemed an image of the future of American history—of the upward, heaven aspiring destiny which should emerge from the distractions of the present.—Dean Stanley.

* * *

"Came to his death at the hands of parties to the jury unknown," was the verdict in the case of J. E. Santee, Clerk of Brazoria County, Texas. Previous to the recent election, Santee had received anonymous letters warning him that, should he be elected and attempt to fill the office, he would be killed. Santee was elected. On the morning of Saturday, January 25th, while in a lot in the rear of his office, Santee was struck by ten buckshot. He died the next day. No arrests have been made, and another has been added to the long list of unavenged murders in Texas.

* * *

A Remarkable Result.

It makes no difference how many physicians, or how much medicine you have tried, it is now an established fact that German Syrup is the only remedy which has given complete satisfaction in severe cases of lung disease. It is true there are yet thousands of persons who are predisposed to throat and lung affections, consumption, hemorrhages, asthma, severe colds settled on the breast, pneumonia, whooping cough, &c., who have no personal knowledge of Boschee's German Syrup. To such we would say that 50,000 dozen were sold last year without one complaint. Consumptives, try just one bottle. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by Wm. McIntyre & Son.

Sick Headache

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively Cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, &c. They regulate the Bowels and prevent Constipation and Piles. The smallest and easiest to take. Only one pill a dose. 40 in a vial. Purely Vegetable. Price 25 cents. Sold by all Druggists.

CARTER MEDICINE CO., Prop'rs, Erie, Pa.
Five Vials by mail for one dollar.

EVERYBODY IS GOING!

GRAND CONCERT

Will be given at the

BOOT UP-SIDE DOWN!

Commencing Saturday morning

FEBRUARY 15, '79

And continuing for sixty days and evenings.

Admission Free!

The exercises will consist of a distribution of 500 pairs of the very best custom made

KIP BOOTS, WATER PROOF,

And every pair warranted for four months, at

ACTUAL MANUFACTURERS COST.

This is no humbug; we mean just what we say, for we must have room for our spring stock.

Mens'	hand-made	kip	boots,	$2.25	former	price	$3.00
"	"	"	"	2.50	"	"	3.25
"	"	"	"	2.75	"	"	3.50
"	"	"	"	3.00	"	"	3.75
"	"	"	"	1.50	"	"	2.00

Womens' shoes from 90c to $2.50.

All other goods 25 per cent. below all competition. Come early and get some of these bargains, at the

BOOT UPSIDE DOWN

AUBURN COURIER EXTRA.

EVERYBODY IS GOING.

A GRAND CONCERT

WILL BE GIVEN AT THE

BOOT UP-SIDE DOWN

Commencing Saturday Morning, Feb. 15th, and continuing for sixty days and evenings.

ADMISSION FREE!

The exercise will consist of a distribution of 500 pair of the very best custom made

KIP BOOTS, WATER PROOF,

And every pair warranted for four months, at ACTUAL Manufacturers COST. This is no humbug; we mean just what we say, for we must have room for our spring stock.

Mens' hand-made kip boots............	$2.25	former price $3.00
“ “ “ “	2.50	“ “ 3.25
“ “ “ “	2.75	“ “ 3.50
“ “ “ “	3.00	“ “ 3.75
“ “ “ “	1.50	“ “ 2.00

Womens' shoes from 90c to $2.50.

All other goods 25 per cent. below all competition. Come early and get some of these bargains, at the

Boot Up-Side Down.

AUBURN COURIER EXTRA.

Excelsior Hardware.

Another Slash in Prices of

GENERAL HARDWARE!

DOORS, SASH, GLASS, PAINTS, OILS
LOCKS, HINGES, &C.

Prices Lower Than Ever

Those who contemplate building this season will do well to call on us for your

BUILDING MATERIAL!

First-class Tin Workman in connection with business. All kinds of Tin Work put up on short notice.

100,000 Tile for Sale.

W. H. KIBLINGER & CO.

Ensley's Block, North side of the Public Square, Auburn, Indiana.

Recorders Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 9. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, FEBRUARY 27, 1879. Number 9.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

THE COURIER CO.

THEODORE REED, Editor.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will be inserted under this head for $5,00 per annum For each additional line 50 cents extra will b charged.

ATTORNEYS.

H. C. Peterson.

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

Guy Plumb,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over First National, Bank. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for the Home Insurance Company

A. F. Pinchin

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

Thos. H. Sportt.

REAL ESTATE, COLL ION AND INSURance Agent. Loans ected on improved farms. Kansas lands for or trade. Auburn, Indiana

D D. Mo

ATTORNEYS' NOTAR Y PUBlic Office in , Auburn, Ind.

Best & McClellan,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Wate o, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of I alb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances de on all first-class Claims left in our hands for c llection.

PHYSICIANS.

Dr. J. Miller,

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON AND ACCOUCHER. Gunsenhouser's Corners, two miles east of Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind.

Dr. T. G. Matheny,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, OFFICE ONE Door North of City Bakery, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

Dr. W. S. Allen,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main-Street, over Eldridge's store, Auburn, Ind.

Drs. Cowan & Allyn,

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, OFFICE over McIntyre & Son's, Drug Store, 1st door south of First National Bank, Auburn, Ind.

Dr. T. J. Dills,

Especial attention given to Diseases of the EYE and EAR. Rooms 1 and 2 Odd Fellows' building. Office hours—9:30 to 12 a. m.; 1 to 3 p. m., 7 to 8 p. m. Fort Wayne, Ind.

Dr. T. W. Tritch.

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block. Auburn, Indiana.

Dr. S. B. Johnson,

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

D. J. Swarts, M. D.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO DISEASEs of the Eye and Ear, Fistula in Ano, Hemorrhoids or Piles and Chronic Ulcers. Office on Main street, over Shaffer's Furniture Store, Auburn, Ind.

HOTELS.

Mayer House.

Fort Wayne, Indiana Under the Management of W. W. REED, rates, two dollars per day. Street Cars to and from the Pittsburgh, Wabash and Grand Rapids R. R. Depots.

S. BRUBAKER,
W. W. REED, JR., } In Office.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

TENTH STREET. EAST OF MAIN. GOOD Sample rooms, and low rates.
T. D. Gross. Prop'r Auburn, Ind,

Sands House,

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished Only $2.00 per day.
GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk. O. SANDS, Proprietor

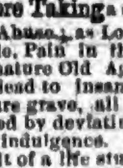
Tonsorial Artist.

HAIRDRESSING AND SHAVING EXECUted with special care, and in good taste. Room on West Seventh street. WM. EDGINGTON Prop'r. Auburn, Ind.

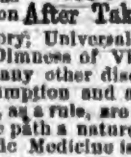
The Great English Remedy.

GRAY'S SPECIFIC MEDICINE

TRADE MARK. TRADE MARK.



Before Taking



After Taking

Is especially recommended as an unfailing cure for Seminal Weakness, Spermatorrhea Impotency and all diseases that follow as a sequence on Self Abuse; as Loss of Memory, Universal Lassitude, Pain in the Back, Dimness of Vision, Premature Old Age, and many other diseases that lead to Insanity, Consumption and a premature grave, all of which, as a rule, are first caused by deviating from the path a nature and over indulgence. The Specific Medicine is the result of a life study and many years of experience in treating these special diseases.

Full particulars in our pamphlets, which we desire to send free by mail to every one.

The Specific Medicine is sold by all druggists at $1 per package or 6 packages for $5, will be sent by mail on receipt of the money by addressing. THE GRAY MEDICINE CO.
No. 10 Mechanic's Block, Detroit, Mich.

☞ Sold in Auburn by F. E. Davenport, and druggists everywhere.

Something to Think About.

[Washington Post, Feb. 12.]

In the absence of any formal test on the floor of the House, and judging solely from the drift of comment on the part of individual members and senators since the joint caucus, of Monday night, we are reluctantly compelled to admit that while there is no serious doubts as to the repeal of the jurors' test oath, the far more important question of repealing the Federal election law is still unsettled. The unfortunate and, as it seems to us at this time, almost suicidal attitude assumed by Senator Bayard appears to have found adherents in the house; not many indeed, but enough to joepardize the narrow majority which enables the Democratic party to protect the rights and conserve the liberties of citizens. We have already pointed out the reasons why we consider a repeal of the election law absolutely vital and that of the test oath merely secondary or subordinate in relative importance.

The bill most available as an instrumentality of repeal—the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill—is now under consideration, and a test vote on the matter under discussion is likely to be reached this week. It seems to us that, after the speech of Hale, on Tuesday, there ought to be no further doubt among Democrats as to their duty. But when a repeal of the election law is urged, there are a few Democrats who meet it with set repetition of the unfortunate doctrine advanced by Mr. Bayard, to the effect that it would be "revolutionary," "contrary to usage" and "violent."

Very well. We will not attempt to argue the case. But we will say that unless that election law is repealed; unless the desperate hand of frantic Radicalism is stayed now, and stayed with an emphasis admitting of no cavil as to its meaning, the next House will not be organized as a Democratic body.

The Radical programme, fully resolved upon and completely calculated is this: To carry all four of the California districts by the aid of the corruption fund and the election law; to buy or bribe with chairmanships and executive patronage, all the Independents Nationals and Greenbackers elected in the next House; and, finally, to indict, convict and imprison, under the election law, seven Democratic members elect. The men selected for this treatment are King, of Louisiana, and Hull, of Florida, who are already under indictment; Elam, of Louisiana; Shelley, of Alabama; Connor, of South Carolina; Chalmers, of Mississippi, and one other, to be chosen out of three or four names now under consideration by the chief prefect of the national police, under our present imperial form of Government, Devens!

This is all we have to offer. We hope the Democrats in the House will fully consider what they are doing, and what the consequences will be, before they act. And we repeat that if this Congress passes the appropriation bills, leaving the election law unrepealed, the speaker and committee chairman of the next House will not be Democrats.

If, in the face of facts like these, the Democratic majority in the House choose to accept the untimely "conservatism" of Senator Bayard as their guide, it will not be because of any failure on our part to suitably warn them of the consequences. We do not believe they will be so infatuated. But if they should prove to be, we only ask that our protest may be recorded and our prediction borne in mind.

Again, we state that if this Congress fails to repeal the election law, or, in default of repeal, fails to force Hayes to the wall, and obediently votes him the money he needs to carry out his infamous designs, the Democratic party will not control the organization of the Forty sixth House of Representatives, and, when that body meets, seven of its members elect will be serving out sentence in the penitentiary if there is force enough to put them there in accordance with the sentences of packed juries and corrupt judges.

* * *

Persons applying for arrears of pension need not send their Pension Certificate. A letter in the following form is all that is necessary in presenting their claim.

"TO THE COMMISSIONER OF PENSIONS: I, ——, a pensioner under pension certificate No. —, hereby apply for the arrears due me, under the act granting arrears of pension, approved January 25, 1879. My post-office address is [here insert the name of the post-office, and if the claimant resides in a city, the name and number of the street and residence must also be given.] Name of claimant.]

[Two witnesses.]

State of ——, County of ——, ss.: Signed in my presence by ——, who is known to me to be the person he describes himself to be, and at the same time he exhibited to me his pension certificate, which is numbered—. [Magistrate's signature.]

Official Thieves.

[New York Sun.]

The thieves who stole the Presidency, from the highest to the lowest, have been rewarded with office, and to-day they are all quartered in the Treasury, drawing pay in proportion to the services they rendered, whether as counsel, or as experts in fraud, forgery and perjury, from John Sherman down to the husband of Agnes Jenks. A quarter of a million a year is required for the salary alone of these rogues, to say nothing of the other spoils they enjoy in contracts, jobs, and the vast operations of the Treasury.

It was quite regular, therefore, and entirely consistent with the nature of the Fraudulent Administration, that the thieves who stole the Democratic cipher despatches and destroyed those of the Republicans should also be billeted on the regular budget. The appointment of Bullock as Consul to Cologne was a recognition of his devotion to "the cause," which the Republican Congressmen from Indiana, aided by Brady and Tyner of the post office department, secured as a share of the patronage due to that State.

Bullock, in a letter to the Hon. J. L. Evans of Indiana, in whose custody he left the stolen telegrams, and who transferred them to the keeping of the Very Hon. Thomas J. Brady, Second assistant Post-mater General, says: "You know the opposition papers would make all sorts of changes of how I got them, and it might result in my losing my position here." The Consul in his anxiety, was unduly exercised in mind when he wrote this confidential communication to his friend in the House of Representatives. His merit, and only ground of appointment, was the theft of the despatches. Consequenty he may dismiss all fears about removal, while Mr. Evarts is laboriously engaged in extending our commerce abroad, and wants agents who understand that business.

Brady, too, is not only quite sure of being retained, but may aspire to promotion. He went to the committee room of Privileges and Elections of the Senate, where Republican politicians had free run, and "carried of," as he mildly describes it, the telegrams which he had sent from Florida, when he went there by Grant's order to prop up the Returning Board Rascals. He did not steal them, of course. A Second Assistant Postmaster General, trained in the school of the late Oliver P. Morton, would not be guilty of that sort of indiscretion. He merely took them away and kept them, knowing that the despatches were delivered by the Western Union Company to the Senate Committee under a commanding subpœna, and that taking them without formal authority, secreting them as he did, and treating them as his personal property, was a felony which should send him to the penitentiary.

All the great mail contracts pass through the hands of Brady, and it is notorious that he and Tyner practically run the Post Office Department, control its policy, and direct the bulk of the forty thousand appointments. Mr. Key is little more than a figurehead, and his want of the experience which these men have had make him an easy, if not a willing, instrument in their hands.

After these developments, which excite no surprise among those familiar with the previous practices of Tyner and Brady, the public will form an opinion as to the safety of correspondence passing through the mails, which might attract the interest of these patriots. They belong to a shade of the Indiana politician, which that State has been so prolific in producing in almost every variety, from Morton, Colfax, Holloway, Tyner, Brady, Hanna, Browne, and Hunter down to Bullock, who is not a particle worse than the rest of them, though he did steal the cipher telegrams, which Brady only "carried off" those found in his possession nearly two years after they were supposed to have been returned to the Western Union.

* * *

Spencerville Items.

[Last week.]

—Hon. S. S. Shutt returned home Saturday evening just in time to witness the birth of a son.

—Mr. and Mrs. G. Barney are ill.

—Happy father—a son to Mr. and Mrs. A. Kinsey.

—Frank is out of business, and Will K. has knocked the sole off, and does not buy goods at the lower end store.

* * *

Of the $45,000,000 of fractional paper currency issued by the Government, about $16,000,000 is yet outstanding. It is estimated that not more than $4,000,000 will ever be presented for redemption, which will leave $12,000,000 profit to the Government, that amount having been lost or destroyed.

A Thirst for Knowledge.

Edward Eggleston, writing in SCRIBNER for March, of "Some Western School-master," tells this anecdote:

"While the good Presbyterian minister was teaching in our village, he was waked up one winter morning by a poor bound boy, who had ridden a farm horse many miles to get the "master" to show him how to "do a sum" that had puzzled him. The fellow was trying to educate himself but was required to be back at home in time to begin his day's work as usual. The good master chafing his hands to keep them warm, sat down by the boy and expounded the "sum" to him so that he under stood it. Then the poor boy straightened himself up and, thrusting his hard hand into the pocket of his blue jeans trowsers, pulled out a quarter of a dollar, explaining, with a blush, that it was all he could pay, for it was all he had. Of course the master made him put it back, and told him to come whenever he wanted any help. I remember the huskiness of the minister's voice when he told us about it in the school that morning. When I recall how eagerly people sought for opportunities of education, I am not surprised to hear that Indiana, of all the states, has to-day one of the largest, if not the largest school fund."

* * *

A Successful Specialist.

Any one who has seen the rivalry of the contestants in a western spelling-school will appreciate this incident from Edward Eggleston's reminiscences of his school-days, published in the March Scribner. He says:

It was in the same old Bethel school-house, about the same time, that the master, one Benefield, call out the spelling class of which my mother, then a little girl, was usually at the head. The word given out was "onion." I suppose the scholars at the head of the class had not recognized the word spelling it in studying their lessons. They all missed it widely, spelling it in the most ingenious incorrect fashions. Near the foot of the class stood a boy who had never been able to climb up toward the head. But of the few words he did know how to spell, one was "onion." When the word was missed at the head he became greatly excited, twisting himself into the most ludicrous contortions as it came nearer and nearer to him. At length the one just above the eager boy missed, the master said 'next,' whereupon he exultingly swung his hand above his head and came out with: "O-n, un, i-o-n, yun, ing-un,—I'm head, by gosh!" and he marched to the head while the master hit him a blow across the shoulders for swearing.

* * *

A Word to Farm Laborers.

(Indiana Farmer.)

It is important to impress upon young men who are seeking employment the truth that it pays to form good habits. The idea too often prevails among this class that it makes but little difference upon a man's business prospects how he spends his minority. No matter what habits he forms, or what excesses he indulges in if only he is a good workman he expects to succeed in getting employment and good wages. But employers even of farm hands, have more regard to the character and morals of those they hire than the latter often suspect. Not long since one of our subscribers, a prominent farmer in the eastern part of the State, was telling us of his method with hands who wished to hire to him. He questioned them closely about their habits, as to temperance and good morals. Profanity, disregard of the Sabbath and the use of liquor or tobacco were sufficient to rule out any one applying to hire. If the record of the applicant is clear on these points our friend gives him a trial, and if he finds him a competent workman, intelligent in his duties, industrious, and faithful, he makes an advance upon his wages. He regularly pays his men two dollars a month above the average rate paid to other farm hands in his neighborhood, because he values good morals as well as good labor, and is willing to pay a bonus for respectability and good character. His present hired man is a fair musician and helps to instruct and entertain the family by his accomplishments. While he is a faithful laborer in the fields and trusty with the stock, his worthy character is of greater value to the children of the family. His example is one to be imitated by them, and not, as is too often the case, one to be held up as a warning. Many a young man who knows himself to be a competent workman fails to secure employment because his habits are such as to unfit him to be the companion of children. Profanity, obscenity, a disregard for God's day as well as intemperance and uncleanly habits, have kept many a young man from securing good places, good pay and advancement. It pays to be moral.

How to Shoe Horses.

As so much mischief results from ignorance as to how shoes should be put on the feet of our horses, we give place to the following good horse sense directions, which we find in the Prairie Farmer:

"Why do we shoe horses? It is because we at the present day have macadamized and paved roads and streets, and the horse's feet can not stand the hard work required of him, barefooted. Consequently we put iron on them to protect them, the same as ferules on canes, tires on wagons, etc. When we put iron on a horse's feet we should put it on so that it will not be a source of torture instead of a benefit. The way to shoe a horse properly is to first take a look at the foot, and find out what it is made of, and try to come to some rational understanding as to the intention of the Creator when he made it and leave it as we find it except to protect the wall against wear, and prevent them from slipping. For, if we undertake to improve on what the Creator has done, I think we will fail. The way I shoe a horse is this: Look and see if the foot stands in a natural position, so that he stands upright as we do. If so, level the wall to receive the shoe, and nothing more. Never cut the frog braces and sole, nor the heels; let nature do its own work. If let alone, once in six weeks or two months, the frog braces and sole will shed. Make the shoes light at the toe, heavy at the heels (for the heels are the tender part of the foot). Put the nails well forward of the quarters. Use light nails; concave the shoe until you get to the quarters to protect the soles. Then convex the heels a little, and you can not make norrow heels, corns, quarter cracks or contracted feet. Fit the shoe cold, and fit it to the foot, not the foot to the shoe. Follow the wall nicely; fit the shoe as broad as you can; bring the heels around to the frog, but not touch it. Never make the shoes longer than the foot; never use bar shoes. In every case they are wrong and hurtful. Never rasp the outside wall, for you destroy the glass or enamel that protects it against decay and prevents it from growing rough and ridged. This improper method of shoeing is the cause of more lameness than any other one thing. It causes corns quarter cracks, and contracted feet. Whosoever pares or allows to be pared a horses' sole, brace or frog, and burns the foot with a hot shoe; or puts clips on the shoes in front or sides is guilty of cruelty to the horse whose foot is so mutilated. No frog, no foot; no foot, no horse.

* * *

Attendance at the Schools.

We publish this week a list of the names of pupils in Auburn schools who were neither absent nor tardy during the five weeks ending Feb. 7th.

HIGH SCHOOL.

Cora Shugars, M. I. Hoffman, Eliza Stahl, Melissa Turner, Rebecca Shull, Jas. McClellan.

SCHOOL OF MISS POWERS.

Flora Hoffman, Mary Griswold, Bertie Robbins, Saxby McIntosh, Bell Lanning, Louie Henry, Albert Houghton, Ida Swihart, Lillie Lobmiller.

SCHOOL OF MISS DANIELS.

Katie Otto, Frances Otto, Ada Spake, James Hoffman, Charles Ervin, Marion Willis, Althea Houghton, Nanie Peterson, Cora Widney.

SCHOOL OF MISS CLARK.

Harry Rainier, Willie Culbertson, Charles Rice, Cora Culbertson, Dora Jones, Lena Cloy, Minna Mitchell, Geo. Clark, George Hoffman, John Thomas, Clara Altenberg, Freddy Lobmiller.

SCHOOL OF MISS M'TIGH.

Blanche Peterson, Jennie Jones, Maggie Snyder, Lewis Willis, Harry Henry, Asa Brandon, Eugene Gerardot, J. E. Jones, Jno. Clark, Wright Armstrong, Oliver Fulman, Wm. Fox, Lettie Kinmont.

SCHOOL OF MISS TRITCH.

John Treesh, Henry Cloy, Hannah Bennington, Anna Strebe, Eva Ensley Lillie Grosh, Rilla Hollopeter, Estella Hague, Katie Berg, Eddie Mason, Cass Hoffman.

The following named pupils have not been absent nor tardy since the opening of the schools in September.

M. I. Hoffman, high school.

Flora Hoffman,	A	intermediate
James Hoffman,	C	"
Louie Henry	B	"
Nannie Peterson	D	"
George Clark	A	primary
Blanche Peterson	B	"
Eugene Gerardot	C	"
Eva Ensley	D	"

M. SEILER, Supt.

* * *

Wood Wanted.

Our subscribers will please bring in their wood now, which they intend to apply on subscription. Bring it now

The Origin and Use of the Motto, "E Pluribus Unum."

Mr. A. Louden Snowden, of Philadelphia, thus discribes the origin and use of the motto, E Pluribus Unum: "It is ascribed to Colonel Reed, of Uxbridge, Mass. It first appeared on a copper coin, struck at Newburg, New York State, where there was a private mint. The pieces struck are dated 1786, in 1787 the motto appeared on several types of the New Jersey coppers, also on a very curious gold doubloon, or sixteen dollar piece, coined by a goldsmith named Brashier. It was there put 'Unum E Pluribus.' Only four of these pieces are known to be extent, and they are very valuable. One of them, in possession of the mint, is supposed to be worth over $2,000. When Kentucky was admitted, in 1791, it is said copper coins were struck, with 'E Pluribus Unum.' They were in England. The act of Congress of 1792, authorizing the establishment of a Mint and the coinage of gold, silver and copper, did not prescribe this motto, nor was it ever legalized. It was placed on gold coins in 1796, and on silver coins in 1798. It was constantly used thereafter until 1830, when it was withdrawn from the quarter dollar of new device. In 1834 it was dropped from gold coins to mark the change in the standard fineness of the coin. In 1837 it was dropped from the silver coins, marking the era of the revised Mint Code. It has been thought proper to restore it recently to our new silver dollar, without any sanction of law, although the expression is one very proper for our coin."

* * *

A Simile from Niagara.

And in thus commencing the growing history of the present with the possible history of the future, may I be allowed to use a figure which I employed in one of my farewell speeches to my kind American hosts? In that memorable hour—memorable in the life of every one as the moment when he first sees the pyramids of Egypt or the Alps of Switzerland—when I first stood before the cataracts of Niagara, it seemed to me that the scene which I witnessed was not an unapt likeness of the fortunes of America. It was midnight: the moon was full, and I saw from the vast bridge which spans the river the ceasless contortion, confusion, whirl, and chaos, which burst forth in clouds foam from that central chasm which divides the American from the British dominion, and as I looked on that ever changing movement, and listened to that everlasting roar, it seemed an emblem of the fermenting, perplexed bewildering activity, the ceasless, restless beating whirlpool of existence in the United States. But into the moonlight sky there rose a cloud of spray, twice as high as the Falls themselves—silent majestic, immovable. That silver column, glittering in the moonlight, seemed an image of the future of American history—of the upward, heaven aspiring destiny which should emerge from the distractions of the present.—Dean Stanley.

* * *

"Came to his death at the hands of parties to the jury unknown," was the verdict in the case of J. E. Santee, Clerk of Brazoria County, Texas. Previous to the recent election, Santee had received anonymous letters warning him that, should he be elected and attempt to fill the office, he would be killed. Santee was elected. On the morning of Saturday, January 25th, while in a lot in the rear of his office, Santee was struck by ten buckshot. He died the next day. No arrests have been made, and another has been added to the long list of unavenged murders in Texas.

* * *

A Remarkable Result.

It makes no difference how many physicians, or how much medicine you have tried, it is now an established fact that German Syrup is the only remedy which has given complete satisfaction in severe cases of lung disease. It is true there are yet thousands of persons who are predisposed to throat and lung affections, consumption, hemorrhages, asthma, severe colds settled on the breast, pneumonia, whooping cough, &c., who have no personal knowledge of Boschee's German Syrup. To such we would say that 50,000 dozen were sold last year without one complaint. Consumptives, try just one bottle. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by Wm. McIntyre & Son.

Sick Headache

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively Cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, &c. They regulate the Bowels and prevent Constipation and Piles. The smallest and easiest to take. Only one pill a dose. 40 in a vial. Purely Vegetable. Price 25 cents. Sold by all Druggists.

CARTER MEDICINE CO., Prop'rs, Erie, Pa.

Five Vials by mail for one dollar.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1879.

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

A FRIGHTFUL catastrophe is reported from Somerville, Me. Fabricius Hyster and his wife left home in the forenoon to do some trading, leaving their three children, aged 4, 2½, and 8 months, alone at home. By some means the house caught fire, and, before aid arrived, the building with the contents was destroyed, the three children perishing in the flames.

THE Knights of Labor is the name of a new secret society in the Pennsylvania coal regions, which is intended to take the place of the Mollie Maguires. The Catholic priests have arrayed themselves in opposition to it.

THERE is more trouble in the Vanderbilt family. Frederick W., the eldest son of William H. Vanderbilt, has married, against his father's wishes, Louise Holmes Anthony, the divorced wife of his own cousin, Alfred Torrance. The young man possesses $2,000,000 in his own right, left him by the old Commodore, and is, therefore, independent of his irate parent.

WILLIAM POOLE and Joseph Font were sentenced, in New York city, to State prison for life, in November, 1877, for the murder of John Ryan. Investigation shows that they are innocent men, and an application has been made to the Governor for their pardon.... A juror named Herman Deuben has been rendered insane by the exposition of a murdered man's bloody shirt, during a murder trial, in the city of New York.

THE WEST.

ONE man was killed and several severely injured by the explosion of a small steamer on the Muskingum river, between Zanesville and Marietta, Ohio....Hon. Solomon Blair, ex-Judge of the Superior Court of Indianapolis, and Chairman of the Indiana Republican State Central Committee, died at Indianapolis, last week.

CHICAGO elevators contain 7,463,635 bushels of wheat, 3,040,106 bushels of corn, 509,085 bushels of oats, 320,744 bushels of rye and 1,080,411 bushels of barley, making a total of 12,361,041 bushels, against 3,119,847 bushels at this period last year....The remnant of Dull Knife's band of Cheyenne Indians, who committed the depredations in Western Kansas last September, are now in confinement at Dodge City, awaiting trial for their crimes. Their names are Wild Hog, Old Crow, Big Head, Left Hand, Blacksmith, Porcupine and Nosey Walker. Left Hand and Wild Hog are both wounded, the latter's injuries have been inflicted by himself with a pair of scissors. They maintain a dignified silence and seldom move from a sitting position on the floor of their cells.

CATHOLIC BISHOP FOLEY, of the Diocese of Chicago, died in that city, a few days ago, aged 57 years. His disease was pneumonia. Until the appointment of a new Bishop, the diocese will be in charge of Rev. Dr. McMullen, Vicar General.

TWO FREIGHTERS—James Brady and Frank Hannon—were recently murdered by Indians between Deadwood and Rapid City, in the Black Hills.

THE SOUTH.

THE steamer A. C. Donnelly was recently burned in the Mississippi river below Cairo. Several of the passengers were crippled in the rush to escape from the burning craft.

A LITTLE Mississippi unpleasantness is thus mildly chronicled in a press telegram from Vicksburg: "A difficulty occurred at Johnsonville, Miss., between Col. Holman, Dr. Loury, Dr. Walker, and Mr. Arnold. The fight began by Holman shooting Loury. Arnold shot Holman, wounding him, then shot and killed Walker, and was himself in turn shot by Holman. Arnold and Loury have since died. Holman was arrested."

A DISPATCH from Atlanta, Ga., gives the following brief particulars of a shocking railway disaster: "A passenger train on the Selma, Rome and Dalton road, which had just left Selma, Ala., fell through a rotten bridge over Mulberry creek, thirteen miles from Selma. George Evans, a prominent young Alabamian, and four negroes were killed. Three white men were fatally hurt. M. Stanton, Superintendent of the road, is among those fatally wounded. Twenty-five persons were injured. Conductor White was terribly wounded. The sleeping-car did not go down with the wreck. All the rest of the train, including several freight cars and the engine, were smashed in one mass. The bridge was perfectly rotten and much indignation exists. The escape of so many is considered miraculous."

BALTIMORE has been greatly scandalized by the elopement of Lieut. Fletcher, of the navy, aged 40 years, and a married man, with a wife and two children, and Miss Bailey, a society belle, aged 18....The report that yellow fever has reappeared in New Orleans is denied in a statement signed by Dr. Choppin, Gov. Nicholls, Mayor Patton, and other prominent citizens.

A VIRGINIA constable, near Washington city, went with a posse of thirty-five men to the house of Felix Quanders (colored) for the purpose of serving a warrant. Quanders barricaded his doors. The constable ordered him to come out, but he declined. An attempt was made to fire the house. The posse then fired thirty-five shots into the house, wounding Quanders, Sr., his wife, two sons, the wife of one of the sons, and a female visitor. The constable was arrested and placed under bonds.

GENERAL.

CANADA has just been enjoying the coldest weather of the season, the mercury being frozen at many points.

THE New York authorities are taking measures to prevent the spread of whatever cattle disease may be found there. The mixing of healthy herds with those showing any indication of disease is prohibited, as is the use of infected stables or yards. Diseased cattle are to be quarantined or turned over to the scavengers.

HORACE MAYNARD, United States Minister to Turkey, has returned home on furlough.....Ever since the withdrawal of troops from Alaska the native Indians have been menacing the white settlers, and the latest accounts from Sitka represent that hostilities had actually commenced, and that the whites had appealed to the British authorities at Victoria to protect them from threatened extermination.

THE exports of provisions from the various ports of the United States during the month of January amounted in value to $10,-508,353—a decrease of about $2,500,000 from the amount of exports of provisions in January, 1878, when the total value was $13,008,023.

WASHINGTON.

THE President has appointed Horatio C. Burchard, the present member of Congress from the Fifth district of Illinois, to be Director of the Mints, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Dr. Linderman.

OF the $45,000,000 of fractional currency issued, there remains outstanding about $16,000,000, of which about $2,000,000 is 3 and 5 cents. It is now estimated that there will ultimately be redeemed only $4,000,000 of the $16,000,000, leaving $12,000,000 as profit to the Government, that amount being lost or destroyed.

OF the $45,000,000 of fractional paper currency issued by the United States, there remains outstanding about $16,000,000, of which amount about $3,000,000 is in 3 and 5-cent pieces. It is now estimated that there will ultimately be redeemed only $4,000,000 of the $16,000,000, leaving $12,000,000 as the profit to the Government, that amount being lost or destroyed.

THE demand for the 4-per-cent. bonds is so great that the Bureau of Engraving and Printing is forced to work night and day, Sundays as well as week days. The Government presses have not been so busy since the war.

THE report of the special committee appointed by the Senate to investigate the causes of the omission of the Hot Springs section from the enrolled Sundry Civil Appropriation bill last session says that all the evidence goes to show that the omission was a clerical error.

PUBLIC PRINTER DEFREES has written an open letter to Congressman Finlay, of Ohio, who recently investigated Defrees, and made quite a damaging report as to his conduct. Defrees' letter is quite caustic, and reviews in detail Finlay's report. It says that he lies, and shall be held responsible for its publication.

POLITICAL.

THE Democratic Senators, at a caucus held on the 14th inst., decided that it would not be expedient to do more than to attach to the appropriation bills the clause repealing the jurors' test oath, and as to the other matters that they can be postponed until the regular session. The Chairman of the caucus, Senator Wallace, was directed to notify the House Democratic caucus of this decision. This removes all danger of an extra session.

ZACHARIAH CHANDLER was, on the 18th inst., elected United States Senator from Michigan to fill the vacancy created by Judge Christiancy's resignation. He received the vote of every Republican member of the Legislature. The Democrats supported Barnes, and the Greenbackers cast their votes for Chamberlin.

HULL, Democratic Congressman-elect from Florida, has been indicted by a United States Grand Jury for violation of the Election law, in connection with the late election in Florida.... The Prohibitionists of Ohio met in State Convention at Columbus the other day, and, after adopting a platform, nominated candidates for State officers. George T. Stewart was named for Governor.

FOREIGN.

ITALY is more panic-stricken by the reports of the plague than countries nearer Russia. The line of steamers between Italy and Egypt has been discontinued, and the importation of Egyptian cotton is prohibited.... A cablegram from London says: "Edward O'Kelly, the last of the Fenian prisoners, was to-day discharged from Spike Island prison, in this harbor, on condition that he left the British isles. He sailed immediately for New York."

LONDON dispatches state that the British defeat in South Africa "was not altogether a surprise. The British troops were unprepared, but the triumph of the Zulus was owing to their pluck as well as numbers. Fifteen thousand Zulus, armed with swords, attacked the British. Under a murderous British fire the Zulus at first fell by hundreds, but the plucky savages in the rear, coming on, filled up the gaps and the vast horde still advanced until within charging distance, when they rushed in with desperate courage for a death struggle. Encumbered with long rifles and being outnumbered ten to one, the British were stricken down by the Zulus with their Roman blades in a hand-to-hand combat. The scene was a wild orgie of death—a massacre, yet a battle."

THE powers, replying to Russia, recognize Roumania's right to Arab-tabia, while regretting her hasty occupation.

RUSSIAN newspapers are compelled to suppress unfavorable plague news, under pain of being themselves suppressed....The application of the Socialist law to radical members of the German Parliament is about to begin. Permission was asked of the Chamber to arrest and prosecute one of the Socialist deputies for violation of the law.

THE Russians have commenced the evacuation of Turkey. The Turkish troops occupy the country as fast as the retrograde movement progresses.....The steamship Sorrento, which has arrived at Hull, England, from New York, lost eighty-one head of cattle and 163 head of sheep on the passage....The strike of iron and steel founders at Sheffield, England, has terminated, the men accepting a reduction in their wages. The dock-laborers' strike in Liverpool has also collapsed.....Advices from Afghanistan report everything quiet. Both armies seem to be resting for the winter....By a majority of more than 6,000 votes, the electors of the county of Cork, Ireland, have elected a pronounced home-ruler and land-tenure reformer to Parliament, the opposing candidate being his nephew, a large landholder and the possessor of the family estates.

THE first battalion of reinforcements for South Africa left England on the 20th of February, amid great enthusiasm. Other detachments have followed in rapid succession.... In England, the Royal College of Physicians ask the Government to appoint a Royal Commission of statesmen, physicians and specialists to investigate the plague in Russia. In St. Petersburg a commission is forming under Gen. Helfreich, specially to watch over the sanitary condition of the troops.

THE German Parliament, after an exciting debate, has adopted, almost unanimously, the motion of Herr Lasker contesting the correctness of the Government's interpellation of the Socialist law, and refusing the consent of the Reichstag to the proposed arrests of its members. In other words, they declare that they have some rights which even Bismarck shall respect.

THE Khedive of Egypt is having a peck of trouble. His army officers are clamoring for their long over-due pay, and threaten open revolt if it is not forthcoming, and his Cabinet Ministers have nearly all resigned in disgust....Late advices from the West Indies report another revolution in Hayti. In one engagement that took place by moonlight the Government forces lost thirty-five killed and eighty-nine wounded. The loss of the insurgents exceeded these figures, and all of the captured were promptly put to death.... News from South Africa is to the effect that the British forces in Zulu Land will confine their operations to the maintenance of the statu quo and the retention of the strategical position on the border until strongly reinforced....Reports from India state that the King of Burmah has murdered all the royal Princes and their entire families, and replaced the new Ministers with those formerly in office, thus restoring a despotic Government.

MRS. ELIZABETH LEOPOLD died in Graniteville, S. C., the other day, at the age of 107 years. Around her grave stood the only surviving son, a white-haired, bent man of four score; a grandchild of 56 years, several great-grandchildren over 40 years of age, a number of great-great-grandchildren, more than 25 years old, and some toddlers, great-great-great-grandchildren—five generations in all.

GEORGE F. ROBINSON, who, as a private soldier, was on duty at the house of Secretary Seward on the night of April 14, 1865, when the Secretary was attacked by Payne, is being worked into an army paymastership by Congressman Beebe. Robinson was given a medal by Congress some time ago for saving Mr. Seward's life.

WOLFE GILLESPIE, who fought under Napoleon at Waterloo, died in Americus, Ga., a few days ago. His age was 91 years.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

FEBRUARY 14.—The Senate consumed the day in discussing the bill to restrict Chinese immigration, without coming to a vote.——In the House, there was a wrangle over the bill, reported from the Committee on Military Affairs by Mr. Bragg, to place Gen. Shields on the retired list, which was ended by the matter being referred to the committee of the whole. The balance of the day was devoted to the consideration of private claims.

FEBRUARY 15.—After a long and animated debate the Senate passed, by a vote of 39 to 27, the House bill to restrict the immigration of Chinese. ....Mr. Allison introduced a bill to provide a sinking fund for bonds issued in pursuance of the act of Congress of June 20, 1874, known as 3.65 District of Columbia bonds.... Mr. McPherson presented a petition of the New Jersey Historical Society in favor of erecting a monument to Christopher Columbus by the republics of the Western Hemisphere, and that the United States take the initiative.——The House was engaged all day on the Legislative Appropriation bill.

FEBRUARY 17.—In the Senate, Mr. Windom presented a petition of colored people of Louisiana favoring the passage of his resolution in relation to the migration of blacks....The bill to provide for the construction of a bridge across the Missouri river at Decatur, Neb., was passed....The Senate was engaged the whole afternoon and till 1:20 o'clock at night in discussing the bill to amend the Internal Revenue law, the proposed reduction of the tax on tobacco constituting the bone of contention....The Senate in executive session confirmed John F. Hartranft as Postmaster of Philadelphia, and A. Louden Snowden as Superintendent of the Philadelphia Mint....The nomination of William Hays, to be Postmaster at St. Louis, was reported back from the committee without recommendation, the committee being equally divided as to the advisability of confirmation.——The House passed, under a suspension of the rules, the bill appropriating $26,-852,200 for the payment of the arrears of pensions. ....Mr. Hale offered a resolution directing the Committee on the Judiciary to report a joint resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to prohibit the payment of war claims except of persons loyal to the Union....The River and Harbor Appropriation bill was passed....Memorial exercises of the late Representative Schleicher were held in the evening.

FEBRUARY 18.—The Senate adopted a resolution to pay Joseph Segar $5,000 in full compensation for his expenses in prosecuting a claim to a seat as Senator from Virginia in 1863....The House bill to promote the knowledge of steam-engineering and iron ship-building among students of scientific schools or colleges was passed....The Revenue bill was discussed, amended, and finally passed, with the amendment reducing the tobacco tax to 16 cents. ——The House, after wasting nearly two hours on questions of precedence, took up the Census bill, and devoted the entire day session to its consideration....An evening session, lasting till past midnight, was devoted to the consideration of the Legislative Appropriation bill. There was a hot contest over the public land surveys. The matter as finally fixed up, leaves the bill in about this condition: The Coast Survey is transferred from the Treasury to the Interior Department, and the consolidated bureau is given charge of the geographical work of the Coast Survey and the Interior Department, and the special scientific surveys known as the Powell, the Hayden and the Wheeler surveys are abolished; and a new Bureau of Geological Surveys is created, with a chief to be appointed by the President. The Western men, under the lead of Patterson, of Colorado, and Page, of California, who did most of the work, defeated the Appropriation Committee in its effort to destroy the General Land Office, and the present land system. The surveys having been passed, the amendment to repeal the jurors' test-oath and the Federal Supervisor law authorizing the use of Deputy Marshals were moved, pending which the House adjourned.

FEBRUARY 19.—The Senate was engaged nearly all day on the Postoffice Appropriation bill. There was a sharp fight on the Brazilian mail-steamship subsidy, but no vote was reached in the matter.——The House resumed consideration of the Legislative Appropriation bill, the jurors' test-oath amendments being in order. Mr. Hale raised a point of order against the amendment, which was overruled. Various amendments were offered by the Republicans, but all were voted down. After a two-hours' struggle, the repeal was carried in the committee of the whole by a vote of 127 to 87. The next amendment repealing the Supervisors of Election law was then taken up. Mr. Hale opened the debate in opposition to the repeal, and raised a point of order against it. He characterized the action of the Democrats in trying to force such legislation through Congress as simply revolutionary, and said, speaking for the Republican side of the House, that every known parliamentary rule and device would be resorted to to prevent it from being passed. The Democrats defended the movement on the ground that the law which it was sought to repeal, instead of preserving the purity of the ballot-box, furnished out of the national treasury a campaign fund for either party which might be in power to corrupt an election. The debate was long and spirited, but without reaching a vote on the proposition the House adjourned.

FEBRUARY 20.—In the Senate, the Army Appropriation bill was reported back from the committee, divested of all the army reorganization sections inserted by the House....Mr. Shields delivered a speech in favor of the bill granting pensions to the surviving soldiers of the Mexican war.... The Senate had a long fight over the Brazilian Mail - subsidy amendment to the Postoffice Appropriation bill, lasting until after midnight. The scheme was finally adopted, the bill passed, and the Senate adjourned at 1 o'clock a. m.——The House spent the entire day in considering the Florida contested-election case of Finley vs. Bisbee. A resolution was adopted unseating Horace Bisbee (Republican) and seating the Democratic contestant, John J. Finley....An evening session was held, which was devoted to memorial services in honor of the deceased members—Williams, of Michigan, and Welch, of Nebraska.

The Battle of the Dug-Out.

Mr. Campbell unearthed the remains of a human arm on his claim, last Friday, while digging a stable. The claim lies in the vicinity of the old Skunk Johnson dug-out, two miles north of Avery's ranch, on the Ninnescah. Skunk Johnson was an aged trapper who hunted buffalo and game in this vicinity years ago, and made his calling an employment that proved quite lucrative. His home consisted of a dug-out 8x10 feet in size, chiseled in a perpendicular embankment of solid gypsum twenty feet high. The entrance was just large enough to admit the body of a man, and afforded the only light or ventilation, save that that came down the chimney. Here the old man lived and whiled away several years of his lonely and uneventful life. During the time the Indians made a raid and came across the old man and his poor and unpretentious little home. They first endeavored to gain admittance by persuasion, then resorted to force, but without avail, Johnson persistently "holding the fort," and repulsing his assailants with some loss. The Indians remained in the vicinity nine days, during which time hunger drove the prisoner to eating a skunk to sustain life, from which he derived his peculiar nick-name. They finally abandoned their object, however, and the old man lived to relate the circumstance. Three or four years ago, as emigration set in, he gave up the old hunting ground and moved on further west. The bones found last Friday are supposed to be a portion of the remains of one of the Indians slain in the memorable battle of Skunk Johnson's dug-out.—Pratt County (Kan.) Press.

THE horses in Norway do not drink their pailful of water at one draught, but, when a bucket of water is placed beside their allowance of hay, they take a sip of one and a mouthful of the other, sometimes merely moistening their mouths. A broken-winded horse is seldom seen in Norway.

THE BLENNERHASSETTS.

Melancholy Sequel to the History of a Once Celebrated Family.

[From the Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Maria P. Woodbridge, a resident of Marietta, describes in Lippincott's Magazine the secret to some of the most romantic and painful events of which the West has been the theater.

Our readers generally know how Harmon Blennerhassett lived in ease on an island in the Upper Ohio; how his wife was admired for her beauty and kindness, and how her husband's connection with Aaron Burr brought ruin upon the family. The subsequent fortunes of the Blennerhassetts is less familiar to the public, and it is of them that the author has written. Mr. Blennerhassett joined Burr on the night of Dec. 10, 1806, to escape arrest. He was followed by his wife a week later. A party of drunken soldiers had already taken possession of the house and spread desolation all around. By the 1st of January Mrs. Blennerhassett had joined her husband. The Burr expedition proved a failure, and they went to Natchez. The husband was arrested, but acquitted. He then returned to the North, only again to be set at liberty after several weeks' confinement. Meanwhile a flood had added its effects to the vandalism of the marauders, who had stripped the house of its furniture and broken its window-frames to get possession of the leaden weights; his negroes had either been sold to satisfy impatient creditors, or had escaped to the Ohio shore. The island itself was in the possession of a Kentucky creditor, who devoted it to the cultivation of hemp. There was nothing to do but to go back to Natchez, where Mr. Blennerhassett bought a plantation. This he sold for $27,000, after the War of 1812 had crippled all branches of business. The above sum paid his debts, but little more. What remained of his island home was burned by the accidental ignition of the hemp with which it was stored. He took his family to New York, where he had a friend in his countryman, Thomas Addis Emmet. He did not succeed, however, in the practice of law, which he now took up, nor was he more prosperous in Montreal, whither he had removed at the recommendation of his friend the Duke of Richmond, then Governor General. He had been promised a Judgeship on the occurrence of the first vacancy, but none occurred. His once lovely wife is described about this time as having "lost every vestige of her former elegance and beauty," though, when animated by conversation, the interesting expression for which she was so remarkable would become noticeable.

As his law practice did not prosper, Mr. Blennerhassett tried to enforce a reversionary claim to property in Ireland, but was barred by the statute of limitations. Added to this was the grief which the dissipated habits of Dominick, the oldest of their three sons, occasioned. The second was amiable but helpless, while the third was too young to be of any service. Finding it impossible to make a living in Montreal, Mrs. Blennerhassett visited her friends, the Emmets, in New York, in 1822. They cheered her by their friendly counsels, but the misconduct of Dominick caused her fresh grief. He had studied medicine, and she finally obtained for him a position as surgeon's assistant in Commodore Porter's expedition then about to sail. He behaved so badly, however, that he was very soon sent back to her. She regarded him as almost irresponsible in his fearful appetite for drink, and placed him to board with a poor woman at $3.50 a week. Just as she and her husband were starting for Montreal, having discovered that there was no chance for employment in the States, it was found that Dominick had enlisted as a common soldier. His mother never saw him again. A friend of the family afterward found him wandering about New Orleans in rags. A position as apothecary in a charity hospital was found for him, but he soon left for St. Louis, where he probably died unknown and uncared for. Meanwhile her husband was making desperate efforts to gain a livelihood. He went to England and sought appointments in vain, and his threat of publishing a book containing scandalous revelations about a royal personage nearly related to the King proved an equal failure. Mrs. Blennerhassett published a little volume of her own entitled "The Widow of the Rock, and Other Poems," but it was a failure. Finally Mr. Blennerhassett's maiden sister gave them a home in England, though her means were but scanty. In 1831 the husband died of paralysis on the Island of Jersey. His wife, though shattered by physical and mental ills, survived him eleven years. Shortly before her death she revisited the United States, and urged on Congress a claim for compensation for the damage done by the troops to the Ohio river property in 1806-'7. The plea might have been successful, but she died in New York before it was granted. Harmon, the second son, had first studied law, but, failing in it, had become a portrait painter. He shared his elder brother's habits, and sank as low as he. He died in the alms-house, on Blackwell's island, in 1854, it is supposed directly from the effects of a bath, an unaccustomed thing with him. Joseph Lewis, the youngest and only remaining son, was a lawyer in Missouri, joined the Confederate service and died near the close of the late war. Thus ended the career of a family, which began life under the pleasantest circumstances.

Wolf Playing 'Possum.

Reuben Lowry, of Anderson county, Kansas, was out hunting wolves one day during the snow. He got track of a wolf, and with his dogs followed to the timber, where he overtook it, and the dogs and the wolf fought in the snow. Uncle Reuben, however, who was on horseback, managed to put a load of shot into the wolf. An old greyhound laid the wolf out on the snow apparently dead. Uncle Reuben had strings attached to his saddle behind to tie game to, and, lashing the carcass of the wolf to the saddle, he mounted for home. All unconscious of any difficulty, he awakened suddenly to the fact that the wolf had been playing 'possum, and was viciously snapping and making vigorous efforts to get away from the saddle-thongs. Uncle Reuben, of course, could not get off the horse to kill the wolf, and was in imminent danger of being bitten where he was. He had the presence of mind, however, to watch his opportunity, and grabbed the beast by the neck in such a manner that it could not bite, and held it there until he got home, where his grandson killed it.—Garnett (Kan.) Journal.

Shutting Out the Mongolians.

The following is the text of the bill to restrict the immigration of Chinese to the United States, as it passed Congress:

Be it enacted, etc., That no master of any vessel owned in whole or in part by a citizen of the United States, or by a citizen of any foreign country, shall take on board such vessel at any port or place within the Chinese empire or at any other foreign port or place whatever, any number exceeding fifteen Chinese passengers, whether male or female, with intent to bring such passengers to the United States, and leave such port or place and bring such passengers, to any number exceeding fifteen on one voyage, within the jurisdiction of the United States.

SEC. 2. That whenever a master or other person in charge of any such vessel takes on board the same at any foreign port or place any greater number of Chinese passengers than is prescribed in the first section of this act, with intent to bring such passengers to the United States, and leave such port and bring such passengers to any number exceeding fifteen on one voyage within the jurisdiction of the United States, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, for each passenger so taken on board and brought within the jurisdiction of the United States, exceeding the number of fifteen, be fined $100, and may also be imprisoned for not exceeding six months.

SEC. 3. That the master of any vessel arriving in the United States, or any of the Territories thereof, from any foreign place, whatever, at the same time that he delivers a manifest of the cargo, and, if there be no cargo, then at the time of making a report or entry of the vessel, pursuant to law, shall, in addition to other matters required to be reported by law, deliver and report to the Collector of the district in which such vessel shall arrive, a separate list of all Chinese passengers taken on board the vessel at any foreign port or place, and of all such passengers on board the vessel at that time. Such list shall be sworn to by the master in the same manner as directed by law in relation to the manifest of cargo, and the refusal or neglect of a master to comply with the provisions of this section shall receive the same penalties, disabilities, and perfectures as are provided for the refusal or neglect to report and deliver the manifests of cargo.

SEC. 4. That the amount of the several penalties imposed by the foregoing provisions shall be in liens on the vessels violating those provisions, and such vessels shall be libeled therefor in any Circuit or District Court of the United States where such vessel shall arrive.

SEC. 5. That nothing herein contained shall be held to repeal or modify any law forbidding the importation of coolies, or of females for immoral purposes, into the United States: provided, no Consul or Consular Agent of the United States, residing at any port from which any vessel taking Chinese passengers may take her departure, shall grant the certificate provided for in section 2,162 of the Revised Statutes for more than fifteen Chinese passengers in any one vessel.

SEC. 6. That this act shall not apply to persons officially connected with the Chinese Government or any embassy thereof, or to persons rescued from shipwreck during the voyage of and by a vessel bringing the same within the jurisdiction of the United States, or to the master of any vessel seeking a harbor in stress of weather, or to persons who may only seek temporary residence for educational purposes and who shall have a certificate from the Chinese Government for that purpose.

SEC. 7. That this act shall take effect from and after the 1st of July, 1879, and the President of the United States shall immediately, on the approval of this act, give notice to the Government of China of the abrogation of articles 5 and 6 of the additional articles of the treaty of June 18, 1858, between the United States and China, proclaimed Feb. 5, 1870, commonly called the Burlingame treaty.

PERSONALS.

BRIGHAM YOUNG'S grave is guarded still, night and day.

CONGRESSMAN TUCKER, of Virginia, is troubled with incipient cataract in both eyes.

JAMES GORDON BENNETT is coming home in time to play polo at Newport next summer.

ELIHU BURRITT, the learned blacksmith, is in very feeble health at his home in New Britain, Ct.

FERDINAND DE LESSEPS, the projector and constructor of the Suez canal, has been offered the Governorship of Algiers.

MISS MARY LEE, daughter of Gen. Robert E. Lee, was entertained at Gibralter by Lord and Lady Napier a few days ago.

LEGION MACDANIEL died near Columbia, S. C., recently, aged 120 years. He was a slave under the three Wade Hamptons.

STONEWALL JACKSON'S old sorrel war-horse, which bore his master under the moon on the fatal night at Chancellorsville, is still living at the Morrison homestead, in Lincoln county, N. C.

B. F. JONAS, the newly-elected United States Senator from Louisiana, will be the third Israelite who has occupied a seat in the forum. The others were David Yulee, of Florida, and Judah P. Benjamin, of Louisiana.

GEORGE ELIOT is said to be devoting all her time and energy to the completion of an additional work on the positive philosophy which Mr. Lewes left unfinished at his death, so that we need not expect many novels from her for a while.

THOMAS NAST, the caricaturist, was recently presented with a silver vase by a delegation of army and navy officers at the residence of Col. William E. Church, in New York. The testimonial was subscribed by 3,500 officers and enlisted men.

THE Marquis of Lorne and Princess Louise devote an hour to family devotions each evening, half an hour in the morning and a quarter of an hour at noon. The Marquis reads from the Church of England service and the Princess responds.

LAST fall many of the Southern States cured and put by home-made bacon enough to last them until the next hog-killing season. Bacon is the favorite meat for whites and blacks throughout the South; hitherto they had drawn it chiefly from Ohio.

SARAH MARIA WILLIAMS, who died six months ago, at Newburg, N.Y., threatened to haunt her husband, and he died a few days ago from ghostly visits. A son of the dead man, with his family, has been occupying the house lately, but he is now forced to retire, owing to unearthly visits.

1880.

What the Next Census Will Probably Reveal.

[Washington Cor. Cincinnati Commercial.]

By collecting all the information available, such as election returns for each year since the last census, and noting increase in vote and from State census reports (about one dozen States having taken censuses in 1865-6), and from carefully noting the movements of population into the Western States and to our shores from Europe—by collecting all this information, it is now possible to tell approximately what the population of the United States and Territories will be in 1880. Also what the increase will be to each State, and the effect of that increase upon representation in Congress and the Electoral College. The best estimates place the increase of population from 1870 to 1880 at 8,500,000, which would give us next year 47,058,371 population. If anything this estimate is below the mark, and is certainly safe to calculate upon. Provided the basis of representation is not changed, the increase in members of Congress and the Electoral College will be sixty-six. It is safe to figure upon the hypothesis that the basis will not be changed, for a change will make no difference as to the relative strength of the sections. As a matter of fact, it will have to be changed, and a larger population given to each district, for the present House of Representatives will not hold sixty-six additional members with any sort of convenience or comfort. But that makes no difference with the matters under consideration. The relative strength of the States in the House and Electoral College will be the same, whether the basis of representation is changed or not. The present House contains 293 members. If the basis is not interfered with it will contain 359 after the next apportionment, and (if no new States are admitted) there will be in the Electoral College 435 votes, requiring 218 to elect a President.

All this is reached with an approximate degree of accuracy, but to get the increase among the several States is a matter of far greater difficulty. It is believed however that the following table, which has been prepared with care, and after consulting all the lights available, gives the facts and figures as they will appear after the next census and apportionment:

STATES.	Present number of members.	Gain.	Members after next apportionment.	Electoral votes after next apportionment.
Alabama	8	1	9	11
Arkansas	4	2	6	8
California	4	3	7	9
Colorado	1	....	1	3
Connecticut	4	....	4	6
Delaware	1	....	1	3
Florida	2	....	2	4
Georgia	9	1	10	12
Illinois	19	4	23	25
Indiana	13	3	16	18
Iowa	9	4	13	15
Kansas	3	4	7	9
Kentucky	10	1	11	13
Louisiana	6	....	6	8
Maine	5	....	5	7
Maryland	6	1	7	9
Massachusetts	11	1	12	14
Michigan	9	4	13	15
Minnesota	3	3	6	8
Mississippi	6	1	7	9
Missouri	13	4	17	19
Nebraska	1	2	3	5
Nevada	1	....	1	3
New Hampshire	3	....	3	5
New Jersey	7	1	8	10
New York	33	5	38	40
North Carolina	8	1	9	11
Ohio	20	4	24	26
Oregon	1	1	2	4
Pennsylvania	27	4	31	33
Rhode Island	2	....	2	4
South Carolina	5	....	5	7
Tennessee	10	1	11	13
Texas	6	4	10	12
Vermont	3	....	3	5
Virginia	9	1	10	12
West Virginia	3	1	4	6
Wisconsin	8	3	11	13

The only States not making an increase in their representation are Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Louisiana, Maine, Nevada, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, South Carolina, and Vermont.

THE Ice Trade Journal says the cost of harvesting this winter's ice crop in the United States will be larger than ever before. Four million dollars, it is estimated, will be paid for cutting, hauling and storing, and at least six times that amount for marketing in spring and summer.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
BEEVES	$8 25	@	10 75
HOGS	3 50	@	4 30
COTTON	9½	@	9¾
FLOUR—Superfine	3 45	@	3 65
WHEAT—No. 2	1 08	@	1 12
CORN—Western Mixed	44	@	47
OATS—Mixed	31	@	33
RYE—Western	57½	@	61½
PORK—Mess	8 85	@	10 50
LARD	6¾	@	7
CHICAGO.
BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	4 65	@	5 25
Cows and Heifers	2 50	@	3 25
Medium to Fair	3 90	@	4 15
HOGS	3 00	@	4 25
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter Ex.	4 75	@	5 25
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	3 75	@	4 25
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	91	@	92
No. 3 Spring	77	@	78
CORN—No. 2	33	@	34
OATS—No. 2	23	@	24
RYE—No. 2	46	@	47½
BARLEY—No. 2	75	@	77
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	23	@	26
EGGS—Fresh	12½	@	13
PORK—Mess	8 25	@	9 65
LARD	6½	@	6¾
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—No. 1	98	@	1 01
No. 2	91	@	92
CORN—No. 2	33	@	34
OATS—No. 2	21	@	22
RYE—No. 1	45	@	46
BARLEY—No. 2	71	@	72
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red Fall	1 01	@	1 02
CORN—Mixed	32	@	33
OATS—No. 2	23	@	24
RYE	44	@	45
PORK—Mess	9 50	@	9 60
LARD	6½	@	6½
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—Red	94	@	1 00
CORN	34	@	35
OATS	24	@	27
RYE	52	@	53
PORK—Mess	9 75	@	10 00
LARD	6½	@	6¾
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—No. 1 White	98	@	99
No. 2 Red	99	@	1 00
CORN	35	@	36
OATS—No. 2	26	@	27
DETROIT.
FLOUR—White	4 40	@	4 75
WHEAT—No. 1 White	96	@	97
No. 1 Amber	96	@	96
CORN—No. 1	35	@	36
OATS—Mixed	24½	@	25½
BARLEY (per cental)	1 00	@	2 10
PORK—Mess	10 00	@	10 25
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
CATTLE—Best	5 25	@	5 50
Fair	4 75	@	5 00
Common	3 60	@	4 25
HOGS	3 90	@	4 50
SHEEP	3 75	@	5 25

AUBURN COURIER.

THEODORE REED, Editor.

FARM NOTES.

A WHILE ago, a hired man was smoking a pipe while standing near the door of the stable. The door was suddenly blown back, knocking the pipe out of his mouth and scattering the fire in every direction. The sparks were put out—but we were reminded that pipe-smoking, even by the most careful men, ought never to be tolerated about the barn.—Rural New Yorker.

CHICKEN CHOLERA.—It was very bad here last spring, and I will tell your readers how we cured it. For every forty fowls we took a piece of assafœtida the size of a hickory-nut, broke it in small pieces and mixed it in about a pint of corn meal, wet it thoroughly with boiling water, and placed it near the roosting place, so that the chickens could eat of it the first thing in the morning. If they were not too near dead to eat, a cure was certain.—Letter to Ohio Farmer.

SADDLE-GALLS.—To prevent saddle-galls the saddle should be lined with some smooth, hard substance. Flannel or woolen cloth is bad. A hard-finished, smooth rawhide lining, similar to those of the military saddles, is preferable. Then, if the saddle is properly fitted to the horse's back, there will be no galls unless the horse is very hardly used. Galls should be washed with soap and water, and then with a solution of three grains of copperas or blue vitriol to one table-spoonful of water, which will harden the surface and help to restore the growth of the skin. White hairs growing upon galled spots cannot be prevented.—Nebraska Farmer.

FEW of us are sufficiently aware of the true value of our insectivorous birds. From early spring until late autumn these restless visitors haunt the fields and gardens in quest of food, prying into every nook and crevice where the destroyers of our crops lie concealed, a countless host of which falls a prey to their busy search during the seasons of planting and harvest. Every bird that frequents a farm—if we except the hen-hawk and crow—comes to offer us an unpaid service whose importance we can hardly overestimate. Let anyone who doubts this watch a phœbe-bird or a sparrow for half an hour, and see how, with scarcely a moment's intermission, our little insect-hunter pursues his eager task; and then let him reflect upon the necessity, the duty, of affording the birds every possible protection.—Exchange.

FEED FOR CHICKS.—Fill a bin with corn meal, oat meal and middlings, each fifty pounds, and bran ten pounds; add and thoroughly incorporate with the lot three ounces bone meal and one ounce best Cayenne pepper. Put a pan of thick milk on the stove till the whey is formed and it is scalding hot; add meal to make a stiff batter, salt a little, and bake in a slow oven four hours. If in setting nests you find clear eggs, add two or three of them to the mixture before baking. If you can afford it, add eggs any way. This cake, wet with either milk or water, or crumbled dry, is the most economical feed that can be given—economical not for price, but because it gives the birds growth material in perfection and in a shape that permits waste from neither loss nor fomentation. Enough can be made at once to last a week. If sour milk is not obtainable, make a soup of a few scraps of meat boiled to rags; add potato parings, then add meal and bake as before.—Western Rural.

FERTILITY OF DAIRY FARMS.—Much nonsense is circulated in regard to the rapid loss of fertility of dairy farms, by reason of the carrying away of the phosphates in the milk. Now 1,000 pounds of milk contain about three to four pounds of phosphates, of which nearly the whole is phosphate of lime. Of this less than half is phosphoric acid. Five thousand pounds of milk, therefore, contain but seven and one-half pounds of phosphoric acid, which may be taken as the yearly consumption, in this way, of each cow. As wheat bran contains 2.9 per centum of phosphoric acid, it needs only that about 250 pounds of bran be fed to each cow, yearly, to replace the draught upon the soil. There are few dairy cows that are fed less than this quantity of either bran or some food equivalent to it, and it is pretty certain that very little, if any, phosphoric acid is really taken from the soil of dairy farms. On the contrary, to say nothing of the natural supply in the soil, which slowly becomes soluble, there is good reason to believe that every well-kept dairy farm becomes gradually richer in phosphates every year.—American Agriculturist.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY

CREAM CABBAGE.—Wash, cut fine, boil until tender, and drain the water from it. Brown two table-spoonfuls of butter in a saucepan; put in the cabbage and pour over it a teacupful of good cream; season, and let simmer for half an hour.

TO COOK SALSIFY.—Wash the roots, and as the outer skin is scraped off throw the roots into cold water. They require nearly an hour's boiling in plenty of water; throw in with them a little salt, a small piece of butter, and the juice of half a lemon. Serve with rich gravy or melted butter.

WASHING FLANNELS.—The one thing for which the best servant preserves an animosity is flannels. She will soak them in warm water, and drench them with soda, and reduce them to the condition of boards. To wash flannels nicely, take warm soapsuds, use two waters, and soak the flannels in hot water for a few minutes.

FROST BITTEN.—Frost-bitten plants may be revived if properly treated. The proper way is, when the frost has been partially drawn out of them, naturally, to drench them with cold water from a fine-nosed watering pot, and immediately cover again and let them so remain until they regain their natural color. When they are removed, clip off all such parts as are blackened. As soon as it is discovered that a plant has been touched by frost, remove it to a cool, dark room, and on no account suffer the sun to shine upon it. If they can be covered so as to exclude air as well as light, it is better still. Dahlias and the like need not be removed until the frosts are severe enough to blacken the leaves.

TO STEW CARROTS.—Half boil, then scrape and slice them into a stew-pan. Add to them half a teacupful of any weak broth, pepper and salt to taste, half a teacupful of cream, and a salt-spoonful of sugar; simmer until tender, but not broken; before serving, thicken with bit of butter rubbed smooth in flour. If liked, chopped parsley may be added ten minutes before dishing.

MINCE PIES.—Boil a fresh tongue; chop it very fine, after removing the skin and roots; when cold add one pound of chopped suet, two pounds stoned raisins, two pounds currants, two pounds citron cut in fine pieces, six cloves, powdered; two teaspoonfuls cinnamon, half teaspoonful mace, one pint brandy, one pint wine or cider, two pounds sugar; put this all in a stone jar and cover well; in making pies chop some apples very fine, and to one bowl of the prepared meat take two of apples; add more sugar, according to taste, and sweet cider enough to make the pies juicy, but not thin; mix and warm the ingredients before putting into your pie plates; always bake with an upper and under crust, made with one cup of lard, one of butter, one of water and four of flour.

CLEANING THE SCALP.—A teaspoonful of powdered borax, and a teaspoonful of spirits of hartshorn, dissolved in a quart of soft water, and applied to the head with a soft sponge, and then rubbed dry with a towel, is an excellent wash for cleaning the scalp. Once a week is often enough to use it. If there is any vitality left in the hair follicles or roots, the following is said to be a very excellent wash for restoring the hair: Scald black tea, two ounces, with a gallon of boiling water; then strain, and add three ounces of glycerine, half an ounce of tincture of cantharides, and one quart of bay rum. This may be perfumed to suit the taste, and should be well rubbed into the hair, after a warm glow has been produced on the scalp by the brush. The following is a very good pomatum: One pound of castor oil and four ounces of white wax are melted together; then stir in while cooling two and a half drachms of oil of burgamont, half a drachm of oil of lavender, and ten or twelve drops of essence of royale.

Boning and Smoking Meat.

Our system of salting meat makes it unhealthy and distasteful. Why do we salt bones? Were they extracted, one-third the salt would suffice, and meat so cured would lose little of its nutriment, besides gaining in value. Two-thirds of the smoking might be dispensed with, and one cause of indigestibility greatly lessened. Modern mechanical skill can surely contrive a tool to disbone a ham, and let the salt have equal access inside and outside. The thick skin might be removed with equal benefit. Custom may claim the shape of the ham as important, but this objection would give way before the great superiority of the meat. Farmers would find profit in it for their own household. A boned turkey is always attractive. When raised far from market a turkey boned and slightly salted and smoked would find ready sale at a remunerative price. The Mexicans cure beef without salt. The first operation is to unbone it. Then it is cut into narrow strips and exposed to the sun till a superficial crust is formed to exclude the air. A slight smoking keeps insects away. It is usually kept in sacks in a dry place, and time does not injure it. It is now suggested that great improvement can be made in curing all meats without salt, by some adaptation of the Alden fruit drier. We have seen beef and mutton shredded into broad strips, two inches thick, and passed through an Alden drier and slightly smoked till a strong outer crust was formed. The cured meat was served to sailors on a voyage to the Sandwich islands and back, and was esteemed a great luxury compared with the best salted mess beef. Some that was brought back to San Francisco satisfied the experimenters that this mode of curing meat is destined to come into general use.

St Valentine's Day.

St. Valentine was beheaded in Rome by order of Claudius II., Feb. 14, 270. One writer says "he was a man of most admirable parts, and so famous for his love and charity that the custom of choosing valentines on his festival took its rise from thence." Others derived the custom from the birds being supposed to select their mates on this day; others from a practice prevalent in ancient Rome at the festival of Lupercalia, when among other ceremonies young women's names were drawn by chance from a box by young men. The Christian church changed the form of the ceremony. On the eve of St. Valentine's day it was the custom to have the names of a select number of one sex put into some vessel by an equal number of the other; and thereupon every one drew a name which was, for the time being, called his or her valentine. The custom of choosing valentines existed very early. Presents of gloves, garters and jewelry were common as valentines.

Some Old Connecticut Cats.

Mrs. Lemuel J. Curtis had a cat "ever since it was a kitten" until Monday, when it breathed its last. The cat lived to the remarkable age of 21 years. For some years past it was on the retired list, having lost all its teeth. Its sight was somewhat impaired, and it was deaf. Death was the result of old age. There are other old cats in Meriden, but none that we hear of have reached the age of the one owned by Mrs. Curtis. Mrs. John Dreher, on Crown street, has two cats aged respectively 18 and 14 years. The elder one wabbles about like an aged human invalid. Both are great pets and well cared for. Mrs. Merritt D. Smith has a cat 14 years old. It is almost toothless, but age seems to make no improvement in its docility, for it can scratch a stranger with as much pleasure as it could a dozen years ago.—Meriden (Ct.) Republican.

WHAT PEOPLE EAT.

Cheerful Revelations Before the American Social Science Association in Boston.

Mr. George T. Angell lately read a paper before the American Social Science Association at Boston on "Public Health Associations," in which he made some startling assertions about the adulterations of food. He said:

Cayenne pepper is adulterated with red lead, mustard with chromate of lead, curry powder with red lead, vinegar with sulphuric acid, arsenic and corrosive sublimate. It is stated that probably half the vinegar now sold in our city is rank poison. One of our Boston chemists analyzed twelve packages of pickles, put up by twelve different wholesale dealers, and found copper in ten of them. Many of our flavoring oils, sirups, jellies and preserved fruits contain poisons. The adulterations of tea are too numerous to mention. Coffee is not only adulterated, but a patent has been taken out for molding chiccory into the form of coffee berries, and I am told that clay is now molded, and perhaps flavored with an essence, to represent coffee. Cocoa and chocolate are adulterated with various mineral substances.

Several mills in New England, and probably many elsewhere, are now engaged in grinding white stone into a fine powder for purposes of adulteration. At some of these mills they grind three grades—soda grade, sugar grade, and flour grade. It sells for about half a cent a pound. Flour has been adulterated in England, and probably here, with plaster of paris, bone dust, sand, clay, chalk, and other articles. I am told that large quantities of damaged and unwholesome grain are ground in with flour, particularly with that kind called Graham flour. Certainly hundreds, and probably thousands, of barrels of "terra alba," or white earth, are sold in our cities every year to be mixed with sugars in confectionery and other white substances. I am told by an eminent physician that this tends to produce stone, kidney complaints, and various diseases of the stomach. A Boston chemist tells me that he has found 75 per cent. of "terra alba" in what was sold as cream of tartar used for cooking. A large New York house sells three grades of cream of tartar. A Boston chemist recently analyzed a sample of the best grade, and found 50 per cent. of "terra alba" in that. Much of our confectionery contains 33 per cent. or more of "terra alba." The coloring matter of confectionery frequently contains lead, mercury, arsenic, and copper. Baking powders are widely sold which contain a large percentage of "terra alba" and alum.

It is not water alone that is mixed with milk. Thousands of gallons, and probably hundreds of thousands, are sold in our cities which have passed through large tins or vats, in which it has been mixed with various substances. Recipes for the mixture can be bought by new milkmen from old, on payment of the required sum. I am assured, upon what I believe to be reliable authority, that thousands of gallons of so-called milk have been, and probably are, sold in this city which do not contain one drop of the genuine article. Large quantities of the meats of animals, more or less diseased, are sold in our markets. Cows in the neighborhood of our large cities are fed upon material which produces a large flow of unwholesome milk. Poultry are fed upon material which produces unwholesome eggs. Meats and fish are made unwholesome, frequently poisonous, by careless and cruel methods of killing. A California chemist recently analyzed many samples of whisky, purchased at different places of San Francisco. He found them adulterated with creosote, salts of copper, alum, and other injurious substances. He states, in his published report, as his opinion that there is hardly any pure whisky sold in that city. A gentleman recently purchased from a prominent Boston firm a cask of pure sherry wine for his sick wife. His wife grew worse. He had the wine analyzed, and found that there was not a drop of the juice of the grape in it. An eminent medical gentleman of Boston said to me: "The adulterations of drugs in this country are perfectly abominable." I say that laws should be enacted and enforced prohibiting the manufacture and sale of these poisonous and dangerous articles under severe penalties, and compelling the manufacturers and sellers of adulterated articles to tell buyers the precise character of the adulterations.

An Eagle Carries Off a Pig.

For several days past the resident farmers in the northwestern portion of this county have marked the presence of an eagle skimming the heights in their neighborhood, and a Mr. Stringer, a Tarrant county knight of the gun, anxious to capture this king of birds, shouldered his fowling-piece yesterday morning and laid for the bird on the open prairie, at a point about two miles northwest of the town, where a small herd of young pigs were innocently grazing on the green sward. The bird came soaring along, and when a point had been reached nearly perpendicular to the head of the swine, as it were, the old "National" swooped down and around the surface of an imaginary pyramid, and, sinking its talons deep in the interior of a thirty-pound pig, started heavenward. The ascension was tedious and slow, and gave ample time for Stringer to draw a bead, and when a height of thirty or forty feet had been reached he banged away and bored a hole clean through our American monstrosity. The pig and eagle tumbled tolerably well together to the surface—both dead.—Fort Worth (Tex.) Democrat.

ALTHOUGH Hiram Y. Reese, of Franklin county, Pa., gave nine sons to the Union cause, he has a score surviving him to keep the name from running out. He himself was a veteran of 1812, and but lately died.

INDIANA LEGISLATURE.

THURSDAY, Feb. 13.—SENATE.—Bills passed: To fix the time of holding court in the Second judicial circuit; legalizing the acts of the City Council of Logansport in annexing certain territory....The resolutions to investigate the charges against D. D. Dale, principal Secretary, made by the citizens of White county, growing out of transactions of his while Clerk of that county, were taken up. After considerable debate the resolutions were withdrawn.... A number of committee reports and petitions were received and placed on file....After much discussion the apportionment bills were made the special order for next Tuesday.... The Committee on Fees and Salaries were instructed to report a bill on the subject of fees and salaries....The Finance Committee were instructed to report a bill for the reappraisement of real estate next April.

HOUSE.—The bills regulating the running at large of animals, authorizing farmers' insurance companies, prescribing what kind of judgments shall be rendered in suits to recover damages for injury to trees, and for the protection of sheep were reported favorably and ordered engrossed....The claims of the city of Indianapolis for money paid out on account of the railroad strike of 1877, and of parties to whom interest is due on account of the indebtedness of the Southern prison, were presented....The Attorney General reported that the State's lien on the State fair-ground for money loaned to the State Board of Agriculture was junior to a lien of $60,000 on the same property.....The House Legislative Apportionment bill was then taken up, and, under the operations of the previous question, was passed by a strict party vote—56 to 38....The bill prohibiting appeals from Justices where the judgment does not exceed $20 was passed.

FRIDAY, Feb. 14.—SENATE.—But very little business was transacted by the Senate, nearly the whole day being spent in debate on the bill regulating voluntary assignments. The bill met with much oppposition on the part of some Senators, they arguing that, being nothing more than a voluntary-bankruptcy act, it is unconstitutional, as Congress is the only power that can pass such a law. It was also objected to because it is in many respects unjust to the creditor, and shows too much leniency to the insolvent, and gives dishonest men opportunities to avoid paying their debts. The bill was finally engrossed....The House Apportionment bill was read a first time, and made the special order for Tuesday.

HOUSE.—The House followed the example of the Senate, and occupied the entire session in discussing the subject of fees and salaries of county officers.

SATURDAY, Feb. 15.—SENATE.—The Senate took up bills on second reading, and the following were disposed of: The bills exempting the wages of laborers from garnishment in certain cases; enabling boards of commissioners to dispose of uncalled-for allowances, when the same have remained for a period of five years; providing for the election and appointment of Supervisors of Highways; amending the act to enable the owners of wet lands to drain and reclaim them were ordered engrossed....The bills to reduce the fees and salaries of county officers, and for the protection of executions were indefinitely postponed.... Mr. Winterbotham's bill for the government and discipline of the State prison was recommitted to a special committee.....Bills were introduced: Amending the Gravel Road law; to prevent live stock from running at large; amending the School law and regulating the practice in Circuit Courts in certain matters.

HOUSE.—Bills were introduced: Authorizing County Treasurers to perform the duties of City Treasurers, providing for examining and licensing engineers; authorizing notaries to solemnize marriages; authorizing extra allowances to prosecuting attorneys in certain counties, and repealing the act creating building and savings associations....The bills to establish a State militia and regulating the practice of medicine were reported favorably on and ordered engrossed....The Superintendent of Public Instruction reported a bill embodying the school laws as codified by him in accordance with a resolution of the last General Assembly....Mr. Mayers offered a resolution asking Congress to issue sufficient treasury notes to pay the pensions authorized by the arrearage pension bills. Referred to the Committee on Federal Relations.

MONDAY, Feb. 17.—SENATE.—Bills were introduced: Concerning the effect of the sale of lands for delinquent taxes; providing for the appointment of County Superintendents; amending the vagrant law; declaring it a misdemeanor to keep a house of ill-fame or rent property for such purpose; providing for the submission of constitutional amendments to the people; fixing the salaries of Superior Judges at $2,500; for appraisement of real property in 1879, and every four years thereafter; for the semi-annual payment of interest on county bonds; providing that county printing shall be done in two newspapers of opposite politics; amending the act for a partition of lands; to prevent the mutilation of instruments in writing; to amend the Drainage laws....Mr. Winterbotham's Prison bill was then taken up. The bill provides that hereafter the Governor shall appoint the Directors. The salary of the Directors was cut down to $300 each, and that of the Warden fixed at not more than $1,500 per annum. The bill was also amended so as to abolish the use of the cat in the prisons.... Several House resolutions instructing Congress on different topics were laid on the table. They were those demanding an unconditional repeal of the Resumption act, exempting bonds and greenbacks from taxation, amending revenue laws, and asking reduction of salaries of Federal officers.

HOUSE.—The General Appropriation bill was ordered engrossed.....New bills were introduced: For a uniform assessment of real estate; amending the act to authorize the construction of railroads; to make malfeasance in office a felony; to reduce the mileage of members to 10 cents; compelling railroad passenger trains to stop at every station of any incorporated town or city when there are passengers who want to get on or off....The bills regulating freights on railroads to punish the embezzlement of railroad tickets, and to establish a home for imbecile children, were ordered engrossed.... The bill grading pay of Judges in proportion to the population of their districts was read a second time and ordered printed.

TUESDAY, Feb. 18.—SENATE.—Mr. Winterbotham's prison bill was taken up, further amended in some minor particulars, and passed by a unanimous vote....House bills on first reading were then taken up and a number of them read and referred.....Communications from the Superintendents of the Orphans' Home and House of Refuge relative to the number and pay of employes of these institutions were received and referred....Several Senate bills were read a second time and passed to third reading....Mr. Menzies introduced a bill to repeal the law in regard to insurance companies publishing statements.

HOUSE.—A large number of committee reports were received and acted upon....The most important bill was the one reducing the allowance to Sheriffs for boarding prisoners. The bill was amended so as to allow 30 cents a day for each prisoner when more than five are fed; for a less number, 40 cents. It was then ordered engrossed....The Fee and Salary bill was under consideration during the rest of the day's session.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 19.—SENATE.—Senator Grubb's bill providing for voluntary assignments was killed....The following bills were passed: Declaring land-patents admissible in evidence to prove title to such lands; amending the divorce law so that publication can be made in weekly papers; amending the drainage law, and enabling County Commissioners to dispose of uncalled-for allowances after a period of five years by turning the same into the county treasury; exempting the wages of laborers from garnishment so long as the laborer remains in the service of his employer for a period not to exceed one month.... After recommitting several bills and making the Exemption and Homestead bills the special order for Friday, the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.—The House, after considerable discussion, killed the Fee and Salary bill by striking out everything after the enacting clause.... The following bills were passed: Senate bills—Authorizing guardians to settle estates of deceased wards; repealing the act authorizing the formation of water-works companies; authorizing the working of prisoners in jails on public highways and improvements. House bills: Restricting the power of School Trustees in towns in issuing bonds for the purpose of building school-houses without the consent of the Common Council; authorizing the construction of street railways along public highways on such terms as may be prescribed by county boards; authorizing Sheriffs to administer oaths to persons claiming a homestead exemption; permitting relatives of decedents to give bond to secure debts, and permitting the heirs to take the property without the expense of letters testamentary and of administration; repealing the Vagrant act; authorizing the State of Maryland to convey the title of the State of Indiana to a portion of the Antietam National Cemetery to the Federal Government; amending the code. ....The bill changing the legal weight of a bushel of corn from sixty-eight to seventy pounds was killed.

English Rule in India.

It is a notorious fact that the expense of British rule in India is something enormous, and forms a crushing incubus on the country. The population is roughly estimated at 190,000,000, and the average taxation last year in various ways amounted to 3½ shillings (English) per head. The gross production of India for the same time averaged 31½ shillings per head, so that the taxes took 12 per cent. of the product. These figures alone are enormous; and when we add the opium impost and the local and municipal taxes, there is an aggregate of nearly £50,000,000 or $250,000,000. In 1857 the total was about half the above amount; there has been no increase of population, and, though the railways have caused a development in many parts of the country, it has not kept pace with the expenditure. According to high authorities, India is every year poorer and poorer. The land-tax is a burden so great that the cultivation of the soil does not always enable the cultivator to obtain the commonest necessities for himself and family, and the condition of the day-laborer is pitiable in the extreme. The great mass of the people are in a condition of the most wretched poverty, want in all forms stares you constantly in the face, and the only way for a traveler in India to escape the sight of it is to sail away to some other land. Of all the countries on the globe I have ever visited, India is the one I least care to see again, and largely for the reason given in the preceding sentence. In two widely-separated parts of the great peninsula I saw people dying of famine, and their gaunt and ragged forms rise before me all too often to make memory an unalloyed pleasure. That India has reached the highest point of taxation is loudly proclaimed by both native and English residents, and not a few Englishmen predict her bankruptcy before many years shall have rolled away.

A great portion of the natives are indifferent to the foreign rule, and some are warmly in favor of it, especially those who hold offices of greater or less importance, and receive a revenue from them. On the other hand, I think there can be no question that there is great hostility to the British authority, and, if the way were open to a revolt, with a promise of success, it would speedily be forthcoming. Several of the native Princes, still occupying their thrones, maintain armies of their own, which are regarded with no friendly eye by the Government. Numerically, at least on paper, these armies are stronger than the whole British force, native and foreign, but their equipment, organization and discipline are far inferior, so that they are not considered very formidable.—Thomas Knox, in Harper's Magazine for March.

Compositor Skinner's Luck.

The wisdom of obeying the injunction, "Be not forgetful to entertain strangers," is illustrated in the case of John E Skinner, at present a compositor in a New Haven printing-office. Years ago, while Skinner was a youth of 15, he shared his meager substance with a youth named Antoine Mercer, who represented that he had been banished from the home of a wealthy uncle in the Island of St. Thomas. The uncle looked upon young Mercer as his heir till the latter was discovered to have pledged his love to a mulatto girl. Then the uncle sent him forth to care for himself. He drifted to New York, found employment as a printer, became dissipated, lost his situation, was taken in and cared for by young Skinner at Port Jefferson, L. I., and finally decamped with the best clothes of his friend's father. Years passed and nothing was heard from Mercer till a few days ago, when a West India paper was received by John E. Skinner, containing the announcement of the death of Antoine Mercer, and the statement that his will devised his fortune "to his old friend, John [illegible] Skinner, who had befriended him at Port Jefferson, L. I., as a mark of regard and appreciation of his kind acts toward him." The paper stated that the fortune came to Mercer from an uncle, deceased at St. Thomas. Mr. Skinner has taken steps to secure the fortune which seems to be his, but is so far from losing his head in the meanwhile that he continues to work at his case as usual.

One of Lincoln's Jokes.

Concerning a drollery of President Lincoln's this story is told by a correspondent of the Journal, of Syracuse: "During the Rebellion an Austrian Count applied to President Lincoln for a position in the army. Being introduced by the Austrian Minister, he needed, of course, no further recommendation; but, as if fearing that his importance might not be duly appreciated, he proceeded to explain that he was a Count; that his family were ancient and highly respectable; when Lincoln, with a merry twinkle in his eye, tapping the aristocratic lover of titles on the shoulder, in a fatherly way, as if the man had confessed to some wrong, interrupted in a soothing tone, 'Never mind; you shall be treated with just as much consideration for all that!'"

TWO ARDENT lovers in Paris lately went and hanged themselves side by side because the stern parent of the maiden objected to her marrying so young.

ALL the signers of the Declaration of Independence signed their names with quill pens except one—he signed his Witherspoon.

ALL SORTS.

THE Jews of the world are estimated at 6,500,000.

GERMANY recently launched her first home-made iron-clad.

IN Europe steel and iron rails are now nearly the same price.

THE emigration of Canadians to Manitoba is expected to be very heavy this year.

BALTIC, Ct., which has 137 families, has no church of any kind, but has seventeen liquor shops.

BARK grows thickest on the north side of trees; thus, in a forest, to tell which is north, girdle a tree.

JAPAN is now manufacturing boots for sale in the United States from leather brought from American ports.

THERE are $100,000,000 worth of churches in New York, and the only taxes paid are to the preachers.

DURING 1877, 5,877 persons emigrated from the Austro-Hungarian empire, and nearly all came to the United States.

A BRITISH trade-paper says American Consuls excel in the practical nature of their communications to the home Government.

SECRETARY SHERMAN does not estimate the amount of Government bonds now held abroad at more than $100,000,000.

THEY have been enjoying a trotting meeting on the ice at Montreal, and a local paper heads its report "The Canadian Turf."

THE Atlanta Constitution estimates that during the past two seasons the farmers of Georgia have paid out $3,000,000 for mules.

THIS winter there have been, for the first time in thirty-five years, fourteen consecutive days of skating in Regent's Park, London.

THE Diario Oficial, a Mexican paper, has astonished the journalistic world in that country by running its press by steam.

THERE are not enough lawyers in the lower house of the General Assembly of North Carolina to make a Judiciary Committee of lawyers.

IN two years the Governor of Texas pardoned 190 convicts. Of the number forty-five were murderers and thirty-three horse-thieves.

IT is estimated that there are nearly 2,000,000 of acres of land in Ireland, which, if reclaimed, could be adapted to the raising of grain.

THE abolition of the City Government of Memphis has put an end to the city rings and left the local politicians without means of subsistence.

IT is said that a Russian officer has invented a dynamite shell capable of destroying a man-of-war at 200 paces, and rendering the use of torpedoes unnecessary.

THE London Economist finds the amount of gold in circulation in France to be about $1,000,000,000, or $27.37½ for every man, woman, and child of the French people.

THIRTY-FIVE THOUSAND dollars, contributed by the world's charity to the relief of the sick and needy at Memphis, is tied up by garnishments of the holders of the city bonds.

THE rancheros of Chihuahua, Mexico, have taken the law into their hands and captured and executed six highwaymen; among them one Miguel Armendariz and three of his sons.

A WELSHMAN named Thomas Rowland died lately at the age of 103. He left eight children, whose respective ages were 71, 70, 68, 66, 64, 61, 58 and 56, or 514 years altogether.

IT is related of Widow Mary Holbrook, why died recently in Brockton, Mass., at the age of 93 years, that she made $6,000 after she was 75 years old by the sale of "tidies" in Boston.

MRS. URSULA HUMPHREYVILLE, of Northfield, Ct., is in her 101st year, and is still able to be about. Two years ago she rode on a mowing machine, driving the horses through the field.

THE Bourse at Vienna is a handsomer building than the Emperor's palace, and was put up by Jewish capitalists who own it. The Viennese call it the Temple of Solomon on the Danube.

THE Boston Herald regrets that Mrs. Hayes should have worn a wine-colored silk, and thinks a watered silk would have been much more becoming to so distinguished a temperance advocate.

IT is admitted that the oak does not flourish in England to the extent it did formerly. This fact is not singular, as it is well known that every plant, if kept to the same soil, will degenerate in time.

ALL over the South, says the Louisville Courier-Journal, farmers continue to hypothecate their crops in advance, which shows that they are running at least one year ahead of their means.

M. LOSTAL, a French railway contractor, recommends quicklime as a preservative of timber. He puts the sleepers in pits, and covers them with quicklime, which is slowly slacked with water.

IT is estimated that the State of New York has 6,400 ecclesiastical organizations, with sittings for 2,000,000 persons, and a membership of 1,300,000. The value of the church property is reckoned at $117,000,000.

AT Los Angeles, Cal., in almost every yard you behold the mature orange trees, or those soon to come into bearing; in fact, the mania has become so great that they are now set out on sidewalks in lieu of shade trees.

JAMES CALHOUN, a brother of John C. Calhoun, still lives near Hawkinsville, Ga. While hunting on House creek, in Wilcox county, the other day, his dog sniffed a strange animal, which, when caught, rolled over and over, studied about in books of natural history and thoroughly pierced with exclamation points, proved to the dumbfounded Georgian to be nothing else than a beaver. It weighed thirty-five pounds and made a fine barbecue.

CHILDREN have recently taken part in bull-fights in Zacatecas, Mexico.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, FEB. 27, 1879

THEODORE REED, - - Editor.

Fears are entertained that Gov. Hampton of South Carolina will have to suffer another amputation.

—The latest advices are to the effect that Hayes will not sign the Anti-Chinese bill. If he dont, the Democrats will carry California at the next election.

In his speech in the Senate against the Roach subsidy, Hon. D. W. Voorhees pronounced it "the most flagrant job he had ever seen." Daniel is on the right side this time.

In the Finley—Bisbee contested election case, the lower house of congress has decided that Bisbee the sitting member from Florida is not entitled to his seat. Accordingly he received the G. B.

If the democratic legislature would gerrymander the state for congressional purposes just the reverse of the republican gerrymander we now have, no doubt the republican party could appreciate it. A fair apportionment is beyond republican comprehension.

A committee of ladies representing the woman suffrage association of Ind., made a raid on the Legislature last Tuesday, and entertained the members with a number of papers prepared for the occassion. Mr. Hubbard offered a resolution pledging the enactment of such laws as will give the women equal rights. The resolution was referred to a committee—to be salted down.

The legislative Ways and Means committee have reported the appropriation bill. Among the items we find.

State University, Bloomington, $20,600.
Purdue University, $500.

The former is the state Law school, and the latter an Agricultural College for the education of our farmers' sons in the science of farming as well as other branches. Such inconsistencies display the selfishness of the lawyers—the predominating class in the legislature. Lawyers' sons must be educated free: farmers' sons can afford to pay their way.

The King of Burmah, believing that two of his nobles—Princes Thouse and Mekara were plotting against him, recently summoned his privy council, which consists of four persons, he laid before them his suspicions, and demanded that they and their whole households should be executed. As the will of the Monarch in Burmah is supreme, the order was given and the massacre took place.

The two princes and eighty-six of their relations were slain.

The immediate details of the massacre are described as horrible in the extreme

A third party in the next congress seems to be a foregone conclusion. At a meeting of the representatives-elect of the National party, held at Washington on the 22nd inst, De La Matyr of this state offered the following resolution which was unanimously adopted.

"RESOLVED, That we now pledge ourselves that we will stand together in the National Party Organization in the organization of the next House of Representatives, and maintain our party organization."

Twelve representatives were present at the meeting, and nine others are said to be pledged to the same resolution, if such should be the case, the Nationals will control the organization of the next House, and will be able to dictate the action of congress to a certain extent.

The ninety-third county is about to be organized in Indiana. A New Albany special to the Indianapolis Sentinel, says: "the organization of a new county out of portions of Washington and Harrison, is likely to become an accomplished fact. The new county will embrace all of Morgan and Blue River townships, and six sections of Spencer topnwship Harison county and all of Jackson and Posey townships, 17 sections out of the Southwest corner of Pierce, 20 sections out of Madison and 24 out of Howard township, Washington county. The area of the new county will be 201¼ square miles, leaving to Washington county 401¼ square miles, and to Harison county 401 square miles. Fredricksburg, now in Washington county, is to be the county seat, and the new county is to be named La-Fayette, in honor of the distinguished French general of the revolution.

The editor of the COURIER is evidently a little green, in Democratic politics. The justice of using the Democratic majority in DeKalb to elect three senators, and giving Lagrange and Steuben with their 1,800 Republican majority, one is strictly a "constitutional apportionment" according to Governor Hendricks.—Kendalville Standard.

Not green enough however to publish the apportionment before it is made, nor to say that the democratic majority in DeKalb is to elect "three Senators." The Standard man evidently judges our knowledge of democratic politics from a republican standpoint, in as much as republican editors are ever ready to defend every dishonest measure advocated by the most corrupt leaders of their party. There is not a radical editor in the state, that is not ashamed of the last republican gerrymander, yet they dare not say so.

Another steal known as John Roach's subsidy, recently passed the United States Senate. It appropriates $200,000 for carrying the mails from New York and New Orleans to Rio de Janeiro. The act was passed as an Amendmendment to the Post Office appropriation bill, which has been referred to the House, where it is hoped it will receive a death blow regardless of the consequences to the Post Office bill.

The Ligonier Banner, Goshen Democrat, Plymouth Democrat and New Albany Ledger Standard announce themselves in favor of Tilden and Hendricks for 1880. Not so fast, gentlemen; not so fast. Tilden and Hendricks would certainly be a strong ticket, but wouldn't Hendricks and Wallace or Hendricks and Randolph be a stronger one? Isn't it time for the west to furnish the democratic nominee? Isn't Gov. Hendricks the most available man for the position? Shouldn't Indiana stick to him? While we have the greatest esteem and admiration for Mr. Tilden as a great statesman and a deeply-wronged man, we think Mr. Hendricks is the man for 1880.—Fort Wayne Sentinel.

That's right Mr. Sentinel, your head is level. Of course the papers named are all great friends of Hendricks, but then—, but——.

In making his appeal to the Senate in behalf of his comrades in the Mexican war, who are asking to be placed on the pension roll of the Goverment, Gen Shields said; The soldiers of the last war had been treated with just and very commendable liberality. The reason why the bill granting pensions to Mexican soldiers had not been passed was on account of calculations of the Pension Bureau. That bureau had reported to Congress a larger army of Mexican veterans alive to-day than ever stood on Mexican soil at one time with arms in their hands. The wonder was that any intelligent Congress could place confidence in such a report. Throughout the whole Union to day there were not over eleven thousand Mexican veterans alive. Scott, Taylor, Pillow, and Cushing were all gone—all dead—and he (Mr. Shields), the humblest of them all, was left to make this appeal to Congress to do something and do it speedily. If action should be deferred a few more sessions it would be too late to pass the bill. There was one regiment from South Carolina which reached Mexico with 1,100 men. At the close of the war it numbered 220 men, and there were but eight members of that regiment living to-day. He referred to the victories of our army in Mexico, and said it had been said that they had nothing but Mexicans to fight. That was true, but there were plenty of them. Ask the soldiers of France, as brave men as ever lived, and they would tell you that no men were less afraid of death than the Mexicans. If this Government should ever undertake to walk over Mexico again with the same expectations of the same results as before, would be disappointed. He spoke of the bravery of the American army in Mexico, and gave personal reminiscences of that war. He did not believe a single soldier who served in the Mexican war could be found in the penitentiary. He spoke of the value of the territory acquired by the Mexican war, the rich gold and silver mines found therein and in conclusion appealed to Congress to give to the Mexican survivors the pittance they asked for to help them on the downhill of life. Give them the pittance to help them on that last march to that field from which no warrior ever returns.

Angola Items.

—Hef. Leas, of Hudson, was in town over Sunday.

—Louis Stiefel spent the Sabbath in Fort Wayne.

—There was no meeting in the Congregational church last Sunday.

—Don C. Wood has taken up his residence with Eli Williamson, of Waterloo.

—Mr. Frank Powers is studying law with the firm of Woodhull & Croxton. Success to you Frank.

—Misses Lizzie and Emma Paulsen, of Waterloo, are in town visiting, the guests of Miss Cora Squires.

—Mr. H. Thompson, John Gonong and Misses Effie Pow and Nina Bradley spent the Sabbath in Waterloo.

—A musical organization has been organized in this place. They gave a concert in the red ribbon room.

—Messrs. Crooks and Smith who have been attending school in this place, returned to their home in Muncie, last Saturday.

—The temperance meeting at the M. E church on Sunday afternoon was very well attended. The meeting was addressed by Messrs. Stocker and Morrow.

—The rumor of a suicide at Orland, as stated in last week's items, was false. It was stated by a young "Wood" of this place, who didn't have anything else to do.

—The fireman's ball was well attended last Friday evening. Among the number present were Elmer Williamson, Chas. Clark, John Sommers and Miss Addie Leas, of Waterloo, Robert McClellan and William Eldridge, of Auburn.

A REPORTER.

—Below are the names of the scholars of Dist. No. 5 Kiser tp., who have not been absent during the month ending Feb., 21, 1879. Sadia Slippy, Savanna Schopf, Cora Strouse, Mahala Lahmon, Mary Rectenwald, Jennie Lahmon, Philip Schopf, George Rectenwald, Darius Haag, Jacob Rectenwald. Those who have been absent but once during the month. Laura Schopf, Sarah Schopf Jennie Weygandt, Anna Rectenwald, Emma Strouse, Alice Strouse, Ida Strouse and Mary Strouse.

W. H HOAGLAND, Teacher.

Spencerville Items.

—Mr. G. Barney is able to be on our streets again.

—The Rev. Kelo will preach at the Lutheran church next Sunday.

—Mort E. Olds and lady, of Newville have been visiting friends in town.

—Miss M. Knight, our milliner, moved to Mark Center, O., Monday.

—Rev. E. W. Errick and family left Wednesday for his new field of labor.

—Protracted meetings at the M. E. church are still in progress with favorable results.

—Mrs. S. S. Shutt has been seriously ill for several days but at last advices was improving.

—Bicket vs. Wasson, before 'Squire Fales Saturday, judgment $8.00 and costs in favor of plaintiff.

—Mr. J. Snider and lady have returned to Michigan; father Snider having so far recovered as to justify their return.

—Mr. J. M. Henderson, of Jackson township, now boasts of the finest herd of Devon cattle in DeKalb county. He has just made an addition of several head, purchased of the celebrated herd of Mr. H. Shaw, of Defiance county, O. John is a prince of good fellows. Call and examine his herd.

Newville Items.

—The saw mills are running lively in this place.

—We learn that about twenty of our citizens have received a polite invitation to visit the august body that meets at the court room of the grand jury.

—There is talk of starting a reading room in Blair's Hall. Start it by all means boys, as it will be of more benefit than some other things that would cost more.

—We understand that the piano that Mr. Stepleton (our) druggist) drew in the Fort Wayne lottery has got out of tune. He wishes some good teacher to call and tune it, and give him lessons.

—Again death claims another victim. Mrs. Stafford died of pneumonia last Friday morning; the funeral took place on Sunday. She had lived in this county for a number of years, and leaves a husband and a large family to mourn her loss. Thus death bereaves us of our friends and neighbors.

—Again we are called upon to chronicle the death of one of our esteemed citizens. Alvira Maxwell, the wife of Henry Maxwell, died Tuesday Feb. 18, 1879; aged 65 years, 9 months and 28 days. She was born in 1813 on the 20th of April, came to this county in the year 1851 with her father and his family, Mr. Henry Hull, and is the sister of Dr. Hull of this place. She lived with her father until his death, after which she married Mr. Henry Maxwell; she inherited the old homestead where she resided at the time of her death. She leaves no children to mourn her loss. She was esteemed by all her neighbors as a noble woman, a cherishing and loving wife, and will be mourned by her husband and all her friends and acquaintances.

ALPHA.

St. Joe.

—A. F. Woodcox is quite sick of lung fever.

—A daughter of Nelson Elm residing at Sturgis, Mich., is visiting friends in this vicinity.

—Nelson Tustason has rented the farm owned by the heirs of Washington Tustason, deceased.

—France of Monroeville, Ind., who has been visiting his son J. E. France is confined to his bed with rheumatism.

—Pay master on the B. & O. R. R. passed over the line Saturday, making everybody connected with the road happy as a sun flower.

—We learn that Mr. Van Hyde, agent at Cromwell for the last year has been transfered to Republic. If any agent on the road is worthy of the advancement we think Van is the one.

—After all the warnings that people have had from the press and from personal experience there are still some who will be duped by a class of men selling or pretending to sell patent rights. Parties in this vicinity, last week, gave their notes to such a scamp for $125 for the privilege of selling the Little Speedy corn sheller and now the parties are wondering why the shellers are not delivered according to contract. Don't fret the note you gave will be around in good time, but the shellers never. Who next? We would like to give the name of the agent of the Speedy Corn Sheller but will forbear for the present.

—Died, Feb. 19th inst, of pneumonia, Mrs. Elvira Maxwell, wife of Henry Maxwell Aunt Vi, as she was familiarly called, came to the neighborhood about 25 years ago, and settled with her parents on the farm on which she lived at her death. For several years she had the sole care of her aged parents deceased a few years ago. A more attentive daughter than Aunt Vi was to her parents in the [illegible] and childhood is very hard to find, always ready to administer to their every want. The writer has been acquainted with the deceased since she first came to the country and long will the charities of aunt Vi be remembered, no one was ever turned away that applied to her for help. The loss of Aunt Vi in that neighborhood will long be felt, especially among the sick and afflicted. Our sympathies are with the husband in his affliction.

A. A. A.

The Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay Street, New York, have issued their reprint of the London Quarterly Review for January.

The first article, a summary account of the life and writings of Lessing, was suggested by the recent publication of two English biographies of that celebrated German scholar, who, as the reviewer remarks, "Takes rank among intellects of first-class calibre." The outline here given of his life and of his influence on contemporary literature will be very satisfactory to the many who hardly have known more of Lessing than the name.

"Prince Bismarck," The problem of his success is here attempted to be solved, by showing how his birth, education, and early life, marked out and influenced his career.

A valuable paper on "Our School and Schoolmasters" deals in plain terms with some current fallacies, some pet theories, which are not peculiar to England alone, but are working mischief elsewhere.

Other articles are, "Is Political Economy a Science?" "Dr. Smiles' Works on Self Help," and "Russia and the Indian Frontier."

Price $4 per year, and the postage is prepaid by the Publishers.

Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine for February, has been republished by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay Street, N. Y.

"John Caldigate" is not yet finished. In this number we have the account of the trial, and the continued firmness of the young wife.

"The Medium of Last Century" ends in a tragic manner, the heroine being killed by lightning, A singular power of foretelling events is attributed to an old Negress, and the interest of the story is well sustained, though the picture of the state of society in Jamaica is not attractive.

Under the title "Two Ladies" we find charming accounts of the lives of Mrs. Jameson and Fanny Kemble. Though widely different in many respects, there were points of resemblance in both the maiden and married lives of these women, and as they were friends and moved in the same society, it is all the more pleasant to meet them together in these pages.

The article on "Magazine Writers" is really an autobiography of "Blackwood," "the parent of all Magazines," which is now in its sixty-second year. It started forth in life under the guidance of Mr. Wm. Blackwood, strengthened and supported by Wilson, Lockhart, and many others equally well known, and "its pages have always been the reflection of the literary genius and lustre of the times." Accounts of many of the contributors are given as well as notes on Magazines in general.

Besides the political article, there is an essay on "Domestic Service," describing the relations that formerly existed between master and man, and those of the present day.

Price, $4 a year and the postage is prepaid by the Publishers.

45 Years Before the Public.

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

CELEBRATED

LIVER PILLS

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

1879 SPRING 1879

Messrs. Root & Company's

CARPET DEPARTMENT!

Our constantly increasing business in this department w nts our offering to the public this spring a much larger variety and assortment than ever before.

PRICES THIS SPRING

Are lower than ever before, and parties who have delayed refurnishing their houses can now do it with economy and a certainty that they will never buy carpets any cheaper than they are at present.

The Choicest Designs Tapestry Brussels Carpets, 75c., 85c., 90c., $1.00 per yard.

The Choicest Designs Extra Super Ingrain Carpets, 75 cents per yard

All Wool Ingrain Carpets, 50, 60 and 65c.

Single and Double, Cotton Chain Carpets, 25, 30 and 35c per yard.

Hemp, Cottage, Rag and Dutch Carpets, 12 1-2, 15, 18 and 20c per yard.

New lines of Upholstery Goods, Curtain Goods, Floor Oil Cloths, Mattings, Rugs, Stair Rods, Cornices, Fixtures, Shades, Hollands, Picture cords, Tassels, &c.

N. B.—Parties desiring any repairing done to Curtains and Cornices, or to have Carpets relaid, will find our MR. BARRETT a competent and superior workman, who will attend promptly to any orders we are favored with.

ROOT & COMPANY,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER AND SPECIAL FLAVORING EXTRACTS.

Trade Mark

Eminent Chemists and Physicians certify that these goods are free from adulteration, richer, more effective, produce better results than any others, and that they use them in their own families.

DR. PRICE'S UNIQUE PERFUMES are the Gems of All Odors. TOOTHENE. An agreeable, healthful Liquid Dentifrice. LEMON SUGAR. A Substitute for Lemons. EXTRACT JAMAICA GINGER. From Pure Root.

STEELE & PRICE'S LUPULIN YEAST GEMS.

The Best Dry Hop Yeast in the World.

STEELE & PRICE, Manfrs., Chicago, St. Louis, and Cincinnati.

Trustee's Notice.

NOTICE is hereby given that I will be at my residence in Franklin township, for the transaction of township business, on Tuesday of each week.

B. F. GREENWOOD, Trustee.

2-6m.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examinations begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNS Co. Sup't.

—COMPOUND ELIXIR OF BUCHU for diseases of the kidneys, bladder and urinary organs is the best remedy known for rheumatism. It removes the cause, and effects a permanent cure in all cases. Sold by DAVENPORT the DRUGGIST. tf.

Application for License.

NOTICE is hereby given that I intend to apply to the Board of County Commissioners of DeKalb county, Ind., at their next regular session in March, 1879, for a license to retail spirituous, vinous and malt liquors in a less quantity than a quart at a time, to be drank on on the following described premises, to-wit: Lot number six [6] block number nineteen [19] in the town of Garrett, DeKalb county, Indiana.

CHARLES LINKENHELT.

Feb. 6th, 1879.

SAVE MONEY.

Collar and Milker free to Agents. Neat, light, durable, cheap. No hames required—excells all others. Farmers want it. Outlasts all others. Adjustable Fits any horse.

Our MILKER, the best on earth, ensures pure, clean milk. Saves its cost every week. Sells rapidly. Sent by mail to any part of the U. S. Send stamp for particulars.

J. W. GUERNSEY, Gen. Agent, 78 Courtlandt St., N. Y.

Attachment Notice.

Before Jacob Walborn J. P., of Union township, DeKalb county, Indiana.

William L. Penfield,
Charles Emanuel,
vs.
Albert C. Dawson

WHEREAS, the plaintiffs in the above entitled cause have filed with me their affidavit and bond in attachment, and a summons having been issued and returned not found and a writ of attachment having also been issued thereon, and the plaintiffs having also filed their affidavits in garnishment, and a summons issued thereon, and by virtue of said writ, property, moneys and effects having been attached of said defendant and it also appears that said defendant is a non-resident of the state of Indiana

Therefore the said defendant and all persons interested are hereby notified that said case is set for trial on the 18th day of April, A. D. 1879, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, before me, the undersigned, at my office, in the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

JACOB WALBORN,
Justice of the Peace. [SEAL.]

February 19th, 1879. 8-4w

Administrator's Sale of Real Estate.

NOTICE is hereby given that by virtue of an order of the Circuit Court of DeKalb county, in the state of Indiana, the undersigned administrator of the estate of Enos Weaver, deceased, will offer for sale at auction on the premises, on the following real estate:

SATURDAY the 15th day of MARCH, 1879,

Town lots number eighty-five (85) and one hundred and forty-eight (148), in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county Indiana. Also the north half of the north-east quarter of section thirty (30), in township thirty-four (34), north, range thirteen (13), east, in DeKalb county, Indiana; except a piece out of said tract of land heretofore set off to the widow of said decedent and bounded as follows: Commencing at the south-east corner of said tract of land and running thence west one hundred and twenty-one and two-fifths [121 2-5] rods, thence north twenty [20] rods, thence east to the east boundary line of said tract, thence south to the place of beginning, said piece excepted containing fifteen and two-fifths [15 2-5] acres.

TERMS OF SALE:—One third cash, the residue in equal payments at twelve and eighteen months, with notes at interest, waiving benefit of appraisement laws, and secured by mortgage on said premises.

8-4w WILLIAM LESSIG, Adm'r.

February 19th, 1879.

J. BRINKERHOFF,

BOUNTY AND PENSION AGENT.

LAND WARRANTS

Obtained for Soldiers, their Widows and Heirs for services in the Revolutionary War, the Indian Wars, War of 1812 and the Mexican War. Bounties for Soldiers, their Widows and Heirs for services in the war of 1861. Also Pensions for Soldiers, Widows and Heirs for military services in any war of the United States. Many soldiers now drawing pesions are entitled to

INCREASE OF PENSION.

If you think you are more disabled now than when you received your pension certificate, give me a call. Having been engaged in this business for the past 20 years I hope to render satisfaction. Counsel in regard to all claims against the Government, gratis.

J. BRINKERHOFF,
Main street, Auburn, Ind.

COMPETITION

Is the life of trade; therefore

Henry Gugerli!

Has opened a new Merchant Tailor establishment, in which he makes a specialty of

Ladies' Cloakings!

Which will be cut and fit, and made up if desired. For Gents' wear a

FULL LINE OF PIECE GOODS!

Always in stock to select from, at

Five to Ten Dollars

a suit less than the same goods can be bought for elsewhere. A full suit made to order, in the latest style, ready to put on, in

24 Hours Notice!

Remember that all work is done in the latest style, and satisfaction is guaranteed in every particular. 42-6m.

JUST RE EIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,
Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases Watch Chains, magnificent Holiday Gifts, Lockets, Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SETS

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry neatly repaired on short notice.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous

—The Doctors are kept busy.

—The Grand Jury is in session.

—Merchants are busy invoicing.

—The Good Templars had a show.

—Has the snath factory been removed —Wests liver pills cure liver complaint.

—Court did not convene until this morning.

—Auburn now has a daily paper—The News.

—Ask your neighbor to subscribe for the COURIER.

—Amos Miller, of Hicksville, Ohio was in the city last week.

—Yesterday was one of the most disagreable days of the winter.

—The county commissioners meet in regular session next Monday.

—A number of improvements have been made in the court room.

—We are reliably informed that a beau is a sure cure for sore throat.

—We are pleased to say that our subscription list is increasing rapidly.

—Johnny McIntyre gave a party to his numerous young friends last Tuesday night.

—The country schools are now closing and almost every teacher has prepared a roll of honor.

—There is still talk of a new manufacturing establishment in Auburn. Give it encouragement.

—Mr. Thurston's closing article concerning the "school at No. 4" appears in the COURIER of to-day.

—It is feared by some that the ice which clung to the trees last Tuesday has injured the fruit prospects.

—The friends of Miss Ellen Griswold tenderd her a surprise Tuesday evening at the residence of her parents.

—It is said that several gentlemen from this place attended the minstrel show at Ft. Wayne. How is it?

—Mr. Wright lost a valuable hound in a fox chase, last week. The dog gave up the ghost, after a long chase.

—Those who desire horse "chromo's" for the "ensuing season," will do well to call at the COURIER office before giving their order.

—QUERY: "Why will men smoke common tobacco, when they can buy Marburg Bros, "Seal of North Carolina" the same price.

—Again we notify our correspondents to write only on one side of the paper, otherwise it makes it very inconvenient for our compositors.

—Owing to the severe illness of Judge Tousley, he has been unable to hold court this week. Judge Lowry is presiding to-day.

—McClellan and Eldridge attended the firemans ball at Angola last Friday night. They speak in high terms of the management.

—The Ft. Wayne lottery is still receiving the attention of the press through out the state. We think a certain manager, managed to make a little money out of it.

—Crance, the Allen county murderer was sentenced to the penitentiary for life. Ward, who murdered his son in Whitley county, received a ten year sentence.

—We notice a change in the proprietorship of the Ft. Wayne Commercial. Messrs. Russel and Wright retiring. The business will be managed by Mr. J. G. Bittinger.

—The Columbia City Post with the enterprise characteristic of its publisher gave a full and complete account of the Ward murder trial, with all the evidence in the case, last week.

—Life-like pictures of Jackson can be procured at the COURIER office at low rates, by those who contemplate decorating barn-doors and big trees during the early part of the "season."

—Messrs. C. Beugnot & Co. received at their factory last Thursday, Friday and Saturday, 360 loads of stave bolts, an average of 120 loads per day. That is what we call doing a lively business.

—Rev. Young of the Catholic church is making preparations to start on an extended trip through Italy, Africa and other foreign countries. He will deliver his farwell sermon about the first of May.

—While the visiting vocalists from Kendalville may be good singers in an ordinary way, as jubilee singers they are failures. They would make a much better impression without the burnt cork and fantastic dress.

—Vanderbilt says: "How can the world know a man has a good thing unless he advertises the possession of it?" And how will the people of De-Kalb county know who sells the most goods for the least money, if the goods are not advertised in the COURIER.

—The residence of Henry Martin of Jackson township, together with all his household goods was destroyed by fire last Thursday morning at half past two. Mr. Martin is a poor man, who supports his family by days work, and the loss falls heavily upon him.

—Mr. Thomas, one of the parties mentioned last week, as having been swindled, has since subscribed for the COURIER. He says he is sorry he did not subscribe sooner, as he would have been $750.00 ahead. Let others take warning, and add their names to the COURIER list.

The Cheapest.

Reliable articles like Dr. Price's Special Flavoring Extracts,—Vanilla, Lemon, Orange, Ginger, etc., that have stood the test of the best judges in the country, are the cheapest in the long run, if health is to be considered.

—Money to loan on improved farms. Time, five years—loan can be paid at any time—interest 9 per cent., payable at the end of the year; no advance interest. Will loan in sums of $300 and upwards. Reasonable commissions. For full particulars call on John L. Davis, Auburn, Ind. 5-4w.

Land for Sale.

The undersigned offers eighty acres of good land (50 acres cleared) one mile east and two miles south of Butler, for sale at a bargain. For further information inquire at my residence, one mile east of Butler.

9-4w PETER HAAS.

Admired by all.

Every person who has used Dr. Price's Unique Perfumes admire them. His Pet Rose is charming—the fragrance of sweet blossoms; his Alista Bouquet, delicately delightful—the odor of dainty buds; while his Floral Riches surpass in rich, fresh, flowery odor any Cologne or toilet water ever made.

—Our enterprising manufacturer, Mr. James Anderson, is again in the market with a lot of first class carriages and buggies of his own manufacture, which he will sell at low figures, and on one year's time with approved security. He defies any shop in Northern Indiana to furnish better material than is used in his work. 9-9w

But just to Say.

It is but just to say that the firm of Steele & Price were the first to place in the market articles for culinary purposes that are strictly pure and wholesome. Their Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder has obtained its popularity and extended sale by the purity of the materials.

—Mary had a little chill
Which gave her heaps of pain,
And when she tried to shake that chill
It shook her back again.
It followed her to school one day,
Which was against the rule;
It made the children laugh to see
Poor Mary shake in school,
And so the teacher sent her home
And bade her take some ile,
To reconstruct her system and
To liquidate the bile. —Times-Journal.

Mary has our sympathies.

Indiana Patents.

List of patents issued to citizens of the State of Indiana, February, 18 1879, and each bearing date February 18th, 1879. Furnished this paper by C. Bradford, Solicitor of patents, 18 Hubbard Block, Indianapolis, Ind.

To G. W. Pyle, of Geneva, for improvement in gates.

To J. Cowhig, of Richmond, for improvement in fire tube steam boilers.

To C. B. Hitchcock, of Indianapolis, for improvement in Mechanical movement.

To J B. Sulgrove, of Indianapolis, for improvement in sewing machine attachments.

—To say that the entertainment which was to have been given for the benefit of the Good Templars last Friday evening was a failure, would be expressing it in very mild terms indeed. Notwithstanding the large membership of the lodge and the scores of temperance advocates outside of the lodge, there was scarcely a corporals' guard of the faithful that were willing to lend their presence and cast their mite for the Benefit of the cause they are so zealous to advocate by empty words. If the advocates of temperance reform expect encouragement from the public, it might be well enough for them to show their liberality in at least a moderate degree.

Roll of Honor.

The following is a list of pupils of a school composed of twenty-four scholars, who were not absent, during the month ending Feb., 26, 1869 in school dist, No. 11 Richland tp. Emanuel Swander, Levi Shirk, Levi Wolf, David Ober, Harry Ober and Frank Ober. Also a list of those who were not tardy during the same time. Emanuel Swander, Francis Powel, John Powel, William Powel, Abraham L. Barnhart, Levi Shirk, William Olinger, George Olinger David Ober, Harry Ober, Frank Ober, Minnie Mathews, Dacota Mathews, Elmer Grogg, Alice Simons, Levi Wolf and Malinda Wolf.

NATHAN B. HATHAWAY,
Teacher.

—An exchange says: "A number of our exchanges are scoring the drummers of foreign printing offices who raid their respective towns and underbid for printing. The people of such localities, who patronize outside institutions, must have very little local pride or home spirit. Their local papers work for them and that turn deserves return. Give the home paper all the patronage and they will soon be able to do as fine work as any office in the land, Indeed, many of them do now. He is a poor citizen and a mean-spirited neighbor who asks and receives the support of his local paper for every project and interest he has and yet does not reciprocate with the patronage he has in the line of printing. The paper in a thousand ways helps the town and every citizen in it, and unless it is well sustained it can not do itself and its patrons justice."

STARTLING REVELATION.

Merrick's Confession Found in a Secret Compartment in the Case of His Watch.

[Indianapolis Sentinel.]

One of the most singular and startling incidents of the present century came to light yesterday in the discovery of a genuine confession of the late William Merrick, which rivals many of the stories of the dark ages, when men kept or hid away revelations of deeds of darkness in secret panels, drawers, seal rings, broches, lockets and other innocent looking articles of ornament or furniture. Merrick seems to have imbibed the idea of rendering his name still more famous or infamous by having in his possession a watch with its secret chamber that is destined to be one of the seven wonders of the age. The discovery was the result of an accident, or rather was purely accidental. Dr. Edwins, representative from Madison county, after the purchase of the watch at sheriff's sale last Monday, took it to the jeweler to have it examined and cleaned, and having some curiosity to see it taken apart stood by conversing while he was doing the work. The watch is a highly embrossed stem winder, with a heavy double case, is as handsome an appearing timepiece as a gentleman of his taste and style would wish to carry. After opening the watch and detaching the works from the case; there appearing to be some dirt in the groove where the two sides join, the workman ran a small tool around, when in passing a point about a half inch from the hinge, and that seemed to resist the passage of the tool, suddenly an inner plate or cap sprung open, startling the jeweler (and Dr. Edwins also, for that matter), so that it fell from his hands to the floor, the fact of it having been carried by Merrick making him somewhat nervous. In picking it up out fell a carefully folded piece of tough tissue paper, closely covered with writing in pencil, which from its singular wording, would seem to be a confession of the horrible crime for which Merrick was executed, together with hints of his connection with the murder of the young man at Connersville and the old man who was found dead in his stable. He also mentions the name of another who seems to have been a victim to his hellish passions. The paper read as follows:

"What a dam fool I was; if Ide served her like I did the other girl, Ide never been found out. Why didn't I barl her up and send her to Michigan like I did Fan. Somehow everything went bad from the day I first got her tight and took her to my room, til I took her out that night. dam her—no its no use to cure her now I done enough of that when she was livin. I wouldent care only for the baby. But its no use I have to swing for it and then—that's what gits me. The old man didn't truble me much. he took the dose just as easy. he was too drunk to know better. I served that other cuss right, he stood between me and that girl. hed no business to get in my way I tried hard to make em believe Jul would come in time but thats played out. I wonder who'll find this when I'm dead and gone." M.

AUBURN, IND., Feb. 26, 1879.

The season of Lent is at hand again, in which we should reflect upon the infinite goodness and mercy of God, manifested to us in the passion of Christ, who bore our infirmities and was wounded for our sins. This should encourage us to return to Him who is indeed our Saviour and Redeemer. Christ died that poor sinners might live; Christ suffered that the poor sinner might escape eternal torment; the goodness of God should lead us to repentance. In misery, in affliction and danger, we should remember that these are the fruits of sin; we should follow the example of the people of God in the old law, and by true penance seek to appease the wrath of God and to avert the punishment due to our sins. The institution of Lent is primitive and apostolical. It has been religiously observed in all ages of the church down to us. Christ himself gave birth to this ordinance, and he sanctified it in his own person.—Math. iv. We are expressly commanded to offer up to God the tenths of our goods; and why not, likewise, the tithe of our lives, by an annual forty days penance? Does not the expiation of criminal excesses call for punishment? Do not the dispositions for worthily celebrating the memory of Christ's passion require such a sacrifice? If we ever hope for mercy, now is the acceptable time; now are the days of salvation.—Cor. vi. Our good God knows that we are in sin, He sees the mouth of eternal death open to devour us; and therefore, he calls aloud, now is the time.

Let us, therefore, embrace the opportunity while it is in our power. If we have offended by indulging our passions, let us make speedy amends by vigorous self denials. If a yielding inclination has been to us an occasion of sin, let us hence-forward check it by a discreet severity; let us by voluntary chastisements now sue for pardon. Spare us O Lord! spare the people! cast us not forever from Thy face.—Joel ii.

In the Catholic church will be services every Wednesday and Friday evenings of each week during Lent at 7 o'clock. Sermons in English. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

REV. A. YOUNG.

—Remember that you can get a better job of printing at the COURIER office than any other place in the county.

—Through the kindness of Sheriff Leas we were recently permitted to examine the improvements just completed in the county jail. The general appearance of the interior of the jail and Sheriff's residence has been changed materially, and the arrangement for the opening, closing and fastening the new doors of the lower tier of cells has been greatly changed and improved. The iron work in the jail has been repainted, and the walls and the interior of the cells have been thoroughly whitewashed throughout, and no pains is spared by the Sheriff to make the prison apartments healthy and comfortable, as well as secure against escape. The Sheriff's residence has been repainted from top to bottom, the walls and ceilings having been badly soiled and injured by defects in the roof, have been handsomely repainted in appropriate tints, and well varnished, which in connection with the taste displayed in furnishing the several apartments makes an attractive home, more especially so as it is presided over by an accomplished and estimable lady—Mrs. Leas.

—The school just south of here known as the Shuger's school, closed on Washington's birthday, which event will not soon be forgotten. In the forenoon there was nothing more than the usual recitations, which were good, to say the least of them, but at noon was when the interesting part began. Preparations had been made for a table which was not extra handsome, but that did not occupy the mind of any one very long, for something more attractive was presented. What was it? Well it was just the most splendid lot of fowls, cakes, pies, tarts, and—well I will not say anything about it, for it always makes one sad when alone to think of such a grand, glorious and luxuriant feast as those ladies know exactly how to prepare. School was called at 2 o'clock and the audience listened to some declarations, which were few in number, short in duration, but extraordinary in quality. Next were speeches by the following, J. J. Walters Jno. Sheffer, C. H. Brown, Jas. Swisher, and Jno. Shugars. The scholars gave to their teacher, W. B. Brown, an unanimous vote of thanks for his kindness and attention.

Sure Cure For Hog Cholera.

The following receipt was handed us for publication by Mr. D. Lanham, who has tried its merits and finds it a sure cure for hog cholera. Give it a trial. "Make concentrated lye into good soap by the usual rule; take one pail of soap to fifty hogs; put the soap in a kettle, add water and two pounds of coperas, boil it, then add dishwater and milk (or anything to make it taste good) till you have about what the fifty hogs will drink. Place enough of the mixture, while warm, for twenty five hogs to drink, in troughs, in a seperate lot. Just as you are ready to let the hogs in, scatter two pounds of soda in the troughs; the object is to have it foaming when the hogs come to drink. Be sure that every hog drinks, and if he will not drink put him in the hospital, and if you cannot get him to drink then knock him in the head, for he will give the cholera to the rest. After twenty-five have had all they will drink, let in twenty-five more, and continue till the whole are treated. The next day go through the same operation After the second day skip a day, then give two days, and you may turn them out cured An important point is to make the hog drink, and if he will not take it in any other way, then add new milk or put in sugar."

LaOtto.

—C. Howk has returned to LaOtto.

—Rev. Smurr of Rome City was in town last Monday.

—James Hogue of Altona has been visiting friends here.

—'Squire Walburn, of Auburn gave LaOtto a call last week.

—Wm. Koons and wife of Albion, spent last Sunday here with the parents of the latter.

—Frank Rosenberger puts his head into a rain barrel and yells "pa" to see how it sounds.

—Miss Cora Bonebrake of Ohio is visiting with her sister Mrs. H. C. Kinzie, who is quite ill.

—Mrs Rheubottom of Wolcotville delivered a lecture at the Wesleyan church last Saturday night on "Womans' Rights." It was so nice.

—H. Holbrook and family, formerly of North Manchester, are visiting friends here. They are on their way to Shelby, Ohio, where they intend to reside.

BIDDY.

To Township Trustees and School Boards.

We keep in stock a full line of copyrighted Records and Blanks for the use of Trustees, School Directors and road Supervisors, which we offer at low figures. We have the most complete system ever introduced in the state. For simplicity our Records excel all others. Call and examine the goods.

That School No. 4.

BY C. H. THURSTON.

Two o'clock Dec. 14, arrived and it being the last day of our township institute all the teachers of the township, with one exception, were present as well as a sleighload of teachers and other young folks from Smithfield-tp. Among those from Smithfield was the late lamented James McOscar, who was then teaching at Smithfield. The long faced crowd from No. 4 was there, and Mr. Lowe, their speaker, asked the trustee if he had subpœnaed the witnesses. The trustee told him he had nothing to do with getting their witnesses, but they must get them themselves, and intimated that as they had made the charge they ought to know enough about it to be witnesses themselves. Mr. Lowe and others struck out to try to get somebody to render evidence in their case, but without avail; and when at a quarter past 3 o'clock the trustee announced the court in session, they put in the plea that they were not ready, and wished to have the trial postponed until Monday. As defendant I objected, and wished the trial to come on immediately But Mr. Lowe and Mr. Haverstock claimed the right to continue the suit at pleasure, and the trustee granted them another hearing to take place at his home on the following Monday, Dec. 16th. Before the time of the trial arrived the trustee ascertained that under the circumstances, and according to law, the suit ought to have been dismissed on Saturday, as they did not file any affidavit, showing good reason for continuing the suit. I found he was going to dismiss the case without any further hearing, and so went to school on Monday morning. About noon Mr. Kepler drove up in front of the school house with a load of rails, and Mr. Haverstock drove up just behind him. They stopped in front of the school house and after about twenty minutes spent in consultation Mr. Kepler appeared at the door and handed me a paper, saying "here is a paper from Haverstock." I subjoin a verbatim copy of its contents;

NOTICE.

"Calvin Thurston you are hereby notified to produce the petition containing the request that you should teach the school during the winter term of the year 1878 and 1879, in the school house at the center of Franklin township, in Dekalb county, and state of Indiana, with the signers annexed, and to produce said petition at the trial of school district No. 4, against you (Calvin Thurston.) Said trial to be held on the 16th day of December, 1878, at the residence of Franklin Greenwood the trustee of Franklin township, in said county and state aforesaid.

SAMUEL HAVERSTOCK."

It has been suggested that I should send Old Sammy's photograph along with this notice to Barnum's museum, as a unique specimen a of a northern bulldozer. They had no evidence to produce at the trial, and evidently wished me to furnish for them that which they hankered after. This I was as unable to do as anybody, as I had no papers that would benefit them any even if I had been disposed to furnish them. The "consultation" above mentioned between Mr. Kepler and the gentleman of the "notice" is the most I have known them to talk together for the last eight years, as they have had each other by the ears more or less during all this time. The two men became suddenly united on the subject of morality, it appears. This was before Sammy's attempt to bulldoze Mr. John Eckhart. In the afternoon they gathered up such as could be induced to go and went to the trustee's to the intended trial only to find the suit dismissed. In their chagrin a part of their number hastened to Hamilton to have Mr. Andrew Baxter, the attorney, to write an affidavit for them. That gentleman blandly told them that he was engaged by the defendant and could do nothing for them. The Noragon boys told Mr. Baxter that they would show him that there were other folks in the world just as smart as him and Cal. Thurston. Mr. Baxter modestly replied that he was willing to admit this as far as it referred to him, but if they wanted to get Thurston out, they had better send everything they had, big and little and then if he neglected his duty in any way they would have some chance to get him out. They then tried 'Squire John Brown, but he told them it was out of his line of business, and he would have nothing to do with it. The next morning Mr. Lowe appeared at the school, as he said, to see if we could not compromise. I told him I wished to do what was right, and would listen to any terms he had to offer. He said he had only one proposition to make viz: that they would withdraw the charges if I would resign the school, and added that if I did not accept this offer and affidavit would likely be filed, and probably might be by that time. I replied that I would not entertain such a proposition for a moment as this would be a virtual acknowledgment that I was guilty of the charge and resigned the school while there was a trial pending in order to avoid the trial. He wished to know if I had any proposition to offer. I told him "none, except they should send their children to school and I would treat them as if nothing had happened, because they were not to blame for the wrong their parents had committed in trumping up a false charge against me." He looked around the room and seeing the new writing charts that the trustee had just obtained for the school, he growled against the trustee for wasting some more public money in that way. He went away and in about two hours he stuck his head in at the door and said that if I had any proposition to make at any time and would come to him he would help to get it before the district. I replied he was very clever but had nothing more to offer. I heard afterward that he and others met at Butler that day and employed an attorney to write an affidavit so they could continue their suit of ejectment, but when it was written not one of them dared to sign it. So they dropped their trumped charge, apparently fearing they would get a bigger elephant on their hands than they could manage. And here I must jog Mr. Lowe's memory a little, for he is so forgetful. This was on the 3rd week of school instead of the 2nd, as he says in his first "Epistle general of Lowe." Nothing further of any consequence happened until when on the morning of Jan. 13, I went to the school house and found that the elbow and three joints of pipe were missing. I immediately had some more furnished and went on with my work. The pipe was found some time afterward secreted under the church which stands a few rods from the school house. On the night of Feb. 5th, eight window lights were broken, apparently by blows from the outside. Mr. Rohrbaugh has said "those persons living west of the church are the cause of all the trouble." These are Mr. Lowe and his "neighbors" Cal. and Sam. Noragon. So we think when Mr. Lowe in his communication of Jan. 27, says he is "acting in harmony with his neighbors," he confesses to the company he keeps, and also that he has a hand in the spoilation of the school property. If his "neighbors" were to turn incendiaries and horse thieves I suppose Mr. Lowe would have to "act in harmony with them." We have seen how Mr. Lowe first stirred up discontent and dissatisfaction in the district, then appointed himself a committee on charges, and as a last resort made the attack in the papers, wherein he has made his attempt to stigmatize me. His mantle of charity that he throws over himself as a sheep's clothing in his good bye, is put on with ill grace when the ears stick through so plainly. If other trustees had not hired teachers on the condition that they should quit the school if the attendance become small, No. 4 would have had no reason to think this requirement was law. This they did not learn until they had pledged themselves to rule and ruin and so could not well back out. They have learned something in the dear school of experience, and if they are of that class that Webster describes as being unable to learn in any otherway, it is probably a valuable lesson. They have at least learned that the law accords to parents the inestimable privilege of fooling away their children's money if they wish to by keeping them out of school. But they seem inclined to act the part of Old Adam and each lay the blame on some one else. Mr. Haverstock has said he had no objection to Thurston, but it was so lonesome for his children when the rest didn't come. Mr. Rohrbaugh, as already seen, throws all the blame on those living west of the church, whereas he lives east of it. Mr. Kepler says "the Noragons are the meanest people in the country," and Mr. Lowe is ashamed to come out and acknowledge that he is the "Alpha and Omega" of the difficulty, but says he is "acting with his neighbors for fear of making a neighborhood jealous." Mr. Lowe has accused me of having my faults as well as other people. This is humiliation I confess, but the trustee could hardly be expected to obtain a compound of Saintly virtue and manly accomplishments to teach a district school for No. 4 for thirty dollars per month. I could not quit the school without compromising with dishonor and establishing a precedent that other districts might try to follow. After they had undertaken to throw me overboard, I told them that I would now give them a chance to test their ability to turn out a teacher, and if I resigned at all, it would be by being compelled to do so. I think I have written all that is of any benefit to anybody and possibly have worried the patience of some, especially the editor, but I now leave the subject with a generous public.

A CONUNDRUM.

Answer Given March 1st.

WATCH IT! WATCH IT!

SAM, PETE & MAX,
Managers Star Clothing House, Fort Wayne, Ind.

TWO PATHS.

Oh! murmuring ones who frown and fret
Upon the way your feet are set,
Know that the path ye count so bleak
Is better than the one ye seek.

For on that broad and pleasant way,
Wherein so much ye long to stray,
Stands conscience, and from every soul
That journeys there he asks a toll.

A toll that steals from every pleasure,
That takes from every glittering treasure,
That robs the traveler of his rest,
And smites the heart within his breast.

For this one, turned from friend to foe,
Forbids sweet peace with them to go,
And all is now but worthless dross,
That knows her pleasant light and loss.

So, though the road be rough and steep,
Speed on, oh friend! thy courage keep;
And ever at thy side shall be
The peace that conscience gives to thee;

To smooth the way, to whisper "hope,"
Through e'er what darkness ye may grope,
Then, ere thy race is wholly run,
Or ere the whole long day is done,

A burst of sudden light shall break
Upon thy path, and ye shall wake
To know the way ye did deride
Led to a country glorified!
—Kate Williamson.

OUR PASSENGER.

It was a lovely autumn afternoon toward the close of September when we weighed anchor and sailed out of the river Mersey, bound for Melbourne. We had a good ship—Janet's Pride—loaded with miscellaneous articles. On board were fourteen passengers; and, take them all in all, a pleasanter lot I never steered across the stormy seas.

There were three old gentlemen, who were going out to share their fortunes, come what might, and which, poor old souls, they seemed to think fashioned in the brightest colors, long before the English coast was out of sight.

Then there was a solitary old gentleman, who, judging from the general tone of his conversation, was seeking the New World for the ostensible purpose of finding fault with it.

There were two young married couples, all full of hope and activity, bent upon making a new home faraway from their native land.

There were also a very jolly elderly brother and sister, neither of whom had ever entered into the bonds of matrimony; but, instead, had stuck by each other through life.

There were three old Australian settlers, who had been over to have a peep at the old country, and who were now returning to the land which to them, through long communion, had become the dearest of all others—"Home, sweet home!"

Lastly, though not least, there was a solitary passenger, who soon became the pet of all on board. He was a man of about 28 years of age, possessing a very clear complexion, a very handsome, long-flowing beard, and a very silky mustache.

His name was Reginald Moore. His given reason for taking this sea voyage was the delicate state of his health. There was not the least doubt that the poor fellow's chest was considerably affected, for his voice, though charmingly sweet, was one of the weakest I ever remember hearing; and it had a certain hollowness in its sound that in my mind is invariably associated with that terrible disease commonly termed consumption. He always wore a thick muffler round his neck to protect his throat and chest.

In all my experience—and it has been a pretty wide one—I never knew any one with so many friends, and such undivided esteem, in so short a space of time, as Reginald Moore. There was not, I believe, a sailor on board who did not entertain the warmest possible liking for him.

As for the passengers they never seemed so happy as when listening to his amusing anecdotes, of which he seemed to possess an inexhaustible store. And this delicate young English paragon of passengers had made this conquest over all our hearts before we had been three weeks at sea.

He was, too, such a clever fellow with his hands. He could cut and shape you anything out of a piece of wood, from an oyster to an elephant, and at making models of ships I never met his equal. He was, besides, such a kind and considerate fellow toward his fellow-passengers.

When the three elderly gentlemen, who imagined their fortunes made, were afflicted with sea-sickness, he was the first to come forward and help them about while they slowly recovered. He would insist upon their taking his arm, weak as he was himself, and he would lead them about on deck with a firmness that spoke volumes in favor of his "sea legs."

I do not remember any voyage ever passing so quickly as the one when the pleasant passenger was on board. I could, with infinite pleasure, make a long pause at this juncture in the thread of my story, to dwell upon the pleasant memories I still retain of Reginald Moore.

We were within a week's sail of Melbourne. Reginald Moore had all but completed a model of the Janet's Pride, which he proposed presenting to me the night before we landed.

Now he worked at this model principally on deck, and, strangely enough, he had chosen for a work-table the top of one of the empty water-casks that stood on the deck, abaft, and under the shelter of the bulwarks.

While he worked through the day you were sure to see him surrounded by some of the passengers or sailors. The amount of industry he displayed was truly wonderful, for he was invariably at work in the early morning, long before any of the other passengers dreamed of turning out of their snug berths.

As I have already stated, we were but six days' sail from Melbourne. For the first time in our experience of him, the pleasant passenger appeared at the dinner-table with a solemn, downcast expression of face and a silent tongue. Before dinner was over, I asked him what troubled his mind, and caused this unhappy change in his wonted cheerful manner.

At first, he tried to evade my queries by replying that it was "nothing, nothing in particular;" but I pressed him persistently until I won from him an explanation.

"Perhaps, after all," he said, "it is only fair that I should explain matters. The fact of the matter is, my watch has been stolen."

"Stolen!" we all exclaimed in a breath.

"Undoubtedly," he answered, "but I pray you, Captain"—here he turned to me—"I pray you say not one word about it. The only thing that renders the loss of consequence to me is the fact that it once belonged to my poor mother. On that account alone, I would not have lost it for any amount of money. However, it cannot be helped, and, therefore, it is useless to cry over spilt milk, as the old adage has it. My only request in the matter is, my dear Captain, that you will leave the matter entirely in my hands, and I think it very probable that I may recover it. This request I am sure you will oblige me by granting."

"Certainly, my dear sir," I replied; "but still—"

"Exactly," he interrupted, with one of his pleasant smiles, "you would like to take the matter in hand and investigate it to the utmost of your power. I know that, my dear Captain, full well, but I can trust you to keep your promise, and leave the case entirely in my hands."

How could I deny him his request?

You will readily imagine what consternation this event gave rise to among the other passengers. The three old gentlemen instantly proceeded to explain that they possessed jewelry to the value of at least £300, which they usually kept locked up in a brown-leather writing-case; but, unfortunately, at the present time the lock was out of order.

Mr. Reginald Moore suggested a safer deposit for their valuables.

The young married couples announced the fact of their owning at least £250 worth of jewelry; and they, too, consulted Mr. Moore as to the safest plan for secreting it.

The kind-hearted brother and sister had, it appeared, more valuables in the way of jewelry than any one on board, since £1,500 had never purchased what they possessed.

The whole of that evening was occupied in speculating as to the probable perpetrator of the theft, and in condoling with Mr. Reginald Moore on his great loss.

Every one turned in that night in an uneasy state of mind; and it was with astonishment that they found themselves, in the morning, still in full possession of all their worldly goods. This improved condition of affairs seemed to reassure our passengers, who once again began to look cheerful and at ease.

Reginald Moore's pleasant face wore its wonted smile, and, as heretofore, he enlivened and charmed us with his vivacity and anecdote. All day through, he worked at the model of the Janet's Pride, still using the top of the empty water-cask for a work-table.

That night, we retired to rest with minds far more at ease than on the previous one. Alas! what a scene of anger and distress came with the morning! Every passenger on board, possessing jewelry, had been robbed during the night.

The three old gentlemen, the young married couples, and the kind-hearted brother and sister, found themselves minus every article of jewelry that they had possessed. Even the grumbling old gentleman had lost his gold snuff-box.

There was no keeping matters quiet this time. The thief must be traced and brought to justice. What was the wisest method of procedure? What would Mr. Moore suggest?

"I would suggest, though most reluctantly," said Mr. Moore, "that every sailor and every sailor's luggage be carefully searched."

To this proposition we unanimously agreed.

"This," he continued, "must be most humiliating to the feelings of your crew, Captain, and therefore, in common fairness to them as our fellow-men, let me also suggest that every passenger and every passenger's luggage be also thoroughly searched."

A little hesitation on the part of one or two of the passengers was demonstrated before acceding to this last proposal, but our pleasant passenger soon contrived to bring those who at first demurred to his side of thinking.

"Of course," he said, "there is not a passenger on board who is not above suspicion. yet, in justice to the feelings of the crew, it is, in my humble opinion, the least we can do."

This delicacy of feeling and this thoughtfulness on the part of Reginald Moore rendered him, if possible, more admirable and praiseworthy in our eyes than ever.

Many of the crew objected strongly to this mode of procedure, but all were compelled to submit. The old boatswain was furious with indignation, and vowed that if it cost him his life he would trace the thief who had caused him to be searched like a common pickpocket. Even the pleasant passenger failed to soothe his sense of injury.

Well, a thorough search was made by myself, in company with the kind-hearted old gentleman and his sister. Every one's "traps" were ransacked from top to bottom, but without success.

Further search was useless. What was to be done?

That night, all having been made snug, and the passengers having turned in, none of them, as you may imagine, in very brilliant spirits, I went on deck, it being what we call at sea "the Captain's watch."

I turned in about 4 a. m., the second officer then coming on duty. My cabin was amidships and on deck, and from a window therein I could command a view of the after-deck of the ship.

Somehow or other I could not rest one atom, so, dressing myself, I determined upon sitting up and smoking. I drew aside the blind of the window I have mentioned, and looked out.

It was just the gray light of early morning, and there was a stiffish breeze blowing. To my surprise I beheld Mr. Reginald Moore on deck.

I was about to open my cabin door and invite him to join me in my restlessness, when the peculiar nature of his proceedings riveted my attention. He looked around on all sides, as if afraid of attracting observation.

Then, suddenly, as if assured the coast was clear, he made rapidly toward the empty water-cask, on which he was accustomed to manufacture his model of the Janet's Pride. Once more glancing cautiously about him, he then applied his hands to the top of the cask, and, with a rapid movement, lifted half of the top bodily off.

My astonishment and my excitement were intense. Another hasty glance around, and he plunged his hand down into the cask, and quickly withdrew it, holding in his grasp a small bag, which he rapidly concealed in the breast of his coat.

Again he took a hasty survey, and was about making another dive into this strange receptacle for hidden goods, when he suddenly withdrew, having, with astonishing rapidity, replaced the lid of the cask. In another moment the cause of his alarm was made apparent, as a couple of sailors passed him on the way to relieve the man at the wheel.

When all was again quiet, for an instant he seemd determined to at once return to the cask, and no doubt withdraw something more that the interruption had prevented him from withdrawing in the first instance. But, suddenly changing his mind, he went down the stairs that led from the deck to the saloon and sleeping cabins.

Scarcely had he disappeared when another figure, stealthily crossing the deck, met my anxious observation. It was the boatswain.

I saw him glance towards the stairs, down which Mr. Reginald Moore had taken his departure. He then made direct for the water-cask. It was now obvious to me that the old boatswain had been watching the pleasant passenger.

Just as he reached the water-cask, a heavy green sea struck the ship to windward, necessitating the boatswain to hold on by the ropes so as to keep his footing, and precisely at the same moment Reginald Moore appeared at the top of the cabin stairs. I shall never forget the scene.

The instant the ship had steadied herself, the boatswain commenced his examination of the water-cask. For a moment only, Moore stood looking at him with as evil an expression on his face as I ever beheld.

With one bound, he was upon the boatswain, before he could turn to protect himself. I waited no longer, but flung open the door of my cabin in an instant, and in another I was to the rescue, and in a few moments we had our pleasant passenger in irons.

So, you see, he was the thief, after all, hiding his knavery under the pleasantest exterior I ever knew a man possess. The manner in which he had manufactured the top of that water-cask was the most finished and ingenious piece of carpentry I have ever beheld.

In the interior of the side of the cask he had driven several nails, about two feet from the top, on which he had suspended, in wash-leather bags, the jewelry he had stolen.

You may easily imagine the surprise evinced by our passengers, on discovering that the thief was the man for whom each and every one of them entertained such regard and even affection.

At the expiration of three days from the date of the pleasant passenger's detection, we landed in Melbourne, where duty compelled me to hand him over to the police; but, as no one cared to remain in that town for the purpose of prosecuting him, he was summarily dealt with. The presiding magistrate sentenced him to six months' imprisonment with hard labor.—Youth's Companion.

Hero or Suicide?

That is the question about Cashier J. W. Barron, of the Dexter (Me.) Savings Bank, whose discovery, gagged, strangling and dying, in the vault of that institution, nearly a year ago, made such a great sensation. Everything indicated that he had acted the part of the hero, refusing to divulge the combination that would unlock the treasures of the safe to burglars even at the risk of his own life. His praises were sung throughout the land, banks in different parts of the country contributed a fund of some thousands of dollars for the benefit of his family, and a memorial church was being erected in the little town where he had lived. But now, almost a year after the event, comes the startling story that Barron, so far from being a hero, was only another defaulter, who ingeniously devised all the accessories to a sensational death scene, and then took poison—in the hope of thus securing the credit of a martyr and warding off the disgrace of exposure. Thus far the whole affair is involved in mystery. That suspicious characters were seen in Dexter just before the tragedy is admitted, and that some of the blows and wounds Barron's body bore must have been inflicted by other hands than his seems almost certain; on the other hand, a defalcation did exist. Yet, even if Barron had appropriated the $3,600 reported missing, his standing was so high and the bank so far secured by a $2,000 insurance policy on his life, that there appears little motive for suicide. Certainly everybody will hope that the dead cashier's memory may be saved from such a pitiful fall as now threatens it.

Thirty Years a Stranger at Home.

Men may escape the law, but their own consciences they cannot flee from. Many years ago a young man in this city was guilty of an offense against the law, an offense which brought social ruin upon himself and his family. The man and his offense are forgotten by the public, yet he lives, and lives here in Boston. But, from the day his offense was discovered—although, having escaped the law, he is free to come and go as he pleases—he has never been seen outside of his own home in the daytime. Sometimes, under the cover of night, he walks abroad to take an airing, and note the changes that thirty years have wrought, but an ever-active conscience makes him shun the light of day, and the faces of men, and he walks apart, a stranger in the midst of those among whom he has always lived.—Boston Transcript.

PECK ON CHEESE.

The Inventor of the Great Wisconsin Churn and Child-Persuader Combined Discusses "Cheese as a Finale."

George W. Peck, the "home missionary" of the Milwaukee Sun, read a humorous paper on "Cheese as a Finale" before the Dairymen's Convention, in Chicago. It was received with roars of laughter. After describing the promise and potency of a calf's rennet and the service rendered to science by cheese in demonstrating spontaneous generation, the humorist referred as follows to some of the more lately-discovered uses of cheese:

"As great a power as cheese has become in the world, it has not fairly begun to be appreciated. The last triumph that cheese has attained is being introduced in the army as ammunition. To-day the soldier on the plains, in his efforts to get away from the Indians, is aided to a great extent by cheese. With a slug of cheese in his holster, he bids defiance to the red devils of the plains. On the retreat he places his cheese behind him and the dusky brave declines to follow. When charging a lodge of squaws and papooses he waves aloft his trusty slice of cheese, and carries terror into the camp of the enemy. They fall upon their knees at sight of the sanguinary weapon, and beg the soldiers to take it away. In all of the recent battles with the Indians, where our soldiers were armed with the deadly breech-loading cheese, victory has perched upon our banners.

"And Sheridan twenty miles away."

"The disaster to our arms away off in the Big Horn country, by which so many brave men were destroyed, could have been avoided had that noble little band been armed with cheese. How different was the result of the battle a few miles from the fatal battle-field, where a portion of the command, under the gallant Reno, was under the influence of cheese, as shown by the testimony in the recent investigation. Cheese saved the day. Who does not remember the noble words of the patriotic driver of the pack-mules on that day, who, as he saw the Indians running one way, while he was running the other, raised in his saddle and shouted, 'Give me cheese or give me death.'

"The recent invention, by which cheese can be reduced to a liquid form and carried in a bottle, fills a want long felt by army officers. But, as an assistant to the army in suppressing insurrections and exterminating Indians, the cheese has many advantages not yet enumerated. Why should not cheese be used in offensive operations as well as on the defensive? By the exercise of a little ingenuity on your part, fellow-cheeseists, it can be done. I would recommend that cheese for the army be made in sections, with hinges at stated intervals in the rind. Then sections of cheese can be issued to soldiers, and, when they find it necessary to throw up intrenchments, they can dismount, hitch the hinges of their several sections of cheese together, spread the cheese rind out on the ground, set upon the edge, get behind the breastwork and bid defiance to the bullets of the enemy, which will be flattened against the boiler-plate that is found on the outside of all well-regulated cheese. Then send a shell loaded with Limburg into the camp of the enemy, and watch the devastation."

After setting forth the capacity of cheese to replace the mule, and even the steam engine, as a traction power, Mr. Peck continued as follows: "Cheese is liable to dispute with India rubber for a place in public estimation. Is there not some ingredient that can be put in cheese to make it of the consistency of an overshoe? I believe that cheese can be made as impervious to water as the stomach of a politician. If it can, then a new field is open for it. It may not go to Congress—though I would sooner trust a good, intelligent sage cheese in Congress than some of the politicians. Certainly cheese couldn't do any hurt there. But it can be made into many articles that rubber is now used exclusively for, such as overcoats, belts, car-springs, and teething-rings, and it will eventually take the place of China for nest-eggs for hens. There is a great future before cheese, but it must not be expected that it can attain the proud eminence to which it is entitled in a day. There are prejudices against cheese which must be overcome. It is just so in everything. It was so in the case of the Bologna sausage. It took years for the Bologna sausage to rise from its humble sphere to the place it now occupies in the economy of nature. Bologna had to combat against prejudice and live down scandals as to its origin, with which the names of respectable dogs are coupled. But it outlived all the vile stories, and is to-day inshrined in the hearts of our people, in ulsters made of fiddle-string material, proud in its conscious victory over as implacable an enemy as ever attempted to tear down a rival. Let cheese keep a stiff upper lip, decline to be interviewed by the reporters for the daily press, who will misrepresent it, keep its own counsel, and it will walk hand in hand with Bologna, and wear laurels on its brow. But it should keep out of politics. There is nothing that so blights fair prospects as politics. Cheese in politics would become a stench in the nostrils of our people.

"There is no doubt whatever in my mind that an excellent article of marble can be manufactured from cheese. And what could be more appropriate—especially for an agriculturist, a member of this Northwestern Dairymen's Association, whose whole life is wrapped up in the noble calling to which he has devoted the best years of his early manhood and his prime? As he stretches his wasted form upon the couch which is to be his last resting-place on earth, and feels the icy hand of death laid upon him, what could be more consoling, more calculated to lighten up the gloom of the dark hour of dissolution, than the thought that when he is gone, and the clods of the valley are resting upon all that is mortal of this earthly tabernacle of clay, his virtues will be perpetuated to posterity by a monument of imperishable cheese? It is the nature of marble to be cold, hard, stern, odorless—throwing an air of gloom and dismal melancholy over a sacred place which should be rendered attractive and pleasant by flowers and fragrance. And what more fragrant than cheese? Flowers, with their exquisite aroma of summer, lie scentless and dead. But a tombstone of cheese—cheese of the proper consistency—would bloom on forever, defying the elements and time; and when Gabriel sounds his reveille on the glad morning of the resurrection—a morning that has been anticipated to a considerable extent in medical quarters—it will be found of the tombstone of cheese that its flag is still there, with not a star erased or a stripe polluted.

"Forever float that standard sheet!
Where breathes the foe but falls before us?
With Government socks beneath our feet,
And Limburg fragrance streaming o'er us!"

The Establishment of the United States Coast Survey.

It was in 1807 that the first effort was made to establish a national coast survey. Jefferson, in his message to Congress, recommended it, and Congress cautiously appropriated $50,000. Secretary Albert Gallatin then addressed circulars to the principal scientific men of the period, soliciting opinions as to the best methods of conducting the proposed work. Numerous plans were submitted. That of Ferdinand R. Hasslar, a native of Switzerland, was finally adopted.

The magnitude of the task compelled special preparations. In 1810 Hasslar was sent to Europe to procure instruments, standards of measures, and other necessaries. The war followed, and he was detained in England until 1815. Other delays, naturally attending new enterprises, prevented operations until 1817, when a beginning was effected near the harbor of New York.

Hasslar was authorized to employ astronomers and other scientists, in addition to the officers in the military and naval service.

Hasslar was hampered and embarrassed continually by limited appropriations. His operations were not of that character easily seen; Congress wondered continually what he was about. While he was systematizing methods and training assistants, Congress was shrugging its shoulders and clamoring because results were inadequate to the expenditure. Hasslar was an eccentric man of irascible disposition and great independence of character. On one occasion a committee from Congress waited upon him in his office to inspect his work.

"You come to 'spect my vork, eh? Vat you know 'bout my vork? Vat you going to 'spect!"

The gentlemen, conscious of their ignorance. tried to smooth his ruffled temper by an explanation, which only made matters worse.

"You knows notting at all 'bout my vork. How can you 'spect my vork, ven you knows notting? Get out of here; you in my vay. Congress be von big vool to send you to 'spect my vork. I 'ave no time to vaste vith such as knows notting vat I am 'bout. Go back to Congress and tell dem vat I say."

The committee did "go back to Congress" and report, amid uproarious laughter, the result of their inspecting interview.

When Hon. Levi Woodbury was Secretary of the Treasury, under Jackson, he and Hasslar could not agree as to the compensation to be allowed to the Superintendent, and Hasslar was referred to the President, at whose discretion the law placed the settlement of the dispute.

"So, Mr. Hasslar, it appears the Secretary and you cannot agree about this matter," remarked Jackson, when Hasslar had stated his case in his usual emphatic style.

"No, sir, ve can't."

"Well, how much do you really think you ought to have?"

"Six tousand dollars, sir."

"Why, Mr. Hasslar, that is as much as Mr. Woodbury, my Secretary of the Treasury, himself receives."

"Mr. Voodbury!" screamed Hasslar, rising from his chair and vibrating his long forefinger toward his own heart. "Pl-e-e-n-ty Mr. Voodburys, pl-e-e-n-ty Mr. Everybodys, for Secretary of de Treasury; v-o-ne, v-o-ne Mr. Hasslar for de head of de Coast Survey!" and, erecting himself in a haughty attitude, he looked down upon Jackson in supreme scorn at his daring comparison.

President Jackson, sympathizing with a character having some traits in common with his own, granted Hasslar's demand, and, at the close of the next Cabinet meeting, told the joke, to the great entertainment of the gentlemen present.—Martha J. Lamb, in Harper's Magazine for March.

The Color Question.

Mrs. Senator Bruce yesterday put the social problem to the test. It appears that two of the ladies of the Riggs House, one of the fashionable hotels, called at Mrs. Bruce's residence some time ago and left their cards. All of the ladies of the hotel receive on Monday together in the public parlor. Yesterday, when the reception was at its zenith, Mrs. Senator Bruce, accompanied by a lady friend as dark as Erebus, was shown into the parlor. Singling out the twain who had kindly left their cards with her, she engaged them in conversation some few minutes, and then left. The other ladies thought the episode decidedly shocking; not so much that Mrs. Bruce had called, as the fact that she allowed her darkey friend to accompany her. She was too much off color to be squeezed through toney society, although the Senator's bride is nearly white.—Washington letter.

Decisive Evidence.

Judge (severely)—"How do you know the defendant is a married man? Were you ever at his house?"

"No, sir."

"Do you know him personally?"

"No, sir."

"Do you know his wife?"

"No, sir."

"Did anybody ever tell you they were married?"

"No, sir; but when I see a man and woman come to the same church regularly for three years, occupy the same pew and have a hymn-book apiece to sing out of, I don't want to see no marriage certificate from them. I can swear to their relation all the time."

Verdict for plaintiff.

OUGH!

A man oft finds his cake is dough,
So listen to my tale of wough.

Poor Smythekins! It was rather rough,
And put him in a downright hough.

One day the town was like a slough,
When Smythekins tried a fancy bough.

The walking was as usual, through
The streets were filled with melted snough.

His latest flame was driving through
The upper part of the avenough.

He raised his hand, but an awkward cough
Came on as tried his hat to dough.

He kept it on—but a strong hiccough,
Instead, jerked his hand and fingers ough.

He slipped and fell in a muddy trough,
His legs flew out and his hat flew ough.

'Twas fun for the lady; for him 'twas tough,
And worse than his lady-love's rebough.

For he slid through the slush like a two-horse plough,
And is sore in body and mind even nough.

So, swells, take heed. Of your skill although
You are sure, what may happen you never knough.
—New York Mail.

PITH AND POINT.

The fireman's poet—Burns.

The puff contradictory—A sweet tart.

Dropping a privateer—Weeping in secret.

The day after washing day is one of sad irony.

Jones says he shall never forget his mother's slap.

A paper that is always full of good points—A paper of needles.

There is nothing like a shorthand reporter to take a man down.

A ten-dollar bill is of the feminine gender when it is the fair's X.

The man who is always as "cool as a cucumber" is generally as green.

In the times of Noah the floods ruled the earth. It was reign water then.

How to draw a girl out—Seat her upon a sled, seize the end of the rope and run.

A prima donna is naturally a timid creature, for her art is always in her throat.—Puck.

Dancing has been introduced into the army. Probably you have heard of its squad-drills.

The "watch-dog's honest bark" may be all right, but it is the quiet dog that puts in the bites.

A Western woman has lost two husbands by lightning. She ought to marry a conductor.

The only unfavorable report about "Grandfather's Clock," is that it went ninety years on tick.

"Why should we celebrate Washington's birthday more than mine?" asked a teacher. "Because he never told a lie!" shouted a little boy.

An Irishman says that "it is a great pleasure to be alone, especially av your swatcheart was wid ye." Antique jest, Eastlake school—very rare.

It is said that afternoon marriages are the present style in England. Can't be. There never was a marriage before Eve. What, never? No, never.

Customer—"Mother wants a nice plump chicken, please." Shop-man—"Trussed, miss?" Customer—"Oh dear, no! I am going to pay for it."

The schools are deprived of the presence of many a boy who has just enough of a sore throat to keep him at home in the back yard building snow forts.

"I walked the floor all night with the toothache," said he; to which his unfeeling listener replied, "You didn't expect to walk the ceiling with it, did you?"

While in a Western town Camilla Urso took her violin into the county poor-house and delighted the inmates. Good girl to play for nothing to poor houses.

A bashful young man applied to his village paper on the important subject, "How to win a woman's love." The reply was, "Kiss the babies, caress the tomcat, and give strict attention to the old lady."

When a woman goes visiting she wants shoes fully two sizes too small; but it is astounding what a deal of comfort the same woman can extract from a pair of slippers three sizes too large in her own house.

WHY HE DID IT.

Mary had a little lamp;
Her lover, all serene,
Extinguished it, for he did not
Want any caress seen.
What makes the youth love Mary so?
I'll tell you—she's a catch;
And he put out the lamp, you know,
That he might strike a match.

It was Daniel O'Connell who wittily emphasized the difficulty of putting a good deal of sense into a few words, by writing to the editor of a Dublin newspaper, "I send you a long letter, because I haven't time to write a short one."

Old Sam was bitterly prejudiced against the bonny Scots. Boswell, his biographer and worshiper, observing that there was no instance of a beggar dying of want in the streets of Scotland, "I believe, sir, you are very right," replied Jonson, "but this does not arise from want of beggars, but from the impossibility of starving a Scotchman."

SIR THOMAS CAT.

How doth the busy Thomas Cat
Improve the midnight hour?
Ensconced upon the roof, he yawps
With all his feline power.
And now another Thomas Cat,
Encouraged by the sound,
Sends up a challenge to his foe
To meet him on the ground.
And still another, and a fourth,
Convene to scratch and bite,
While fretted mortals toss and moan
Throughout the dismal night.
What boots it though a boot be thrown—
Ay, marry! or the jack!
They scamper off; but in an hour
Come smiling, yawping back.

The Canadian Government has sent skillful veterinary surgeons to various parts of the older provinces to investigate as to the existence, if any, of pleuro-pneumonia. The statement that Manitoba is suffering for beef on account of the order excluding American cattle is incorrect, for the reason that Manitoba is not included in the order.

"You want a flogging—that's what you want," said a parent to an unruly son. "I know it, dad; but I'll try to get along without it," returned the independent Hopeful.

GOSSIP FOR THE LADIES.

"If This Be Love."

If to be sad when all are gay;
To think all gone with one away;
To start, to thrill, then back to sink
From expectation's joyous brink;
If a few pen-strokes bring a heaven
All the June sunshine had not given;
If all expression proved too weak
Till heart to heart and cheek to cheek
Alone sufficed that word to speak
Which set the pent-up passion free,
Brought back the soul's tranquillity,
And laid the struggling heart at rest,
Dropped like a bird into its nest;—
If this be love, as lovers say,
Dear, I have loved thee many a day.

If to oppose when suffering most
The pain the opposition cost;
To listen with averted face,
Yet yearn to close with an embrace;
To watch, to tend, to smile, to grieve,
Reproof to bear, advice receive;
To work, to wait, to pray, to live,
And to give all, and still to give;—
Is this to love, believe me, dear,
That I have loved thee many a year.

And if, amid the vap'rous whirling
Of men and things that, upward curling
In cloud and mist, come floating by
From the deep gulf of memory,
One face shines out, one form, one power,
One influence quickening every hour,
A speaking profile upward turned,
Or a deep look that through me burned;—
If this be love, love came to me,
And stays, methinks, eternally.
—Lippincott's Magazine.

Old Maid-ism.

A very foolish and yet very prevalent prejudice is entertained against unmarried women as a class. This we hold to be as absurd as it is ungenerous. We will start with the totally unchristian axiom that women are vastly superior to the "lords of creation" in goodness. This point admitted—and what man will gainsay it?—we proceed to argue that among the many good women in this very good world, as worlds go, there will be quite a number far above their sex, and so, by consequence, incalculably above the best of men. It might often happen that ladies of great spiritual altitude would never meet in the course of their lives a man grand enough to mate with them. To unite with a man whom they do not feel to be their equal would be almost as great an outrage on the finer instincts as marrying for money, which is a meaner, viler thing than any animal could possibly dream of. Besides this there are many old maids who have had numerous offers, but they, with a fidelity worthy a better thing than a man, cling to some first fancy—some memory of a lover who has been false or who has passed away. That there are old maids of a sour aspect, "with lips severe and eye of formal cut," we do not deny, but we believe them from our observation to be very few compared with the legions of "poky" old bachelors who infest the shady side of 45, and soon after retire from a world where we hope they will know better. In short, we conclude that, while it is always best for a man to be married, it is very often the wisest thing a woman can do to remain single.—Baltimore Every Saturday.

A French Country Marriage.

Madame Lesmontagnes was kind enough to give me a description of the wedding of her daughter. When a young man here wishes to become acquainted with a young woman, he mentions it to some friend of the family, who applies to the parents for leave to introduce him. If this is granted and the parents afterward conclude that he is not suitable, they tell him not to come any more. When a young man comes to demand a young lady in marriage, the parents first interest themselves in the family, whether it is a respectable one, and in the young man himself, whether he is sage, or well-behaved. The young people are never left together without one of the parents being present, even when there is a talk of their being married.

At last the parents of the two young people will meet to plan the marriage, this parlement being held at the house of the young woman, where, after having had a good dinner, after having drank well, and talked upon a quantity of other subjects, the rest of the family will leave the parents together, understanding very well what business is on hand. Then the young man's father will speak in this manner: "We have not come here to do nothing; we have come to speak of the marriage of our children;" adding, if he is a rich enough land-owner, "I give twenty-five thousand francs to my son; how much can you give your daughter?" If her parents do not give about as much, the marriage agreement will not be made, and the parties will separate. However, about one time in ten it will be found that the young people are too much attached to each other for the parents to continue their prohibition, and they are allowed to marry. And sometimes it will happen, when the young people are of age, and the parents entirely refuse their consent, that the former will make to them the three respectful summons, and then they can marry without the parents' consent. Such a case will happen in this commune perhaps once in three or four years.—Harper's Magazine.

Love-Making in South Italy.

Love-making by signs is very general. The method has many recommendations; for, as the lovers are not seen together, and don't write, they are not easily found out. Every window opens to the floor, and has a balcony, so that neighbors have great facilities for the pastime. The language of love is very simple; it is always the same, and always interesting and new. The gentleman begins by taking out his handkerchief, which he passes over his face, looking all the time at the lady, and throwing into his face and eyes expressions of admiration for her; at the same time he compliments her on her beauty by passing his hand over his mouth and chin. The lady's answer is a blush, hiding her face, except the eyes, behind her fan, and pointing to the rear to indicate that mamma is coming, and retreats. Next time, the same play on the gentleman's side, followed by possibly a glance, not of discouragement, from the lady; whereupon he hugs his left side, to express that he loves her to distraction; and the lady flees to return on the next day, and observe the gentleman, of course, to her great astonishment and displeasure, repeat the previous gestures, ending by showing her the palms of her hands, and looking entreaty, which any young lady, even unacquainted with the particular language in question, would understand to mean: "I vow by etc., that I love you more than, etc. Do you love me?" The answer to which, of course, depends upon circumstances, and thus the ancient comedy proceeds. It is understood to be extremely interesting to the dramatis personæ. Love-making, short of the "ask papa" part, is frequently carried on in South Italy in this way; and it not seldom happens that when papa is inexorable, or the lady in a convent, the whole affair, including agreement and preparations to run away, is transacted solely by gesture—apropos of which it is on record that an occasion of this sort all being prepared, and the gentleman in the street waiting at the lady's door with the carriage intended to carry off the happy couple, an awfully gruff voice was heard asking, "Are you there?" The lover looked toward the voice, saw that it came from the object of his balcony affections, and, utterly disenchanted, fled.—Appleton's Journal.

A Dream of Fair Women.

Probably one of the dreams of fair women is to remain fair—seeing the power of beauty in the world, they would be foolish were it not so—and a fact of their knowledge, not a part of their dream, is that the first requisite of beauty is a fine skin. This is something that has been recognized by all women since they first learned that beauty was something desirable, and those who have not been so fortunate as to possess a fine skin have done their best with one article and another to procure it or to counterfeit it. Painting has been a device among savages from time immemorial, and probably long before the time when Jezebel "painted her face and tired her head," or, as the old Hebrew has it, "put her eyes in painting," women used what barbaric help they could as a customary part of their toilet—customary as the robe itself. But far from giving a fine skin, the practice only simulated one, and gave them, when the mask of color was off, but a yellow and tarnished surface, as it has given all their daughters who follow their habit to-day, some being so silly and reckless, some notably among the demi-monde, as to use a little mustard plaster on the cheek, although they must be well aware of the stain it leaves almost ineffaceably.

Cleanliness, after all, is the sovereign specific for a clear and charming skin, together with sufficient exposure to the action of the sunlight; for the cheek which knows only the light of cellar or dungeon loses all its carmine, and becomes as blanched and etiolated as the plant grown there; and even the people who habitually frequent north rooms acquire a pallor which is lost upon choosing those of a southern exposure. The secret of the worth of cleanliness lies in the removal of decaying particles that exude from the body, and that may have lodged on the skin from the atmosphere or from contact with any unclean substance; and as cleanliness cannot be had without rubbing, both wet and dry, the friction, which is a portion of the process, stimulates every gland and vessel and duct to do its utmost. Water, indeed, is useful in great measure merely as a medium of this friction, except in cases of extreme soiling, as, for instance, a coal-heaver's face at the end of the day, which would probably need friction enough to destroy the skin before it shed its shining coat of blackness. But when a good lather of soap-suds, with plenty of water and rubbing, has once removed dirt, dry friction will probably keep the body clean and skin fair for a long and healthy period; and when it is hard to obtain water, or when the chill of it cannot be borne, rubbing with a salted napkin or a crash twowel, or with a knitted mitten of coarse pack-thread, will be found to set the blood spinning and give as rosy a cheek as a daily dip in the ocean will; although in order to be on the safe side, one will always keep up a respectful acquaintance with the great mother of all things—water. Fifteen minutes a day is not much time to spare for the sake of keeping so wonderful a set of organs as the skin's in repair and of brightening every household picture by a pink cheek and chin and a white forehead; and if all persons were once convinced of the added beauty they would receive by the use of these fifteen minutes, we think the American complexion, so radiant in youth, so tawny by and by, would be maintained till a later period of life than it now it is, and the beauty of the race much increased—increased, since not all the lovely lips of Lalage, the locks of Næra's hair, glowing eyes or perfect outlines are of so much use in the effect of beauty as the roses and lilies of a satin skin.—Harper's Bazar.

Fashion Notes.

PRETTY patterns for spring suits are shown.

THE small fichus of embroidered black cashmere worn last spring are again largely imported.

FURNISHING houses are preparing tasteful suit for the spring of plain gros grain trimmed with striped satin and moire of the same shade.

FUR-TRIMMED turbans have come into favor since the holiday, to wear with winter suits, and it is said the same shape will be worn during the spring.

To trim the lower skirt of stylish spring suits one or two flounces are used; they are cut straight, from selvedge to selvedge, are hemmed on each edge by machine, and are laid in inch-wide side pleats.

THE Louis Quatorze basque is of very simple shape, with the front pointed as a vest, and the outline of the vest shown by perforations. The Parisian fashion of cutting the neck pointed in V shape is adopted in this basque, and the pretty Breton lace frills and the Louis XIV. cravats of white muslin will be worn with such dresses.

FOR traveling and steamer cloaks single breasted ulsters are shown in the English homespun cloths that are loosely woven in small checks of yellow-brown shades and in heather grays. The belt for these is confined to the back, and is very wide. Circular wraps of light gray cloth, black, brown and navy blue, are also shown for traveling.

THE double-breasted coat is one of the best designs for woolen suits prepared for early spring use. The coat is of a jaunty shape that is suitable for the street without any other wrap—a thing to be considered in making spring costumes. The front is lapped in the becoming double-breasted shape, and has the stylish revers collar, yet it is quite close enough at the throat to render a vest unnecessary. It should be mentioned, perhaps, that this is a note on ladies' fashions.

DRESSY wraps for spring will be mantles of Chuddah or of plain camel's hair trimmed with rich fringes. Black mantles will be most used, though light drab or beige-colored wraps will be considered more dressy. The shapes are very similar to those of last season, with the back fitted by three seams, and clinging sides that drape the arm, and are finished in square Hungarian fashion, instead of drooping in pointed wings like dolmans. These mantles are of medium length, covering the tournure and hips, and are trimmed with one or with three braided points down the back and on the sides.

IN remodeling silk or woolen suits of last season the sharp pointed revers collar meeting at the top of the darts will be much used. This will be made of plain satin, or else with moire stripes. Another plan will be a striped satin collar that extends down each side of the front to the end of the basque, as if outlining a vest. Large long-looped bows that form a jabot partly down each side will be made of striped satin and used on over-skirts. When the back drapery is not sufficiently bouffant, a width of the trimming material will be added on one side, or else in the middle, and bunched up irregularly. A great deal of lengthwise trimming will be used on the front and sides of over-skirts.

The Snow Shovelers of Paris.

The rapidity with which the snow is cleared away from the streets of Paris fixes attention on the little army of sweepers whom the city authorites employ for that purpose. In ordinary weather the services of 2,500 are required, who receive full wages, besides 2,000 auxiliary hands on half wages. In exceptional weather, like that experienced of late, any further number of men may be taken on as the administration may think fit. No fewer than 7,000 men are, therefore, ready at a given moment to ply their brooms in every thoroughfare in the French capital, besides the chiefs of brigades and the inspectors. Each brigade includes 115 men. The ordinary full days work begins at 3 in the morning and ends at 4 in the afternoon; the half-days labor begins at 10 in the morning. The latter receive from 1 franc 20c to 3 franc 75c, according to the work they have to do; the former are usually paid at the rate of 30c 35c and 40c an hour. In urgent cases these men are called upon to work 20 consecutive hours at a time, with no other rest than that afforded when they take their meals. During the late fall of snow no less than 60,000 days' work would be required to sweep away from every thoroughfare the snow accumulated in them by 12 hours fall.

A Persistent Dog.

More than eight years ago a poor man named Gray died, and was buried in the old Grey Friars' churchyard, Edinburgh. His grave is now leveled by time, and nothing marks it. But the spot had not been forgotten by his faithful dog, James Brown the old curator remembers the funeral well, and that Bobby was one of the most conspicuous of mourners. James found the dog lying on the grave the next morning; and as dogs are not admitted, he turned him out. The second morning the same; the third morning though cold and wet, there he was, shivering. The old man took pity on him, and fed him. This convinced the dog that he had a right there. Sergeant Scott, R. E. allowed him his board for a length of time, but for more than six weeks he had been regularly fed by Mr. Trail, who keeps a restaurant close by. Bobby is regular in his calls, being guided by the midday gun. On the occasion of the new dog tax being raised, Mr. Trail was called upon to pay for Bobby. He would have done so had the dog acknowledged him as as his master, but he will attach himself to no one. On hearing of the facts of the case, the Lord Provost of Edinburgh exempted him, and, to mark his admiration of fidelity, presented him with a handsome collar, with brass nails, and an inscription: "Grey Friars Bobby," presented to him by the Lord Provost of Edinburgh, 1767."—Our Dumb Animals.

Arizona.

Arizona, generally regarded forlorn and unfruitful, and deserving of consideration only for its mines, seems from accounts to be improving as a stock country. A number of herds of cattle and fine horses have recently been introduced into different parts, and many substantial buildings and corrals constructed. The valleys of the Salt and Gila rivers are arable and irrigable, but much of the land, offering but few attractions to farmers, is excellent for grazing, and is used more and more every year for this purpose. It is far better for cattle than for sheep, and these are steadily given way to those throughout the territory. The construction of the railway from Adoude to Maricopa Wells, and even to Tucson, is not likely to be expensive, and the nature of the country through which the road is laid out is generally favorable to the work. The track is now being laid at the rate of a mile and a half a day. Great effort seems making to develop Arizona, which certainly needs development, as it is deficient in many natural advantages. The best known town, Tuscon, has a population of less that 5,000, of whom only about 200 are Americans proper.

Volunteer Opinion Relative to the Pension Act.

If the spelling reformers ever sit in convention to consider different systems that may be proposed to them, the following letter written by an applicant for a pension, and furnished by a correspondent, may interest them: "Dear Sir: You say in your Last Letter that iwould have toprove that iwas in the Battle at Platsburg on the 11th of Sept 1814. idont now remember but one that is now alive and that is the olmyta idont think he ever gous to Washington D. C. if he ever comes thair you can prove all ihave ever said on the subject. ithink all theas Promaces of Pensions all gass. J. N. S. i am as poor as h—l and must Dyso."

OF COURSE the horse marines are mounted on fleet horses.

Sea Waifs.

The author of that quaint old saying, "Birds of a feather flock together," must have been on some circumpolar breeding ground years ago, where countless myriads of water-fowl then darkened the light of day with their fluttering forms and deafened his ears with their shrill harsh cries, as they do now—for music is denied to the birds of the sea; still, in spite of the apparent confusion, he must have taken cognizance of the fact that each species had its particular location, and kept to its boundaries with the precision of law: hence without doubt came the natural exclamation from which that ancient proverb sprang, so wise in its relation to birds, and so happy in its application to men.

How strange it is that these water-birds, which form the subject of this sketch, as they flock together in gregarious millions, should lead, during the greater portion of every year, the most solitary and lonesome of isolated lives; for after only six or eight weeks of swarming congregation, they scatter out from their rookeries to the south, to the east, to the west, out in search of food over the broad expanse of

> "Nothing, nothing but the sea,
> Vast in its immensity."

The speed and motion of the finest ship ever made by man never yet overcame the utter loneliness which strikes in on the voyage's heart when he is days and weeks in crossing the briny desert waste of a great ocean, and the sense of gratitude and relief from the drear monotony of water and sky which he feels as he turns to the graceful evolutions of the water fowl that now flit, now float, to and fro in the wake, or soar in endless circles around and over the spars of the vessel that bears him to strange lands—the relief and companionable satisfaction aforded by these feathered wanderers is not easy to define in adequate terms. It does not matter to these tireless sea waifs whether the skies are bright or stormy, for in sunshine and in rain, in calm or in tempest, they never forsake the vessel until the engines slow down in the quiet waters of the desired port.

The traveler, as he makes the acquaintance of his natatorial followers, little thinks, as he comments on the smallness of their number, and the apparent scarcity of bird life over the heaving bosom of the ocean, that at regular periods of the year they rally from a thousand leagues around to a common resting place, where they breed in swarming regions, undisturbed and really unknown to man.—H. W. Elliott, in Harper's Magazine.

Bullets Meeting in the Air.

The probability of bullets and other missiles meeting in their flight when shot from opposite points in such numbers as they would necessarily be in battle, is certainly not by any means doubtful. The possibility of such missiles being welded together by their contact, however, seems so decidedly remote that such a result appears to us certainly phenomenal.

It appears, however, from Forest and Stream, that the New York shot manufacturers, Messrs. Tatham Brothers, occasionally found bullets welded together in the scrap lead brought from the battle-fields of the American civil war, and Lieutenant Colonel John A. McLaughlin recently forwarded two bullets to the Scientific American so impacted in each other, which were picked up on the same field. He says that at the time of the retreat of the Federal General N. P. Banks, after his defeat in attempting to capture Shreveport, La., in the summer of 1864, he (Lieutenant Colonel McLaughlin) was in command of one of the retreating regiments. A portion of his regiment was thrown forward on the flank of the main body in skirmishing order. These two bullets, he says were impacted in the air between his skirmishers and the skirmishers of the enemy, and fell like a spent ball near the head of the column of the main body. A drum-major, seeing the missile fall near him, picked it up, thinking it to be a spent bullet, but he found the two bullets welded together. He afterwards presented it to Lieutenant Colonel McLaughlin. One of the bullets belonged to a larger bore rifle than the other, and the larger one is stated to have belonged to the Confederates, as it was of a caliber then known to be much used by them, and somewhat larger in bore than the rifles used by the northerners. It is supposed that the larger bullet had traveled a shorter distance than the smaller at the instant of impact, and possibly had been propelled by a superior quality or quantity of powder. This, together with its weight, is thought to have had the effect of driving the smaller bullet back beyond the line from which it was fired.

Wayside Shrines in the Tyrol.

Scattered along the road at very frequent intervals are the shrines and stations and crucifixes with which this whole land is disfigured. To the South German mind the tears of the Virgin and the cruel bodily sufferings on the cross seem to be the only effective emblems of christianity. Generally absurd, and often painful, and always coarse, these tokens are too frequent to excite reverence, and can have little other effect than to maintain the routine of the formal observances of the church. The Madonna wears hoops of enormous dimensions; she frequently weeps behind a painted handkerchief; and in one instance, where she was of wood and of life size, she held the fresh-ironed linen with painted border of our own time. So little does the real character of the crucifixion impress itself upon the popular minds that it is by no means uncommon for the bleeding mind of the wooden Christ to be decked with flowers and ribbons on festival days. In one case a bunch of cat-tails was stuck between the knees. It is perhaps well for the tourist that these shrines occur so frequently, for their shock is weakened by familiarity, and one soon comes to pay little heed to them.—Harper's Magazine for March.

A Nice Man at Nice.

One of the most attractive salons of Nice is that of an eccentricity by the name of M. von Derwies. His wife receives with him, but she is much like other people, and one never thinks of her when speaking of their receptions, so it is to him only we refer in using the word "eccentric." He is a man of immense wealth, and has all his life been mad on the subject of artists. He has a permanent band of 60 excellent musicians, and no sooner does a star appear on the musical horizon than M. von Derwies moves heaven and earth to have it shine upon his stage. Every new year he gives a fete, the principal feature of which is a Christmas tree, upon which gifts of surprising value await each guest. This year a prima donna, whose voice had particularly pleased her generous host, received a diamond necklace worth 125,000 francs ($25,000), and the Russian jeweler, who had made and brought it from St. Petersburg, was likewise charged with no end of beautiful things, which were distributed with Oriental generosity.

Debt.

The present system of shopping and marketing on credit is radically wrong, and an injury to all concerned, and the fault lies about equally with those who buy and those who sell. The merchant likes a running account with his safe customers, because it gives him a hold on their continuance, and makes his sales larger and more profitable. The customer likes it because it evinces his good credit, and enables him to get what he wants without waiting for a full purse. But at length a settlement comes and then the customer is astonished at the size of the bill and his own folly in purchasing things which his family could easily have dispensed with.

If you are wise, and will consult your own comfort and the good of others, you will follow the rule, pay as you go, inflexibly. It does not need the authority of an apostle to establish the wisdom of the proverb, "owe no man anything." Were this sage precept universally obeyed, one of the chief sources of trouble would be taken out of the civilized world. Besides a great gain in public morals, there would be a vast saving in the economy of living. But, if in the management of your property you are sometimes asked to give credit or time for payment, do not fear to scrutinize your debtor closely. A good customer is never disconcerted by it; it is only the doubtful and the bad who resent it. Short settlements, however, make long friendships. A very long credit account, like a note, becomes in time invalidated. It dies of old age.

A Present from Dom Pedro.

There is now lying at Pier No. 41 East river a massive block of stone, which is a gift from the emperor of Brazil to the Washington monument committee at Washington. The stone is addressed to the Brazilian legation at the capital, in care of the Brazilian consul general at this city. It was brought here by one of the Roach steamers, late in December, and is now awaiting transportation to Washington, while search is being made for some sailing vessel or canal boat to carry it to the latter city when river navigation opens. The block is about five feet square, and is securely packed in a stout oaken casing. It weighs 18,000 pounds, a weight which none of the steamers plying between this port and Washington can bear upon its decks, and hence the necessity of sending the emperor's gift by canal boat or sailing vessel. The stone is said to be magnificently carved, and bears a suitable inscription as coming from Dom Pedro to the monument committee as his offering "in perpetuating the memory of the illustrious American Republic, for whom his majesty cherishes the warmest admiration." The block of stone is very valuable, and the consul-general and his subordinates have been instructed by their government to observe the greatest care in its transfer to Washington. While in this country the emperor made at trip to Washington's tomb at Mount Vernon, and with his own hands planted a sycamore tree by the side of tomb, over which he also scattered flowers.—New York Times.

A Scrap of History.

Here is an incident in the history of the old soldier who was, until lately, the Marshal president of France: At the close of the battle of Terchis, Gen. Achard, desiring to send an important message to a subordinate commander four miles away, intrusted it to MacMahon. He offered him a squadron of mounted chasseurs as an escort, but it was declined, and the brave soldier rode off alone. He had proceeded some distance on his journey when suddenly he beheld a host of Arabs in pursuit of him and a deep ravine in front of him. There was no other alternative than to jump the ravine or be slain by his pursuers, and, putting spurs to his horse, he cleared the gulf at a bound, the horse breaking one of his legs as he struck on the opposite side. The Arabs recoiled from the dangerous leap, and contented themselves by discharging a shower of bullets after him. MacMahon escaped unharmed, and reached his destination in safety.

A Dakotan Legislator.

Out in Dakota territory it's a jolly good thing to be a member of the legislature. D. D. W. Flich, who represents the Black Hills' district in the lower house, now sitting at Yankton, evinced a decided preference for billiards to lawmaking, and became a great annoyance to the sergeant-at-arms. The latter always got his man, however, until last Wednesday. On the afternoon of Wednesday the sergeant sent three clerks and a messenger after Flich soon after roll-call. He was found by the posse in a saloon. Taking to his heels the legislator escaped at a back window and ran across into Nebraska, the clerks giving chase. Flich wheeled and ran back into Dakota, and before the pursuers could catch him gained his room in the Yankton Hotel, barred the door and covered the window with a shot-gun. At last accounts he was still in a state of siege.

To Thaw Water-Pipes.

If you can get at them, pour hot water on them slowly, or wrap them with a towel and pour hot water on it. The specific heat of water is very high, which makes it a good thing to convey the heat to the pipes. Inaccessible pipes and waste-pipes can often be melted out by inserting into one end a small rubber or lead pipe, and pouring or forcing hot water through this small pipe and pushing it forward into the frozen pipes as the ice melts. Sometimes a jet of steam is available, carried through garden hose and used through a branch pipe.

TOUT COMME ANACREON.

BY JUL. SANDER.

Obtaining and striving
  Is empty and vain,
For are not ships sinking
  On broad stormy main?

In doubting and trustin
  Too quickly time flies,
And only in lovin
  True happiness lies.

With kissing and drinking
  Be joyous and gay,
And make your short living
  An eternal May.
—[illegible]

COMICALITIES.

THE little-busy bee is a drone.

THE cheapest light—Phosphore-cent.—Boston Com. Bull.

BIRDS are not noted for courage, but many of them die game.

THE Boston Courier speaks of gold and silver as fine mint's meat.

A FEMALE elephant is known by the size of her trunk.—Boston Post.

WHAT do they weigh down upon the Swanee river?—Boston Traveler.

AN unequal match—One having the brimstone all at one end.—N. O. Pic.

A BENT pin on a chair is the turning point of many a boy's career.—N. Y. Mail.

A DETROIT milkman delivers "milk right from the cow" by putting a hot brick in each can.

A MISS WHEAT, down in Indiana, was thrashed the other day by a lover whose Wheat heart she had ceased to be.

THE Nevada (Cal.) Transcript says that after a runaway "the horses and wagon were mixed up like a ham omelet."

"TRAIN wrecker!" she hissed, as he blunderingly stumbled upon the long expanse of dress in the crowded ball-room.

HOUSE cleaning is like a man going through a tunnel on dark night. He never knows when he's through.—N. Y. Express.

"I SAY, Jack, which would you rather, that a lion tore you to pieces, or a tiger?" "Why, you goose, of course I'd rather a lion tore a tiger to pieces."

THE Lowell aldermen have voted that barbers must close their shops on Sunday. It was a close shave though, and may yet razor row.

STERN poverty may compel, but it can never reconcile a boy to wearing a yellow patch on a pair of black pants.—New Orleans Picayune.

JUST as we were felicitating ourselves on decay of the prize chromo, comes a pernicious person who announces a plan by which everybody can make his own chromos.—Cin. Saturday Night.

"MOTHER," said a little square-built urchin about five years old, "why don't the teacher make me monitor sometimes? I can lick every boy in my class but one."

ALCOHAL will clean out the inside of an inkstand. It will also clean out the inside of a pocketbook a little more thoroughly and quicker than anything else on record.

THE foundation for the meanest man is laid when a small boy turns the worm hole in an apple for his companion to bite from.

THE Philadelphia Chronicle says: These beautiful moonlight evenings are highly appreciated by lovers, but burglars find them a serious obstacle to business.

FIRST woman—Bless me, Emily, you don't look as well as usual—indeed, I do not think I ever saw you looking as old as you do to-day. Second woman—My dear, I never was as old as I am to-day.

ADOLPHE to Araminta, on the way to church: "How I would I were the prayer-book you clasp so lovingly." Reply—"How I would you were, for then I could shut you up."

"So, boys, you've brought your skates to school, I see," said the schoolmarm, when she saw a row of them dangling on the hat pegs. "No, ma'am," answered a bright little chap, "they brought us, please."

"DID you steal the complainant's coat?" asked a magistrate of a seedy individual who was arraigned before him. "I decline to gratify the morbid curiosity of the public by answering that question," responded the seedy individual, with a glance at the reporters.

THE natural selfishness of mankind is never more strikingly set forth than in the supreme pleasure the comfortably housed railway passengers enjoy seeing the train make a farmer's team run away and scrape the troubled agriculturist up against a barbed wire fence.

A WASHINGTON correspondent, whose coat-of-arms is a cherry tree and a little hatchet, writes us that a woman in that city is so proud, and elevates her nose to such an altitude when passing a treasury girl, that she frequently has the skin scraped off that organ by coming in contact with the telegraph wire.—Norristown Herald.

THEY begged him to play a little. He seemed to be bashful at first, but after a while began to paw the ivories vigorously. "What power!" said a listener to the owner of the piano. "Yes," exclaimed the latter in alarm, "he seems to have considerable muscle; but he ought to know that this isn't a gymnasium."

A PROMINENT fancy goods dealer of this city, whose neatness of attire is the envy of the less fortune, stepped into his store Sunday to replenish his furnace. He laid aside his glossy silk hat, and put on an old straw. Having arranged matters satisfactorily, he sauntered up Congress street just as church-goers were coming down. Meeting a lady of his acquaintance, he gracefully lifted his hat, when, to his horror, he found that he had on the straw one aforesaid. He took the back streets and reached home as soon as possible.—Portland Argus.

"WHAT does your husband do?" asked the census man. "He ain't doin' nothing at this time of the year," replied the young wife. "Is he a pauper?" asked the census man. She blushed scarlet to the ears. "Law, no!" she exclaimed, somewhat indignantly. "We ain't been married more'n six weeks." Then the census man threw down his book and rushed out into the depths of the gloomy forest, and caught hold of a white oak tree three feet through to hold himself up by.—Burlington Hawkeye.

FRUIT HOUSE BULLETIN

Great Reduction in Goods.

Syrups and Molasses all down ten cents per gallon.
Coffees reduced another two cents per pound.
Leghorn Citron down fifteen cents per pound.
Zantee Currents down five cents per pound.
Best Teas reduced 10 cents per pound.
Candies down three cents per pound.
Sugars all down one cent per pound.
Raisins down three cents per pound.

ALL REDUCED 10 and 20 per cent.

Rio Coffee.

The very best, 15 cents per pound. Second grade, 11 cents per lb. Roasted coffee, 15 cts., best 20 cts. per lb.

Teas! Teas!

At no time in the history of the trade have Teas been so low. Another decline of 10c. per lb. brings the best of Teas within the reach of all. We now sell a good Tea for 20c. A choice extra drawing Tea for 40 and 50c, and the best Tea in the market for 70c. Young Hyson, 20, 40, best 70c., Imperial 40, best 70c., Oolong 20, 40, best 70c., Uncolored Jxpan 20, 40, best 60c., Gunpowder, extra choice, 40, best 50 and 70c. per pound

Sugars Down 1c.

Coffee A Sugar 8c, Extra C 7 c, Yellow 6c, Grushed, Powdered and Granulated 9 cents.

Raisins, Currents, Citron, Lemon and Orange Peel,

Down 3 to 10c. per lb., best Valencia Raisins 8c., choice Zantee Currants 6c., best Leghorn Citron 15c, Lemon and Orange Peel 20c., Sicily shelled Almons 40c., Brazil Nuts 10c., Filberts 12c., Texas Peacans 10c

Toy Candies of all Descriptions.

Apples, Pears, Plums, Apricots, and the finest Candies at 25c per lb. Last year they were sold at 40c. Choice French mixed candy 15c, and the best stick candy 12½c. 3ct. reduction on candy.

Tobaccos.

Good plug 40c., best 50c. Twin Brothers 65c. Smoking 30c., best 35c. Golden Shorts, finest goods 35c. Uncle Ned, Fancy Turkish 45c.

Fish Oil and Neat's Foot Oil Down 15 cents per Gallon.

Best Fish Oil 70c, and Neat's Foot Oil 70c; Machine Oil 20c, best 40c, Coal Oil 12½c, Head Light 18c

CIGARS—In ½ boxes, full boxes and one-fourth boxes, extra choice Cigars $1.25 per 100; good Havanas $2, best $3 per 100

Fresh Oysters.

12c. per can. Select Frying 17c and 2c8 per can. Cove Oysters 5c ents per can.

We are doing a rushing trade, continually increasing, and we guarantee our customers a saving of at least 20c. on the dollar at the

FORT WAYNE FRUIT HOUSE.

Family Groceries!

LANNING'S PRICE LIST.

TEAS! TEAS!

Young Hyson	60c very best 70c
Imperial	" " 65c
Japan	" " 60c
Oolong	" " 50c
Gun Powder	" " 40c

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Arbuckels' [Roasted]	23c per lb.
Rio	15c very best 18c " "

SUGARS! SUGARS!

White	10½ pounds for one dollar
Extra C	12 " " "
Grocers C	14 " " "

White Beans per lb. 3½c., Dried Peaches per lb. 6c., Hominy per lb. 3c., Cranberries per qt. 8c, Dried Sweet Corn 13 lbs. for $1.00, Oat Meal 7 lbs. for 25c., cucumber Pickles per doz. 8c. Besides a complete stock of Confectioneries, Canned Fruits, Soaps, Notions, Flour, Butter, Eggs, Syrups, &c., &c.

Goods delivered at all times.

Geo. L. Lanning.

Davenport the Druggist.

Pure Drugs and Medicines,
Choice Soaps and Perfumery,
Excellant Combs and Brushes,
Fine Hair Oils and Pomades

ALL SOLD AND WARRANTED BY

DAVENPORT THE DRUGGIST

Also a splendid stock of Stationery Goods, such as

Wall Paper, Window Shades, Pocket Books,
School Books, Blank Books, Pens, Pencils,
Inks, Mucilage, Stationery, Gold Pens, etc.

All to be sold at the lowest prices by.

Davenport the Druggist, Auburn, Ind.

8-31-1 yr.

Characteristic Sayings of Americans.

Some one with a good memory for such might make a very readable article from the best remembered and most characteristic sayings of Americans. Here are a few which may serve as specimens of what migh be done with time and opportunity:

Samuel Adams, known for many things, seldom has his name associated with the phrase first applied by him to England—"Nation of Shop-keepers."

It was John Wesley, and not Charles Sumner, who first spoke of slavery (the slave trade) as "'the sum of all villainies."

Franklin said many things that have passed into maxims, but none that are better known and remembered than—"He has paid dear, very dear, for his whistle;" "Where liberty dwells, there is my country;" "God helps them that help themselves;" "Take care of the pence, and the pounds will take care of themselves;" and "Three removes are as bad as a fire."

Washington made but a few epigrammatic speeches. Here are samples: "To be prepared for war is the most effectual means of preserving peace;" 'Entangling alliances."

Did you ever hear old John Dickson? Well, he wrote of Americans in 1768: "By uniting we stand, by dividing we fall."

Patrick Henry, as every school boy knows, gave us: "Give me liberty or give me death; and 'if this be treason, make the most of it."

Thomas Payne had many quotable epigramatic sentences: "Rose like a rocket, fell like a stick;" "Times that try men's souls;" "One step from the sublime to the ridiculous;' etc.

Jefferson's writings are so besprinkled that it is difficult to select. In despair we jump at "Few die and none resign,' certainly as applicable to office-holders now as in Jefferson's Time; and 'the post of honor is the private station;' "Error of opinion may be tolerated where reason is left free to combat it."

Josiah Quincy, Jr., said 'Wheresoever, whensoever, or howsoever we shall be called on to make our exit, we will die freemen.'

Henry Lee gave Washington his immortal title, 'First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Charles Coteswortb Pinckney declared in favor of 'Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute.'

"Peaceably if we can, forcibly if we must,' is from Joshia Quincy, 1811.

John Adams did not say, "Live or die,' survive or perish, I'm for the constitution,' but Daniel Webster did say it for him.

Henry Clay gave us, 'Better to be right than President."

The revolutionary age alone would give us our article, had we time to gather the pearls. Coming down, we pass greater, but not more famous men, for Davy Crocket, the illustrous author of 'Be sure you are right, then go ahead."

Andrew Jackson gave us; "The Union—it must be preserved.'

Benton almost lost his original identity in "Old Bullion" from his "hard money" doctrines.

Governor Throop, of New York, was called "Small Light Throop" for years, from a phrase in a Thanksgiving proclamation.

Scott's "hasty plate of soup" lasted his life-time.

Taylor's battle order, "A little more grape, Captain Bragg,' will be quoted after he is forgotten by 'all the world and the rest of mankind.'

Seward is known for the "irrepressible conflict" wherever the English language is spoken.

Marcy's patched breeches are as well remembered as his state papers; and also, "To the victors belong the spoils of office.'

Bill Allen, of Ohio, the "Chinese Gong" is responsible for "54-40 or fight.

Rufus Choate gave us the expression, 'glittering generalities.

Tom Corwin's "welcome with bloody hands to hospitable graves,' one of his noblest utterances, gave him more unenviable criticism than any other saying of his life.

Calhoun gave us "state rights' as a most pernicious and absurd equivalent for national supremacy under the constitution.

Douglas applied "squatter sovereignty,' though it is probable that Cass invented and Calhoun named it.

Stringfellow was the original "border ruffian.'

War times gave us no end of epigramatic utterances. Those of Lincoln alone would fill a volumn. Chief of all these was the noble, god-like sentiment, "With charity for all and malice toward none.'

McClellan's chief exploit was to make us acquainted with the phrase, 'Change of base.'

Grant gave us, "Fight it out on this line,' "unconditional surrender,' "I propose to move immediately upon your works,' "bottled up,' and a hundred others. It seems to have escaped notice that Grant is responsible for more of these characterizing, elementary crystalizations of thought than any other military leader of modern times.

Sherman first gave utterance to the truth, showing at once statesmenship and military sagasity, "The confederacy is a shell,' and he had the rare felicity of practically demonstrating his own theorem by the "March to the sea.

Sheridan's character and his style of fighting are expresed by, "Sent them whirling up the valley."

Pope's unfortunate orders from 'headquarters in the saddle" gave General Lee opportunity for the one solitary joke of his life-time; "What can you expect of a general who puts his headquarters where his hindquarters ought to be?'

Butler, more incisive with the pen than with the sword, cut through one of the knotiest problems of the war with the name "Contraband.'

Daniel Webster—"Union, now and forever, one and inseperable."

Lewis Cass—"Squatter sovereignty.'

Washington Irving—"The almighty dollar.'

J. Fenimore Cooper—"Face the music.'

Wm. C. Bryant—"The largest liberty

Wm. Leggett—"The bone and sinew of the country.'

Captain Lawrence—"Don't give up the ship.'

J. K. Paulding—"He's got an axe to grind."

George P. Morris—"Valuable water privileges."

Gorham A. Worth—"He's not worth a row of pins.'

Jacob Barker—"He's as short as a rabbit's tail.'

M. M. Noah—"All's fair in politics.'

Wm. Mitchell—"Happy as a dam at high water.'

John Randolph—"Cotton is king.'

N. P. Willis—"Upper-tendom.'

James Cheatham—"Straws show which way the the wind blows.'

John C. Calhoun—"The Empire State.'

Col. O. H. Geffroy—"A good man, but he can't keep a hotel.'

Portfolio—"All's not gold that glitters.'

J. G. Bennett—"Border ruffians."

William C. Bryant, in his "Forest hymn,' writes:

> "The groves were God's first temples."

Whittier, in "Maud Muller,' writes:

> "For of all sad words of tongue or pen
> The saddest are these, 'It might have been."

John Trumbull wrote in McFingal:

> "No man e'er felt the halter draw,
> With good opinion of the law."

James Russell Lowell, in "The Capture,' said, "before man made us citizens, great Nature made us men."

General Dix gave us the sentiment: "If any one attempts to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot."

Horace Greeley is the author of "Universal suffrage; general amnesty:" and "Bleeding Kansas."

Daniel Webster, on the 17th of July, 1850, said, "I was born an American; I live an American; I shall die an American."

Jonathan M. Sewell, in an epilogue to Cato, a hundred years ago, wrote:

> "No pent-up Utica contracts your powers,
> But the whole boundless continent is yours."

Oliver Wendell Holmes, in the "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," wrote the famous words, "Boston State-House is the hub of the Solar System. You couldn't pry that out of a Boston man if you had the tire of all creation straightened out for a crowbar."

Ralph Waldo Emerson said;

> "Out from the heart of nature rolled
> The burdens of the Bible Old."

In Mr. Emerson's hymn, sung at the completion of the Concord monument, are the lines:

> Here once the embattled farmers stood,
> And fired the shot heard round the world.

Lydia Maria Child, in her historical novel, "The Rebels," makes James Otis in a suppositious speech, say, "England may as well attempt to dam up the waters of the Nile with bulrushes as to fetter the step of Freedom."

Rufus Choate, in speaking of the Puritans, in a New England address, said, "There was a State without king or nobles; there was a church without a bishop."

* * *

The Pople Want Proof.

There is no medicine perscribed by physicians, or sold by druggists, that carries such evidence of its success and superior virtue as Boschee's German Syrup for severe coughs, colds settled on the breast, consumption, or any disease of the throat and lungs. A proof of that fact is that any person afflicted, can get a sample bottle for 10 cents and try its superior effect before buying the regular size at 75 cents. It has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderful cures are astonishing everyone that use it. Three doses will relieve any case. Try it Sold by W. McIntyre & Son.

TUTT'S PILLS!

A NOTED DIVINE SAYS THEY ARE WORTH THEIR WEIGHT in GOLD READ WHAT HE SAYS:

DR. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended to me; I used them (but with little faith). I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and I have gained forty pounds solid flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

REV. R. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

A TORPID LIVER

is the fruitful source of many diseases, such as Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Dysentery, Billious Fever, Ague and Fever, Jaundice, Piles, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint, Colic, etc.

Tutt's Pills exert a powerful influence on the Liver, and will with certainty relieve that important organ from disease, and restore its normal functions.

The rapidity with which persons take on flesh, while under the influence of these pills, of itself indicates their adaptability to nourish the body, hence their efficacy in curing nervous debility, dyspepsia, wasting of the muscles, sluggishness of the liver, chronic constipation, and imparting health and strength to the system.

CONSTIPATION.

Only with regularity of the bowels can perfect health be enjoyed. When the constipation is of recent date, a single dose of TUTT'S PILLS will suffice, but if it has become habitual, one pill should be taken every night, gradually lessening the frequency of the dose until a regular daily movement is obtained, which will soon follow.

Sold Everywhere, 25 Cents.

OFFICE, 35 MURRAY ST., NEW YORK.

A PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE.

THE LOUISVILLE

Courier-Journal!

Largest, Best and Cheapest Family Paper in the United States.

EDITED BY

HENRY WATERSON.

The COURIER-JOURNAL is a combination (made in 1868) of three old Louisville papers, viz: the Journal, established in 1830; the Courier, in 1843, and the Democrat, in 1844. Its reputation is national, as well as its circulation, and it is pronounced one of the ablest and best arranged papers in the world; its matter being especially adapted to the merchant, the farmer and the family circle.

THE WEEKLY COURIER-JOURNAL is not a mere hotch-potch thrown together from the daily edition, but a complete, able, spicy family newspaper, carefully and intelligently edited in every column and paragraph.

TO AGENTS AND CLUBS

Extraordinary inducements in the way of cash commissions and valuable premiums are offered to agents and clubs.

Choice from standard books of the times, and a choice selection of the leading magazines or illustrated periodicals of the day furnished in combination with the Weekly for a mere pittance in addition to the price of the COURIER-JOURNAL alone.

A new edition of Prentice's Poems, beautifully printed and bound and the Weekly Courier-Journal one year for $3.00.

A Splendid Map of the South

Size 23½x33 inches, handsomely colored, varnished, and hung on rollers, retail price $2.00, mailed free of postage, and the Weekly Courier-Journal, one year, for $3.00.

Terms of Subscription.

Daily Courier-Journal, a year	$12.00
Sunday Courier-Journal, a year	2.00
Weekly Courier-Journal, with map, a year	2.00

A liberal discount allowed to clubs raised for the Courier-Journal.

(Postage in all cases prepaid by the publishers)

Agent's outfit, specimen copies, list of books and magazines, and descriptive circulars sent free on application. Send for outfit giving full particulars to agents.

Letters should be addressed to
W. L. HALDEMAN,
President Courier-Journal Co.
Louisville, Ky.

RAILROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R. R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after Sep. 22 1878, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accm
Toledo	11 55 a m	12 35 a m	10 p m
Wauseon	12 16 "	1 08 "	"
Bryan	1 00 "	1 52 "	"
Butler	1 42 "	2 25 "	"
Waterloo	2 00 "	2 40 "	"
Sedan	2 10 "	2 50 "	"
Corunna	2 15 "	2 55 "	"
Kendallville	[illegible]	[illegible]	"
Ligonier	3 07 "	3 40 "	"
Goshen	3 38 "	4 10 "	"
Elkhart	4 00 "	4 35 "	4 15 "

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	1 10 p m	9 50 p m	5 05 "
Goshen	1 30 "	10 10 "	"
Ligonier	1 50 "	10 42 "
Kendallville	2 30 "	11 18 "
Corunna	2 40 "	11 32 "
Sedan	2 47 "	11 38 "
Waterloo	2 55 "	11 45 "
Butler	3 10 "	12 01 a m
Bryan	3 45 "	12 40 "
Wauseon	4 27 "	1 27 "
Toledo	5 40 "	2 40 "	9 50

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. N. CURTIS, Division Supt.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card Nov. 10, 1878.

GOING WEST.

	No. 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Nigh ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 12	2 55	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 50	2 26	7 13	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 55	11 25
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 55	2 40
Plymouth	3 50	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 00	7 58

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 30 a.m	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 48	8 55
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 25 pm	11 30
Lima	8 55	4 20	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 27	2 33
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 05
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 15	6 05am
Mansfield	12 35	7 45	4 55	6 55
Orrville	2 26	9 38	7 00	9 15
Alliance	4 00	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 20 am	11 06	2 00pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15 pm	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line.

75 Miles Shortest to Indianapolis, Louisville and all points South. 52 Miles the Shortest to St. Louis, Kansas, Texas, and all points West. Direct Route to Detroit and all Michigan and Canada points.

TIME CARD IN EFFECT DEC. 29. '78.

SOUTH.	MAIL.	EX.	ACC.
Bay City		6 30am
Saginaw		7 15am
Lansing		8 00am
Detroit		7 00am	2 50pm
Ann Arbor		8 30am	4 05pm
Jackson	6 10am	11 45am	5 40pm
Jonesville	7 19am	12 45pm	7 55pm
Bankers	7 36am	1 12pm	8 20pm
Waterloo	9 30am	2 50pm	11 30pm
Auburn	9 48am	3 00pm	11 25pm
Auburn Junc	9 52am	3 05pm	12 01am
Ft. Wayne	10 45am	3 55pm	1 25am
Indianapolis	5 15pm	10 55pm
Cincinnati	9 20pm
Louisvile	10 25pm	8 20am
St. Louis	7 30am	7 30am
Washington		8 10pm
Baltimore		9 10pm

NORTH.	X.	EX.	ACC.
Baltimore		7 10am
Washington		9 27am
St. Louis	8 00am	7 00pm
Louisvile	2 00pm	8 50pm
Cincinnati			8 00am
Indianapolis	6 55pm	4 30am
Ft. Wayne	5 00am	11 40am	4 35pm
Auburn Junc.	5 55am	12 30pm	6 05pm
Auburn	6 00am	12 35pm	6 10pm
Waterloo	6 14am	12 46pm	6 55pm
Bankers	8 03am	2 22pm	10 10pm
Jonesville	8 18am	2 39pm	10 35pm
Jackson	9 25am	3 45pm	12 30am
Ann Arbor	10 46am	5 10pm	2 05am
Detroit	12 0 am	6 30pm	3 35am
Lansing		5 55pm
Saginaw		9 15pm
Bay City		10 00pm

All trains daily except Sunday. Through tickets to all principal points. For information as to routes and connections apply to

P. R. LOOMIS, Pres't & Gen'l Manag'r.
S. K. HOOPER, Gen'l Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT Nov. 10, 1878.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Fs't Line	Express	Cum'l A
lv New York	9 55pm	8 15pm
Philadelphia	11 30	11 45
Baltimore	7 10am	6 15pm
Washington	8 35	7 30
Wheeling	11 15pm	8 05am	4 05 pm
Bellaire	11 50	8 50	4 40
Barnesville	12 59am	10 07	6 01
Cambridge	1 55	11 10	7 04
Zanesville	3 10	12 20pm	8 17
ar Newark	4 15	1 25	9 25
Columbus	5 50	3 10	11 00
Shawnee	9 25	4 05	mixed
lv Columbus	11 00pm	12 25
Newark	4 25am	2 10	5 00 pm
Mt Vernon	5 24	3 05	7 18
Mansfield	6 50	4 25	11 00
Shelby	7 18	4 53
Monroeville	9 10	6 08
ar Sandusky	10 00	7 00
lv Chicago Junction	8 15	6 00	5 20 a
Republic	8 54	6 45	6 35
Tiffin	9 12	7 09	8 20
Fostoria	9 35	7 40	9 35
Deshler	10 32	8 45	1 24 pm
Defiance	11 32	9 49	4 45
Hicksville	12 14pm	10 40	6 18
Auburn Junction	12 50	1 22	7 35
Garrett	1 25	11 40	6 50 am
Avilla	1 40	11 55	7 10
Albion	2 10	12 21am	7 58
Milford Junction	3 00	1 12	9 30
Walkertown Junction	4 12	2 24	12 51 pm
Chicago	7 05	5 40

GOING EAST

Chicago	8 50am	9 40pm
Walkertown Junction	12 10pm	1 12am	10 42am
Milford Junction	1 20	2 24	2 20pm
Albion	2 10	3 10	4 25
Avilla	2 24	3 30	5 20
Garrett	3 15	3 55	4 40am
Auburn Junction	3 25	4 08	5 10
Hicksville	4 00	4 42	6 25
Defiance	4 43	5 27	8 50
Deshler	5 42	6 23	12 12pm
Fostoria	6 40	7 25	2 32
Tiffin	7 09	7 54	3 42
Republic	7 29	8 18	4 30
Sandusky	7 10	7 45	10 45am
Monroeville	8 00	8 30	12 15pm
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 30	1 45
Shelby Junction	9 15	10 06	3 05
Mansfield	9 43	10 34	4 25
Mt. Vernon	11 13	12 05pm	7 18
Ar Newark	12 15a m	1 10	9 10.
lv Columbus	5 50	3 10
Shawnee	4 50	9 55am
Newark	12 55am	1 55pm	6 05am
Lv Zanesville	1 40	2 57	7 33
Cambridge	2 38	3 53	9 14
Barnesville	3 33	4 56	9 18
Ar Bellaire	4 50	6 10	10 30
Wheeling	5 25	6 35	11 30
Washington	8 00pm	7 30am
Baltimore	9 10	8 40
Philadelphia	3 20am	1 45pm
New York	6 45	4 45pm

Mixed Accommodation leaves Deshler at 2:35 a. m. daily except Monday, and arrives at Garrett at 9:30 a. m., stopping at all stations.

Figures west of Bellaire inclusive are Columbus time, except at Chicago.

Express trains run daily. Fast Line trains run daily on Central Ohio Division and Main Line; daily except Sunday on Lake Erie and Chicago Divisions. Accommodation trains run daily except Sunday.

L. M. COLE, Gen. Tkt. Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect November 10, 1878.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH.
	il.	3 Express
FORT WAYNE	pm	5 40 pm
Bluffton	pm	6 53 pm
Montpelier	pm	7 32 pm
Hartford	pm	7 58 pm
MUNCIE	pm	8 50 pm
Newcastle	pm
Cambridge City	pm
Connersville	pm
Cincinnati	pm
INDIANAPOLIS	pm	10 55 pm
Louisville	pm	5 30 am
Terre Haute		3 45 am
St. Louis		7 30 am

STATIONS	GOING NORTH
	2 ail.	4 Express	Accom.
St. Louis		8 00 am	7 00 pm
Terre Haute		2 27 pm	1 00 am
Louisville		2 00 pm	6 50 pm
Indianapolis		6 40 pm	4 35 am
Cincinnati	8 00 am
Connersville	11 15 am
Cambridge City	11 45 am
New Castle	12 35 pm
Muncie	1 20 pm	9 20 pm	6 45 am
Hartford	2 13 pm	10 08 pm	7 47 am
Montpelier	2 40 pm	10 31 pm	8 17 am
Bluffton	3 18 pm	11 09 pm	9 16 am
Fort Wayne	4 25 pm	11 15 am	10 45 am

Trains Nos. 1 and 3 run through between Fort Wayne and Cincinnati without change.

Through cars are attached to trains Nos. 1 and and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, via Muncie.

All trains run daily except Sunday.

Trains run on Columbus time.

GEO. W. MULLER, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

Detroit Eel River & Illinois R R.

TAKE EFFECT DEC. 2, 1878.

GOING EAST,

Stations.	MAIL No. 2.	ACCOM. No. 6.	LOCAL FT No. 8.
lv. Logansport	8 30am	7 30pm	6 45am
Mexico	9 15	8 28	7 51
Denver	9 27	9 06	8 45
Chili	9 36	9 12	9 06
Roann	9 55	9 37	9 55
Laketon	10 13	10 00	10 38
N. Manchester	10 25	10 17	11 10
Liberty Mills	10 35	10 30	11 37
Collamer	10 51	10 50	12 20
S. Whitley	10 55	10 55	12 30
Columbia City	11 25	11 31	1 40
Collin's	11 43	11 55	2 25
Churubusco	12 00	12 12	2 55
La Otto	12 25	12 42	3 35
Cedar Creek	12 34	12 56	4 15
Auburn Junct'n	12 50	1 12	4 54
Aupurn	12 55	1 17	5 05
Butler	1 20am	2 00am	6.30pm

GOING WEST.

Stations.	No. 1.	No.	No. 7.
Logansport ar.	4 10pm	1 00pm	5 30pm
Mexico	6 33	11 55	3 55
Denver	6 21	11 38	3 30
Chili	6 17	11 27	3 10
Roann	6 03	11 03	2 30
Laketon	5 46	10 25	2 51
North Manceester	5 36	10 13	1 28
Liberty Mills	5 26	10 13	1 09
Collamar	5 15	9 53	12 40
South Whitley	5 11	9 48	12 30
Columbia City	4 48	9 12	11 25
Collin's	4 30	8 46	10 52
Churubusco	4 18	8 29	10 04
La Otto	3 55	7 57	9 01
Cedar Creek	3 43	7 45	8 28
Auburn Junction	3 25	7 23	8 00
Auburn	3 20	7 18	7 18
Butler lv	2 45pm	2 30am	6 30

FRANK J. HECKER, Gen. Sup't

WOOD'S HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE

Is a monthly, 100-page Scrap Book of the cream of the World's Literature. Single copy, 20c., or $2 per year. An Oil Chromo (14x20 inches) of "Yosemite Valley," price, $3; "Black Sheep," a $1.50 book, in paper binding; "Christian Oakley's Mistake," a $1 book, in paper binding, and a sample copy of "Wood's Household Magazine"—all post-paid, for only 30 cents in money, or in one-cent postage stamps. Agents wanted. Most liberal terms, but nothing sent free. Address S. S. Wood, Tribune Building, New York City

METROPOLITAN

RESTAURANT

AND

Confectionery Establishment

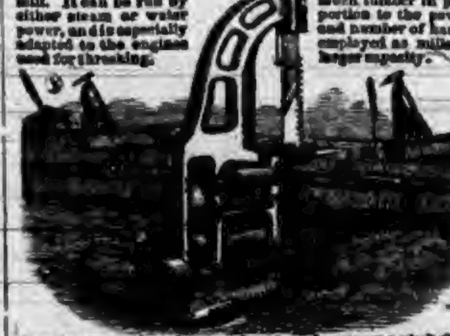
The best brands of oysters always on hand in season, and served to suit customers. Warm meals served at all hours. Day boarders taken at low rates. Fancy candies and fine cigars made specialties.

42-6m. SHERMAN HOLLISTER, Prop.

Portable Mulay Saw Mill,

With improvements recently made is unequaled as a neighborhood mill. It can be run by either steam or water power, and is especially adapted to the engines used for threshing.

It may be operated by either two or three men, and will cut as much lumber in proportion to the power and number of hands employed as mills of larger capacity.



It makes smooth and even lumber, leaves no stubshot and will cut any sized log up to four feet in diameter. It may be transported from one locality to another and re-erected ready for sawing in from two to three days, and can be made profitable in localities where there is not sufficient timber to justify the erection of a large mill. Send for descriptive circular, price, etc., to CHANDLER & TAYLOR, Indianapolis, Ind.

Improved and Unimproved

FARMS and CITY PROPERTY

—IN—

MONTGOMERY, LABETTE

—AND—

Chautauqua Counties.

Cultivated farms in this vicinity, with plenty of good water, convenient to coal and timber, and with

Church, School and Railroad

Advantages can be purchased at as low prices, per acre, as wild lands two or three hundred miles farther west, and far beyond our Coal and Timber districts. This is acknowledged to be one of the most

Extensive Farming Districts

in Kansas. We can consistently advise seekers of homes in the west, to examine our locality before purchasing elsewhere. Business houses, dwellings, and a large number of lots in the city of Coffeyville, at the terminus of the L. L. & G. R. R., either for cash, exchange, or on liberal credit.

We guarantee a good title to all lands sold by us. So if you want to buy, sell or exchange real estate, call on or address, (inclosing stamp for return postage),

J. McCREARY & CO.,
Real Estate Agt's, Coffeyville, Kan.
or, THOS. H. SPROTT, Auburn, Ind

34-1 y.

"Recorders Office"

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 9. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, MARCH 6, 1879. Number 10.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

THE COURIER CO.

THEODORE REED, Editor.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will be inserted under this head for $5.00 per annum For each additional line 50 cents extra will b charged.

ATTORNEYS.

H. C. Peterson.

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

Guy Plumb,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over First National Bank. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for the Home Insurance Company

A. F. Pinchin

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

Thos. H. Sportt.

REAL ESTATE, COLLECTION AND INSURance Agent. Loans effected on improved farms. Kansas lands for sale or trade.
Auburn, Indiana

D. D. Moody,

ATTORNEY AT LAW. NOTARY PUBLIC Office in Court House. Auburn, Ind.

Best & McClellan,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

PHYSICIANS.

Dr. J. Miller.

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON AND ACCOUCHER. Gunsenhouser's Corners, two miles east of Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind.

Dr. T. G. Matheny,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, OFFICE ONE Door North of City Bakery, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

Dr. W. S. Allen,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store, Auburn, Ind.

Drs. Cowan & Allyn,

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, OFFICE over McIntyre & Son's, Drug Store, 1st door south of First National Bank, Auburn, Ind.

Dr. T. J. Dills,

Especial attention given to Diseases of the EYE and EAR. Rooms 1 and 2 Odd Fellows' building. Office hours—9:30 to 12 a.m.; 1 to 3 p. m.; 7 to 8 p. m. Fort Wayne, Ind.

Dr. T. W. Tritch.

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block.
Auburn, Indiana.

Dr. S. B. Johnson,

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA. Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

D. J. Swartz, M. D.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO DISEASEes of the Eye and Ear, Fistula in Ano, Hemorrhoids or Piles and Chronic Ulcers. Office on Main street, over Shaffer's Furniture Store, Auburn, Ind.

HOTELS.

Mayer House.

Fort Wayne, Indiana Under the Management of W. W. REED, rates, two dollars per day. Street Cars to and from the Pittsburgh, Wabash and Grand Rapids R. R. Depots.
S. BRUBAKER,
W. W. REED, JR., } In Office.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

TENTH STREET. EAST OF MAIN. GOOD Sample rooms, and low rates.
T. D. Gross, Prop'r Auburn, Ind.

Sands House,

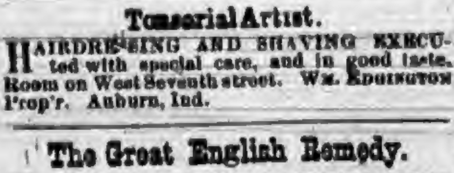
COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished Only $2.00 per day.
GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk. O. SANDS, Proprietor

Tonsorial Artist.

HAIRDRESSING AND SHAVING EXECUted with special care, and in good taste. Room on West Seventh street. WM. EDDINGTON Prop'r. Auburn, Ind.

The Great English Remedy.

GRAY'S SPECIFIC MEDICINE



TRADE MARK.
TRADE MARK.
Before Taking
After Taking

Is especially recommended as an unfailing cure for Seminal Weakness, Spermatorrhea, Impotency and all diseases that follow as a sequence on Self Abuse; as Loss of Memory; Universal Lassitude, Pain in the Back, Dimness of Vision, Premature Old Age, and many other diseases that lead to insanity, consumption and a premature grave, all of which, as a rule, are first caused by deviating from the path of nature and over indulgence. The Specific Medicine is the result of a life study and many years of experience in treating these special diseases.

Full particulars in our pamphlets, which we desire to send free by mail to every one.

The Specific Medicine is sold by all druggists at $1 per package or 6 packages for $5, will be sent by mail on receipt of the money by addressing.
THE GRAY MEDICINE CO.
No. 10 Mechanic's Block, Detroit, Mich.

Sold in Auburn by F. B. Davenport, and druggists everywhere.

Not Tilden.

There is no controversy in the minds of honorable men with regard to the complete vindication of Governor Tilden before the Potter committee. It was clear, emphatic and triumphant. So far as bidding for votes or bargaining with returning boards is concerned, the president de jure had absolutely no connection whatever. Such is the verdict, and it is as immovable as the everlasting hills. But does all this entitle Mr. Tilden to a re-nomination as the presidential standard bearer of the Democratic party in the year 1880? It is said that there is "a divinity that shapes our ends, rough hew them how we will." And accepting this maxim of life as correct, it is not difficult to see that Mr. Tilden, for considerations that ought not to meet with approval, placed himself in conflict with the divinity that was shaping events, and triumphed. The American people, by a popular majority of more than a quarter million of votes, crowned him with more than royal prerogatives. Selecting him from a population of more than forty millions of people, they placed the civic crown upon his head and hailed him as their rightful ruler. Cæsar nor Napoleon were ever the recipients of such an honor. No triumph upon battle fields was ever so grand. It was achieved by the ballot which > "Comes down as still

> As snowflakes fall upon the sod,
> Yet execute the freeman's will
> As lightnings do the will of God."

Admitting that it environed the president elect wit perils, involving imprisonment, exile or death, these dangers only made the obligations to obey the supreme will of freemen more imperative. Providence always provides a good place for the brave to die; and life prolonged by the sacrafice of principle or duty becomes a loathsome thing. Had Samuel J. Tilden, in the majority of the rights conferred upon him by the American people, told U. S. Grant, the drunken despot, the bribe-taking thief patronizing president, that he would be president, or a first-class despotism should rear its hideous form upon the ruins of the Republic, he would, whatever else might have happened, earned for himself a fame as bright and undying as the stars, and Heaven, in token of its appreciation of such courage, would have bent down and kissed the earth. But Mr. Tilden failed to take the tide at its flood, which would have borne him on to immortality as one of the grandest figures ever moulded by great events, and as a consequence the will of the American people was dishonored, liberty imperriled, the most sacred rights of the people abrogated, and fraud enthroned. It is not likely to be forgotten that the next contest for the presidency is to be with some enemy to the institutions of the country, that made it possible in 1876 to beat down truth with purjury, and pelf and power committed crimes which defy exageration. Under such circumstances, the supreme demand will be for a presidential standard-bearer whose courage will be equal to the royal commission which the people will confer.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

◆

A Sensible Dog.

"Sixty years ago, when I was a teacher in Kilmalcum parish," says John Fraser, "I was using whiskey bitters for my stomach's sake. One day I dipped a piece of cake in it and gave it to the dog. He grudgingly ate it, curling up his lip to avoid the taste. Erelong he became tipsy; he howled most piteously, and unnaturally looked up in my face as if for help. He began to stagger and fall like a drunken man. The appearance of his face and eyes was extraordinary. He lay on the floor and howled until the effects of the drink wore off. This was supreme folly; it was wicked. The dog never forgot the trick. Whenever afterwards I went to the press for the bottle he hastened to the outside of the house. One day, the door being shut, he sprang, at one bolt, through a pane of glass to get outside. So much for the wisdom of the dog—infinitely surpassing foolish drinking men."

◆

Above the Clouds.

Probably the largest and highest rock in the known world is the South Dome of Yosemite. Standing at the fork of the upper valley, it rears itself, a solid rocky loaf, 6,000 feet above the ground. A more powerful hand than that of a Titan has cut away the eastern half, leaving a sheer precipice over a mile in height. No man ever trod the top of this dome until last year. Former visitors gazed in wonder at the spikes driven into the rock by hardy spirits, who had repeatedly endeavored to scale it. The shreds of ropes dangling in the wind told the story of their failure. Last year, however, after thousands of dollars were spent, several persons found their way to the top of the dome, and this summer two sheep were discovered browsing on the hitherto inaccessible peak.

A Low Voice in Woman.

Yes, we agree with that old poet who said that a low, soft voice was an "excellent thing in woman." Indeed, we feel inclined to go much farther than he has on the subject, and call it one of her crowning charms. No matter what other attractions she may have; she may be as fair as the Trojan Helen, and as learned as the famous Hypatia of ancient times; she may have all the accomplishments considered requisite at the present day, and every advantage that wealth can procure, and yet if she lacks a low, sweet voice, she can never be really fascinating. How often the spell of beauty is rudely broken by coarse, loud talking. How often you are irresistibly drawn to a plain, unassuming woman, whose soft, silvery tones render her positively attractive. Besides, we fancy we can judge of the character by the voice; the bland, smooth, fawning tones seem to betoken deceit and hypocrisy as invariably as the musical, subdued voice indicates genuine refinement. In the social circle how pleasant it is to hear a woman talk in that low key which always characterizes the true lady. In the sanctuary at home how such a voice soothes the fretful child and cheers the weary husband. How sweetly its cadence floats through the sick chamber and around the dying bed; with what solemn melody do they breathe a prayer for the departing soul! Ah, yes, a low, soft voice is certainly "an excellent thing in woman."

◆

The Early Rising Delusion.

For farmers and those who live in localities where people can retire at eight or nine o'clock in the evening, the old notion about early rising is still appropriate. But he who is kept up till ten or eleven or twelve o'clock, and then rises at five or six, because of the teachings of some old ditty about "early to rise," is committing a sin against his own soul. There is not one man in ten thousand who can afford to do without seven or eight hours sleep. All the stuff written about great men who slept only three or four hours a night, is apocryphal. They have been put upon such small allowances occasionally and prospered; but no man ever yet kept healthy in body and mind for a number of years with less than seven hours' sleep. If you can get to bed early, then rise early; if you cannot get to bed till late, then rise late. It may be as proper for one man to rise at eight as it is for another to rise at five. Let the rousing bell be rung by at least thirty minutes before your public appearance. Physicians say that a sudden jump out of bed gives irregular notion to the pulses. It takes hours to go over a too sudden rising. It is barbarous to expect children to land on the center of the floor at the call of their nurses, the thermometer below zero. Give us time after you call us, to roll over, gaze at the world full in the face, and look before you leap.

◆

A True Woman.

I would have a woman as true as Death. At the first real lie which works from the heart outward, she should be tenderly chloroformed into a better world, where she can have an angel for a governess, and feed on strange fruits which will make her all over again, even to her bones and marrow.—Whether gifted with the accident of beauty or not, she should have been moulded in the rose-red clay of Love, before the breath of life made a moving mortal of her. Love-capacity is a congenital endowment; and I think after a while, one gets to know the warm-hued natures it belongs to from the pretty pipe-clay counterfeits of them.—Proud she may be, in the sense of respecting herself; but pride in the sense of contemning others less gifted than herself deserves the two lowest circles of a vulgar woman's Inferno, where the punishments are Small pox and Bankruptcy. She who nips off the end of a brittle courtesy, as one breaks the tip of an icicle, to bestow upon those whom she ought cordially and kindly to recognize, proclaims the fact that she comes not merely of low blood, but of bad blood. Consciousness of unquestioned position makes people gracious in proper measure to all; but if a woman puts on airs with her real equals, she has something about herself or her family she is ashamed of or ought to be. Middle, and more than middle-aged people, who know family histories, generally see through it. An official of standing was rude to me once. O, that is the maternal grandfather,—said a wise old friend to me,—he was a boor. —Better too few words from the woman we love, than too many: while she is silent, Nature is working for her; while she talks, she is working for herself.—Love is sparingly soluble in the words of men; therefore they speak much of it; but one syllable of woman's speech can dissolve more of it than a man's heart can hold.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

A Most Remarkable Cat Story—Ferocious Felines Attack a Corpse, and—With Difficulty are Kept from Devouring the Remains—The Queerest Fight on Record.

NEW ALBANY, IND.—A remarkable scene occurred in that part of the city called "Hog Hollow." One Daniel Shehan, a former employe of the glass works, who lived in a small frame building in the locality referred to, died suddenly. Some young people gathered to watch over the remains, but becoming, as the widow thought, a little too noisy, they were all sent away with the exception of Thomas Flinn and Wm. Lang, two young men aged about 21 or 22 years, and two young ladies.

About 12 o'clock Thomas Flinn went into the room to examine the corpse, and was horrified to see three cats on the body. He tried to drive them away by motioning with his hands, but they showed fight. He then seized a poker and commenced belaboring them with it, and they attacked him, and it was all he could do, with the assistance of the other watchers whom his cries for aid summoned, to drive them from the room. The window was then closed, and cats of all sizes, colors, ages and of both sexes jumped on the window sill, sprang against the glass with their eyes blazing and their fur all standing the wrong way. Finding they could not force an entrance there, they went to the roof and endeavored to tear of the shingles; got under the floor and sought for an entrance. Their screams, yells and groans in the meantime were frightful to listen to, and so scared the watchers that they were almost paralized with fears. The goulish beasts failed to effect an entrance, and the watchers felt relieved. But it was soon discovered that they could not remain in the house with all the windows closed, as the order from the corpse was too offensive, and the window was again raised but not enough to admit a cat. Then the window was again assailed, and it seemed to the guardians of the remains that there were at least a hundred felines trying to force an entrance. Flinn stood at the window with the poker and beat them over the head, but they persisted in the effort to effect an entrance. Finally some of them got part of their bodies through and the window was closed down on them, two pokers heated red hot and the beasts burned in every possible way, the young people thinking it would drive the others away, but it did not, and the fight was kept up at intervals until after daylight. The watchers kept the window down as long as they could possibly bear the stench, and when they could do so no longer it would be raised and the war waged on both sides. It was a remarkable occurrence, the like of which was probably never known in this part of the country.

The watchers looked like they had had a long spell of sickness, and say they would not pass through another such ordeal for a world. Some nine or ten dead cats were found around the premises in the morning, and many of the neighbors will miss their grimalkins.

◆

Unhappy Marriages.

The universal expectation of married people is, that their married lives will always be happy ones. Deluded dreamers! They immagine that they are different from other people, and that when they enter the portals of matrimony, love, peace and prosperity will ever be their attendants. Such had better consider themselves the same as others, but from iron resolutions to do different from other married people—resolutions that will keep them from the dangerous coasts on which so many have been wrecked and ruined. Unhappy marriages depend upon many causes. Previous to marriage, many try to appear more intellectual, more amiable or more accomplished than they really are. Depend upon it, that love brought into existence by a moonlight stroll, strengthened by deceit and fashionable displays, and finally consumated through the influence of intriguing friends, will fade in after life almost as fast as the flowers which compose the bridal wreath.

◆

Indiana Patents.

List of patents issued to citizens of the State of Indiana, February, 26 1879, and each bearing date February 26th, 1879. Furnished this paper by C. Bradford, Solicitor of patents, 18 Hubbard Block, Indianapolis, Ind.

To D. F. Spees, of Indianapolis, for improvement in grain car doors.

To J. H. Guest, of New Albany, for improvement in envelopes.

To A. N. Newton, of Richmond, for improvement in inclined seed droppers.

To J. Little, of Evansville, for improvement in lath sawing machine.

To W. H. Bassett, of Kokomo, for improvement in band cutters and feeders for thrashing machines.

A Model Man.

The "model man" is married, of course, no single man could ever reach such a state of perfection. He considers his wife as much of a lady as any other woman, and treats her accordingly not omitting to pay her the same little attentions that men delight in bestowing on all ladies of their acquaintance—their wives usually excepted. He rises first in the morning, builds all the fires, and puts the tea kettle on ere he calls his wife, and when she has prepared him a tempting little breakfast, if the coffee should fail to suit his fastidious taste, the eggs have been cooked one minute too long, he remembers the baby cried and had to be taken, and reason comes to the rescue and he says never a word.

And if he finds a button off his shirt he does not fling it down, and declare that "it is always the way, he never went to put on a shirt but what the buttons were off."

When he comes home of an evening and sits down to read the daily paper, if the children crowd around him, so pleased that papa has come, he does not order them put to bed, and wonder why it is a man can see no peace in his own home, and hint that his wife has failed in doing her duty, or the children would be different.

If he brings home a new magazine or book he isn't so selfish as to sit down and read it to himself, but reads it aloud, believing that an intellectual pleasure shared is a pleasure doubled, and is well aware that his wife has little time to cultivate her mind since she came to bless his hearth and home.

If the bills are out that a favorite lecturer will display his oratorical powers on such an evening, he does not keep the knowledge to himself, but asks his wife if she would like to go, and says he thinks a little change would be beneficial, she has been so closely confined of late, with the children.

His wife never has to beg for money sufficient to meet the household expenses, and after pinching and contriving to save every possible cent, he told that it takes more money to keep his family than it does a half dozen ordinary ones, at the same time assuring her he isn't made of money, which fact ought to be duly impressed on her mind having heard it so often.

Should he come home of an evening and find his wife suffering with headache, and disposed to tell him how cross the baby has been, and how worried and tired she is, he listens attentively, and no shade of annoyance crosses his face while he comforts her with his ready sympathy.

When his mother in-law comes he doesn't act as if he thought his worst enemy had taken possession of his domicile, but greets her cordially, and next to his own mother, thinks her the dearest old lady in the world.

His kindly smile and pleasant words are not reserved for strangers, but are diffused throughout his own household, and when he corrects his children, it is done in love and not in anger.

He always allows his wife to have the last word—believing it to be a woman's right—which fact alone proclaims him to be indeed a "model man."

Now, girls, pray do not expect your future husbands to attain such perfection. "Nature formed but one such man, then broke the die."

◆

Words of Wisdom.

—One is never conscientious during action; only the looker-on has a conscience.

—Habit is a cable. We weave a thread of it every day, and at last we cannot break it.

—A man's own good breeding is the best security against other people's ill manner.

—Small service is true service while it lasts. Of friends, however humble, scorn not one.

The sickness of the heart is most easily got rid of by complaining and soothing confidence.

—The heart is like a musical instrument of many strings, all the cords of which require putting in harmony.

—If one strives to treat others as he would be treated by them, he will not fail to come near the perfect life

—A beautiful smile is to the female countenance what the sunbeam is to the landscape; it embellishes an inferior face, and redeems an ugly one.

—Care is the lot of life, and he that aspires to greatness or high positions in the hope of getting rid of it, is like one who throws himself into a furnace to avoid the shivering of an ague.

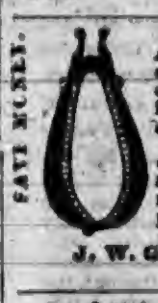
◆

Wood Wanted.

Our subscribers will please bring in their wood now, which they intend to apply on subscription. Bring it no

Trustee's Notice.

NOTICE is hereby given that I will be at my residence in Franklin township, for the transaction of township business, on Tuesday of each week.
B. F. GREENWOOD, Trustee.
2-6m.



Collar and Milker free to Agents. Neat, light, durable, cheap. No hames required—excells all others. Farmers want it. Outlasts all others. Adjustable. Fits any horse.

Our MILKER, the best on earth, ensures pure, clean milk. Saves its cost every week. Sells rapidly. Sent by mail to any part of the U. S. Send stamp for particulars.

J. W. GUERNSEY, Gen. Agent,
78 Courtlandt St., N. Y.

Attachment Notice.

Before Jacob Walborn J. P., of Union township, DeKalb county, Indiana.

William L. Penfield,
Charles Emanuel,
vs.
Albert C. Dawson

WHEREAS, the plaintiffs in the above entitled cause have filed with me their affidavit and bond in attachment, and a summons having been issued and returned not found and a writ of attachment having also been issued thereon, and the plaintiffs having also filed their affidavit in garnishment, and a summons issued thereon, and by virtue of said writ, property, moneys and effects having been attached of said defendant and it also appears that said defendant is a non-resident of the state of Indiana

Therefore the said defendant and all persons interested are hereby notified that said case is set for trial on the 12th day of April, A. D. 1879, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, before me, the undersigned, at my office, in the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

JACOB WALBORN,
Justice of the Peace. [SEAL.]

February 19th, 1879. 8-4w

—THE—

INDIANA STATE SENTINEL

FOR 1879

HAS BEEN REDUCED TO

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR.

The merits of this paper are well known among a large majority of the farmers and stock raisers of this state. No paper furnishes more news for less money. It has been the acknowledged leading Democratic newspaper of Indiana for almost half a century. It has ever stood with the Democracy. Its reputation throughout the Union is firmly established. Indiana to-day is Democratic by 15,000 majority, and the Sentinel's circulation and influence has increased in like proportion in the last six months.

The Weekly Sentinel

Will be in many respects an epitome of the Daily, championing the same cause, and aiming to fill the same wants of the general reader, but it will be prepaired with especial reference to the character of its circulation. In every respect it will be the best weekly we can make, and we think it will more than

Compare Favorably

and Lawyers, without respect to party, particularly stand in need of it, for, in addition to its political and literary merits, the Sentinel is confessedly the Commercial Paper of Indiana.

The Indiana State Sentinel is the paper for everybody—the farmer, mechanic and professional man. At our greatly reduced rates no one can afford to be without it.

Hundreds of millions of dollars of wealth have been gathered from the fields of "golden grain" during the past harvest, and, what is better, this wealth is distributed among the people. As the Sentinel's share of this happy result, we ask every reader to aid in gathering our share of the harvest of 50,000 new subscribers.

Agents wanted at every postoffice in the State. Send for outfit.

TERMS:

Weekly.

1 copy one year	$ 1 00
Clubs of five one year	5 00
Clubs of eleven one year	10 00
Clubs of twenty two	20 00

In clubs of ten or more, one copy extra to getter up of club furnished free.

Daily.

1 copy one year	$ 10 00
1 copy six months	5 00
1 copy three months	2 50
1 copy one month	85
Clubs of five or more one year, $8 each	40 00
Clubs of 5 or more 1 month 70c each	3 50

Clubs of seven or more, one copy extra to getter up of club.

Special terms to agents. Send for circular. Specimen copy furnished free. Address

Indianapolis Sentinel Co.
Indianapolis, Ind.

JOHN J. COOPER, Pres't.

A PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE.

THE LOUISVILLE

Courier-Journal!

Largest, Best and Cheapest Family Paper in the United States.

EDITED BY

HENRY WATERSON.

The COURIER-JOURNAL is a combination (made in 1868) of three old Louisville papers, viz: the Journal, established in 1830; the Courier, in 1843, and the Democrat, in 1844. Its reputation is national, as well as its circulation, and it is pronounced one of the ablest and best arranged papers in the world; its matter being especially adapted to the merchant, the farmer and the family circle.

THE WEEKLY COURIER-JOURNAL is not a mere hotch-potch thrown together from the daily edition, but a complete, able, spicy family newspaper, carefully and intelligently edited in every column and paragraph.

TO AGENTS AND CLUBS.

Extraordinary inducements in the way of cash commissions and valuable premiums are offered to agents and clubs.

Choice from standard books of the times, and a choice selection of the leading magazines or illustrated periodicals of the day furnished in combination with the Weekly for a mere pittance in addition to the price of the COURIER-JOURNAL alone.

A new edition of Prentice's Poems, beautifully printed and bound and the Weekly Courier-Journal one year for $3.00.

A Splendid Map of the South

Size 24½ x 32 inches, handsomely colored, varnished, and hung on rollers, retail price $2.00; mailed free of postage, and the Weekly Courier-Journal, one year, for $3.00.

Terms of Subscription.

Daily Courier-Journal, a year	$12.00
Sunday Courier-Journal, a year	2.00
Weekly Courier-Journal, with map, a year.	2.00

A liberal discount allowed to clubs raised for the Courier-Journal.

[Postage in all cases prepaid by the publishers]

Agent's outfit, specimen copies, list of books and magazines and descriptive circulars sent free on application. Send for outfit giving full particulars to agents.

Letters should be addressed to
W. L. HALDEMAN,
President Courier-Journal Co.
Louisville, Ky.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, MARCH 6, 1879.

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

Ex-Mayor Westervelt, of New York, is dead. He was the builder of 174 sea-going vessels....Both houses of the Connecticut Legislature have passed a resolution [illegible] the action of Congress in passing the Anti-Chinese Immigration bill.

Pleuro-pneumonia is increasing among the cattle around Brooklyn, N. Y.

Frey's livery stable, together with a number of carriages and forty-three horses, was burned in New York city last week. Loss, about $100,000.

THE WEST.

Several cases of trichinosis are reported in a family near Gridley, Livingston county, Ill. One or two deaths have occurred.

A terribly fatal explosion occurred at Stockton, Cal., a few days ago. Two or three hundred people had gathered for the purpose of witnessing the first trial of a new propeller pump, set in a slough that ran through the town. Suddenly, and without any warning, the engine-boiler exploded, with frightful effect. The body of the engine, weighing 2,500 pounds, was blown through the crowd and landed in the public square, a distance of 150 feet. The dead lay prostrate in every direction, some falling into the slough from the bridge. Ten or twelve bodies lay in one heap at the northwest corner of the bridge. Others lay strewn dead and dying on the streets, blown from 50 to 100 feet. The heads of some were blown to pieces; others were blown to the ground with such force as to break every bone in their bodies, faces, hands and whole persons steamed in the dirt, and smoke, and cinders....Sixteen persons were killed outright and twenty-six others wounded, four of them fatally. Many were blown a considerable distance and escaped uninjured.... E. H. Smith, manager of the Western Union Telegraph office at Topeka, has been placed in durance vile, by order of the Kansas Legislature, for refusing to appear before an investigating committee and reveal the contents of certain telegrams....The Nebraska Legislature has appropriated $75,000 to build an addition to the State House, which is found inadequate to the wants of the growing young State.

The troubles in Lincoln county, New Mexico, have broken out again, and there will probably be another call for United States troops to put down the outlaws who insist upon running things....Indians are again becoming troublesome in the Black Hills.

Chicago elevators contain 7,588,474 bushels of wheat, 3,166,763 bushels of corn, 508,920 bushels of oats, 324,465 bushels of rye and 983,261 bushels of barley, making a grand total of 12,571,884 bushels, against 3,022,905 bushels at this period last year.

News comes from Idaho Territory, via Portland, Oregon, of another massacre of Indians. The rather unintelligible account of the affair telegraphed by the press agent at Portland states the settlers from the Lower Weiser (in Idaho) some three weeks previously had organized to pursue into the Salmon River mountains a band of Indians, who, after being dispersed by Gen. Howard last summer, had raided that country, driven off stock and killed Munday and two others who pursued them. These Indians were reported to be returning toward Payette, when the settlers organized to intercept them. They proceeded across to Payette, and soon found signs of Indians. They quietly reconnoitered, and made the discovery of their camp. Waiting a favorable opportunity, when all were in camp and not in the least expecting the near presence of white men, they suddenly surprised and attacked them, and killed thirty-six of their number, nearly annihilating the whole camp.

The East St. Louis Rail Mill, located at the town of that name in Illinois, opposite St. Louis, Mo., has been destroyed by fire. The mill formerly gave employment to 400 men, but has been closed since 1870. The loss is estimated at $150,000.... Charles W. Angell, of Chicago, the defaulting Secretary of the Pullman Palace Car Company, who was arrested in Portugal and brought back to this country, has been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment in the Illinois penitentiary.

THE SOUTH.

There was another bungling execution at Louisville, Ky., last week, the victim being a colored man named George Washington. The rope broke, and the negro's unconscious form had to be lifted on the trap and the rope adjusted a second time.

The Virginia Senate has passed a bill providing for the settlement of the State debt. It will probably pass the House also....Alfred Gambrel has been sentenced in Breathitt county, Ky., to a life term of imprisonment for the murder of Judge Burnett during the late civil war in that delightful neck of woods.

Lieut. Fletcher, of the navy, who deserted his wife and children and eloped with Miss Bailey, of Baltimore, has turned up in Richmond, Va., under an assumed name. He will be court-martialed and dismissed from the naval service.

A motion declaring that the exclusion of American cattle is likely to destroy an important trade and deprive England of the advantage of cheap meat has been postponed for four weeks in the English House of Commons.

Maj. A. N. Hutchins and Thomas McNatt, neighbors, and highly-respected citizens living near Iuka, Miss., visited the village the other day. Hutchins drew $1,700 in gold from the bank, and the two started for home in the evening. That was the last seen of them alive. Their bodies were found by the roadside, terribly mutilated, and the money missing.

GENERAL.

Surgeon General Woodworth, in his last weekly report, says there has not been a recent case of yellow fever in the United States....Burned: A cloth mill and six dwellings at Salem, N. J., loss $23,000; the Opera House at Columbus, Ind., loss $75,000; the Atlantic Knitting mills at Cohoes, N. Y.

The annual meeting of the National Association of Veterans of the Mexican War has just been held in Baltimore. Gen. J. W. Denver, of Ohio, was re-elected President. Next year's meeting will be held at Norfolk, Va. ....The condition of Archbishop Purcell's finances, as revealed by the latest developments, is that of more hopeless insolvency than had been supposed, the liabilities being now estimated at $4,000,000, while the assets will not exceed $700,000.

Capt. Paul Boyton, the man-fish, has begun the longest swim ever undertaken by man. He proposes to float from Pittsburgh to New Orleans in his life-saving suit.

WASHINGTON.

The President has nominated Edward E. Lane, of Illinois, as United States Consul at Tunstall; J. H. Stewart, Pennsylvania, United States Consul at Antwerp; James Riley Weaver, of West Virginia, United States Consul at Vienna.

It is intimated that ex-Gov. Fenton will have the Berlin mission, and that Senator Conover may secure the Central American mission.

The Judge Advocate General of the Army has acted on the proceedings and findings of the Reno Court of Inquiry, recently assembled in Chicago. The court in its report reached the general conclusion that the inquiry has not deduced evidence against Maj. Reno which would warrant a trial by court-martial. This has been approved....In the case of Capt. Blair, who was tried for conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman, in that having been married to a Miss Bailey in Scotland he afterward contracted marriage with Mrs. Gordon Granger in this country, the sentence is that he be dismissed the service.

The President has nominated Walter S. Cox, of Washington, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia; Peter A. Williams, United States Marshal of the Southern District of Florida; Dennis Eagan, Collector of Internal Revenue for Florida.

The President has nominated James Hill, Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Mississippi, and George H. Keith, Postmaster at Minneapolis, Minn.... The ill-feeling between Senators Conkling and Burnside has been smoothed over, the latter apologizing for his hot words.

POLITICAL.

A sub-committee of the Teller Committee, with Senator Hoar for Chairman, has been formed to make a Northern investigation.

Murat Halsted, in an interview at Washington the other day, gave it as his opinion that John Sherman would beat Gen. Grant for the Republican nomination for President....A preliminary meeting of the Greenbackers elected to the next Congress, and others affiliating with the National party, took place in Washington a few days ago. A correspondent says "they were a very confident body of men. They claim not only the ability to elect the Speaker of the next House, but to elect the next President of the United States, and say that they are as certain of carrying Maine and Massachusetts this year as they are of eating their dinners."

Washington correspondents make mention of a very ugly bit of unpleasantness that came between Senators Conkling and Burnside, during an executive session of the Senate. The trouble rose out of the discussion of a Rhode Island appointee of the President, whose name was up for confirmation. Conkling charged Burnside with trickery in committee. Burnside said the statement was incorrect. Conkling then repeated his assertions, and appealed to Senators to sustain him. At this Spencer jumped up and declared that Conkling was stating the truth. Burnside by this time had worked himself into a furious state of excitement, and gave Conkling the lie direct, and took occasion to express a fervent wish that he had the tongue of Blaine, in order that he might make a fitting reply to the Senator from New York.

FOREIGN.

Further intelligence from Mandalay, the capital of Burmah, states that great consternation prevails in consequence of the royal murders. The victims numbered eighty-six. The details of the massacre, as reported, are horrible. British interference is hoped for by the people to prevent more bloodshed....The Dobrudscha boundary dispute between Russia and Roumania is to be referred to the Ambassadors at Constantinople for final decision.... The Ameer of Afghanistan is said to be still on Afghan territory, at Khulm, or Tashkurgan, south of the Oxus.

The court physician to the Czar of Russia, furnishes the information that the plague is nearly extinct. Although the epidemic was purely local, and did not go beyond the villages of Wetlianka, Selitrena, and Michaelowka, yet the mortality was over 80 per cent.... The situation of the British troops in the Zulu territory is reported as somewhat improved. Col. Pearson's communications with headquarters have been cut off, but he holds an intrenched position and has two months' provisions....Mazatlan, the chief city on the Pacific coast of Mexico, is in a state of revolution. ....A cable dispatch announces the death of Count von Roon, Field Marshal of Germany.

A St. Petersburg dispatch says the committee appointed to superintend the burning of infected houses in the plague districts has begun operations....Lord Dufferin, late Governor General of Canada, has been appointed British Ambassador to St. Petersburg.... India is threatened with another famine.... Bismarck reiterates with emphasis that he will stick to his protective policy, despite all opposition.

The cable brings intelligence of destructive floods in the South of France, and a devastating tempest in Spain, resulting in great damage to property and loss of life. An unknown bark was wrecked at Corunna, and thirty persons drowned. The steamer Memphis, bound from Liverpool to New Orleans, went ashore at Corunna, and was abandoned by her crew. ....Prince Louis Napoleon has sailed for Cape Town, to join the British forces as a volunteer in South Africa.

A statue in honor of the memory of Capt. Cook, the famous navigator, was unveiled the other day at Sydney, New South Wales....The coast of Italy has been visited by a destructive gale, wrecking a number of vessels and causing considerable loss of life.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

February 21.—In the Senate, Mr. Voorhees introduced a bill directing the Secretary of the Treasury to issue legal tenders equal in amount to the fractional currency retired—about $[illegible]—to pay the arrears of pensions....The bill regulating the transportation of animals was passed.... Mr. Saunders, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, reported without amendment the Senate bill to authorize the President temporarily to transfer the management of certain Indian tribes from the Interior to the War Department.——The House was engaged all day on the private calendar, and several war claims were squelched.

February 22.—The Senate spent the day on the Army Appropriation bill, and struck out all the reorganization features, together with the posse-comitatus clause of the House bill....The credentials of Messrs. Logan, of Illinois; Call, of Florida, and Slater, of Oregon, were received and placed on file. ....The Senate, in executive session, confirmed a number of executive appointments, including that of H. C. Burchard, of Illinois, to be Director of the United States Mints.——In the House there was an animated discussion of the bill to repeal the Resumption law, Messrs. Garfield and Ewing being the chief participants. At the conclusion of the debate the bill was laid on the table by a vote of 141 yeas to 110 nays....The bill restricting Chinese immigration was passed, with the Senate amendments.

February 24.—In the Senate, Mr. Hamlin, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, reported adversely on the bill granting the privilege to the American Atlantic Cable Company to lay and operate a cable between the United States and Europe. ....The House bill authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to accept for a voyage of exploration, by way of Behring's straits, the ship Jeannette, tendered by James Gordon Bennett, was passed....The Army Appropriation bill was passed, rejecting an amendment to the telegraph section of the bill, proposed by Mr. Beck, repealing the right of the Government to take possession of the Western Union Telegraph Company's lines at any time when Congress shall see fit....The bill to prevent the introduction of contagious diseases was discussed, but no action taken.—— The House took up the Revenue bill, disagreed to the Senate amendments to the tobacco tax, and ordered a conference committee upon the disagreeing portions....The Sundry Civil Appropriation bill was passed under a suspension of the rules.

February 25.—In the Senate, the bill to prevent the introduction of contagious diseases into this country was passed....By a vote of yeas 25 to nays 36, the Senate refused to take up the resolution declaring David T. Corbin entitled to a seat as Senator from South Carolina in place of M. C. Butler, the present incumbent. Messrs. Cameron (Pa.), Conover, Matthews and Patterson voted nay with the Democrats.... The Deficiency Appropriation bill was considered.——There was a sharp partisan debate in the House over the amendment to the Legislative Appropriation bill repealing the Election Supervisors' law. The amendment finally went through the committee of the whole by a vote of 123 to 110. The amendment repealing the jurors' test oath was adopted without division, the Republicans interposing no opposition. The bill, as thus amended, was then reported to the House and passed....Mr. Harris, Chairman of the Committee on Elections, reported resolutions in regard to the contested-election case from the Third Congressional District of Missouri, declaring that N. G. Frost (contestant) is not, and that L. S. Metcalf (sitting member) is, entitled to the seat.

February 26.—In the Senate, Mr. Edmunds reported a bill further to protect the constitutional rights of citizens, and punish violations of the same. Placed on the calendar....Mr. Burnside submitted a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee to examine and report upon the whole subject of ordnance as it related to the army, navy and militia. Laid on the table, under the rule....The Senate devoted most of the day to minor appropriation bills. An item in the Deficiency bill of $260,000 to pay Deputy Marshals gave rise to a long political debate, the Democrats opposing and denouncing it as an appropriation to pay men illegally appointed to conduct elections for party purposes.——The House discussed and finally passed the bill providing for taking the census of 1880....The bill to modify the tax on sugar was then taken up and occupied the balance of the session.

February 27.—In the Senate, Mr. Teller, from the special committee to inquire into the alleged violation of the constitutional rights of citizens during the late elections, submitted the report of the majority, and said that the minority reserved the right to submit a report. Ordered printed.... Mr. Teller also submitted a resolution continuing the committee until next session, and authorizing it to sit during the recess. Objected to by Mr. Bayard, and laid aside....The bill to pay arrears of pensions was discussed. The River and Harbor, Sundry Civil and Census Appropriation bills were reported and placed on the calendar....The Senate, in executive session, confirmed a large number of appointments. The St. Louis Postmastership resulted in the confirmation of Hays, who succeeded Filley, by a vote of 28 to 19. The opposition to Hays was led by Senator Spencer, who took occasion to deliver a bitter speech against the administration.... The nomination of Stratton for Supervising Inspector of steamboats for the New York district was rejected. This was the case that had led to the unpleasantness between Messrs. Conkling and Burnside. The name was rejected by a large majority. Mr. Hamlin next took the field against the administration, and charged that the nomination of Fox for Collector of Customs at Bangor was withdrawn in order to retaliate upon him (Hamlin) for his antagonism to the New York appointments, and appealed to the Senate to resent the insult offered one of its members by the Executive. The Senate rejected the nomination of Stone as Fox's successor.—— In the House, Mr. Randall made a personal explanation in regard to the charges against him in a letter, written in September, 1878, by Special Agent Williams to Maj. W. B. Moore, in regard to the appropriation of warrants issued to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and offered a resolution for the appointment of a special committee to inquire into such charges. Messrs. Hale, Kelley and Thompson, Republicans, paid a very fine tribute to the integrity of the Speaker, and scouted the charges as unworthy of serious investigation. Mr. Randall, however, insisted that a formal inquiry and report was due to him and to the country, and therefore, by unanimous vote, the committee was granted....The resolution to have George F. Seward brought before the bar of the House for contempt was adopted.

The Potter Investigation.

John F. Coyle, one of the witnesses before the Potter Committee at Washington, swore that he went to Florida at the request of Col. Pelton. Edward Cooper gave him his cipher and instructions, and he sent telegrams to Henry Havemeyer. He was authorized to employ money, and did use about $10,000. The witness gave an account of negotiations through Alexander Thein for the purchase of the Returning Board, but they were not concluded. Witness felt positive Mr. Tilden knew nothing of these matters.... Thomas C. Dunn, one of the South Carolina Returning Board, testified that he had been approached, pending the counting the votes of South Carolina, by one Hardy Solomon, who stated that he was requested to see members of the Returning Board and ascertain whether it was possible to enter into any negotiations by which the vote of that board could be so shaped as to give the electoral vote of South Carolina, or a portion of it, to Tilden. Dunn and Solomon had frequent interviews, at which the subject was discussed. The argument that Solomon used was that he had been told by the Democratic leaders there that they had the Democratic strength of the State in arms and organized, and that they could put 4,000 men into Columbia on a few hours' notice. They meant to take the State peaceably if they could, forcibly if they must. Witness said that Solomon represented that there was an agent of Tilden in Columbia for the purpose of using money, if needed, to secure the electoral vote.... Gen. Barlow, of New York, told the committee how he happened to go to Florida. He said he saw Dr. Cowgill after the Returning Board had adjourned, and said to him he (witness) did not see how they could fairly give the State to the Hayes electors, and, if he were in Cowgill's place, he should feel it his duty to give the vote to the Tilden electors. Witness said he could not be termed counsel to the Republican party, although he wrote for them opinions on points of law, and did other legal work for them....William E. Chandler was called, and testified that Mr. Barlow was in Florida as counsel for the Republicans, and as such was under obligations to the members of that party. Mr. Barlow then defended his course before the Florida Canvassing Board, and said he did what he considered his duty as a person sent there in the interest of honesty.

Louisiana politics were the subject of investigation by the Potter Committee on the 20th inst., United States Marshal Wharton being the only witness called during the day. The witness expressed the opinion that Mr. Wells was willing to sell out to the Democrats provided his price were proffered. Maddox was supposed to have been the agent through which negotiations were carried on. Maddox at one time told witness that he believed if the State administration would give Gov. Wells what was regarded as its biggest offer, that Wells would be satisfied. Much evidence of the venality of Louisiana politicians was developed in the examination of Marshal Wharton.

The Potter Committee, on Feb. 21, held a rather uninteresting session, at which Manager Whitney, of the Western Union Telegraph Company, said that within the last ninety days there had been some telegrams withdrawn from his office, which were sent to New York. The telegrams were from Gibson, at New Orleans, to the correspondent of the New York Sun at Washington. Gen. Butler then cross-examined Marshal Wharton, when it was brought out that Maddox expected to be appointed chief of the secret-service division, and was to give witness a place. Witness said that he had never made any proposition to any member of the Returning Board that would lead him to entertain an idea that he (Wharton) wanted to buy him out. He was positive that if the board did its duty Hayes and Packard would surely be elected.

When the committee met on Feb. 24th, the Chairman laid before the body an affidavit of C. W. Woolley, of Cincinnati, offering to file a sworn statement of his connection with the elections in Florida and Louisiana, Mr. Woolley being too unwell to travel to Washington. The committee voted to hear him at any time, but declined to receive an affidavit. Mr. Alex. Thain, who is said to have offered to sell the Florida Returning Board, asked leave to testify, but no action was taken by the committee. James H. Maddox, replying to Marshal Wharton's statements, said that Wharton knew that Gov. Wells was for sale, and he proposed that they should see Packard in regard to it. They talked the matter over with him, and $20,000 was mentioned as the sum that would be required. A few days afterwards it was suggested by Wharton that Packard should promise an office to Wells. Maddox reported the conversation to Wells, who declined the offer. He said that he might want to leave New Orleans, and did not want an office, but money. D. J. M. Jewett, who acted as Secretary to the Republican Campaign Committee of Louisiana in 1876, testified to false protests made from several parishes of Louisiana.

The Potter Committee were in secret session at Washington Feb. 25. The agent sent to Tallahassee to subpœna Solomon reported that he was not to be found, and it was thought he had gone to Mexico. The question of presenting a report to Congress upon the evidence adduced was discussed, but no determination was reached.

ELECTION SUPERVISORS.

Extracts from the Debate in the National House of Representatives on the Proposition to Abolish Them.

Mr. Frye (Republican) argued against the amendment. He declared its object was for effect not in the South, but in the State of New York. In the South, notwithstanding the election laws, the Republican party had disappeared as the dew before the rising sun. The South would be solid for the Democratic candidate for President in 1880, law or no law, Supervisor or no Supervisor, United States Marshal or no United States Marshal. Mr. Frye went on to state that it was the election frauds in 1868 that had originally caused the enactment of the Federal Election law, and that it was the present necessities of the Democratic party that now required its repeal. He gave some of the figures of the naturalization and election frauds in New York in 1868, and characterized that election as the most monstrous and marvelous for fraud, for wickedness, and for every device of the devil, that had ever been heard of. He showed that, on the 6th of October, in one single day, the Supreme Court had naturalized 2,109 persons, and on the 19th of October the Supreme Court had naturalized 919, and yet a Judge of Louisiana had been impeached and found guilty for having naturalized some 400 persons in one day—that being declared to be a physical impossibility. He spoke of nine witnesses (one a Captain of a squad) witnessing the naturalization of nearly 7,000 persons, one of them (the Captain) being a witness in one court for 996 persons, and swearing that he knew all the men, while he did not know a single one of them, and while the Judge knew that he did not, but that he was a drunken thief. In conclusion, he quoted from Cox's report on the New York election in 1876, in which a high compliment is paid to the United States Supervisors and Marshals.

Mr. Lynde (Democrat) denied the statement of Mr. Frye as to the false naturalization papers in New York, and asked why it was that, if there was so many false naturalization papers in 1868, not one person had been successfully prosecuted for using or issuing them. He believed that the greater part of those naturalization papers were valid. The Election law had been got up by John I. Davenport for his own and for partisan purposes. The way in which the law had been administered by Davenport was sketched and criticized by him to prove that all those statements of election frauds were gross exaggerations. He characterized the Lawrence report of the election of 1868, from which Mr. Frye had obtained his facts and figures, as the most unreliable political document he had ever seen.

Mr. Baker (Republican, Ind.) expressed the opinion that his friends on the other side who declared themselves in favor of freedom of election while they had their hands on the throat of the law that secured it were protesting a little too much. Underlying the discussion was the question which had culminated in the Rebellion, whether or not the life of the nation can be protected by the nation itself.

Mr. Wood (Democrat) recited the history of the laws which were proposed to be repealed. They were but a portion of a series of laws passed in order to keep the Southern States as stipendiaries of the Republican party. That had been intended for the South, but it was now applied to the North. The gentleman from Maine (Frye) assumed to speak for his party when he said that he would resist by every means in his power the repeal of those laws. He (Wood) could not speak for his party, but he could speak for one man when he said that he did not care what became of the appropriation bills. He believed that there was a higher question than that of appropriating money. He could stay in the House as long as any gentleman. The Democratic party could resist as long as the Republican party, and he would not consent to vote for a dollar until this amendment should be engrafted on the bill.

Mr. Garfield (Republican) opposed the amendment. He said: Gentlemen (addressing the Democratic side of the House), you seek to cut out a section, a living section, from the criminal laws of the United States, and to say that the ballot-box stuffing, fraud at elections, intimidation, outrage, poisoning the very fountain-springs of the elective franchise, shall be no crime, and that the machinery by which such crime can be punished shall be destroyed. That is what you propose to do here to-day, and to do it at the dictation of a party caucus. * * * Now, Mr. Chairman, if this be the purpose which we are called upon here to vote on, we on this side are compelled to meet it in the spirit of the constitution and our rights, and that we propose to do, and if it takes one night, two nights, ten nights, not while Congress lasts shall you strike from our statute-books the muniments for the protection of the elective franchise. When you do it you must do it because you have the whole power to do it, and not by our help, not by our consent. A hundred criminal prosecutions are to-day pending before the courts of the United States to punish crimes against the elective franchise. Already enough men from the city of Cincinnati have been sentenced to the penitentiary for fraud to take away the majority of one of the members on this floor from that city, and all the proceedings in the criminal courts are to be abandoned at the cry of a party order which demands it for party success.

Old Maids and Old Bachelors.

Old maids are useful. They can cook, sew and take care of children, nurse sick people, and generally play the piano. Old bachelors are useless. They do not even know how to drive nails or split wood.

Old maids are amiable. If one wants anything done that requires patience and kindness of heart, a single lady is sure to be the one to do it.

Old bachelors are ill-natured. They snub children, despise babies, and hate young mothers, and are always so busily employed in seeing that other people take good care of them that they have not a moment to give to anyone else.

Old maids are nice-looking, and "young for their years." Old bachelors generally have red noses, rheumatism in their knees, bald heads, and mouths that turn down at the corners.

Old maids can make a home of one little room, and cook delicious meals for one over the gas-jet in cunning little tin-kettles, besides making all their own wardrobes. Old bachelors need an army of tailors, waiters, cooks, distant relatives, and hotel landlords, to keep them comfortable. When old maids are ill they tie up their heads in pocket-handkerchiefs, take homeopathic pellets out of two bottles, alternately, and get well again. When old bachelors are ill they go to bed and send for four doctors; have a consultation; a mantle-piece full of black bottles; all the amiable married men who belong to the club to sit up with them at night, besides a hired nurse; they telegraph to their relations; and do their best to impress the world with the idea that they are dying.

When an old maid travels she takes a sandwich, a piece of pound-cake, a bottle of lemonade in a hand-basket, and lunches comfortably in the carriage. When an old bachelor travels he orders a dinner in courses at the station, and raves because he has not time to eat it before the "fifteen minutes for refreshments" are over.

Old maids drink weak tea and it cures their headaches.

Old bachelors drink strong liquor which gives them headaches.

Old maids are modest; they think their youth is over and their beauty gone. If, after a while, some autumnal love is given them, they take it as a sort of miracle, and hope people will not laugh at them for "marrying so late in life."

Old bachelors believe that all women are in love with them, and that they must carefully guard themselves from traps laid to inveigle them into matrimony. They also fondly cherish the belief that, should they eventually become married men, the world expects them to exhibit great taste in women by their choice, and that the "other fellows" will laugh if their portion be not tender youth and beauty; also that, when they marry, many women will expire of jealousy.

ELOQUENT, BUT LAZY.

Senator McCreery and His Peculiarities.

The most striking face and figure in the United States Senate, says a Washington letter-writer, are those possessed by Senator McCreery, of Kentucky. His head, from the square, heavy brow over the top and down almost to the back of the neck, is as bald as an onion, while on each side, entirely covering his ears and extending down below the bald spots behind, hangs a thick curtain of the blackest, straightest and stiffest hair ever grown on any other than an Indian scalp. It contains not the slightest suspicion of gray, notwithstanding the nearly 70 years of the Senator, and it never will. The face would be Websterian, and even more so, except for the infantile smile which constantly plays around the corners of the mouth, and ripples over the lower part of the nose whenever the Senator is addressed by his associates.

Strangers are at loss whether to rate him as a man of towering intellect, even among the giants by whom he is surrounded, or as a sort of Wilkins Micawber who owes his position to the accident of his impressive appearance. His figure and dress rather carry out the latter theory. Slightly podgy in the body, with lower extremities somewhat exaggerated in the other direction, he covers his person with the regulation black claw-hammer style of garment, in vogue twenty years ago. The comic element in his make-up rather predominates, and as the old gentleman always smiles when he is addressed so his appearance is always attended by a lighting up of the faces of those who approach him.

Senator McCreery is at once the most indolent and the most eloquent man in Congress. His biography in the "Congressional Directory" is only three and one-half lines in length, and is the only one from which the date of birth is omitted. It is reported that he could not be persuaded to write any more. He rarely masters more than one subject at a session, and usually waits until that is a dead one before he speaks upon it. Yet the announcement that Senator McCreery is to speak is always sufficient to cram every seat in the Senate galleries, for such a treat can be had on no other occasion.

Last year he sold his audience very cheaply. He had selected the repeal of the income-tax statutes upon which to make his one annual effort, and had given notice, as usual, a week in advance. An audience of the highest and brightest had crowded in to hear him, and awaited his hour with some impatience. When at last it arrived the Senator arose and introduced his subject in a manner entirely his own, clothing the dry title in terms most exquisitely smooth and poetic. He then said that other Senators had doubtless given the subject as much attention as he himself had, and would vote according to their convictions of right. He then beamed upon the galleries for a moment, and subsided for another year.

Senator McCreery has been in the Senate nine years, and has had enough of it. His term expires on the 4th of next month, and consequently this is probably the last appearance of this remarkable character in public life.

How the Streets of Paris Are Cleared.

The rapidity with which the snow is cleared away from the streets of Paris fixes attention on the little army of sweepers whom the city authorities employ for that purpose. In ordinary weather the services of 2,500 are required, who receive full wages, besides 2,000 auxiliary hands on half wages. In exceptional weather, like that experienced of late, any further number of men may be taken on as the administration may see fit. No fewer than 7,000 men are, therefore, ready at a given moment to ply their brooms in every thoroughfare of the French capital, besides the chiefs of brigades and the inspectors. Each brigade includes 115 men. The ordinary full day's work begins at 3 in the morning and ends at 4 in the afternoon; the half-day's labor begins at 10 in the morning. The latter receive from 1 franc 20 centimes to 1 franc 75 centimes, according to the work they have to do; the former are usually paid at the rate of 30 centimes, 35 centimes and 40 centimes an hour. In urgent cases many of these men are called upon to work for twenty consecutive hours at a time, with no other rest than that afforded when they take their meals. During the late fall of snow no less than 60,000 days' work were needed to clear the main streets, and it has been reckoned that 300,000 days' work would be required to sweep away from every thoroughfare the snow accumulated in them by twelve hours' fall. The total surface requiring to be swept throughout the town exceeds at present 15,000,000 square meters.—Galignani's Messenger.

A Boy's Suicide.

William Zeigler, a lad 11 years of age, who lived with his grandmother on Allegheny avenue, near Chatham street, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by hanging to a joist in the ceiling. He took advantage of the lady's absence to lock himself in the house. He then went into the cellar, piled up blocks of wood until he had adjusted a rope from a hook in a joist around his throat. He then kicked away the blocks. When the grandmother returned in half an hour from the neighbor's house which she had been visiting, she was compelled to climb into the dwelling through a back window. Not finding Willie in the lower rooms, she proceeded to the upper rooms, and then to the cellar, where she beheld the dangling body, still warm, the rope having stretched until the boy's knees touched the ground. He was taken down, and unsuccessful efforts were made to resuscitate him. The reason assigned for the suicide is a disturbance of mental balance produced by reading religious books. He frequently declared that he wanted to go to heaven from this sinful world.—Philadelphia Times.

The Plague.

The plague is one of the oldest things under the sun. According to Petavius it ravaged the whole known world in [illegible] B. C. In [illegible] B. C. it made terrible havoc in Carthage, and the people, deploring the anger of the gods, offered up their children as sacrifices. Thucydides has left a graphic description of the plague which raged in Athens in 430 B. C., and which extended over Egypt and Ethiopia. In the eighteenth year of the Christian era Rome was depopulated at the rate of 10,000 daily. Three centuries and a half later the plague appeared in Britain, where the living were not able to bury the dead. There is little reason to doubt the statement that 200 persons perished daily in London during an epidemic which raged in 1848, and which prevailed throughout Europe. In 1478 more persons perished in England by pestilence than had died in fifteen years of continued war. At various periods of its history London has suffered terribly from plague. More than 20,000 persons perished in 1603-4, and more than 35,000 in 1625. But it was not until 1665 that that city learned what a scourge the plague might become. A moderate estimate says that 68,506 persons perished, while other authorities state the number at 100,000. Since that period England has been tolerably free from the plague, but it has carried off 80,500 persons in Persia, 800,000 in Egypt, and 60,000 at Marseilles at one visitation.

Dangerous Houses.

Houses that have been empty may become fever-breeders when they come to be reoccupied. An English sanitary officer alleges that he has observed typhoid, diphtheria, or their zymotic affections to arise under these circumstances. The cause is supposed to be in the disuse of cisterns, pipes, and drains, the processes of putrefaction going on in the impure air in them, the unobstructed access of this air to the house, while the closure of windows and doors effectually shuts out fresh air. Persons moving from the city to their country homes for the summer should see that the drains and pipes are in perfect order, that the cellar and closets are cleared of rubbish, and the whole house thoroughly aired before occupying. Carbolic acid used freely in the cellar is a good and cheap disinfectant.—Scientific American.

The San Francisco Female Lawyer.

Mrs. Clara S. Folz is a lady who is practicing law in San Francisco, and who, judging from report, has gone about her business in a practical and reasonable manner. She is described as sitting in her office at a table covered with legal works—a bright, fair-haired, rosy-featured, cheerful, matronly woman, neatly attired in a dress of dark material, over which was worn a most non-judicial checkered apron. To an interviewer she said: "There is nothing to be said about me. I originated from the cradle, the wash-tub, the sewing-machine, and the cooking-stove. I have educated myself and am now trying to earn a living for myself and little ones by practicing law, and I mean to succeed, and that's all there is to be said about me."

To Thaw Water-Pipes.

If you can get at them, pour hot water on them slowly, or wrap them with a towel and put hot water on it. The specific heat of water is very high, which makes it a good thing to convey the heat to the pipes. Inaccessible pipes and waste-pipes can often be melted out by inserting into one end a small rubber or lead pipe, and pouring or forcing hot water through this small pipe and pushing it forward into the frozen pipes as the ice melts. Sometimes a jet of steam is available, carried through a garden-hose and used through a branch pipe.—Plumber and Sanitary Engineer.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	$7 00	@10 75
Hogs	3 85	@ 4 40
Cotton	9¾	@ 10
Flour—Superfine	3 50	@ 3 75
Wheat—No. 2	1 06	@ 1 13
Corn—Western Mixed	44	@ 47
Oats—Mixed	32	@ 35
Rye—Western	61	@ 62½
Pork—Mess	9 70	@11 12½
Lard	7	@ 7¼
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	4 55	@ 5 00
Cows and Heifers	2 00	@ 3 50
Medium to Fair	4 00	@ 4 20
Hogs	3 00	@ 4 35
Flour—Fancy White Winter Ex.	5 00	@ 5 50
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	3 75	@ 4 25
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	92	@ 93
No. 3 Spring	78	@ 79
Corn—No. 2	33	@ 34
Oats—No. 2	23½	@ 24
Rye—No. 2	44	@ 47½
Barley—No. 2	76½	@ 77½
Butter—Choice Creamery	22	@ 25
Eggs—Fresh	12	@ 13
Pork—Mess	8 75	@10 30
Lard	6¾	@ 7
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	99½	@ 1 12½
No. 2	92	@ 94
Corn—No. 2	33	@ 34
Oats—No. 2	22	@ 23
Rye—No. 1	45	@ 46
Barley—No. 2	73	@ 74
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red Fall	1 00	@ 1 02½
Corn—Mixed	32	@ 32½
Oats—No. 2	23	@ 24
Rye	45	@ 46
Pork—Mess	9 75	@ 9 87½
Lard	6½	@ 6¾
CINCINNATI.
Wheat—Red	1 01	@ 1 06
Corn	34	@ 36
Oats	26	@ 29
Rye	52	@ 53
Pork—Mess	10 25	@10 50
Lard	6½	@ 6¾
TOLEDO.
Wheat—No. 1 White	1 00	@ 1 01
No. 2 Red	1 02	@ 1 03
Corn	35	@ 36
Oats—No. 2	26	@ 27
DETROIT.
Flour—White	4 75	@ 5 00
Wheat—No. 1 White	99	@ 1 00
No. 1 Amber	97	@ 98
Corn—No. 1	36	@ 37
Oats—Mixed	25	@ 27
Barley (per cental)	1 00	@ 2 10
Pork—Mess	10 00	@10 25
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Cattle—Best	5 00	@ 5 25
Fair	4 50	@ 4 75
Common	3 50	@ 4 25
Hogs	3 90	@ 4 35
Sheep	3 50	@ 5 25

AUBURN COURIER,

THEODORE REED, Editor.

FARM NOTES.

KEROSENE will soften boots or shoes which have been hardened by water, and render them as pliable as new.

WHEN commencing your agricultural life, remember that industry, economy and integrity will insure success, and form the best capital that can be employed.

AN excellent farmer says that for every sheep he kept last year he sold, in lambs and wool, an average of $5 worth per head. He said also that his sheep paid him better than anything else grown on his farm.

POTATOES are best cooked in their skins, for the waste is then only 3 per cent. or half an ounce in a pound; whereas, if they are peeled first, it is not less than 14 per cent., or from two to three ounces in the pound.

EVERY farmer may not be able to reach the maximum of production, yet he can make his land produce what he needs and what an accommodating market will pay him well for, when he has it in excess of home wants. No farmer in the land, however poor his soil may be at the outset, has any excuse for not making every acre contribute to his own and the general good.

THE more the agricultural situation is discussed, whether by the press or in public meeting, the more general becomes the conviction of the importance of agriculture in the nation's welfare. It is of importance to the whole community that the land should be worked to the highest advantage. The farmers themselves are fast rising to a proper appreciation of the value and dignity of their calling.

IF your cellars are too cold, bank up the outside with something, or place a double thickness of newspapers over the windows. This lets in some light and prevents the escape of heat. A double door, or a fire in the room over the cellar, will help keep out the frost. A kerosene stove in the cellar may be used in extreme cases. Ventilate on suitable days, and clean out decaying vegetables and fruit.

LOOK about early in the season, and get your pick of hands in the market. Make a written bargain in detail, no matter if you are well acquainted. This will prevent misunderstanding. The man agrees to remain a certain number of months; to perform certain chores Sunday, or holidays; to start about such an hour in the morning, and close at such an hour in the evening. If, in case of an emergency, he works longer, he may have certain privileges to compensate for it. In case he quits before his time is out, he only receives a certain stipulated sum.

AT a recent meeting of the Franklin Harvest Club, at Holyoke, Mass., an interesting essay was read by Milo Lucerne Smith, of Northampton. Mr. Smith—says the Springfield Republican, from which we quote—"is excellent authority on the subject of which he treats, he having raised from five to fourteen acres of potatoes annually for the last eighteen years, and kept a journal of his work. It is not too much to say that he and his father, Milo J., have raised and sold more potatoes than any other family in the Connecticut river valley. From his journal he learns that his average yield per acre for the eighteen years has been 218 bushels. He exhibited several samples of potatoes, and described their various excellencies and characteristics with great clearness. He thinks the best soil for the potato is a sandy loam, and that it should be sod or stubble ground. Well-rotted compost is the best manure, but ashes, dry-fish and potash are good specials. Unfermented manure is apt to make the tubers scabby. His experiment last year resulted as follows per acre: Twenty loads of compost, worth $40, yielded 333¼ bushels; Phelps Stockbridge special, cost $21, yielded 266¼ bushels; dry-fish and leached ashes, cost $19.33, yielded 387 bushels; dry-fish alone, cost $13.33, yielded 217 bushels; sea fowl, cost $10, yielded 210 bushels. Mr. Smith would plant both the early and late varieties as early as the ground will admit, and plant them in hills from two to three feet apart, varying with the rankness of the tops, and have the rows three feet apart. He would cover them about three inches deep. The seed should be the finest specimens of the crop, and not the unmerchantable, as is often the case. He would cut the potatoes so that each piece should have from two to four eyes, and put only one piece in a hill. Three vigorous stalks in a hill are better than half a dozen. He cultivates carefully, harrowing the ground on a dry day just as the tubers break through, then covering them with a ridger when about three inches high, then using a cultivator, lastly a double-mold-board plow, and sometimes using a hand hoe, or pulling out weeds after haying. They should be dug on a dry day, when the tops are dead, with a six-tined hook, and one hour of exposure is sufficient. Those early dug keep best. He had stored them in a bin 12 feet wide and about 4 feet deep with safety. Paris green, a teaspoonful to a pail of water, is the most effectual remedy for the bug pest, but for the blight and rot he knew no remedy. On being questioned, Mr. Smith said that the best potato he knew of was the Snowflake, equal to the old Carter, but that it was not a large yielder, about a third less than the Early Rose. The Early Rose was good both early and late, but was on the wane, and the Peerless was a good market potato, yielding sometimes with him 340 bushels per acre. It takes by his method from four to six bushels of seed per acre."

S. B. N.

The late Admiral Goldsborough was one of the most uncivil officers in the navy. It is related of him that he once found in his room the card of a young man attached to the diplomatic corps who had called during the Admirals' absence. Not long after the young man accosted him on the street and asked, "Did you get my card, Admiral?" He shouted out, "Yes! and what's the meaning of E. P. that you wrote on it?" "Why, that means en personne, that I 'called in person.'" "It does, eh?" said the Admiral, who went off in a mood of disgusted meditation. In a few days he returned the call by sending his card by a messenger, first writing S. B. N. in one corner. Again the two met. "You received my card, did you?" inquired the Admiral. "Yes, and what does S. B. N. mean?" asked the polite young man. "Sent by a nigger!" thundered the Admiral.—Buffalo Commercial.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY.

REHEATING coffee just before grinding brings out the flavor.

MAKE two large pockets in your kitchen apron and in one of them always keep a holder.

HAM BALLS.—Chop fine cold cooked ham; add an egg for each person; a little flour; beat together; make into balls and fry in hot butter.

PRUNE WHIP.—Sweeten to taste, and stew three-fourths of a pound of prunes; when perfectly cold add whites of four eggs beaten stiff; stir all this together till light; put in a dish and bake twenty minutes; when cold serve in a larger dish and cover with whipped cream.

FRUIT CAKE.—One pound brown sugar, one of butter, ten eggs, one of flour, two of raisins and two of currants, half pound of citron, a nutmeg, a tablespoon of cloves, one of allspice, half pint brandy, two teaspoons baking powder; after baking, pour over cake half pint of wine.

WINE JELLY.—Dissolve one box of gelatine in one pint of cold water with the juice and rind of two lemons, half an ounce of stick cinnamon; soak three-quarters of an hour; pour upon it three pints of boiling water, one pint sherry; add four coffee cups of sugar; strain through flannel into mold.

REMOVING GREASE SPOTS.—Grease spots can be quickly removed from paper by scraping a little pipe-clay upon both sides of the paper, and then putting a flat-iron over them, taking care that it is not so hot as to scorch the paper. Another method is to wet the grease spot with ether, and then put a bit of white blotting-paper on each side of the paper, and apply the hot iron. If a stain remain after the grease has been extracted, dip a camel's-hair brush into pure spirits of wine and draw it over the edges of spot.

GRANULATED WHEAT BREAD.—Take a pint of actively-boiling water, salted slightly, and add enough fine granulated wheat flour to form a thin mush: to this stir in a quart of tepid water, a small piece of butter, two eggs, well beaten, one-half teacup of New Orleans molasses, and one-half cake compressed yeast dissolved in a little water; thicken it as stiff as it can be stirred with a spoon with cold-blast flour, and put each loaf in a separate pan; let it stand until it puffs up nicely, and then bake in a quick oven two hours.

MAKING FEATHER SCREENS.—Cut two rounds of card-board of the size you desire, by putting a plate upon it and drawing the circle. Cover one of the rounds with feathers, letting the ends stand out at least an inch and half. The feathers can be sewed or glued on. Put on another row in the same manner, and continue to do so until the round is filled up to the center. Cover the stem with a rosette or bow of ribbon. Cover the other circle with silk, and paste the two together. Add a handle of an old fan, and ornament with gilded paper.

DRY CELLARS.—A perfectly dry cellar may be made even below the natural water level of the ground, by using asphaltum. For this purpose the floor should be covered with bricks laid flat and perfectly level, over this a layer of melted asphaltum is poured, and on this bricks must be laid which have been dipped in hot asphaltum, so that there will be asphaltum in the joints between the bricks instead of mortar. Then the side walls around the cellar are built in the same way, with melted asphaltum between the bricks instead of mortarr.

The Pie-Eating Championship.

Mr. T. J. McNulty, who claims to be the champion pie-eater of America, published a challenge last week in the New York Sun, to which there have been several responses. Mr. John J. Weeks, of the United States Bung Factory, who signs himself the "Champion Sponge-Cake Eater," accepts Mr. McNulty's challenge to eat pies for the championship of the United States. Mr. Alfred Waltzinger, Champion Plum-pudding Eater, also accepts, provided the pies shall be apple pies, of the prescribed size, the prize to be the championship and $200. The Champion Pie-Eater of New Jersey, who fails to give his other name, is anxious to enter the ring, as is also Mr. George O. Striker, Champion Doughnut-Eater, who is "not over 17 years old, tall and lean." He stipulates that the pies shall be hot and home-made. Mr. P. J. Maloney who, so far as heard from, is not a champion of anything, will wager from $5 to $500 that he can win the pie-eating championship from Mr. McNulty; and Mr. Richard Dumphy, Champion Saratoga American Pie-Eater, will bet from $100 to $1,000 that he can consume more pie in thirty minutes than Mr. McNulty can. Last is Mr. Charles McClennon, who accepts "with the following proviso, viz: That the pies shall be of your dimensions as to size, material, etc., but four pies must be placed one on top of the other, each bite to be through four pies." Mr. McClennon is 16 years of age.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Munchausen Discounted.

A New-Berliner bought two dozen clams last week, took them home, and spread meal on them, thinking it was salt. The next evening, when he went down after his clams, he found that thirty-two rats, in search of meal, had been caught by tails and toes by twenty-three clams! The unoccupied clam must have bossed the job. One clam had three rats.—Utica Herald.

SABBATH READING.

Consider the Ravens.

Lord, according to Thy words,
I have considered Thy birds;
And I find their life good,
And better the better understood;
Sowing neither corn nor wheat,
They have all that they can eat;
Reaping no more than they sow,
They have all that they can stow;
Having neither barn nor store,
Hungry again, they eat more.

Considering I see, too, that they
Have a busy life, and plenty of play;
In the earth they dig their bills deep,
And work well, though they do not heap;
Then to play in the air they are not loath,
And their nests between are better than both.

But this is when there blow no storms;
When berries are plenty in winter, and worms;
When their feathers are thick, and oil is enough
To keep the cold out and the rain off;
there should come a long, hard frost,
Then it looks as Thy birds were lost.

But I consider further, and find
A hungry bird has a free mind;
He is hungry to-day, not to-morrow;
Steals no comfort, no grief doth borrow;
This moment is his, Thy will hath said it,
The next is nothing till Thou hast made it.

The bird has pain, but has no fear,
Which is the worst of any gear;
When cold and hunger and harm betide him,
He gathers them not to stuff inside him;
Content with the day's ill he has got,
He waits just, nor haggles with his lot;
Neither jumbles God's will
With driblets from his own still.

But next I see, in my endeavor,
Thy birds here do not live forever;
That cold or hunger, sickness or age,
Finishes their earthly stage;
The rook drops without a stroke,
And never gives another croak;
Birds lie here, and birds lie there,
With little feathers all astare;
And in Thy own sermon Thou
That the sparrow falls dost allow.

It shall not cause me any alarm,
For neither so comes the bird to harm,
Seeing our Father, Thou hast said,
Is by the sparrow's dying bed;
Therefore it is a blessed place,
And the sparrow in high grace.
It cometh, therefore, to this, Lord:
I have considered Thy word,
And henceforth will be Thy bird.
—George MacDonald.

The Last Four-and-Twenty Hours.

Did you ever notice the large space occupied in Matthew's gospel by the record of the last day of Christ's public ministry, and how much of all that we know of His mission and message, and the future of the world and of all men, we owe to the teaching of these four-and-twenty hours? Let me put together in a word what happened on that day.

It included the conversation with the chief priests and elders about the baptism of John, the parable of the householder that planted a vineyard and digged a wine-press, the parables of the kingdom of heaven, the controversy with the Herodians about the tribute money, the conversation with the Sadducees about the resurrection, with the Pharisee about the great commandment in the law, the silencing of the Pharisees by pointing to the 110th psalm, the warning to the multitude of the Scribes and Pharisees who were hypocrites, protracted and prolonged up to that wail of disappointed love, "Behold your house is left unto you desolate." And, as though that had not been enough for one day, when He is going home from the temple to find for a night in that quiet little home in Bethany the rest that he wants, as He rests wearily on the slopes of Olivet, the disciples come to him, "Tell us when all these things be? and what shall be the sign of Thy coming?" and there follows all that wonderful prophecy of the destruction of Jerusalem and the end of the world, the parable of the fig tree, the warning not to suffer the thief to come, and the promise of reward for the faithful and wise servant, the parable of the ten virgins, and in all probability the parable of the King with the talents; and the words that might be written in letters of fire, that tell us the final course of all things, and the judgment of life eternal and death everlasting! All that was the work of "one of the days of the Son of Man." Of Him it was prophesied long ago, "For Jerusalem's sake I will not rest;" and His life on earth, as well as His life in heaven, fulfills the prediction—the one by the toilsomeness of His service, the other by the unceasing energy of His exalted power. He toils unwearied here, He works unresting there.—Alexander McLaren, D. D.

The World's Verdict.

There is no higher tribute paid to Christianity than that which comes from its enemies. The Pharisees of a few secular papers pick up every instance of failure on the part of professors to walk worthy of their high vocation, and then tell us that Christianity is most admirable in itself, but that the churches are corrupt, because some of their members are proven to be bad! What is this but a confession that a consistent Christian is the highest style of man?—Christian Intelligencer.

Jesus in the Temple.

The passion of His soul to learn more of His Father's business—had led him naturally to the famed school in His Father's house, where the finest and most learned of His nation made the holy books, in which that Father's will was revealed, their lifelong study. The mystery of His own nature and of His relations to His Father in heaven was dawning on him more and more. His mother's words from time to time had daily a deeper and more wondrous significance, and His sinless spirit lived more and more in communion with unseen and endless realities. He had naturally, therefore, sought those who could open for Him the fountains of heavenly wisdom for which His whole being panted, and was the keenest listener, and the most eager in his questions, of all the group seated at their feet. The days would close when no further growth was possible, and then He would sit in the court of the same temple, as a teacher who needed no human help. As yet, however, He could not honor His Father more than by seeking, as a child, to know His holy word from its accredited expounders. Enthusiasm so pure and lofty in one so young, lighting up the beauty of such eyes and features, may well have filled the heart of the greatest Rabbi with wonder and delight.—Geikie's Life and Words of Christ.

THE wife of a printer in New Haven has applied for a divorce, on the ground that her husband had no style about him. He wouldn't brace up, had no dash, cut no figure, had no point, lived up to no rule, was a bad form and make-up, wasn't a man of letters or up to the period, was a poor type of the genus, was out of quoin, and couldn't impose on her any longer.—Chicago Commercial Advertiser.

POLITENESS IN EMPLOYES.

An Interesting Judicial Decision.

There are certain places where patience and politeness are a matter of necessity if one would succeed. The clerks in a retail dry-goods store, the officials of our railways, the employes of hotels, and, indeed, all whose business depends on the patronage of those who come in constant contact with them, must be affable if they would succeed.

The importance of this is well expressed in a recent decision of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, where a clerk of a hotel sued his employers for breach of contract, they having discharged him before the period covered by the contract had expired. Some of the points may seem strained, but the evidence was before the court, and, probably, showed that the familiarity spoken of was observed toward those to whom it was disagreeable and who did nothing to invite it. The court said:

"In this case the plaintiff was engaged for the term of one year to act as clerk in the defendant's hotel. At the expiry of one month he was discharged on the ground that his manner of address to guests and others was discourteous and insulting. He pleads competency to discharge the duties; that he never meant to be discourteous or insulting; that his manner of address was customary, and he now seeks to recover damages for breach of contract.

"It is admitted that he was in the habit of addressing guests and others either by their Christian or surnames only. To address a person by his Christian name, unless the parties have been intimately connected, socially and otherwise, is uncalled-for familiarity, and, therefore, insulting to the party so addressed. To address a party by his surname only shows a want of respect, and would imply that the party so addressed was beneath the party addressing; therefore, it is discourteous, and would be considered insulting. To speak of employers by their surnames only shows a great want of respect on the part of the employe toward the employer. As for custom, it has not been proven; on the contrary, it has been shown that it is not customary among people having any pretensions to gentility; it may be customary for a person to address his junior clerks or under servants by their Christian or surnames, but to address others so shows a want of respect, and the party so addressed would naturally evade contact in the future with any one who had previously so addressed him. The chief requirements of a clerk are to forward his employer's interests; that the plaintiff's action in this case tended to injure them has been clearly shown, no matter how unintentional it might have been on his part. It is just as easy to say Mr. Smith or Mr. Jones as Smith, Jones, Sam, or Jack; politeness costs nothing. In this case the want of it has cost the plaintiff the loss of his situation. Case dismissed with costs."

Identifying Themselves with Robeson.

The Republican leaders have heretofore boastfully referred to the Democratic habit of blundering as their surest reliance for success, and they are not altogether without reason for this confidence. But, if recent events furnish any indication for the future, the tables are likely to be turned, and the Democrats may commend the poisoned chalice to the lips of their opponents.

The Republicans of the House of Representatives have put themselves on record as sustaining the gross corruption and plunder of Secor Robeson and his confederates. First, Mr. Conger and Mr. Hale quickly objected to a report being made by the Naval Committee, though Mr. Whitthorne proposed that the views of the minority should have an equal hearing with those of the majority. Then, on Monday last, when he moved to print the report, with the resolutions and the dissenting opinions of the minority, and to fix a day for their consideration, the same parliamentary tactics were renewed.

But on this latter occasion the yeas and nays were called, and the record shows that every Republican present or paired was in favor of suppressing the report and testimony, and thus, to the extent of his ability, was in favor of sustaining Secor Robeson's shameless venality while Secretary of the Navy.

A party which, through its leaders and its recognized organs, assumes such a responsibility as this must be indifferent to public opinion and reckless as to consequences. No man has ever held high office in this country about whose character and conduct there is a more confirmed conviction, irrespective of party, than there is about Secor Robeson, so called from one of the early jobs with which he was proven to have been connected. The testimony before the different investigations, much of it furnished by his own correspondence and telegrams, is overwhelming as to his guilty collusion in all forms of jobbery. He demoralized the service, disgraced the department, and managed, in less than eight years, to destroy the navy and leave nothing but rotten hulks and rusted machinery to represent the enormous appropriations voted by Republican Congresses.

This is a crime for which the Republicans will be held answerable. They took out of the treasury first and last, including the valuable material which Robeson bartered away to favored contractors as old iron, more than $225,000,000, and when Robeson went out of the department he left it encumbered with debts, with illegal contracts for millions made while holding over temporarily under Hayes, and with a record of rascality such as never dishonored it before. In defending Robeson the Republican leaders, like Hale, Conger, and the rest of them, identify themselves with his plundering career.—New York Sun.

VIVISECTION.

Dreadful Lengths to Which It Is Carried in Europe—Some of the Experiments of the Barbarians of Science

[London Cor. Chicago Times.]

The daily press, which has within a short time made it its business to look into physiological laboratories, has revealed a new hell invented by doctors and physiologists for animals. Only of late years has the practice arisen to its present enormity in England. As among the vivisectors and their friends may be reckoned the habit of representing their experiments as few in number, pursued only by highly-gifted scientific inquirers thoughout Europe, and quite insignificant in amount compared to the beneficent results which may be anticipated from them, let us take a passing glance at some of the "scientific" experiments going on in foreign laboratories.

These few examples are picked here and there from the vivisectors' own records and hand-books of the latest publications.

You must know, in the first place, that before being brought into the chamber of torture the animals are usually made to fast eighteen hours, that the process of digestion may not in any way disturb the experiment. The "curare," which is sometimes used, is the arrow-poison of the Indians on the Orinoco, which, when infused into the blood of an animal organism, completely paralyzes the system of the nerves of motion, making the animal powerless and, therefore, actually a living corpse, while its nerves of sensation remain intact; in fact their sensitiveness becomes doubled. In this motionless condition, artificial breathing being kept up by an apparatus, the living body is lacerated piecemeal, and kept thus for days in the most fearful agony. Prof. Feye of Edinburgh, having once fastened a beautiful spaniel by all its feet, attached it still more surely by a stout thong which he put through the nostrils of the animal after he had made a hole through the nose with an iron instrument. He then cut open the chest and the belly to show his pupils the separate intestinal organs. The expression of agony when the animal showed its white teeth and tried to resist was, according to the account of an eye-witness, most horrible, for fearful pain must have been caused by the least movement to the nostrils, so sensitive in the dog. Prof. Bracket, of Paris, in trying to ascertain the limits of a dog's attachments, first dug out the eyes of his dog. Later he destroyed its organ of hearing, and then he tortured it in all possible ways. The result was that, in spite of it all, the dog still licked his hands. Prof. Brinillard bored through the skull of a dog in two places with a thick iron bore, and inserted a red-hot iron into its brain. The dog howled and shrieked for six days almost without cessation, although they tried with repeated blows to quiet it, so that at last it had to be killed. After this Brinillard repeated the same experiment with a young, lively and tractable dog, which he threw into the river after perforating its brain, that he might see whether it could survive in this condition. The animal did not get rid of its misery for sixteen days. Dr. Goltz, of Strasbourg, undertook the study of the mutilation of the brain in order to overthrow the false theories of the celebrated physiologist Flourens. This professor introduced a new method by which large portions of the brain were torn away and washed out, by means of heated spring water, after the skull had been pierced in several places. The crater-shaped cavities thus formed were washed out. A dog with five holes bored in the head, and with the loss of nearly half the brain, lived a month. As Dr. Goltz says: "We, as well as other observers, have lost a large number of animals through inflammation of the brain. No one has succeeded in destroying the brain so extensively and handling it so roughly, while still preserving the creature's life, as myself." (What a scientific achievement!) "It does not often happen that two physiologists are of one opinion in matters affecting the brain." Thus he goes on: Fifty-one dogs had portions of the brain washed out of the head, which had been pierced in several places; this repeated three times, the creatures mutilated and their behaviour studied for months. "Interesting" experiment on a delicately formed little bitch; left side of the brain extracted; wire pincers on the hind feet. Doleful whining, the little animal began again to howl piteously. Soon afterward foamed at the mouth. The same dog operated upon again (date given). Soon after became blind; died of inflammation of the brain. The dissected brain resembled a "lately-hoed potato-field." "These mutilated animals, no longer able to scratch themselves, twist about in the most ludicrous fashion," says this grim humorist. He speaks of two dogs rendered imbecile by loss of part of the brain, and says: "The awkward movements of one gave the impression of a jack-pudding," and so on. Some of the dogs had attacks of madness after the operation and died in a few days. In conclusion, Prof. Goltz refers to the altogether unsatisfactory results of all the cruel experiments, and proposes a series of fresh experiments in order to clear up the latest doubts. I must not forget the experiments of burning, in which Dr. Wertheim, of Vienna, killed thirty dogs. After giving chloroform, he poured boiling water nine times over five of them, and he set light to the other twenty-five nine times, one after the other, with turpentine. By these means the chest and belly of the first five were boiled, and of the other twenty-five roasted. The revolting cruelty of this experiment consisted in this, that some of the dogs remained alive for five days afterward without its occurring to Dr. Wertheim that a speedy death would be a benefit to the animals, which had recovered their consciousness and were covered with most painful burns. Some of the experimenters have tried to produce artificial "Siamese twins," and for this purpose they have tied two animals together, removed the skin of each at the points of contact, and bound together certain organs of the two animals, and thus produced a common circulation of the blood such as exists in monstrosities. What advantage can science and medicine have drawn from these experiments? Making artificial fistulas and tubercles in the stomach and lungs of dogs; giving dogs emetics, then tying up their throats to render vomiting impossible; inflaming the spinal cord of an animal by passing a thread through it; dividing nerves of the most sensitive character; dessecting the nerves of the spinal cord; exciting the most violent agonies in animals by injecting almost every kind of chemical or foreign substance, however deadly or caustic, into the jugular or other veins of animals; screwing them down in the grip of iron machines, while the operator laid bare to the heart, the liver, the brain, or other interior vitals; again letting them free, and leaving them in such mangled condition for weeks, in one case twenty days, and in another ninety, then trying it on again, this time resulting in death. And after all the ghastly records of such experiments, the bare recital of which would fill many volumes, we have to fall back upon the results obtained by the human practitioners of the healing art, in their reports of clinical and pathological cases.

INDIANA LEGISLATURE.

THURSDAY, Feb. 20.—SENATE.—Bills passed: Providing for the protection of game, and defining the time and manner in which the same may be taken, killed, sold, and otherwise disposed of; authorizing cities of less than 7,000 inhabitants to surrender their charters upon the vote of two-thirds of the taxpayers, both male and female; providing for payment of special Judges out of the salary of regular Judges; to prevent the practice of resorting to distant courts to oppress citizens of Indiana....An effort to lay aside the regular order to take up the Apportionment bill failed....Mr. Comstock's bill allowing husband and wife to testify in all actions except those for seduction, and Senator Kent's Drainage bill were ordered engrossed.

HOUSE.—A statement of the condition of the Northern prison and a communication from the Governor on Federal affairs were received and referred....The Senate bill legalizing the acknowledgment of deeds made by notaries public after the expiration of their commissions was passed....The remainder of the day was consumed in committee of the whole upon the General Appropriation bill, which was ordered engrossed.

FRIDAY, Feb. 21.—SENATE.—Bills passed: To admit feeble-minded children into the Soldiers' Orphans' Home; amending the Embezzlement act; amending the code so as to allow courts to appoint receivers in vacation; defining libel and making it a crime to publish the same; regulating the tolls on roads; amending the act concerning trusts and powers; in relation to change of proposed line and termini of railroads.

HOUSE.—The Senate Interest bill was taken up and passed, after amending it so as to reduce the rate of interest to 6 per cent. absolutely....The following bills were passed: Providing for the election of Trustees of benevolent institutions; concerning trespassing animals; providing for appeals from county boards; providing for relocation of county seats....The General Appropriation bill and the Metropolitan Police bill were passed....The committee's Fee and Salary bill was reported. It reduces the salary of Governor to $5,000.

SATURDAY, Feb. 22.—SENATE.—Bills introduced: Making it unlawful to kill certain game at certain periods of the year; amending the act for the incorporation of cities; providing for the appointment of State Surveyors; amending the Fee and Salary law; amending the Assessment law; amending the code; reducing all fees of county officers 30 per cent....The following bills were passed: Making it a misdemeanor for a voter to accept a bribe; requiring the blowing of whistles at the crossings of all railroads and turnpikes and other roads.

HOUSE.—Bills passed: Making it illegal to contract for attorneys' fees in votes; authorizing planting of hedges five feet inside the line of highways; making it unlawful for breechy animals to run at large; governing the election of Supervisors of Highways; allowing householders to sit on Grand Juries; authorizing the payment to legal heirs of funds derived from the sale of lands supposed to have reverted to the State; exempting growing crops from sale on execution; relative to filing claims against estates; defining the powers and rights of warehousemen; to prevent the sale of adulterated fertilizers....Bills were introduced: Authorizing the creation of county hospitals; codifying the school laws; relating to the publication of delinquent lists; concerning the collection of interest on the school fund; relating to reports to be made by insurance companies and payment of taxes by such companies.

MONDAY, Feb. 24.—SENATE.—The bills authorizing Evansville to change its name to Lamasco, if a majority of voters so decide, and defining certain portions of the act for the relocation of county seats were passed....The Legislative and Congressional Apportionment bills were ordered engrossed, after a long debate.

HOUSE.—A short and uninteresting session of the House took place, when it was discovered that no quorum was present, and the House adjourned....A resolution was adopted instructing the Auditor of State to inform the House of the amount of fees received from foreign insurance companies and the disposition made of them.

TUESDAY, Feb. 25.—SENATE.—Bills passed: Declaring husband and wife competent witnesses in all cases except for seduction; establishing a court of claims to pass on and audit all claims against the State, and abolishing one of the Marion Superior Courts....Mr. Langdon's resolution in regard to apportionment was indefinitely postponed.

HOUSE.—Willard's Fee and Salary bill was taken up and considered in the committee of the whole. The following salaries were fixed: Governor, $4,000; Governor's Private Secretary, $1,000; Secretary of State, $2,500, and all fees to be paid into the State treasury....Pending the further discussion of the bill a committee of ladies appeared to address the House on the subject of female suffrage. At the conclusion of their addresses complimentary resolutions were passed and the House adjourned.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 26.—SENATE.—The report of a committee was adopted, recommending the passage of a bill authorizing the Governor to appoint President and Board of Directors of the benevolent institutions. This was only done by the casting vote of the Lieutenant Governor....Bills were passed: Establishing an asylum for feeble-minded children; fixing the time for voting on the constitutional amendments at the April election of 1880....Bills were introduced repealing the present apportionment laws and amending the act for the incorporation of mining companies.

HOUSE.—Committee reports on the State House investigation were presented. The majority report, signed by Tully, Lehman, Herod, Gordon, and Dalton, exonerates the Commissioners, indorses the plan, says it can be built within $2,000,000, and that the contracts with architect and builders are complete and legally sufficient. Chairman Willard, as a minority, reports that the Commissioners should be exonerated from all taint of corruption, but he finds that the plans of May were inferior and imperfect when adopted, and that the course pursued by the board worked great injustice to competing architects. A second minority report was submitted by Mr. Overmeyer, which agrees with Willard's report in the main, but holds the evidence to be conflicting as to the time necessary to erect the building. The majority report was adopted....The remainder of the day was consumed in discussion upon the Fee and Salary bill.

A GIRL can't throw a stone with any marked success, but she can toss her tresses most adroitly.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, MAR. 6, 1879

THEODORE REED, - - Editor.

The following extracts from the speech of Hon. J. H. Baker, representative in congress from this district, denouncing the proposition to subsidize John Roach's steamship line, we consider good democratic doctrine, and altogether different from the well defined policy of the republican party, the leaders of which are always ready to take some of "the pork" as an inducement to support every subsidy and steal submitted to congress. Mr. Baker said; * * * * * * The pending bill directs the Post-master-General to contract for a time not exceeding ten years for carrying the mails once each month, commencing not later than July, 1879, from New York, by way of Norfolk, Virginia, to Rio de Janeiro, and once each month, commencing not later than March, 1880, from New Orleans, by way of Galveston, Texas, to Rio de Janeiro and return. It provides that these lines shall consist of American built and owned iron screw-steamships of not less than three thousand tons. It provides that such lines shall receive $30 per mile, or an aggregate of $150,000 for each line. It provides that each line shall be contracted for simultaneously, and neither contract shall go into effect unless both services shall be contracted for and established.

These provisions are very striking. I do not intimate that the provision was purposely drawn in the interest of any individual. Of course it is purely accidental that there is only one ship-owner in this country who owns vessels exactly filling the requirements of the proposed law. No ship owned by a citizen of the United States, and floating its flag could be permitted to carry the handful of mail between this country and Brazil. No wooden steamship could be trusted to perform this service. No steamship unless it uses a screw would answer. And a pouch or two of mail matter could never be trusted in a ship of less than three thousand tons burden. Of course gentlemen who vote for this subsidy can see as plainly as I do that a bag or two of mail matter could never be intrusted to any ship unless it was American built and owned, provided with a screw and having a carrying capacity of three thousand tons or more. Nothing less could screw open the vaults of the Treasury and deplete it to the amount of $3,300,000.

Gentlemen protest that this is not meant as a subsidy to John Roach. Now I have nothing to urge against this gentleman. I am told that he is a very capable, upright, and useful member of society. I am told that as a ship-builder he has amassed a great fortune. I am rejoiced that such should be the case; but I confess that in all this I see nothing which should move any representative of the people to lavish on him a subsidy of nearly three and a half million of dollars. It will hardly do to urge that this subsidy is not intended for Mr. Roach. The phraseology of the bill exactly fits the line of ships which he now runs between this country and Brazil. He is already receiving a subsidy from the Emperor of Brazil of $115,000 a year for running this line. No one else in this country, so far as I am advised, now owns a line of steamships such as this bill requires, and no such line of steamships can be built in this country before July 1, 1879, when the execution of the service is to commence.

If this large sum of money is to be voted to John Roach, why is it not done openly without any disguise? It is put in the bill as compensation for carrying the mails. Our mails are now carried at a cost not exceeding $1,500 per annum and they can be carried next year for a like amount. No public necessity exists for paying at least $3 for every letter which will pass between this country and Brazil. * * * * * * Stripped of all disguises, it is a bald and naked proposition to put nearly three and a half millions of dollars into the coffers of a private individual to enable him to run two lines of steamships between this country and Brazil to aid in building up American commerce. How build it up? At the expense of a bankrupt treasury and form the earnings of the overburdened tax-payers. After paying these millions, will the tax-payer be able to purchase coffee or any other article of Brazilian production cheaper than he now procures it? No; they will cost him the same. Will he procure for his farm products any better price? No; because they are carried now by foreign ship-masters as cheap as John Roach will carry them on his subsidized lines. How are the people of the United States, then, as a whole, benefited? Nowise, except in the consciousness that their letters are being carried beneath the American flag, in an American-built iron screw-steamship, at a cost of $3 each. I am opposed on principle to taking the people's money and donating it to individuals or corporations to enable them to carry on a business which cannot be carried on without such aid. Why should you take the earnings of the farmer to build up the ship-master? Why not as well tax the farmer to build up a cotton-factory, a woolen-mill, or a brewery, in the nearest village or city? Each rests on the same foundation, and each is equally vicious.

But it is not true that it will aid in restoring our commerce. I believe it will have exactly the opposite effect. There are quite a number of American ships now engaged in the Brazilian trade. Their owners have manfully struggled under the depressing influences of business stagnation and an irredeemable currency to keep the American flag afloat. Now when the country has returned to a specie basis, now when prices have reached a point as low as they were before the war when our commerce whitened every sea, now when new life and hope spring up in every breast, it is proposed to subsidize two lines of steamships between this country and Brazil. How can you expect to build up your commerce by subsidizing John Roach so that he can, and doubtless will, drive every other American ship owner out of the Brazilian trade? Will you build up commerce by driving every man who does not own a subsidized steamship line from the ocean? How can you expect and American ship-owner to compete with this subsidized line in the carrying trade between this country and Brazil? No, gentlemen, this scheme will not build up our commerce. It will destroy what little we have, and it will put it out of the power of American enterprise to build up any legitimate commerce until this proposed monopoly expires. Beneath the baleful shadow of these Government subsidized lines American commerce and ship-building alike must be paralyzed, if not destroyed.

The Democrats and Greenbackers of Michigan have united in the nomination of John B. Shipman for judge of the supreme court; Geo. P. Sanford and Henry Whiting for regents of the State University. The following is the platform adopted by both conventions:

1. We deprecate the tendency in our national affairs toward centralization of power and its corrupt use.

2. We believe in the strict equality of all the states and all classes of people before the law, and that our Government should be in truth and in fact a government of the people, by the people and for the people.

3. We are opposed to all further allowance of war claims.

4. We demand that all money, whether paper or metallic, shall be issued by the general Government only, and made a full legal tender for all debts, public and private, except as to such contracts, heretofore made, as were originally payable in coin.

5. We are opposed to all banks of issue, and demand that greenbacks shall be substituted in place of national bank bills, and that the coinage of gold and silver shall be placed in all respects upon the same footing.

6. We believe that money should be issued in a sufficient volumne to meet the requests of business; that the Government should regulate the volume of money by preserving a uniform ratio between the supply and demand, and that this delicate and important power should never be delegated to banks, corporations or individuals.

7. We are opposed to all monopolies and demand that the public domain be reserved to the tillers of the soil, and not squandered upon railroads and other corporations.

Advice to the 'Frisco Secessionists.

(Memphis Avalanche.)

The California hoodlums who threaten to secede if the President veto the Chinese Bill, and set up an Occidental Republic, should not be restrained. Let them turn themselves loose. There are several survivors of an attempt to organize a Confederacy in 1861—an attempt that meant business for about four years—who are now ready to sit down calmly and observe the process of manufacturing that little three-for-a dime Occidental Government. Go right along, boys—don't get frightened. It's just as e-e-asy. We all know how it is ourselves. Pitch in.

W. W. Angell, the defaulting Secretary of the Pullman Car Co., appeared before the criminal court at Chicago and plead guilty of two indictments, larceny and embezzlement. He was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. Of the $125,000 in bonds and currency appropriated by Angell, the company has recovered $81,000

The final adjourment of the forty fifth congress at noon, on the 4th inst with passing the executive and army appropriation bills, has caused the President to call an extra session of the forty-sixth congress, which will commence on Tuesday the 18th, of this month.

The President's veto of the Chinese bill has caused great excitement in California. At some places flags were displayed at half mast. The President was burned in effigy in one town. Mass meetings are being called, and bloody work is predicted.

The President vetoed the Chinese bill Saturday on the ground that it was an infraction of Presidential and Senatorial prerogatives, and an act of bad faith. The House failed to pass the bill over the veto, by a vote of 109 to 95.

W. B. Vickers, president of the Colorado Press Association, has extended an invitation to the Press Association of Indiana to join the former in an excursion to Pike's Peak on the 4th of July next.

The Potter committee has submitted majority and minority reports, which we hope to be able to give in full next week.

A committee from the Ohio legislature is now visiting the benevolent institutions of Indiana.

Angola.

—Commissioners court is in session this week.

—Mrs. Woodhull's health still continues poor.

—Elmer Carpenter spent a few days in Waterloo last week.

—Miles Waterman, of Waterloo, was in town last Thursday.

—William H. Hollister, of Butler is in town visiting his many friends.

—Misses Cora Woodhull and Lizzie Wood were visiting in Ft. Wayne last Wednesday.

—There was no meeting in the Disciple church on last Sunday, the pastor was in Toledo, O.

—John M Somers, Esq., and Miss Carrie Cutter, of Waterloo, were in town over Sunday.

—Dr. Sol. A. Wood has returned from Ft. Wayne, where he has been attending the Medical college.

—We are afraid Mr. J.U. will be disappointed in getting the post office. In fact we are certain of it.

—There were some eight or ten persons joined the Literary Society in this place, on Monday evening.

—A number of the boys at this place and vicinity talk of going to Leadville, Col. Better stay at home, boys.

—If that young ex-law student don't quit making obscene remarks about the young ladies of Waterloo and this place we will publish his name in full.

—Don, we did not think you would get scared as you did on Tuesday evening. That goes to prove you are a coward, as everybody tells you you are, but still you will not believe it.

—The Angola Herald issued a very neat Extra last Saturday, as an advertisement for the cantata this week and the enterprising business firms of this place. The Herald is taking the lead in this county.

—The Angola Philharmonic Society will render the grand spectacular opera entitled, "Ruth, the Gleaner," at Concert Hall, on Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week, under the management of Prof. W. H. Burgett.

A REPORTER.

St. Joe Items.

—Hon. S. S. Shutt has returned to the State Capital.

—Venes' school has closed and everything is quiet at Kinderhook.

—John Widney is confined to his bed with lung fever.

—Since our last three more of the old citizens of DeKalb have been called away by death: Samuel Brown, of Concord; Father Monroe, of Newville, in his 78th year, and the mother of Mrs. J. Malone, of this neighborhood, in her 84th year.

—The winter term of school in district number 7 closed Thursday last. Our school under the management of Miss Josie Thomas has been a decided success. Miss Thomas has been solicited to teach our summer term and has promised unless something better offers.

—In last week's items mention was made of the sale of some corn shellers which looked a little shakey. The shellers arrived at the R. R. station last night all right, and are pronounced by competent judges to be just the thing. The agent, L. S. Saylor, expects to canvass the county. We wish him success in his new undertaking.

—It is claimed for O. H. that he is one of the most accommodating men that Sodom affords. It appears that at the singing school held at the Widney school house they have made it a rule to charge spectators 10 cents for admission. It sometimes happens that persons get in when the door keeper (Baker) is absent, and then refuse to pay. O. H. is always ready with the cash to pay for all such delinquents, and then have a little fun at their expense. Some of them who would like to steal their part of the singing school can explain what fun it is to have O. H. pay for them, and then give them the benefit of the expose. A. A. A.

Butler Township Items.

—Oh, how the sawlogs do roll in!

—Our friend J. P. Wyant is getting a large number of saw logs at his mill in Butler Center.

—Mr. Robert Taylor is running a large dry goods and grocery store, and our clever friend Dr. Kester is clerking for him.

—Married at the residence of 'Squire Harvey, Thursday evening, Feb. 27th, Mr. Jefferson Clark to Miss Dorotha Cochran, both of DeKalb county.

—Our Friend C. B. Jones, at Cedar Creek is running his saw mill in full blast with the largest amount of logs we ever saw at one mill in this section. He has the mill yard full and overflowing and the station ground nearly full.

J. H.

Personal.

Steele & Price, of Chicago and St. Louis, we are pleased to say, are among the few who make perfectly pure articles. Their Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder and Special Flavoring Extracts have been approved by the United States Government.

The Peple Want Proof.

There is no medicine perscribed by physicians, or sold by druggists, that carries such evidence of its success and superior virtue as Boschee's German Syrup for severe coughs, colds settled on the breast, consumption, or any disease of the throat and lungs. A proof of that fact is that any person afflicted can get a sample bottle for 10 cents, and try its superior effect before buying the regular size at 75 cents. It has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderful cures are astonishing everyone that uses it. Three doses will relieve any case. Try it. Sold by W. McIntyre & Son.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe, with full directions for preparing and using, in German, French, or English. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. Sherar, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y. 5-eow 6-m.

TUTT'S PILLS!

A NOTED DIVINE SAYS
THEY ARE WORTH THEIR WEIGHT in GOLD
READ WHAT HE SAYS:

DR. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last spring your Pills were recommended to me; I used them (but with little faith). I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and I have gained forty pounds solid flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

REV. R. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

A TORPID LIVER

is the fruitful source of many diseases, such as Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Dysentery, Billious Fever, Ague and Fever, Jaundice, Piles, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint, Colic, etc.

Tutt's Pills exert a powerful influence on the Liver, and will with certainty relieve that important organ from disease, and restore its normal functions.

The rapidity with which persons take on flesh, while under the influence of these pills, of itself indicates their adaptability to nourish the body, hence their efficacy in curing nervous debility, dyspepsia, wasting of the muscles, sluggishness of the liver, chronic constipation, and imparting health and strength to the system.

CONSTIPATION.

Only with regularity of the bowels can perfect health be enjoyed. When the constipation is of recent date, a single dose of TUTT'S PILLS will suffice, but if it has become habitual, one pill should be taken every night, gradually lessening the frequency of the dose until a regular daily movement is obtained, which will soon follow.

Sold Everywhere, 25 Cents.
OFFICE, 30 MURRAY ST., NEW YORK.

45 Years Before the Public.

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

CELEBRATED

LIVER PILLS

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred when few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

1879 SPRING 1879
Messrs. Root & Company's
CARPET DEPARTMENT!

Our constantly increasing business in this department warrants our offering to the public this spring a much larger variety and assortment than ever before.

PRICES THIS SPRING

Are lower than ever before, and parties who have delayed refurnishing their houses can now do it with economy and a certainty that they will never buy carpets any cheaper than they are at present.

The Choicest Designs Tapestry Brussels Carpets, 75c., 85c., 90c., $1.00 per yard.
The Choicest Designs Extra Super Ingrain Carpets, 75 cents per yard
All Wool Ingrain Carpets, 50, 60 and 65c.
Single and Double, Cotton Chain Carpets, 25, 30 and 35c per yard.
Hemp, Cottage, Rag and Dutch Carpets, 12 1-2, 15, 18 and 20c per yard.

New lines of Upholstery Goods, Curtain Goods, Floor Oil Cloths, Mattings, Rugs, Stair Rods, Cornices, Fixtures, Shades, Hollands, Picture cords, Tassels, &c.

N. B.—Parties desiring any repairing done to Curtains and Cornices, or to have Carpets relaid, will find our MR. BARRETT a competent and superior workman, who will attend promptly to any orders we are favored with.

ROOT & COMPANY,
FORT WAYNE, IND.

Trade Mark
DR. PRICE'S CREAM
BAKING POWDER
AND
SPECIAL FLAVORING EXTRACTS.

Eminent Chemists and Physicians certify that these goods are free from adulteration, richer, more effective, produce better results than any others, and that they use them in their own families.

DR. PRICE'S
UNIQUE PERFUMES are the Gems of All Odors.
TOOTHENE. An agreeable, healthful Liquid Dentifrice.
LEMON SUGAR. A Substitute for Lemons.
EXTRACT JAMAICA GINGER. From Pure Root.

STEELE & PRICE'S LUPULIN YEAST GEMS.
The Best Dry Hop Yeast in the World.
STEELE & PRICE, Manfrs., Chicago, St. Louis, and Cincinnati.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examinations begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNS Co. Sup't.

—COMPOUND ELIXIR OF BUCHU for diseases of the kidneys, bladder and urinary organs is the best remedy known for rheumatism. It removes the cause, and effects a permanent cure in all cases. Sold by DAVENPORT the DRUGGIST. tf.

For letter-heads, bill-heads statemants, or any kind of fancy printing call at this office.

Sick Headache

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively Cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, &c. They regulate the Bowels and prevent Constipation and Piles. The smallest and easiest to take. Only one pill a dose. 40 in a vial. Purely Vegetable. Price 25 cents. Sold by all Druggists.

CARTER MEDICINE CO., Prop'rs, Erie, Pa.
Five Vials by mail for one dollar.

To Township Trustees and School Boards.

We keep in stock a full line of copyrighted Records and Blanks for the use of Trustees, School Directors and road Supervisors, which we offer at low figures. We have the most complete system ever introduced in the state. For simplicity our Records excel all others. Call and examine the goods.

Administrator's Sale of Real Estate.

NOTICE is hereby given that by virtue of an order of the Circuit Court of DeKalb county, in the state of Indiana, the undersigned administrator of the estate of Enos Weaver deceased, will offer for sale at auction on the premises, on SATURDAY the 15th day of MARCH, 1879, the following real estate: Town lot number eighty-five (85) and one hundred and forty-eight (148), in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county Indiana. Also the north half of the north east quarter of section thirty (30), in township thirty-four (34), north, range thirteen (13), east, in DeKalb county, Indiana; except a piece out of said tract of land heretofore set off to the widow of said decedent and bounded as follows: Commencing at the south-east corner of said tract of land and running thence west one hundred and twenty-one and two-fifths (121 2-5) rods, thence north twenty (20) rods, thence east to the east boundary line of said tract, thence south to the place of beginning, said piece excepted containing fifteen and two-fifths (15 2-5) acres.

TERMS OF SALE:—One third cash, the residue in equal payments at twelve and eighteen months, with notes at interest, waiving benefit of appraisement laws, and secured by mortgage on said premises.

WILLIAM LESSIG, Adm'r.
8-4w
February 19th, 1879.

J. BRINKERHOFF,
BOUNTY AND PENSION AGENT.

LAND WARRANTS

Obtained for Soldiers, their Widows and Heirs for services in the Revolutionary War, the Indian Wars, War of 1812 and the Mexican War. Bounties for Soldiers', their Widows and Heirs for services in the war of 1861. Also Pensions for Soldiers' Widows and Heirs for military services in any war of the United States. Many soldiers now drawing pesions are entitled to

INCREASE OF PENSION.

If you think you are more disabled now than when you received your pension certificate, give me a call. Having been engaged in this business for the past 20 years I hope to render satisfaction. Counsel in regard to all claims against the Government, gratis.

J. BRINKERHOFF,
Main street, Auburn, Ind.

COMPETITION

Is the life of trade; therefore

Henry Gugerli!

Has opened a new Merchant Tailor establishment, in which he makes a specialty of

Ladies' Cloakings!

Which will be cut and fit, and made up if desired. For Gents' wear a

FULL LINE OF PIECE GOODS!

Always in stock to select from, at

Five to Ten Dollars

a suit less than the same goods can be bought for elsewhere. A full suit made to order, in the latest style, ready to put on, in

24 Hours Notice!

Remember that all work is done in the latest style, and satisfaction is guaranteed in every particular. 42-6m.

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,
Rogers & Bro! Silverware,
A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SETS

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry neatly repaired on short notice.

Auburn Courier.

—We have a lengthy communication from Mr. John Lowe in reply to Mr. Thurston's articles concerning "School No. 4," in which Mr. Lowe denies that he tried to mislead the public in his former communications. As we have given notice to the parties that Mr Thurston's articles would close the school controversy so far as publication in the COURIER is concerned, we do not feel disposed to publish anything further in relation to the school, but as Mr. Thurston has referred to parties and matters not connected with the school, and not mentioned in Mr. Lowe's former articles, we think it but justice to parties mentioned to publish that part of Mr. Lowe's last communication, which is in reply to Mr. Thurston's statements concerning matters not necessarily connected with the school. The following are extracts from Mr. Lowe's communication now before us:

"I wish to reply to some of his absurd statements. Mr. Thurston seems to think in necessary in his chain of evidence, to unearth a little scuffle that J. P. Wagner and the Noragon boys had in 1877—the case was taken to court and there compromised, and I think ought not again to have been brought before the public, but as he has brought the matter forward again, I will state that two of the Noragons in passing J. P. Wagner's house one evening with a team and wagon and one holding a hog in the wagon, were assailed in some way by the said Wagner. The public can see the boys were not in a position to assail any one, but the scuffle commenced. They let the hog and team loose during the scuffle. The third Noragon came along to see the hog weighed; he tried to part them, and in the scuffle they all got, perhaps, some slight scratching. That is about the substance of Mr. Thurston's attempted murder that he palmed off on the public. I can go farther back than Mr. Thurston, and believe I will be sustained by the better classes of the surrounding neighbors by stating that the Wagner family have kept the whole neighborhood in a ferment for the past twenty years by vilifying first one family of the Noragon's and then another, from them to some other neighbor for a circuit of two miles. As a sample I will say that immediately after the teachers institute, on the 14th of last December, Mr. Wagner, in the presence of the teachers and others from different parts of the township, said in substance that the two Noragons, living west of me, were always quarreling or fighting, and that I had to be called upon to part them. There is not a particle of truth about it so far as I am concerned, as I have never, to my knowledge, been there when they were quarling or fighting, and I have never been called upon to intercede or part them. * * *

He informs the public of the relationship of the Noragon's to me, but fails to tell that his branch of the human family are also related to the Noragon's. I believe his father-in-law, J. P. Wagner, and the Noragon boys mother are cousins. * * * * *

With regard to his greenback insinuations I will say, I would rather have greenbacks for my use than either gold or silver coin, and I am willing to exchange with him at par any coin I have or may have in the near future. I have never to my knowledge heard Mr. Kepler make the remark alledged to him, and he wishes me to say there is no truth in the statement. * * *

He goes on to tell how Mr. Kepler and Mr. Haverstock had a talk by the school house, and how Mr. Kepler handed Mr. Thurston a paper, a copy of which he says he gives. Mr. Thurston lives two miles from Mr. Kepler, and how he should know the feeling as neighbers between Mr. Kepler and Mr. Haverstock is more than I can tell. My farm adjoins both of theirs, I see them frequently and I think there is no harder feelings between them than some other neighbors who are bothered with each others stock, &c. * * *

The concluding portion of Mr. Thurston's communication is full of the vilest slanders, in fact this is a fair specimen of the slanders that the Wagner family have circulated (as previously stated) upon the surrounding neighbors, having known them myself nearly twenty years, and most of that time adjoining farms, the balance of the time not more than a mile away. I think I know whereof I write, and I am willing to be judged by my neighbors, confident that I would get nearly an unanimous support outside of their immediate family or a few of their dupes. I believe their neighbors are casehardened and pay no further attention to their slanders, and in their desperation are trying to get the infestion started in our neighborhood, but so far unavailing. Like the lava from the center of a burning mountain that runs down its sides to the ocean, it may seethe and hiss for a time, but finally cools off, so we remain as we started a united district."

Roll of Honor.

The following is a list of the pupils in a school composed of twenty-eight scholars, who were neither absent nor tardy during the month ending Feb. 26, '79. Ida Ober, Amanda Ober, Irilla Irvin, Wilbur Hawver, Benjamin Hawver, Samuel Hawver, Charles Smith, Perry Irvin, Charles Dudley, John Stonestreet, Charles Gragg, Miles Weller. Average Daily attendance, 22½.

T. S MERRICA, Teacher.

Local and Miscellaneous

—A new piano in town.

—West's pills cure dyspepsia.

—Tramps are numerous this week.

—Easter Sunday on the 13 of April.

—The grand jury found—"our neighbors."

—Mrs. Emily Dills is among the afflicted.

—For building hardware go to Kiblinger & Co's.

—"Forward and salute," at Easley's Hall to-night.

—Sleighing was pretty good several days this week.

—Mrs. F. E. Davenport is reported as being quite sick.

—For doors, sash and glass, go to Kiblinger & Co's.

—Go to McQuiston & Ralston's for good trunks—cheap 10-3w.

—Our streets present a business-like appearance this week.

—Mr. S. T. Galloway has removed to Orlan, Steuben county.

—Austin appeared before commissioners Court on u—sell.

—Our town was crowded with teams and people last Saturday.

—Prof. Gleason, the "short hand man' has bid adieu to this burg.

—If March don't go out like a "lamb" it won't be the "lions' fault.

—Give Houston a call when you want a nice tender steak or roast.

—Hank Little has been suffering with a sore throat for several days.

—Four tin pails and one dipper for one dollar at Kiblinger & Co's.

—Mrs. Sherman Hollister is in very critical condition at this writing.

—Miss Sadie Hollister returned Monday from a brief visit in Butler.

—The protracted meeting at the Lu theran church is still in progress.

—We would like a few loads of dry wood on subscription immediately.

—For some unknown reason the Auburn Daily did not show up Monday.

—The Fort Wayne Commercial has "gone where the woodbine twineth."

—Parties from abroad are visiting with the family of Dr. T. G. Matheny.

—We noticed J. O. Powell, of the Garrett Herald, on the street Tuesday.

—Notice the answer to Sam., Pete & Max's conundrum in another column.

—We learn that the measels are prevailing to some extent in this vicinity.

—Buy the Kidder barn door rollers the best in use, Kiblinger & Co. sole agents.

—Several of our boys were invited to appear before the Grand Jury this term.

—Go to Kiblinger & Co. for tinware, they are selling at manufacturers prices.

—Cured hams, shoulders and sides of the very best quality at Houstons meat market.

—Mrs. Geo. Nagley, living two miles west of town, died very suddenly Sunday night.

—We understand that Rev. Johnson will be retained by the Presbyterian congregation.

—Kiblinger & Co. sell hardware.

—Again the population was increased a Little, last Saturday evening, and Hank is happy.

—Byron Rainier left for Warsaw Tuesday where he will engage in the lumber business.

—Miss Frankie Ryan returned home Monday from a several days visit at Hicksville, Ohio.

—Houstons meat market is always well supplied with fresh and cured meats of all kinds.

—Mens' hats at from 50c to $3.50 boys hats at from 25c to $1.00 at McQuiston & Ralston's. 10-3w.

—John Francis Kline has again returned to the city, and will "stick type' for the Daily News.

—The Neoteric club has decided to close their dances for the season on the 20th, of this month.

—Fresh beef, pork, veal and mutton of the best quality always on hand at Houstons meat market.

—Hemp carpets 4 and 6 yards for $1 Stair carpets—Ingrain carpets at McQuiston & Ralston's. 10-3w.

—Our "general make-up" is an applicant to "blow" the bass drum in the brass band this summer.

—For stove kettles, tea kettles and spiders, go to Kiblinger & Co's., they sell at manufacturers prices.

—Mr. T. C. Mays, former editor of this paper, was recently admitted to the bar of DeKalb county.

—We have a communication from La-Otto, without the name of the author, which we decline to publish.

—Miss Josie Rush closed her school at Corunna last week, and will remain in the city for several weeks.

—"Shad" says he is going west in a few weeks. Wonder if he's going to "grow up" with the country.

—We hear it noised about that Albert Markle will start a "tooth extracting establishment" in a few days.

—We wouldn't advise the average small boy to "monkey" with the tramps too much—they're bad, boys.

—Business in the Recorder's office is on the increase. Mr. Boland has had an assistant for several days.

—Owing to sickness of Rev. Johnson, there was no service at the Presbyterian church Sunday evening.

—Remember there will be services at the Catholic church every Wednesday and Friday evenings during Lent.

—A number of sidewalks on Main street are in a bad condition, which should receive immediate attention.

—The Stark County Ledger allows just one dollar per cord for wood. That's hard on the wood subscriber.

—Bob. Ingersoll will lecture on "Hell" at the Academy of Music, Fort Wayne, Tuesday evening March 18th.

—CLOTHING—McQuiston & Ralston are receiving mens', youths' and boys' clothing in new styles and at low prices. 10-3w.

—B. J. Lowrie, of the Republican Office has been sick for several days, and Brown is the only one that represents the shop.

—Mr. M. C. Markle removed his family to Hudson, Steuben county, last Monday, where he will take charge of his grist mill

—It is rumored that Johnny Picker has left Casebeers' restaurant, at Garrett, and is working in the Gazette office at Fort Wayne.

—Will open next week fruit of the loom bleached muslin at 9c by piece or 9½c by yard.

10-3w. MCQUISTON & RALSTON.

—We understand that Mr. G. Rhodenbaugh has traded his property in this city for western land and will move thereon in a few weeks.

—Choice roasted coffee 18c per lb. Eight cakes of soap for 25 cents. Four bars Kirks soap for 25 cents at McQuiston & Ralston's. 10-3w.

A public examination for teachers license was held by county superintendent Barns, at the high school building, this city, last Saturday.

—We learn that an effort is being made to organize a brass band in this city, which should receive the encouragement of our citizens.

—A party of sleighriders from this city pulled up at the residence of Frank Hogue, south of town, Monday evening. They report a good time.

—After walking about a mile in the terrible storm Sunday to get a partner for the dance, he Spake to her gently, but she would'nt have it that way.

—Lawrence Barrett, the great tragedian, played to a small house in Fort Wayne, last Monday evening. No credit to the inteligence of the city.

—QUERY: "Why will men smoke common tobacco, when they can buy Marburg Bros, "Seal of North Carolina" the same price.

—As a heavy snow makes a good wheat crop, and a hard freeze a good corn crop, next year we may expect a heavy crop of wheat, corn and hogs.

—The COURIER should be in every house in the county. It gives more reading matter than any other paper in the county, and has all the home news.

—We have just received a new stock of wedding and invitation stationery, which we will take pleasure in showing. Call and see us when you want anything in that line.

—The mite society connected with the M. E. church, will be entertained by Mrs. G S. McCord on next Wednesday evening. All are cordially invited

MRS. A. ROBBINS, Sec'y.

—Mark L. Rush has another curiosity in the shape of a hen. This one does not lay a crock full of eggs in three days, but one each day in the week, and "lays-off" Sunday.

—Those boys from the country, who are in the habit of coming to town and "filling up," had better be careful how they conduct themselves or the marshal will "turn the key" on them.

—The Buckeye clothes wringer only $5.00. The best in the world. For sale by Kiblinger & Co.

—A man by the name of Kistler, near Winamac, this State, was taken to the tune of $440 by a swindling arrangement something after the style of the hay-fork dodge. Tally one more Thomas Misery loves company, you know. —Daily News

—Just received at McQuiston & Ralston's a car load of No. 1 stoneware—Jars from one-half gallon to eight gallons. Stone churns from five to eight gallons. Milk pans etc, at McQuiston & Ralston's. 10-3w.

—A young man was heard to remark to his sweet-heart Saturday evening, "Tarry not, darling, lest the marshal shall see us and we will have to put up in the calaboose." They took the back street for the Junction.

—The interest in the Good Templars Lodge in this place does not seem to abate. The attendance is quite large, and a goodly number of Auburn's imbibers of the "peace wrecking" fluid have walked to the front and pledged themselvs to the cause of Temperance.

—An accident on the Pittsburgh & Ft. Wayne railroad at Valparaiso, last Saturday morning, resulting in the death of one engineer and one fireman, several others being badly injured. The accident was caused by a misplaced switch, which allowed a passenger train to collide with a freight train.

—List of unclaimed letters in the post office at Auburn Ind. March 1st 1879.

Jacob Cregh, J. H. Clowes, Kate Haines A. M. Jones, R. E. Middleton, J. F. Miller, Francis Reaser Eliza Smalley.

JOS. RAIRIER, P. M.

Old subscribers are renewing and expressing themselves as highly pleased with the COURIER, and we are every day adding new names to our list at a gratifying rate. If you want to take a live paper, brimful of local and general news, subscribe for the COURIER.

—There are now six female lawyers in the United States, and all are having a fair practice. They are Mrs. Lockwood, of Washington; Mrs. Bradwell, of Chicago; Miss Phoebe Cozzens, of St. Louis; Mrs. Foster, of Iowa; Mrs. Goodell, of Wisconsin, and Mrs. Foltz, of San Francisco.—Fort Wayne News.

—Our enterprising manufacturer, Mr. James Anderson, is again in the market with a lot of first class carriages and buggies of his own manufacture, which he will sell at low figures, and on one year's time with approved security. He defies any shop in Northern Indiana to furnish better material than is used in his work. 9-9w

—Robert Martin, ex-member of the New York Stock Exchange, who ten years ago was a millionaire, and who in his prosperous days gave $100,000 at one time to the New York churches, has just stood at the Bar of Special Sessions and heard the voice of the Judge sentencing him for the theft of a coat and shirt to five days in the City Prison.

—Messrs. McIntyre & Son have sold their stock of drugs and toilet articles to Mr. C. H. Hoyt, formerly of Liberty Center, Ohio. We have had the pleasure of meeting the new proprietor and find him gentlemanly and unassuming. Mr. Hoyt is a practical druggist, and will take pains in filling prescriptions to the satisfaction of his customers. Drop in and see him.

—The following persons were licensed to marry by the county clerk during the month of Febuary.

Mandis Myers, and Agnes Beatty, Jonas E. Howley and Mary Benner, Chas. J. Krueger and Delilah Peters Erastus A. Wanemaker and Mary V. Juslyn, Levi Nelson and Rebecca Dean, Thomas O'Neal and Lorinda J. Matheny Jonathan Thomas and Sarah Rutter Geo. Riser and Amanda Garber.

—Bonner says: "My success is owing to liberality in advertising." P. T. Barnum says: "The road to fortune is through printer's ink." J. J. Astor said: "Success depends upon a liberal patronage of printing offices." A. T. Stewart said: "Frequent and constant advertising brought me all I own." Ben. Franklin said: "My son, deal only with men who advertise; you will never lose by it."

—Lamps have been introduced on some of the accommodation trains on the Pittsburgh railroad with clock work attached to them which sets in motion a small propeller shaped fan, which forces air up to the burner above. The result of the current of air acting upon the light so as to broaden and intensify the light and completely consume the smoke, as well as to create a splendid white flame which is as steady as that of an argand lamp, and not easily blown out.

—The LaGrange Standard of last week contains a lengthy communication from Mrs. Emma A. Bixler, in which she shows up Mr. Bixler, the prosecutor, in a manner which is truly surprising. If the charges made by Mrs. Bixler are true, the accused will scarcely be permitted to "tarry long around here." We are inclined to the opinion that there may be a "reasonable doubt" about the correctness of the statements made, but if half is true as stated, it is certainly bad enough, and ought to damn any man.

—Crawfordsville Journal: Every intelligent man or woman reads the local paper. True, there are some who complain of it, but such persons always read it—generally by borrowing of their neighbors. Not unfrequently there is one who "takes more papers than I can read now," but such never fail to read the county paper when it can be secured of a friend. The way to be square with everybody and true to your own interest is to stand by your home paper—subscribe and pay for it.

—The Westminster Review for Jan. has just been republished by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay Street, New York. The articles which will receive most attention are probably those relating to Turkey, Afghanistan and South Africa, and a careful reading of these will give an insight into the cause and probable consequences of the recent events which have brought these countries so prominently into notice.

Other articles are "Dr. Johnson: his Biographers and Critics." "The Papacy—its Early Relations with Roman Catholic States." "The Cairoli Family." Price $4 a year, and the postage is prepaid by the Publishers.

Vigor of Mind and Body.

Every person would have more vigor of mind and body, and mental clearness were they to use a daily diet of unbolten wheat flour. Mix with the flour dry, Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder, stir in pure water, form a soft batter, bake in gems or biscuit, and the result will be the most nutritious article of food that can be made.

Golden Years Are Passing By.

A new song and chorus by Will L. Thompson, author of the famous song, "Gathering Shells." Nearly half a million copies have been sold of this author's beautiful compositions. Published by W. L. Thompson & Co., East Liverpool, O.

Delight all Lovers of Sweet Scents

The Unique Perfumes made by Dr. Price delight, by their lasting character and refreshing fragrance, all lovers of sweet scents. Dr. Price's Forget-Me-Not, Ylang Ylang, Musk Rose, Alista Bouquet, and his other odors, are the most exquisite that can be imagined.

Land for Sale.

The undersigned offers eighty acres of good land (50 acres cleared) one mile east and two miles south of Butler, for sale at a bargain. For further information inquire at my residence, one mile east of Butler.

9-4w PETER HAAS.

Closing Out.

G. Rhodenbaugh is going to close out his entire stock of harness, saddles, bridles, whips, laprobes and everything in his line of trade within the next thirty days Call if you want a bargain. opposite N. E. corner public square. He means business.

Very welcome just now is the article "The New Golden Age," in the January number of the Edinburgh Review, republished by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay St., N. Y. It records the opinions and anticipations current in the first years of the gold discoveries in California and Australia, describes the early history of gold-finding, the effect of the new mines on the value of money, and the influences which have produced the fall in the value of silver in relation to gold. Other articles are;

"The True Tale of the Cenci." "Mental Physiology." "Memoirs of Mrs. Jameson." "The Road to India." "Campanella and Modern Italian Thought." "Walpole's England in the Nineteenth Century." "Discoveries at Olympia." "The Government and the Opposition." Price, $4 a year and the postage is prepaid by the Publishers.

Closing a Safe for 100 years.

The large iron safe known as "The Centennial Safe," on exhibition at the late Centennial Exhibition, contributed by Mrs. C. F. Diehm, was closed at noon on Saturday, in the Statuary Hall of the Capitol, in the presence of a large number of spectators, though no formal ceremony was observed. One of the two inscriptions of the inner side of the door is as follows: "In memory of those whose names appear upon the pages of the albums deposited within, and who rendered distinguished services to the country;" and the other is: "It is the wish of Mrs. Diehm that this safe may remain closed until 1976, to be opened by the Chief Magistrate of the United States." The inscription on the front of the safe is: "Dedicated to the people of the United States, July 4, 1876." In addition to the volume containing the autographs of prominent public men is an album of photographs of a large number of them with recorded souvenirs of the Centennial. The photographs of women are few in number, and include those of Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Hayes, and Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson.

MR. EDITOR.—Let me have the pleasure of fulfilling my promise made to my scholars, and say something for our school at number one in Jackson Township. Number of scholars neither tardy nor absent during the term. George Carper, Philip Carper, Emma Cramar, Number of scholars on roll of honor. Eugene Carper, Howard George, Emma Owens, Philip Carper, George Carper, Ada George, John Carper, James Owens. We had a very pleasant time together this winter as well as the two preceeding winters, and have reasons to be proud of our school in several respects. I wish to return my thanks to the patrons of said school for their kindness shown to me and hope they may all be prospered in every good work they may undertake. Ever remembering "That if nothing is attempted nothing is gained." We closed our school under some what sad circumstances which is generally known to the people, as Providence saw fit to remove my father I was not present to close my school and consequently all were sadly disappointed. We have to say that if we apply our selves dilligently to study that we will have some teachers from our place to relieve us and fill other usefull positions in life.

C. H. BROWN.

Resolutions of Condolence.

DEKALB LODGE NO. 214, F. & A. M.

Whereas the "Grand Architect" has called from "labor to refreshment," our beloved brother, Samuel Brown, therefore be it resolved by this Lodge assembled:

That, by the death of our noble brother, masonry has lost one of its best patrons, the church a zealous advocate, education a friend, the county an honest, peaceable, industrious citizen; the family a kind and tender father; the poor a benefactor.

That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the family of our brother, and that our Lodge be draped in mourning for ninety days in honor of the dead.

There comes a time—it comes to all,
When we shall hear the Warden's call,
And each, with ashlar rough or true,
Must pass death's solemn portals through.

Be it yours, brethren, then to hear,
From the Master's lips these words of cheer
Your work is found both true and square,
"Pass on."

GUY PLUM,
CASSIUS J. COATS, } Com.
JAY J. VANAUKEN,

Pursuant to previous notice a large number of ex soldiers met at Case's Hall, the evening of March 1st, 1879, for the purpose of effecting a permanent organization. A. Kinmont was elected chairman and G. W. Gordon Secretary. After remarks and suggestions by a number of the soldiers, it was decided to organize similar to the "Order of the Stars and Stripes,' but independent of any other organization. On motion the following committes were elected:

COMMITTEE ON SECURING ROOM.

R. Elson, G. W. Gordon, D. Ober, and P. Myers.

COMMITTEE ON CONSTITUTION AND BY-LAWS.

R. H. Weamer, G. W. Gordon, R. Elson, G. H Hoffman and D. Kellum.

COMMITTEE ON MUSIC.

Frank Smith and James Johnson.

Adjourned to meet at Case's Hall, on the evening of March, 8th, at 7½ o'clock.

A. KINMONT, Pres't.
G. W. GORDON, Sec'y.

CONCORD, March 3d, 1879.

EDITOR COURIER:—I. see you request news from the different parts of the county, permit me to occupy a little space in your local corespondence columns.

—The people of Concord are again called upon to mourn the loss of another of its citizens, Mr. Samuel Brown died on the morning of the 1st, of typhoid pneumonia. His sickness was of short duration, only about six days. Brother Brown was an exemplary christian gentleman in his life, his heart and hands always ready for every good work. The church has lost a leader and counselor, and the community a useful and esteemed citizen. The funeral services was conducted by the Rev. T. E Lancaster, of Spencerville and attended by a large concource of sympathizing friends and neighbors.

R. C.

LaOtto.

Our village doctor is quite angry at "Biddy" and avenges himself by writing half a column of stuff to the Kendalville News. A part of it was concerning those "rustics," whom the doctor says were neither profane nor bolsterous. As to the profanity, don't tell us anything about that, we have heard enough. Probably the doctor has not heard of that little party down at Simmons', and how one of those "rustics" grossly insulted a respectable young lady of our village. If he chooses such people for his friends and associates, it is all right, "birds of a feather will flock together." As to the young lady, (who has such a brave (?) defender in the doctor,) we meant no insult to her whatever, as she is a friend of ours. The doctor has probably made a mistake in regard to who the young lady in question is.

As to that "intelligent speech" touching the doctor and his family, how can he expect others to have respect for him if he has no respect for himself, he says his wife was hovering between life and death at the time when he made that "intelligent speech," strange we never heard of it before, but some doctors' patients are always "hovering between life and death." Yes we know she is better now, we saw her out riding last week, the boy was not along, strange too, he was about three weeks old. As to writing locals for the COURIER, we will write just what we please, and recommend to the doctor the future study of the eleventh commandment, "mind your own business."

BIDDY.

—We now have our job department complete and can do good work at reasonable rates.

ANSWER TO CONUNDRUM.

Who sells the best Hat in town for one dollar?

SAM, PETE & MAX.

Who sells the best pair of Pants for one dollar?

SAM, PETE & MAX.

Who sells a Linen Bosom, Wamsutta Shirt for one dollar?

SAM, PETE & MAX.

Who sells four pair of genuine Brittish Hose for one dollar?

SAM, PETE & MAX.

Who sells eight heavy four ply Linen Collars for one dollar?

SAM, PETE & MAX.

Who sells everything of the Best for the very lowes prices?

SAM, PETE & MAX.

GRANDMOTHER'S BIRTHDAY.

BY CLARA DOTY BATES.

Just seventy years ago
  A little baby smiled;
And they gave the sweet old Bible name
  Of Hannah to the child.

She slept, no doubt, such sleep
  As only falls on eyes
That still have shut within their lids
  The light of paradise.

No doubt the little hands
  Lay passive on her breast,
As, with the cradle's lullaby,
  They hushed her to her rest.

Ah, me! who could foretell
  What work those hands should do!
How many they should help to lead
  Life's troubled mazes through?

What never-faltering part
  Their tender strength should take;
What burdens for the tired ones bear;
  What barriers help to break?

Scarcely a day or hour
  In all these long, long years,
But they have helped some weaker one,
  Or wiped some sufferer's tears.

And, ah, who could foresee
  Upon that baby brow,
Where lay the dark and silky locks
  Its crown of silver now?

Peace, as at first, is there;
  The world has never set
One single line of its hard seal
  Upon that forehead yet!

The constant shade of pain
  Has dimmed, perhaps, the eyes,
Yet still they hold within their lids
  The light of paradise.

Just seventy years ago
  Since the little baby came,
And now her children's children bless
  That sweet old Bible name.

A STEADY PUPIL.

A Phase of Paris Life.

"Now, Mr. Baker, let us understand each other at once," Lord Hunsdon had said, leaning back in his official armchair, and tapping the massive signet-ring on his fat finger with the official paper cutter. "I have great pleasure, as I have said, in intrusting to you the task of my nephew's education. All I have heard of you, and what little I have seen of you, induces me to regard you as an excellent traveling tutor. It only remains for me to state my views, as briefly as I can," here a glance at the official clock, "for I have to receive a deputation immediately. Cecil Manvers has a fortune of his own—his mother's money—and will in all probability succeed me in the title and property. I don't want the boy to turn out a bookworm or a scamp. Make him a well-informed, honorable English gentleman, with enough knowledge of the world to steer clear of its worst perils, and I shall be more than satisfied. And nothing could conduce better to this than two years on the Continent in such good hands as yours, Mr. Baker. I shall see you again, of course, before you leave England, but, just now," another glance at the clock, "my time is positively not my own.

And I took the Under Secretary's hint and retired, almost tumbling over the excited deputation as I made my way down stairs. Next week, Cecil Manvers and I went abroad.

Our first year of continental travel passed off pleasantly enough. The Rhine, Switzerland, Tyrol, each and all of these we had visited in the pleasant summer time; we had wintered in Italy, and the next spring found us in Paris.

It was the time when the great Paris Exhibition—exhibitions had not as yet grown common enough to be classed as bores—attracted myriads to the then imperial capital of France. Emperor, Court and empire were in their first freshness—decked, too, with the prestige which success confers; for the great struggle with Russia was going on victoriously for the allies, and the cordial feeling between France and England was at its warmest. In 1855 people had not yet become ashamed of enjoying themselves, and, whatever the merits of the show might be, it certainly secured the suffrages of the well-dressed, well-pleased crowds of holiday-makers. My pupil and I made the new Palace of Industry our daily lounge, and so did a French friend of ours, destined to play no unimportant part in this story.

It was by accident that we had made acquaintance with Colonel the Baron Duplessis. Cecil had a walking-cane, with a handsome gold head, which had belonged to his father, and this cane he chanced to leave on one of the marble tables of the Exhibition monster restaurant. Half an hour later, when my pupil discovered his loss, and went back in hot haste to seek for his missing property, it was courteously restored to him, with a bow and a smile, by a tall, elderly Frenchman, with the inevitable red ribbon adorning his tightly-buttoned frock coat, and of what his compatriots designate as a distinguished appearance. The old officer had observed ourselves as the occupants of a table near his own, and had been prompt enough to prevent the costly walking-stick from being purloined by a light-fingered under-waiter. This little kindness led in time to a friendship which might be called intimate.

The Colonel, as became a man of ancient lineage and reduced fortunes, lived in a gloomy old street on the left bank of the Seine, far away from the glare and glitter of the modern Paris. The Rue de Loches was the name of the street, and the Colonel's house, No. 16, was on the shady side of it—a big, dingy mansion, a grass-grown courtyard, a walled garden, and the windows into which the sun never seemed to shine. The ghostly pictures on the walls and the heavy furniture were in keeping with this dismal dwelling. The Colonel's family consisted merely of his wife and daughter, the former haggard and nervous, the latter plain and stupid, with a frightened look, I thought, in her eyes. Madame la Baronne spoke little, and Mademoiselle, like most well-brought-up French girls, was as mute as a fish.

The only attraction in No. 16 Rue de Loches was the gay good humor, tempered by the dignified shrewdness of a man of the world, of its master. M. Duplessis, even to me, seemed singularly agreeable, and gained a still larger share of Cecil's regard. It so happened that my pupil had a turn for military subjects—less, perhaps, for dress and drill than for the scientific side of a soldier's life—and his boyish curiosity appeared to please the Colonel, who himself was, as he said jestingly, merely a worn-out war-horse turned out to grass, but ready to respond to the first twang of the trumpet. So it came about that Cecil and the Baron made frequent excursions, now to be present at the trial of a rifled cannon, now to go over fortifications, see a review, or ramble through the arsenal, without my being of the party.

It often happened, too, after the exhibitions I have described, that Cecil Manvers went to drink tea à l'Anglaise, and pass the evening at the Baron's house. I felt, on this head, no misgivings, such as would have beset me had I allowed my charge to go out alone into gayer company. To theater and opera, or to those balls and evening receptions of the Parisian great world to which Lord Hunsdon's letters procured us easy access, I always accompanied Cecil. But I was not sorry when he seemed to grow indifferent to dance and drama, and to prefer spending his hours in the quiet Rue des Loches. Why not? I was thankful for the opportunity of finishing my versified translation of Horace, a work from which I hoped to derive fame and fortune. And then, too, I had such complete confidence in Cecil and his military mentor. What harm, in such company, could accrue to him? Mademoiselle's eyes were not bright enough to win his young affections, and the Baron's weak tea, and trictrac at four sous points, would not be likely to derange his nerves or empty his pockets.

"A monsieur," hinted the concierge one day, thrusting his bald head into the room where I sat, "wishes much to see monsieur." The stranger was not far off, as the janitor of our furnished hotel thus spoke, and perhaps was accustomed to the process of self-introduction. At any rate, I soon found myself looking up from the oblong piece of pasteboard, on which were lithographed the words: "Jules Carnet, Sous chef; Brigade de Surete," at the owner of name and card, who stood bowing there before me, a glossy hat of the bell-crown pattern, affected by loyal followers of the new Emperor, in his gloved hand. There was nothing very notable about my visitor—a plump, middle-aged Frenchman, with tight coat, well-waxed mustache and the imperialist chin-tuft—nothing, except the feline quickness and keenness of his eyes, which I felt to be reading me as easily as if I carried my character, in large print, outside my waistcoat.

"I gather from this card," said I, somewhat bashfully, "that you belong, M. Carnet, to the——"

"To the police?" rejoined my new acquaintance; "yes, monsieur, I have the honor to belong to the police. It is now my duty, in compliance with instructions from headquarters, to apprise you that your pupil—Sir Manvers—is deceiving you."

"That Cecil Manvers—my pupil—is deceiving me?" I repeated, in utter incredulity. The sub-chief of the French detective department lifted his high shoulders in a shrug that Brasseur on the stage might have envied.

"It is my painfully-distressing duty," he said, in a thick whisper, "to disturb, monsieur, your beautiful confidence in your youthful friend. What will you, sir? Young men will be young men. It is part of the herculean task of our superior police to drop a word of warning to parents and guardians who are hood-winked. I do so now. Sir Manvers—that youth so discreet—he spends his evenings in a gambling-house, full of the worst company, Rive Gauche, Rue de Loches, No. 16."

On me this extraordinary assertion produced very much the effect of a sudden plunge into cold water. It fairly took away my breath, and I sat gasping and staring in blank amazement. Then I rallied my wits sufficiently to reply. There had, I said, been some preposterous mistake. Mr. Cecil Manvers passed his evenings in the society of a quiet French family of good position, that of Colonel the Baron Duplessis.

But here M. Carnet broke in, arching his eyebrows.

"Eh, eh, the Baron Duplessis?" said he, dryly; "I was not aware that to his epaulettes of Colonel he added the baronial coronet. Well, Monsieur Baker, I have dropped you a hint, well intentioned, foi de Carnet! Watch more strictly over your pupil, for the intimacy of the Duplessis household is apt to prove costly to a neophite. And"—this more seriously—"should you require help from the police to cut the knot of this imbroglio, you have only to seek me—me, Jules Carnet, at your service. The address I have pencilled, see, on this card, 7 Rue Joachim. I replace, for the next few nights, the Commissary at that bureau."

And, with a flourish and a bow, he was gone.

Left alone, my reflections were very bitter. I could not doubt the truth or the timeliness of the warning that had been conveyed to me, and without loss of time I set out for the Rue de Loches.

It was very dark, and, as I crossed the bridge a fine chilly rain began to fall, but I scarcely heeded it, and pressed on. I reached the Rue de Loches, and, just as I had raised my hand to the bell-handle of No. 16, I noticed that the gate was, contrary to custom, slightly ajar. Instinctively I pushed it open, passed in and silently reclosed it behind me. No one observed me as I crossed the grass-grown courtyard, and unchallenged entered the big old house, the windows of which were now ablaze with light, while strains of music reached my ears, mingling with the clink of glasses and the murmur of conversation. The well-known staircase, however, was clear, and I met with no impediment as I traversed two small rooms, and, myself screened by a heavy crimson curtain, commanded a view of the great gloomy saloon and its occupants.

More than forty persons, as I judged were present, and of this number, besides the Colonel's wife and daughter, but three were women. One of these, a professional performer, I should say, was seated at the piano. The other two, bejeweled, painted, and, with elaborate chignons and waving fans, were mere living decorations, as it appeared to me, of the scene. As for the male guests, there was the usual mixture of gulls and sharpers—the latter element predominating—to be found in such places. Choice viands, varied wines and liquors were grouped, amid flowers and silver, on a buffet adjacent, and two lynx-eyed serving-men, with very evil countenances and baggy blue liveries that might have been supplied by the costumer of a third-rate theater, were busy in ministering to the creature comforts of the company.

Some game, lansquenet or baccarat, was going on, and in it some eighteen or nineteen players were engaged. Near the head of the table, confronting the dealer, sat Cecil, his face flushed, his eyes sparkling, a champagne glass in his hand, and a great heap of gold and notes lying on the velvet cloth before him. Most of the other faces near him, including the Baron Duplessis, expressed annoyance, dismay, or savage ill-humor, and I saw at once that this was an instance of one of those extraordinary runs of luck which sometimes enable a tyro to conquer the wiliest practitioners at the gambling-table. Again and again the cards were dealt, and still fickle Fortune befriended Cecil. The pile of gold before him swelled and swelled, until at last, with a muttered oath, the last stake of the bank was reluctantly pushed toward my pupil.

"Broke the bank, by Jove! I said I'd do it!" cried the lad, with boyish exultation, as he held out his glass to be replenished.

I was in the very act of rushing from my place of concealment to reproach my pupil with his duplicity, and to fling his ill-gotten gains broadcast among the harpies who surrounded him, when I happened to observe one of the evil-visaged serving-men, in obedience to a nod from Colonel the Baron Duplessis, add a few drops from a little vial that he carried hidden in his sleeve, to the foaming contents of the broad glass of champagne which he presently placed in Cecil's outstretched hand. The lad swallowed the foaming wine at a draught, and again laughed in foolish triumph as he passed his fingers through the gold coin and rustling notes. And then—so rapid, no doubt, was the action of the drug—his bright eyes swam and grew dim, he nodded drowsily, and sank forward in a sort of stupor, his head resting on his arm. Instantly there began to be a movement among the company, and, with many a Bon soir and Au plaisir, the majority of the guests took their leave.

Tang! The sharp little hammer of the bronze clock of the chimney-piece, as it struck the hour of 1, suggested to me the necessity of being prompt and cool, if I would save Cecil Manvers from a worse peril than the mere loss of money. By this time only five persons excepting my pupil remained in the room, for even the Baron's scared wife and dull-eyed daughter had disappeared, and, of these five, two were the serving-men in theatrical livery. The other three were the Baron himself, a cadaverous little old fellow, with a hatchet face and a harsh voice; and a big, black-browed man, whose sharp teeth, filed to a point like those of savages, looked disagreeably wolfish whenever he smiled or spoke. I grew seriously alarmed as I noted the significant glances which these worthies exchanged, as they surrounded the sleeping stripling. That they would allow the lad to carry off his winnings I had never thought probable, but now it seemed evident that something beyond commonplace knavery was in question.

"Who sleeps, sups," remarked the senior of the group, with a cackling laugh that chilled my blood as I heard it. "Your soothing syrup, Duplessis, did the trick well."

"Ay," replied the Baron, as he passed the flame of a candle before Cecil's unconscious eyes; "it was time, comrades, to pour out something stronger than Clicquot; for peste! what cards that English boy did hold, as if the devil had shuffled the pack; and, trust me, we'd not have found it easy to make him lose the gold he won! Young as he is, he has sense and spirit too, and he had the effrontery to tell me to-night he was ashamed of playing tricks on his good-natured tutor, and that, win or lose, he'd gamble no more."

The stout-built man responded with some brutal joke about a tender, young pigeon that was ready for the spit.

"There is no risk, no risk at all," said the elder of the scoundrels: "what can they prove against us, hein? The young gentleman has won our money, not we his. He has drunk much wine. He insisted on returning home on foot, with his gold in his pockets. Is it our fault, M. le President, if these pockets are empty when the body, discovered in the Seine, is laid out on the wet slabs of the Morgue?"

I shuddered, for there was something peculiarly hideous in the affectation of the old villian's manner, as, drawing himself up, and extending one arm in forensic fashion, he pleaded his own cause before an imaginary tribunal. But the two evil-visaged serving-men and the burly black-browed ruffian were of another mind, for they laughed with evident enjoyment of the jest.

"That for the Cour l'Assises!" retorted the big man, snapping his fingers; "and now, mon vieux, if you like, I am ready to administer the coup-de-pouse to this young aristo," and he stretched forth his brawny hands, half jocularly towards Cecil's throat.

"Not yet," returned the Baron, peremptorily; "not yet this hour to come. One o'clock is too early for our good friends, Jacques and Jean Baptiste here, to carry such a load through the riverside streets. Better wait till the last wine-shop closes, and the last drunkard has reeled homeward."

And then all five sat down together at the table, in familiar conversation, much of which was to me unintelligible, sipping Curacoa and Chartreuse the while with appreciative relish. The only one who looked careworn and anxious was the Colonel himself. I did not, however, linger long to play the part of eavesdropper. Clearly, if I would serve Cecil, I must lose no time in summoning rescue. Noiselessly, cautiously, I threaded my way through the darkling ante-chambers and down the solitary staircase. I reached the court-yard. It was empty, and the porter's lodge dark and deserted. Softly unclosing the gate, I glided out into the street, and, mindful of the address which M. Carnet had given me, flew rather than walked to No. 7 Rue Joachim.

The Inspector of Police listened with eager interest to my story. Twice he interrupted me with an urbane apology for the rudeness of the act, that he might apply his lips to the mouthpiece of a small pipe that communicated with the lower side of the bureau, and when I had finished he rubbed his hands, and almost purred in feline fashion over the news I had brought.

"A great haul for the net of the law!" he murmured blandly; "George Le Moine—for your corpulent friend, Mr. Baker, can be no other—runaway forcat, burglar and assassin, much wanted in his old quarters at Toulon; then old Vinet, of Lyons, dit Tromp-la-soi; then the Duplessis himself, who has a long score to settle with justice; and the two minor villains, Jacques Peach and Jean Baptiste Tellier, thrown in to complete the batch of jail-birds. Now, my children!" he added loudly, and the door opened, disclosing four gendarmes and eight agents, armed to the teeth; "be quick and silent. This gentleman will guide us. Only one of this gibier-depotence is likely to make serious resistance. I mean Le Moine. If he does—"

"Very well, Inspector," answered an agent of police, as he examined the lock of his pistol.

But there was no fighting. The whole rascally gang gave proof of the most abject cowardice when pounced on by the police, and did not even attempt to use the weapons which four out of the five had concealed about their persons. In prison, each made a confession damaging to the defense of the remainder, and I believe all were ultimately sentenced to long terms of imprisonment at Toulon or Lambessa, while I received praises, unmerited, I am sure, for the share I had taken in providing for the safety of my pupil. Cecil Manvers is Lord Hunsdon now, and has long since learned to profit by the follies of youth; but we are fast friends, and my former charge has never forgotten the debt of gratitude which he declares himself to owe for my coolness on that night in the Rue de Loches.

Two-Legged Hens.

Some years ago a certain man, whom we will call Boggs, lived in Bethany, Ct., and one day he was called, with a number of other men, to go quite a distance to mow a large field. His associates delighted to pester him and play harmless tricks upon him, and his wife was aware of the fact. As the field was at quite a distance, she put up a good dinner for her husband, and he went to work. While working a lot of hens got to his dinner and ate it all up. When noon came he went for his dinner, but found what the hens had done. Going home in not a very pleasant mood, he snarled out, "I want some dinner." "Dinner! dinner! I gave you some!" said his surprised spouse. "I know it," said the still-surly fellow, "but the 'tarnal hens got at it and ate it all up." His wife, doubting his story, and believing that his associates had been playing another trick upon him, scornfully but innocently responded: "Hens! hens! two-legged hens, I guess." "No they warn't, by George!" instantly shrieked the now-furious fellow, and neither seemed to see what made those who listened to the conversation convised with laughter.—New Milford (Ct.) Ray.

Cheap Elocution.

Yesterday forenoon, while a Detroit Justice of the Peace sat warming his feet by the stove, and his nose by a cigar, a stranger entered and presently inquired:

"Judge, how much will you charge me to read over about fifteen lines of printed matter from a book I have?"

"Why, can't you read them?" replied his Honor.

"I can, but I want to hear how the lines sound when real aloud. I'll give you a quarter to read them for me."

"All right," replied the Justice. "I can't earn two shillings any quicker."

A woman opened the door at that moment, and the stranger put down the book on the desk, clasped her hand, and said:

"Begin at the pencil-mark there, and read slowly."

His Honor's chin dropped exactly eighteen inches by dry measure as he saw that the reading matter was the usual form of marriage, but he didn't back down from his word. It was the cheapest marriage he ever attended, and he didn't half enjoy the chuckles of bride and groom as they went out.—Free Press.

o Romantic.

A Boston romance, in which a hale and hearty man of 50 and a slight, little woman a couple of years younger figured, is reported. The two met on a rainy day, while hurrying with tilted umbrellas about their business, a collision followed, and the woman slipped to the sidewalk. In picking her up the man recognized her as an old flame. Thirty years before, when she was a Lowell factory girl, and he a poor medical student at Harvard, they had loved each other. In 1849 he went to California and forgot the girl he left behind him. He prospered in business, became rich, and married. Later his wife and children died, and in his loneliness he remembered the Lowell factory girl. A dream told him she was in distress. He hurried East to find her, but looked in vain till they accidentally met. She was a widow, with two children, and in destitute circumstances, but that is all over now.

"Waiting."

Mary Townsend Haight, in her 10th year, was slowly but surely dying of heart disease; the appearance of the grim messenger was expected at any hour. At this crisis her grandpa was obliged to leave home a few days. Contrary to his expectation, he found little Mary alive on his return. She greeted him with a pleasant smile, saying: "I'm not dead yet, grandpa; only waiting." Death claimed her that night.—Sing Sing Register.

PERSONALS.

Tilden is 65.

Adelina Patti is worth $30,00,000.

Blind Tom is performing in the South.

The late Prince Henry, of Holland, left an estate of at least $41,000,000.

If Edison don't hurry up with that light, people will begin making light of him.

Gladstone's admirers intend to build a hospital to his memory that will cost $110,000.

"Gen." Andrew Jackson, an ex-slave, has just died at Pittsburgh at the age of 108 years.

President Grevy will get a salary of $100,000 a year and $50,000 for household expenses.

David Davis is used an advertisement by the proprietor of an anti-fat remedy. To what base uses, etc.

Edwin Booth has bought a $5,250 tract of land at Newport and will build a summer cottage there.

Miss Clara S. Folz, the first female lawyer of San Francisco, is 28 years old, and with all her Folz they love her still.

It has been definitely settled that the Duke of Connaught connaught have his marriage postponed beyond the 13th of March.

Gen. Badeau, the United States Consul General at London, lives at a country seat eight miles out of town. He drives into his office daily, there being upon his brougham a coachman and footman in dark-blue liveries, cockaded hats and fur tippets.

It is said that the Princess Beatrice, Queen Victoria's youngest child, will soon visit Berlin, and it is further rumored that the trip is not entirely unconnected with a matrimonial scheme planned in her behalf by her eldest sister, the Crown Princess of Germany.

Gov. Hampton, of South Carolina, is reputed as rather low-spirited, but his physical condition continues favorable. It is probable that another amputation of the leg bone will be necessary, as the flesh has receded and the wound cannot heal over in its present condition. Gov. Hampton says that he suffers more from the old bullet wound in his left hip than from the amputation.

Conundrums for Everybody.

A London doctor has circulated the following queer conundrums in the interest of science: "First, are you right or left handed? Second, have you any trick or mannerism involving the use of the hand, such as playing with a button, or touching the forehead or lip during thought, and, if so, is this performance invariably with the right or left hand, or by either hand indifferently? Third, can you snap the fingers of both hands with equal ease and effect? if not, which set of fingers possesses the greater snapping power? Fourth, in walking, dancing, etc., do you start with the right or left foot? Fifth, in walking backward, which foot do you start with? Sixth, can you kick more freely and forcibly with the right or left leg? Seventh, can you wink with equal facility with each eye? if not, with which eye do you wink more easily? Eighth, in winking slighlty, do you employ principally the upper or lower eyelid, and is a slight wink similarly accomplished on both sides, or do you, on the one side, employ principally the upper eye-lid, and on the other, principally the lower one? Ninth, can you draw up each corner of the mouth alternately with equal freedom? if not, over which corner have you the more control? Tenth, can you move the protruding tongue to the right and left side with equal freedom? if not, toward which side do you move it with more freedom? Eleventh, can you move your external ears separately? and, if so, which of the two do you move more reely."

Horse Stories.

They were sitting around the conventional stove in the village tavern, telling tall stories. The topic was horses. After several inferior tales, old Hobbs began: "My horse was worse than the worst of defaulting bank Presidents, for he was such a forger. Why, actually, his feet struck together so often that I had to carry a bucket of water in the wagon, and stop every half mile and wet his feet to cool them. Sometimes they would be red-hot." Old Teller broke in: "Oh, that's nothing. I once had a horse, and he was such a forger that I could not take him out in a sleigh." The old man here looked around to see if any one would ask him the reason of this, but they looked as glum as pall-bearers, so he continued: "No, I would never take him out sleighing, because such a shower of sparks were knocked from his shoes that the snow and ice were melted—turned to mud—before the sleigh-runners reached it."

Thirty-two Times a Father.

One of the most remarkable men in Monroe county, Ky., is Mr. John Jacob Goodman. Mr. Goodman was born in North Carolina, in 1783, and is now in his 97th year. In 1804 he moved to Monroe county, then a part of Barren, and has lived on the same place ever since, a period of seventy-five years. For upward of forty years he was a distiller, and at the age of 75 he could lift a forty-gallon barrel of whisky and take his toddy out of the bung-hole. He is now living with his second wife, his first having died many years ago. Fifteen children were the fruit of his first matrimonial experiment and seventeen of his last, making a grand total of thirty-two, twenty-seven of whom lived to be married. He has always been a moderate dram-drinker, for sixty-two years a member of the Baptist Church and forty-two years clerk of that body. The father of Mr. Goodman died at the age of 96, and would, perhaps, have lived longer, but he broke his leg, which hastened his death.—Glasgow (Ky.) Times.

Up to date, four boys and one girl have been killed and six children maimed while coasting in Pittsburgh and Allegheny.

OLD CHURCH BELLS.

Ring out merrily,
Loudly, cheerily,
Blithe old bells from the steeple tower,
Hopefully, fearfully,
Joyfully, tearfully,
Moveth the bride from her maiden bower.

Cloud there is none in the bright summer sky;
Sunshine flings benisons down from on high;
Children sing loud as the train moves along,
"Happy the bride that the sun shineth on."

Knell out drearily,
Measure out wearily,
Sad old bells from the steeple gray;
Priests chanting lowly,
Solemnly, slowly,
Passeth the corpse from the portal to-day.

Drops from the laden clouds heavily fall
Drippingly over the plume and the pall;
Murmur old folk, as the train moves along,
"Happy the dead that the rain raineth on."

Toll at the hour of prime,
Matin and vesper chime,
Loved old bells from the steeple high—
Rolling, like holy waves,
Over the lowly graves,
Floating up, prayer-fraught, into the sky.

Solemn the lesson your lightest notes teach;
Stern is the preaching your iron tongues preach;
Ringing in life from the bud to the bloom,
Ringing the dead to their rest in the tomb.

Peal out evermore—
Peal as ye pealed of yore,
Brave old bells, on each Sabbath day,
In sunshine and gladness,
Through clouds and through sadness,
Bridal and burial have both passed away.

Tell us life's pleasures with death are still rife;
Tell us that death ever leadeth to life;
Life is our labor, and death is our rest;
If happy the living, the dead are the blest.
—Dublin University Magazine.

PITH AND POINT.

A taking fellow—The pickpocket.

Miss-employed—A young lady at work.

A horse-scholar—The veterinary surgeon.

A barber's apprentice is an under-strapper.

Another name for defaulter—County Treasurer.

A man must be sick to throw up a situation.

Miss-behavior—A young lady's deportment.

A question of time—"How long will you be gone?"

Making the rounds—Fashioning steps for a ladder.

Appropriate present for a paragrapher—A five-pun note.

The iles of Pennsylvania are more valuable than the isles of Greece.

The tailor who alters the shape of your trousers is your only true reformer.

A hangman, being asked by a stranger what trade he pursued, replied that he was a finisher.

What a paradoxical creature man is! He takes blotting-paper to keep from blotting paper!

Made to order—Gubbins thought his wife was, when she sent home that last bundle of drygoods.

A stomach-ache doesn't make a man of a little boy, but it certainly makes a groan person of him.

When you meet an acquaintance and "shake," the meeting may be described as a "hand-to-hand encounter."

The keeper of a "sample-room" calls his prime old brandy "Comfort," because everybody likes to take it.

Now-a-days, stories are written about low-necked dresses. Shall we call the authors of these romances "neck-romancers?"

The undertaker smiled serene. Because he knew she would aspire. To light with blazing kerosene. The slow, delinquent, hissing fire.

A Chattanooga darkey, who was one of a jury who failed to convict for want of evidence, explained to his brethren that the culprit was "released on s'picion."

"Oil," is a very common term; and yet a man whose ears failed to apprise him of an altercation near his house the other night says he never heard the turmoil.

An unsuccessful lover was asked by what mischance he happened to lose his divinity. "Alas!" said he; "I flattered her until she grew too proud to speak to me."

A callow youth of our acquaintance, who has been persistently but ineffectually trying to raise a mustache, says his upper lip is like Banquo's ghost, because it will not down.

When a boy does something funny and you laugh at it he will invariably keep doing it twenty or thirty times more, till you have to knock him down with something.

A cannibal loved a cannibaless;
  By moonlight oft he used to meet her.
He said: "She's the height of my happiness;
  I love her so that I could eat her."
This cannibal and his cannibaless
  Were Henry named and Henrietta;
One night they met in their guilelessness
  To part no more, for Henry ate her.

Mother (to daughter who had just given alms to poor tramp)—"Now, what in the world did you do that for? Suppose he should buy rum with it?" Poor tramp (overhearing and making a low courtesy)—"But I promise I will not, my dear madam. I prefer gin."

To classical student: "You ask, 'if Atlas supported the world, what supported Atlas?' The question, dear sir, has often been asked, but never, so far as we are aware, satisfactorily answered. We have always been of the opinion that Atlas must have married a rich wife and got his support from her father."

THE LEGISLATIVE MAN AND THE SCRIBES.

And now the Legislative man
  Who has a little bill
    Doth set up drinks,
    And thus, he thinks,
The scribes unto his will
  He eke has bought.
  But let him not
Unto his soul this unction lay;
  For many a scribe
  Will take a bribe,
And give his man away.

Red clover came from Flanders to England, and from England to the United States. Its adoption was strongly urged by Sir Richard Weston in 1645, who saw it growing near Antwerp in 1644, and noticed the speed of its growth and how soon it recovered after mowing. In ten years it had spread through the kingdom and made its way to Ireland.

Glass clothing is now manufactured in Germany. It is said to be a very light and showy costume.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

GOSSIP FOR THE LADIES.

[illegible]

She stood before him, tall and fair
And gracious, on that commencement day,
With June's first roses in her hair,
And on her cheek the bloom of May.
But rosy cheek and dimpled chin,
And raven lashes drooping low,
Conceal the answer he would win;
It might be Yes, would it be No!

Ah, if 'twere No—his throbbing heart
Stood fairly still with sudden pain;
And if 'twere Yes, the world so wide
His deep content could scarce contain.
So wondrous fair! how could she stoop
To favor such a one as he?
Ah, sweet suspense that still leaves hope!
Ah, pain of sad uncertainty!

He held her hand so white and small,
And moved to press it with his lips,
But changed his mind, [illegible] fell,
With chillest touch of finger tips,
And took [illegible]
Upon the sofa by her side,
Nor made the space between them less,
Which seemed so narrow, yet so wide.

Then gazing on the perfect face,
The dimpled mouth, the glorious eyes,
And drinking in with eager ears
The music of her low replies,
He let the bright hours drift away,
Nor told the secret of his heart,
But when the shadows lengthened lay,
Rose, all reluctant to depart,

And stammered forth, with blushing cheek,
An eager, timorous request
That she, for old acquaintance sake,
Would grant the rosebud from her breast.
She gave it him, with downcast eyes,
And watched him leave her, with a sigh,
"So good," she said, "so true, so wise;
Ah me, if he were not so shy!"

—Atlantic.

Tallmadge on Marriage.

The New York sensational minister in a recent sermon, gave vent to the following:

"One important pass in a man's life is the time when he establishes his home. It is not a matter of surprise that affiancing for life should be treated as a joke? When a man marries he marries for heaven or for hell and he begins to experience it right off. Do not build your hopes of earth and the hereafter on a parcel of ribbons or a finely tinted face; you do not want a pet but a heroine in the house. There have been Christian women who could in the days of their poverty get more music out of a Wheeler & Wilson than in the days of their prosperity they ever got out of a —— or a —— grand. Some of you never knew your homes until they got touched by misfortune, and then oh how your wife towered up, like the host shouting on the shores of the Red sea! Over that home where a daughter of the church officiates as wife the angels of God move wing-tip to wing-tip."

When a Woman Will She Will.

The Rome (N. Y.) Sentinel has a curious story about a married couple in Springfield. It says: "When a Massachusetts woman forms a habit it is all a waste of time for her husband to try to break her of it. Well knowing his wife's disposition to make him a present at the anniversary of his birthday, a citizen of the Bay State, who likewise forcibly realized the fact that economy was an absolute necessity in his household, said to his wife: 'This year you must not undertake to make me a present, I insist. It would be absurd at this time, when we need everything we can rake and scrape. I give you fair notice that if you do carry out your former custom this year, I will burn up the present as surely as you make it.' So the wife bethought herself. She could not bear the idea of being deprived of her annual pleasure. Therefore she gathered together her dimes and bought for her dearly beloved husband, as a birthday present, a ton of coal."

Albani.

I was at Saratoga eight or nine years ago and attended an entertainment in the ball room of the United States hotel. At the close an old French gentleman arose and begged the audience to listen to his daughters' singing. Among the few who attended to the request, this lady saw two rather shabby figures advance behind the old gentleman; they were his daughters, and one was the Albani of to-day, who was then listened to merely as a matter of courtesy, as there was nothing at all in her voice then to foreshadow the great fame she now enjoys. The father would, however, persist that his daughter could sing, and when others turned away in disbelief, he held steadfastly to his faith, and she, in spite of slights and difficulties, persisted and went onward. You may have read of a magnificent home in London where Albani lives with that old father and the sister who was her companion in the shabby bonnet and shawl that failed even in the slightest degree to enlist the interest of a Saratoga ball room audience. Lately, the newspapers tell, she had twenty-three recalls in one night before a critical audience in St. Petersburg, and the great and the high are now busy in her laudation. Is this a reason, dear girls, for taking courage to persevere?—"An Old Lady" in St. Louis Times.

The Two Sisters.

This pair inhabited a single room; from the facts, it must have been double-bedded; and it may have been of some dimensions; but when all is said, it was a single room. Here our two spinsters fell out—on some point of controversial divinity belike, but fell out so bitterly that there was never a word spoken between them, black or white, from that day forward. You would have thought they would separate; but no; whether from lack of means, or the Scottish fear of scandal, they continued to keep house together where they were. A chalk line drawn upon the floor separated their two domains; it bisected the doorway and the fireplace, so that each could go out and in and do her cooking without violating the territory of the other. So, for years, they co-existed in a hateful silence; their meals, their ablutions, their friendly visitors, exposed to an unfriendly scrutiny, and at night, in the dark watches, each could hear the breathing of her enemy. Never did four walls look down upon an uglier spectacle than these sisters rivaling in unsisterliness. Here is a canvas for Hawthorne to have turned into a cabinet picture—he had a Puritanic vein, which would have fitted him to treat this Puritanic horror; he could have shown them to us in their sicknesses and at their hideous twin devotions, thumbing a pair of great bibles, or praying aloud for each other's penitence with marrowy emphasis; now each, with kilted petticoat, at her own corner of the fire on some tempestuous evening; now sitting each at her window, looking out upon the summer landscape sloping far below them towards the firth, and the field paths where they had wandered hand in hand; or, as age and infirmity grew upon them and prolonged their toilets, and their hands began to tremble and their heads to nod involuntarily, growing only the more steeled in enmity with years; until one fine day, at a word, a look, a visit, or the approach of death, their hearts would melt and the chalk boundary be overstepped forever.—Stevenson's Edinburgh.

An Albany Romance.

The approaching marriage of an Albany belle makes public quite a romance. Her intended is clerk in a prominent business house, and in riding to and from his home on the horse cars became quite friendly with one of the drivers. Clerk and driver had been boys together, they discovered. The driver had to work fifteen hours a day, and had hard work to make both ends meet. Finally there was to be a sleighing party, which the man of reins was anxious to join, and his friend, the clerk, offered to drive the car that night. The driver demurred, but the clerk insisted that he would disguise himself so that he would not be known, and carried the day. The inexperienced driver soon got off the track that night, but a new conductor had just been transferred to that line, and he was not found out. As he drove along after getting on the rails again, shivering in the cold blast, the new driver saw by the moonlight, a runaway horse galloping toward him, with a young woman sitting alone in the sleigh. Winding his reins around the brake handle, the driver forgot all about his car, and leaping before the furious steed, he grasped it by the bridle, stopped it and fainted. The uncle of the young woman came up and had the brave driver, still unconscious from the wounds made by the horse's calks, taken to his home near by. A doctor found an ugly wound in the leg, and while he was dressing it, the uncle quietly remarked that that was the first car-driver he ever saw with diamond studs and cuff buttons. Then the story came out, and a graceful convalescence and grateful young woman made a happy ending to the romantic acquaintance.

Fashion Notes.

IMITATION feather trimmings made of colored muslins are used, for ornamenting expensive ball dresses.

INDIA mulls of pale shades of blue and pink, as well as cream and lead white, are a demand for evening dresses.

DARK blue and old gold are favorite combinations of color in early spring satteens, mummy cloths, and percales.

SHORT ball dresses are de rigueur for young ladies in Paris, and are also adopted by many young married woman.

LONG lace mitts, white, black or colored, to match the dress, are as much worn with ball toilets as long kid gloves.

THE Camargo fichu is exceedingly stylish; it is made of fine Breton lace and crepe lisse, and is worn with an open dress. The jabot with which it terminates is fastened slightly to one side.

AMONG the many handsome materials introduced this winter there is none so popular as pekin, which is a name given to velvets, silks and woolens which have alternate dull and lustrous stripes.

THE patterns of overskirts for wash dresses are given with as few gores as possible, as bias seams do not wash as well as straight ones. If the fabric is not wide enough it is best to join the selvedges together, and thus make firm, straight edges.

NEW chatelaine pockets are of velvet embroidery on satin of bright shades. The slender mountings are of silver. These pockets, with belts of the same, are worn with street costumes. Those of the latest styles are finished with three long tassels.

GOLD and silver braids now appear to be very favorite trimmings with milliners, dressmakers and mantlemakers, and the manner of arranging them is somewhat novel. First, there is a narrow silk or satin ribbon, somewhat wider than the metal braid, and upon this the gold or silver braid is sewn, a colored edge thus appearing on both sides of it.

A NEW style of polonaise is made of embossed velvet, square in the neck and double-breasted, like a gentleman's vest, from just below the waist to the bust, and lengthened at the sides and behind into a long train, the whole bordered with a ruche of curled ostrich feathers. The front of the dress was a petticoat of shirred satin.

Slightly Mistaken.

The Newburyport Herald says a good story is told in connection with the temperance campaign in Ipswich. During one of the most exciting evenings, and while the lady canvassers were about the hall with "cards and blue ribbons," a good looking gentleman entered the meeting a little heated, probably from rapid walking. One of the ladies approached him with an invitation to sign the pledge, remarking that his countenance indicated the necessity for action in that direction. He replied that he had signed twenty times before, and didn't believe that their was any particular need of pledging himself again. "Well," she replied, "you may have signed it as many times as you state, but you have broken the pledge as often, I dare say. Your face looks very red, sir; altogether too red for a temperance man." "Madam, you are greatly mistaken in your conclusions; I am pastor of one of the oldest Congregational churches in the state."

A GENTLEMAN who is no longer young, and who never was handsome, says to a child in the presence of its parents: "Well, my child, what do you think of Me, eh?" The little one makes no reply, and the gentleman continues: "Well, so you won't tell me what you think of me. Why won't you?" "'Cause I don't want to get licked."

A LITTLE girl, whose mother had told her the melancholy story of Adam and Eve looked down for a moment very sadly, and then up again very brightly, and said: "And they both went into a large, beautiful room, full of bright red apples, and no-o-o snake, and ate a-a-ll they wanted."

THERE is a paragrapher in Petersburg whose jokes are so sickly that a leading physician has ordered a jest protector for him.—Utica Observer.

A GHOSTLY FEUD.

The Dead Fighting in Their Graves.

If it appears strange to us mortals, and even awful, that the disembodied spirits can, under certain conditions unknown to us, revisit the scenes of its previous existence, how much more awful and difficult of belief is it that spirits which have quitted their earthly life in the unrestrained indulgence of angry and malevolent passions can yet exercise such an influence over the corrupting clay, which they apparently left behind them, as to violate the sacred repose of the tomb and terrify and appal the living! Such a circumstance certainly occurred at H——k Hall, in Lincolnshire, and was long the theme of conversation in that county. H——k Hall had been in possession of the H—— family for hundreds of years; at the time of which I am writing the ancient line had dwindled down to two individuals—the old 'Squire, in present possession, and his only brother and destined successor, who was unmarried, and very little younger than himself. The hall, which had once been so full of life and gayety, had become the abode of sorrow and gloom, in consequence of the early death of the 'Squire's young daughter, his only child, and the heiress of all his possessions. This death, followed in less than a year by that of his wife, to whom he was deeply attached, had quite broken down the old 'Squire's health and happiness. The lady and her daughter were deposited in the family vault amid the tears and regrets of the villagers, by whom they were much and deservedly beloved. For years the 'Squire had had no intercourse whatever with his brother, between whom and the lady of the hall there had been a life long feud; the hatred on her part having been quite of a passive nature, as she was never heard to mention his name; but on his, of the most abusive and virulent kind, which made his exclusion from the hall an absolute necessity. The cause of this hatred could only be guessed at, even by the most curious, as none was ever assigned by either party. When the old 'Squire, after his double bereavement, became almost heart-broken, the good pastor of the village, whose friendship with the family had existed for fifty years, effected a meeting and thorough reconciliation between the long-estranged brothers, and the younger one took up his abode once more in the house of his ancestors. One only condition was made—that the name of his deceased sister-in-law should never pass his lips. A year passed away. The old 'Squire, soothed and comforted by the companionship of his early playfellow, began to recover both his health and spirits; but at this time a malignant fever broke out in the village. Among its victims was the 'Squire's brother, who during his whole life had known neither sickness nor disease. He was prostrated at once and never rallied. The good minister before mentioned, who well knew the family history, unmoved by that fear of infection which made him a solitary watcher, took his stand by the bed of the dying man and vainly endeavored to draw his thoughts to the eternity which was fast opening before him. His pious words fell upon dull, unlistening ears, but, as he touched upon the duty of forgiveness and cautiously alluded to his well-known hatred of the deceased Mrs. H——, the effect was appalling; all apathy vanished, and though a few minutes before apparently past the power of speech, yet now the sick man broke out into fierce imprecations, and by a last supreme effort raising himself upright in the bed, exclaimed: "I know that I am dying; but mark my last words, if, when I am dead, you dare to bury me in the same vault with that accursed woman, the living as well as the dead shall hear of me!" He fell back with a frightful oath on his lips and expired. The horror-struck minister kept close in his own breast this dreadful death of one he had known so long, and thought it more kind, as well as more prudent, to keep the poor 'Squire in ignorance of his brother's last hours. As was the invariable custom in the H—— family, the body, after lying in state for a time, was consigned with much pomp and ceremony to the family vault, and was placed next to the coffins of the 'squire's wife and daughter. That very night the villagers living near the church yard were disturbed by doleful shrieks and cries proceeding from the vault—a noise of strife and struggling and blows, as if of enemies engaged in close fight. The next morning at daylight the strange tale was carried to the rectory, and the good clergyman thought it best, under the circumstances, to disclose to the 'Squire his brother's last fearful words and threats, and to suggest the opening of the vault. To this the 'Squire, greatly shocked, consented, and the vault was unlocked and entered by a party sent to examine into the cause of the strange noises heard the night before. A scene perfectly inexplicable met their eyes. The coffins of the 'Squire's lady and daughter were lying in a far corner of the vault, the young girl's coffin across her mother's, as if to protect it. Close to them, standing erect and menacing was the coffin of the 'Squire's brother, so recently and decorously placed upon black trestles. Amazement seized the bystanders, but under the superintendence of proper people the coffins were restored to their original places and the vault was again closed up. At night the noises began again; the sound of blows, shrieks of pain, and a frightful contention of struggling enemies appalled the party of villagers set to watch the place, in order to prevent the possibility of deception. The tale was whispered far beyond the precincts of the village, and savans from the neighboring city, who laughed at the idea of anything supernatural, suggested that an explosion of gas from the foul air of the vault might have occasioned the displacement of the coffins. The 'Squire was induced to have ventilators placed in the vault; but this did not in the least abate the nuisance, which to terror of the village rather increased than diminished. At length the 'Squire himself resolved that a strong brick wall should be built up in the vault, so as to separate effectually the coffins of those who even in the solitude of the tomb seemed to keep up their antagonism. This had the desired effect; from that moment all was quiet in the vault, and the noise was never heard again; but for a long time afterward the strange story was current in Lincolnshire. —Atlantic.

Cats to be Used as a Substitute for Carrier Pigeons.

It seems that the Belgians have formed a society for the mental and moral improvement of cats. Their first effort has been to train the cat to do the work of a carrier pigeon. The most astute and accomplished scientific person would have his ideas of locality totally confused by being tied up in a meal-bag and carried twenty miles from home and let out in a strange neighborhood in the middle of the night. The experiment has, however, been tried upon cats of only average abilities, and the invariable result has been that the departed animal has reappeared at his native kitchen door the next morning, and calmly ignored the whole affair. This wonderful skill in traveling through unfamiliar regions without a guide-book or a compass has suggested the possibility of cats being used as special messengers. Recently, thirty-seven cats residing in the city of Liege were taken in bags a long distance into the country. The animals were liberated at two o'clock in the afternoon. At 6:48 the same afternoon one of them reached his home. His feline companions arrived at Liege somewhat later; but it is understood that within twenty-four hours every one had reached his home. It is proposed to establish, at an early day, a regular system of cat communication between Liege and the neiboring villages.

Miss Wharton's Pie.

Miss Margaret Wharton was a lady of good family and large fortune. She was one of the Whartons of Skeleton Castle, Cleveland, and possessed £200,000, half of which she gave to a nephew. She was well known in Scarborough, where she used to send out for "a pennyworth of cream" and "a pennyworth of strawberries," always paying her penny down. From this little peculiarity she became known as Peg Pennyworth. On one occasion, while in Scarborough, she had a meat-pie made; it was very large, as it was for herself, some visitors, and the servants. She ordered her footman to take it to the bake-house. He refused, saying it was not consistent with his dignity to be seen dressed in plush and tags, carrying a meat-pie. Mistress Peg then desired the coachman to take it; but he also declined. "Bring out the carriage," was the command. The carriage was harnessed, the coachman donned his powdered wig, and mounted the box; the footman ascended behind, and Mistress Margaret Wharton sitting in state in the carriage, bore the meat-pie on her lap. "Drive to the bake-house," was her command. In an hour or two, the same state being observed, the pie was brought back. "Now," she said to the coachman, "you have kept your place, which is to drive; and you," turning to the footman, "have kept yours, which is to wait; and now we will all have some of the pie."—Chamber's Journal.

A Successful Spellist.

Any one who has seen the rivalry of the contestants in a western spelling-school will appreciate this incident from Edward Eggleston's reminiscences of his schooldays, published in the March Scribner. He says:

It was in the same old Bethel school-house, about the same time, that the master, one Benefiel, called out the spelling class of which my mother, then a little girl, was usually at the head. The word given out was "onion." I suppose the scholars at the head of the class had not recognized the word by its spelling in studying their lessons. They all missed it widely, spelling it in the most ingeniously incorrect fashions. Near the foot of the class stood a boy who had never been able to climb up toward the head. But of the few words he did know how to spell, one was "onions." When the word was missed at the head he became greatly excited, twisting himself into the most ludicrous contortions as it came nearer and nearer to him. At length the one just above the eager boy missed, the master said "next," whereupon he exultingly swung his hand above his head and came out with "O-n, un, i-o-n, yun, ing-un,—I'm head, by gosh!" and he marched to the head while the master hit him a blow across the shoulders for swearing.

Bearding the Lion in His Den.

An Englishman writes to the London Standard a mournful letter upon the invasion of the British markets by American manufacturers. He found in his travels that American calicoes and cotton had superseded the same style of English goods on the Continent. Coming home he found his ironmonger selling American spades, saws, chisels, hammers and axes, and other dealers with stocks of American locks, bolts, stoves and lamps. American leather is sent to England to be made up into shoes. English carriages are built out of materials which have crossed the Atlantic. Slates are now quarried in the United States to roof English homes. "My grocer, my butterman, and probably my butcher," says this writer, "deal largely in American goods of all kinds;" even the cigarettes which he smokes are made in Richmond, Va., and the pen with which he writes comes not from Birmingham, but from an American manufactory.

Powerful Explosives.

Gun-cotton is prepared by dipping cellular tissue, viz., cotton, sawdust, or printing paper, in strong nitric acid (aquafortis). It is then to be carefully washed and dried. It is not materially changed in appearance. It explodes at the heat of boiling water (212 degrees). It explodes with much greater violence and suddenness than gunpowder, and for that reason is more liable to burst the gun. See what a power sleeps in our ignorance. Take a saw and cut up a bit of deal board—a bit of dried pine board. Make a teacup full of sawdust. Steep this in a saucer full of aquafortis, dry slowly at a distance from fire, and this single cupful of compound, filled into a tin vessel and inserted in the basement wall of a building, will, when exploded, blow it to pieces.

DID you ever see a house fly? If so, it must have been in a house with wings.

The Desert Pirates.

On the 14th of March, 1878, Mr. Grattan Geary left Bombay for the Persian gulf, with the intention of traversing the Sultan's dominions, and learning for himself the actual condition of affairs resulting from the Turkish system of government, complicated by the withdrawal of Turkish garrisons from Asia Minor and the defeat of the Turkish armies in Europe. Traveling by himself, and over routes seldom traversed except by large parties well protected, he saw and conversed with people of various races and ranks. The chief dangers to which he was exposed were the plundering Arabs and Kurds, whom the absence of the regular troops emboldened to rob and terrorize all the country outside the principal towns.

At Muscat, the capital of Oman, in Arabia, he found a city with streets so narrow that no four-footed animals larger than cats or dogs could pass through them, notwithstanding that the place has 40,000 inhabitants and a considerable trade. The bazaars are covered over, and are thronged with Bedouins fresh from the desert. All were armed to the teeth. A favorite weapon is a straight, two-handed sword, the sweep of which would take off a man's thigh. The swordsmen carried over their shoulders small, round shields of rhinoceros-hide. Half a century ago a small number of the "Beni Bou Ali" were attacked by an English officer and 350 troops, when the Bedouins rushed upon their assailants, and cut down 200 of them in the twinkle of an eye. This led to a large expedition being sent from Bombay, which succeeded in defeating the swordsmen. The British resident at Muscat has a finger very often in local insurrections, and summons a war-ship now and then to the aid of the imaum, or governor. Not many years ago the gunboat Teaser fired over the town at a crowd of Bedouins who had taken a position on the hills near the city, with the intention of sacking it. The Arabs said the shells had eyes, and could see where to fall, since they were out of view of the ship behind the hills. The fire was really directed by signals from an old Portuguese tower on the summit of one of the hills. A shell fell in a field and did not explode, whereupon it was surrounded by the Bedouins, one of whom struck its percussion cap with a spear, being determined to put out its "eye," the eye by which it had seen its way to their position. Eleven of their tribe paid the penalty for this singular piece of vindictiveness. Two forts, called Jalali, or the Glorious, and Mirani, the name of a Biluchee governor, protect the roadstead. At times these forts are on bad terms, and blaze away at each other across the harbor and in front of the town, to the great detriment of business. Fort Jalali not long ago fired on the town promiscuously until brought to reason by an English gun-boat. "Oman" means "security," or "settled peace."

Mr. Geary's adventures and observations have been issued in book form under the title "Through Asiatic Turkey."

Army Gallantry.

President Bartlett selects one incident from the Cheyenne massacre, the killing of an aged Indian woman, as especially disgraceful. "This is a piece of army gallantry," he says, "that would be greatly relieved by some adequate explanation. The seven hits on one person prove the victim to have been a good mark near at hand. No doubt her 60 years made her slow of foot. Her 'squaw's' attire would have indicated the attack to be eminently safe." The fact that she received seven bullets makes President Bartlett ask, "Did the same soldier bring down his victim at the first fire, and then empty seven other chambers upon her prostrate frame, as he would crush a snake? Or did six comrades finish the manly work? Or did the whole seven overtake her as she halted along or hid herself behind some place of shelter, and jointly slay her in cold blood?"

The Winning Figures.

Before the drawing of the French lottery, Mr. R. Dent, of London, predicted to the managers that the series 0, 1, 2, 3 and 4 would furnish many more prizes than the series 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9. His prediction was abundantly verified by the result, as witness the growlings of holders of tickets of the later and less lucky issues. The numbers are attached to the edge of the wheel in the same sort of composition that is used for the figures on clock dials, which has a definite thickness nearly that of fine tracing paper. Mr. Dent cut out of such paper the block letters, all the same size, and weighed the series 0, 1, 2, 3, 4, against 5, 6, 7, 8, 9. There was a considerable excess of weight in the second series, and the machinery was so beautifully made that this excess proved quite sufficient to account for the preponderance of the heavier numbers and the appearence of the lighter ones.

An English Confidence Game.

An English confidence man, once a country gentleman, and well known at the cover-side and in the betting ring, contrived an ingenious way of making a dishonest living. He watched the papers for the deaths of noblemen and wealthy gentlemen, and dispatched to them, as if they were still alive, confidential letters, generally running in this way: "My Dear Bob: You know I am now down in the world, and nothing but the pinch of poverty compels me to ask for the settlement of that small debt of honor standing so long," etc. This precious letter, of course, was opened by the executors, and in many cases the swindler was successful in obtaining large sums.

A MINISTER in New Cumberland, O., came near making a bad tangle of a wedding one night last week. The first bridesmaid and her escort entered the room, and the latter handed him the license. The minister, supposing that this was the couple to be joined, began the ceremony, and before the young people fairly knew what he was about came to the words "I pronounce you." A physician hastily interrupted the proceedings by bellowing in the good man's ear that he was marrying the wrong couple. The bridesmaid fell in a swoon, and her escort remarked grimly that it was almost too close a shave to be pleasant.

LINES ON THE DONKEY.

The donkey is a pretty bird,
So gentle and so wise;
It has a silky little tail
With which to whisk the flies.
Upon its head two ears it bears,
So silky, long and nice,
That when its tail can't whisk the flies
The ears can whisk them off.

HUMOROUS.

A PAIR of specs— :—Rome Sentinel.

THE small boy is never proud of his tore clothes.

GOOD song for a singing bee—"Hum, hum; there's no place like comb."

ACKNOWLEDGING the corn—A corn-cession.—Boston Transcript.

A GOOD place to get a husband—By the ear.—Meriden Recorder.

LEGEND of a Newark grocery: "Sault macurel 10 cents doz."

ALL good wives ought to like Boston, because it is such an excellent hub —Boston Globe.

THE man who carries his railroad ticket in his hat-band makes a fare display.

IF death loves a shining mark, why isn't the mortality greater among the boot-blacks?

THE old schoolmaster, faithful over a few things, holds the ruler over many.—New Orleans Picayune.

THE man who is waiting for something to turn up generally finds it when he steps on a barrel-hoop.

ON leaving a room make your best salam to persons present, and retire without salaming the door.

PERFUMED arrows are now used by the English archery clubs. Arrows by another name would smell as sweet.—N. Y. Graphic.

"A LITTLE slice of spring weather sandwiched between two solid bars of winter," is the best description that we can give of the weather for a month back.

"THE only reason I got my ears boxed," said Johnny, "was 'cause when mother said a neighbor had borrowed a hen of her, I said the Lent hen season had arrived."

THEY were walking by the sad sea waves, when Theodore picked up a stranded vegetable, remarking, "This is what the poet calls a sea beet, sure." They now meet as strangers.

He put his arms around her waist
And swore an awful swore,
And as he jerked it off again
He said,
I've felt that pin-afore.

—Puck.

A MARRIAGE notice in an exchange commences "Lynch-Pynn," which is quite appropriate for a married couple, as any felloes can see.—Jersey City Journal.

NEVER be discouraged by trifles. A Eureka rounder will strike nineteen men in succession for a half-dollar, and compromise with the twentieth for a bit drink.—Eureka, Nevada, Leader.

WHEN electric lights supersede kerosene, newspapers will be filled with interesting descriptions of enterprising domestics blowing up cook stoves with a streak of lightning.—Norr. Herald.

A MAN never realizes the beauties of this world till he drops two square inches of thoroughly buttered toast on the polished side of a newly-laundried shirt bosom.—Oswego Record.

"NOW, there abideth these things which every man can do better than any one else: Poke a fire, put on his own hat, edit a newspaper, tell a story after another man has begun it, examine a railway time-table.

TONGUES cannot tell the words or express the astonishment of the crippled soldier in Connecticut who awoke to find his wife using his wooden leg to pound the beefsteak for breakfast.—Danielsville Sentinel.

AN out of town man, traveling in a street car, pulled the bell strap vigorously and made the bell ring at each end. "What are you ringing at both ends for?" said the conductor. "Because I wish the thing to stop at both ends."

WHEN little Thomas stops to toy with berries, jam and jelly cake, no art can soothe the chastened boy—no nostrum ease his stomach-ache. And if the griping pains defy the medicines prescribed to foil, his parents will do well to try the limped, liquid castor oil.

SAID a Jersey boy, "Ma, why do they call that the pole star?" "Because it is always exactly over the pole." "Then, ma, that must be the top of the circus." By which the youth probably meant, if he meant anything, that this world is all a fleeting show.

YOUNG Smith—They say the Middlesex and Jerusalem bank is smashed. Old Brown—Bosh! I happen to know the contrary. Young Smith—Really! Then it must be the Middlesex and something else; but I do thing there should be some way of punishing the idiots who go spreading these reportes about—Punch.

THERE is a certain pathos mingled with the politeness of the little boy, who, on being asked by his Sunday-school teacher who made these everlasting hills by which we are surrounded, replied: "I really don't know, sir. I have only lived in the village about 10 days, and haven't yet made any acquaintance."—Christian at Work.

A CITIZEN went into a Norwich hardware store the other day and invited: "How much do you ask for a bath-tub for a child?" "Three dollars and seventy-five cents," was the reply. "W-h-e-w!" whistled the customer, "Guess we'll have to keep on washing the baby in the coal scuttle, till prices come down.—Norwich Bulletin.

Why Chinamen's Coats Have Five Buttons.

Why does the mantle of our national costume have five buttons, neither more nor less? This number was not fixed upon capriciously, nor because of fashion. We Chinese wear it solely that we may keep in sight something to remind us of the five principal moral virtues which Confucius reccomend to us so earnestly. These are: jen, y, ly, tche and sin; that is to say: jen, humanity; y, justice; ly, order; tche, prudence, and sin, rectitude, uprightness. You will perceive that humanity stands before all the other virtues. When one has humanity, he knows and feels that the unfortunate are to be respected; he does not add trouble to trouble, sorrow to sorrow, or misfortune to misfortune.—Sunday Afternoon for March.

FRUIT HOUSE BULLETIN

Great Reduction in Goods.

Syrups and Molasses all down ten cents per gallon.
Coffees reduced another two cents per pound.
Leghorn Citron down fifteen cents per pound.
Zantee Currents down five cents per pound.
Best Teas reduced 10 cents per pound.
Candies down three cents per pound.
Sugars all down one cent per pound.
Raisins down three cents per pound.

ALL REDUCED 10 and 20 per cent.

Rio Coffee.

The very best, 15 cents per pound. Second grade, 11 cents per lb. Roasted coffee, 15 cts., best 20 cts. per lb.

Teas! Teas!

At no time in the history of the trade have Teas been so low. Another decline of 10c. per lb. brings the best of Teas within the reach of all. We now sell a good Tea for 20c. A choice extra drawing Tea for 40 and 50c, and the best Tea in the market for 70c. Young Hyson, 20, 40, best 70c., Imperial 40, best 70c., Oolong 20, 40, best 70c., Uncolored Jxpan 20, 40, best 60c., Gunpowder, eatra choice, 40, best 50 and 70c. per pound

Sugars Down 1c.

Coffee A Sugar 8c, Extra C 7 c, Yellow 6c, Grushed, Powdered and Granulated 9 cents.

Raisins, Currents, Citron, Lemon and Orange Peel,

Down 3 to 10c. per lb., best Valencia Raisins 8c., choice Zantee Currants 6c., best Leghorn Citron 15c, Lemon and Orange Peel 20c., Sicily shelled Almons 40c., Brazil Nuts 10c., Filberts 12c., Texas Peacans 10c

Toy Candies of all Descriptions.

Apples, Pears, Plums, Apricots, and the finest Candies at 25c per lb. Last year they were sold at 40c. Choice French mixed candy 15c, and the best stick candy 12½c. 3ct. reduction on candy.

Tobaccos.

Good plug 40c., best 50c. Twin Brothers 65c. Smoking 30c., best 35c. Golden Shorts, finest goods 35c. Uncle Ned, Fancy Turkish 45c.

Fish Oil and Neat's Foot Oil Down 15 cents per Gallon.

Best Fish Oil 70c, and Neat's Foot Oil 70c; Machine Oil 20c, best 40c. Coal Oil 12½c, Head Light 18c

CIGARS—In ½ boxes, full boxes and one-fourth boxes, extra choice Cigars $1.25 per 100; good Havanas $2, best $3 per 100

Fresh Oysters.

12 per can. Select Frying 17c and 2c8 per can. Cove Oysters 5c ents per can.

We are doing a rushing trade, continually increasing, and we guarantee our customers a saving of at least 20c. on the dollar at the

FORT WAYNE FRUIT HOUSE.

Family Groceries!

LANNING' SPRICE LIST.

TEAS! TEAS!

Young Hyson	60c very best	70c
Imperial	" "	65c
Japan	" "	60c
Oolong	" "	50c
Gun Powder	" "	40c

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Arbuckels' [Roasted]	23c per lb.
Rio	15c very best 18c " "

SUGARS! SUGARS!

White	10½ pounds for one dollar
Extra C	12 " " "
Grocers C	14 " " "

White Beans per lb. 3½c., Dried Peaches per lb. 6c., Hominy per lb. 3c., Cranberries per qt. 8c., Dried Sweet Corn 13 lbs. for $1.00, Oat Meal 7 lbs. for 25c., cucumber Pickles per doz. 8c. Besides a complete stock of Confectioneries, Canned Fruits, Soaps, Notions, Flour, Butter, Eggs, Syrups, &c., &c.

Goods delivered at all times.

Geo. L. Lanning.

Davenport the Druggist.

Pure Drugs and Medicines,
Choice Soaps and Perfumery,
Excellant Combs and Brushes,
Fine Hair Oils and Pomades

ALL SOLD AND WARRANTED BY

DAVENPORT THE DRUGGIST

Also a splendid stock of Stationery Goods, such as

Wall Paper, Window Shades, Pocket Books,
School Books, Blank Books, Pens, Pencils,
Inks, Mucilage, Stationery, Gold Pens, etc.

All to be sold at the lowest prices by.

Davenport the Druggist, Auburn, Ind.

8-31-1yr.

Three Chapters in a Boy's Life.

CHAPTER I.—"IT'S A BOY."

His advent is heralded in the brief but strong sentence just quoted. No matter what hopes have been indulged concerning girl babies, there is something in the pithy announcement, "It's a boy," which dispels all fanciful dreams and sets everybody squarely on a prose basis. His very voice, as it utters a defiant warwhoop to the grand army of humanity, tells the story to expectant ears. The visions of a dainty girl darling very soon vanishes before this positive piece of prose, who kicks his sturdy heels through delicate pink socks intended for his sister, and who grows red as a turkey cock's head at Thanksgiving times when he is expected to show off to a good advantage before callers. He persists in an abnormal development of nose and a puffiness about the eyes, along with several other little tricks known only to interested parties. Parents and nurses become reconciled and accept them on trust, seeing no other alternative. He emerges from his puffy and rosy obstinacy to a roly-poly, wide awake thing of beauty, which is a joy fully one-half of the time. There is a process from infancy to little boyhood, a sweet time, when the man-child is half baby, half angel. In the clear depths of his innocent eyes is a world of trust and hope and love. His white brow is fair as a freshly-opened lily, and his lips as sweet as hermosa roses. He is most witching at this age, for the peculiarities which mark the infant terrible are yet undeveloped. He is an armful of love and beauty and promise and dread and hope. Love him while yet there is no guile on the tender lips, no sin in the unwritten soul, no touch of the world's breath upon God's finished work.

CHAPTER II.—"GIT UP OLD HORSEY!"

"Mercy, what a noise! Look at that chair, with a string tied on the arms and made fast to the writing desk and flower stand, all to be driven tandem by that young imp in kilt shirt and fancy hat and shoes! Who upset that work basket? and good gracious, what work has been made with my wool and thread! There's the Graphic torn to scraps and stuffed in the cuspidore with my screw-driver that I lost a week ago. What is he doing with that cat? and, dear me, if he hasn't thrown drandma's spectacles into tue grate.

Where's Harry? Run to the kitchen and see. All the eggs are broken in the basket of folded clothes, and the milk for pudding has been fed the cat and dog. Bridget Lannigan is in a towering rage, and says, "Phat's the use of shlavin to kape clane wid such a young devil furninst ye? Miss Frigidity Fussbunch calls, and is horrified by being requested to "be a horse and let Harry ride straddle to Boston." She is questioned, also, on many delicate points. He gets very close to her and asks what that white stuff on her face is, and what makes her wear such a funny little hat.

A few years of this juvenile terror and then appears another stage of the boy. He gets a fever only appeased by marbles. It is useless to head off this phase; if it is shut off in one direction it breaks out more violently in some other It goes through a period of six or seven years and costs much in anxiety, broken window-panes and mortified pride. He is afflicted with rats, pigeons and other boyish complaints, which are harmless, but annoying. He brings in dirty steel traps to amuse his sick sister, who grows worse under it, and in his solitude he straps his legs fast to six feet of stilts and stoops to enter the door of her room, to the horror and dismay of his mother. He brings little notes home from school, which he tries to explain in a favorable light, but fails to convince his parents that it was "only because Bill Wilson dropped his slate on Abe Hennegan's toes and made me laugh." He carves his awkward initials on old Mrs. Williams' cellar door, and she threatens his arrest. He goes to see "Humpty Dumpty," and comes home and throws real brickbats at his aunt, and Bridget is met with a battering blow from his head when she is bringing in the coal. He makes life a burden and home a snare and delusion. He tears the comforts in more ways than one, and slits the pillow cases to match them. Gradually he leaves off the hurly-burly life and imperceptibly glides into

CHAPTER III.—"WHERE'S MY BLUE TIE?"

"Where is the blacking brush?" I am going to a little surprise and won't be home till 11. Is my parcale shirt done up nice? I wish you'd make my collars stiffer. I don't thank some one for throwing my coat down and getting it wrinkled all up. How do you like this hat? Think it looks better than my soft one?" You will find the pigeon boxes all deserted about this period, not a rat trap cumbers the back yard. The woodshed theatricals are all ended; the stilts are put away; kites forgotten; window glass is in perfect safety. The dust has filled up the rude initials in Mrs. Williams' cellar door, and there is an uninvited quiet all around the house. Chairs stay in their places, and pantaloons will no longer bear cutting over for the boy. He gets them now out of new stuff, and mother's "cut will not satisfy him. He is not in the way now, and there is a heavy pain in mother's heart as she thinks that he will never need her much any more. The innocent eyes have a deeper meaning in them now. They have taken into their depths the reflection of a face younger than mother's, and life begins to look real to them.

The world is full of homes where these pictures will be recognized and hung up as family portraits—homes where there are no sounds of young voices now. They grow away into the great world so soon, and we put away the nameless feeling of desolation as we do the cast off toys of their childhood; and when the evening of life approaches the heart goes back along the line of time, and is once more with the children in the dear old long ago.

◆

A Remarkable Result.

It makes no difference how many physicians, or how much medicine you have tried, it is now an established fact that German Syrup is the only remedy which has given complete satisfaction in severe cases of lung disease. It is true there are yet thousands of persons who are predisposed to throat and lung affections, consumption, hemorrhages, asthma, severe colds settled on the breast, pneumonia, whooping cough, &c., who have no personal knowledge of Boschee's German Syrup. To such we would say that 50,000 dozen were sold last year without one complaint. Consumptives, try just one bottle. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by Wm. McIntyre & Son.

Why Many Editors are Skeptics.

In the following the Rev. T. Dewitt Talmage undertakes to explain the reason why so many newspaper men are skeptics:

One of the greatest trials of the newspaper profession is that its members are compelled to see more of the shams of the world than any other profession. Through every newspaper office day after day, all the wickedness of the world; all the vanities that want to be repaid; all the mistakes that want to be corrected; all the dull speakers who want to be thought eloquent; all the meanness that wants to get its words noticed gratis in the editorial columns, in order to save the tax of the advertising columns; all the men who want to be set right who were never right; all the cracked brain philosophers with stories as long as their hair, and as gloomy as their finger nails in mourning because bereft of soap—all the bores who come to stay minutes, but talk five hours.

Through the editorial and reportorial rooms all the follies and shams of the world are seen day after day and the temptation is to believe neither God, man or woman. It is no surprise to me that in this profession there are some skeptical men; I only wonder that journalists believe anything.

◆

The beautiful extract below is from the pen of Hon. George S. Hillard:—"I confess that increasing years bring with them an increasing respect for men who do not succeed in life, as those words are commonly used. Heaven is said to be a place for those who have not succeeded upon earth; and it is surely true celestial graces do not best thrive and bloom in the hot blaze of worldly prosperity. Ill success sometimes arises from a superabundance of qualities in themselves good—from a conscience too sensitive, a taste too fastidious, a self forgetfulness too romantic, a modesty too retiring. I will not go so far as to say, with a living poet, that 'the world knows nothing of its greatest men,' but there are forms of greatness or at least excellence, which 'die and make no sign,' there are martyrs that miss the plan but not the stake; heroes without the laurel, and conquerors without the triumph."

◆

A Beautiful Retrospect.

When the summer day of youth is slowly wasting away into the nightfall of age, and the shadows of the past year grow deeper and deeper as life wears to a close; it is pleasant to look back through the vistas of time upon the joys and sorrows of early years. If we have a home to shelter, or hearts to rejoice with us and friends who have been gathering around our fireside, then the rough places of our wayfaring will be worn and smoothed away in the twilight of life, while the bright sunny spots we have passed through will grow brighter and more beautiful. Happy, indeed, are those whose intercourse with the world has not changed the course of their holier feeling, or broken those musical chords of the heart whose vibrations are so melodious so tender and so touching in the evening of age.

◆

It's a deep mystery—the way the heart of a man turns to one woman out of all the rest he's seen in the world, and makes it easier for him to work seven years like Jacob did for Rachel, sooner than having any other woman for the asking. I often think of those words, "and Jacob served seven years for Rachel; and they seemed but a few days for the love he had for her."—Geo. Eliott.

◆

The compositor who was told he might, when setting up a speech, insert "loud applause" or "cheers" in order to fill out a line, was summarily discharged when he made the application general, and set up an obituary notice as follows: "The announcement was made yesterday, that our highly respected citizen, Mr. ——, fell down dead in the street—(loud applause," etc.

◆

A lady taking tea at a small company, being very fond of hot rolls, was asked to have another. "Really, I cannot," she modestly replied; "I don't know how many I have eaten already." "I do," unexpectedly cried a juvenile upstart, whose mother had allowed him a seat at the table. "You've eaten eight; I've been countin'!"

◆

Josh Billings says there are four styles of mind:
1st, Them who knows it's so!
2nd, Them who know it aint so!
3d, Them who split the difference and guess at it!
4th, Them who don't care a darn what way it is!

◆

A shrewd but unenlightened school director out west used to say, on examining a candidate for the post of teacher, "We all know that a b c is vowels, but we want to know why they is vowels."

◆

"I am certain, madam, that I am right and that you are wrong; I'll bet my ears on it." "Indeed, sir, you shouldn't carry betting to such extreme lengths."

◆

A city missionary was asked the cause of his poverty. "Principally," said he, with a twinkle of the eye, "because I have preached so much without notes."

◆

"What death would you prefer to die?" said one person to another. "I don't exactly know: I should like to try seven or eight before deciding the point."

◆

A young lady of sixteen, who had worn short dresses all her life, positively told her mamma she would wear them no longer.

HIGHEST REWARD

Cheap Homes in Michigan,

$5 to $10 per Acre.

STRONG SOILS! SURE CROPS!

Railroad through Centre of Lands.

HEALTHY CLIMATE! SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES! INTELLIGENT POPULATION!

These lands are a long distance EAST of the Mississippi River. Large amount saved in travel and transportation of crops.

Descriptive pamphlet in English and German.

Address, W. O. HUGHART, Commissioner,
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

RAILROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R. R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after, Sep. 29 1878, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST.

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accom
Toledo	11 05 a m	12 01 a m	10 p m
Wauseon	12 15 "	1 05 "	"
Bryan	1 05 "	1 52 "	"
Butler	1 48 "	2 25 "	"
Waterloo	2 00 "	2 40 "	"
Sedan	2 12 "	2 50 "	"
Corunna	2 18 "	2 56 "	"
Kendallville	2 30 "	3 05 "	"
Ligonier	3 07 "	3 40 "	"
Goshen	3 38 "	4 10 "	"
Elkhart	4 00 "	4 35 "	4 35 "

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	1 10 p m	9 40 p m	2 05 "
Goshen	1 29 "	10 10 "	"
Ligonier	1 56 "	10 42 "	"
Kendallville	2 20 "	11 18 "
Corunna	2 40 "	11 32 "
Sedan	2 47 "	11 38 "
Waterloo	2 56 "	11 46 "
Butler	3 10 "	12 01 a m
Bryan	3 45 "	12 40 "
Wauseon	4 27 "	1 27 "
Toledo	5 40 "	2 40 "	9 30

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. S. CURTIS, Division Supt.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card Nov. 10, 1878.

GOING WEST.

	No. 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Night ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 13	2 55	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 50	2 26	7 13	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 35	11 23
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 55	2 40
Plymouth	3 50	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 00	7 58

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 20 a.m	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 46	8 55
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 25 pm	11 30
Lima	8 55	4 20	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 27	2 33
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 05
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 15	6 05 am
Mansfield	12 35	7 45	4 55	6 55
Orrville	2 26	9 38	7 00	9 15
Alliance	4 00	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 20 am	11 06	2 00 pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15 pm	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line.

75 Miles Shortest to Indianapolis, Louisville and all points South. 32 Miles the Shortest to St. Louis, Kansas, Texas, and all points West. Direct Route to Detroit and all Michigan and Canada points.

TIME CARD IN EFFECT DEC. 29, '78.

SOUTH.	MAIL.	EX.	ACC.
Bay City	......	6 30am	......
Saginaw	......	7 10am	......
Lansing	......	9 00am	......
Detroit	......	7 10am	2 50pm
Ann Arbor	......	8 30am	4 05pm
Jackson	6 10am	11 42am	5 40pm
Jonesville	7 19am	12 45pm	7 15am
Bankers	7 36am	1 12pm	8 20pm
Waterloo	9 08am	2 56pm	11 3 pm
Auburn	9 46am	3 00pm	11 55pm
Auburn Junc.	9 52am	3 05pm	12 01am
Ft. Wayne	10 45am	3 56pm	1 25am
Indianapolis	3 15pm	10 55pm	......
Cincinnati	9 20pm	......	......
Louisville	10 25pm	8 20am	......
St. Louis	7 35am	7 30am	......
Washington	......	8 10pm	......
Baltimore	......	9 10pm	......

NORTH.	X.	EX.	ACC.
Baltimore	......	7 10am	......
Washington	......	9 27am	......
St. Louis	8 00am	7 00pm	......
Louisville	8 00pm	6 50pm	......
Cincinnati	......	......	8 00am
Indianapolis	6 55pm	4 30am	......
Ft. Wayne	5 00am	11 40am	4 30pm
Auburn Junc.	5 54am	12 30pm	6 05pm
Auburn	6 00am	12 35pm	6 10pm
Waterloo	6 14am	12 46pm	6 25pm
Bankers	8 05am	2 22pm	10 10pm
Jonesville	8 18am	2 39pm	10 35pm
Jackson	9 25am	3 45pm	12 30am
Ann Arbor	10 44am	5 10pm	2 05am
Detroit	12 0 am	6 30pm	3 35am
Lansing	......	5 55pm	......
Saginaw	......	8 13pm	......
Bay City	......	10 00pm	......

All trains daily except Sunday. Through tickets to all principal points. For information as to routes and connections apply to

F. B. LOOMIS, Pres't & Gen'l Mang'r.
S. K. HOOPER, Gen'l Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT Nov. 10 1878.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Fa't Line	Express	Com'l A
lv New York	9 05pm	8 1 pm
Philadelphia	11 30	11 45
Baltimore	7 10am	6 15pm
Washington	8 35	7 30
Wheeling	11 15pm	8 05am	4 05 pm
Bellaire	11 50	8 50	4 40
Barnesville	12 59am	10 0	6 01
Cambridge	1 55	11 10	7 04
Zanesville	3 10	12 20pm	8 17
ar Newark	4 15	1 25	9 25
Columbus	5 50	3 10	11 00
Shawnee	9 35	4 35	mixed
lv Columbus	11 00pm	12 25	5 00 pm
Newark	4 25am	2 10	7 15
Mt Vernon	5 24	3 05	11 00
Mansfield	6 50	4 25
Shelby	7 18	4 58
Monroeville	9 10	6 08
ar Sandusky	10 00	7 00
lv Chicago Junction	8 15	6 00	5 20 a
Republic	8 54	6 45	6 25
Tiffin	9 12	7 09	8 20
Fostoria	9 35	7 40	9 55
Deshler	10 32	8 45	1 24 pm
Defiance	11 [illegible]	9 49	4 45
Hicksville	12 14pm	10 40	6 18
Auburn Junction	12 50	1 22	7 35
Garrett	1 25	11 40	6 30 am
Avilla	1 40	11 55	7 10
Albion	2 10	12 21am	7 58
Milford Junction	3 00	1 12	9 50
Walkertown Junction	4 12	2 23	12 51 pm
Chicago	7 05	5 40

GOING EAST

Chicago	8 50am	9 40pm
Walkertown Junction	12 10pm	1 [illegible]am	10 42am
Milford Junction	1 20	2 24	2 20pm
Albion	2 10	3 10	4 25
Avilla	2 34	3 30	5 20
Garrett	3 16	3 55	4 40am
Auburn Junction	3 23	4 03	5 00
Hicksville	4 00	4 42	6 25
Defiance	4 48	5 27	8 50
Deshler	5 42	6 28	12 12pm
Fostoria	6 40	7 25	2 32
Tiffin	7 09	7 54	3 42
Republic	7 29	8 18	4 30
Sandusky	7 10	7 45	10 40am
Monroeville	8 [illegible]	8 30	12 15pm
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 30	1 45
Shelby Junction	9 15	10 06	3 05
Mansfield	9 43	10 31	4 25
Mt. Vernon	11 13	12 05pm	7 18
Ar Newark	12 15a m	1 10	9 10
lv Columbus	5 50	3 10
Shawnee	4 50	9 55am
Newark	12 35am	1 55pm	6 00am
Lv Zanesville	1 40	2 57	7 13
Cambridge	2 36	3 52	8 14
Barnesville	3 35	4 58	9 18
Ar Bellaire	4 50	6 10	10 40
Wheeling	5 25	6 55	11 30
Washington	8 00pm	7 30am
Baltimore	9 10	8 40
Philadelphia	2 20am	1 45pm
New York	6 45	6 45pm

Mixed Accommodation leaves Deshler at 2:38 a. m. daily except Monday, and arrives at Garrett at 9:00 a. m., stopping at all stations.

Figures west of Bellaire inclusive are Columbus time, except at Chicago.

Express trains run daily. Fast Line trains run daily on Central Ohio Division and Main Line; daily except Sunday on Lake Erie and Chicago Divisions. Accommodation trains run daily except Sunday.

L. M. COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect November 10, 1878.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1 Mail.	3 Express
FORT WAYNE	1 00 pm	5 40 pm	......
Bluffton	2 1[illegible] pm	6 38 pm	......
Montpelier	2 52 pm	7 [illegible] pm	......
Hartford	3 17 pm	7 50 pm	......
MUNCIE	4 05 pm	8 30 pm	......
Newcastle	5 00 pm	......	......
Cambridge City	5 37 pm	......	......
Connersville	6 17 pm	......	......
Cincinnati	8 20 pm	......	......
INDIANAPOLIS	6 15 pm	10 00 pm	......
Louisville	11 00 pm	5 20 am	......
Terre Haute	......	1 23 am	......
St. Louis	......	7 30 am	......

STATIONS	GOING NORTH 2 Mail.	4 Express	Accom.
St. Louis	......	8 00 am	7 00 pm
Terre Haute	......	3 17 pm	1 32 am
Louisville	......	2 00 pm	6 30 pm
Indianapolis	......	6 40 pm	4 15 am
Cincinnati	6 00 am	......	......
Connersville	11 15 am	......	......
Cambridge City	11 40 am	......	......
New Castle	12 27 pm	......	......
Muncie	1 25 pm	9 20 pm	6 45 am
Hartford	2 18 pm	10 06 pm	7 47 am
Montpelier	2 40 pm	10 31 pm	8 19 am
Bluffton	3 18 pm	11 09 pm	9 15 am
Fort Wayne	4 25 pm	11 15 am	10 45 am

Trains Nos. 1 and 2 run through between Fort Wayne and Cincinnati without change.

Through cars are attached to trains Nos. 1 and 4 and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, via Muncie.

All trains daily except Sunday.

Trains run on Columbus time.

Geo. W. Mullen, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. Worthington, Gen. Supt.

Detroit Eel River & Illinois R. R.

TAKE EFFECT DEC. 2, 1878.

GOING EAST.

Stations.	MAIL No. 2.	ACCOM. No. 4.	LOCAL FT No. 6.
lv. Logansport	8 30am	7 30pm	6 45am
Mexico	9 15	8 20	7 51
Denver	9 27	9 02	8 44
Chili	9 36	9 12	9 08
Roann	9 55	9 37	9 55
Laketon	10 13	10 00	10 38
N. Manchester	10 25	10 17	11 10
Liberty Mills	10 35	10 30	11 37
Collamar	10 51	10 50	12 20
S. Whitley	10 55	10 55	12 30
Columbia City	11 25	11 31	1 40
Collin's	11 46	11 55	2 25
Churubusco	12 09	12 12	2 55
La Otto	12 25	12 42	3 55
Cedar Creek	12 44	12 58	4 18
Auburn Junct'n	12 50	1 16	4 44
Auburn	12 55	1 17	5 06
Butler	1 20am	2 10am	6 30pm

GOING WEST.

Stations.	No. 1.	No.	No. 7.
Logansport ar	1 10pm	1 [illegible]pm	5 30pm
Mexico	6 31	11 25	3 55
Denver	6 23	11 38	3 30
Chili	6 17	11 27	3 10
Roann	6 02	11 02	2 30
Laketon	5 46	10 25	2 01
North Manchester	5 36	10 13	1 25
Liberty Mills	5 26	10 12	1 00
Collamar	5 15	9 13	12 40
South Whitley	5 11	9 08	12 30
Columbia City	4 48	9 12	11 25
Collin's	4 29	8 46	10 37
Churubusco	4 18	8 20	10 04
La Otto	3 55	7 57	9 01
Cedar Creek	3 43	7 45	8 34
Auburn Junction	3 25	7 23	8 00
Auburn	3 20	7 18	7 18
Butler lv	2 45pm	2 30am	4 30

FRANK J. HECKER,
Gen. Sup't

WOOD'S HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE

Is a monthly, 32-page Scrap Book of the cream of the World's Literature. Single copy, 10c., or $1 per year. An Oil Chromo [illegible] "Yosemite Valley," price, $5; "Pink Shoes," a $1.50 book, in paper binding; "Christian Oakley's Mistake," a $1 book, in paper binding, and a sample copy of "Wood's Household Magazine"—all post-paid, for only 30 cents in money, or in one-cent postage stamps. Agents wanted. Most liberal terms, but nothing sent free. Address S. S. Wood, Tribune Building, New York City

METROPOLITAN RESTAURANT AND Confectionery Establishment

The best brands of oysters always on hand in season, and served to suit customers. Warm meals served at all hours. Day boarders taken at low rates. Fancy candies and fine cigars made specialties.

42-6m. SHERMAN HOLLISTER, Prop.

Portable Mulay Saw Mill,

It makes smooth and even lumber, leaves no stubshot and will cut any sized log up to four feet in diameter. It may be transported from one locality to another and re-erected ready for sawing in from two to three days, and can be made profitable in localities where there is not sufficient timber to justify the erection of a larger mill. Send for descriptive circular, price, etc., to CHANDLER & TAYLOR, Indianapolis, Ind.

Improved and Unimproved FARMS and CITY PROPERTY —IN— MONTGOMERY, LABETTE —AND— Chautauqua Counties.

Cultivated farms in this vicinity, with plenty of good water, convenient to coal and timber, and with

Church, School and Railroad

Advantages can be purchased at as low prices, per acre, as wild lands two or three hundred miles farther west, and far beyond our Coal and Timber districts. This is acknowledged to be one of the most

Extensive Farming Districts

in Kansas. We can consistently advise seekers of homes in the west, to examine our locality before purchasing elsewhere. Business houses, dwellings, and a large number of lots in the city of Coffeyville, at the terminus of the L. L. & G. R. R., either for cash, exchange, or on liberal credit.

We guarantee a good title to all lands sold by us. So if you want to buy, sell or exchange real estate, call on or address, (inclosing stamp or return postage),

J. McCREARY & CO.,
Real Estate Agt's. Coffeyville, Kan.
or, THOS. H. SPROTT, Auburn, Ind

34-1y.

Recorders Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 9. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, MARCH 13, 1879. Number 11.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

THE COURIER CO.

THEODORE REED, Editor

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will be inserted under this head for $5,00 per annum For each additional line 50 cents extra will b charged.

ATTORNEYS.

H. C. Peterson.

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

Guy Plumb,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Office over First National, Bank. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for the Home Insurance Company

A. F. Pinchin

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

Thos. H. Sportt.

REAL ESTATE, COLLECTION AND INSURance Agent. Loans effected on improved farms. Kansas lands for sale or trade.
Auburn, Indiana

D. D. Moody,

ATTORNEY AT LAW, NOTARY PUBLIC Office in Court House. Auburn, Ind.

Best & McClellan,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

PHYSICIANS.

Dr. J. Miller.

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON AND ACCOUCHER. Gunsenhouser's Corners, two miles east of Butler, DeKalb Co, Ind.

Dr. T. G. Mathenу,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, OFFCR ONE Door North of City Bakery, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

Dr. W. S. Allen,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store, Auburn, Ind.

[illegible]

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, OFFICE over McIntyre & Son's, Drug Store, 1st door south of First National Bank, Auburn, Ind.

Dr. T. J. Dills,

Especial attention given to Diseases of the EYE and EAR. Rooms 1 and 2 Odd Fellows' building. Office hours—9:30 to 12 a. m.; 1 to 3 p. m.; 7 to 8 p. m. Fort Wayne, Ind.

Dr. T. W. Tritch.

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block.
Auburn, Indiana.

Dr. S. B. Johnson,

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

D. J. Swarts, M. D.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO DISEASEs of the Eye and Ear. Fistula in Ano, Hemorrhoids or Piles and Chronic Ulcers. Office on Main street, over Shaffer's Furniture Store, Auburn, Ind.

HOTELS.

Mayer House.

Fort Wayne, Indiana Under the Management of W. W. REED, rates, two dollars per day. Street Cars to and from the Pittsburgh, Wabash and Grand Rapids R. R. Depots.
S. DRUBAKER, W. W. REED, JR., } In Office.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

TENTH STREET, EAST OF MAIN. GOOD Sample rooms, and low rates.
T. D. Gross, Prop'r Auburn, Ind.

Sands House,

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished Only $2.00 per day.
GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk. O. SANDS, Proprietor

Tonsorial Artist.

HAIRDRESSING AND SHAVING EXECUted with special care, and in good taste. Room on West Seventh street. WM. EDGINGTON Prop'r. Auburn, Ind.

The Great English Remedy.

GRAY'S SPECIFIC MEDICINE

TRADE MARK. TRADE MARK.

Is especially recommended as an unfailing cure for Seminal Weakness, Spermatorrhea Impotency and and all diseases that follow as a sequence on Self Abuse; as Loss of Memory; Universal Lassitude, Pain in the Back, Dimness of Vision, Premature Old Age, and many other diseases that lead to insanity, consumption and a premature grave, all of which, as a rule, are first caused by deviating from the path of nature and over indulgence. The Specific Medicine is the result of a life study and many years of experience in treating these special diseases.

Before Taking After Taking

Full particulars in our pamphlets, which we desire to send free by mail to every one.

The Specific Medicine is sold by all druggists at $1 per package or 6 packages for $5; will be sent by mail on receipt of the money by addressing THE GRAY MEDICINE CO.
No. 10 Mechanic's Block, Detroit, Mich.

Sold in Auburn by F. E. Davenport, and druggists everywhere.

Recoil of that Chinese Gun.

(Savannah News.)

It is said that the east does not understand the trouble and annoyance to which the Pacific coast is subjected by Chinese immigration. Perhaps not. California and the far west as little understood southern opposition to the enfranchisement of thousands of illiterate blacks just after the war, and yet southern protests had no avail in that section at that time; although no constitutional principle was jeopardized in the matter of the non-enfranchisement of blacks, while in this Chinese immigration question one is disregarded. And it is not that we care specially to champion the Chinese, but only for this latter reason that we are inclined to criticise unfavorably the anti-Chinese immigration bill. It cannot be called a party measure, for democrats and republicans alike voted for and against it, and it finally passed the two houses of congress, one of which is democratic and the other republican. It was passed by both parties only as a means of securing the vote of California in September, but it certainly involved a principle the violation of which cannot result in permanent good to either.

How to Make Hens Lay.

Eggs have now somewhat depreciated in price, but during January and the first half of February they sold at a higher rate than at any former corresponding period that we are aware of, when gold and paper money were of equal value. A correspondent informs us that while on a visit in the fall to a friend, he was surprised to see the number of eggs he daily obtained. He had but sixteen hens and the product per diem averaged thirteen eggs. He had been in the habit of giving on every alternate day a teaspoonful and a quarter of cayenne pepper, mixed with soft food, and took care that each hen obtained her share. The experiment of omitting the pepper was tried when it was found that the number of eggs were reduced each trial from five to six daily. Our correspondent believes that the moderate use of this stimulant not effectually increases the number of eggs, but chickens are wards off diseases to which Telegraph.

Help one Another.

"This little sentence should be written on every heart—stamped on every memory. It should be the golden rule practice, not only in every household, but throughout the world. By helping one another we not only remove the thorns from the pathway and anxiety from the mind, but we feel a sense of pleasure in our hearts, knowing we are doing a duty to a fellow creature. A helping hand or an encouraging word is no loss to us, yet is a benefit to others. Who has not felt the power of a little sentence? Who has not needed the encouragement and aid of a kind friend? How soothing when perplexed with some task that is both difficult and burdensome, to feel a gentle hand on the shoulder, and to hear a kind voice whispering, 'Do not be discouraged; I see your troubles, let me help you.' What strength is inspired, hope created, what sweet gratitude is felt; and the great difficulty dissolves as dew before the sunshine. Yes, let us help one another, by endeavoring to strengthen and encourage the weak; and lifting the burden of care from the weary and oppressed, that life may glide smoothly on, and the fount of bitterness yield sweet waters; and he whose willing hand is ever ready to aid us, will reward our humble endeavors, and every good deed will be 'bread upon the water, to return after many days,' if not to us, at least to those we love."

Indiana Patents.

List of patents issued to citizens of the State of Indiana, March, 4th, 1879, and each bearing date March, 4th, 1879. Furnished this paper by C. Bradford, Solicitor of patents, 18 Hubbard Block, Indianapolis, Ind.

To E. G. Grahn, of Indianapolis, for improvement in Carriage Curtain Fasteners.

To J. P. Karr, of Monticello, for improvement in Bee Hives.

To M. Poss, of Shelbyville, for improvement in Bill Files.

To H. Keyes, of Terre Haute, for improvement in Neck Yoke Straps.

To H. Keyes, of Terre Haute, for improvement in Whiffletree Plates.

To M. VonBeust, of New Albany, for improvement in Combined Breast Pump and Syringe.

To J. F. Wilcok, of Goodland, for improvement in Harrows.

To J. Yenne, of Shoals, for improvement in Brake Levers for Vehicles.

To D. C. M. Barney of Hebron, for improvement in the Manufacture of Brooms.

To H. R. Caine, of Crawfordsville, for improvement in Construction of Buildings.

To G. D. Bailey, of Spiceland, for improvement in Fence Posts.

The Eaters of Morphine.

The morphine eaters, as a class, are the most peculiar I ever dealt with, particularly in their negotiations for their favorite drug. They will undertake anything, will promise anything, to obtain morphine. I remember some years since, when I was in a down town drug store, a young woman came in one morning and ordered a large quantity of toilet goods put up, saying that she was from the country, and that her father, who was out doing some trading would call in and pay for them very soon. Among other things, she ordered an ounce of morphine to be put up with the rest of the goods, but first took a large dose from one of the bottles right there. Then she went out and never returned, while the clerk who sold her the goods waited in vain for the father from the country, and was for months after the butt of various jokes on his confiding nature. I afterwards found that the young woman visited a large number of the drug stores in town, and did the same thing, but she one day tried the game upon one drug store where, after she got the morphine, the proprietor refused to let her go until she paid for the goods. She immediately stepped to a room in the rear of the store and divested herself of a chemise, which she pawned for the morphine taken. I have quit the sale of these drugs, except in filling prescriptions, because I do not care to deal in them, or to suply the people who are addicted to their use.—Cleveland Herald.

A Good Teacher.

A truly good teacher is cheap at any price. A poor one is dear at any price. So, too, if a good one be necessary in any school he becomes equally necessary in every school. Hence two hundred and fifty thousand competent teachers are necessary to supply this country alone. To provide such a host of skilled educators is a far more difficult task than to raise, equip, discipline, and support an army of equal numbers. It is, moreover, a more important undertaking, and necessarily involves a far greater expenditure of time, labor, and money if it is to be well done. [illegible] and cannot be a cheap commodity, because it is not only rare but is a more difficult and higher order of work than any other confined to human hands. The tiller of the soil, the artificer in wood and iron, or even the painter and sculptor, with all their delicacy of conception and refinement of touch, have an easy task in comparison with the true educator who works upon the subtle forces of mind and spirit, seeking to mold his precious materials into the divine symmetry, unity, and beauty of a perfect character. If a high order of talent and skill be required in these lower, perishable forms of human workmanship, how much more should be exacted of those who labor upon imperishable materials, and who are thus shaping the characters of beings destined to a life that knows neither limitation or decay.—Educational Weekly.

Why the Whale Spouts.

Whales swim very swiftly, the spectacle of a whale careering along the surface of the water being one worthy of remembrance. At frequent intervals the whale is seen to "blow," or to "spout"—These terms being applied to indicate the ejection of water, or what looks like that fluid, from the nostrils. In the whalebone whales the nostrils are situated on the top of the head, and are named "blow holes." On the supposition that the water ejected from these apertures consisted of that which as already remarked, is continually being drawn into the mouth, the blowing of these animals appeared to be susceptible of ready explanation. But it was ultimately seen that there was no plain anatomical justification for the idea that water could pass so readily and constantly from the mouth to the nose, while a much more feasible explanation of the "blowing" of these animals can readily be found. Thus the water which is taken into the mouth appears to be strained off, as we have seen, by the whalebone plates, and escapes simply by the sides of the mouth cavity. When, on the other hand, the whale "blows" the animal rises to the surface, the act of "blowing" being is reality the effort of expiration, or "breathing out" the heated air of the lungs preparatory to taking in a fresh breath of air. As the whale begins to blow just before approaching the surface of the water, the efort [illegible] result in the water which lies above the head being carried up into the air in the form of a column or jet; while the heated air of the lungs is expelled when the animal has reached the surface and being condensed by sudden exposure to the outer cold, appears in the from of fine spray or vapor which is exhaled.

Cultivate One Talent.

One talent, well cultivated, deepened and enlarged, is worth a hundred shallow faculties. The first law of success this day, when so many matters are clamoring for attention, is concentration; to bend all the energies to one point, looking neither to the right nor to the left. It has been justly said that a great deal of the wisdom of a man in this century is shown in leaving things unknown; and a great deal of his practical sense in leaving things undone. The day of universal scholars is past. "Life is short, and art is long." The range of human knowledge has increased so enormously, that no brain can grapple with it; and the man who would know one thing well must have the courage to be ignorant of a thousand things, however attractive or inviting. As with knowledge, so with work. The man who would get along must single out his specialty, and into that must pour the whole stream of his activity—all the energies of his hand, eye, tongue, heart and brain. Broad culture, many sidedness, are beautiful things to contemplate; but it is the narrow edge men—the men of single and intense purpose, who steel their souls against all things else—who accomplish the hard work of the world, and who are everywhere in demand when hard work is to be done.

Treatment of Prisoners in Switzerland.

In Switzerland the prisoners who have not been tried, and consequently punished, on presumption of guilt, are most severely treated. They are not only a long time in being brought to trial, but their places of confinement are most cruel. In a visit to one of these prisons in 1818 a man was found shut up in a tower situated in the middle of a river. He was its only human inhabitant. His jailer came three times a day in a boat to examine his chain and bring him food; and his Judges from time to time, as they proceeded in their examinations. He was chained to his bed, from which he could not [illegible] far, and had neither chair, table, nor books. He could indeed see the sky, but that only. He had been in this situation for twelve months, and even then it was not determined whether he was guilty or not. In the same tower was a room, about sixteen feet square, without light altogether, or air, except what passed through a narrow funnel. In this place a man had been on one occasion confined eleven months. In another prison, a large apartment in the tower of an ancient convent, a man was found who had been taken up on suspicion and had been confined for forty eight days. The window was unglazed, but not large enough to admit light. The room was very cold. The straw on which the prisoner lay was almost black with use, and his clothes had not been changed since his confinement. These are, it is to be hoped, singular cases; yet it is in the general treatment of untried prisoners in Switzerland.

Inaccuracy in Conversation.

The tendency of women to exaggerate in conversation, makes them unreliable both as witnesses and relators of facts. Indeed, in narrating what they call "facts" we must be prepared to receive the communication with some allowance for the vivid fancy of the speakers.

This spirit of exaggeration which makes the statements of women so unreliable as a general thing, does not proceed from an inherent love of untruth, or a wilful intention to deceive.

Women are apt to be led away by their feelings, and to color judgment more by passion and prejudice than by calm, cautious view of facts as they are. They "see through a glass darkly," and thus seeing their statements are clouded by error.

They do not pay strict attention to what they hear, and have never trained their minds to deal in facts. They are apt to skim over matters, instead of diving down after the pearl of truth, they deal more with fancy than facts, lacking methodical observations and judgment.

Truth is something well worth attaining, and is attainable by a little trouble and properly disciplining the mind and the tongue. Let every mother, when a young daughter is repeating what purports to be "facts," pin her down to a "plain unvarnished tale," stripping it of all exaggerated expressions and embellishments of fancy. Make her state the truth in its severe simplicity, neither adding to nor taking from, and let it be the truth and nothing but the truth.

Teach her, too, the proper meaning of words and expressions. Let her understand that it is one thing to be "sick," another to be "ill." That a person may be "ugly" without being a "perfect fright." That a man may be "bad" and yet not be "the worst man in the world;" and that you may be "very cold" and yet not be "frozen to death." A bonnet may be "pretty and tasty" and very far from being "perfectly splendid;" and a young man may be "agreeable and prepossessing" and yet it is quite possible, indeed it is more than probable, that he is not at all "divine."

If this system of training the speech is attended to early in life the habit will be acquired by the time maturity is reached of strict veracity in conversation. Things will be represented just as they are and not as they seem to the vivid fancy and careless judgment of the speaker.

Revision of the Bible.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Our readers are aware that leading biblical scholars from all English Protestant denominations have been engaged since 1870 in a revision of King James' version of the Bible. In 1872 the English revisers were joined in the work by American biblical scholars, embracing all Protestant denominations. In two years the whole is expected to be complete—the New Testament within a year and the Old Testament in about two years. The work will then be published and given to the world. The Springfield (Mass.) Republican, to show the accuracy of the work, says:

"As showing the coincident exactness of the scholarship brought to bear on the work it was stated that when the text of the Epistle to the Hebrews made by the English Committee were compared with those made by the American Committee, each working separately, that out of 813 changes 476 were in the very same words by both Committees, and about the same coincidence was noticed in the revision of the Book of Isaiah. No sacrilegious Ulzah has a hand in this great undertaking, but all engaged are actuated by a reverent faith that they are doing God's work and are hastening the time when for all Christians there shall be one Lord, one faith, one baptism."

Some doubt whether any beneficial efforts will follow the revision, as [illegible] that there are defects in the present version, and such acknowledgment is calculated to confuse the mind as to what should be believed. But the changes will not be so material as to impair the continuous narrative or mar in any essential its wonderful harmony and beauty, but rather add to it in those particulars. Biblical scholars have long acknowledged the want of a more accurate version of the original, believing that the minor errors of translation and want of accurate information when the present translation was made have been productive of so much of the want of harmony that prevails among Protestant sects, and deterred in their effects on independent minds.

The fund of biblical information and knowledge has vastly increased since King James' version of the Bible was given to the world. The since acquired knowledge has shown the want of a new and more correct version of the sacred records, one whose acknowledged authenticity would go far to disarm adverse criticism of its power for mischief, and "hasten the time when for all Christians there shall be one Lord, one faith, one baptism." The text of the King James' version was based upon manuscripts, none of which, we are told by biblical scholars, bore an earlier date than the tenth century after Christ The fact, with the long interval between the happening of the events recorded and their reduction to writing, and the carelessness of the scribes, all productive of errors, cast an uncertainty over the version that brightened the interest of all Christains in new discoveries that shed additional light on the Old and New Testaments. The latest discovery was that made less than twenty years ago, and known as the "Codex Sinaiticus," which completed the trio of biblical manuscripts of the highest importance and enduring value. Those three are called the "Codex Vaticanus," which belongs to the Vatican Library, the "Codex Alexandrinus" belonging to England; and the "Codex Sinaiticus," belonging to Russia. M. Tichendorf, in his introduction to his new Testament, thus speaks of those three Codices:

"No single work of ancient Greek classical literature can command three such original witnesses as the Sinaitic, Vatican and Alexandrine manuscripts to the integrity and accuracy of its text."

These and other manuscripts will be used by the Committees in making up their revision, and we think, when their labors shall have been closed and given to the public, the world of Christianity may rejoice and be thankful that the task was undertaken and hapily completed.

MONTICELLO ON THE AUCTION BLOCK.

The Home and the Tomb of the Author of the Declaration of Independence.

Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson, is to be sold by auction. The through passenger from Washington to the South gets a glimpse of this stately old mansion, which commands a fine position away upon the summit of one of the highest and grandest mountains of Albemarle.

Jefferson's birthplace was Shadwell, a town very much like every other Virginia town—its strong points, negroes, tobacco, and sleepiness. The Shadwell of to-day is not greatly changed from the Shadwell of Jefferson's time; and its only glory is that brought to it by association with the name of Jefferson.

After Jefferson had finished his course in the college of William and Mary, he bought this mountain, near Shadwell, and erected one of the most complete and aristocratic mansions in the United States While he was in public life he enjoyed the comforts of this home very little. But when he retired from political prominence it was to a pleasant experience of Monticello. Here, from 1807 until his death in 1826, he spent his days in healtful enjoyment, surrounded by friends.

About three miles distant from Monticello is the University of Virginia, founded by Jefferson. It is a tradition in Shadwell that the retired statesman spent much time daily in watching through a telescope from his mountain home the erection of the University.

In a small burial ground within a few yards of the house is the tomb of Jefferson. A mean stone marks the spot. It is supposed, however, that the $5,000 recently appropriated by Congress will be expended this spring in supplying a tomb that at least shall have an air of respectability.

After the death of Jefferson, Monticello passed into the hands of Captain Levy of New York. At the time of the late war it was confiscated by the confederates. The property has since been in constant litigation, but now the of the estate by the [illegible] the sale er. The sale is fixed for March 20.

OBEDIENCE.

How terribly we are all afraid of that word obedience, ever striving to shake off the yoke God has put upon us. "Wives, obey your husbands; children, obey your parents; servants, obey your masters."

"Wives obey your husbands." It is a Divine command; it echoes down from age to age, reverberating through the corridors of all time. To obey is the hardest lesson a wife learns, and one may never learn at all. They do not recognize it as a Divine command, they only regard it as a man's arrogance and love of authority. Obedience signifies inferiority, they think, and that is what no woman cares to acknowledge herself. No law which comes from Divine authority has the force of degrading the one on which that law is imposed. Obedience does not necessarily imply inferiority nor subordination to one in authority degradation. If rules were not necessary in the household and the State they would not have been appointed by Him who is wiser than man. If rules are not obeyed, anarchy and riot ensue, and, if only for the sake of insuring order and peace, obedience should be cherished as one of the most important of household virtues. There can be but one dominant power in the house, and both relation and nature teach us who that one is. In the short sentence, "the husband is ahead of the wife," we are told into whose hands God has placed the regal wand of household power.

Obedience lies at the very root of domestic life; it is the chief cornerstone it the temple. "Children, obey your parents," is a Divine injunction, but one which the modern child is unwilling to heed. Shaking off the parental yoke like the wind, he "goeth where he listeth;" and by his contempt for home authority he places another element of discord in the household, for confusion must follow in the train of disobedience to law.

"Servants, obey your masters," comes from the same Divine source. Wife, children, servants—the triple wreath of home—bound and made secure by the husband (or house-band), who is heard over all—the dominent power invested with authority by Him who is ruler and governor over an entire universe.

The thought of the power and place God has bestowed upon man should not fill him with arrogance and conceit; on the contrary, he should ask himself the question, "Who is sufficient for these things?" It should inspire him with tenderness, love and consideration for those who have been placed under him; and, while wearing the purple of royalty, he should never loosen his grasp on the sceptre of justice.

FRUIT HOUSE BULLETIN

Great Reduction in Goods.

Syrups and Molasses all down ten cents per gallon.
Coffees reduced another two cents per pound.
Leghorn Citron down fifteen cents per pound.
Zantee Currents down five cents per pound.
Best Teas reduced 10 cents per pound.
Candies down three cents per pound.
Sugars all down one cent per pound.
Raisins down three cents per pound.

ALL REDUCED 10 and 20 per cent.

Rio Coffee.

The very best, 15 cents per pound. Second grade, 11 cents per lb. Roasted coffee, 15 cts., best 20 cts. per lb.

Teas! Teas!

At no time in the history of the trade have Teas been so low. Another decline of 10c. per lb. brings the best of Teas within the reach of all. We now sell a good Tea for 20c. A choice extra drawing Tea for 40 and 50c, and the best Tea in the market for 70c. Young Hyson, 20, 40, best 70c., Imperial 40, best 70c., Oolong 20, 40, best 70c., Uncolored Jxpan 20, 40, best 60c., Gunpowder, extra choice, 40, best 50 and 70c. per pound

Sugars! Down 1c.

Coffee A Sugar 8c, Extra C 7 c, Yellow 6c, Grushed, Powdered and Granulated 9 cents.

Raisins, Currents, Citron, Lemon and Orange Peel,

Down 3 to 10c. per lb., best Valencia Raisins 8c., choice Zantee Currants 6c., best Leghorn Citron 15c, Lemon and Orange Peel 20c., Sicily shelled Almons 40c., Brazil Nuts 10c., Filberts 12c., Texas Peacans 10c

Toy Candies of all Descriptions.

Apples, Pears, Plums, Apricots, and the finest Candies at 25c per lb. Last year they were sold at 40c. Choice French mixed candy 15c, and the best stick candy 12½c. 3ct. reduction on candy.

Tobaccos.

Good plug 40c., best 50c. Twin Brothers 65c. Smoking 30c., best 35c. Golden Shorts, finest goods 35c. Uncle Ned, Fancy Turkish 45c.

Fish Oil and Neat's Foot Oil Down 15 cents per Gallon.

Best Fish Oil 70c, and Neat's Foot Oil 70c; Machine Oil 20c, best 40c. Coal Oil 12½c, Head Light 18c

CIGARS—In ½ boxes, full boxes and one-fourth boxes, extra choice Cigars $1.25 per 100; good Havanas $2, best $3 per 100

Fresh Oysters.

12 per can. Select Frying 17c and 2c8 per can. Cove Oysters 5c ents per can.

We are doing a rushing trade, continually increasing, and we guarantee our customers a saving of at least 20c. on the dollar at the

FORT WAYNE FRUIT HOUSE.

Family Groceries!

LANNING' SPRICE LIST.

TEAS! TEAS!

Young Hyson	60c very best 70c
Imperial	" " 65c
Japan	" " 60c
Oolong	" " 50c
Gun Powder	" " 40c

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Arbuckels' [Roasted]	23c per lb.
Rio	15c very best 18c " "

SUGARS! SUGARS!

White	10½ pounds for one dollar
Extra C	12 " " "
Grocers C	14 " " "

White Beans per lb. 3½c., Dried Peaches per lb. 6c., Hominy per lb. 3c., Cranberries per qt. 8c., Dried Sweet Corn 13 lbs. for $1.00, Oat Meal 7 lbs. for 25c., cucumber Pickles per doz. 8c. Besides a complete stock of Confectioneries, Canned Fruits, Soaps, Notions, Flour, Butter, Eggs, Syrups, &c., &c.

Goods delivered at all times.

Geo. L. Lanning.

Davenport the Druggist.

Pure Drugs and Medicines,
Choice Soaps and Perfumery,
Excellant Combs and Brushes,
Fine Hair Oils and Pomades

ALL SOLD AND WARRANTED BY

DAVENPORT THE DRUGGIST

Also a splendid stock of Stationery Goods, such as

Wall Paper, Window Shades, Pocket Books,
School Books, Blank Books, Pens, Pencils,
Inks, Mucilage, Stationery, Gold Pens, etc.

All to be sold at the lowest prices by

Davenport the Druggist, Auburn, Ind.

8-31-1 yr.

Three Chapters in a Boy's Life.

CHAPTER I.—"IT'S A BOY."

His advent is heralded in the brief but strong sentence just quoted. No matter what hopes have been indulged concerning girl babies, there is something in the pithy announcement, "It's a boy," which dispels all fanciful dreams and sets everybody squarely on a prose basis. His very voice, as it utters a defiant warwhoop to the grand army of humanity, tells the story to experienced years. The vission of a dainty girl darling very soon vanishes before this positive piece of prose, who kicks his sturdy heels through delicate pink socks intended for his sister, and who grows read as a turkey cock's head at Thanksgiving times when he is expected to show off to a good advantage before callers. He persists in an abnormal development of nose and a puffiness about the eyes, along with several other little tricks known only to interested parties. Parents and nurses become reconsiled and accept them on trust, seeing no other alternative. He emerges from his puffy and rosy obstinacy to a roly-poly, wide awake thing of beauty, which is a joy fully one-half of the time. There is a process from infancy to little boyhood, a sweet time, when the man-child is half baby, half angel. In the clear depths of his innocent eyes is a world of trust and hope and love. His white brow is fair as a freshly-opened lily, and his lips as sweet as hermosa roses. He is most witching at this age, for the peculiarities which mark the infant terrible are yet undeveloped. He is an armful of love and beauty and promise and dread and hope. Love him while yet there is no guile on the tender lips, no sin in the unwritten soul, no touch of the world's breath upon God's finished work.

CHAPTER II.—"GIT UP OLD HORSEY!"

"Mercy, what a noise! Look at that chair, with a string tied on the arms and made fast to the writing desk and flower stand, all to be driven tandem by that young imp in kilt shirt and fancy hat and shoes! Who upset that work basket? and good gracious, what work has been made with my wool and thread! There's the Graphic torn to scraps and stuffed in the cuspidore with my screw-driver that I lost a week ago. What is he doing with that cat? and, dear me, if he hasn't thrown drandma's spectacles into tne grate.

Where's Harry? Run to the kitchen and see. All the eggs are broken in the basket of folded clothes, and the milk for pudding has been fed the cat and dog. Bridget Lannigan is in a towering rage, and says, "Phat's the use of shlavin to kape clane wid such a young devil furninst ye? Miss Frigidity Fussbunch calls, and is horrified by being requested to "be a horse and let Harry ride straddle to Boston." She is questioned, also, on many delicate points. He gets very close to her and asks what that white stuff on her face is, and what makes her wear such a funny little hat.

A few years of this juvenile terror and then appears another stage of the boy. He gets a fever only appeased by marbles. It is useless to head off this phase; if it is shut off in one direction it breaks out more violently in some other It goes through a period of six or seven years and costs much in anxiety, broken window-panes and mortified pride. He is afflicted with rats, pigeons and other boyish complaints, which are harmless, but annoying. He brings in dirty steel traps to amuse his sick sister, who grows worse under it, and in his solitude he straps his legs fast to six feet of stilts and stoops to enter the door of her room, to the horror and dismay of his mother. He brings little notes home from school, which he tries to explain in a favorable light, but fails to convince his parents that it was "only because Bill Wilson dropped his slate on Abe Hennegan's toes and made me laugh." He carves his awkward initials on old Mrs. Williams' cellar door, and she threatens his arrest. He goes to see "Humpty Dumpty," and comes home and throws real brickbats at his aunt, and Bridget is met with a battering blow from his head when she is bringing in the coal. He makes life a burden and home a snare and delusion. He tears the comforts in more ways than one, and slits the pillow cases to match them. Gradually he leaves off the hurly-burly life and imperceptibly glides into

CHAPTER III.—"WHERE'S MY BLUE TIE?"

"Where is the blacking brush?" I'm going to a little surprise and won't be home till 11. Is my parcale shirt done up nice? I wish you'd make my collars stiffer. I don't thank some one for throwing my coat down and getting it wrinkled all up. How do you like this hat? Think it looks better than my soft one?" You will find the pigeon boxes all deserted about this period, not a rat trap cumbers the back yard. The woodshed theatricals are all ended; the stilts are put away; kites forgotten; window glass is in perfect safety. The dust has filled up the rude initials in Mrs. Williams' cellar door, and there is an uninvited quiet all around the house. Chairs stay in their places, and pantaloons will no longer bear cutting over for the boy. He gets them now out of new stuff, and mother's "cut will not satisfy him. He is not in the way now, and there is a heavy pain in mother's heart as she thinks that he will never need her much any more. The innocent eyes have a deeper meaning in them now. They have taken into their depths the reflection of a face younger than mother's, and life begins to look real to them.

The world is full of homes where these pictures will be recognized and hung up as family portraits—homes where there are no sounds of young voices now. They grow away into the great world so soon, and we put away the nameless feeling of desolation as we do the cast off toys of their childhood; and when the evening of life approaches the heart goes back along the line of time, and is once more with the children in the dear old long ago.

A Remarkable Result.

It makes no difference how many physicians, or how much medicine you have tried, it is now an established fact that German Syrup is the only remedy which has given complete satisfaction in severe cases of lung disease. It is true, there are yet thousands of persons who are predisposed to throat and lung affections, consumption, hemorrhages, asthma, severe colds settled on the breast, pneumonia, whooping cough, &c., who have no personal knowledge of Boschee's German Syrup. To such we would say that 50,000 dozen were sold last year without one complaint. Consumptives, try just one bottle. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by Wm. McIntyre & Son.

Why Many Editors are Skeptics.

In the following the Rev. T. Dewitt Talmage undertakes to explain the reason why so many newspaper men are skeptics:

One of the greatest trials of the newspaper profession is that its members are compelled to see more of the shams of the world than any other profession. Through every newspaper office day after day, all the wickedness of the world; all the vanities that want to be repaid; all the mistakes that want to be corrected; all the dull speakers who want to be thought eloquent; all the meanness that wants to get its wares noticed gratis in the editorial columns, in order to save the tax of the advertising columns; all the men who want to be set right who were never right; all the cracked brain philosophers with stories as long as their hair, and as gloomy as their finger nails in mourning because bereft of soap—all the bores who come to stay minutes, but talk five hours.

Through the editorial and reportorial rooms all the follies and shams of the world are seen day after day and the temptation is to believe neither God, man or woman. It is no surprise to me that in this profession there are some skeptical men; I only wonder that journalists believe anything.

* * *

The beautiful extract below is from the pen of Hon. George S. Hillard:—"I confess that increasing years bring with them an increasing respect for men who do not succeed in life, as those words are commonly used. Heaven is said to be a place for those who have not succeeded upon earth; and it is surely true celestial graces do not best thrive and bloom in the hot blaze of worldly prosperity. Ill success sometimes arises from a superabundance of qualities in themselves good—from a conscience too sensitive, a taste too fastidious, a self forgetfulness too romantic, a modesty too retiring. I will not go so far as to say, with a living poet, that 'the world knows nothing of its greatest men,' but there are forms of greatness or at least excellence, which 'die and make no sign,' there are martyrs that miss the plan but not the stake; heroes without the laurel, and conquerors without the triumph."

A Beautiful Retrospect.

When the summer day of youth is slowly wasting away into the nightfall of age, and the shadows of the past year grow deeper and deeper as life wears to a close; it is pleasant to look back through the vistas of time upon the joys and sorrows of early years. If we have a home to shelter, or hearts to rejoice with us and friends who have been gathering around our fireside, then the rough places of our wayfaring will be worn and smoothed away in the twilight of life, while the bright sunny spots we have passed through will grow brighter and more beautiful. Happy, indeed, are those whose intercourse with the world has not changed the course of their holier feeling, or broken those musical chords of the heart whose vibrations are so melodious so tender and so touching in the evening of age.

* * *

It's a deep mystery—the way the heart of a man turns to one woman out of all the rest he's seen in the world, and makes it easier for him to work seven years like Jacob did for Rachel, sooner than having any other woman for the asking. I often think of those words, "and Jacob served seven years for Rachel; and they seemed but a few days for the love he had for her."—Geo. Elliott.

* * *

The compositor who was told he might, when setting up a speech, insert "loud applause" or "cheers" in order to fill out a line, was summarily discharged when he made the application general, and set up an obituary notice as follows: "The announcement was made yesterday, that our highly respected citizen, Mr. ——, fell down dead in the street—(loud applause," etc.

* * *

A lady taking tea at a small company, being very fond of hot rolls, was asked to have another. "Really, I cannot," she modestly replied; "I don't know how many I have eaten already." "I do," unexpectedly cried a juvenile upstart, whose mother had allowed him a seat at the table. "You've eaten eight; I've been countin'!"

* * *

Josh Billings says there are four styles of mind:

1st, Them who knows it's so!
2nd, Them who know it aint so!
3d, Them who split the difference and guess at it!
4th, Them who don't care a darn what way it is!

* * *

A shrewd but unenlightened school director out west used to say, on examining a candidate for the post of teacher, "We all know that a b c is vowels, but we want to know why they is vowels."

* * *

"I am certain, madam, that I am right and that you are wrong; I'll bet my ears on it." "Indeed, sir, you shouldn't carry betting to such extreme lengths."

* * *

A city missionary was asked the cause of his poverty. "Principally," said he, with a twinkle of the eye, "because I have preached so much without notes."

* * *

"What death would you prefer to die?" said one person to another. "I don't exactly know; I should like to try seven or eight before deciding the point."

* * *

A young lady of sixteen, who had worn short dresses all her life, positively told her mamma she would wear them no longer.

HIGHEST REWARD

Cheap Homes in Michigan,

$5 to $10 per Acre.

STRONG SOILS! SURE CROPS!

Railroad through Centre of Lands.

HEALTHY CLIMATE! SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES! INTELLIGENT POPULATION!

These lands are a long distance EAST of the Mississippi River. Large amount saved in travel and transportation of crops.

Descriptive pamphlet in English and German.

Address, W. O. HUGHART, Commissioner, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

RAILROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R. R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after Sep. 29 1878, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST.

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accom.
Toledo	11 05 a m	12 01 a m	[illegible] p m
Wauseon	12 26 "	1 03 "	"
Bryan	1 05 "	1 50 "	"
Butler	1 40 "	2 24 "	"
Waterloo	2 00 "	2 42 "	"
Sedan	2 10 "	2 50 "	"
Corunna	2 15 "	2 55 "	"
Kendallville	2 30 "	3 05 "	"
Ligonier	3 07 "	3 40 "	"
Goshen	3 35 "	4 10 "	"
Elkhart	4 00 "	4 35 "	4 35 "

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	1 10 p m	9 50 p m	3 05 "
Goshen	1 29 "	10 10 "	"
Ligonier	1 55 "	10 42 "	"
Kendallville	2 30 "	11 15 "
Corunna	2 40 "	11 29 "
Sedan	2 47 "	11 36 "
Waterloo	2 55 "	11 46 "
Butler	3 10 "	12 01 a m
Bryan	3 43 "	12 40 "
Wauseon	4 27 "	1 27 "
Toledo	5 40 "	2 40 "	9 50

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. S. CURTIS, Division Supt.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card Nov. 10, 1878.

GOING WEST.

	No. 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Night ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 12	2 55	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 50	2 30	7 13	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 55	11 23
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 55	2 40
Plymouth	3 50	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 00	7 58

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 20 a.m	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 46	8 55
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 25 pm	11 30
Lima	8 55	4 20	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 27	2 33
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 05
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 15	6 05am
Mansfield	12 35	7 45	4 55	6 55
Orrville	2 26	9 38	7 00	9 15
Alliance	4 00	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 20 am	11 06	2 00pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15 pm	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line.

75 Miles Shortest to Indianapolis, Louisville and all points South. 52 Miles the Shortest to St. Louis, Kansas, Texas, and all points West. Direct Route to Detroit and all Michigan and Canada points.

TIME CARD IN EFFECT DEC. 29, '78.

SOUTH.	MAIL.	EX.	ACC.
Bay City	......	6 30am	......
Saginaw	......	7 15am	......
Lansing	......	9 0[illegible]am	......
Detroit	......	7 00am	2 50pm
Ann Arbor	......	8 30am	4 05pm
Jackson	6 10am	11 4[illegible]am	5 40pm
Jonesville	7 10am	12 [illegible]5pm	7 55am
Bankers	7 [illegible]am	1 11pm	8 20pm
Waterloo	9 20am	2 56pm	11 3 pm
Auburn	9 40am	3 0[illegible]pm	11 25pm
Auburn Junc.	9 57am	3 05pm	12 01am
Ft. Wayne	10 45am	3 55pm	1 25am
Indianapo'is	6 15pm	10 55pm	......
Cincinnati	9 20pm		......
Louisville	10 20pm	8 25am	......
St. Louis	7 20am	7 30am	......
Washington	......	6 10pm	......
Baltimore		9 10pm	......

NORTH.	X.	EX.	ACC.
Baltimore	......	7 10am	......
Washington	......	9 22am	......
St. Louis	8 00am	7 00pm	......
Louisville	2 00pm	6 50pm	......
Cincinnati		...	8 00am
Indianapolis	6 55pm	4 30am
Ft. Wayne	5 00am	11 40am	4 35pm
Auburn Junc.	5 35am	12 20pm	6 [illegible]pm
Auburn	6 00am	12 35pm	6 10pm
Waterloo	6 14am	12 46pm	6 [illegible]pm
Bankers	8 05am	2 22pm	10 10pm
Jonesville	8 18am	2 39pm	10 35pm
Jackson	9 25am	3 45pm	12 30am
Ann Arbor	10 46am	5 10pm	2 05am
Detroit	12 9 am	6 30pm	3 35am
Lansing	......	5 55pm
Saginaw	......	9 13pm	......
Bay City	......	10 00pm	......

All trains daily except Sunday. Through tickets to all principal points. For information as to routes and connections apply to

P. B. LOOMIS, Pres't & Gen'l Mang'r.
S. K. HOOPER, Gen'l Ticket Ag't.

Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

IN EFFECT Nov. 10. 1878.

GOING WEST.

STATIONS:	Fa't Line	Express	Cum'l A
lv New York	9 05pm	8 1[illegible]pm
Philadelphia	11 30	11 45
Baltimore	7 10am	6 15pm
Washington	8 35	7 30
Wheeling	11 15pm	8 05am	4 05 pm
Bellaire	11 50	8 50	4 40
Barnesville	12 53am	10 07	6 01
Cambridge	1 55	11 10	7 04
Zanesville	3 10	12 20pm	8 17
ar Newark	4 15	1 25	9 25
Columbus	5 50	3 10	11 00
Shawnee	9 35	4 35	mixed
lv Columbus	11 00pm	12 25
Newark	4 25am	2 10	5 00 pm
Mt.Vernon	5 24	3 05	7 18
Mansfield	6 50	4 25	11 00
Shelby	7 18	4 58
Monroeville	9 10	6 08
ar Sandusky	10 00	7 00
lv Chicago Junction	8 15	6 00	5 20 a
Republic	8 54	6 48	6 35
Tiffin	9 12	7 10	8 20
Fostoria	9 35	7 40	9 35
Deshler	10 32	8 45	1 24 pm
Defiance	11 [illegible]3	9 49	4 46
Hicksville	12 14pm	10 40	6 18
Auburn Junction	12 50	11 22	7 55
Garrett	1 25	11 40	6 30 am
Avilla	1 40	11 55	7 10
Albion	2 10	12 21am	7 58
Milford Junction	3 00	1.12	9 50
Walkertown Junction	4 12	2 23	12 51 pm
Chicago	7 05	5 40

GOING EAST

Chicago	8 50am	9 40pm
Walkertown Junction	12 10pm	1 12am	10 42am
Milford Junction	1 20	2 24	2 20pm
Albion	2 10	3 10	4 25
Avilla	2 34	3 30	5 20
Garrett	3 15	3 55	4 40am
Auburn Junction	3 25	4 03	5 00
Hicksville	4 00	4 42	6 25
Defiance	4 45	5 27	8 50
Deshler	5 42	6 25	12 12pm
Fostoria	6 40	7 26	2 32
Tiffin	7 09	7 54	3 42
Republic	7 29	8 18	4 30
Sandusky	7 10	7 45	10 45am
Monroeville	8 [illegible]0	8 30	12 15pm
Chicago Junction	8 40	9 30	1 45
Shelby Junction	9 15	10 06	3 05
Mansfield	9 43	10 31	4 25
Mt. Vernon	11 13	12 05pm	7 18
Ar Newark	12 15a m	1 10	9 10
lv Columbus	5 50	3 10
Shawnee	4 50	9 55am
Newark	12 35am	1 55pm	6 05am
Lv Zanesville	1 40	2 57	7 13
Cambridge	2 38	3 58	8 14
Barnesville	3 33	4 56	9 16
Ar Bellaire	4 50	6 10	10 40
Wheeling	5 25	6 55	11 30
Washington	5 00pm	7 30am
Baltimore	9 10	8 40
Philadelphia	3 20am	1 45pm
New York	6 45	4 45pm

Mixed Accommodation leaves Deshler at 2:30 a. m. daily except Monday, and arrives at Garrett at 9:00 a. m., stopping at all stations.

Figures west of Bellaire inclusive are Columbus time, except at Chicago.

Express trains run daily. Fast Line trains run daily on Central Ohio Division and Main Line; daily except Sunday on Lake Erie and Chicago Divisions. Accommodation trains run daily except Sunday.

L. M. COLE, Gen. Tick. Agt.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect November 10, 1878.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1. Mail.	3 Express
FORT WAYNE	1 00 pm	5 40 pm	....
Bluffton	2 12 pm	6 30 pm	....
Montpelier	2 52 pm	[illegible] 32 pm	....
Hartford	3 17 pm	7 06 pm	....
MUNCIE	4 08 pm	8 00 pm	....
Newcastle	5 00 pm	....	....
Cambridge City	5 27 pm	....	....
Connersville	5 27 pm	....	....
Cincinnati	9 20 pm	....	....
INDIANAPOLIS	8 15 pm	10 35 pm	....
Louisville	11 00 pm	2 20 am	....
Terre Haute	.....	1 22 am	....
St. Louis		7 30 am

STATIONS	GOING NORTH. 2 Mail.	4 Express	Accom.
St. Louis	....	7 00 am	7 00 pm
Terre Haute	....	2 17 pm	1 20 am
Louisville	....	2 00 pm	5 50 pm
Indianapolis	....	6 40 pm	4 15 am
Cincinnati	8 00 am	....	....
Connersville	11 13 am	....	....
Cambridge City	11 46 am	....	....
New Castle	12 35 pm	....	....
Muncie	1 25 pm	9 20 pm	6 35 am
Hartford	2 13 pm	10 16 pm	7 47 am
Montpelier	2 40 pm	10 31 pm	8 19 am
Bluffton	3 18 pm	11 00 pm	9 15 am
Fort Wayne	4 25 pm	11 15 am	10 45 am

Trains Nos. 1 and 2 run through between Fort Wayne and Cincinnati without change.

Through cars are attached to trains Nos. 1 and and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, via Muncie.

All trains daily except Sunday.

Trains run on Columbus time.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

Detroit Eel River & Illinois R R.

TAKE EFFECT DEC. 2, 1878.

GOING EAST.

Stations.	MAIL. No. 2.	ACCOM. No. 4.	LOCAL FT No. 8.
lv. Logansport	8 [illegible]am	7 30pm	6 45am
Mexico	9 15	8 25	7 31
Denver	9 27	8 [illegible]	8 15
Chili	9 30	9 12	9 00
Roann	9 55	9 37	9 55
Laketon	10 15	10 00	10 28
N. Manchester	10 25	10 17	11 10
Liberty Mills	10 35	10 30	11 37
Collamer	10 51	10 50	12 20
S. Whitley	10 55	10 55	12 30
Columbia City	11 25	11 31	1 40
Collin's	11 45	11 55	2 25
Churubusco	12 00	12 12	2 55
La Otto	12 25	12 42	3 55
Cedar Creek	12 34	12 53	4 15
Auburn Junct'n	12 50	1 12	4 44
Auburn	12 55	1 17	5 00
Butler	1 20am	2 00am	6 20pm

GOING WEST.

Stations.	No. 1,	No.	No. 7,
Logansport ar	7 10pm	1 [illegible]pm	5 30pm
Mexico	6 33	11 25	3 5[illegible]
Denver	6 24	11 38	3 30
Chili	6 17	11 27	3 10
Roann	6 03	11 03	2 30
Laketon	5 40	10 25	2 01
North Manchester	5 36	10 12	1 24
Liberty Mills	5 28	10 18	1 00
Collamar	5 15	9 12	12 40
South Whitley	5 11	9 40	12 30
Columbia City	4 48	9 1[illegible]	11 25
Collin's	4 30	8 40	10 [illegible]
Churubusco	4 18	8 29	10 04
La Otto	3 55	7 57	9 01
Cedar Creek	3 45	7 45	8 24
Auburn Junction	3 25	7 21	8 00
Auburn	3 20	7 18	7 18
Butler lv	2 45pm	3 30am	6 30

FRANK J. HECKER,
Gen. Sup't

WOOD'S HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE

Is a monthly, 100-page Scrap Book of the cream of the World's Literature. Single copy, [illegible], or $1 per year. An Oil Chromo [illegible] of a Yosemite Valley, price, $5; "Black Sheep," a $1.50 book, in paper binding; "Christian Oakley's Mistake," a $1 book, in paper binding, and a sample copy of "Wood's Household Magazine"—all post-paid, for only [illegible] cents in money, or in one-cent postage stamps. Agents wanted. Most liberal terms, but nothing sent free. Address S. S. Wood, Tribune Building, New York City

METROPOLITAN RESTAURANT

AND

Confectionery Establishment

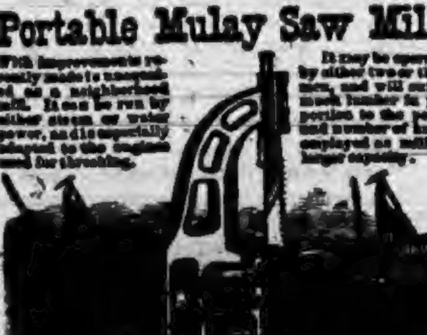
The best brands of oysters always on hand in season, and served to suit customers. Warm meals served at all hours. Day boarders taken at low rates. Fancy candies and fine cigars made specialties.

42-6m. SHERMAN HOLLISTER, Prop.

Portable Mulay Saw Mill,

With improvements recently made is unequaled as a neighborhood mill. It can be run by either steam or water power, and is especially adapted to the engines used for threshing.

It may be operated by either two or three men, and will cut as much lumber in proportion to the power and number of hands employed as mills of larger capacity.



It makes smooth and even lumber, leaves no [illegible] and will cut any sized log up to four feet in diameter. It may be transported from one locality to another and re-erected ready for sawing in from two to three days, and can be made profitable in localities where there is not sufficient timber to justify the erection of a large mill. Send for descriptive circular, price, etc., to CHANDLER & TAYLOR, Indianapolis, Ind.

Improved and Unimproved

FARMS and CITY PROPERTY

—IN—

MONTGOMERY, LABETTE

—AND—

Chautauqua Counties.

Cultivated farms in this vicinity, with plenty of good water, convenient to coal and timber, and with

Church, School and Railroad

Advantages can be purchased at as low prices, per acre, as wild lands two or three hundred miles farther west, and far beyond our Coal and Timber districts. This is acknowledged to be one of the most

Extensive Farming Districts

in Kansas. We can consistently advise seekers of homes in the west, to examine our locality before purchasing elsewhere. Business houses, dwellings, and a large number of lots in the city of Coffeyville, at the terminus of the L. L. & G. R. R., either for cash, exchange, or on liberal credit.

We guarantee a good title to all lands sold by us. So if you want to buy, sell or exchange real estate, call on or address, (inclosing stamp or return postage),

J. McCREARY & CO.,
Real Estate Agt's. Coffeyville, Kan.
or, THOS. H. SPROTT, Auburn, Ind

34-1 y.

Recorders Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 9. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, MARCH 13, 1879. Number 11.

The Auburn Weekly Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY, BY

THE COURIER CO.

THEODORE REED, Editor

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will be inserted under this head for $5.00 per annum. For each additional line 50 cents extra will be charged.

ATTORNEYS.

H. C. Peterson.

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' hardware store, Auburn, Ind.

Guy Plumb,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over First National Bank. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for the Home Insurance Company.

A. F. Pinchin

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public, Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

Thos. H. Sportt.

REAL ESTATE, COLLECTION AND INSURance Agent. Loans effected on improved farms. Kansas lands for sale or trade.
Auburn, Indiana

D. D. Moody,

ATTORNEY AT LAW, NOTARY PUBLIC Office in Court House. Auburn, Ind.

Best & McClellan.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

PHYSICIANS.

Dr. J. Miller.

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON AND ACCOUCHER. Gonsenhouser's Corners, two miles east of Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind.

Dr. T. G. Matheny,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, OFFICE ONE Door North of City Bakery, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

Dr. W. S. Allen,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store, Auburn, Ind.

Drs. Cowan & Allyn.

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, OFFICE over McIntyre & Son's. Drug Store, 1st door south of First National Bank, Auburn, Ind.

Dr. F. J. Dills,

Especial attention given to Diseases of the EYE and EAR. Rooms 1 and 2 Odd Fellows' building. Office hours—9:30 to 12 a. m.; 1 to 3 p. m., 7 to 8 p. m. Fort Wayne, Ind.

Dr. T. W. Tritch.

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block.
Auburn, Indiana.

Dr. S. B. Johnson,

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

D. J. Swarts, M. D.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO DISEASEes of the Eye and Ear, Fistula in Ano, Hemorrhoids or Piles and Chronic-Ulcers. Office on Main street, over Shaffer's Furniture Store, Auburn, Ind.

HOTELS.

Mayer House.

Fort Wayne, Indiana Under the Management of W. W. Reed, rates, two dollars per day. Street Cars to and from the Pittsburgh, Wabash and Grand Rapids R. R. Depots.
S. Brubaker, W. W. Reed, Jr., } In Office.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Central House,

TENTH STREET, EAST OF MAIN. GOOD Sample rooms, and low rates.
T. D. Gross, Prop'r Auburn, Ind.

Sands House,

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished Only $2.00 per day.
Geo. S. Palmer, Clerk. O. Sands, Proprietor

Tonsorial Artist.

HAIRDRESSING AND SHAVING EXECUted with special care, and in good taste. Room on West Seventh street. Wm. Edgington Prop'r. Auburn, Ind.

The Great English Remedy.

GRAY'S SPECIFIC MEDICINE

TRADE MARK. TRADE MARK.

Is especially recommended as an unfailing cure for Seminal Weakness, Spermatorrhea, Impotency and and all diseases that follow as a sequence on Self Abuse; as Loss of Memory, Universal Lassitude, Pain in the Back, Dimness of Vision, Premature Old Age, and many other diseases that lead to insanity, consumption and a premature grave, all of which, as a rule, are first caused by deviating from the path of nature and over indulgence. The Specific Medicine is the result of a life study and many years of experience in treating these special diseases.

Before Taking. After Taking.

Full particulars in our pamphlets, which we desire to send free by mail to every one.

The Specific Medicine is sold by all druggists at $1 per package or 6 packages for $5; will be sent by mail on receipt of the money by addressing THE GRAY MEDICINE CO.
No. 10 Mechanic's Block, Detroit, Mich.

Sold in Auburn by F. K. Davenport, and druggists everywhere.

Recoil of that Chinese Gun.

(Savannah News.)

It is said that the east does not understand the trouble and annoyance to which the Pacific coast is subjected by Chinese immigration. Perhaps not. California and the far west as little understood southern opposition to the enfranchisement of thousands of illiterate blacks just after the war, and yet southern protests had no avail in that section at that time; although no constitutional principle was jeopardized in the matter of the non-enfranchisement of blacks, while in this Chinese immigration question one is disregarded. And it is not that we care specially to champion the Chinese, but only for this latter reason that we are inclined to criticise unfavorably the anti-Chinese immigration bill. It cannot be called a party measure, for democrats and republicans alike voted for and against it, and it finally passed the two houses of congress, one of which is democratic and the other republican. It was passed by both parties only as a means of securing the vote of California in September, but it certainly involved a principle the violation of which cannot result in permanent good to either.

How to Make Hens Lay.

Eggs have now somewhat depreciated in price, but during January and the first half of February they sold at a higher rate than at any former corresponding period that we are aware of, when gold and paper money were of equal value. A correspondent informs us that while on a visit in the fall to a friend, he was surprised to see the number of eggs he daily obtained. He had but sixteen hens and the product per diem averaged thirteen eggs. He had been in the habit of giving on every alternate day a teaspoonful and a quarter of cayenne pepper, mixed with soft food, and took care that each hen obtained her share. The experiment of omitting the pepper was tried when it was found that the number of eggs were reduced each trial from five to six daily. Our correspondent believes that the moderate use of this stimulant not only increases the number of eggs, but effectually wards off diseases to which chickens are subject.—Germantown Telegraph.

Help one Another.

"This little sentence should be written on every heart—stamped on every memory. It should be the golden rule practice, not only in every household, but throughout the world. By helping one another we not only remove the thorns from the pathway and anxiety from the mind, but we feel a sense of pleasure in our hearts, knowing we are doing a duty to a fellow creature. A helping hand or an encouraging word is no loss to us, yet is a benefit to others. Who has not felt the power of a little sentence? Who has not needed the encouragement and aid of a kind friend? How soothing when perplexed with some task that is both difficult and burdensome, to feel a gentle hand on the shoulder, and to hear a kind voice whispering, 'Do not be discouraged; I see your troubles, let me help you.' What strength is inspired, hope created, what sweet gratitude is felt; and the great difficulty dissolves as dew before the sunshine. Yes, let us help one another, by endeavoring to strengthen and encourage the weak; and lifting the burden of care from the weary and oppressed, that life may glide smoothly on, and the fount of bitterness yield sweet waters; and he whose willing hand is ever ready to aid us, will reward our humble endeavors, and every good deed will be 'bread upon the water, to return after many days,' if not to us, at least to those we love."

Indiana Patents.

List of patents issued to citizens of the State of Indiana, March, 4th, 1879, and each bearing date March, 4th, 1879. Furnished this paper by C. Bradford, Solicitor of patents, 18 Hubbard Block, Indianapolis, Ind.

To E G. Grahn, of Indianapolis, for improvement in Carriage Curtain Fasteners.

To J. P. Karr, of Monticello, for improvement in Bee Hives.

To M. Post, of Shelbyville, for improvement in Bill Files.

To H. Keyes, of Terre Haute, for improvement in Neck Yoke Straps.

To H. Keyes, of Terre Haute, for improvement in Whiffletree Plates.

To M. VonBeust, of New Albany, for improvement in Combined Breast Pump and Syringe.

To J. F. Wilcok, of Goodland, for improvement in Harrows.

To J. Yenne, of Shoals, for improvement in Brake Levers for Vehicles.

To D. C. M. Barney of Hebron, for improvement in the Manufacture of Brooms.

To H. R. Caine, of Crawfordsville, for improvement in Construction of Buildings.

To G. D. Bailey, of Spiceland, for improvement in Fence Posts.

The Eaters of Morphine.

The morphine eaters, as a class, are the most peculiar I ever dealt with, particularly in their negotiations for their favorite drug. They will undertake anything, will promise anything, to obtain morphine. I remember some years since, when I was in a down town drug store, a young woman came in one morning and ordered a large quantity of toilet goods put up, saying that she was from the country, and that her father, who was out doing some trading would call in and pay for them very soon. Among other things, she ordered an ounce of morphine to be put up with the rest of the goods, but first took a large dose from one of the bottles right there. Then she went out and never returned, while the clerk who sold her the goods waited in vain for the father from the country, and was for months after the butt of various jokes on his confiding nature. I afterwards found that the young woman visited a large number of the drug stores in town, and did the same thing, but she one day tried the game upon one drug store where, after she got the morphine, the proprietor refused to let her go until she paid for the goods. She immediately stepped to a room in the rear of the store and divested herself of a chemise, which she pawned for the morphine taken. I have quit the sale of these drugs, except in filling prescriptions, because I do not care to deal in them, or to suply the people who are addicted to their use.—Cleveland Herald.

A Good Teacher.

A truly good teacher is cheap at any price. A poor one is dear at any price. So, too, if a good one be necessary in any school he becomes equally necessary in every school. Hence two hundred and fifty thousand competent teachers are necessary to supply this country alone. To provide such a host of skilled educators is a far more difficult task than to raise, equip, discipline, and support an army of equal numbers. It is, moreover, a more important undertaking, and necessarily involves a far greater expenditure of time, labor, and money if it is to be well done. True teaching or educational power is not and cannot be a cheap commodity, because it is not only rare but is a more difficult and higher order of work than any other confined to human hands. The tiller of the soil, the artificer in wood and iron, or even the painter and sculptor, with all their delicacy of conception and refinement of touch, have an easy task in comparison with the true educator who works upon the subtle forces of mind and spirit, seeking to mold his precious materials into the divine symmetry, unity, and beauty of a perfect character. If a high order of talent and skill be required in these lower, perishable forms of human workmanship, how much more should be exacted of those who labor upon imperishable materials, and who are thus shaping the characters of beings destined to a life that knows neither limitation or decay.—Educational Weekly.

Why the Whale Spouts.

Whales swim very swiftly, the spectacle of a whale careering along the surface of the water being one worthy of remembrance. At frequent intervals the whale is seen to "blow," or to "spout"—These terms being applied to indicate the ejection of water, or what looks like that fluid, from the nostrils. In the whalebone whales the nostrils are situated on the top of the head, and are named "blow holes." On the supposition that the water ejected from these apertures consisted of that which as already remarked, is continually being drawn into the mouth, the blowing of these animals appeared to be susceptible of ready explanation. But it was ultimately seen that there was no plain anatomical justification for the idea that water could pass so readily and constantly from the mouth to the nose, while a much more feasible explanation of the "blowing" of these animals can readily be found. Thus the water which is taken into the mouth appears to be strained off, as we have seen, by the whalebone plates, and escapes simply by the sides of the mouth cavity. When, on the other hand, the whale "blows" the animal rises to the surface, the act of "blowing" being in reality the effort of expiration, or "breathing out" the heated air of the lungs preparatory to taking in a fresh breath of air. As the whale begins to blow just before approaching the surface of the water, the effort must result in the water which lies above the head being carried up into the air in the form of a column or jet; while the heated air of the lungs is expelled when the animal has reached the surface, and being condensed by sudden exposure to the outer cold, appears in the from of fine spray or vapor which is last exhaled.

Cultivate One Talent.

One talent, well cultivated, deepened and enlarged, is worth a hundred shallow faculties. The first law of success this day, when so many matters are clamoring for attention, is concentration; to bend all the energies to one point, looking neither to the right nor to the left. It has been justly said that a great deal of the wisdom of a man in this century is shown in leaving things unknown; and a great deal of his practical sense in leaving things undone. The day of universal scholars is past. "Life is short, and art is long." The range of human knowledge has increased so enormously, that no brain can grapple with it; and the man who would know one thing well must have the courage to be ignorant of a thousand things, however attractive or inviting. As with knowledge, so with work. The man who would get along must single out his specialty, and into that must pour the whole stream of his activity—all the energies of his hand, eye, tongue, heart and brain. Broad culture, many sidedness, are beautiful things to contemplate; but it is the narrow edge men—the men of single and intense purpose, who steel their souls against all things else—who accomplish the hard work of the world, and who are everywhere in demand when hard work is to be done.

Treatment of Prisoners in Switzerland.

In Switzerland the prisoners who have not been tried, and consequently punished, on presumption of guilt, are most severely treated. They are not only a long time in being brought to trial, but their places of confinement are most cruel. In a visit to one of these prisons in 1818 a man was found shut up in a tower situated in the middle of a river. He was its only human inhabitant. His jailer came three times a day in a boat to examine his chain and bring him food; and his Judges from time to time, as they proceeded in their examinations. He was chained to his bed, from which he could not move far, and had neither chair, table, fire nor comfort—nothing but a few old books. He could indeed see the sky, but that only. He had been in this situation for twelve months, and even then it was not determined whether he was guilty or not. In the same tower was a room, about sixteen feet square, without light altogether, or air, except what passed through a narrow funnel. In this place a man had been on one occasion confined eleven months. In another prison, a large apartment in the tower of an ancient convent, a man was found who had been taken up on suspicion and had been confined for forty eight days. The window was unglazed, but not large enough to admit light. The room was very cold. The straw on which the prisoner lay was almost black with use, and his clothes had not been changed since his confinement. These are, it is to be hoped, singular cases; yet it is in the general treatment of untried prisoners in Switzerland.

Inaccuracy in Conversation.

The tendency of women to exaggerate in conversation, makes them unreliable both as witnesses and relators of facts. Indeed, in narrating what they call "facts" we must be prepared to receive the communication with some allowance for the vivid fancy of the speakers.

This spirit of exaggeration which makes the statements of women so unreliable as a general thing, does not proceed from an inherent love of untruth, or a wilful intention to deceive.

Women are apt to be led away by their feelings, and to color judgment more by passion and prejudice than by calm, cautious view of facts as they are. They "see through a glass darkly," and thus seeing their statements are clouded by error.

They do not pay strict attention to what they hear, and have never trained their minds to deal in facts. They are apt to skim over matters, instead of diving down after the pearl of truth. They deal more with fancy than facts, lacking methodical observations and judgment.

Truth is something well worth attaining, and is attainable by a little trouble and properly disciplining the mind and the tongue. Let every mother, when a young daughter is repeating what purports to be "facts," pin her down to a "plain unvarnished tale," stripping it of all exaggerated expressions and embellishments of fancy. Make her state the truth in its severe simplicity, neither adding to nor taking from, and let it be the truth and nothing but the truth.

Teach her, too, the proper meaning of words and expressions. Let her understand that it is one thing to be "sick," another to be "ill." That a person may be "ugly" without being a "perfect fright." That a man may be "bad" and yet not be "the worst man in the world;" and that you may be "very cold" and yet not be "frozen to death." A bonnet may be "pretty and tasty" and very far from being "perfectly splendid;" and a young man may be "agreeable and prepossessing" and yet it is quite possible, indeed it is more than probable, that he is not at all "divine."

If this system of training the speech is attended to early in life the habit will be acquired by the time maturity is reached of strict veracity in conversation. Things will be represented just as they are and not as they seem to the vivid fancy and careless judgment of the speaker.

Revision of the Bible.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

Our readers are aware that leading biblical scholars from all English Protestant denominations have been engaged since 1870 in a revision of King James' version of the Bible. In 1872 the English revisers were joined in the work by American biblical scholars, embracing all Protestant denominations. In two years the whole is expected to be complete—the New Testament within a year and the Old Testament in about two years. The work will then be published and given to the world. The Springfield (Mass.) Republican, to show the accuracy of the work, says:

"As showing the coincident exactness of the scholarship brought to bear on the work it was stated that when the text of the Epistle to the Hebrews made by the English Committee were compared with those made by the American Committee, each working separately, that out of 813 changes 476 were in the very same words by both Committees, and about the same coincidence was noticed in the revision of the Book of Isaiah No sacrilegious Uzzah has a hand in this great undertaking, but all engaged are actuated by a reverent faith that they are doing God's work and are hastening the time when for all Christians there shall be one Lord, one faith, one baptism."

Some doubt whether any beneficial efforts will follow the revision, as the very attempt is an acknowledgment that there are defects in the present version, and such acknowledgment is calculated to confuse the mind as to what should be believed. But the changes will not be so material as to impair the continuous narrative or mar in any essential its wonderful harmony and beauty, but rather add to it in those particulars. Biblical scholars have long acknowledged the want of a more accurate version of the original, believing that the minor errors of translation and want of accurate information when the present translation was made have been productive of so much of the want of harmony that prevails among Protestant sects, and deterred in their effects on independent minds.

The fund of biblical information and knowledge has vastly increased since King James' version of the Bible was given to the world. The since acquired knowledge has shown the want of a new and more correct version of the sacred records, one whose acknowledged authenticity would go far to disarm adverse criticism of its power for mischief, and "hasten the time when for all Christians there shall be one Lord, one faith, one baptism." The text of the King James' version was based upon manuscripts, none of which, we are told by biblical scholars, bore an earlier date than the tenth century after Christ The fact, with the long interval between the happening of the events recorded and their reduction to writing, and the carelessness of the scribes, all productive of errors, cast an uncertainty over the version that brightened the interest of all Christains in new discoveries that shed additional light on the Old and New Testaments. The latest discovery was that made less than twenty years ago, and known as the "Codex Sinaiticus," which completed the trio of biblical manuscripts of the highest importance and enduring value. Those three are called the "Codex Vaticanus," which belongs to the Vatican Library, the "Codex Alexandrinus" belonging to England; and the "Codex Sinaiticus," belonging to Russia. M. Tichendorf, in his introduction to his new Testament, thus speaks of those three Codices:

"No single work of ancient Greek classical literature can command three such original witnesses as the Sinaitic, Vatican and Alexandrine manuscripts to the integrity and accuracy of its text."

These and other manuscripts will be used by the Committees in making up their revision, and we think, when their labors shall have been closed and given to the public, the world of Christianity may rejoice and be thankful that the task was undertaken and hapily completed.

MONTICELLO ON THE AUCTION BLOCK.

The Home and the Tomb of the Author of the Declaration of Independence.

Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson, is to be sold by auction. The through passenger from Washington to the South gets a glimpse of this stately old mansion, which commands a fine position away upon the summit of one of the highest and grandest mountains of Albemarle.

Jefferson's birthplace was Shadwell, a town very much like every other Virginia town—its strong points, negroes, tobacco, and sleepiness. The Shadwell of to-day is not greatly changed from the Shadwell of Jefferson's time; and its only glory is that brought to it by association with the name of Jefferson.

After Jefferson had finished his course in the college of William and Mary, he bought this mountain, near Shadwell, and erected one of the most complete and aristocratic mansions in the United States While he was in public life he enjoyed the comforts of this home very little. But when he retired from political prominence it was to a pleasant experience of Monticello. Here, from 1807 until his death in 1826, he spent his days in healtful enjoyment, surrounded by friends.

About three miles distant from Monticello is the University of Virginia, founded by Jefferson. It is a tradition in Shadwell that the retired statesman spent much time daily in watching through a telescope from his mountain home the erection of the University.

In a small burial ground within a few yards of the house is the tomb of Jefferson. A mean stone marks the spot. It is supposed, however, that the $5,000 recently appropriated by Congress will be expended this spring in supplying a tomb that at least shall have an air of respectability.

After the death of Jefferson, Monticello passed into the hands of Captain Levy of New York. At the time of the late war it was confiscated by the confederates. The property has since been in constant litigation, but now the Court of Appeals has ordered the sale of the estate by the State Commissioner. The sale is fixed for March 20.

OBEDIENCE.

How terribly we are all afraid of that word obedience, ever striving to shake off the yoke God has put upon us. "Wives, obey your husbands; children, obey your parents; servants, obey your masters."

"Wives obey your husbands." It is a Divine command; it echoes down from age to age, reverberating through the corridors of all time. To obey is the hardest lesson a wife learns, and one may never learn at all. They do not recognize it as a Divine command, they only regard it as a man's arrogance and love of authority. Obedience signifies inferiority, they think, and that is what no woman cares to acknowledge herself. No law which comes from Divine authority has the force of degrading the one on which that law is imposed. Obedience does not necessarily imply inferiority nor subordination to one in authority degradation. If rules were not necessary in the household and the State they would not have been appointed by Him who is wiser than man. If rules are not obeyed, anarchy and riot ensue, and, if only for the sake of insuring order and peace, obedience should be cherished as one of the most important of household virtues. There can be but one dominant power in the house, and both relation and nature teach us who that one is. In the short sentence, "the husband is ahead of the wife," we are told into whose hands God has placed the regal wand of household power.

Obedience lies at the very root of domestic life; it is the chief cornerstone it the temple. "Children, obey your parents," is a Divine injunction, but one which the modern child is unwilling to heed. Shaking off the parental yoke like the wind, he "goeth where he listeth;" and by his contempt for home authority he places another element of discord in the household, for confusion must follow in the train of disobedience to law.

"Servants, obey your masters," comes from the same Divine source. Wife, children, servants—the triple wreath of home—bound and made secure by the husband (or house-band), who is heard over all—the dominent power invested with authority by Him who is ruler and governor over an entire universe.

The thought of the power and place God has bestowed upon man should not fill him with arrogance and conceit; on the contrary, he should ask himself the question, "Who is sufficient for these things?" It should inspire him with tenderness, love and consideration for those who have been placed under him; and, while wearing the purple of royalty, he should never loosen his grasp on the sceptre of justice.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, MARCH 13, 1879.

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

THE announcement is made that Dr. [illegible], at Washington, [illegible], will be converted into a fertilizer factory. This [illegible] stance.

AT North Troy, Vt., a verandar roof gave way beneath a heavy weight of snow, killing two men and seriously wounding several others.

EBERHARD FABER, the great lead-pencil man, has just died in New York. He came to this country from Germany, and in 1861 established the first lead-pencil manufactory in America.

THE great Vanderbilt will case, which has been before the courts of New York city for a year past, has been brought to an end through a compromise. The consideration is the payment by William H. Vanderbilt of $1,000,000 each to his brother, Cornelius, and his sister, Mrs. LeBau, with costs of the suit, which is withdrawn, along with all its charges, and especially the charges of "undue influence" held against the widow of the late Commodore.

THE widow and daughter of the late Bayard Taylor arrived at New York from Europe last week. Mrs. Taylor is much prostrated by her great bereavement.

THE WEST.

CARBON HILL, a small place in the Hocking valley, Ohio, has been the scene of a shocking calamity by which seven persons were burned to death. The particulars are as follows: J. M. Lunsford, who kept a small store attached to his house, was awakened by fire and smoke at midnight, and at once set about removing his family. The wife and a baby aged 2 years were safely placed out of danger, when the father proceeded to rescue the balance of the family up-stairs, but was overcome by smoke and suffocated. At this time the villagers were aroused and the doors of the store broken in, which created a draught through the store to the dwelling, and, in five minutes from the discovery of the fire, the frame structure was completely enveloped in flames. The poor victims' shouts and cries for help were heard above the cracking and hissing fire with which they were surrounded. A quantity of resin in the store aided in feeding the devouring flames. All efforts to succor the unfortunate inmates were without avail, and their bodies went down into the seething furnace below.

THE great Chicago dry-goods firm of Field, Leiter & Co. have purchased the Singer building, on the corner of State and Washington streets, their old stand, and they will immediately reoccupy it. The price paid was $750,000.

AT Bodie, Cal., there was a shooting affray between George Taft and Henry Heath, in which the former was killed, Heath badly wounded and a bystander, named Sullivan, fatally injured.

NEARLY the whole of the town of Reno, in Nevada, has been swept away by fire. The flames broke out at an early hour in the morning, when the citizens were in bed. A fierce gale was blowing at the time, and the fire department were powerless to cope with the sea of fire. In less than three hours every business house, and nearly all the residences in the town, were a mass of smoking ruins. The wind carried the burning brands far into the country, and numbers of farm houses were by this means ignited and consumed. Five persons were burned to death. The loss is placed at $1,000,000, upon which there was insurance amounting to $150,000. It is thought the town will be unable to recover from the blow.

THERE were thirteen business failures in Chicago during February; total liabilities. $164,085....Charles W. Angell, ex-Secretary of the Pullman Company, and now a ten-years' convict, has been made a bookkeeper in the Illinois penitentiary.

AN assignment has been made by Archbishop Purcell and the Rev. Father Purcell of all their property for the benefit of creditors.

THE SOUTH.

WADE HAMPTON has tendered his resignation as Governor of South Carolina, and Lieut. Gov. Simpson now sits in the gubernatorial chair.

A FORT WORTH (Tex.) dispatch says that the out-going Yuma stage was again stopped inside the city limits. The only passenger was robbed, the mail-bags rifled, and the valuable letters carried off.

SIX murderers confined in the jail at Corsicana, Texas, overpowered the guards and escaped. After a desperate fight, in which three of them were wounded, five were recaptured, the leader—Jesse Rasco, the most noted desperado in the South—making good his escape.

A MEMPHIS letter-writer predicts that yellow fever will surely visit that city, when warm weather comes. A genuine case of yellow fever is reported to have already occurred in New Orleans.

GENERAL.

SENATOR BLAINE has written a long letter defending his course in advocating the passage of the bill restricting Chinese immigration. It is in answer to the strictures of William Lloyd Garrison upon the action of Mr. Blaine and other Senators who voted for that bill. The pith of Mr. Blaine's objections to the Chinese as immigrants to this country is in their peculiar characteristics as a race, which render their presence an unmitigated curse. Physically, socially and politically, he thinks them a plague and a pestilence, and says that a Chinese quarter like that of San Francisco, in any Eastern city, would be looked upon with even greater dread and aversion by the white population. As to Mr. Garrison's declaration that Chinese immigration must be put on the same ground as that of Englishmen, Irishmen, Scotchmen, Frenchmen, Germans and Scandinavians, Mr. Blaine says that such a doctrine "confounds all distinctions, and, of course without intending it, libels almost the entire white population whose blood is inherited from the races named. All the immigration from Europe to-day," he adds, "assimilates at once with its own blood on this soil, and to place the Chinese coolies on the same footing is to shut one's eyes to all the instincts of human nature and all the teachings of history."

OWING to the great success of "Almost a Life," at Haverly's Chicago Theater, last week, the New York Standard Theater Company remains at that house during the present week, with the play and caste as before. This drama secures the interest of the audience in the first scene and retains it to the end, owing, perhaps, as much to the excellence of the acting as to the development of the plot.

THE January earnings for thirty-one railroads, with 13,921 miles of road, which is nearly a quarter of the total in operation in the United States, were 2.3 per cent. less than in January, 1878, their average earnings per mile having fallen from $500 to $473, or 5.4 per cent. Of the thirty-one roads reporting, twenty-one have smaller earnings than last year.

SIDNEY DILLON has been re-elected President of the Union Pacific railroad.

THE National Butter, Cheese and Egg Association has just held an interesting three-days' session in Chicago. About 200 delegates were in attendance.

THE decision of the Reno Court of Inquiry, recently in session at Chicago, has been promulgated. After giving a history of the events immediately preceding the battle of Little Big Horn, and the part taken by Maj. Reno's command in the fight, it says: "The conduct of the officers throughout was excellent, and, while the subordinates in some instances did more for the safety of the command by brilliant displays of courage than did Maj. Reno, there was nothing in his conduct which requires animadversion from this court. It is the conclusion of this court, in view of all the facts in the evidence, that no further proceedings are necessary in this case."

POLITICAL.

THE State Conventions of the Democrats and of the National Greenbackers of Michigan met at Lansing, on the 28th ult., effected a fusion, adopted the same platform, and nominated the following union ticket: For Judge of the Supreme Court, John B. Shipman, of Coldwater; for Regents, George P. Sanford, of Ingham county, and Henry Whiting of St. Clair county.

F. P. DEWEES, Chairman of the National Committee of the National party, has issued an address to the people of the United States. He says that separation from old parties is necessary, and asserts that this action on the part of the Congressmen-elect has inspired the "National-Greenback party throughout the country with renewed courage and confidence." The address calls for a thorough party organization, and adds: "If those in accord with the National-Greenback principles now earnestly attempt such an organization, party success in 1880 can be assured."

A CONVENTION of the Republicans of Michigan was held at the State capital last week. James V. Campbell was nominated for Supreme Court Justice; and for Regents, James Shearer and E. O. Grosvenor were placed in nomination.

WASHINGTON.

THE Chief of the Bureau of Statistics, in the seventh monthly statement of the current fiscal year in regard to exports and imports of the United States, says: The excess of exports over imports of merchandise appears to have been as follows: The month ending Jan. 31, 1879, $25,876,804; month ending Jan. 31, 1878, $31,530,829; seven months ending Jan. 31, 1879, $175,565,857; seven months ending Jan. 31, 1878, $135,008,528; twelve months ending Jan. 31, 1879, $279,080,063; twelve months ending Jan. 31, 1878, $140,781,274.

The public statement for March 1 shows an increase of the nation's indebtedness of $311,411 during the month of February. Following are the official figures:

Six per cent. bonds	$640,105,250
Five per cent. bonds	703,266,650
Four and a half per cent. bonds	250,000,000
Four per cent. bonds	420,900,000
Total coin bonds		$2,014,271,900
Matured debt		6,372,930
Legal tenders	$346,742,041
Certificates of deposit	46,100,000
Fractional currency	15,996,419
Gold and silver certificates	19,067,680
Total without interest		427,917,033
Total debt		$2,498,561,863
Total interest		24,898,176
Currency held for redemption of fractional currency	$ 8,519,741
Special deposits held for redemption of certificates of deposit	46,100,000
Total cash in treasury		447,292,498
Debt less cash in treasury, March 1, 1879		$2,026,207,541
Increase during February		311,411
Bonds issued to the Pacific Railroad Companies, interest payable in lawful money; principal outstanding		64,623,512
Interest: accrued and not yet paid		646,965
Paid by the United States		41,772,846
Repaid by the transportation of mails		10,658,976
Balance of interest paid by the United States		31,115,868

FEDERAL appointments: David H. Strother, West Virginia, Consul General at the City of Mexico; Lucius H. Foote, Consul of the United States at Valparaiso; John M. Wilson, of Ohio, Consul of the United States at Panama; George Scroggs, of Illinois, Consul of the United States at Hamburg; Ebenezer Stephens, of Wisconsin, Indian Agent at Green Bay, Wis.

THE Teller Committee will begin on Wednesday, the 19th inst., an inquiry into the matters presented by Senator Thurman.

IT is intimated that the President will direct the Secretary of War to expend only such appropriations in the River and Harbor bill as are for works of a national character....Congressmen receive no mileage for attending an extra session, and those who do not remain in Washington until it meets will have to pay their own traveling expenses.

FOREIGN.

TERRIBLE destitution exists in Sheffield, England. The Mayor reports 4,000 people destitute and 400 families actually starving, in one district of that city....The latest information from South Africa states that the situation is unchanged, that the English troops are on the defensive, and that the loss of the invaders in the battle of Rorkesdrift was over 500 men.....The Princess Louisa Margaret, niece of the Emperor of Germany, has left Berlin for England to wed Prince Arthur, Duke of Connaught....Twenty-three Spanish sailors, on the way from Ferrol to spend the carnival in their native villages, have been drowned. Their boat was capsized by a squall.

A CABLE dispatch announces the death of Shere Ali, the fugitive Ameer of Afghanistan.

DIPHTHERIA prevails to an alarming extent in Southern Russia.

THE political situation in France is not very encouraging. The extreme Radicals and Conservatives are warring against each other, and the former are fast undermining the present Ministry.

A LONDON dispatch reports another English coal-mine explosion, by which nineteen colliers were killed....Signor Fanfani, the most eminent of Italian lexicographers, is dead.

INTELLIGENCE has reached St. Petersburg that after the death of Shere Ali a bloody conflict broke out among the followers of the various pretenders to the Afghan throne, and the partisans of Yakoob Khan were victorious. It was reported that Yakoob Khan and two other pretenders had taken refuge at Herat.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

FEBRUARY 28.—A communication from David T. Corbin, contestant for the seat of M. C. Butler as Senator from South Carolina, announcing his withdrawal from the contest, was received and read.... The bill making an appropriation for the payment of arrears of pensions was, after a long debate, passed....The Sundry Civil Appropriation bill was under consideration until after midnight, when a recess was taken till 10 a. m., March 1. ——George F. Seward was brought before the bar of the House by the Sergeant-at-Arms, and Mr. Springer submitted a motion declaring him in contempt of the House. An amendment was offered referring the matter to the Judiciary Committee. The latter motion prevailed....The Postoffice Appropriation bill was then taken up, and occupied the House the remainder of the day. The Senate amendments, subsidizing the Brazilian steamship line, and providing for the classification of mail matter, were non-concurred in, and a conference committee ordered.

MARCH 1.—The Senate was in session all day, and until 4:30 o'clock a. m., on the appropriation bills. The Legislative and Sundry Civil bills were completed and passed, when a recess was voted until 2 p. m. Sunday, March 2, at which hour the Senate reassembled. The River and Harbor bill was taken up and disposed of. The Mexican Pension bill then came up, when Mr. Hoar offered an amendment forever barring Jeff Davis from receiving a pension under the act. This gave rise to an animated political debate, in which Messrs. Thurman, Lamar and Garland were the chief participants on the Democratic side, and Messrs. Blaine and Hoar on the Republican side of the house. The amendment was finally adopted by yeas 32, nays 28.——The House was in session almost continuously from 12 noon of Saturday, March 1, to Monday morning, 3d. The bill to prevent the introduction of contagious diseases, the Sugar bill, the bill to amend the patent laws, and the bill to extend the time for the completion of the Northern Pacific railroad, were defeated....The President's Message vetoing the anti-Chinese bill was received and read, and the House refused—109 yeas, 99 nays—to pass the bill over the Executive veto.

MARCH 3.—In the Senate, Mr. Allison made a report from the Select Committee appointed at the instance of Senator Matthews in June last. It concludes as follows: "After full consideration they find, unanimously, the statements of Senator Matthews to be true, and that he had no connection with any real or supposed frauds in the election in Louisiana, and that he has not been guilty of any corrupt conduct in any of the matters referred to in the testimony, while we cannot but regard his action in respect to James E. Anderson's effort to obtain an appointment to office under the circumstances as wrong and injurious to the public interest."....A resolution was adopted authorizing the Teller Committee to sit during the recess of Congress and take testimony....The Shields bill to pension Mexican soldiers, with the Hoar amendment forever excepting Jeff Davis from the provisions of the bill, was defeated—yeas, 30; nays, 28.——The House spent nearly the whole day in wrangling over the case of ex-Consul Seward, the Republicans filibustering to prevent the passage of the resolution of impeachment....The report of the majority of the Potter Committee was presented....Little progress was made with the appropriation bills, the conference committees in both houses being unable to agree.

MARCH 4.—The animated scenes that usually characterize the closing hours of Congress were enacted in both houses. The Senate was engaged all the preceding night on the Appropriation bills, and just before daylight an extraordinary debate occurred over the political amendments to the Legislative bill, which was participated in by Messrs. Hoar, Blaine, Matthews and others on the Republican side, and Thurman, Beck and others on the Democratic side. The debate was of a high order, and full of fire on both sides. The bill, however, together with the Army Appropriation bill, failed to pass, the Senate remaining firm in its determination not to concur in the amendment abolishing the Federal Election laws, and the House with equal stubbornness refusing to recede. Agreements were reached by the joint conference committees on the other pending Appropriation bills, and they were promptly passed. Bills were also passed placing Gen. Shields on the retired list of Brigadier Generals; appropriating $25,000,000 to pay arrears of pensions; creating a National Board of Public Health; providing for the taking of the tenth census; to promote the education of the blind....The report of the House Judiciary Committee upon the case of Judge Blodgett, of the United States Court for the Northern Illinois District, accompanied by a resolution exonerating him from the charges brought against him by certain members of the Chicago bar, was presented, and the resolution adopted....The House, up to the very moment of adjourning, was engaged in a fierce partisan debate over the political amendments to the Appropriation bill.

EXTRA SESSION.

The President has issued the following proclamation convening Congress in extra session on the 18th inst.:

By the President of the United States of America—A proclamation:

WHEREAS, The final adjournment of the Forty-fifth Congress, without making the usual and necessary appropriations for the legislative, executive and judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1880, and without making the usual and necessary appropriations for the support of the army for the same fiscal year, presents an extraordinary occasion, requiring the President to exercise the power vested in him by the constitution to convene the Houses of Congress in anticipation of the day fixed by law for their next meeting;

Now, therefore, I, Rutherford B. Hayes, President of the United States, do, by virtue of the power to this end vested in me by the constitution, convene both Houses to assemble at their respective Chambers at 12 o'clock noon Tuesday, the 18th day of March, then and there to consider and determine such measures as, in their wisdom, their duty, and the welfare of the people may seem to demand.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be fixed.

R. B. HAYES.

By the President:
WILLIAM M. EVARTS, Secretary of State.

The Potter Investigation.

On Feb. 28, the Potter Committee was in secret session for a part of the day, when Mr. Potter read all of his report with the exception of that part relating to the cipher telegrams, which was not quite completed. The minority were to prepare a report, and Gen. Butler said he would probably have one of his own.

A Game of Chess on the Ice.

Thirty years ago this February on the frozen Nemahbin lake, near Nashotah Theological Seminary, in Delafield, twenty-eight miles west of Milwaukee, sixty-four squares were marked off upon the ice, each ten feet square, the snow being scraped off from the alternate squares, and a game of chess was played, with thirty-two young men and two young ladies acting as pieces, and each one moving as directed by the king of the side to which he belonged. The two young ladies were the queens. Most of the other "pieces" were students at "the Mission," as the Nashotah institution was called in those days, though many were farmers' sons and other young men of the neighborhood, one of them the district schoolmaster at Summit corners. One of the kings was the lovable pioneer Christian hero the Rev. Lloyd Breck; the other was a mere youth, named Ammi Hawks, son of a hotel-keeper at Delafield village. Wonder what's become of them all! Hawks was a clever player, and kept the wise old priest's wits at work all the afternoon; but the latter finally fastened them to a single square, when "the shades of night were falling fast" and all but themselves and two or three of the knights and castles had been killed off. The writer hereof was a humble pawn, whose aching toes and hollow stomach made it a happy disaster when he got "taken" late in the afternoon, as it was about time to water the stock.—Grand Rapids (Mich.) Eagle.

An Arkansan's Pocket-Pistol.

An amusing episode occurred in the House to-day. An Arkansas member was on the floor, in the act of removing his overcoat, and while so doing a well-filled whisky-flask dropped out of one of the pockets on the floor. It did not break, and the statesman had nerve enough to claim it.—Washington Cor. Cincinnati Enquirer.

Interesting to Farmers.

A writer in the the New York Tribune says that carbolic acid administered in a very diluted state in the drinking-water of cattle, and sprinkled about barns, stables and yards, is an absolute disinfectant, and prevents cattle disease. The spread of the rinderpest in England was stopped by the use of carbolic acid.

Singular Accident.

Ira Cook was to have been married in Northampton, Mass., at the age of 66. He started for the Town Clerk's office to get a license, and doubtless was excited and nervous, for he fell while climbing over a fence, caught one foot between the pickets, and hung head downward till he was dead.—New York Sun.

EXECUTIVE VETO.

The President's Message Vetoing the Bill Restricting Chinese Immigration.

To the House of Representatives:

After a very careful consideration of House bill 2,423, entitled "An act to restrict the immigration of Chinese to the United States," I herewith return it to the House of Representatives, in which body it originated, with my objections to its passage.

The bill, as it was sent to the Senate from the House of Representatives, was confined in its provisions to the object named in its title, which is that of "An act to restrict the immigration of Chinese to the United States." The only means adopted to secure the proposed object was the limitation on the number of Chinese passengers which might be brought to this country by any one vessel to fifteen, and, as this number was not fixed in any proportion to the size or tonnage of the vessel, or by any consideration of the safety or accommodation of these passengers, the principle, purpose and effect of the enactment were to restrict this immigration to an extent falling but little short of its absolute exclusion. The bill as amended in the Senate and now presented to me includes an independent and additional provision which aims at and in terms requires the abrogation by this Government of Arts. 5 and 6 of the treaty with China, commonly called the Burlingame treaty, through the action of the Executive enjoined by this provision of the act.

The Burlingame treaty, of which the ratifications were exchanged at Pekin Nov. 23, 1869, recites as the occasion and motive of its negotiation by the two Governments that "since the conclusion of the treaty between the United States of America and the Ta Tsing empire (China) of the 18th June, 1858, circumstances have arisen showing the necessity of additional articles thereto," and proceeds to an agreement as to said additional articles. These negotiations, therefore, ending by the signature of the additional articles July 28, 1868, had for their object the completion of our treaty rights and obligations toward the Government of China by the incorporation of these new articles, as thenceforth parts of the principal treaty to which they are made supplemental. Upon the settled rules of interpretation applicable to such supplemental negotiations the text of the principal treaty and of these "additional articles thereto" constitute one treaty, from the conclusion of the new negotiations in all parts of equal and concurrent force and obligation between the two Governments, and to all intents and purposes as if embraced in one instrument.

The principal treaty, of which the ratifications were exchanged Aug. 16, 1859, recites that "The United States of America and the Ta Tsing empire, desiring to maintain firm, lasting, and sincere friendship, have resolved to renew in a manner clear and positive, by means of a treaty or general convention of peace, amity, and commerce, the rules of which shall in future be mutually observed in the intercourse of their respective countries," and proceeds in its thirty articles to lay out a careful and comprehensive system for the commercial relations of our people with China. The main substance of all the provisions of this treaty is to define and secure the rights of our people in respect of access to, residence and protection in, and trade with China. The actual provisions in our favor in these respects were framed to be, and have been found to be, adequate and appropriate to the interests of our commerce, and by the concluding article we receive the important guarantee "that should at any time the Ta Tsing empire grant to any nation, the merchants or citizens of any nation, any right, privilege, or favor connected either with navigation, commerce, political, or other intercourse which is not conferred by this treaty, such right, privilege and favor shall at once freely inure to the benefit of the United States, its public officers, merchants and citizens." Against the body of stipulations in our favor, and this permanent engagement of equality in respect of all future concessions to foreign nations, the general promise of permanent peace and good offices on our part seems to be the only equivalent. For this the first article undertakes as follows:

"There shall be, as there have always been, peace and friendship between the United States of America and the Ta Tsing empire, and between their people respectively. They shall not insult or oppress each other for any trifling cause, so as to produce an estrangement between them, and if any other nation should act unjustly or oppressively the United States will exert their good offices, on being informed of the case, to bring about an amicable arrangement of the question, thus showing their friendly feelings."

At the date of the negotiation of this treaty our Pacific possessions had attracted a considerable Chinese immigration, and the advantages and the inconveniences felt or feared therefrom had become more or less manifest, but they dictated no stipulations on the subject to be incorporated in the treaty. The year 1868 was marked by the striking event of a spontaneous embassy from the Chinese empire, headed by an American citizen, Anson Burlingame, who had relinquished his diplomatic representation of his own country in China to assume that of the Chinese empire to the United States and the European nations. By this time the facts of Chinese immigration and its nature, influence, present and prospective, had become more noticeable and were more observed by the population immediately affected, and by this Government. The principal feature of the Burlingame treaty was its attention to and its treatment of the Chinese immigration, and the Chinese as forming, or as they should form, a part of our population. Up to this time our uncovenanted hospitality to emigration, our fearless liberty of citizenship, our equal and comprehensive justice to all inhabitants, whether they abjured their foreign nationality or not, our civil freedom, and our religious toleration, had made all comers welcome, and under these protections the Chinese in considerable numbers had made their lodgment upon our soil. The Burlingame treaty undertakes to deal with this situation, and its fifth and sixth articles embrace its most important provisions in this regard, and the main stipulations in which the Chinese Government has secured an obligatory protection of its subjects within our territory. They read as follows:

"ART. 5. The United States of America and the Emperor of China cordially recognize the inherent and inalienable right of man to change his home and allegiance, and also the mutual advantage of the free migration and emigration of their citizens and subjects respectively from the one country to the other for purposes of curiosity, of trade, or as permanent residents. The high contracting parties, therefore, join in reprobating any other than an entirely voluntary emigration for these purposes. They consequently agree to pass laws making it a penal offense for a citizen of the United States or Chinese subjects to take Chinese subjects either to the United States or to any other foreign country, or for a Chinese subject or citizen of the United States to take citizens of the United States to China, or to any other foreign country, without their free and voluntary consent, respectively.

"ART. 6. Citizens of the United States visiting or residing in China shall enjoy the same privileges, immunities, or exemptions in respect to travel or residence as may there be enjoyed by the citizens or subjects of the most favored nation; and, reciprocally, Chinese subjects visiting or residing in the United States shall enjoy the same privileges, immunities and exemptions in respect to travel or residence as may there be enjoyed by the citizens or subjects of the most favored nation. But nothing herein contained shall be held to confer naturalization upon citizens of the United States in China, nor upon the subjects of China in the United States."

An examination of these two articles in the light of the experience then influential in suggesting their necessity will show that the fifth article was framed in hostility to what seemed the principal mischief to be guarded against, to wit: the introduction of Chinese laborers by methods which should have the character of a forced and servile importation, and not for a voluntary emigration of freemen seeking our shores upon motives and in a manner consistent with the system of our institutions and approved by the experience of the nation. Unquestionably the adherence of the Government of China to these liberal principles of freedom in emigration with which we were so familiar, and with which we were so well satisfied, was a great advance toward opening that empire to our civilization and religion, and gave promise in the future of greater and greater practical results in the diffusion throughout that great population of our arts and industries, our manufactures, our material improvements, and the sentiments of government and religion, which seem to us so important to the welfare of mankind. The first clause of this article secures this acceptance by China of the American doctrines of free emigration to and from among the peoples and races of the earth. The second clause, however, in its reprobation of "any other than an entirely voluntary emigration" by both the high contracting parties, and in the reciprocal obligations whereby we secured the solemn and unqualified engagement on the part of the Government of China "to pass laws making it a penal offense for a citizen of the United States or Chinese subjects to take Chinese subjects either to the United States or to any other foreign country without their free and voluntary consent," constitutes the great force and value of this article. Its importance both in principle and in its political service toward our protection against servile importation in the guise of immigration cannot be overestimated. It commits the Chinese Government to active and efficient measures to suppress this iniquitous system where those measures are most necessary and can be most effectual. It gives to this Government a footing of treaty right to such measures and means, and opportunity of insisting upon their adoption, and of complaint and resentment at their neglect.

The fifth article, therefore, if it fall short of what the pressure of later experience of our Pacific States may urge upon the attention of this Government as essential to public welfare, seems to be in the right direction, and to contain important advantages which, once relinquished, cannot be easily recovered.

The second topic which interested the two Governments under the actual conditions of things which prompted the Burlingame treaty was the adequate protection under solemn and definite guarantees of the treaty of Chinese already in this country and those who should seek our shores. This was the object and forms the subject of the sixth article, by whose reciprocal engagement the citizens and subjects of the two Governments respectively visiting or residing in the country of the other are secured the same privileges, immunities, or exemptions there enjoyed by the citizens or subjects of the most favored nations.

The treaty of 1868, to which these articles are made supplemental, provides for a great amount of privilege and protection both of the persons and property of American citizens in China. But it is upon the sixth article that the main body of the treaty rights and securities of the Chinese already in this country depend. Its abrogation, were the rest of the treaty left in force, would leave them to such treatment as we should voluntarily accord them by our laws and customs. Any treaty obligation would be wanting to restrain our liberty of action toward them, or measure or sustain the right of the Chinese Government to redress in their behalf. The lapse of ten years since the negotiation of the Burlingame treaty has exhibited to the notice of the Chinese Government, as well as to our own people, the working of this experiment of immigration in great numbers of Chinese laborers to this country, and their maintenance here of all traits of race, religion, manners and customs, habitation, mode of life, segregation here, and the keeping up of the ties of their original home, which stamp them as strangers and sojourners, and not as incorporated elements of our national life and growth. This experience may naturally suggest a reconsideration of the subject as dealt with by the Burlingame treaty, and may properly become the occasion or more direct and circumspect recognition in renewed negotiations of the difficulties surrounding this political and social problem. It may well be that, to the apprehension of the Chinese Government no less than our own, the simple provisions of the Burlingame treaty may need to be replaced by more careful methods, securing the Chinese and ourselves against a larger and more rapid infusion of this foreign race than our system of industry and society can take up and assimilate with ease and safety. This ancient Government, ruling a polite and sensitive people, distinguished by a high sense of national pride, may properly desire the adjustment of their relations, without which would in all things confirm and in no degree endanger the permanent peace, and amity, and growing commerce, and prosperity, which it has been the object and effect of our existing treaties to cherish and perpetuate.

I regard the very grave discontents of the people of the Pacific States with the present working of the Chinese immigration, and their still graver apprehensions therefrom in the future, as deserving the most serious attention of the people of the whole country, and a solicitous interest on the part of Congress and the Executive. If this were not my own judgment the passage of this bill by both houses of Congress would impress upon me the seriousness of the situation, when a majority of the representatives of the people of the whole country had thought it necessary to justify so serious a measure of relief.

The authority of Congress to terminate a treaty with a foreign power by expressing the will of the nation no longer to adhere to it is as free from controversy under our constitution as is the further proposition that the power of making new treaties or modifying existing treaties is not lodged by the constitution in Congress, but in the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, as shown by the concurrence of two-thirds of that body. A denunciation of a treaty by any Government is confessedly justifiable only upon some reason, both of the highest justice and of the highest necessity. The action of Congress in the matter of the French treaties in 1798, if it be regarded as an abrogation by this nation of the subsisting treaty, strongly illustrates the character and degree of justification which was then thought suitable to such a proceeding. The preamble of the act recites that "The treaties concluded between the United States and France have been repeatedly violated on the part of the French Government, and just claims of the United States for the reparation of injuries so committed have been refused, and their attempts to negotiate the amicable adjustment of all complaints between the two nations have been repelled with indignity," and that, "under the authority of the French Government, there is yet pursued against the United States a system of predatory violence infracting said treaties, and hostile to the rights of a free and independent nation."

The enactment as a logical consequence of these recited facts declares "that the United States are of right freed and exonerated from the stipulations of treaties of the Consular Convention heretofore concluded between the United States and France, and that the same shall not henceforth be regarded as legally obligatory on the Government or the citizens of the United States." The history of the Government shows no other instance of the abrogation of a treaty by Congress. Instances have sometimes occurred where the ordinary legislation of Congress has, by its conflict with some treaty obligations of the Government toward foreign powers, taken effect as an infraction of a treaty, and been generally declared to be operative to that result. But neither such legislation nor such judicial sanction of the same has been regarded as an abrogation, even for the moment, of the treaty. On the contrary, the treaty, in such cases, still subsists between the Governments, and the casual infraction is repaired by appropriate satisfaction in the maintenance of the treaty.

The bill before me does not enjoin upon the President the abrogation of the entire Burlingame treaty, much less of the principal treaty of which it is made the supplement. As the power of modifying an existing treaty, whether by adding or striking out a provision, is a part of the treaty-making power under the constitution, its exercise is not competent for Congress, nor would the assent of China to this partial abrogation of the treaty make the action of Congress, in thus procuring an amendment of a treaty, a competent exercise of authority under the constitution. The importance, however, of this special consideration seems superseded by the principle that a denunciation of a part of a treaty not made by the terms of the treaty itself separate from the rest is a denunciation of the whole treaty. As the other high contracting party has entered into no treaty obligations except such as include the part denounced, the denunciation by one party of the part necessarily liberates the other party from the whole treaty.

I am convinced that whatever urgency might in any quarter or by any interest be supposed to require the instant suppression of further immigration from China, no reason can require the immediate withdrawal of our treaty protection of the Chinese already in this country, and no circumstances can tolerate an exposure of our citizens in China, merchants or missionaries, to the consequences of so sudden an abrogation of their treaty protection. Fortunately, however, the actual recession in the flow of immigration from China to the Pacific coast, shown by trustworthy statistics, relieves us from any apprehension that the treatment of the subject in the proper course of diplomatic negotiations will introduce any features of discomfort or disturbance among the communities directly affected. Were such delays fraught with more inconveniences than have ever been suggested by the interests most earnest in promoting this legislation, I cannot but regard the summary disturbance of our existing treaties with China as greatly more inconvenient to much wider and more permanent interests of the country.

I have no occasion to insist upon more general considerations of interest and duty which sacredly guard the faith of the nation in whatever form of obligation it may have been given. These sentiments animate the deliberations of Congress and pervade the minds of our whole people. Our history gives little occasion for any reproach in this regard, and in asking the renewed attention of Congress to this bill I am persuaded that their action will maintain public duty and public honor.

R. B. HAYES.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, March 1, 1879.

The Ciphers.

MAJORITY REPORT OF THE POTTER COMMITTEE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 3.

The report of the majority of the Potter Committee regarding the cipher dispatches says generally that the Western Union Telegraph Company seem to have exercised due care in respect to the preservation and privacy of their dispatches, and the theft and publication of certain dispatches did not seem to be their fault. At the same time they could not but suspect that Orton, President of the company (since deceased), who was an earnest and active Republican leader, forwarded the dispatches in the custody of the company to the Republican committee of the Senate rather than to the Democratic committee of the House. He had also shown his bias by allowing certain of the dispatches to be withdrawn. On examination of the Indiana dispatches, in which Mr. Z. Chandler was asked by Mr. Tyner to "appoint two Indian Agents" one could see how very naturally the telegraph officials should have failed to recognize these most improbable cipher dispatches to have any concealed meaning, but regarded them rather as corrupt dispatches; that they could recall them so well was a credit to the efficiency of the company, and suggests that nothing in the protection of dispatches by telegraph would be gained by transferring that business to the Government. It was not for the committee, however, to suggest whether any legislation was required to prevent private telegrams from being purloined or exposed, or for their production in proper cases, considering the watchful, competent, and intelligent partisan custody of dispatches for fourteen months. It was to be expected that nothing would come to light not wanted by the parties in charge, and it would have been too much to expect that any messages reflecting seriously on the credit of the Republican party would be found among those bundles.

The translations of the cipher dispatches disclose negotiations on the part of certain near friends of Tilden after the election to secure the electoral votes of the States of South Carolina and Florida. These persons seem to have apprehended that the electoral votes of those States which they believed to have belonged to Tilden would be declared for Hayes, and to have regarded themselves as justified in endeavoring to defeat this corrupt and fraudulent action by submitting to the payment of moneys which they were informed the Canvassing Boards demanded by way of blackmail.

The committee did not in any way justify their action, and considered it a gross wrong. But these negotiations were not authorized by the National Democratic Committee or any person entitled to speak for them. All the persons who had been connected with the negotiations, so far as the committee had secured their testimony, declared that in no way were they authorized by Tilden, whose particular friends they were, and Mr. Tilden had himself voluntarily appeared to corroborate that statement. No charge from any source whatever had at any time attached to the name of Mr. Hendricks.

Life in a Lighthouse.

A grim story of life in a lighthouse comes from the Burmah coast, and is printed in the Rangoon Times. A telegram having announced that the light of the Alguada reef was not visible, a steamer was dispatched to ascertain the cause. The Captain, on landing, discovered two of the men in the lighthouse dead, while a third was lying in a precarious state. The keeper stated that signals of distress, such as "I want immediate help," and "Man dying," had been exhibited by him for about twenty days. As a last resort, all his signals having failed to attract attention, he darkened the lights on the Bassein side, feeling certain that this step would not fail to attract attention to the lighthouse. And so, with the dead and the dying, he watched for relief, which came at last.

WHEN Eve was banished from Paradise, like a true woman she gave vent to her emotions; whereupon Adam observed that it was an "important Eve-vent."

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
BEEVES	$8 00	@	10 50
HOGS	3 85	@	4 50
COTTON	9¾	@	10
FLOUR—Superfine	3 25	@	3 50
WHEAT—No. 2	1 07	@	1 14¾
CORN—Western Mixed	44	@	46
OATS—Mixed	33	@	38
RYE—Western	61	@	63
PORK—Mess	9 60	@	10 72½
LARD	6⅞	@	7
CHICAGO.
BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	4 50	@	5 00
Cows and Heifers	2 75	@	3 75
Medium to Fair	3 90	@	4 15
HOGS	3 10	@	4 45
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter Ex.	5 00	@	5 50
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	3 75	@	4 50
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	94	@	95
No. 3 Spring	81	@	82
CORN—No. 2	33	@	34
OATS—No. 2	24	@	26
RYE—No. 2	46	@	47
BARLEY—No. 2	77	@	78
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	22	@	26
EGGS—Fresh	13	@	14
PORK—Mess	9 00	@	9 25
LARD	6½	@	6¾
MILWAUKEE.
WHEAT—No. 1	1 01	@	1 03¼
No. 2	93	@	94
CORN—No. 2	33	@	34
OATS—No. 2	24	@	25
RYE—No. 1	45	@	46
BARLEY—No. 2	69	@	70
ST. LOUIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 Red Fall	1 02	@	1 03
CORN—Mixed	32	@	34
OATS—No. 2	25	@	26
RYE	46	@	47
PORK—Mess	9 45	@	9 67
LARD	6¼	@	6¾
CINCINNATI.
WHEAT—Red	98	@	1 04
CORN	34	@	36
OATS	26	@	30
RYE	52	@	54
PORK—Mess	10 00	@	10 25
LARD	6¼	@	6½
TOLEDO.
WHEAT—No. 1 White	1 01	@	1 02
No. 2 Red	1 04	@	1 05
CORN	35	@	36
OATS—No. 2	26	@	27
DETROIT.
FLOUR—White	4 70	@	5 00
WHEAT—No. 1 White	1 00	@	1 01
No. 1 Amber	1 01	@	1 02
CORN—No. 1	38	@	39
OATS—Mixed	28	@	30
BARLEY (per cental)	1 00	@	1 10
PORK—Mess	10 50	@	10 75
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
CATTLE—Best	4 40	@	5 25
Fair	3 60	@	4 75
Common	2 75	@	3 50
HOGS	3 84	@	4 15
SHEEP	3 25	@	5 25

AUBURN COURIER.
THEODORE REED, Editor.

FARM NOTES.

IT is about time to begin preparing hot-beds.

SOME imagine that the essence of farming consists wholly in aptitude to labor and strength of muscle.

IN the spring the farmer should see the end from the beginning; then he will work from the beginning toward that end.

NEVER try to beat a colt into doing a thing; or, if nervous, he may turn out a vicious horse, and, if stupid, he may become stubborn. Remember that by patience and gentleness he can be got to do anything that will not hurt him.

ALL kinds of stock will be the better for moderate exercise. This advice applies especially to animals which are kept in stables. Cows and horses should be let out for a part of each day, unless the weather is exceedingly severe or stormy.

FARMERS and poultrymen have learned that there is a difference in the flesh of fowls, as there is a difference in the flesh of cattle, and that it is as desirable to have a hen that will lay as long as possible as it is to have a cow that will give milk the longest possible time.

THERE is no reason why farming may not be made to pay much oftener than it does. Very few have learned to regard it as a business. It is a sort of change-work all round. Most men look on it as a sort of real-estate transaction. They hope one day to sell out at a big figure, hence are afraid to improve their farms with a view to agricultural operations, for fear that whoever buys the land will not care for these little things. We have often heard some improving farmers ridiculed by some knowing ones who were very sure so-and-so would get no more for his place than if he had thrown the money in the dirt.—Des Moines Register.

THE American Agriculturist, in its notes on swindlers, gives the following timely warning to farmers: There is a set of swindlers whose operations are especially directed toward farmers. It is no reflection upon the intelligence of farmers that this is so. These rascals know that all kinds of fish are not to be caught with one bait; hence they operate upon clergymen, doctors, merchants and farmers, each in a different manner. It is safe to predict that there is a new set of traps ready this spring to catch farmers. Of late years the "agency" dodge has been played successfully, and it has already been started thus early in the season. These swindlers are all after one pattern: A glib-tongued chap, No. 1, wishes to establish an "agency" for some crinkum. It may be a stump-puller, a machine for grinding the knives of mowing-machines, it may be a churn power, or a spring bed. Whatever it is, chap No. 1, somehow, or in some way, contrives to get the signature, of the farmer. Here is where the trouble begins. We have cautioned and reiterated the caution: "Farmers, be careful what you sign," but this does not seem to be enough; no matter how much care is exercised, the smooth-tongued chap, No. 1, is usually too much for the farmer. So we say to farmers, don't act as agents to anything, but if you will not heed this, and the temptation as to profit is too great to resist, and you will disregard warnings, we beg of you, farmers, don't sign anything. You may be asked to agree to become an agent, you may be asked to give your address, so that the sample machine, to be sent free, will come all right; you may be asked for merely your postoffice address. Take our advice—which is the same as Punch's advice to young people about to marry: Don't! don't!! Don't, do not—pray, refrain from signing your name to anything whatever. Observe this, and you are safe. Sign your name on any pretense to anything whatever, and you open the way for the visit of chap No. 2. He is not smooth-tongued or persuasive. He has come to collect his bill. You have ordered so and so. The goods are at the depot. Here is the bill, and he wants the money, as he must take the next train. Don't say that you never ordered the goods, for there is your signature! You can't deny it, but you signed it as an agreement to act as agent, or signed it as your address—No. 2 knows nothing about it, but wants his money. Here we say again, don't. Don't be bullied into paying it, but let him do his worst. Show him the door and let him appeal to the courts if he dares. The game has already begun, and hundreds of farmers, to avoid trouble, will throw away thousands of dollars the coming season. Don't be bullied into paying a dollar on any such claim. At the most, it can only go to a jury of your neighbors to decide, but not one case in a hundred will ever come to that.

Was It a Miracle?

Jennie Smith has been telling the Green Street Methodist congregation, Philadelphia, that she was cured of a chronic spinal disease by a miracle. She was bed-ridden for sixteen years. A few months ago, when she was in the Homeopathic Hospital, she asked Dr. John C. Morgan to pray with her, as she felt that she was going to sit up. He did so, and in a few minutes afterward she sat up in her chair. This was after all trials to bolster her up by means of pillows and hands had failed. From this time she began to have a strong belief that she would be able to walk again, and at length she appointed a certain time for a miraculous cure. Some of her friends were invited. To others she wrote asking them to offer up specific prayer on her behalf on that day. After waiting until nearly midnight, she asked two persons present to take her by the arms, as she felt that the time had come. They complied, and, with barely any effort on their part, she rose to her feet and walked. Since that time she has had complete use of her legs. Dr. Morgan declares the truth of her story.

INDIANA LEGISLATURE.

THURSDAY, FEB. 27.—SENATE.—Bills were passed as follows: Mr. Kent's Drainage bill; Senator Foster's bill giving cities and towns the power to construct water works; regulating the working and ventilating of coal mines....The special committee reported the result of their investigation of the Soldiers' Orphans' Home.

HOUSE.—Two bills were introduced having relation to the building of a new State House, the first appropriating $1,000,000 from time to time as needed for the continuation of that building, and the other directing the Governor to discharge two of the Commissioners, one from each party....The Auditor of State reported the amount of claims filed for services by special Judges to be $12,000....The Congressional Apportionment bill; the bill defining tippling houses; the bills abolishing the office of the city assessor, authorizing cities of less than 7,000 inhabitants to surrender their charters, the Fee and Salary bill, and the Liquor License bill were ordered engrossed. ....An investigation was ordered into the fees of the Auditor of the State from the insurance companies, the committee being Work, Chairman (National), and Sleeth, Overmeyer, Hutchinson and Duffy.

FRIDAY, Feb. 28.—SENATE.—Bills passed: Amending the code for establishment of county workhouses; amending the act for the election of Sheriffs; providing for the repair of free turnpikes; to prevent persons who are the mortgagors of goods and chattels from disposing of the same; providing for the appointment and qualification of County Superintendents; enlarging the jurisdiction of Mayors and Justices in criminal cases; to regulate tolls on plank roads; amending the assessment laws; providing for legal and official printing in newspapers.... The bills abolishing the office of State Geologist, regulating the height of hedge fences and preventing animals from running at large failed to pass....Mr. Menzies offered a resolution authorizing the Governor to appoint a Commissioner to revise and codify the insurance laws, whose compensation shall not exceed $100, which was referred.

HOUSE.—A bill in relation to the completion of the new State House was referred....The bills exempting $1,000 worth of property from execution; abolishing the office of County Superintendent; limiting the power of Judges to punish for contempt, were ordered engrossed....The bill appropriating $700,000 to carry on the work of completing the new State House, and providing for a special tax-levy of 2 cents for the same purpose, was passed....The Prison Committee reported everything lovely at both State prisons, and exonerated Warden Howard, of the Southern prison, from all blame in connection with the killing of a convict who was trying to make his escape.

SATURDAY, March 1.—SENATE.—The two bills on the subject of regulating the practice of medicine were, upon a second reading, recommitted to a special committee of three....Senator Benz created considerable merriment by moving, after several leaves of absence had been granted, that the entire Senate be granted leave of absence until Monday week, and the Lieutenant Governor declared the motion adopted, after putting it to a vote.

HOUSE.—The Morgan raid claims, amounting to over $82,000, were referred to Congress for payment....The Fee and Salary bill was passed, as were also the following bills: To prevent foreign corporations from transferring causes against them to Federal courts; authorizing Sheriffs and constables to make arrests outside their jurisdiction in certain cases; authorizing allowances to constables and town marshals for boarding prisoners in certain cases; authorizing a re-transfer of the square donated for Court House purposes to the original owners, when the county seat has not been located in such town; to prohibit regular Judges from receiving their salary when special Judges are occupying their places; giving laborers a first lien for work for corporations; fixing freight rates on railroads....The bill to create a Bureau of Statistics failed for want of a constitutional majority....A night session was held to read Senate bills a second time.

MONDAY, March 3.—SENATE.—Owing to his election to the Forty-sixth Congress from the First district, William Heilman resigned his seat as Senator, and left for home, preparatory to going to Washington if necessary.... The Election Committee reported in favor of Senator Smith retaining his seat....The Legislative Apportionment bill was ordered engrossed, Senator Davis' amendment being added. He voted with the Democrats.

HOUSE.—The committee to investigate the Auditor's office was instructed by the House to extend its examination to a time four years previous to Auditor Henderson's term of office.

TUESDAY, March 4.—SENATE.—The Apportionment bill was brought up directly after the assembling of the Senate and passed, Senator Davis voting with the Democrats. The bill reorganizing the benevolent institutions was also taken up and passed with the aid of Senator Davis....Two legalizing bills were taken up and passed, and then the bill to repeal that portion of the law on the subject of insurance which requires the publication of the semi-annual statements of foreign insurance companies doing business in this State in the two leading dailies of Indianapolis, was taken up and its consideration occupied most of the remainder of the session. The bill was so amended as to require the publication of the statements in a weekly paper of Indianapolis to be chosen by the company, and proof of such publication is to be filed in the office of the Auditor of the State. After being so amended the bill was ordered engrossed.... Senators Burrell and Davis were appointed a conference committee on the part of the Senate on the Apportionment bill.

HOUSE.—A number of committee reports were received and acted upon....Bills passed: Regulating the practice of medicine; securing priority to claims of laborers against corporations in certain cases; in relation to the disposition to be made of township funds; giving colored children the same school privileges as white children; compelling companies which have received grants of portions of the old national road to complete their roads; regulating the transaction of business in this State by express companies; authorizing Justices to appoint some persons to hold court for them when unable to do so themselves.... The Senate amendments to the House bill reorganizing the benevolent institutions were concurred in....The House Apportionment bill, as amended by the Senate, was taken up and the Senate amendments thereto were read, when the House refused to concur in the same and asked for a committee of conference. The Speaker appointed Messrs. English and Dalton as such committee on the part of the House.... The military bill failed to pass.

WEDNESDAY, March 5.—SENATE.—A conference report upon the Interest bill was discussed and not agreed to, a new conference committee being called for....Several House bills were passed, mostly legalizing ones....The bill appropriating $700,000 for the new State House was considered, and, without reaching a vote, made the special order for to-morrow morning.

HOUSE.—Bills passed: The Specific Appropriation bill, which appropriates $187,500; limiting fines in contempt cases to $500, and permitting appeals when the fine is over $50; establishing a Bureau of Statistics, and appropriating $3,000 for its support; permitting counties to vote aid to railroads; providing for the government of State's prison, and establishing an Asylum for Feeble-Minded Children. ....The bill in relation to publishing insurance statements was indefinitely postponed....The Congressional Apportionment bill failed to pass, the vote thereon being a tie....The request of the Senate for a conference committee on the Interest bill was agreed to.

AN Arkansas couple, on their bridal tour, naturally attracted considerable attention, because the bride was six feet tall, the bridegroom six and a half, and both exceedingly slim.

THE STOLEN PRESIDENCY.

Report of the Potter Committee—A Repulsive Exhibit of the Abandoned and Detestable in Politics—The Florida and Louisiana Conspiracies Traced from Their Inception to Their Triumph.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 4.

Hon. Clarkson N. Potter, Chairman of the committee appointed by the House of Representatives to investigate the frauds in connection with the late Presidential election, on Saturday last submitted a report which he had prepared to the committee, and it was adopted by a vote of six Democrats to three Republicans, Gen. Butler being absent. The three Republicans—Hiscock, Cox and Reed—will prepare a minority report.

Mr. Potter's report is necessarily long, as it deals with all the points that have been before the committee except the cipher dispatches, which will be made the subject of a separate report, and will be presented to the committee to-morrow. Mr. Potter's report is regarded by those who have perused it as singularly impartial. They say it is entirely devoid both of rhetorical ornamentation and vituperative denunciation, and derives its force solely from a close logical deduction of facts presented to the committee. Some of the Democrats regard it as wanting in color, or not as strongly expressed as the facts warrant, and it is not unlikely some member of the committee belonging to the party will present an additional expression of their views. The report of Mr. Potter, in opening, sets forth what it was proper for Congress to investigate, and what not, and the difficulty of conducting an investigation into conspiracies which have been successfully carried out while the successful party remains in power. It admits that the confessions of the conspirators who have become dissatisfied is worth little, but points to the fact, now generally understood, that about the essential features of the election and canvass in Florida and Louisiana there is no substantial dispute before the committee, the Republicans having called no witnesses in Florida and few in Louisiana, except as to the conduct of the visiting statesmen, and incidentally about intimidation. It dismisses entirely the testimony of Anderson, Jenks, Mrs. Jenks, Weber, and that class of witnesses, and deals with the case upon general and controlling facts alone. The report is divided into three parts, the first of which refers to Florida, the second to Louisiana, and the third to the forged electoral certificate.

Beginning with Florida, it cites the law directing the Presidential electors to be appointed by the votes cast, and the Canvassing Board to canvass the votes cast, and claims that the Tilden electors, having received a majority of the votes cast in this State, were thereby necessarily entitled to be declared elected, and that the Canvassing Board, by rejecting without warrant of law a portion of the votes, so as to show a majority for Hayes, unlawfully counted Tilden out. It states that the canvassers delayed their announcement until the morning of the day the electors were to meet and vote, so, although action was instantly taken to oust the Hayes electors, no decision could be had until the Hayes electors had met that same day at noon and voted. The report then recites the judgment of the Supreme Court, which subsequently decided the Hayes electors were not elected, nor entitled to cast the vote of the State, and that the Tilden electors were; and also the judgment of the court on the action brought by Drew, the Democratic candidate for Governor, to obtain a recanvass where the courts directed a recanvass, and decided that the canvassers, in refusing to count the votes cast, had defrauded Drew, and unlawfully seated Stearns. The Legislature of the State thereupon directed a recanvass of the electoral vote in accordance with this decision of the Supreme Court, the Judges of which were Republicans, and the recanvass showed the Tilden electors chosen. The Governor then issued his certificate to the Tilden electors as the true electors, but the Electoral Commission refused to consider the judgment of the court, the action of the Legislature, and the certificate given by the Governor in favor of the Tilden electors, and held that it could not take notice of any action by a State after the 6th of December. The report draws attention to the fact that such a wrong might be repeated in any State at any Presidential election by the canvassers withholding the announcement of the result of the election until the day fixed for the meeting of the Electoral College, and then declaring persons who had never been voted for at all to be electors, when, according to this decision, such electors would be entitled irrevocably to cast the vote of a State.

It, therefore, recommends a law providing that, where there is a dispute as to who were the real electors of any State, judgment of its court of last resort certified to Congress before the meeting of the two houses of Congress to receive and count the electoral vote shall be conclusive as to the right of disputing electors, and of which vote from the State shall be counted, unless the two houses of Congress shall otherwise agree.

The report then argues that the action of the Canvassing Board was not only illegal but fraudulent, and cites an instance in which they rejected Democratic votes on unwarranted grounds, and refused to reject fraudulent Republican votes. It deals at length with the claim of the Republicans that they were entitled to the vote of the State on the face of the returns by reason of the Drigger fraud, by which a bogus return from Baker county was furnished the Canvassing Board, which they at first rejected, but which, after they were ordered to count the vote as cast, they fraudulently took in place of the true return. It then deals with the conduct of the visiting statesmen, and particularly that of Gen. Noyes, as contrasted with that of Gen. Francis C. Barlow, whose fidelity to all his obligations and integrity, and independence, fairness and truth the report especially commends.

In regard to Louisiana, the report begins with a reference to the anomalous power possessed by the Returning Board, which, it says, never before existed elsewhere. Under it electors and returning officers held the grossest power over the receiving and counting of the votes. Under the pretext that the color line divided their political parties, they had used this power to fraudulently count the State for the Republicans, and had been exposed by a Republican committee of the Forty-third Congress, which had reported that the whites and blacks of the State being equal, and some of the blacks and all the whites having voted for the Democrats in 1874, the State had necessarily been carried by them, although counted for the Republicans. Hereupon the Republicans set about a false census, in which they made it appear that there were 25,000 more black voters in the State than white, and, as illustrating the fraudulent nature of this census, the report refers to the fact that, while this census reported but 57,000 colored men, women, and children in New Orleans, it made out of them nearly 25,000 colored voters. It then instances the fraudulent registration that was based upon this fraudulent census, whereby it was made to appear that the registered Republican vote exceeded the white voters in the State more than 23,000, while actually there were no more, and the refusal of the authorities to correct this false registration in cases where its falseness was pointed out. From this the report recites the direction by the Republican authorities to the supervisors of parishes, requiring them to return votes according to the census—that is, stating that the colored adults by that census in their parishes were so many, and that they were expected to return a Republican vote corresponding to that, if they ever expected any reward of preferment. Notwithstanding this organized fraud, says the report, when the elections were over, the Democrats had a majority, as returned by the Republican election officers, of some 10,000, the vote polled being the largest ever polled in the State, and larger in proportion to the population than that of the other States.

The Republican officers made returns of the vote accordingly, and declared that the election was perfectly peaceful and fair. The Republicans, in order to overcome this majority, then usurped powers not given to them. In support of this, the report cites the finding of the Hoar, Wheeler and Frye Committee, that the Returning Board had no power to discard votes where protests, as required by law, had not accompanied the returns, no instance of which existed at this election, notwithstanding the Returning Board decided to discard the necessary number of Democratic votes. As a pretext for this usurpation they obtained protests from certain parishes which they picked out as the parishes in which to pretend intimidation had taken place. These parishes were all largely of negro population, which the Democrats had fairly carried. The report then deals with the question of intimidation, and argues that it was impossible for Democrats to gain anything by it, because the Returning Board had been created on purpose to neutralize any such action by throwing out votes in localities where it should prevail. It recites outrageous conduct of the same Returning Board in that respect in 1874, and how its action had been condemned by the Forty-third Congress, giving instances where the board had counted in officials without color of right—men whom the Congressional committee had caused to be turned out and their places given to Democrats. The Democrats knew that they not only could gain nothing by intimidation, but that they could only hope for some show of justice by avoiding anything which might be made a pretense for alleging it. The report then recites the efforts that were made throughout the State by the Democrats to conciliate the black vote, showing by the evidence of Republican witnesses, as well as the testimony of gentlemen of character, as well as Gov. Whitfield, how planters combined with negroes to get up clubs of both colors, and referred to promises and assurances made to negroes even to equality in cars, theaters, etc., far outrunning the Republicans. The leaders having joined the Democrats, the whole mass of negroes came in and became quite enthusiastic supporters, and thus the vote in some of the so-called bulldozed parishes was the very largest ever cast.

As to the conspiracy in East Feliciana parish, the report states that, after the Democrats had conciliated the negroes there, Kellogg wanted Anderson, who was a Supervisor, to have no election, and Anderson fraudulently ran away with that view, to furnish an excuse for throwing the parish out. The parish was thrown out because the Supervisor of Registration absented himself on election day, notwithstanding the other officer held the election and made one return of the vote. The Democrats in East Feliciana, knowing that they had captured the negro vote, hired Anderson to go back and hold an election. The Republicans then hit upon a new plan, and directed their friends in the parish not to vote, so as to pretend intimidation and exclude the parish. They sent out word to their followers not to come to the polls, refused to permit any tickets to be printed or circulated, and exercised their influence to withhold their own vote entirely. Eighteen hundred registered votes were cast, and 451 more, which Anderson had prevented from being registered, made about 2,250 votes cast, all Democratic, but not one Republican would vote, though urged to do so. The whole vote of the parish at two previous elections on both sides had not exceeded 2,500. The Republicans purposely withheld from casting any vote at all, and subsequently made the claim that they had been intimidated and could not vote, and the Returning Board, on this protest purposely prearranged, excluded the vote of the parish.

The report then refers to the supplementary papers obtained from Anderson and Dan Weber, both of whom were known by the Republicans to be for sale; that, after these Supervisors had made return that there was no violence in their parishes, they were induced to make supplementary protests, and that they both confessed they did this because of reward. In other parishes, where officers had seen and certified to a perfectly fair election, Kellogg, by pressure, exacted the false protests.

The report then goes on to state how the Returning Board, having got possession of such unlawful protests, proceeded to take the evidence of United States officers, money being used to bring ignorant negroes from interior fields into a great city where they were herded together, taken before officials, and had affidavits written down for them, to which, upon making their marks, they received their fees and were sent home. The process of manufacturing these affidavits is set forth to show how the negroes were imposed upon, and how worthless the affidavits were. As an illustration of how utterly reckless the Returning Board was in considering evidence, it points out that, in East Feliciana, only twenty-six witnesses to any kind of disturbance could be collected. The disturbances to which they testified had arisen from cotton-seed and other thefts by negroes, and their suppression, which had been conducted by leading Republicans, had nothing to do with politics, and although this, and the act that the election was entirely peaceable and the Republicans purposely refused to vote, was shown by 1,200 witnesses, and although four-fifths of the negroes in the parish actually did vote with the Democrats, the Returning Board threw out the whole vote. The report points out a great many other instances of what it styles the fraudulent, outrageous and desperate character of the Returning Board, and shows the impossibility of their considering the testimony before them, as they had more than could be read by a man reading ten hours a day for two weeks.

The report states that the Returning Board would never have so outraged the people but for their encouragement from the visiting statesmen, and the support which they and the troops gave them. Then follow details how some of the visitors were deceived by the local managers, and innocently co-operated in the frauds of the Returning Board, while others did not. It refers very briefly to the alleged bargain by which Hayes, who had 3,000 votes less than Packard, got counted in, while Packard went out, and mentioned Sherman's offers to prove intimidation, but points out that whenever the committee offered to receive it the evidence was not produced, and they were met by some sham excuse for not producing it; how they had examined many of the witnesses that were before the Returning Board, who, in almost every instance, recanted and explained how they came to make their false affidavits in the first place, and how such statements as they made before the Returning Board were totally unfounded. It then refers to the Sherman letter, in regard to which it simply states the facts as they stand, showing that a letter was actually written, and largely influenced political action in Louisiana, whoever signed it, and drawing attention to the attempt in the interest of Sherman by Mrs. Jenks, whose husband and brother are employes of the Treasury Department, to induce the committee to produce a forged letter.

The Florida portion of the report is followed by a list of all persons connected with the election there who have been appointed to office, and the Louisiana portion by a still longer list of persons in that State appointed to office. The third part of the report deals with the forged Louisiana electoral certificates. It tells how, the Vice President having refused the first certificate, the Republicans secretly manufactured another, ante-dating it, and made it in paper and printing to resemble the one previously made; how, having very little time to prepare it, and it being impossible to get all the electors to New Orleans to sign it within that time, it became necessary to forge the signatures of two of the absentees; that thus there were put to a triplicate paper eighteen forged signatures, which were attached on Dec. 29, in the small upper room in the State building, then in charge of Conquest Clark; how the making of this second certificate was concealed until it was produced before Congress; how, when it was referred to the Electoral Commission, it was not read, but ordered to be printed, and the printer was changed, and the Electoral Commission were served with two printed copies of the forged certificate, perfect in form, and not a copy of the genuine, but the defective certificate; how, after the commission had given its decision, the record of the commission was changed so that the forged certificate, copies of which were really before the commission, was suppressed, and the record made to show as if the genuine defective certificate had been considered and passed upon; how this was not accident, but design, and that not only in one of the published records of the proceedings of the Electoral Commission, but in both, although made months apart; how the Republican managers were informed by Kellogg that there was something wrong about the second certificate, and how all the way through there lies a thread of design to impose the forged certificate upon Congress, and then be suppressed it so that, if discovered, the record might show as if it had never been produced.

The burlesque (John Smith) certificate sent from Louisiana by mail after the forged certificate, and suppressed from the record, cannot now be found. The report regards it a part of the same fraud, its object being to mislead and draw off attention from the forged certificate. The report then recites how all the persons connected with the forgery have been appointed to office, and the suspicious circumstances connected with the appointment of the same, and particularly charges that Kellogg and Clark, his private secretary, were privy to the forgeries.

The report calls attention to the danger of Returning Boards, and the greater danger of controlling elections and protecting Canvassing Boards by Federal troops, and, above all, to the crowning danger with which the country is threatened, by reason of the enormous patronage centered in the Presidency, which makes the Presidential office so great that, in order to control it, the grossest frauds and violations of law may be expected on the part of those who desire to profit by that patronage.

CONCLUSIONS.

It concludes with finding that full effect was not given to the electoral votes of Florida and Louisiana; that Noyes, Sherman and others encouraged this result; that the second certificate from Louisiana was forged as to two of its names, Kellogg and Clark being privy to it; and that Tilden and Hendricks received a true majority of electoral votes, and were the real choice of the people at the last Presidential election.

Stenger, in all probability, will not make a separate report, but will add an expression of his views upon certain points in the testimony to Mr. Potter's report.

The Republican members of the committee have declined to make any part of their report public until after the meeting of the committee to-morrow morning.

Gen. Butler's Conclusions.

THE COUNTING IN OF HAYES OBTAINED BY A SERIES OF GROSS FRAUDS.

WASHINGTON, March 5.

Gen. Butler says, in his report upon the Potter investigation: "I have chosen to examine only the political and party action of both parties, their leaders and their manipulation of the election in the State of Louisiana, where it would seem every form of wrong, misconduct, and outrage possible to be done in an election is alleged to have been committed on one side or the other."

The General concludes that in 1876 there was no full and free election by the whole body of electors of the State of Louisiana, and that the electoral vote of that State ought not therefore to have been counted in favor of either candidate for the Presidency; that, if any legal election was held in Louisiana, then the majority of the votes actually cast in the State were for the Tilden electors and for Gov. Nicholls; that in case the vote of the State is counted at all the votes of the "bulldozed parishes," as they were called, were within the fair and just exercise of the jurisdiction of the Returning Board, to be rejected in the proper exercise of their judgment, with the exception of some few poll-ing precincts not material to the result; that in parts of the State other than said bulldozed parishes, where a full campaign was made by both political parties, the majority of votes were cast for Packard for Governor, and a portion of the Tilden electors, leaving two or more Hayes electors elected; that such a count and return would have given full expression to the will of the people in such parts of the State as were not affected by coercion and violence in favor of Packard, and against two or more of the Hayes electors, which would have given the Presidency to Tilden, as would have been the case if the whole vote of the State had been rejected by both houses.

The declaration by both houses of Congress that under the circumstances the State of Louisiana should not be counted for either candidate would have been the best possible result to the country, because it would have taught a lesson to over-zealous partisans that elections cannot be carried either by force or intimidation at the polls or by frauds in returns, so as to avail the successful candidate; and if so carried by either the vote would be rejected by the final counting tribunal. On the contrary, under the rulings of the Electoral Commission, if they are accepted as the governing law, every encouragement is given to reckless, strenuous partisans to carry their States either by force or by fraud; that the Electoral Commission, as constituted, has afforded no practical solution of the constitutional difficulties attending the count of the electoral votes in disputed States, and that an exigency again arising like that of 1876 will surely lead to revolution; that the appointment of the Electoral Commission was wholly beyond and outside of the constitution, and its determination ought to have no legal force or effect; that the appointing of Judges of the Supreme Court upon such political formation had done great harm to the cause of justice by impairing the confidence that the people have always justly had for the integrity of the decision of that court of causes between party and party, and in undermining the popular estimate of the stern impartiality of the court, that in all questions it will do equal and exact justice under the law to every citizen, and in view of its ill-success the experiment ought never to be tried again.

The result has shown that it is against public policy, and tends to bring the elements of corruption into political methods of action, to send semi-official partisans of large political influence on one side or the other, or both, into States for the purpose of controlling or advising either in regard to how its electors shall vote, or to advise as to the manner in which the votes of States shall be returned and counted; that the counting-in of Hayes was obtained by a series of gross and unjustifiable irregularities and frauds, which cannot be too strongly condemned and reprobated; that, if any title to the Governorship of Louisiana resulted from the late election in that State to any one, it was to Gov. Packard, who was legally elected, duly qualified and inaugurated, and had the right to the support of the General Government against domestic violence and insurrection, by which the State and himself were equally deprived of their just political rights; that the act of Hayes, as President of the United States, in appointing and sending the MacVeagh Commission down to Louisiana for the purpose, and the instruction to act under which it was sent was an act wholly unauthorized by the constitution, and not within the power or scope of the Executive, and especially reprehensible, as its purpose and motive was to carry out a corrupt political arrangement, agreement, and compact on his part made by his friends, with his knowledge and acquiescence and consent, the fruits of which he is still enjoying without right and against law; that there neither is nor ought to be any indefeasable title to any executive office which cannot be reached, re-examined, and decided by proper proceedings authorized by Congress, to be taken and heard ultimately before the Supreme Judicial Court.

Eggs and Egg Culture.

The traffic in eggs in this country is estimated by competent authority to equal $150,000,000 per annum. New York receives in a single year 539,000 barrels of eggs valued at $9,000,000. In 1877 there were exported from this country 5,202,205 dozen eggs valued at $668,701. It is claimed that Philadelphia consumes daily 80,000 dozen eggs. The approximate receipt of eggs in Boston for the year 1878 have been as follows: 107,627 cases containing 49 dozen each, 43,000 boxes containing 100 dozen each, and 17,783 barrels containing 79 dozen each. These figures give, as a result, 168,410 packages containing 5,515,652 dozen eggs, or 78,187,836 single eggs. It is estimated that fully 65 per cent. of all receipts are consumed in Massachusetts, and that about 80 per cent. are consumed in and near Boston. —Boston Cultivator.

Bret Harte in London.

Bret Harte's first appearance on the lecture platform in London is said to have been highly successful. The News describes him as a man "about 48 years of age," and speaks editorially of him as follows: "The Americans are of our own stock, yet in their treatment of the ludicrous how unlike us they are! * * * Mr. Bret Harte's own vein is much more English and less thoroughly Yankee than that of his contemporaries. He is a disciple of Thackeray and Dickens. Of all the pupils of Dickens he is, perhaps, the only one who has continued to be himself, who has not fallen into a trick of aping his master's mannerisms. His mixture of the serious, the earnest, the pathetic, makes his humor not unlike the melancholy mirth of Thackeray and Sterne. He is almost "the only American humorist with sentiment."

THE FEDERAL ELECTION LAW.

A Republican Machine for Corrupting Voters and Carrying Elections.

The proposition to appropriate $250,000 to supply the deficiencies of the Department of Justice for the payment of Deputy Marshals being under consideration in the United States Senate—

Mr. Beck said this appropriation was to pay men legally appointed to conduct elections for the worst of party purposes.

Mr. Allison went to the Clerk's desk and had read a letter from the Attorney General, to the effect that the deficiency in his department would have been but $50,000 but for two clauses in the Election law, under which $75,000 was required for Deputy Marshals to attend elections, and $125,000 for the prosecution of persons charged with crime. A great part of the expense under the latter clause was incurred in the States of Louisiana, Alabama and South Carolina.

Mr. Thurman asked what new circumstances had arisen that the Department of Justice had expended $280,000 of the people's money without authority of law. The department which should above all others obey the law disobeyed it. This money was to pay a set of men employed ostensibly to insure the purity of elections, but really in corrupting elections. Supervisors and Deputy Marshals were as plentiful as blackberries last year and more corrupt than any bull-dozers that ever put foot on this land. Where was the money spent? It had been heralded that the money was needed to protect the poor negro in the South, but it had been spent in New York and elsewhere. Of the $2,000,000 heretofore appropriated for the Attorney General's office, $110,000 of it had been spent in New York, $40,000 in Pennsylvania and $8,000 in New Jersey, and $5,000 to $6,000 in a single county in Ohio, on account of which fourteen or fifteen members of the House of Representatives were elected. In view of the reign of terror instituted in New York by Davenport, there was no difficulty in showing with this machinery how elections were carried. Over 1,200 Deputy Marshals were appointed in the city of St. Louis alone, and the Democratic majority in three districts was overcome by these means. The money of the people was being expended by hundreds of thousands of dollars to corrupt voters. Come what might, he hoped that sections under which these Deputy Marshals were appointed would be stricken from the statute books. He for one was willing to stay here until this time next year to repeal these sections.

Mr. Allison argued that the Attorney General had merely discharged his duty under the law. He was prosecuting frauds and all he asked was money to aid him in doing so. Should the Senate refuse to give him money he could still pay expenses, as all the funds of his department were applicable to the execution of the Election law as well as any other law.

Mr. Beck commented on the letter of the Attorney General and said he admitted that he needed only $50,000 but for the Election law. Two hundred thousand dollars of this money was for political purposes, $75,000 to pay Deputy Marshals and $125,000 to pay for prosecutions inaugurated by these very Deputy Marshals employed to elect Republicans to office. Was the great State of New York unable to protect her voters at the polls? Was the great State of Pennsylvania, under Republican rule, unable to protect her voters? He argued that this money had been used as a corruption fund. The rights of the people had been overthrown by Federal interference. He would let the Deficiency bill go before he would vote a dollar for any such purposes.

Mr. Garland opposed the appropriation.

Mr. Voorhees denounced the Election law, and said he had been told that forty or fifty respectable citizens of Baltimore now languish in prison, where they had been put by Judge Bond for doing something which these Supervisors construed as a menace. He would not vote the smallest fraction of a dollar for the enforcement of such a law. It was the worst law ever placed on our statute books. It was the forerunner of despotism. Whether an extra session came or not he would do what he believed to be right. He referred to the test-oath clause in the Revised Statutes and said it ostracized virtue and integrity from the jury-box in the South.

Mr. Bayard said it was pretended when this Election law was passed that it would produce peace at elections and purify them. He denied that it had produced peace or purified the ballot-box. Rather it had been an agent of corruption and the grossest intimidation. He argued that the law had been administered in the interest of one political party and not in the interest of justice. There could be nothing more dangerous than to overthrow law under the pretense of enforcing law. He denounced the test-oath law, and said that he didn't believe Congress would adjourn until the law had been repealed.

Mr. Wallace, of Pennsylvania, said the appropriation called for by this amendment stood solely upon the letter of the Attorney General, and not upon the book of estimates. The House knew nothing of this appropriation. Who were these Deputy Marshals? Were they men of character and position, or were they the refuse of the cities of Philadelphia and New York? The appropriation of this money did not affect Southern people alone, but the Northern people as well. Prior to 1871 the Department of Justice got $1,500,000 per annum. After the passage of the Enforcement act the amount for the department was doubled, and no reduction was made until the Democracy came into power at the other end of the Capitol.

Mr. Beck moved to strike out of the amendment proposed by the committee the following words: "And for defraying the expenses which have been and may be incurred in the enforcement of the act approved Feb. 28, 1871, entitled 'an act to amend an act approved May 31, 1870, entitled "an act to enforce the rights of citizens of the United States to vote in the several States of this Union, and for other purposes,"' or for any acts amendatory thereof, or supplementary thereto, being a deficiency for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1879, of $250,000," and insert in lieu thereof "$50,000," so that it would be an appropriation of that sum for defraying the expenses of United States courts, the safe-keeping of prisoners, etc. Rejected—yeas, 34; nays, 35.

The vote being announced, Mr. Beck said: "Within one of it, thank God."

A voice on the Democratic side—Business is brightening.

Will Blood Tell?

Dr. Heitzman, of New York, makes the announcement that a drop of a man's blood placed under the microscope will tell just what his condition and constitution may be. After a protracted study of blood corpuscles he has come to the conclusion that an abundance of large granules go with a good constitution; on the other hand, if the granules were few and fine, or the entire body of the corpuscle pale, it was evidence of a poor constitution. He frequently noticed that the number of white blood corpuscles was considerably increased after a single sleepless night, so much so that it might be determined whether a man had been kept from his rest or not by examination of his blood. It could also be determined whether a man was to have acute diseases, or whether he was to suffer "from the slow processes of disease incident to a strumous diathesis." The Scientific American says a committee of physicians has been appointed to investigate and report on this most promising subject. If it proves possible to determine a man's physical constitution by the examination of a drop of his blood, a new field of investigation will be opened, and one having very important practical bearings.

MR. LACY was fined $5 by a Justice in Pekin, Texas. "I'll toss a cent to see whether you make it $10 or nothing," he said. Lacy won.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, MAR. 13 1879

THEODORE REED, - - Editor.

The 46th Congress is Democratic.

The Message of Hayes, vetoing the bill restricting Chinese immigration is published in full in the Courier, this week.

The Chicago News, suggests Grant & Son, as an appropriate head for the Republican Pesidential ticket for 1880. Eureka!

A proposition in the Texas legislature to establish a State newspaper, has created a hubbubboo among the press of that state.

Our readers are referred to a synopsis of the report of the Potter Committee, submitted to Congress in the last days of the late session. It will be found in another column of this paper.

The new legislative apportionment as passed by both Houses, gives DeKalb and Steuben one Senator; DeKalb one Representative; and DeKalb, Noble and Elkhart a joint Representative, which we think will give general satisfaction.

Mr. Beecher says Chinese immigration should be encouraged in order to reduce the price of labor in this country. Beecher is the man who said bread and water were good good enough for a workingman. He is a christian gentleman.

Gen. Ben. Butler's conclusions in regard to the counting-in of Hayes, arrived at as a member of the Potter Committee, and which he (Butler) submitted to Congress as his report, will be found in another column of the COURIER.

A greenback democrat will be the next Speaker of the Lower House of Congress The Nationals will be in position to dictate terms, and they will make use of their power. Ewing of Ohio is one of then favorites for the Speakership.

Over 1300 bills were introduced during the regular session of the legislature, between 75 and 100 passed the Lower House (which is democratic), and only 35 passed the Senate (on account of the mulishness of the republicans). Which made the best record?

If the Democrats in the Lower House of Congress will organize for the special session, in favor the west and south, they can elect a Speaker; if the east will not consent to surrender, the Democrats will loose the Speaker The Nationals hold the balance of power.

Down in Arkansas, a member of the legislature has introduced a bill to make the season of Lent twenty, instead of forty days, upon the plea that everything else has come down fifty per cent. since the war, and there should be no discrimination in favor of Lent.

Associated Press dispatches say that Hayes will consider it his duty to veto even an appropriation bill, if the democrats in the special session undertake to enforce the repeal of the supervisor and test oath acts. Such an unbecoming threat should be resented by Congress. No dictation from the usurper should be allowed.

Another great pedestrian contest is now in progress in New York City. The contest will last six days, and is participated in by O'Leary, the present champion; Rowell, the English representative; Harryman, of Boston, and Ennis, of Chicago. Several thousand persons were unable to gain admission at the start on last Saturday.

There is some anxiety among the Democrats at Washington in regard to the organization of the next House, as a number of the Democratic members are sick. Arrangements have been made to run a special car, fitted up for the use of invalids, to accommodate Messrs. Bland, Singleton and Lay from St. Louis. Telegrams received to-day make it probable that these men will come, although Mr. Lay will make the trip at the risk of his life.

The governor has nominated the following persons to the offices named, and they have been confirmed by the Senate: Mrs. Emily A. Roache, Indianapolis, manager of the Female Reformatory; Finley Bigger, of Rush, county and L. A. Barnet, of Hendricks county, commissioners of the House of Refuge; John P. Early, Laporte county, Robert D. Brown, Dearborn county, and B. F. Ibach, Huntington county, trustees of the Asylum for the feeble minded children.

The Grant Reception.

The New York Herald has a special dispatch from Omaha as follows: "A letter received at the headquarters of the Union Pacific Railroad details a plan for a grand excursion from Washington to San Francisco about August 1 next, to receive and welcome Ex-President Grant on his return from the Orient. The writer states that he has spent some weeks in Washington, conversing with leading Senators and Representatives, and many favor the project enthusiastically. Details are given which indicate that from 50,000 to 75,000 would join in the excursion.

In 1878 the radical party forced the Federal supervision law through congress as a rider to an appropriation bill; now, in 1879, the same party causes an extra session of congress, rather than allow the same law, which provides for the employment of supervisors and marshals to work at elections in the interest of the radical party at the expense of the government, to be repealed in the same manner in which it was forced upon the country. Let the odious and unjust law be repealed as it was passed, rather than suffer such disgrace in free (?) America.

The cost of the regular session of the General Assembly of Indiana is approximated as follows:

SENATE.

Per diem of senators	$18,246
Mileage of senators	1,968
Per diem of officers	1,464
Per diem of employes	4,190
Total	$25,968

HOUSE.

Per diem of representatives	$36,306
Mileage	3,705
Principal clerk and his deputies	3,111
Assistant clerk and employe	2,501
Committee clerks	1,812
Doorkeepers	2,370
Pages	733
Total	$50,087

—Economy is wealth, particularly in the newspaper business. Reed, of the Auburn Courier, is economizing by using the cast-off overshoe of an Auburn girl for a coal-bin. We have the refusal of the mate to it for a wood-box.—Steuben Republican.

Now don't try to slander the "Auburn girls," the shoe is a number ten, and was sent down from Steuben county as a specimen of the ruling size in that county.

Elsewhere we publish the proclamation of Gov. Williams, calling an extra session of the Legislature, which was made necessary by the refusal of the republican leaders in the Senate to endorse several important bills which had passed the democratic House. The responsibility of an extra session rests with the republicans.

The Democratic party will control Congress in both branches, which will give places to Democratic employes in the Senate as well as in the House. Washington is already filled with applicants for the various positions. There are only 77 officers of the Senate. In addition to these there are about 40 committees which employ clerks, but only a few of them retain clerks when Congress is not in session. For the 120 offices of all grades there are at least 2,000 applicants. Of all the Senate officers, only four are chosen by the Senate, namely, secretary, sergeant-at-arms, chief clerk and principal executive clerk. All the others are appointed by the secretary and sergeant-at-arms, respectively. Clerks to committees are appointed by the respective chairmen.

A Proclamation.

By His Excellency the Governor of Indiana: A proclamation convening the Fifty-first General Assembly in Special Session. Given at Indianapolis, March 10th, 1879.

The Fifty-first General Assembly has consumed the allotted time to its regular session, and is about to adjourn. Provision has not been made for the State Government during the ensuing two years. Other important business has not been completed. The public welfare, in my opinion, requires a brief special session.

Therefore, I, James D. Williams, Governor of Indiana, hereby call upon the General Assembly of the State of Indiana to convene in special session, on Tuesday, March 11, A. D. 1879, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon.

Witness the seal of the State and my signature.

[L. S.] JAMES D. WILLIAMS.
By the Governor:
J. G. SHANKLIN, Sec'y of State.

More Fraud.

(Plymouth Democrat.)

The patent right man has been operating in Union township. On last Friday a stranger, claiming to be from Indianapolis, called on a German farmer by the name of Nicholas Walle, living near Maxenkuckee, and told him he had an entirely new wind mill, and proposed to set one up and give it to Walle free of charge in order to introduce it in that part of the county; and that he would ship him four others in the neighborhood; that they would be shipped to the address of Walle, and that when they arrived he should notify the stranger, when he would come down and set them up also. In the meantime Mr. Walle signed a note for $300, payable at the First National Bank in this city. The note was signed and the stranger went on his way in search of some other unsuspecting farmer. Saturday morning Mr. Walle put in an appearance in our city at an early hour in search of an attorney. He consulted Mr. Chaney and soon learned that he had been "taken in," when he employed Mr. Chaney to take the preliminary steps to avoid the payment of the note. The Democrat has contained exposures of different patent right "dodges" resorted to in order to swindle honest farmers, for the last two months, but it seems many of our farmers will persist in contracting with this class of men, and will refuse to profit by the dearly bought experience of their neighbors. Better trade with reliable business men, residents of your own county.

The legislature of this state is opposed to monopolies, it has endeavored to place all the newspapers of the state in competition with the publications of the American Tract Society.

The members of the State Legislature who voted for the "Libel law" just past may expect the blessings (?) of the press of the state hence forth until the same is repealed by the next Legislature. The idea of a body of men who make pretentions to intelligence, undertaking to prevent a free press from showing up the villainies of those who plunder the people of their money, the scamp who outrages defenceless women, the vagabond who knocks down and robs the peaceful citizen, the rough who creates a riot in the streets, is simply ridiculous. We shall be free to publish the truth without regard to the penalties provided in the new law, which reads as follows;

"Any defamatory printing, writing, sign, picture, representation of effigy tending to expose any one to public hatred or ridicule, or deprive him of public confidence or social intercourse, or designed to blacken or vilify the memory of a deceased person and tending to scandalize and provoke his relatives and friends—also the selling, delivering, reading in the presence of others, or otherwise communicating a libel, directly or indirectly, to any person or persons libeled, any person who shall make, compose, dictate, print or write a libel to be published, or procure it published, or who shall knowingly aid in publishing a libel shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and when convicted shall be fined in a sum not exceeding $1,000, to which may be added imprisonment in the county jail for a time not exceeding one year."

The Indianapolis Sentinal, in discussing this bill, uses the following language, every word of which we heartily endorse:

"Under its operation a man may be a notorious scoundrel, but no newspaper will dare to warn the public against him and his schemes until the proof of his guilt, of an irretragible character, shall be in its possession. If this is done without such proof, for the public welfare, the miscreant may sue and the publisher may be fined and imprisoned for violation of the Grubbs law. The entire gang of republican conspirators may escape without having the infamious notoriety their crimes justly merit. It is a law in the interest of criminals and the criminal classes, and every effort designed to expose them will be tortured into a case for a libel suit under the Grubbs law. Publishers of newspapers will not dare to publish telegraph news, for almost every day some villainy is exposed which would require an outlay of large sums of money to obtain the proof necessary to convict. According to the Grubbs bill, no man in Indiana will be permitted to read libelous articles to others, which appear in newspapers published outside of the state of Indiana, without becoming liable to a suit for libel, nor exhibit any caricature calculated to make a man ridiculous in the eyes of the people without assuming all the responsibility of a libel. Indeed, no newspaper can refer to a dead politician or a bad man, no matter if he belonged to the Louisiana returning board, and was as infamous as Anderson or J. Madison Wells, without incurring the risk of a libel suit. The bill, as we understand it, virtually puts a quietus upon all strictures of men's conduct, and is a direct bid for bad people to enlarge the boundaries of their misdeeds, with the assurance that they will not be exposed."

The Greenbackers.

[Washington Post.]

Mr. Crandall, Secretary of the National Greenback Committee, was asked last night, "What of the situation?" and replied by handing the Post a card with the remark, "Here are the figures"

The Post put on its spectacles and read: "Democrats in next House, 137; Republicans, 127; Nationals 22."

"And this settles it?" said our man.

"Certainly, we absolutely control the situation," said Mr. Crandall.

"Why not give me a list of the names?"

"Well, I know of no reason, except that some of the gentlemen who are going into the caucus have requested me not to do so, and hence I cannot, in honor, furnish a complete list for publication."

"In this list do you include any of the members of the present congress?"

"Yes, several; and there will be more when the time comes. Wright, of Pennsylvania, for instance, and Kelley, of the same state."

"Who will be the candidate for speaker?"

"That will be decided by the caucus."

"Will it be Blackburn?"

"I have heard Mr. Blackburn kindly spoken of."

"McMahon of Ohio?"

"He has friends among the members of our party. So has Cox, of New York Bright, of Tennessee, House of the same state, Ewing of Ohio and others, but none of them can receive our support unless they join our church. We are a party now—a National party—and no man not a member of our organization will be elected by our votes. There are none of our own members who are ambitious for the place, and we are just as willing to take a new convert, provided he formerly enters the fold, as a man elected on the National ticket. We intend to organize the House, or force the hard-money men of both the old parties to combine against us, and would rather prefer they should do so. The lines would then be drawn, and the fight of the people against the Money Power would begin."

"Who would they concentrate on?"

"Well, Randall will be the caucus candidate of the Democrats, and Garfield of the Republicans. There are some hard-money Democrats who would vote for Garfield rather than our nominee. I understand that Morse, of Massachusetts, says he will vote for Garfield rather than Blackburn, and doubtless there are others who would do likewise. In this way, only can the House be organized on a hard-money basis."

"When will your caucus be held?"

"That has not yet been decided, but probably about the 16th.

PENSIONS!

Under the new Pension law, soldiers wounded or injured, even if but slightly disabled, can obtain pension back from day of discharge. One of our firm in Washington to give personal attention to all claims before the departments. Do not delay, but write at once. Send stamp for our new soldiers circular.
W. C. Berringer & Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.
☞ Oldest Claim Agency in the U. S. 11 lm

NEWVILLE, INDIANA.

At a stated meeting of William Hecker Lodge, No. 326, F. & A. M., held in this lodge room on Monday evening March 3d, 1879, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas it has pleased the Grand Master of the universe to remove from our midst by the hand of death, our worthy brother, Benjamin F. Greenwood, a member of William Hecker Lodge, No. 326, F. & A. M., on Monday, February 24, 1879, at his residence in Franklin township, therefore

RESOLVED, That in this dispensation we recognize the hand of God, who works in ways mysterious to mortal man, and in the removal of our brother to the lodge above, our loss is his gain.

RESOLVED, That in our acquaintance and association with brother Greenwood we have ever found him a true brother in every relation in life and that we will cherish his memory and imitate his virtues, and cover his follies whatever they may have been with the broad mantle of charity.

RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions under seal of the lodge be submitted to the family of the deceased and be spread upon the records of the lodge, and that they be published in the county papers.

CHARLES L. THOMAS,
ANTHONY STEPLETON, } Com.
ISAAC GUNSENHOUSER,

TUTT'S PILLS!

A NOTED DIVINE SAYS THEY ARE WORTH THEIR WEIGHT in GOLD

READ WHAT HE SAYS!

DR. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last spring your Pills were recommended to me; I used them (but with little faith). I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and I have gained forty pounds solid flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.
REV. R. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

A TORPID LIVER

is the fruitful source of many diseases, such as Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Dysentery, Bilious Fever, Ague and Fever, Jaundice, Piles, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint, Colic, etc.

Tutt's Pills exert a powerful influence on the Liver, and will with certainty relieve that important organ from disease, and restore its normal functions.

The rapidity with which persons take on flesh, while under the influence of these pills, of itself indicates their adaptability to nourish the body, hence their efficacy in curing nervous debility, dyspepsia, wasting of the muscles, sluggishness of the liver, chronic constipation, and imparting health and strength to the system.

CONSTIPATION.

Only with regularity of the bowels can perfect health be enjoyed. When the constipation is of recent date, a single dose of TUTT'S PILLS will suffice, but if it has become habitual, one pill should be taken every night, gradually lessening the frequency of the dose until a regular daily movement is obtained, which will soon follow.

Sold Everywhere, 25 Cents.
OFFICE, 35 MURRAY ST., NEW YORK.

45 Years Before the Public.

THE GENUINE DR. C. McLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS FOR THE CURE OF Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint, DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

For letter-heads, bill-heads statemants, or any kind of fancy printing call at this office.

1879 SPRING 1879

Messrs. Root & Company's

CARPET DEPARTMENT!

Our constantly increasing business in this department warrants our offering to the public this spring a much larger variety and assortment than ever before.

PRICES THIS SPRING

Are lower than ever before, and parties who have delayed refurnishing their houses can now do it with economy and a certainty that they will never buy carpets any cheaper than they are at present.

The Choicest Designs Tapestry Brussels Carpets, 75c., 85c., 90c., $1.00 per yard.

The Choicest Designs Extra Super Ingrain Carpets, 75 cents per yard

All Wool Ingrain Carpets, 50, 60 and 65c.

Single and Double, Cotton Chain Carpets, 25, 30 and 35c per yard.

Hemp, Cottage, Rag and Dutch Carpets, 12 1-2, 15, 18 and 20c per yard.

New lines of Upholstery Goods, Curtain Goods, Floor Oil Cloths, Mattings, Rugs, Stair Rods, Cornices, Fixtures, Shades, Hollands, Picture cords, Tassels, &c.

N. B.—Parties desiring any repairing done to Curtains and Cornices, or to have Carpets relaid, will find our MR. BARRETT a competent and superior workman, who will attend promptly to any orders we are favored with.

ROOT & COMPANY,
FORT WAYNE, IND.

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER AND SPECIAL FLAVORING EXTRACTS.

Eminent Chemists and Physicians certify that these goods are free from adulteration, richer, more effective, produce better results than any others, and that they use them in their own families.

DR. PRICE'S
UNIQUE PERFUMES are the Gems of All Odors.
TOOTHENE. An agreeable, healthful Liquid Dentifrice.
LEMON SUGAR. A Substitute for Lemons.
EXTRACT JAMAICA GINGER. From Pure Root.

STEELE & PRICE'S LUPULIN YEAST GEMS.
The Best Dry Hop Yeast in the World.
STEELE & PRICE, Manfrs., Chicago, St. Louis, and Cincinnati.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1870. Examinations begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNS Co. Sup't.

—COMPOUND ELIXIR OF BUCHU for diseases of the kidneys, bladder and urinary organs is the best remedy known for rheumatism. It removes the cause, and effects a permanent cure in all cases. Sold by DAVENPORT the DRUGGIST. tf.

DEAR SIR:

If you are in want of anything in the way of

GUNS, RIFLES REVOLVERS

Pistols, amunition, gun material, fishing tackle, or any other Fine Sporting Goods please send stamp for my large illustrated catalogue and price list. Yours truly,
Address, JOHNSTON'S Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburgh, Pa. 11-1m.

Sick Headache

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively Cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, &c. They regulate the Bowels and prevent Constipation and Piles. The smallest and easiest to take. Only one pill a dose, 40 in a vial. Purely Vegetable. Price 25 cents. Sold by all Druggists.

CARTER MEDICINE CO., Prop'rs, Erie, Pa.
Five Vials by mail for one dollar.

Th Popl Wat Proof.

There is no medicine perscribed by physicians, or sold by druggists, that carries such evidence of its success and superior virtue as Boschee's German Syrup for severe coughs, colds settled on the breast, consumption, or any disease of the throat and lungs. A proof of that fact is that any person afflicted can get a sample bottle for 10 cents, and try its superior effect before buying the regular size at 75 cents. It has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderful cures are astonishing everyone that uses it. Three doses will relieve any case. Try it. Sold by C. H. Hoyt.

Administrator's Sale of Real Estate.

NOTICE is hereby given that by virtue of an order of the Circuit Court of DeKalb county, in the state of Indiana, the undersigned administrator of the estate of Enos Weaver, deceased, will offer for sale at auction on the premises, on SATURDAY the 15th day of MARCH, 1879, the following real estate:

Town lots number eighty-five (85) and one hundred and forty-eight 148), in the original plat of the town of Auburn, DeKalb county Indiana. Also the north half of the north east quarter of section thirty (30), in township thirty-four (34), north, range thirteen (13), east, in DeKalb county, Indiana; except a piece out of said tract of land heretofore set off to the widow of said decedent and bounded as follows: Commencing at the south-east corner of said tract of land and running thence west one hundred and twenty-one and two-fifths [121-2-5] rods, thence north twenty [20] rods, thence east to the east boundary line of said tract, thence south to the place of beginning, said piece excepted containing fifteen and two-fifths [15 2-5] acres.

TERMS OF SALE:—One-third cash, the residue in equal payments at twelve and eighteen months, with notes at interest, waiving benefit of appraisement laws, and secured by mortgage on said premises.

8-4w WILLIAM LESSIG, Adm'r.

February 19th, 1879.

J. BRINKERHOFF,

BOUNTY AND PENSION AGENT.

LAND WARRANTS

Obtained for Soldiers, their Widows and Heirs for services in the Revolutionary War, the Indian Wars, War of 1812 and the Mexican War. Bounties for Soldiers', their Widows and Heirs for service in the war of 1861. Also Pensions for Soldiers', Widows and Heirs for military services in any war of the United States. Many soldiers now drawing pesions are entitled to

INCREASE OF PENSION.

If you think you are more disabled now than when you received your pension certificate, give me a call. Having been engaged in this business for the past 20 years I hope to render satisfaction. Counsel in regard to all claims against the Government, gratis. J. BRINKERHOFF.
Main street, Auburn. Ind.

COMPETITION

Is the life of trade; therefore

Henry Gugerli!

Ha opened a new Merchant Tailor establishment, in which he makes a specially of Ladies' Cloakings!

Which will be cut and fit, and made up if desired. For Gents' wear a

FULL LINE OF PIECE GOODS!

Always in stock to select from, at

Five to Ten Dollars

a suit less than the same goods can be bought for elsewhere. A full suit made to order, in the latest style, ready to put on, in

24 Hours Notice!

Remember that all work is done in the latest style, and satisfaction is guaranteed in every particular. 42-6m.

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry.
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,

Rogers & Bro. Silverware,

A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SETS,

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry neatly repaired on short notice.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous

—Court closes with this week.

—West's pills cure indigestion.

—Byron Rainier returned to Warsaw Tuesday.

—A book agent in town offering a good work.

—Orrin Moses has gone west to seek his fortune.

—Mr. Markle, of Hudson, was in the city Monday.

—Boat riding was largely participated in last Sunday.

—For building hardware go to Kiblinger & Co's.

—For doors, sash and glass, go to Kiblinger & Co's.

—Harry Rush and family are visiting friends at Angola.

—Hunt up your old rake and bounce into the front yard.

—Remember that Billy Little half-soles boots for 60c.

—Cedar Creek has been "on a high" for a week or more.

—Johnny Schaab is in Chicago this week, buying goods.

—Mr. A. K. Grubb will move to Waterloo in a few weeks.

—Go to McQuiston & Ralston's for good trunks—cheap 10-3w.

—Mr. T. J. Cuppy, of Logansport, was in town last week.

—John Henry has traded horses and now drives a match team.

—Hats and caps of the latest styles just received at Yesbera's.

—"St. Patricks day in the morning," on the 17th of this month.

—Auburn was represented at the Waterloo dance last night.

—Buy lard at Houston's meat market, in large or small quantities.

—About 125 cases will be disposed of at the present term of Court.

—Mr. C. Beugnot will start west on a business trip in a few days.

—Fine dress suitings at Gugerli's, prices low. Call and see him.

—Drs. Cowan & Allyn have removed their office to Case's Block.

—Four tin pails and one dipper for one dollar at Kiblinger & Co's.

—Miss Effie Wunderlich is visiting at Columbia City and Logansport.

—If you want a nobby hat go to Yesbera's. His stock is all new.

—Hoyt, the druggist, has a full line of garden seeds. All fresh seeds.

—The Farmers Mutual Insurance Co. met at Ensleys Hall last Tuesday.

—Blow up your muscle, men; the women are beginning to talk garden.

—The streets will soon be dry enough for the Marshal to commence repairs.

—Rob. McClellan left Saturday with a load of cattle for Buffalo New York.

—The time of year is upon us when cold lunches are served in abundance.

—Hats and caps at panic prices at Yesbera's. Call and see the new styles.

—A new line of piece goods in spring styles can be seen at Gugerli's next week.

—Buy the Kidder barn door rollers the best in use, Kiblinger & Co. sole agents.

—Auburn will be well represented at Ingersoll's lecture in Ft. Wayne this evening.

—Go to Kiblinger & Co. for tinware, they are selling at manufacturers prices.

—Wall paper and window curtains of all kinds in stock at Hoyt's the last of this week.

—Owing to the bad condition of the roads, our town has been a little dull for a week.

—Kiblinger & Co. sell hardware.

—By the appearance of things, the rooms owned by Mr. Eaton will be occupied soon.

—A large supply of fresh and cured meats always on hand at Houston's meat market.

—Yesbera, the merchant tailor has added a new line of goods to his stock. Hats and Caps.

—The Defiance (O.) Democrat is now publishing a daily edition. Success to the enterprise.

—Frank Hoff will keep a full supply of all kinds of fresh fish during the coming season.

—Mens' hats at from 50c to $3.50 boys hats at from 25c to $1.00 at McQuiston & Ralston's. 10-3w.

—Leave yours orders for job work at the COURIER office. We do first-class work at low prices.

—Houston will commence delivering ice in a short time. Leave your orders at his meat market.

—Hemp carpets 4 and 6 yards for $1 Stair carpets—Ingrain carpets at McQuiston & Ralston's. 10-3w.

—Mitch Houston is still gaining favor with the ladies, on account of the tender beef he furnishes.

—The Board of Commissioners adjourned yesterday, to meet in special session to-morrow (Friday).

—Splendid business suits made by Gugerli, for $18,00 to $24,00. Cut in style and warranted to fit.

—One of the firm of Schaab Beugnot & Co is now in Chicago buying new goods for the spring trade.

—The Phillips vs Baxter tournament is set for to-day. The reserved seats are all taken.

—Schaab Beugnot & Co., are now closing out their stock of winter clothing at half price.

—A full attendance is desired at the meeting of the Neoteric club to-morrow night at Ensley's Hall.

—Daniel K. Lanning's celebrated steed ran away last week and somewhat demoralized his buggy.

—Rev. Clark, of Chicago, delivered an eloquent discourse at the Baptist church last Sunday morning.

—Schaab Beugnot & Co's., new spring goods will placed on the market next week. Look out for bargains.

—The Kendalville Standard (Rep) sits down on the fraudulent President, for vetoing the anti-Chinese bill.

—Misses Jennie and Annie Cowan entertained a party of young folks at their residence Saturday evening.

—Dr. Casebeer will erect a brick business house on the south side of Seventh street the coming summer.

—The man that stole the horse near Corunna last week, relieved James Fagan of a pair of boots and a coat.

—The irresistable Joseph Columbus Loveland, of the "Garrett Head Light," was in the city several days this week.

—Remember Dr. Elson's office days, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

—Will open next week fruit of the loom bleached muslin at 9c by piece or 9½c by yard.
10-3w. McQUISTON & RALSTON.

—We learn that Dr. T. G. Matheny has purchased the property formerly owned by Henry Wolf, on South Main street.

—CLOTHING—McQuiston & Ralston are receiving mens', youths' and boys' clothing in new styles and at low prices. 10-3w.

—There is some talk of having a select term of school here, beginning on April 14th, and continuing two months.

—Why go around guming it when our city dentist (Elson) is putting up good teeth on rubber or celluloid plate for $10.

—The time of year approaches when the house-wife will go rummaging through her drawers (bureau) in search of the moth.

—Messrs. H. H. and J. Stamets are buying green and dried apples in large or small quantities. Now is the time to sell.

—QUERY: "Why will men smoke common tobacco, when they can buy Marburg Bros, "Seal of North Carolina" the same price.

—Choice roasted coffee 18c per lb. Eight cakes of soap for 25 cents. Four bars Kirks soap for 25 cents at McQuiston & Ralston's. 10-3w.

—Auburn will turn out more carriages and buggies the coming summer, made by home mechanics, than any town of its size in the state.

—The "Red Light" saloon was broken into last Saturday night, and about 1000 cigars with several gallons of liquor were stolen. No clew to the thieves.

—An old German lady in one of the Cincinnati hospitals has fallen heir to $20,000,000, in London, England. Her husband has started after the fortune.

—While at Fort Wayne Tuesday, Mrs A. J. Little was unfortunate enough to loose her pocket-book containing quite an amount of money and other valuables.

—Latest advices places O'Leary 32 miles behind Rowell the leader, in the great six day walking match at New York. Harriman a good second, Ennis third.

—In Delta county, Texas, Mr. Joseph Day married Miss Sallie Knight. Its "all Day" with Sallie, and all night with Joseph. May their Days to come be many.

—"Wipe your feet! don't you see I've just scrubbed," and "don't lean against the wall with your greasy head! I've just cleaned the wood-work," is heard in nearly every household in town.

—MARRIED—At the residence of the bride's parents, by Rev. T. E. Lancaster, on March 4th, 1879, Mr. Joseph R. Shilling and Miss Alice Gill, all of Concord township, DeKalb county, Ind.

—We are glad to know that Mr. Dennis Lanham has become the possessor of a fine farm in Harrison county W. Va., willed to him by a relative. It contains 140 acres of valuable land.

—The citizens of Columbus, Ohio, are greatly excited, concerning the attempted destruction of the city by fire-bugs. A number of stables are fired every night, by the use of rags and coal oil.

—Just received at McQuiston & Ralston's a car load of No. 1 stoneware—Jars from one-half gallon to eight gallons. Stone churns from five to eight gallons. Milk pans etc , at McQuiston & Ralston's. 10-3w.

—If the COURIER should at any time be compelled to call any person a liar or thief, we advise our readers to not read it aloud, nor mention it to any one else, if they do they are liable for slander, under the Grubbs libel law.

—The Buckeye clothes wringer only $5.00. The best in the world. For sale by Kiblinger & Co.

Soldiers Attention.

Our soldier readers' attention is called to the card of W. C. Berringer & Co., in another column of this paper.

Found.

A note for $80,00 in favor of Haskins & Son. For further information, inquire at Hollisters restaurant, Auburn, Ind.

Dear Sir:

We would call your attention to the advertisement of Johnson's Great Western Gun Works in another column.

—The Library Magazine for March will be ready on the 25th—not dated in advance, as the custom—its contents being mainly from foreign publications of the same date, thus giving what is newest in the literary world. $1.00 a year, or 10 cents a number. American Book Exchange, Publishers, N. Y.

Greenback Meeting.

We are requested to give notice that Mr. Ralph E. Hoyt of Michigan will speak in Auburn on Monday, the 17th, inst at 8, o'clock P. M. on the subject of finances. The meeting will be held in Ensleys Hall.

Land for Sale.

The undersigned offers eighty acres of good land (50 acres cleared) one mile east and two miles south of Butler, for sale at a bargain. For further information inquire at my residence, one mile east of Butler.
9-4w PETER HAAS.

Exhilerating.

The fragrance of Dr. Price's Floral Riches, the sweet odors of his Pet Rose, and his charming perfume Alista Bouquet, produces an exhilerating effect upon the mind. They are as fresh and sweet as the fields in hay-making time None have used them but to admire.

—Our enterprising manufacturer, Mr. James Anderson, is again in the market with a lot of first class carriages and buggies of his own manufacture, which he will sell at low figures, and on one year's time with approved security. He defies any shop in Northern Indiana to furnish better material than is used in his work. 9-9w

—A free book of nearly 100 large octavo pages for the sick Full of valuable notes on scrofula; diseases of the breathing organs; diseases of men; diseases of women; aches and pains; heart troubles; and a great variety of chronic diseases, with evidence that in most cases that these diseases are curable. Sent for one stamp. Address MURRAY HILL PUB. CO., No. 129 E. 28th St., N. Y. 11-6m.

—He was on his way to see his "Dulcena," says Dick, and after reaching the Morning Star bridge was somewhat disappointed to find the road overflown with water, but determined to see her he rolled up his "Sunday pants" and plodded on. Not being acquainted with the road he stepped into a hole which had been washed out by the high water and "got in" up to his—he didn't see her.

Roll of Honor.

Below are the names of pupils in school district No. 2, Keyser-Tp., who were neither absent nor tardy during the school month, beginning Feb. 10, and ending March 7. Daniel Barnes, Frankie Bolander, Addie Olinger, Jno. Barnes, Lorenzo Bovee, Oliver Hinman, Nettie Yarde. Several more names would appear in the above roll had sickness and labor not prevented their attendance.

L. M. BASSETT,
Teacher.

—Kendalville Standard—We heard of a young chap at Rome City who missed the freight train at that place for Ft. Wayne, last Monday morning, and who started in pursuit on the railroad afoot, expecting to overtake it in in this city, but arrived just in time to see it pull out, when he continued pursuit to Avilla with the same result, but kept on his course until he reached Huntertown, where he caught up, and landed in Ft. Wayne all right none the worse for his tramp. We record this as a case of pure "grit," and predict that that boy will go to Congress.

A Literary Revolution.

Chamber's Cyclopædia of English Literature, in the new Acme Edition, is meeting with such extraordinary sale that the publishers, to make it still more popular, have further reduced the prices. Purchasers ordering before April 30th will get the eight volumes complete, in paper, for $1.75, cloth, $2.50; half morocco, gilt top, for $4.00; or bound in four volumes, half morocco gilt top, for $3.20. Sample volumes sent post paid for 30 cents, 45 cents, 65 cents and 90 cents. This is not only of the choicest works in the language, but really wonderful in its low price. Specimen pages and terms to clubs will be sent on request by the publishers, the AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE, 55 Beekman St., N. Y.

—The firm of Heller & Dague, of Monroeville, Allen county, failed last Saturday, with liabilities amounting to about $50,000. This firm was extensively engaged in the manufacture of stoves, and in the sale of merchandise. The firm has always enjoyed a good credit, and was regarded until quite recently as perfectly solvent. Heller & Dague carried on general stores at Monroeville and Decatur, and Dixon, O.; had stave factories at Decatur and Monroeville, and a flour mill and saw mill at Monroeville. They gave employment to about 125 men, all of whom are now out of work. The cause of the failures are to be ascribed to the shrinkage in real estate, the long continued depression in the stave business, and to some heavy losses by bad debts.

W. J. CARVER, M. D.

The Corn-sheller Man,

Put up at the Central House last Thursday evening, apparently in a very critical condition, resulting as he said. from an attack made upon him by three tramps between Spencerville and this place, who had robbed him of his pocket-book containing $643.00 in money, in the scuffle for which, he had been badly beaten, and left scarcely able to reach this place in his conveyance. When his story was related to Mr. Green, the landlord, he at once sent for Sheriff Leas who immediately put in an appearance and begun to investigate the case; it was not long until the Sheriff "smelt a mice," and concluded that he would not go in search of the thieves until the surgical Carver had undergone an examination to as certain the extent of his injuries, which he would have the Sheriff believe were almost fatal. Dr. Cowan was called in, who in the presence of others, carefully examined the injured (?) M. D. and reported to the Sheriff that he could discover no injuries, this of course excited the curiosity of the Sheriff and he decided upon further investigation of the mystery, he went to neighborhood where the attack was said to have been made, where he ascertained that Carver had met a gentleman about four miles from Auburn, and told him that he had been robbed, the gentleman drove on a short distance and noticed a bocket-book and some papers at the side of the road, but feared to pick them up lest he might be charged with the robbery, he drove to Mr. Brown's and related the circumstance, and two of Mr. Brown's sons went back and secured the pocketbook which was turned over to the Sheriff on his arrival. Being satisfied that tramps had nothing to do with the theft the Sheriff returned and had another interview with Carver in which he (Carver) admitted that the whole thing was a put up job, and claimed that he had lost the money playing cards, and had thrown his pocketbook away and had concocted the story of theft to cover the disgrace. He was well at once as if by magic. The Sheriff telegraphed to Mr. Brocius, Carver's employer at Alliance, Ohio, who arrived on the next train and in company with Carver and a deputy sheriff went to Hicksville, where Mr. Brocius had Carver arrested for embezzlement. The matter was settled by the payment of $400 in cash, and two notes signed by Carver's father-in-law, for $100 each, making $600 in all refunded to Mr. Brocius, leaving him $43 and his expenses, short. Carver's family lives near Hicksville.

Northern Indiana Pioneers.

Nearly all of the several counties of northern Indiana have, at some time within the past few years, held pioneer meetings, old settlers' picnics, etc., going under different names. as fancy dictated, but all with the same general purpose in view—that of gathering the old settlers together in a glad reunion. Many of these meetings have been eminently successful. One or two held in this county were very enjoyable, and unusually attended by both the citizens of our own and other counties. We have been requested to suggest the holding of a northern Indiana pioneer meeting at some point in the north part of the state, say, for instance, South Bend, but as to that, leaving the place for the meeting to be determined in the future. Such a meeting could not be any thing else but a pleasant, enjoyable, and edifying reunion. Northern Indiana has now, and in the past has had, some men who were. and who still are, prominent in the affairs of the nation, who, in early times, were the pioneers of all this region of country now so populous, wealthy and great. There is the Hon. John D. Defrees, at present the public printer; Hon. Schuyler Colfax, of South Bend, Joseph Defrees, of Goshen; Solon Robinson, once a pioneer of Crown Point, whom we know not whether he is still living or not, all of whom we mention only because they are all well known, and who would, no doubt, take great pleasure in meeting a large number of those who still linger with us in each of the counties of northern Indiana. We have been requested to put forth a feeler for the purpose of ascertaining how such a gathering would be received, and we know of no better way than to ascertain the views of those most interested through the medium of the journals of the respective counties in the north part of the state. Let the matter be made public brethern of the press, and see how it takes. If it is not agreeable or thought advisable, no harm will be done at any rate.—Warsaw Indianian.

As the pioneers of DeKalb county have a regular organization, we presume such suggestions as they have to make concerning the meeting in question, will be made through the officers of the association. We will gladly publish the views of the DeKalb pioneers at any time.

Great Popularity.

Dr. Price's Special Flavoring Extracts, Nectarine, Rose, Lemon, etc., have been before the public many years and have gained for themselvs, on their own merits, an extensive sale. Their great popularity is mainly due to the using of the purest and best materials, with special reference to their healthfulness.

Increase of Legal Business.

"The serious illness of Judge Tousley is doubtless largely attributable to overwork in the performance of his official duties. For over a year he has been almost steadily "in the harness," exerting himself to the utmost in the vain hope of being able to clear the docket of the innumerable cases that have been placed upon it at every recurring term of court. Notwithstanding these efforts, the dockets of his circuit still assume ponderous proportions, with no immediate hope of an early diminution. As tax-payers, lawyers and litigants are all interested in this matter, a little inquiry into the causes of this remarkable accumulation of legal business may not come amiss.

We have before us a certified statement of the number of cases on the docket of DeKalb county from February, 1877, to December, 1878. This exhibit shows that the number of cases on docket at the several terms during the past two years varied from 429 to 611. During the period named 1,079 civil and 102 criminal cases were disposed of. New cases filed during same period, 1,171!

When Judge Tousley left the bench, in December, 1878, the business in the several counties comprising the circuit was as well disposed of as could reasonably be expected. During the past five years there has been a marvelous increase in litigation, mainly attributable to the financial crisis of 1873 and to the construction of important lines of railway. Villages and towns have sprung up where but a comparatively short time ago scarcely a solitary building could be seen. Ten years ago DeKalb county had but one railroad; now it has the Lake Shore, the Eel River, the Jackson & Saginaw, and the B. & O A new and promising railroad town (Garrett), with a voting population of nearly five hundred, has added largely to the litigation of the county. The towns along the B. & O. railroad have largely increased in population; indeed, it may be said that Cromwell, Albion, Avilla, Auburn, and St. Joe Station have doubled their population since 1870. Then we have La Otto, a thriving town in Noble county, on the Eel River road, and Butler, the eastern terminus of that route. The building up of these towns amidst the greatest financial crisis ever witnessed in this country has created a vast amount of litigation; has added so largely to the business of our courts as to render it practically impossible for the judge of our circuit to dispose of it, even though he devote every moment of his time to the discharge of his official trust. How to remedy the evil is not for us to point out. The people of Noble, DeKalb and Steuben owe it to themselves to devise some plan whereby the administration of justice may be expedited and the judge relieved of some of the burdens now resting upon him."

The statements made in the above article which we find in the Ligonier Banner fully explain the cause of the overburdened dockets in the judicial circuit, especially that of DeKalb county. The time now allowed by law for the disposal of litigation in this county is not sufficient, since railroads, towns and villages have become so numerous within our borders. Court terms should be extended in this county in order to do justice to all, and if the length of the term is greater, the judicial district must necessarily be less. How can it be done?

Angola.

—Mud till you can't rest.

—One less saloon in town.

—Mr. J. W. Scoville has started a store in Hudson.

—Frank Killinger of Waterloo was in town over Sunday.

—Jake Kahn, of Watterloo was in town last Thursday.

—The literary society was very well attended on Monday evening.

—The Alpha society gave a public entertainment last Saturday evening.

—A temperance meeting was held at the Congregational church last Saturday afternoon.

—A. H. Weaver, operator for the L. S. & M. S. railroad at Waterloo, was in town last Friday.

—George Washington Weamer, editor of the Auburn Republican, was in town one day last week.

—S. C. Snyder was in town last Saturday visiting his brother John, who is in the Agricultural business.

—Miss Sadie Morse, who has been visiting in Pittsburgh, Pa., returned home last Saturday evening.

—A stranger delivered a temperance lecture at the M. E. church on Monday evening, to a very slim audience.

—The law firm of Morrow & Adams has dissolved partnership, Morrow moving his office on the north side of the public square.

—Although we got "thumped" for a couple of items we sent last week, we are not scared at all, and will continue to write the truth as we have done heretofore. All we have to say is that we repeat the articles of last week.

A REPORTER.

Spencerville Items.

—Mrs. Kagey, of Auburn, is visiting friends in town.

—Mr. David Sanders, of Mich., was in town Monday.

—A good barber can find a location open to him at this place.

—H. H. Fales, Esq., has been confined to his room for several days.

—J. J. Davis has purchased the right of Allen county in the Chadwick churn.

—Frank Lancaster will visit friends at Wheeling, West Va., this week.

—The Rev. Kelso will take charge of the pastorate of the Lutheran church about the 1st of April.

—A pair of young "bantas" tried their spurs a few days ago; out of which a law suit is threatened.

—Two of the watches stolen from J. Garman's jewelry shop some time ago was found on Saturday in a field north of town.

Newville Items.

—Mrs. Allen has returned from her long visit to her daughters in Illinois much improved in health.

—B. F. Blair has been to Auburn attending to the interests of the people of DeKalb county, like a faithful sentinel, as he is.

—Mrs. Henry Robinson returned to Cleveland to have her eyes operated upon again. The first operation was not likely to prove successful.

—Spring has come at last, and whilst I write the vivid lightning flashes, the thunder rolls and the rain begins to patter on the roof, indicating an approaching storm.

—We learn by the papers that His Fraudulency has vetoed the anti-Chinese bill. How are vetoes now, my republican friends? They used to be all wrong in democratic times, but of course they are all sound now under the rule of His Fraudulency.

—In my last communication I spoke of the prospects for a reading room in Blair's Hall which has already started and under favorable auspecies, and bids fair to be a very useful and instructive institution. We hope the citizens will be able to appreciate it, and try to attend every Saturday evening As the trustee of the Vienna Library Association have tendered the use of the large and valuable collection of books, we hope the people will endeavor to sustain it, and at least attend Rev. Lyman Beecher's sermons on the evils of intemperance.

ALPHA.

St. Joe Items.

—St. Joe river on a tare.

—Mud in vast quantities.

—John Widney, who was reported sick last week, is still confined to his room.

—A brother of Dr. Goodale, from Angola, is visiting friends in this vicinity.

—A small amount of grain is being bought at the elevators; for wheat $1.00 is paid, oats 22 cents.

—Boat riding on Sunday don't pay some of the boys very well; for further particulars ask Sam.

—Quite a number of children in this vicinity are down with the measles; as yet all are getting along finely.

—Dr. Goodale and brother and H. Jaggers took in the town of Defiance, O., on Saturday. What all they took in, is—well, their own business.

—Great excitement in town Saturday over a constable's sale. It is claimed that the constable made sale of some property which did not belong to the defendant. The end is not yet.

—D. Young has rented ground of John Holsworth on which to erect a saw mill which he claims will be here by the first of April. He has also engaged an engineer to run the engine. Don't be too sanguine boys, there may be a fizzle yet.

—H. Ford, of Auburn, was in town Friday on the look for a horse thief. Hank found a person filling the description that did not prove to be the right one Hank means "biz" when he gets after a thief, but was badly fooled that time at least.

—The little row at Sodom on Monday night last proved to be a little expensive, as some of those concerned will attest. Better to be a man at all times if you are only boys. If you do not like the way Sodomites conduct their singing school, give them a wide berth, for a few up there mean business, and $60 is not picked up every day even if you have wealthy parents to back you up.

A. A. A.

ANSWER TO CONUNDRUM.

Who sells the best Hat in town for one dollar?

SAM, PETE & MAX

Who sells the best pair of Pants for one dollar?

SAM, PETE & MAX.

Who sells a Linen Bosom, Wamsutta Shirt for one dollar?

SAM, PETE & MAX.

Who sells four pair of genuine Brittish Hose for one dollar?

SAM, PETE & MAX.

Who sells eight heavy four ply Linen Collars for one dollar?

SAM, PETE & MAX.

Who sells everything of the Best for the very lowest prices?

SAM, PETE & MAX

MY FRIEND IN ADVERSITY.

When on life's downward slope I stand
And friendship scorns my empty hand,
And pleasures, like words writ on sand
Where rude waves break,
Are swept away, and but the ills
Of life remain—its unpaid bills,
Its dreary emptiness—who fills
My purse? The savage dun who stills?
'Tis thou, my cheek!

Thou art not soft, or fair t[illegible] view;
Dingy and brassy is thy hue,
Save when thou'rt shaved, and very [illegible]
O sturdy cheek!
And yet thy callous hide and tough
For downy skin of simple muff
I would not change: no stern rebuff
Hurts thee, my cheek!

Yet once, even thou with shame couldst burn
Bedden at snubs, but now we learn,
My cheek and I, when struck, to turn
The hardier cheek!

When on my lonely pallet laid
I pick at dingy sheets, while fade
The grimy walls in darkening shade,
And no soft cheek,
Tear-stained, is pressed to mine, then gray
And shrunk with creeping death, some ray
Of sunny light perchance will stray,
One pitying touch of heaven to lay
On my worn cheek.

WINNING THE WIDOW.

"Oh, what a handsome man!" cried Mrs. Hunter; "and such a charming foreign accent, too!"

Mrs. Hunter was a widow—rich, childless, fair and 35—and she made the remark above recorded to Mr. Bunting, bachelor, who had come to pay an afternoon call, apropos of the departure of Prof. La Fontaine, who had, according to etiquette, taken his departure on the arrival of Mr. Bunting.

"Don't like to contradict a lady," said Mr. Bunting. "But I can't say I agree with you; and these foreigners are generally impostors, too."

Mrs. Hunter shook her head coquettishly.

She was rather coquettish and rather gushing for her age.

"Oh, you gentlemen! you gentlemen!" she said; "I can't see that you ever do justice to each other."

And then she rang the bell and ordered the servants to bring tea, and pressed Bachelor Bunting to stay to partake of it.

There was a maiden aunt of 80 in the house, to play propriety, and allow her the privilege of having as many bachelors to tea as she chose, and Mr. Bunting forgot his jealousy and was once more happy.

He was, truth to tell, very much in love with the widow, who was his junior by fifteen years.

He liked the idea of her living on the interest of her money, too.

She was a splendid housekeeper and a fine pianist.

She was popular and good-looking.

He intended to offer himself for her acceptance as soon as he felt sure that she would not refuse him.

But this dreadful Prof. La Fontaine, with black eyes as big as saucers, and long side-whiskers—black also as any raven's wing, had the advantage of being the widow's junior.

This opportunity to make a fool of herself is so irresistible to every widow.

It troubled his dreams a good deal—not that he thought him handsome.

Oh, no!

But still at 50 a man does not desire a rival, however he may despise him.

"She did not ask him to stay, and she did ask me," said Mr. Bunting, and departed, after a most delightful evening, during which the maiden aunt (who was, at best, as deaf as a post) snored sweetly in her chair.

But, alas! on the very next evening his sky was overcast.

Prof. La Fointaine took the widow to the opera.

He saw them enter the doors of the opera house, and, having followed and secured a seat in a retired portion of the house, also noticed that the Professor kept his eyes fixed upon the lady's face in the most impressive manner during the whole of the performance, and that she now and then even returned his glances.

"It can't go on," said Mr. Bunting to himself. "I can't allow it. She'd regret it all her life. I must remonstrate with her. No woman likes a coward. Faint heart never won fair lady. She'll admire me for speaking out."

And that very evening Mr. Bunting trotted up to the widow's house, full of a deadly purpose, and with a set speech learned off by heart.

The speech he forgot as he crossed the threshold.

The purpose abided with him.

There were the usual remarks about the weather.

The usual chit-chat followed, but the widow saw that Mr. Bunting was not at his ease.

At last, with the sort of plunge that a timid bather makes into chilly water, he dashed into the subject nearest his heart.

"He's a rascal, ma'am, I give you my word."

"Oh, dear! Who is?" cried the widow.

"That frog-eater," replied the bachelor. "Upon my soul, I speak for your own good. I am interested in your welfare. Don't allow his visits. You don't know a thing about him."

"Do you allude to Monsieur La Fontaine?" asked Mrs. Hunter, solemnly.

"I allude to that fellow," said Bachelor Bunting. "Why, his very countenance proves him to be a rascal. I—I'd enjoy kicking him out so much, I—"

"Sir," said the widow, "if you haven't been drinking, I really think you must be mad."

"Ma'am!" cried Mr. Bunting.

"Perhaps, however, I should take no notice of such conduct," said Mrs. Hunter. "Perhaps I should treat it with silent contempt."

"Oh, good gracious!" cried bachelor Bunting; "don't treat me with silent contempt. It's my affection for you that urges me on. I adore you! Have me. Accept me. Marry me and be mine to cherish and protect from all audacious Frenchmen."

The widow's heart was melted.

She burst into tears.

"Oh, what shall I say?" she sobbed. "I thought you merely a friend. I—am—I—I—I am engaged to the professor; he proposed yesterday evening."

Bachelor Bunting had dropped down upon his knees while making the offer.

Now he got up with a sort of groan—not entirely caused by disappointed love, for he had the rheumatism.

"Farewell, false one," he said, feeling for his hat without looking for it. "I leave you forever."

He strode away, banging the door after him.

The widow cried and then laughed, and then cried again.

In fact she had a genuine fit of what the maiden aunt called "stericks," and the chambermaid "highstrikes," before she was brought to, and prevailed on to take a glass of wine and something hot and comforting in the edible line.

After which the thought of her fiance consoled her.

Days passed on.

Bachelor Bunting did not drown himself or sup cold poison.

The wedding day was fixed.

The housemaid informed her friend that Mrs. Hunter "kept steady company."

The maiden aunt, who had no income of her own, curried favor by being almost always in a state of apparent coma.

The widow was in the seventh heaven of bliss, and all went merry as a marriage bell until one evening, as the betrothed pair sat before the fire in the polished grate, there came a ring at the bell, and the girl who answered it soon looked into the parlor to announce the fact that a little girl in the hall would come in.

"Oh, let her in," said Mrs. Hunter. "I'm so fond of the dear children in the neighborhood. It's one of them, I presume?"

But, while she was speaking, a small, but very old-looking little girl in a short frock, with a tambourine in her hand, bounced into the room, and, throwing herself into the Professor's arms, with a strong French accent, screamed:

"Darling papa, have I then found you? How glad mamma will be! We thought you dead."

"I am not your papa," said the Frenchman, turning pale. "Are you crazy, my dear little girl?"

"No, no, no; you are my papa!" cried the child. "Do not deny your Estelle. Does she not know you? Ah, my heart, it tells me true! Dear mamma and I have almost starved, but she has never pledged her wedding ring—never. She plays the organ, I the tambourine. We have suffered, but now papa will return to us. Ah, heaven!"

"My gracious! the morals of furriners. He'd have married missus!" cried the girl at the door.

"She tells one black lie. Never before have I seen her; belief me, madame!" screamed the poor Frenchman. "Ah, mon Dieu, am I dreaming?"

"Oh, Alphonse!" cried the widow. "But there, I will be firm. My best friends warned me of you. Take your hat—go. Never enter my presence again. Go with your unfortunate child—your poor, half-starved little girl. Go home to your deserted wife. Go!"

"Ah, madame, zese is falschood," cried the unfortunate Frenchman, losing his temper in his excitement. "Belief—"

"Out of my house!" cried the widow. "Peggy, open the door. Go! What an escape I have had!"

The professor departed.

Mrs. Hunter threw herself into her chair and burst into tears.

After a while she grew more calm, and, taking a letter from a drawer, she perused it.

"Ah me! what deceivers those men are!" she said, as she pensively lay back on the cushions. "Only to think he could write a letter so full of love, and prove such a villain; but I am warned in time."

And she tore the letter into fragments.

The maiden aunt, who had not heard a word, demanded an explanation.

Biddy howled it through her ear trumpet in these words:

"The scoundrel has ever so many wives and families already, playin' tambourines for their bread—the rascal!"

And in the midst the door bell rang, and Mr. Bunting walked in, with a polite bow.

Biddy and the aunt slipped out of the room.

Mr. Bunting approached the widow.

"I called to apologize," he said. "I was hasty the other day. Had I known the gentleman was dear to you, I should have restrained my speech. I wish you happiness; I—"

"Don't, please," cried the widow. "He's worse than you painted him. I've found him out, I hate him. As for me, I can never be happy again."

"Not with your own Bunting?" cried the bachelor, sitting down beside her.

"I'm afraid not," said the widow.

"Are you sure?" asked Mr. Bunting.

"No, not quite," said Mrs. Hunter.

"Then marry me, my dear, and try it. Do, oh, do!"

Mrs. Hunter sobbed and consented.

After having a white-colored silk made up and trimmed with real lace, it was too bad not to figure as a bride after all.

She married Bachelor Bunting and was very happy.

It was well, perhaps, that she had not the fairy gift of the invisible cap, and did not put it on and follow Mr. Bunting to a mysterious recess in the rear of a theater, whither he took his way after parting from the widow on the night of his engagement.

There he met a little girl, small but old looking, the same indeed who had claimed the professor as her lost papa, and this is what he said to her:

"Here is the money I promised you, my child, and you acted the thing excellently well. I know that by the effect you produced. She believes that he's a married man, and he can't prove to the contrary. I knew you'd be able to act it out when I saw you play the deserted child in the tragedy."

Then $100 were counted out into the little brown hand, and Bachelor Bunting walked off triumphant.

To this day his wife does not know the truth, but alludes to poor innocent Prof. La Fontaine as that wicked Frenchman.

When Katharine's husband was arrested for correcting that lady with a strap, he said it was a pity that a man should be pulled for strapping his skate.

A WOMAN OF NERVE.

An Hour of Horrible Suspense.

Mrs. Isadore Middleton, a very beautiful woman, and one of the acknowledged leaders of fashion in Mobile, can certainly boast of the possession of as much nerve and true moral courage as are often vouchsafed to any of her sex.

One evening she was in her boudoir, putting away some articles of jewelry, when she noticed that the peculiar position of a library lamp that was burning upon a chair in the back part of the room had thrown upon the floor, almost directly at her feet, the shadow of a man who was crouching under a broad-topped ornamental table in the center of the room. She also remarked that the open hand of the shadow had but two fingers, and remembered that several desperate burglaries had recently been committed in the neighborhood, suppositiously by a negro desperado, who was notorious as having lost two fingers of his right hand.

Mr. Middleton was absent from the city, and, besides herself in the house, there was but a single maid-servant. Instead of fainting with fear, or shrieking for help, the brave lady seated herself at the very table underneath which the miscreant was concealed, and rang for the servant.

"Hand me writing materials, Bridget," said she, with perfect calmness; "I want you to take a note this instant to Mr. Forfair, the jeweler, and have him send you back with my diamond necklace and ear-drops, which I left there for repairs several days ago. Bring them with you, no matter if fully repaired or not. They are by twenty-fold the most valuable articles of jewelry that I possess, and I do not wish to pass another night without having them in a bureau drawer."

The note was at once written and dispatched, but, instead of being in the tenor that she had signified (on purpose for the concealed robber to overhear, for she had no jewelry under repair), it was a hasty note to the jeweler, an intimate friend, in which she succinctly stated her terrible position, and urged him to hasten to her relief, with the requisite police assistance, immediately on receipt of the missive.

The agonies which that refined and delicate woman underwent when left alone in the house, with the consciousness of the presence of that desperate robber, perhaps assassin as well, crouched under the very table upon which she leaned, and perhaps touched by her skirts, can only be left to the reader's imagination; but her iron nerve sustained her through the ordeal. She yawned, hummed an operatic air, turned over the leaves of a novel, and in other ways lulled the lurker into a sense of perfect security and expectancy, and waited, waited with a wildly-beating heart, and her eyes fastened upon the hands of her little ormolu clock with a greedy, feverish gaze.

At last, however, came the prayed-for relief. There was a ring at the door-bell, and she strolled carelessly into the hall and down-stairs to open it. The ruse had been a success. She not only admitted Bridget, but also Mr. Forfair and three stalwart policemen. The latter passed stealthily up-stairs in the boudoir, where they suddenly pounced upon the concealed burglar so unexpectedly as to secure him with hardly a struggle.

The prisoner proved to be a negro criminal named Clapman, but mostly known as "Two-Fingered Jeff," who was in great request about that time for several robberies committed in the neighborhood a short time before, and he is now serving a twenty-years' sentence in the Alabama State prison.

A Book-Agent Vanquished.

Yesterday morning Prof. Stewart went into the Delmonico restaurant, and asked Andy, the irrepressible head steward, to bring him some stuffed mutton and parsnips. No sooner had the Professor fairly seated himself at one of the small tables than a book-agent came in and took the other side of the board. The two men were strangers, but as a matter of course this book-peddler couldn't keep still, and presently made some conversational advance to Stewart.

"Are not these meteorological disturbances somewhat peculiar for these latitudes?"

The professor paused a moment as he was mashing a potato, and replied:

"Guess it's about the same thing every year."

"In seasons of atmospheric depression alternating with unexpected boreal excitements and rapid changes resultant on sudden accumulations of moisture, such dispositions of the storm-belt are not, in my opinion, entirely uncalled for."

"Exactly," remarked the professor, lifting a fly out of his coffee.

"But," continued the agent, delighted at the style in which he was crowding the professor; "I doubt not but that certain energetic polarizations of the molecules in the mineral deposits have an attraction for the electrically-charged clouds."

At these points the professor, who had been knocked around the ring and crowded to the ropes, so to speak, became fairly roused to his position and slogged for the other's nose at once.

"Ah, exactly, my friend; in the ledge are vast deposits of minerals. Found in volcanic matrices and disintegrated by the upheaval of plutonic rock and semifused masses of silicious alumnia, mingled with homogeneous debris of porphyry, the molecules of kaolined feldites, with a slight potash base, the decomposition of the feldspar is most affected along the line of the horizontal cleavage and necessarily the liberated oxide of manganese combining with the percolation of the alkalis which permeate the entire mass, causes a pronounced state of polarization, which cannot fail to account for the peculiar attraction in the vicinity. I might further explain the intricate chemical properties of the belt by illustrating the——"

By this time, however, the book-agent, who during the round had been verbally pasted in the jaw, smashed in the nose, and biffed in the eye, rose from his seat, paid full price for his half-eaten meal, and shot out of the place. Andy said he examined the professor, found his pulse regular, no signs of perspiration, and his mind intact.—Virginia (Nev.) Chronicle.

PERSONALS.

President Grevy plays billiards and smokes.

Justice Swayne is 6 feet tall, and weighs 245 pounds.

President Diaz plays billiards, drinks, smokes and chews.

Justice Miller is 5 feet 11 inches in height, and will weigh 200 pounds.

Justice Field is 5 feet 10 inches in height, and weighs 168 pounds.

Justice Strong is 5 feet 11 inches in height, and weighs 186 pounds.

Attorney General Devens is 6 feet high, and weighs 185 pounds.

Justice Harlan is 6 feet 1 inch in height, and weighs 210 pounds.

President Hayes plays at billiards, but neither smokes nor drinks.

Secretary of the Navy Thompson is 6 feet, and weighs 170 pounds.

Senator Beck, of Kentucky, is 6 feet in height, and weighs 205 pounds.

Senator Blaine, of Maine, is 6 feet in height, and weighs 186 pounds.

Secretary of War McCrary is 5 feet 10, and will weigh 180 pounds.

Vice-President Wheeler is 5 feet 10½ inches in height, and weighs 175 pounds.

Senator Allison, of Iowa, is 5 feet 10 inches in height, and weighs 165 pounds.

Senator Anthony, of Rhode Island, is the same height and weighs 185 pounds.

Senator Bailey, of Tennessee, is 5 feet 11 inches in height, and weighs 172 pounds.

Senator Barnum, of Connecticut, is 6 feet in height, and weighs about 200 pounds.

Senator Bayard, of Delaware, is 6 feet 2 inches in height, and weighs 170 pounds.

Chief Justice Waite, of the Supreme Court, is 5 feet 10 inches high, and weighs 200 pounds.

Justice Bradley is the dwarf of the Supreme bench. He is 5 feet 7, and weighs 125 pounds.

Justice Hunt is 5 feet 10 inches in height, and before his sickness he weighed 160 pounds.

Carl Schurz, Secretary of the Interior, is about 6 feet 3 inches in height, and weighs 155 pounds.

Justice Clifford is the heaviest man on the Supreme bench. He weighs 255 pounds, and is 6 feet high.

Postmaster General Key is the giant of the Cabinet. He is 6 feet 3 inches tall, and weighs 210 pounds.

John Sherman, Secretary of the Treasury, is 6 feet 2 inches in height, and will certainly weigh 170 pounds.

Secretary of State Evarts is the slightest man in the Cabinet; his height is 5 feet 8 inches; he weighs 125 pounds.

M. Grevy, the new French President, is an able agriculturist, a keen sportsman and inveterate smoker. He talks well, but not much, and keeps his temper.

Senator Armstrong, of Missouri, who has just retired, was over 6 feet in height; weight, 210 pounds. Gen. Shields, his successor, is 6 feet in height, and weighs 175 pounds.

Caleb Cushing in Love.

Even Caleb Cushing was in love. His ideal was the beautiful Virginia Timberlake, daughter of the famous Mrs. Eaton, to whom he paid unflagging devotion until one day he beheld the imperious beauty try on a pair of gloves, which, not suiting, she threw upon the floor. The Washington correspondent of the Courier-Journal relates, what happened:

A second pair met with the same fate, while the third, being more fortunate, were calmly drawn over her exquisite hands and fastened with costly bracelets about her rounded wrists. During the promenade which ensued, Mr. Cushing diplomatically asked "How many pairs of gloves a young lady required during the year?" "Speaking for myself," replied the spoiled beauty, "I never wear a pair but once, and never once if they don't suit me." "What is the expense of such gloves as you wear, for instance?" inquired the cautious young lawyer. "Oh, $2 or $3," was the careless reply. "I could never marry a woman with such extravagant notions," said Mr. Cushing, undoubtedly uttering his thoughts aloud. "Nobody asked you, sir," she said quickly, and the haughty beauty turned upon her French heels, and, retracing her steps homeward, left the economically inclined barrister to recover from his disappointment and chagrin as best he might. Miss Timberlake afterward married Saupayo, a wealthy Frenchman of noble descent, who was an attache of the legation when Pageot was Minister here. Mme. Saupayo, was as noted for hauteur and brilliant beauty in the French court as she was in her native land. Daniel Webster said: "Virginia Timberlake is the handsomest woman I ever saw." She now lives in great elegance in Paris (probably throwing away a dozen pairs of gloves if she choose) with "hair as white as the driven snow, making her large, wonderfully beautiful dark eyes more luminous by contrast."

The World's Commerce.

Prof. Neuman Spallart, of Vienna, has recently published some interesting and useful statistics of the world's commerce. Prof. Spallart's figures show that the nations of the globe exchange products with one another to an enormous amount, and that their exchanges have greatly increased within a few years. The total volume of their exchanges in 1867–'8, stated in dollars, was $11,053,600,000. In 1872–'3 it had risen to $14,441,200,000—an increase of $3,387,600,000, or nearly 31 per cent., in five years, or more than 6 per cent. annually on the average. The total in 1874–'5 was $13,699,800,000—a decrease of $741,400,000 in two years; but in 1876, the last year for which the figures are given, there was an increase of $300,600,000 over the previous year, the total having been $14,000,400,000. It is well known, however, that there has been a general decline of prices, especially of European and American products, since the revulsion of 1873, and it is not unlikely that there has been an increase in the quantities of commodities exchanged, although there has been a decrease in the total values. Indeed, if it be assumed that the increase in 1876 was continued during 1877 and 1878, the volume of exchanges stated in terms of money was greater last year than ever before, and the quantities of commodities exchanged were very much greater.

FAMILY FIGHT.

A Fearful Tragedy in Tennessee.

[Morristown (Tenn.) Cor. Chicago Tribune.]

The little county town of Sneadville, Hancock county, near here, and away from railroad communication, has witnessed a tragedy that exhibits a curious phase of justice. About eight miles from here there lived a few weeks ago a well-to-do family of farmers called the Eppersons. The family consisted of father, mother, four sons and two daughters. The father was a good man, but was occasionally under the influence of drink. At such times he was dangerous, surly, and unmanageable. There had been some talk about the relations of the man and his wife, but it was generally believed that there was nothing serious between them. A short time since Epperson came home one day under the influence of liquor and at once began to quarrel with his wife. In a few moments they came to blows, and he was beating her very severely. At this juncture Joe, one of the sons, ran in, and, seeing the state of things, went to the protection of his mother. He was a deformed man, having been born with but one arm. As he interfered in the fight, the father turned from his wife and attacked Joe savagely, declaring he would kill him. Being hard-pressed, Joe whipped out a knife and commenced cutting his father. In a few moments he had cut the old man down to the floor. In the mean time his elder brother entered the room, and, seeing Joe engaged in a deadly conflict with his father, determined to take his father's part. He therefore drew his pistol and leveled it at his brother. Before he could fire his mother ran between Joe and the pistol and received the ball in her heart. The son fired again, and this time struck his sister in the knee; and once again, this time giving a boy—Martin—a flesh wound. The fracas was stopped here by the condition of the father and mother. In a short time the mother died, having been shot by her eldest son. Before dying she begged that her slayer should not be prosecuted, as he had killed her unintentionally, and she did not blame him for interfering for his father. The father died also, having been killed by his second son. It is said that before he died he also forgave his slayer, saying that the son has a right to take the part of his mother. The sister, who had been shot in the knee by her eldest brother, died also.

Of course, the terrible tragedy created intense excitement. A sort of preliminary trial of the men was had, and they were acquitted of any blame in the matter. The son who killed his father was held to have acted purely in self-defense, and the son who killed his mother and sister was held to have done so accidentally while interfering to prevent the commission of an unlawful act. They were, therefore, set at liberty, and have been at large ever since. It is doubtful if the matter will ever come into court again. The sons express great sorrow over the affair, but are known to be pretty desperate characters.

A Brainless Baby.

The Washington Post records a case of a child without a particle of brain. The child appeared well and healthy, and during its brief existence of fourteen days it cried, slept, and smiled, as any other child at that age. At the end of two weeks it died of convulsions, and a post-mortem examination was had. On dissecting the head it was found that all the nerves were perfect and led to the top of the spine, where a knob-like projection received them. The olfactory, or nerve of smell, was found in its place, the optic and motor oculi, or eye-movers, the pathetic, trifacial, abducent, facials, auditory, and glosso-pharyngeal, or tongue and throat-movers, were all found coming from the proper places in the skull and leading to the medulla oblongata, or oblong marrow, which joins the brain to the spinal marrow. The explanation given by the physicians of the strange anomaly of life without brain is that the pneumogastric nerve and other important nerves, being well developed and intact, kept up a sort of automatic or instinctive existence, independent of all intelligent life. It might be asked, what use has a baby for brains, anyhow?

The Story of a Butterfly.

During last fall, while Mr. Champagne, of Nelson street, was bringing in vegetables out of his garden he discovered what appeared to be a green caterpillar clinging to a cucumber. He threw it away, but one of his children took it in secret and placed it in the family clock. Some weeks afterward the insect was discovered encircled by a silken web of its own making, and one of Mr. Champagne's children inclosed it in a warm covering of wool. Nothing of interest occurred until a few days ago, when Mrs. Champagne, who had forgotten all about the insect, opened the clock to wind it as usual. As soon as the door was opened a beautiful and perfectly-formed butterfly flew out around the room, to the surprise of the lady, and to the great joy of the children, who have become much enamored of their fairy pet.—Ottawa (Canada) Herald.

Girls are advised by a Chicago physician to always sleep on their backs if they wish to keep crow's feet from the corners of their eyes. "These blemishes," he says, "are the result of sleeping on the sides. The pressure upon the temple and cheeks leaves wrinkles at the corners and underneath the eyes which disappear in a few hours, but finally become so fixed that neither hours nor ablutions will abate them."

THE VOICELESS.

BY OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

We count the broken lyres that rest
Where the sweet wailing singers slumber,
But o'er their silent sister's breast
The wild flowers who will stoop to number?
A few can touch the magic string,
And noisy fame is proud to win them;
Alas! for those who never sing,
But die with all their music in them!

Nay, grieve not for the dead alone,
Whose song has told their heart's sad story,
Weep for the voiceless, who have known
The cross without the crown of glory!
Not where Leucadian breezes sweep
O'er Sappho's memory-haunted billow,
But where the glistening night-dews weep
On nameless sorrow's churchyard pillow.

O, hearts that break and give no sign
Save whitening lips and fading tresses,
Till death pours out his cordial wine
Slow dropped from misery's crushing presses,
If singing breath or echoing chord
To every hidden pang were given,
What endless melodies were poured
As sad as earth, as sweet as heaven!

PITH AND POINT.

Light reading—A treatise on gas.

A pressing necessity—A flat-iron.

Quite common in court—The wait of evidence.

The City-Surveyor—The visitor from the country.

A gambler would rather let you out than let you win, any time.

The professional wrestler will tell you how to "take a man down."

A prize-fight—Quarreling over premiums at the country fair.

The fellow who rang the bell for a false alarm of fire tolled a lie.

The mother of a troublesome little darkey calls him the "black plague."

The man was hard up, indeed, who tried to borrow a quarter of an hour.

Mary had a little lam. Her mother gave it to her—on the side of the head.

People who are wrapped up in themselves often complain of being "undone."

It seems rather odd to see two men playing seven-up for a dinner that is to be eight-up.

Why is a pawnbroker like a drunkard? Because he takes the pledge, but cannot always keep it.

"Is not," asks the Philadelphia Bulletin, "the Spanish garrote an neck's-screw-ciating thing?"

There is a striking resemblance between a man kicking a cow, and a shoemaker—both boot the calf's kin.

Spring poetry is a strangely-hardy plant. When it gets fairly up, the weather never sets it back an inch.

Ten to one that the woman who says your children are not "half raised" raises her own youngsters by the ears.

"Them twins looks as much alike as a pair of suspenders," remarked a friend to a husband who had experienced a surprise party a few weeks since.

A young lady, while on her way to be married, was run over and killed. A confirmed old maid savagely remarked: "She had avoided a more lingering and horrible fate."

Bertie came running in to auntie, all out of breath. "What is it, Bertie?" "Oh, auntie, baby can stan' all by herself, an' she just holds herself up by catchin' hold of nothin'."

A pious old deacon of Quakertown
Tackled a heater to rake 'er down;
He bruised his knuckles,
And "busted" his buckles,
And what he said would make a Quaker frown.
—Norristown Herald.

Adolphe to Araminta, on their way to to church: "How I would I were the prayer book you clasp so lovingly." Reply: "How I would you were, for then I could shut you up."—Burlington Hawk-Eye.

How 'bout dot Sherman mission,
Dhey dalk so much aboudt?
I don'd vand der bosition,
Und dink id was blayed oudt;
Ameer shoke I subbose id vas,
So dake some oder man;
I don'd could go to Shermany.
Bud, maype, Yakoob Khan.
—Yawcob Strauss, in Boston Traveller.

A woman cured her husband of staying out late at night by going to the door when he came home and whispering through the keyhole, "Is that you, Willie?" Her husband's name is John, and he stays at home every night now, and sleeps with one eye open, and a revolver under his pillow.

A certain resident of North Adams recently buried his wife, a woman of unusual size, and a few days after the sad event a neighbor attempted a little in the consolatory line by remarking: "Well, Mr. ——, you have met with a heavy loss." "Yes," replied the mourner with a sigh, "she weighed 'most 400 pound!"

A pious old lady complained to her clergyman that an orthodox neighbor maintained that her—the neighbor's—children were born Christians. "Oh, well," responded the clergyman, "I wouldn't dispute with her about it; if her children are born as she claims, they will probably grow out of it in time."

When I was a lad
I served for a fee
As bobbin-boy in a factoree.
I wheeled round bobbins from morn till night,
And, though rum was cheap, I never got tight.
Chorus—What, never?
Good Boy.—No, never!
Chorus—What, never?
G. B.—Well, hardly ever.
I snaked those bobbins around so fast
That they gave me a Congressman's seat at last.
Chorus—And, though rum was cheap, he never got tight!
Then give three cheers, and one cheer more
For who ever heard such a thing before!
—Boston Post.

In a country parish in Scotland, not many years ago, a town clergyman, who was officiating for his clerical brother, wished to be assured by his own eyes that his gown and tie were in perfect order before he ascended the pulpit. With this view he asked the beadle if he had not a glass to give him. "Weel, no," replied John, "but I'll soon get ane for ye, sir." Imagine the surprise and horror of the evangelical gentleman when John returned with a pewter measure in his hand, and, placing it before the worthy divine, informed him that he had been quite unable to procure a single "gless," but that he had brought him a half mutchkin instead, "which," he naively added, "wad may be dae as weel."

An Englishman has taken out a patent on flint bricks, for building retorts, crucibles and other fire-resisting structures.

GOSSIP FOR THE LADIES.

A Woman's Question.

BY ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING.

Do you know you have asked for the costliest thing
  Ever made by the hand above—
A woman's heart and a woman's life,
  And a woman's wonderful love?

Do you know you have asked for this priceless thing
  As a child might ask for a toy?
Demanding what others have died to win,
  With the reckless dash of a boy.

You have written my lesson of duty out,
  Man-like you have questioned me—
Now stand at the bar of my woman's soul,
  Until I question thee.

You require your mutton shall always be hot,
  Your socks and your shirts shall be whole;
I require your heart to be true as God's stars,
  And pure as heaven your soul.

You require a cook for your mutton and beef;
  I require a far better thing:
A seamstress you're wanting for stockings and shirts—
  I look for a man and a king.

A king for a beautiful realm called home,
  And the man that the maker, God,
Shall look upon as he did the first,
  And say, "It is very good."

I am fair and young, but the rose will fade
  From my soft, young cheek one day—
Will you love me then, 'mid the falling leaves,
  As you did 'mid the bloom of May?

Is your heart an ocean so strong and deep
  I may launch my all on its tide?
A loving woman finds heaven or hell
  On the day she is made a bride.

I require all things that are grand and true,
  All things that man should be;
If you give this all, I would stake my life
  To be all you demand of me.

If you cannot do this—a laundress and a cook
  You can hire, with little to pay;
But a woman's heart and a woman's life
  Are not to be won that way.

The Evening Party.

The Rev. Talmage evidently doesn't think much of a fashionable evening party. He describes such a gathering as "the coming together of people who are invited because it is best under all the circumstances that they be invited, and who go because under all the circumstances it is best that they go, leaving their shawls on the second floor and their hats on the third, marching in to greet the gentleman and lady of the household with formal salutation, and then spending the evening in discussion of the weather and apologies for treading on long trails and perpetual effort to keep the corners of the mouth up to the appearance of pleasure, and go about with an idiotic hee hee about nothing until the late collation is served; then return to the parlor to resume the weather; then, with the assurance that they have really enjoyed the hour, starting home with a sense of relief that is the chief satisfaction of the evening."

The Stumbling-Block of the Marriage Service.

One of the greatest stumbling-blocks which exists for the inexperienced in the Episcopal marriage service is undoubtedly in the words, "with all my worldly goods I thee endow." The uncultivated groom almost always boggles at the last word, and commonly renders it thus, "I, thee and thou," with a conscious glance at his bride, himself and the minister; nor is it, we believe, possible, even by frequent repetitions, to induce him to alter this form of expression, if once he has committed himself to it. We recollect being present at one wedding where the bridegroom made the usual pause of indecision at the word endow, and finally said "endoo," whereupon his best man, better informed than himself, gave him a tremendous dig in the ribs from behind, and said with stern emphasis, "endow," evidently thinking that he was thus discharging one of the duties of his office. It is usually the case at a wedding that the bride, though she may betray symptoms of nervousness, is better acquainted with the service than the bridegroom is, and has her wits more about her.—English Magazine.

Thefts in High Society.

Startling stories are told in New York select social circles of recent cases of mistaken identity in clothing that, many ladies think, appear like downright stealing on the part of certain women who move in good society. It is said that a lady cannot leave a valuable outer garment in the dressing-room, when she attends an evening party or a "tea" at the house of a friend, with any certainty of finding it on her return from the drawing-room. In its place she often finds a garment of the same general texture and pattern, but shabby and unpleasantly venerable with wear and age. This general resemblance, however, in the event of the person who made the substitution being discovered, is made the excuse for the substitution, and the lady gets her own with many apologies. So frequent are these cases that it has become positively unsafe to leave valuable shawls or sacques even under the surveillance of merely the maid stationed to aid ladies in their toilet. A well-known lady lately left a $3,000 camel-hair shawl in the dressing-room of a fashionable house only to find, on returning, one in its place, one faded and torn, with torn fringe. By acting with nerve and telling the hostess that she would be held responsible, the shawl was recovered. Another lady, not so firm, found that, during her absence from the dressing-room, an old and dingy sacque had been substituted for her handsome fur-lined cloak. She submitted to the situation in silence, and meekly and mildly went home in the old sacque. The person who took her fur-lined cloak has not yet discovered the mistake.—N. Y. Sun.

The Manicure.

Our ladies, who are wont to extol the superior advantages of European culture, are just now congratulating themselves upon the advent here of the mistress of the peculiar devices of the toilet known as the manicure's art. To visit a manicure is, we are told, embraced in the regular order of things, followed by the ladies of all the prominent foreign cities. Consequently, it can scarcely be wondered at that the followers of fashion here should have welcomed the missionary who comes to us, if for no other reason than to place them on a plane with their New York sisters, who have thus far claimed the only practitioner of this kind the country affords. A naturally fine hand is made more beautiful by care, and a hand, not so greatly favored is much improved, without doubt, by extra attention. A visit to the manicure results in a treatment merely preparatory. The hands are placed for about ten minutes in a lukewarm solution. The flesh about the nails is thus softened, and is then skillfully raised from the nail and cut close with a pair of circular flesh-cutters. The nails are then covered with a deep rose-colored pomade, which, though washed gently off in a minute or two, leaves its blush behind. This is succeeded by a grayish powder, which, in turn, is rubbed off lightly and swiftly by a buffer or wash leather pad, giving a fine polish to the nail. Lastly, the nail tips are filed into the pointed or round shape, according to individual fancy. The principal errors to be avoided, says the manicure, in the care of the nails is the use of the knife or scissors in either cleaning or cutting. The nails should never be cut, but always filed, and never cleaned except with something hard and smooth, like ivory, which cannot erase the protective lining of the nail. Of course, the nails should not be bitten,—scarcely any one addicted to this nervous and vulgar habit needs to be told this. They should also be guarded against bruises, which are the cause of the unsightly white spots; neither should the flesh about the nails be cut by one's self, as very sore fingers may be caused by carelessness in this particular. The nails in prime condition should be curved, and not flat; long and narrow, with the delicate white crescent outline at the base, rosy in hue and glistening like a mirror. Here then is the standard which the regular patrons of the manicure uphold, and more or less of the points constituting which may be achieved by each individual herself at the expense of some care and not a little time.—Boston Herald.

"Shopping" Incidents.

A lady who knows her rights as a shopper relates in the Boston Advertiser certain of her experiences and appeals to the heads of some of the fashionable stores to provide a remedy for the shortcomings on the part of clerks which she complains of. She says there appears to be a certain spirit of enmity toward all customers, as a class, which seems to animate both men and women attendants in certain places. Customers are treated as prying marauders, from whom the clerks must defend the precious goods confided to their keeping. To keep the goods and to get rid of the intruder seems to be the object of life.

One device is to insist upon having everything called by its technical trade name. Here are some veritable instances:

It was very narrow white braid for which a lady asked at five or six shops in vain, and finding it herself, at last, in the window of one of the very places, was told contemptuously that that was "Tom Thumb braid."

Another—"Have you any sort of narrow black and white flat trimming?"

"No'm, no black and white trimmings at all."

"Why," persists the hardened intruder, "you must have something. What is that on the second shelf?"

"That is silk."

"Well," said the lady (whose sense of humor had survived several years of shopping) "what made you think that I did not want silk?" and, to her credit be it told, although she did not want silk, she bought a couple of yards by way of emphasizing the lesson.

A string of toy bells is wanted for Christmas and cannot be found, till at last the head of a large establishment is appealed to, who goes straight to the first clerk addressed and says: "Show this lady some bells;" immediately all sizes and styles are forthcoming, but with them the triumphant remark from the clerk, as if he had caught a culprit,—

"You said a string of bells."

These experiences will have a familiar sound probably, to most ladies who do much shopping, but even a mere man, a creature that submits meekly to all sorts of imposition in shopping, would, we think, be stirred to revolt by an episode like the following:

I gave L. for Christmas a lovely lace thing for the head and I wanted a bow to surmount it, went to ——'s (another place), vaguely thinking about color.

Myself—"I want some double-faced satin ribbon."

She—"What color do you wish?"

Myself—"Well, I was thinking of blue and black."

She—(snap up)—"We haven't any blue and black."

Myself—(fairly laughing)—"Well, that's odd, for I don't in the least care; let me look at all you have and decide."

Gazing on columns of ribbon I seem to see nothing but blue and black, and mention it.

She—"Oh, I thought that wan't the width you wanted."

Fashion Notes.

BOAS are much worn by young girls.

ORIENTAL designs for jewelry are still popular.

MANTEL lambrequins are made of macreme lace.

BRIDAL slippers are ornamented with pearl bead buckles.

WITH white satin slippers, silk stockings of strong colors are worn.

SOFT sheer muslins are most used for a baby's first short clothes.

A GILDED horseshoe, beautifully painted, is found in nearly every parlor and library.

MUFFS of the dress materials or of its trimmings are made by modistes to match costumes.

SLEEVE BUTTONS, with Japanese figures traced and in relief, are in the list of novelties in jewelry.

A LARGE satin bow with an ostrich tip falling on the back is what is termed an opera "bonnet."

NATURAL butterflies, mounted on a spiral pin, are among the novelties for coiffure ornamentation.

BLACK satin slippers have just now the precedence of kid slippers in fashionable consideration.

IMITATION feather trimmings made of colored muslins are used for ornamenting inexpensive ball dresses.

MAROON and Bordeaux colored silk and lisle thread stockings are the most recent novelties in hosiery.

A NOVELTY in beautiful ribbons is plain gross grain ribbon with flowers marked with gold threads.

LADIES are wearing for the street turbans made of cloth or silk with bands of fur. These are finished with gold tassels.

MONACO.

The Remarkable Proposition of the Owner of this Gambling "Hell."

Most Americans who have "done the continent" have looked upon Monaco and its outlying Monte Carlo, if nothing more. The eye of the traveler involuntarily lightens up as the sea-girt rock which rises to a height of nearly 200 feet, and upon the summit of which stands the town, with the fortress that Vauban built to protect it on the land side, bursts upon the view. On three sides of the mighty rock the blue waters of the Mediterranean splash and tumble, but there is never low tide, and consequently no mud to worry the passer-by. Every form of semi-tropical growth contributes toward the beauty of the landscape, while pineapple and orange trees are almost as plentiful as those of the sombre olive. Even Monte Carlo has been made "an earthly paradise." Terraces cut out of the hill-side and carpeted with the softest lawn, hold gardens in which the floriculturist reigns supreme. Statues and fountains, fish ponds and aviaries, lend attractions to the place, art vieing with nature to make more lovely this wonderful spot. Music hath her shrines shrouded in daintiest foliage, and in the concert halls of Monte Carlo sing the foremost of prima donnas. Incomparable are the views to be had from the gardens, and unsurpassed is the restaurant within those enchanted grounds. And after all, this place is the abode only of gamblers and those who gamble. It is the home of M. Blanc, son of the man, now dead, who started the gambling tables at Monaco, and who amassed a fortune of considerable over $15,000,000 by fleecing foolish Americans and others with more money than brains. Not very long ago a young New Yorker, on his wedding tour, stopped at Monaco to play at roulette, believing he had an infallible recipe for winning. At the end of two days play he had cleared $5,000, and his young wife, who had reluctantly accompanied him, was fain to desist from her objections. But on the fourth day the New Yorker lost all he had won, and in less than a week he dropped $15,000 of his own money. Then the wife stormed and the man went out of his mind, and is now in an insane asylum. The sole proprietor of this terrible "hell," not contented with being one of the wealthiest commoners in Europe, is anxious to invest his capital in a colossal speculation of an altogether unprecedented character. He has made a proposition to the Sublime Porte—so we are informed by a Turkish newspaper printed at Stamboul—that, in exchange for the privilege of establishing gambling saloons at certain places within the sultan's dominions, he is ready to bind himself under heavy pecuniary penalties to re-establish within a certain limit of time absolute parity between the value of Turkish gold and paper currencies. In other words, he would, with a few waves of the croupier's rake, make Constantinople a fashionable resort for Giours and the Golden Horn a very cornucopia. But Turkey just now is on her good behavior, and considerations of moral improvement and practical finance forbid any acceptance of his extraordinary proposition.—New York Times.

Colorado the Colored Land.

This land derived its name from its many-colored turreted hills and rocks, which white, pink, and blue, stand out in pointed contrast with the unchanging greenery of gnarled and wide fringed pine. From the Divide the whole range of the Rocky Mountains is seen at a glance. And they are ever varying in color. In early morn Pike's Peak is clad in violet, and the rising sun tips him with gold; in the evening he is all rose. The Snowy Range is sometimes silver" and at other times the snow is a perfect pink, fading as the sun sets, into a gray and violet and white. In a bright noonday the Foot Hills display all their hues of green and amber. The Peak, as I write in January, is violet colored, streaked with silver. I fear no brush can ever represent it as it is in nature's dress. It must be seen. The vivid colors of the rainbow in this land are truly enchanting when they appear, though we seldom have a true rainbow, so rare is the rain-shower. But we have other rainbows—a rainbow in the snow mist, a kind of snowy sleet, which falls on the hills, and at times rises from the snowy range under the heat of the sun like a bright gauze veil. On a frosty evening, too, at sundown the landscape is hemmed with an atmosphere painted with all the colors of the rainbow as with a broad ribbon. Night in Colorado is not black or even gray; but when the weather is fine, which is nearly, always the moon sails in a firmament of dark blue, bright and clear. Truly, then, is this western land styled "Colorado," a land clothed, like the darling child of the Hebrew patriarch, in a robe of many colors. —Frazer's Magazine.

The French President.

President Grevy dresses very modestly never having worn even the uniform of the National Guard. He is a man of republican simplicity in all his ways. In his everyday attire, even in Paris, he has always donned a wideawake instead of a silk hat; and in summer time he may generally be seen sauntering about the Boulevards clad all in gray, and crowned with a Panama. Though a man of considerable landed property, as estates go in France, he never set up a brougham till he became president of the Chamber, and he has always kept this modest, one-horse vehicle, with a coachman out of a livery, at Versailles. In Paris he uses cabs and omnibuses; but it must be a very muddy day which compels him to ride at all. He delights in music, but his favorite pastime is to play billiards, and smoke cigars while making his caroms.

An Indian Feat.

The Indians of Nevada rely mainly for food on the pine cones, or nuts, that grow in great abundance in the pine forests. The trees are small, rarely exceeding fifteen feet in height when full grown, but in fruitful seasons yield enormous quantities of cones. These are dried and made into bread, or roasted whole. The Indians go to the harvest in large parties, mounted on ponies, and make a pleasant excursion of the work. "Arrived at some central point where water and grass are found," says a correspondent of the San Francisco Bulletin, "the squaws with baskets, the men with poles, ascend the ridges to the laden trees, followed by the children; beating begins with loud noise and chatter; the burrs fly right and left, lodging against stones and sage brushes; the squaws and children gather them with fine natural gladness; smoke columns speedily mark the joyful scene of their labors as the roasting fires are kindled, and at night, assembled in circles, garrulous as jays, the first grand nut feast begins." Sufficient quantities are obtained in a few weeks to last all winter.

How an Election was Won.

Some years ago Russ, our own G. W. lived in our adjoining county of Ripley. He was then a Republican in a Democratic county. What his politics are now we don't know, and don't care, and we think he don't know or care either. We only know he is a manly, big-hearted gentleman, and that's all we care about these times. Cut to the story. Russ was a Republican candidate for sheriff in the Democratic county of Ripley, and, as a matter of course, wanted all the votes he could get. Then, as now, he was passionately fond of gunning, and always owned a fine gun and dogs. In his county was an old German, we all call him Jake. He also was a hunter and a power among "the boys." He kept a little country doggery, and his "influence" was worth about thirty votes. In due time Russ met Jake, and a talk about hunting, guns, and dogs rather warmed the Dutchman toward Russ, although Jake was a Democrat. After a while Russ saw one of Jake's lank, pot-bellied pointers, and commenced to give away taffy.

"Jake," said Russ, "that's a mighty fine dog. Where did you get him?"

Jake replied to the effect that he raised that kind of dogs.

"Well, I'll tell you," said Russ, "I am very fond of hunting, and if I am elected sheriff this fall I shall indulge myself in shooting to my heart's content. If I am not elected I will not be able to shoot much. I will give you $50 for that dog, Jake, if I want him after the election. Here's $5 to bind the bargain." Jake, tickled to death at the fine sale of his dog, which was worth about 50 cents, took the bill, and as a consequence his end of the county gave Russ a handsome majority and he was elected, barely pulling through. Time passed and Russ was duly installed in the office of sheriff of Ripley county. Soon Jake put in his appearance, dragging the unwilling cur at his heels.

"Mister Russ," said Jake, "you vos now elected sheriff von dis gounty und here is dose dog. Gif me my vorty-vive tollars."

"Jake," said Russ, "I find that my time will not allow me to shoot as much as I thought it would; you may keep the dog and $5 too."

Jake studied a long time, then took a long breath, and said:

"Mister Russ, I pelieve id, by got, you buy me and not my dog! Ain't id?"

She Sewed on His Buttons.

Old Blummer is tight-fisted. Several days ago he said to his wife: "Maria, I want you to look over that broadcloth vest of mine and put new buttons on it, 'caus I'm going to a card party to-night."

"But, Ely," answered Mrs. B., "I haven't any buttons to match that vest; and——"

"Thunder!" broke in Blummer, "the idea of a woman keeping house as long as you have, an' pretending to be out of buttons. By George? I b'lieve you'll ask me for money to buy 'em with next."

That evening Blummer hurried through his supper and began arraying himself for the card party. Presently he called for his broadcloth vest, and Mrs. B., with marvelous promptitude, handed it to him. He took it, hastily unfolded it, and then, as his eye took in its complete appearance, he stood as one transfixed. It was a six-button vest, and there were six buttons on it, and the dazed optic of Blummer observed that the first, or top one, was a tiny pearl shirt button, and the next one was a brass army overcoat button with U. S. gleaming upon it, and that number three was an oxydized silver affair, and that number four was a horn button, evidently from the back of one of the Puritan father's coats, and then came a suspender button, and then, as the dazzled eyes of old Blummer reached the bottom button —a poker chip (found in Blummer's pocket) with two holes punched through it—he gave a snort that made the chandelier jingle. There is, after all, a fine sense of humor about Blummer, and he laughed till he cried. And there won't be any button-money grudged in that household hereafter.—Troy Times.

A Hale Old Man's Family.

One of the most remarkable men in Monroe County, Ky., is Mr. John Jacob Goodman. Mr. Goodman was born in North Carolina in 1783, and is now in his 97th year. In 1804 he moved to Monroe county, then a part of Barren and has lived on the same place ever since, a period of 75 years. For upward of 40 years he was a distiller, and at the age of 65 could lift a 40 gallon barrel of whisky, and take his toddy out of the bung-hole. He is now living with his second wife, his first having died many years ago. Fifteen children were the fruit of his first matrimonial experiment, and 17 of his last, making a grand total of 32, 27 of whom lived to be married. He has always been a moderate dram-drinker, for 62 years a member of the Baptist Church, and 42 years a clerk of that body. Besides he is a life-long Democrat, and never failed to vote in elections on but one occasion in his life. He says that his object in leaving Carolina was to raise a large familw of children, and that he had never ceased regretting this step, as he could have done as well in that line in Carolina as he had succeeded here. The father of Mr. Goodman died at the age of 96, and would, perhaps, have lived longer, but he broke his leg, which hastened his death.—Glasgow (Ky.) Times.

JOHN G. SAXE, who has been in delicate health and has done no literary work for some time, is now confined to his room in Brooklyn, suffering, it is said, from chronic melancholia, superinduced by illness in his own case and among members of his family. His spirits are so deeply clouded, his nerves so depressed, that he refuses to see any of his friends; and there seems to be no prospect of release from his impenetrable, overwhelming gloom.

A Dinner at Vera Cruz.

A correspondent of the Philadelphia Times writes: There are two hotels at Vera Cruz, and travelers need not be particular in choosing between them, for one is in every respect as bad as the other. In the one I went to they must have mistaken me for a family traveling in disguise, for they gave me a room fully twenty feet square and twelve feet high, containing three beds, three washstands, a large table, about nine rocking chairs, and no soap. They do not furnish soap in the Mexican hotels, and if they give you more than one candle they charge you extra. I think they would feel grateful if you would wet the wick to keep it from burning fast, but such is not the custom. The first taste of Mexican butter comes in here. It is almost as white as lard, and contains no salt, but is very sweet and good. A fine large dish of snails is nearly always on the dinner table, and although they look bad they taste and smell fifteen hundred times worse. Snails were made for terrible examples of slowness—not to be eaten. They have no dessert here, and put no fruit on the table although fruit grows on every bush; but they insist upon your taking cheese and give you great quantities of it. The floors throughout the house are made of big square bricks, about ten inches square, in the upper as well as the lower story. In the dining room a stone about a foot square has a ring in it, and can be lifted up, revealing a sluice, into which the dirty water is thrown. Yellow fever rolls through these ditches like grain through a hopper. They are never without it here, summer or winter. But if they charge you a weeks board for a single meal, you can still afford to smoke. I went up to the "bar," at one end of the dining-room (where they sell matches, soap, sapolio, whisky and cigars, and have a small lottery,) and asked for a cigar, laying down a Mexican reale, twelve and a half cents. The barkeeper held out a box of cigars. Each one was about the size of a plump baby's arm. It was a good hours smoke to say the least, and I was doubtful about the silver coin being big enough to pay for one of them. But I picked out one, and the bartender still held the box on the counter. He looked at me as if he wanted me to take another, so I took another. He still held out the box, and still had the wistful look.

"Senor," said he.

So I took another. That made three.

"Si Senor," he said again, and still looked at me. I took another, making four, with half a mind to reach for the box.

"Buena," said he, which is said to mean "good," and my four big cigars for 12½ cents were almost equal to the Havana, and very much cheaper.

Vera Cruz is called one of the hottest places in the world, and it has solid claims to the distinction. When a norther comes (and they come pretty often,) and the thermometer goes down to something like a living basis, the inhabitants go about wrapped up in their cloaks and shawls imagining themselves cold. The wind in a norther blows round some of the corners so that it almost impossible to walk against it. There are no sewers, and the draining is done by gutters in the middle of the streets. The cross-walks at the corners are always about half way up the street, so that a pedestrian, in walking three or four blocks, describes a course like the battlements of a castle. The streets are very clean—much cleaner than in New York —kept so by the cheapest street-cleaning department in the world—the zopilotes, or turkey buzzards. Dozens of these big black birds or crows, are always at work on every block cleaning away the filth. This would be all very well if they would attend strictly to business, and then go off to some secluded place to die. But they choose the most prominent spots for roosting. On the top of the cathedral, of course, is a big cross, and I don't think I ever saw that cross without a turkey buzzard sitting on top of it. There is a fine of five dollars for killing one of them.

Silver Mine Romances.

About 10 o'clock yesterday morning a crowbar was dropped down the main vertical shaft of the Savage from the surface, and went directly through a cage at the bottom, piercing the bonnet and floor. No one was on the cage at the time, and no one was hurt, yet it is unpleasant to one making a trip into a mine to reflect that such things sometimes occur. As the bar fell something over 500 yards, it was traveling with the rapidity and vim when it struck the cage. A bit of gravel no larger than a filbert sings like a bullet toward the latter part of such a journey. A dog once fell into a shaft at Gold Hill, and, though the shaft was but 300 feet in depth, two men upon whom the animal landed were killed, as was also the clumsy cur who failed to hop across the top of the shaft. A rat once fell down the Consolidated Virginia shaft in attempting to spring across a compartment, from wall plate to wall plate, and 1,100 feet below landed on the bald head of a miner and exploded like a bomb, causing the miner to think that a rock had cut open the top of his skull and let out his brains. A grain of bird-shot dropped into the top of a shaft 1,500 feet in depth would probably bury itself in plank or any piece of wood it might happen to strike at the bottom. This being the case, we repeat that it is not pleasant to think of such things as crowbars going down shafts.—Virginia City (Nev.) Enterprise.

Directions as to a Funeral.

A man died near Baltimore recently, who wished no funeral honors should be paid him, and in his will made a special request of that nature. He wished a plain shroud; no flowers; "no mock display;" no services in a church; no mark where he was buried unless some child or children should be moved to place one there; no mourning garments for his family, as he was "persuaded this has become a solemn mockery;" and no eulogies over his remains. "If there was one trait of my character," he said, "worthy of imitation, them imitate it, and with the last look bury all my imperfections and infirmities with my remains." These requests he directed to have read at his funeral. It is said that the leading traits of the man's character were honesty and truthfulness.

SOFT, SOFT WIND.

BY CHARLES KINGSLEY.

Soft, soft wind, from out the sweet south sliding,
Waft thy silver cloud-webs athwart the summer sea;
Thin, thin threads of mist on dewy fingers twining,
Weave a veil of dappled gauze to shade my babe and me.

Deep, deep love, within thine own abyss abiding,
Pour Thyself abroad, O Lord, on earth and air and sea;
Worn, weary hearts within Thy holy temple hiding,
Shield from sorrow, sin and shame my helpless babe and me.

CLIPPINGS.

MUSKRATS now enjoy protection under the law of Ohio.

THE oyster business at Cedar Keys is worth about $11,000.

GEORGIA has a newspaper called the Eatonton Broadaxe and Remiser.

THE salary of the governor of Maine has been reduced from $2,500 to $1,500.

THE Danbury News asks: "Did you ever wonder what you are to die of?"

HANGING majolica logs, filled with pitcher plants, are novel and pretty ornaments for the window.

THOSE who have made mistakes and suffered for them are the ones to help others; to show that any error can be atoned for.

TACKS placed points upward on the floor are said to interfere with the movements of materialized spirits in Boston seances.

THE latest social event of any importance in Texas was a cavalry duel with knives, between Scott Turner and Sam. Harris. Samuel was killed.

A CIGAR dealer in Middletown, N. Y., has hung in his window a list of the names of his non-paying customers, with amounts due, large and small.

IF you do not wish to be exposed, don't talk too much before your children. A child's mind is like a "Jack-in-a-box," once unlocked, it is all out in a minute.

THE Eureka, Nev., Sentinel propounds this conundrum: "What is the difference between giving your washing to a Chinaman and giving it to a white person who has it done by Chinamen?"

A SAN FRANCISCAN, who was sued for the value of half a dozen shirts made to his order, pleaded a misfit, and appeared upon the witness stand wearing one of the garments. He won the case.

THE silver ore about Leadville is deposited in a layer about sixty miles long and four or five miles wide. The depth at which the ore is reach varies. In some mines it is only four or five feet under the surface, in others it is 250 feet.

HAIR-SWITCH swindlers are operating all over the country. They gather together all the loose hair that the young ladies have saved from combings, promising, for a very small consideration, to make it into switches, and then they steal out of the town.

AN Indian surgeon, knowing that native ladies would sooner die of consumption than allow a doctor to examine their chests in the ordinary manner, proposes that the microphone be used to convey the auscultatory sounds to the ear of a surgeon safely housed at a distance.

THE Toronto Mail alleges that a minister at a recent marriage at Stratford, Canada, asked for a Bible, and was given a receipt book, which he opened at a paragraph headed, "How to make soft soap." Subsequently he was given the Bible, and found a leaf turned down at the passage, "Wives, be obedient to your husbands."

A WOMAN imprisoned in Baltimore for stealing crape from a dead man's door was supposed to have reached the limit in theft, but is more than rivaled by a haughty Virginian who ran off with the funds of a graveyard. Stealing the emblem of death from the door of the defunct, stealing his body when it is laid away, and stealing the small profits of keeping it, is an economy in crime peculiarly American.—Pittsburg Telegraph.

THE elevator which was purchased in Buffalo recently by William H. Vanderbilt, is one of the largest and best equipped in the country. It is known as the Tifft elevator, and is built of brick and iron so as to be entirely fire-proof. It was first set in operation ten years ago, and has a storage capacity of about 300,000 bushels and an elevating power of 8,000 bushels per hour. It cost originally about $500,000, but Mr. Vanderbilt has not paid more than $255,000 for it it. No insurance is ever taken on grain stored in this elevator.

HARTFORD correspondent writes: "A well-authenticated report comes to me of a recent case where a doctor from New York city, called to a supposed dying patient, got so impatient waiting for the decease that he finally filled out and signed the certificate of death, leaving the date to be inserted thereafter, and hastened back to the delights of New York. In view of this act the family abandoned hope and ordered their mourning goods, but when the nearly dead patient heard of all this he was so irate that his health began to improve, and he is now considered out of danger, for the time being at least."

A PROVIDENCE (R. I.) young man was in Boston with a friend the other day. They went to a leading hotel for dinner, and after eating, the former called for two cigars. The waiter asked what kind of cigars he would have. This made the young man indignant, for he is high-toned in dress and looks, and he said: "You heard my order, didn't you? Now be sure and bring me the best." He got the best, and he had to pay three dollars for two of them. He has learned since then to be more definite in his orders for cigars when he is away from home.

JOHN S. WILES, a surgeon of Thorncombe, Dorset writes to the London Times: "After two out of nine or ten cases of malignant diphtheria had proved fatal, I saw an extract from an American paper concerning a practitioner who used sulphur to cure the disease. I used milk of sulphur for infants and flour of sulphur for older children and adults brought to a consistence with glycerine; dose, a teaspoonful or more, according to age, three or four times a day, slowly swallowed, and also applied to the nostrils with a sponge; and did not lose a case there or elsewhere, and saved lives when the disease had almost blocked the throat."

FRUIT HOUSE BULLETIN

Great Reduction in Goods.

Syrups and Molasses all down "ten" cents per gallon.
Coffees reduced another two cents per pound.
Leghorn Citron down fifteen cents per pound.
Zantee Currants down five cents per pound.
Best Teas reduced 10 cents per pound.
Candies down three cents per pound.
Sugars all down one cent per pound.
Raisins down three cents per pound.

ALL REDUCED 10 and 20 per cent.

Rio Coffee.

The very best, 15 cents per pound. Second grade, 11 cents per lb. Roasted coffee, 15 cts., best 19 cts. per lb.

Teas! Teas!

At no time in the history of the trade have Teas been so low. Another decline of 10c. per lb. brings the best of Teas within the reach of all. We now sell a good Tea for 20c. A choice extra drawing Tea for 40, and 50c, and the best Tea in the market for 70c. Young Hyson, 20, 40, best 70c., Imperial 40, best 70c., Oolong 20, 40, best 70c., Uncolored Jxpan 20, 40. best 60c., Gunpowder, catra choice, 40, best 50 and 70c. per pound

Sugars Down 1c.

Coffee A Sugar 8c, Extra C 7 c, Yellow 6c, Grushed, Powdered and Granulated 9 cents.

Raisins, Currents, Citron, Lemon and Orange Peel,

Down 3 to 10c. per lb., best Valencia Raisins 8c., choice Zantee Currants 5c., best Leghorn Citron 15c, Lemon and Orange Peel 20c., Sicily shelled Almons 40c., Brazil Nuts 8c., Filberts 12c., Texas Peacans 8c

Toy Candies of all Descriptions.

Apples, Pears, Plums, Apricots, and the finest Candies at 25c per lb. Last year they were sold at 40c. Choice French mixed candy 15c, and the best stick candy 12c. 3ct. reduction on candy.

Tobaccos.

Good plug 40c., best 50c. Twin Brothers 65c. Smoking 30c., best 35c. Golden Shorts, finest goods 35c. Uncle Ned, Fancy Turkish 45c.

Fish Oil and Neat's Foot Oil Down 15 cents per Gallon. Best Fish Oil 70c, and Neat's Foot Oil 70c; Machine Oil 20c, best 40c, Coal Oil 12½c, Head Light 18c

CIGARS—In ½ boxes, full boxes and one-fourth boxes, extra choice Cigars $1.25 per 100; good Havanas $2, best $3 per 100

Fresh Oysters.

15c per can. Select Frying 17c and 2c8 per can. Cove Oysters 5c ents per can.

We are doing a rushing trade, continually increasing, and we guarantee our customers a saving of at least 20c. on the dollar at the

FORT WAYNE FRUIT HOUSE.

Family Groceries!

LANNING' SPRICE LIST.

TEAS! TEAS!

Young Hyson	60c very best 70c
Imperial	" " 65c
Japan	" " 60c
Oolong	" " 50c
Gun Powder	" " 40c

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Arbuckels' [Roasted]	23c per lb.
Rio	15c very best 18c " "

SUGARS! SUGARS!

White	10½ pounds for one dollar
Extra C	12 " " "
Grocers C	14 " " "

White Beans per lb. 3½c., Dried Peaches per lb. 6c., Hominy per lb. 3c., Cranberries per qt. 8c., Dried Sweet Corn 13 lbs. for $1.00, Oat Meal 7 lbs. for 25c., cucumber Pickles per doz. 8c. Besides a complete ock of Confectioneries, Canned Fruits, Soaps, Notions, Flour, Butter, Eggs, Syrups, &c., &c.

Goods delivered at all times.

Geo. L. Lanning.

Davenport the Druggist.

Pure Drugs and Medicines,
Choice Soaps and Perfumery,
Excellant Combs and Brushes,
Fine Hair Oils and Pomades

ALL SOLD AND WARRANTED BY

DAVENPORT THE DRUGGIST

Also a splendid stock of Stationery Goods, such as

Wall Paper, Window Shades, Pocket Books,
School Books, Blank Books, Pens. Pencils,
Inks, Mucilage, Stationery, Gold Pens, etc.

All to be sold at the lowest prices by.

Davenport the Druggist, Auburn, Ind

8-31-1 yr.

Clippings.

—West Virginia will try the Moffett register.

—England had one daily paper in Queen Anne's reign.

—There are 165 tribes of Indians in the United States.

—One New York retail dry goods store often takes in $50,000 a day.

—The miner who ate quartz found himself in a peck of trouble.—San Francisco Call.

—Paris last year consumed 11,819 horses for food, being some [illegible] more than in 1877.

—Each year there are 130,000 children abandoned on the public thoroughfares of Italy.

The Emperor William is the only ruling European sovereign born in the last century.

—When a man begins to go down hill all nature seems greased for the occasion.—Josh Billings.

—The six-year old daughter of a convict has been picked up drunk in the streets of Chattanooga.

—This is the coldest winter remembered in Ireland. Birds have been discovered eating each other.

—Indians never kiss each other, and, having seen a few Indians, we can't blame them.—North American.

—There are three good aids to the devil in this life—poverty, politics and the toothace.—Toledo Commercial.

—The boy who cleans up our office stove often goes out whistling ash-panish air.—Cincinnati Saturday Night.

—Japan is now manufacturing boots for sale in the United States from leather brougut from American ports.

—"I think I must have a vein of rich humor," said Jones after his eighteenth boil put in an appearance.—Baltimore News.

—"Free drinks, free passes and a free country" would be the proper motto for some Legislatures.—Detroit Free Press.

—London Truth has five libel suits on hand. How true the saying, "The greater truth, the greater libel."—Norristown Herald.

—Corkonian to Grant—"If ye're mad about your reception in Cork, sure ye're going now where ye kin Asia mind about it."—Cincinnati Breakfast Table.

—Why will any man invest his money in 4 per cent. bonds when he can buy peanuts for three cents per pint and retail them at five?—Detroit Free Press.

J. Payne Collier thinks he has found an early tragedy by Shakespeare, which was printed anonymously in 1599. Its title is, "A Warning for Fair Women."

—An exchange remarks that "Senator Conkling is the vain of the capitol" If that's the case, then Senator Davis must be the rotunda.—Waterloo Observer.

—A cat and a dog recently attended a funeral at Windham, N. H., together, marching before the procession to the grave and then leading the way back to the house.

—One reason why more people did not go into the ark is, that Noah neglected to advertise in the daily papers. There is a great moral lesson in this fact.—Albany Argus.

—A Georgian who went to the stable in the dark to milk a cow and got hold of a mule was saved by the milk-pail, though he was slightly injured by a sudden exit through the roof.

—After all the slanders perpetrated against the oyster, that interesting bivalve has always stewed by the church, and liquidated the inevitable "debt."—New Haven Register.

—Baltimore has built a city hall for less than the estimate, and has a fire department that cost last year $10,000 less than the appropriation. This thing must be stopped.—Boston Post.

But for his dog, which pinned him and held him down till the neighbors could break in and bind him a farmer near Ripon, Wis., would have killed his wife and child while in an insane fit.

—One of our railroad switchmen has been in the habit of delegating his duties to his daughter. But it had to be stopped. Every switch she touched was found to be Miss-placed.—Boston Transcript.

—First woman—Bless me, Emily, you don't look as well as usual; indeed, I do not think I ever saw you look as old as you do to-day. Second woman—My dear, I never was as old as I am to-day.—Paris Paper.

—In St. Paul yesterday a man with a strange look in his eye acknowledged that he was editor of a Greenback paper. He was immediately taken into custody and sent to the lunatic asylum.—Oil City Derrick.

—Two lovers at South Lincoln, Mo., were so anxious to get married the other day that they set out for the minister's house in a furious storm accompanied by two men to shovel a path for the sleigh through the drifts.

—A writer, who declares that the boys who are now growing up can't find anything to do, asks: "What shall we do with them?" Old Herod had a method of solving that problem over 1,879 years ago.—Chicago Journal.

—A bride in Beloit, Iowa, shot herself on the morning after the wedding, on learning that her husband had another wife, but the wound was not serious, and on recovering she took the less tragic course of prosecuting him for bigamy.

—An old ram, owned by a family in East Whitehall, entered the kitchen during the absence of the servant girl and ate up all the pancake batter, and now the family say that they "don't like their batter-in-ram."—Whitehall Times.

—History, modern and ancient, shows that a party of fishermen may start off and forget their bait, or some of their tackle, but the quart bottle, containing "medicine"—in case one of the number is bitten by a shark, or a sea serpent, or an alligator—is never, never left behind.—Buffalo Advertiser.

Caution not Necessary.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder produces better bread, biscuits, cakes, etc., than any other. Its purity admits of any quantity being used with perfect safety, and without detriment to the articles prepared. Households where true economy is studied will use Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder.

A Remarkable Result.

It makes no difference how many physicians, or how much medicine you have tried, it is now an established fact that German Syrup is the only remedy which has given complete satisfaction in severe cases of lung disease. It is true there are yet thousands of persons who are predisposed to throat and lung affections, consumption, hemorrhages, asthma, severe colds settled on the breast, pneumonia, whooping cough, &c., who have no personal knowledge of Boschee's German Syrup. To such we would say that 50,000 dozen were sold last year without one complaint. Consumptives, try just one bottle. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by Wm. McIntyre & Son.

Why Some People are Poor.

Silver spoons are used to scrape kettles.

Coffee, tea, pepper and spices are left to stand open and lose their strength.

Potatoes in the cellar grow, and the sprouts are not removed until the potatoes become worthless.

Brooms are never hung up, and are soon spoiled.

Fine handled knives are thrown into hot water.

The flour is sifted in a wasteful manner, and the bread pan is left with dough sticking to it.

Clothes are left on the line to whip to pieces in the wind.

Tubs and barrels are left in the sun to dry and fall apart.

Dried fruits are not taken care of in season and become wormy.

Rags, strings and paper are thrown into the fire.

Pork spoils for want of salt, and beef because the brine wants scalding.

Bits of meat, vegetables, bread and cold puddings are thrown away, when they might be warmed, steamed, and served as good as new.

How Many Eggs Can a Hen Lay.

There has been so much loose talk about the total number of eggs a hen is capable of laying, and her yearly yield under fairly good treatment, that it is a satisfaction to come across something beyond guesswork or mere inference on the matter The foundation of science is accurate observation, and when a scientist publishes a statement, it is presumable that it is based on this foundation. Its accuracy, too, is confirmed, if it is quoted with approval by other men of wide experience and knowledge on the subject involved in it. Now Geyelin says, and Professor Miles, in his excellent work on stock breeding, quotes him with approval: "It has beed ascertained that the ovarium of a fowl is composed of 600 ovals, or eggs; therefore, a hen during the whole of her life cannot possibly lay more than 600 eggs, which in a natural course, are distributed over nine years in the following proportion:

First year after birth	15 to 20
Second year after birth	100 to 120
Third year after birth	120 to 135
Fourth year after birth	100 to 115
Fifth year after birth	60 to 80
Sixth year after birth	50 to 60
Seventh year after birth	35 to 40
Eighth year after birth	15 to 30
Ninth year after birth	1 to 10

Inasmuch as experience demonstrates that some breeds of hens are vastly more prolific than others, this statement of course, can only be applicable to the average of poultry.—Rural New Yorker.

Sympathy.

Human nature is fallen, and I am not in the habit of unduly exalting it; yet, regarded from this point of view, it presents some vestiges of a departed glory—the last lights of sunset. Let me illustrate this by an example, over which I can fancy the angels bending with admiration:—A boat of castaways lay on the lone sea, drifting on a shoreless ocean; bread they had none; water they had none; no ship, no sail hove in sight. Among the dead and dying a boy lay clasped in his mother's arms; with looks—for his lips were black and speechless—that seemed to cry—"Mother, mother, give me bread." A rough sailor, who has kept and concealed a shell-fish for his own last extremity looked on the child; the tears started to his eyes; he raised his rough hand to wipe them from his cheeks; and then, drawing out his prized last morsel, put it to the lips of the dying boy. I don't know where he sailed from, I know neither his name nor his creed; but I know this—I would rather that my soul were bound up in the same bundle with his, than with the souls of those who go to church, and, having no bowels of mercy, heap up money, while other men are dying of starvation. Till she has sunk into the lowest depth of selfishness and sin, human nature could not enjoy the banquet when hungry faces were staring in at the window, and not the music of tabret and viol filled the air, but the low moanings of manly suffering and the weeping of mothers whose children cry for bread and they have none to give them. The Gospel of Jesus Christ directs us to love even our enemies—if they hunger, to feed them; if they thirst to give them drink; and though human nature may not be great enough to forgive an enemy, she is kind enough to pity a sufferer, and to sympathize with suffering. Give her way then! Yield to her generous impulses.—Dr Guthrie.

SAVE MONEY.

Collar and Milker free to Agents. Neat, light, durable, cheap. No hames required—excells all others. Farmers want it. Outlasts all others. Adjustable Fits any horse.

Our MILKER, the best on earth, ensures pure, clean milk, saves its cost every week. Sells rapidly. Sent by mail to any part of the U. S. Send stamp for particulars.

J. W. GUERNSEY, Gen. Agent,
78 Courtlandt St., N. Y.

Attachment Notice.

Before Jacob Walborn J. P., of Union township, DeKalb county, Indiana.

William L. Franklin,
Charles Emanuel,
vs.
Albert C. Dawson

WHEREAS, the plaintiffs in the above entitled cause have filed with me their affidavit [illegible] and a summons having been issued and returned not found, and a writ of attachment having also been issued [illegible] and the plaintiffs having also filed their affidavit in garnishment, [illegible] property, moneys and effects having been attached of said defendant and it [illegible] that said defendant is a non-resident of the state of Indiana. Therefore the said defendant and all persons interested are hereby notified that said cause is set for trial on the 19th day of April, A. D. 1879, at 1 o'clock in the forenoon, before me, the undersigned, at my office, in the town of Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana.

JACOB WALBORN,
Justice of the Peace. [SEAL.]

February 19th, 1879. 8-4w

Trustee's Notice.

NOTICE is hereby given that I will be at my residence in Franklin township, for the transaction of township business, on Tuesday of each week. B. F. GREENWOOD, Trustee. 1-6m.

A PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE.

THE LOUISVILLE

Courier-Journal!

Largest, Best and Cheapest Family Paper in the United States.

Edited by

HENRY WATERSON.

The COURIER-JOURNAL is a combination (made in 1868) of three old Louisville papers, viz: the Journal, established in 1830; the Courier, in 1843, and the Democrat, in 1844. Its reputation is national, as well as its circulation, and it is pronounced one of the ablest and best arranged papers in the world; its matter being especially adapted to the merchant, the farmer and the family circle.

The WEEKLY COURIER-JOURNAL is not a mere hotch-potch thrown together from the daily edition, but a complete, able, spicy family newspaper, carefully and intelligently edited in every column and paragraph.

TO AGENTS AND CLUBS

Extraordinary inducements in the way of cash commissions and valuable premiums are offered to agents and clubs.

Choice from standard books of the times, and a choice selection of the leading magazines or illustrated periodicals of the day furnished in combination with the Weekly for a mere pittance in addition to the price of the COURIER-JOURNAL alone.

A new edition of Prentice's Poems, beautifully printed and bound and the Weekly Courier-Journal one year for $1.00.

A Splendid Map of the South

Size 28½x38 inches, handsomely colored, varnished, and hung on rollers, retail price $2.00; mailed free of postage, and the Weekly Courier-Journal, one year, for $2.00.

Terms of Subscription.

Daily Courier-Journal, a year	$12.00
Sunday Courier-Journal, a year	2.00
Weekly Courier-Journal, with map, a year.	2.00

A liberal discount allowed to clubs raised for the Courier-Journal.

[Postage in all cases prepaid by the publishers]

Agent's outfit, specimen copies, list of books and magazines and descriptive circulars sent free on application. Send for outfit giving full particulars to agents.

Letters should be addressed to
W. L. HALDEMAN,
President Courier-Journal Co.
Louisville, Ky.

RAILROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R. B

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after Sep. 29 1878, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accom
Toledo	11 05 a m	12 01 a m	10 p m
Wauseon	12 16 "	1 08 "	"
Bryan	1 05 "	1 52 "	"
Butler	1 42 "	2 25 "	"
Waterloo	2 00 "	2 40 "	"
Sedan	2 10 "	2 50 "	"
Corunna	2 15 "	2 55 "	"
Kendallville	2 30 "	3 05 "	"
Ligonier	3 07 "	3 40 "	"
Goshen	3 38 "	4 10 "	"
Elkhart	4 00 "	4 35 "	4 13 "

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	1 10 p m	9 50 p m	8 05 "
Goshen	1 29 "	10 10 "	"
Ligonier	1 56 "	10 42 "	"
Kendallville	2 20 "	11 18 "
Corunna	2 40 "	11 33 "
Sedan	2 47 "	11 38 "
Waterloo	2 55 "	11 45 "
Butler	3 10 "	12 01 a m
Bryan	3 45 "	12 40 "
Wauseon	4 27 "	1 27 "
Toledo	5 40 "	2 40 "	9 50

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. E. CURTIS, Division Supt.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card Nov. 10, 1878.

GOING WEST.

	No. 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Night ex	No 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 12	2 55	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 50	2 26	7 13	12 55pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 35	11 25
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 55	2 40
Plymouth	3 50	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 00	7 58

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 30 a.m	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 48	8 55
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 25 pm	11 30
Lima	8 55	4 20	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 27	2 33
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 05
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 15	6 05am
Mansfield	12 35	7 45	4 55	6 55
Orrville	2 26	9 38	7 00	9 15
Alliance	4 00	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 20 am	11 06	2 00pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15 pm	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line.

75 Miles Shortest to Indianapolis, Louisville and all points South. 52 Miles the Shortest to St. Louis, Kansas, Texas, and all points West. Direct Route to Detroit and all Michigan and Canada points.

TIME CARD IN EFFECT DEC. 29. '78.

SOUTH.	MAIL.	EX.	ACC.
Bay City		6 30am
Saginaw		7 15am
Lansing		9 00am
Detroit		7 00am	2 50pm
Ann Arbor		8 30am	4 05pm
Jackson	6 10am	11 45am	5 40pm
Jonesville	7 19am	12 45pm	7 55am
Bankers	7 36am	1 12pm	8 20pm
Waterloo	9 30am	2 50pm	11 37pm
Auburn	9 48am	3 00pm	11 25pm
Auburn June.	9 52am	3 05pm	12 01am
Ft. Wayne	10 45am	3 50pm	1 25am
Indianapolis	6 15pm	10 55pm
Cincinnati	9 20pm
Louisville	10 25pm	6 20am
St. Louis	7 30am	7 30am
Washington		8 10pm
Baltimore		9 10pm

NORTH.	X.	EX.	ACC.
Baltimore	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Washington	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
St. Louis	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Louisville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Cincinnati	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Indianapolis	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ft. Wayne	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Auburn June.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Auburn	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Waterloo	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bankers	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Jonesville	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Jackson	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Ann Arbor	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Detroit	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Lansing	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Saginaw	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Bay City	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

All trains daily except Sunday. Through tickets to all principal points. For information as to routes and connections apply to

T. H. LOOMIS, Pres't & Gen'l Mang'r.
S. K. HOOPER, Gen'l Ticket Ag't.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.
THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect November 10, 1878.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1. Mail.	2 Express
FORT WAYNE	1 00 pm	5 40 pm
Bluffton	2 15 pm	6 33 pm
Montpelier	2 52 pm	7 22 pm
Hartford	3 7 pm	7 36 pm
MUNCIE	4 00 pm	8 20 pm
Newcastle	5 00 pm
Cambridge City	5 37 pm
Connersville	6 37 pm
Cincinnati	[illegible]
INDIANAPOLIS	[illegible]	10 10 pm
Louisville	11 00 pm	6 45am
Terre Haute		1 22 am
St. Louis		7 30 am

STATIONS	GOING NORTH. 2 Mail.	4 Express	Accom.
St. Louis		8 00 am	7 00 pm
Terre Haute		8 23 pm	1 38 am
Louisville		2 00 pm	6 30 pm
Indianapolis		6 40 pm	6 15am
Cincinnati	8 00 am
Connersville	11 13 am
Cambridge City	11 48 am
New Castle	12 21 pm
Muncie	1 20 pm	9 20 pm	6 45 am
Hartford	2 12 pm	10 08 pm	7 47 am
Montpelier	2 40 pm	10 31 pm	8 19 am
Bluffton	3 13 pm	11 09 pm	9 15 am
Fort Wayne	4 25 pm	11 15 am	10 40 am

Trains Nos. 1 and 2 run through between Fort Wayne and Cincinnati without change.

Through cars are attached to trains Nos. 1 and 2 and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, via Muncie.

All trains daily except Sunday.

Trains run on Columbus time.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Ass't Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

Detroit Eel River & Illinois R R.

TAKE EFFECT DEC. 2, 1878.

GOING EAST.

Stations.	MAIL. No. 2.	ACCOM. No. 4.	LOCAL FT No. 8.
Iv. Logansport	8 30am	7 30pm	6 45am
Mexico	9 13	8 20	7 51
Denver	9 27	8 36	8 45
Chili	9 38	9 12	9 06
Roann	9 56	9 37	9 55
Laketon	10 13	10 00	10 38
N. Manchester	10 25	10 17	11 10
Liberty Mills	10 35	10 30	11 37
Collamer	10 51	10 50	12 20
S. Whitley	10 55	10 56	12 30
Columbia City	11 25	11 31	1 40
Collin's	11 45	11 55	2 25
Churubusco	12 00	12 12	2 55
La Otto	12 25	12 44	3 55
Cedar Creek	12 34	12 53	4 15
Auburn Junct'n	12 50	1 19	4 54
Auburn	12 58	1 37	5 05
Butler	1 35am	2 00am	6 30pm

GOING WEST.

Stations.	No. 1.	No.	No. 7.
Logansport ar.	7 10pm	12 10pm	5 30pm
Mexico	6 53	11 45	3 55
Denver	6 29	11 36	3 30
Chili	6 17	11 27	3 10
Roann	6 05	11 03	2 30
Laketon	5 48	10 25	2 51
North Manchester	5 36	10 13	1 28
Liberty Mills	5 26	10 13	1 09
Collamer	5 15	9 13	12 40
South Whitley	5 11	9 43	12 20
Columbia City	4 48	9 13	11 55
Collin's	4 30	8 48	10 57
Churubusco	4 18	8 29	10 08
La Otto	3 55	7 57	9 05
Cedar Creek	3 45	7 45	8 25
Auburn Junction	3 26	7 23	8 00
Auburn	3 20	7 18	7 13
Butler lv.	2 45pm	7 00am	6 30

FRANK J. HECKER,
Gen. Sup't

WOOD'S HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE

[illegible]

METROPOLITAN RESTAURANT

AND

Confectionery Establishment

The best brands of oysters always on hand in season, and served to suit customers. Warm meals served at all hours. Day boarders taken at low rates. Fancy candies and fine cigars made specialties.

42-6m. SHERMAN HOLLISTER, Prop.

Portable Mulay Saw Mill,

It makes smooth and even lumber, and will cut any sized log up to four feet in diameter. It may be transported from one locality to another and re-erected ready for sawing in from two to three days, and can be made profitable in localities where there is not sufficient timber to justify the erection of a large mill. Send for descriptive circular, price, etc., to CHANDLER & TAYLOR, Indianapolis, Ind.

Improved and Unimproved

FARMS and CITY PROPERTY

—IN—

MONTGOMERY, LABETTE

—AND—

Chautauqua Counties.

Cultivated farms in this vicinity, with plenty of good water, convenient to coal and timber, and with

Church, School and Railroad

Advantages can be purchased at as low prices, per acre, as wild lands two or three hundred miles farther west, and far beyond our Coal and Timber districts. This is acknowledged to be one of the most

Extensive Farming Districts

in Kansas. We can consistently advise seekers of homes in the west, to examine our locality before purchasing elsewhere. Business houses, dwellings, and a large number of lots in the city of Coffeyville, at the terminus of the L. L. & G. R. R., either for cash, exchange, or on liberal credit.

We guarantee a good title to all lands sold by us. So if you want to buy, sell or exchange real estate, call on or address, (inclosing stamp or return postage),

J. McCREARY & CO.,
Real Estate Agt's. Coffeyville, Kan.
or, THOS. H. SPROTT, Auburn, Ind

34-1y.

"Recorders Office -

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 9. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, MARCH 20, 1879. Number 12.

The Auburn Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY BY

THE COURIER COMP'Y.

THEODORE REED, Editor.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will be inserted under this head for $5,00 per annum. For each additional line 50 cents extra will be charged.

ATTORNEYS.

D. D. Moody,

ATTORNEY AT LAW, NOTARY PUBLIC Office in Court House. Auburn, Ind.

H. C. Peterson.

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' Hardware store, Auburn, Indiana.

A. E. Pinchin

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Butler, DeKalb county, Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

Thos. H. Sportt.

REAL ESTATE, COLLECTION AND INSURance Agent. Loans effected on improved farms. Kansas lands for sale or trade. Auburn, Indiana.

Guy Plumb,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over First National Bank. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for the Home Insurance Company.

Best & McClellan,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW, Waterloo, Ind. Will practice in the Courts of DeKalb & Steuben counties. Liberal Advances made on all first-class Claims left in our hands for collection.

PHYSICIANS.

Dr. W. S. Allen,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store, Auburn, Ind.

Dr. T. G. Matheny,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, OFFICE ONE Door North of City Bakery, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

Dr. J. Miller.

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON AND ACCOUCHER. Gonsenhouser's Corners, two miles east of Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind.

Drs. Cowan & Allyn,

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. OFFICE over McIntosh & Son's Drug Store, 1st door south of First National Bank, Auburn, Ind.

Dr. T. W. Tritch.

HOMŒOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block, Auburn, Indiana.

Dr. T. J. Dills,

Especial attention given to Diseases of the EYE and EAR. Rooms 1 and 2 Odd Fellows' building. Office hours—9:30 to 12 a. m.; 1 to 3 p. m.; 7 to 8 p. m. Fort Wayne, Ind.

D. J. Swartz, M. D.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO DISEASEs of the Eye and Ear, Fistula in Ano, Hemorrhoids or Piles and Chronic Ulcers. Office on Main street, over Shaffer's Furniture Store, Auburn, Ind.

Dr. S. B. Johnson,

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

Central House,

TENTH STREET. EAST OF MAIN. GOOD Sample rooms, and low rates.
T. D. Gross, Prop'r Auburn, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains. Good sample rooms on first floor.

Sands House,

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2,00 per day.
GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk. O. SANDS, Proprietor

Mayer House.

Fort Wayne, Indiana Under the Management of W. W. REED, rates, two dollars per day. Street Cars to and from the Pittsburgh, Wabash and Grand Rapids R. R. Depots.
F. [illegible], W. W. REED, JR., } In Office.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Tonsorial Artist.

HAIRDRESSING AND SHAVING EXECUTED with special care, and in good taste. Room on West Seventh street. WM. EDGINGTON Prop'r. Auburn, Ind.

Trustee's Notice.

NOTICE is hereby given that I will be at my residence in Franklin township, for the transaction of township business, on Tuesday of each week.
B. F. GREENWOOD, Trustee.
2-6m.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examinations begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNS Co. Sup't.

DEAR SIR:

If you are in want of anything in the way of GUNS, RIFLES, REVOLVERS Pistols, ammunition, gun material, fishing tackle, or any other Fine Sporting Goods please send stamp for my large illustrated catalogue and price list. Yours truly,
Address, JOHNSTON'S Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburgh, Pa. 11-1m.

METROPOLITAN RESTAURANT AND Confectionery Establishment,

The best brands of oysters always on hand in season, and served to suit customers. Warm meals served at all hours. Day boarders taken at low rates. Fancy candies and fine cigars made specialties.
49-6m. SHERMAN HOLLENBECK, Prop.

HIDDEN TREASURE.

Sixty-Five Thousand Dollars in Gold and Silver Unearthed After Being Buried in a Kentucky Cave for Eighteen Years.

[Special Dispatch to the Enquirer.]

MARROW-BONE, CUMBERLAND CO., KY. March 8.—During the last week a sensation of considerable interest came to the surface, which I deem worthy of note for the Enquirer. It was nothing more or less than the discovery and recovery of a vast amount of gold, silver and precious stones which have been buried since the beginning of the war in a small cave on the farm of Robert O. Willis, one mile south of this town. The treasure consists of about $65,000 in gold and silver coin, and about $10,000 (present value) of jewelry, such as diamond rings, pins, ear-rings, &c. It appears that Mr. Willis placed all these valuables in an old sugar-kettle, which he buried in the extreme end of the cave, covering it over with boards and loose rock from the side of the cave. His wife alone he informed in regard to the precise spot where the treasure had been secreted. Of course it would have been very imprudent to have imparted such an important secret to any other person or persons.

A few weeks after secreting all this treasure, Mr. Willis mysteriously disappeared. It is supposed he was killed by guerrillas on the Cumberland River, whither he had gone with several head of cattle to ship to Nashville. He was never heard of afterward, and his wife mourned for him up until the day of her death, which occurred last Saturday, March 1st. Although she was well aware that there was a vast fortune buried in that cave, yet she did not impart her secret to any person, and having a good income from the farm, had no particular need of any of the money, so she thought she would let it remain there, as it was fully as safe as it could be elsewhere. Grief over the loss of her husband, and having poor health combined, rendered her somewhat careless and indifferent. She lived all alone with an old negro man and his wife as her servants and companions. They were old slaves—belonged to her father—had nursed her in her infancy, and she was perfectly content. She had no children or near relatives, and a few days before death claimed her as his own, she imparted the secret of the hidden treasure to these old servants, also to Rev. John D. Hogan, her pastor, and Messrs. Owsley & Gore, her attorneys, summoned to execute her last will and testament.

The treasure was found according to directions, all safe and sound and in first-class condition, and it was opened in her presence. She bequeathed her jewelry and $40,000 to her old servants, also the old homestead, a rich farm of some 200 acres. The remainder she ordered to be invested in securities for her husband's benefit, should he turn up alive in twenty years If not, that it be donated to Catholic charitable institutions that may be greatly in need of it at that time, in Louisville, Ky., the interest to be given from now on yearly to the ophan asylums there. This vast treasure was taken to Glasgow, Ky., yesterday, and shipped from there to Louisville, where it will be deposited for the present with the Safe Deposit Company. The old colored servants who are thus abundantly rewarded for their devotion expressed the wish that their portion of the treasure be invested for them; as they did not wish to keep it in the house, fearing they would be murdered for it.

The cave wherein the treasure has laid undisturbed for so many years has been visited the last few days by many curious persons, and our citizens have been greatly excited over an event of such extraordinary interest.

I forgot to mention that Mrs. Willis bequeathed $1,000 to her home paper, the Glasgow (Ky.) Times, which, she asserts in her will, was a source of great comfort to her in her sorrow, bringing weekly news from her old home in Barren County, Ky., and thus, for once in the history of the times, a newspaper is kindly remembered in "a last will and testament."

* * *

A Remarkable Result.

It makes no difference how many physicians, or how much medicine you have tried, it is now an established fact that German Syrup is the only remedy which has given complete satisfaction in severe cases of lung disease. It is true there are yet thousands of persons who are predisposed to throat and lung affections, consumption, hemorrhages, asthma, severe colds settled on the breast, pneumonia, whooping cough, &c., who have no personal knowledge of Boschee's German Syrup. To such we would say that 50,000 dozen were sold last year without one complaint. Consumptives, try just one bottle. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by C. H. Hoyt.

Fat Flesh-Pots of the Senate.

[Cincinnati Commercial.]

WASHINGTON, March 6.—There promises to be a high and mighty contest for the fat places in the Senate, which will all fall into Democratic hands two weeks hence. The campaign has opened briskly, and there are an average of 88½ applicants for each place. The pay is the best of any department of the Government, as the Senate has resisted reduction as undignified action. The following is a complete inventory of the offices at the disposal of the incoming Democrats:

Secretary of Senate, salary	$6,000
Chief clerk	4,000
Principal executive clerk	2,500
Principal clerk	2,600
Journal clerk	2,600
Financial clerk	2,600
Librarian	2,220
Seven clerks, each	2,2 0
Five clerks, each	2,100
Printing clerk	2,220
Keeper of stationery	2,102
Assistant keeper of stationery	1,800
Messenger	1,296
Special Policeman	1,296
Four laborers, each	720
Secretary's page $2,50 per day	....
Chaplain	900
Secretary to presiding officer	2,102
Page to vice-president $2,50 per day	....
Clerk of appropriation committee	2,500
Clerk of finance committee	2,220
Clerk claims committee	2,220
Clerk commerce committee	2,220
Clerk judiciary committee	2,220
Clerk land claims committee	2,220
Clerk election committee	2,220
Sergeant-at-arms	4,420
Assistant doorkeeper	2,592
Postmaster	2,100
Assistant postmaster	2,088
Four mail-carriers, each	1,200
Superintendent document room	2,160
Assistant superintendent document room	1,440
Second assistant superintendent document room	1,440
Superintendent folding room	2,160
Assistant in folding room	1,200
Three assistant doorkeepers, each	1,800
Twenty messengers, each	1,440
Upholsterer messenger	1,440
Store-room messenger	1,800
Laborer in charge of private passages	840
Laborer in charge of ladies' room	720
Engineer	2,100
Four assistant engineers, each	1,440
Conductor of elevator	1,200
Two firemen, each	1,095
Three laborers, engineer's department, each	720
Eight "skilled laborers," each	[illegible]
Ten laborers, each	[illegible]
Twenty one committee clerk, at $6 a day each
Twelve pages, at $2 50 a day each	....

The above list does not include the employes of the library of Congress, of which there are 14, or the police and watchmen, of which there are 31, the latter ranging in salary from $1,600 to $900. Leaving out those employed in the library, and the police and watchmen, last noted, who are for both ends of the capitol, we find the Senate alone, composed of 76 senators, regularly employing 108 persons, at an average salary of about $2,000 each besides those irregularly employed. As they are only employed about five months out of 12, and very lightly then, it will be seen that this pay is, with very few exceptions, more than double what the same class of talent could command in other branches of business. No other deliberative body on earth, of equal size, has as much "help" as the United States Senate, and pays so roundly for it.

* * *

The Next Campaign.

There is no mistaking the signs of the times. The republican party has determined that the "bloody shirt" shall have one more trial. Every movement is in that direction. The rebellion, the hates and asperities engaged by that fierce struggle are once more to be revived. Men's passions are once more to be aroused, the bloody chasm to be opened, and, if possible, widened and deepened. The Northern heart is to be fired, and every infamous scheme is to be resorted to to regain control of the government in all of its departments. He who does not see this is blind. He who does not understand the logic is as obtuse as an ass. To aid these schemes, Republican conspirators and leaders demand that Federal soldiers shall stand guard at the polls, and that Federal supervisors, the lickspittals of republicanism, shall interefere with the rights of States in conducting the elections. With this machinery under their control, with grant for their candidate, the Republican conspirators hope to gain their ends. Against all this, the Democratic party is pledged to an unrelenting opposition. The war is over. There has been fifteen years of peace. Every consideration of patriotism demands a return to the old path mapped out by the constitution; and to accomplish this the Democratic party demands the repeal of such statues as serve only to beget consternation and sectional strife, and to make the civil law everywhere superior to military power. It is for healing every wound and obscuring every scar made during the fratricidal strife, and thus blending all sections and all the people in one harmonious whole. The issues are being made up, and the Democratic party is ready for the contest. Let it come.—Ind. Sentinel.

THE INTEREST BILL.

Full Text of the Law Lately Enacted for Regulating the Rate of Interest.

Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Indiana, that the interest on loans or forbearance of money, goods or things in action, when the parties do not agree upon the rate, shall be $6 a year on $100, and at that rate for a greater or less sum, or for a shorter or longer time; But it may be taken yearly or for a shorter period or in advance, and no agreement to pay a higer rate shall be vallid, unless the same be in writing, signed by the party to be charged therein. By and in such cases it shall not be lawful to contract for more than eight per cent. per annum.

Sec. 2. Interest on judgments for money hereafter rendered shall be from the date of the return of the verdict or finding of the court, until the same shall be satisfied at the rate percent. agreed upon by the parties in the original contract, not exceeding six per cent., and if there is no contract by the parties, at the rate of six dollars a year on one hundred dollars.

Sec 3. On money due on any instrument in writing and an account stated from the day of settlement, or an account closed upon the day an itemized bill shall have been rendered and payment demanded or money had and received for the use of another and retained without his consent, interest shall be allowed at the rate of six dollars a year on one hundred dollars.

Sec. 4. When a greater rate of interest than is hereby allowed shall be contracted for, the contract shall be void as to the usurious interest contracted for, and in an action on such contract, if it appears that interest at higher rate than six per cent., or in case of written contract, a higher rate than eight per cent., has been directly or indirectly contracted for, the excess of interest over six per cent shall be deemed usurious and illegal, and in an action on a contract affected by such usury, the excess over the legal interest may be recouped by the debtor whenever it has been reserved or paid before the bringing of the suit.

Sec. 5. If an action shall be instituted on a contract on which illegal interest shall have been directly or indirectly contracted for, and the defendant shall have before the commencement of the suit tendered to the plaintiff his principal with six per cent. interest, the defendant shall recover costs.

Sec. 6. When in any loan or contract a rate of interest is specified but no period of time is mentioned for which such rate is to be calculated, it shall be deemed to be by the year.

Sec. 7. The provisions of this act shall apply to all contracts made within this state, although they are to be performed without this state, and when a contract shall be made without the state, and a rate of interest greater than that herein allowed shall be directly or indirectly contracted for, and a mortgage shall be executed to secure the performance of the contract on lands in this state, such lands shall not be liable for a higher rate of interest than is provided for in this act.

Sec. 8. All acts on the subject of interest, including such as relate to interest and public funds, interest on purchase money of canal, college, school or saline lands, are hereby repealed, and hereafter the interest on public funds, purchase money of canal, college, school or saline lands, and upon the permanent school fund, shall be at the rate of $8 on the 100, but nothing herein contained shall be construed as affecting existing contracts, except, after verdict as herein provided, nor the right to defend in a suit upon such contracts for excessive interest, as is now provided by law.

* * *

How to Plant Peas.

Last spring I put in my first peas and potatoes on the 15th of March, and had splendid crops of both, but usually we can not do much in the open soil before the first week in April. As soon, however, as the frost is out and the ground is dry enough, I shall plant in my driest and warmest soil some Little Gem and Laxton's Alpha peas. I shall open furrows three inches deep for the Gems, and one foot apart, and in these furrows scatter compost about an inch deep, draw a pointed hoe through the furrow to mingle the manure with the soil, and then sow thickly—three peas to an inch. I will treat the Laxton's Alpha in the same way, with the exception that the rows will be two and a half feet apart. The Little Gems grow only a foot high, and require no support. The Alphas require two and a half feet brush. Two weeks later I shall plant for second crop Little Gem, M'Lean's Advancer, and Champion of England. I have tried a great many kinds, and have come to the conclusion that the four kinds I have named are the richest-flavored and sufficiently productive—in brief, all things considered, the best. It is a pleasant and inexpensive amusement to try fifty other kinds in a small way. Since "Let us have peas" is such a frequent and emphatic remark at our dinner table, I shall plant liberally every ten days until the 4th of July, burying the seed deeper as the season advances, and choosing shadier and moister localities. Very late plantings are usually so injured by mildew that were the vegetable not such a favorite, I would not plant it after the middle of May. Deep planting of the seed late in the season insures longer bearing. I prefer Champion of England for the main crop, as it is by general consent regarded as the flower of the pea family. The short, low-growing kinds like Little Gem will be the better for any amount of manure, but tall varieties like the Champion do not need fertilisers in the drill unless the ground is poor. When gardens are small and brush is not convenient, it may be best to plant the dwarf kinds only. They can be sown on ground designed for tomatoes, Lima-beans, melons, squashs, etc., as they do not shade the ground, and soon mature. I put them in such spaces almost altogether, and in rows three or four feet apart, and plant the later vegetables between them. As soon as the green pods are picked, I have the vines dug under, thus returning at once to the soil what was taken from it.—E. P. Roe, in Harper's Magazine for April.

* * *

How Great Hogs are Fattened.

[Burlington (N. J.) Letter to the Philadelphia Times.]

Carter and Southard have reduced the business of pork raising to a science. The former, intent upon taking the palm, started off with 30 hogs. Upon 27 of these he bases his hopes of success. Of the original number several have been killed. In January three of them came so very near choking to death that the farmer grew frightened and slaughtered them. They weighed 798, 817 and 788 pounds respectively. The hogs entered for the prize have had the best of care. There are just two events in the lives of such hogs—sleeping and eating. They are too fat even to waddle. They never wake up except to eat, and that process over, they again stretch out upon clean straw in their separate pens. These particular hogs of Mr. Carter's were too lazy even too feed themselves, and, indeed, even if they were not they could not see their food. For weeks they had been in total blindness. Like the average hog of no particular distinction they all had eyes, but three inches and a half of genuine fat kept them closed completely. The feeding process is one of interest to both hog and spectator. The farm hand rolls up boiled meal into round balls and forces it into their hogships' mouths. The hogs grunt and swallow and keep it up until they are perfectly gorged. They are kept in a stuffed condition on the best of meal, and all that is asked of them is to grow fat. Southard has not killed yet. He began the year with 29 hogs, all Jersey reds, but his pens now contain but 23. There they were, lying around, grunting and puffing, and with their snouts pointing upward in search of air. Their eyes could not be seen, and it took strong fingers to pry away the masses of fat so that the hidden organs of sight could be opened out. The blind, helpless masses were shaken by loud breathing, and occasionally would give vent to a snort, but they seemed entirely unable to get upon their feet.

* * *

Salt for Farm Stock.

The Live Stock Journal, on this subject, says: "Salt is required in the formation of the blood and the various animal juices. It increases the appetite and promotes the power of digestion. Sheepfeeders believe that it often prevents rot, scab, intentional worms, braxy and other diseases. Some French feeders believed that salt had an actual nutrient or fattening quality; but Boussingault experimented to determine this and did not confirm it. He came to the conclusion that salt added to food might produce a more rapid increase in the weight of fattening animals by giving them a greater relish for food, and thus inducing them to consume a larger quantity There can be no doubt that in sections of this country situated at a long distance from the sea, all animals are benefited by the use of salt. Cattle partake of it with a most decided relish in small quantities, and often, daily, and it is no doubt best that they should have free access to it, when they will take it by little and often, and simply satisfy their own appetite. Salt is found to have a beneficial effect upon crops on many soils, thus indirectly proving the deficiency of salt in the forage crops."

A GOOD EUCHRE STORY.

How Labouchere was Beaten by a Stray American.

You are right, Mr. Corlett. The Paris Lottery does remind me of an occurrence that took place years and years ago, when you and I were staid and portly citizens, but gay and giddy youths. It was in Cuba, however, not in Mexico, as you opine. I had gone to Matanzas, I forget what for, but probably for no particular reason. At Matanzas I picked up an acquaintanceship with an American. We talked together at the table d'hote, and in the evening we strolled out together. The bright, clear moon played upon the waters of the harbor and ever and anon tipped with silver the sail of some fisher's skiff as it stole out to sea. Around us was the luxurious vegetation of the tropics; a soft gentle breeze murmured through the tall palms overhead, etc. It was a scene where lovers would have lingered on forever, but after contemplating it for about half an hour, the American and I found it slightly monotonous, and wended our way back to the hotel. It was still early. Nature slept, but we did not feel inclined to imitate her; so I proposed cards. The American seldom played, but to oblige me he would do so. "Euchre?" I suggested. The American did not know the game well, but if I would excuse any mistakes that he might make he would play at euchre. His luck was prodigious. Fortune favored him in a manner most miraculous. If I had good cards, he somehow always had better. We played for about six hours, and by that time all my money had passed into the American's pockets. Before leaving Havana I had bought myself two lottery tickets. These I offered to steak against the money that they cost me, about $150. The American accepted the wager, but his miraculous luck did not desert him, for he won the tickets. Having borrowed of him enough to pay my hotel bill, and to take my place on the Havana steamer, we went there together the next morning. The lottery had just been drawn, one of my tickets had drawn the highest prize. Since then I have never bought a lottery ticket, for it is against all probability that I ever again will be so near winning a prize. I met the American subsequently in New Orleans. He offered me my revenge, but I declined to accept it. "Have you a bowie-knife or a revolver about you?" I asked. "No," he answered. "And you will promise to reply truthfully to a question that I should like to ask you?" "I will," he said. "Did you cheat me at Matanzas?" I asked. "That is not precisely the term that should be used; but I knew the run of the cards," he answered, as he shook me by the hand, and, with a genial smile, wished me good morning.

* * *

Great Favor.

Among ladies and gentlemen of refinement, Dr. Price's Unique Perfumes are in great favor. Having sweetness and durability, they are universal favorites among all lovers of perfumes. Try Dr. Price's Alista Bouquet—for a handkerchief perfume it is delightful.

WOOD'S HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE

Is a monthly, 60-page Scrap Book of the cream of the World's Literature. Single copy, 20c., or $2 per year. An Oil Chromo (14x20 inches) of "Yosemite Valley," price, $3; "Black Sheep," a $1.50 book, in paper binding; "Christian Oakley's Mistake," a $1 book, in paper binding, and a sample copy of "Wood's Household Magazine"—all post-paid, for only 30 cents in money, or in one-cent postage stamps. Agents wanted. Most liberal terms, but nothing sent free. Address S. S. Wood, Tribune Building, New York City

Sick Headache

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively Cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, &c. They regulate the Bowels and prevent Constipation and Piles. The smallest and easiest to take. Only one pill a dose. 40 in a vial. Purely Vegetable. Price 25 cents. Sold by all Druggists.

CARTER MEDICINE CO., Prop'rs, Erie, Pa.

Five Vials by mail for one dollar.

Portable Mulay Saw Mill,

With improvements recently made is unequaled as a neighborhood mill. It can be run by either steam or water power, and is especially adapted to the engines used for threshing.

It may be operated by either two or three men, and will cut as much lumber in proportion to the power and number of hands employed as mills of larger capacity.

It makes smooth and even lumber, leaves no [illegible] and will cut any sized log up to four feet in diameter. It may be transported from one locality to another and re-erected ready for sawing in from two to three days, and can be made profitable in localities where there is not sufficient timber to justify the erection of a large mill. Send for descriptive circular, prices, etc., to CHANDLER & TAYLOR, Indianapolis, Ind.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, MARCH 20, 1879.

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

ELIHU BURRITT, the "learned blacksmith," died at his home in New Britain, Ct., on the 6th of March, aged 66 years.

A PARTY of swindlers have been detected in Philadelphia in the attempt to realize on a subscription for a memorial to the late Bayard Taylor.

THE floor in Mechanics' Hall, at North Berwick, Me., gave away during a town meeting, precipitating nearly fifty persons to the floor below. No one was killed, but many were fearfully and probably fatally injured.

IT is reported from New York that George W. Childs, who for more than a year past has been the virtual owner of the New York World, is soon to become the actual proprietor, and that he will make the World a four-page 2-cent morning paper, independent in politics.

ABOUT fifty vessels, engaged in the Gloucester (Mass.) fisheries on the Atlantic, were at sea in the violent gale and storm of snow and sleet that swept the coast on the 20th of February. No tidings have been received from fourteen of these vessels, and it is feared that they were lost, carrying down with them 140 men—leaving forty-one widows and nearly 100 children to mourn their sudden destruction.

THE Manhattan Savings Bank of New York, robbed some time ago of nearly $3,000,000 of its securities, which have been reduplicated and redeposited with the bank, has resumed business.

A TERRIBLE explosion occurred last week at the Mahoning powder works of P. M. Gallagher & Co., near Danville, Pa., completely destroying the building and instantly killing Willis Lloyd, one of the proprietors, John J. Evans, and John C. Mowrer, their mangled remains being scattered in every direction.

THE WEST.

A NEW book by Col. Bob Ingersoll, entitled "The Religion of Sword and Flame," is in press at Peoria, Ill., and will shortly be issued.

A HORRIBLE accident is reported from East St. Louis, Ill. The wagon-shop of Mrs. Henrietta Bausch took fire and, with five other buildings, was burned down. In the second story of the wagon-shop, which was occupied as a residence by Bausch, there were sleeping her three children, Henry Schoepperkoetter, a blacksmith, and Mrs. Catharina Borst, who was spending a night with Mrs. Bausch, all of whom burned to death, they being unable to escape by reason of the door leading to their apartments being fastened on the outside. Mrs. Bausch leaped from a window and was fatally injured.

HARRIMAN'S HOTEL, at Green Bay, Wis., has been destroyed by fire. Loss, $50,000.

THE reign of burlesque continues for another week at McVicker's Theater in Chicago, the Rice Surprise Party having made a hit in their specialties. This week the San Francisco success "Horrors" is billed for the first half of the week, succeeded by "Hiawatha." This company contains several mirth-provoking comedians, who will drive away an attack of blues, if anything can. They will be followed by the Strakosch Opera Troupe.

AT a conference of Baptist ministers of San Francisco, held the other day, it was unanimously resolved that the name of the Rev. H. W. Reed be stricken from the Baptist Ministers' Meeting, of San Francisco and vicinity, for a misrepresentation of facts before the Baptist Ministers' Conference in New York respecting the sentiments of the Baptist and Christian people generally on the Pacific coast touching the Chinese question.

CHICAGO elevators contain 7,652,884 bushels of wheat, 3,198,185 bushels of corn, 499,565 bushels of oats, 333,921 bushels of rye, and 879,625 bushels of barley, making a grand total of 12,563,680 bushels, against 2,797,707 bushels at the same period last year.

THE reported massacre of thirty-eight Indians in Washington Territory, telegraphed East two or three weeks ago, turns out to have been a hoax....A telegram from Cincinnati says that "Archbishop Purcell has received letters from Cardinal McCloskey and Archbishop Wood, giving the result of the conference which took place last week between the Cardinal and Archbishops of Philadelphia, Boston and Baltimore relative to the crisis in the affairs of his (Purcell's) diocese. The conclusion arrived at by the conference was that the whole Catholic church in America should take up the case of the Archbishop of Cincinnati, and proceed, by regularly-organized methods, to raise the money necessary to pay his debts."

THE Minnesota Legislature, at its recent session, passed 520 bills, all of which have become laws except nine....A dispatch from Cincinnati says Archbishop Purcell has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors.

BOTH houses of the Indiana Legislature have passed the bill making an appropriation for the erection of a new State House. The amount to be expended this year is $200,000, and next year $100,000, to be raised by a State tax of 2 cents on the $100....The monthly statement shows that twenty-two Western railroads increased their earnings in February $109,000.

THE SOUTH.

CLARKSVILLE (Texas) telegram: "An old feud of the Dillards versus the Jones and Murphy factions culminated to-night. Two Dillards and two friends met Henry Jones and friend near Jones' bridge. Both parties were fully armed. The firing began at short range with shot-guns and pistols. Jones was instantly killed, and Dillard was fatally wounded. Officers are pursuing the others."

AN Atlanta (Ga.) dispatch says the "office of the State Treasurer at the Capitol was the scene of a bloody tragedy, the parties being Col. Robert A. Alston, a member of the Legislature, and Capt. Ed Cox, of DeKalb county. Alston fired three shots, and Cox two. Alston was shot in the right temple, the ball passing through the brain. Cox was shot in the mouth and through the left hand. Alston is dead. Cox is not seriously hurt."

A TEXAS dispatch states that several Mexicans, the murderers of Judge Howard and Messrs. Atkinson and McBryde at San Elizario several months ago, have been arrested and jailed. The Mexicans threaten to rescue them.

WASHINGTON.

THE Sundry Civil Appropriation bill consolidates the Hayden, Powell, and Wheeler geological and geographical surveys of the Territories into a single bureau, which is made a part of the Interior Department....Capt. Eads has just received a treasury warrant for $750,000 as part payment for his work on the Mississippi river jetties. He had previously been paid $1,000,000.

THE seat of Daniel O'Reilly, from the Second Congressional District of New York, is contested on the ground that he is a deserter from the Union army....Congressman-elect March will introduce a joint resolution, at the special session, declaring eight hours a legal day's work for all laborers and mechanics employed by the Government.

OVER 80,000 applications for pensions under the new law have already been filed in Washington, and they are coming in at the rate of about 800 daily. The whole number expected is 50,000. When received they are sorted and filed, and on the 25th instant the work of adjudication will be begun.

POLITICAL.

THE [illegible] of Indiana will hold a convention at Indianapolis on the [illegible] of May for the nomination of candidates for State offices.

THE New York Herald publishes interviews with nearly all the Democratic Representatives in the Forty-fifth Congress on the Presidential nomination in 1880. The following recapitulation of their views may prove interesting:

Members interviewed	127
Against Tilden	57
Tilden first choice	13
Tilden acceptable	9
Thurman first choice	80
Thurman acceptable	11
Hendricks first choice	12
Hendricks acceptable	28
Bayard first choice	10
Bayard acceptable	12
Expressed no choice	42

THE Republicans of Chicago have nominated A. M. Wright, a Board of Trade man, for Mayor. The Greenbackers have placed ex-Congressman Harrison in the field.

GOV. PRESCOTT, of New Hampshire, has appointed Charles H. Bell, United States Senator for the extra session, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the expiration of the term of Senator Wadleigh.

GENERAL.

THE veto of the Chinese bill is regretted by the British Columbians, as it was hoped the enforcement of the measure by the United States would shortly lead Canada to do likewise....Canada has recently negotiated a loan of $15,000,000 in London, at a discount of 3¼ per cent., and a further cost of $112,000 in commissions.

VISIBLE supply of grain in the United States and Canada: Wheat, 21,104,000 bushels; corn, 13,891,000 bushels; oats, 2,202,000 bushels; rye, 1,264,000 bushels; barley, 3,851,000 bushels.

THE Custom House returns show that in the imports and exports of this country during the calendar year ending Dec. 31, the balance of trade in favor of the United States for the last year was $305,343,023, as against $140,056,112 during the previous calendar year of 1877....Several persons have died at Marmora, Canada, of a disease which so closely resembles the Russian plague that the attending doctors refuse to call it by any other name.

FOREIGN.

QUEEN VICTORIA will leave England on her continental tour on the 25th of March.

BISMARCK'S Parliamentary Discipline bill has been defeated in the German Reichstag....Passanante, the Italian Socialist who attempted the life of King Humbert at Naples, has been sentenced to death....A resolution in favor of woman suffrage has been voted down in the British House of Commons by 103 yeas to 217 nays.

A COMMITTEE of the French Chamber of Deputies has reported in favor of the impeachment of the De Broglie Ministry. They are accused of an attempt to establish a dictatorship, and of ignoring the popular will as shown by the elections....Gen. Melikoff reports to the Russian Government the plague now mastered. Of a population of 118,000 in the infected districts of Astrakhan 500 died between October and February.

A CONSTANTINOPLE dispatch says the Sultan declares that he cannot concede more regarding the Greek frontier. There is reason to fear, therefore, that negotiations between Turkey and Greece for the rectification of the frontier will be broken off.

DISPATCHES from the seat of war in Afghanistan continue unfavorable to the English. The natives are resorting to guerrilla warfare, and the English, hampered by the insufficiency of their transportation, are unable to move promptly against predatory bands.

A DISPATCH from St. Petersburg says the mortality statistics of the city show that the typhus is increasing in violence. Spotted typhus is also prevalent. There have been two fatal cases of the Siberian plague.....Advices from India state that the people of Cashmere are dying of famine like flies, and at the present rate of mortality the province will be nearly depopulated by the end of the year.

BY the bursting of the dams which held the river Theiss within its banks at Szegedin, Hungary, a vast volume of water was precipitated upon that unfortunate town, hundreds of houses were swept away, a great many people drowned, and thousands of others rendered homeless....The nuptials of the Duke of Connaught, son of the Queen of England, and Princess Louise Margaret, grand-daughter of the German Emperor, were celebrated with great pomp at Windsor Castle on the 13th of March.

THE St. Petersburg police have at length discovered and seized two of the secret printing presses of the Nihilists, which have so long annoyed the Government and spread disaffection among the people.

IN France the proposition to impeach the De Broglie and Rochebouet Ministries has been defeated in the Chamber of Deputies by a large majority. As a compromise measure, a resolution was then adopted declaring that these Cabinets, by their culpable schemes, destroyed the government they should have served.

Bound, Gagged and Robbed.

Manchester, N. H., has been greatly excited lately over a very bold robbery. The affair is, in many respects, similar to the now-famous case of Cashier Barron, of Dexter, Me. At 4 o'clock in the morning Edmund R. Ingalls, Treasurer of the town of Candia, was gagged in his house, and $3,700 stolen from his safe. Mr. Ingalls had been writing on the town books until 1 o'clock, when he blew out the light and went to bed with his wife and child in the front part of the house. Soon after retiring, hearing a suspicious noise, he got up, dressed himself, and went into the back room to investigate. He had, he says, gone but a few steps, when the light of a dark lantern was flashed full in his face, and at the same instant two men, who were not masked, but whom he thinks he cannot recognize, sprung out from the darkness and bound and gagged him. They then handcuffed him and led him to the barn, where they tied him to a stanchion. They left him in this position and went to the house, where they consummated the robbery. Mrs. Ingalls discovered her husband in about half an hour, by which time he was very weak. A police officer broke the bracelets from his wrists, and he was put to bed. The thieves obtained an entrance by boring through the door, and took the money from a bureau drawer, leaving $600 untouched under his pillow. His gold watch and considerable silverware were also taken.

THE CATTLE PLAGUE.

What a Veterinary Surgeon Says About the Disease—The Means of Prevention.

[From the Philadelphia Times.]

Dr. W. Gadsden, the veterinary surgeon, left this city last week for Washington, to testify before the Congressional investigating committee in the matter of pleuro-pneumonia in cattle. Dr. Gadsden has had experience with the disease before. In England, four[illegible] also broke out and raged with such alarming effect that the Government had to interfere and adopt means for its suppression. Dr. Gadsden was appointed inspector in a district in Berkshire, where, in common with similar inspectors appointed by the Government all over England, he was required to inspect and report at stated times the condition of all the cattle in his district. He says it cost the English Government millions of dollars to stamp the disease out. The only course was to kill off the cattle, isolating the infected ones from the healthy ones whenever it could be done. That is the course this country will have to adopt, he claims, as there is no other effective remedy known for the disease. The percentage of the cattle which recover once they are seized with it, Dr. Gadsden says, is about one-fifth. It is one of the most difficult diseases to arrest that is known to veterinary surgeons. A cow may have it and recover from it completely, and four months afterward may communicate the disease to other cattle. Thus it may be spread from one end of the continent to the other. Examination of the lungs of cattle which have died from pleuro-pneumonia has shown that the lungs become marbleized; from being soft and spongy, as in their normal condition they should be, they grow hard and heavy, like a stone, and if placed in a vessel of water, instead of floating, as a healthy lung would do, they sink like lead. Death is produced in the cow when, by this hardening process, the air cells of the lungs become closed, stopping respiration.

The disease made its first appearance, about a century ago, in Central Europe. It became known in the United States as early as the year 1843. Since then it has prevailed, at different times, in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and the District of Columbia. At the present time it prevails, so far as is known, in but two places—on Long island and near Alexandria, Va. The disease is not governed, one way or the other, by changes in the weather. Seasons and latitudes are all one to it, so far as regards the potency of either to check it. Not only may a cow, after complete recovery from the disease, transmit it to other cattle, but the disease itself may lurk in the system of an animal, in a latent form, for months before it manifests itself. Next to rinderpest, it is the most destructive disease known among cattle.

In 1859 the disease prevailed in Australia with fearful effect. Thousands of cattle were swept away in a week. To quarantine against the disease was impossible, as it seemed to break out at every point. At length inoculation was tried. The pneumonia vaccine was obtained in a singular way, being generated first in one cow, then in another, and lastly in a third before it was used. First an animal was inoculated with the matter which flowed from the diseased lung; then a second animal inoculated with vaccine obtained from the first, and lastly, a third animal from that obtained from the second. The operation was performed merely by saturating with vaccine a small pellet of wool. An incision was then made in the cow's tail and the pellet placed in the cut. The vaccine would absorb in a few minutes, when the wool would fall out, leaving the wound free from irritation. Many herds of cattle were inoculated in this way, and it was believed by those who tried it to have been in a measure effective. There is a difference of opinion, however, among the authorities on the subject, many holding the view of Dr. Gadsden, that the only way to kill the disease is to kill the cattle infected with it.

The United Kingdom in the Year 1878.

In the year 1878 there were 1,152,525 births registered in the United Kingdom, being at the rate of 34 per 1,000 of the estimated population, which was 33,881,966 in the middle of that year. The deaths registered in the United Kingdom in 1878 were 716,165, or 21.1 per 1,000 population. The natural increase of population by excess of births over deaths was 436,360, or 49,242 less than the excess in 1877. The actual increase of population in 1878 cannot be ascertained, owing to there being no complete records showing the balance between emigration and immigration. The Board of Trade report the emigration from the United Kingdom in 1878 of 113,439 persons of British origin, being an increase of 25 per cent. over the unusually small emigration of 1877. The increase in 1878 was 22 per cent. in English, 34 in Scotch, and 27 in Irish emigrants. Of the 113,439 British emigrants of 1878 there were 54,065 who left for the United States, 36,057 for the Australian colonies, and 10,677 for British North America, each of these numbers showing a marked increase over the preceding year. The mean temperature of 1878, as shown at Greenwich Observatory, exceeded the average in every one of the first ten months of the year, but there was a marked deficiency in November and December; the mean for the year was 49.7 deg., or 1.2 deg. above the last thirty-seven years' average. The rainfall at Greenwich in 1878 amounted to 29.2 inches, measured on 166 days; this rainfall exceeded the average by nearly four inches. The number of hours of bright sunshine registered at Greenwich Observatory in 1878 was 1,250, or 28 per cent. of its possible duration, the sun being above the horizon for 4,454 hours. —London Times.

Cause and Effect.

Cause and consequence are curiously illustrated by the recent record of the New York Assembly. A prominent State officer has a daughter very sick by reason of striped stockings. A bill against the manufacture or sale of poisonous goods and garments was accordingly drawn by him, and has been introduced into the State, with good prospect of passage. It is not often that stockings get into legislation.

A Bad Fix.

At an early hour yesterday morning a woman called at the postoffice and purchased a 3-cent stamp, and had it already "licked" to paste on her letter, [illegible] that she had left the letter at home. She received the heartfelt sympathies of the stamp clerk, and went home for the letter. At 11 o'clock, when the stamp window was besieged by a crowd, the woman returned having the letter in one hand and a minute fragment of a postage stamp in the other.

"Stand out of the way for a poor distressed woman!" she called out, as she made for the window, and those who didn't obey were poked aside in a way to be remembered by their ribs. The change which one buyer was about to pocket was swept off the board on the floor by her arms, and she held the fragment of stamp and exclaimed to the clerk:

"Do you dare deny, sir, that you sold me a 3-cent stamp two hours ago?"

"I think I sold you a stamp," he replied.

"And I didn't have my letter here. After I'd eaten all the paste off the stamp I couldn't find my letter. You remember?"

"Yes, I remember."

"Well, sir, I carried that stamp all the way home on the tip of my finger, and I laid it down on the windy-sill till I could find my letter, and what did my Clarence do but pick it up and begin to chew away, and by the time I could choke his mouth open nothing was left but this little bit."

"And you want another?"

"I demand another, sir, in place of this!"

"I couldn't do that."

"But you'll have to! This is the stamp I bought of you! Look for yourself and see. I make oath that I never put it on a letter. Am I to be cheated out of my 3 cents in a back-handed way?"

The crowd began to call out and jostle her, but by a vigorous use of feet and elbows she cleared the space again and said:

"I demand a new stamp!"

The clerk tried to explain how she couldn't get one in exchange, but she interrupted:

"Have I got to murder my child and get the rest of the stamp? Never! I'll never leave this windy till I have a new stamp to put on my letter to Thomas!"

The clerk tried to explain again, but she brought the letter down with a thump and said:

"I leave this letter here. It is to my Thomas in Port Huron. If he doesn't get it in three days you'll hear from me and my four big girls and three sons, and when our family gets started on a row we never stop for the biggest post-office in America!"

At dark last night the the clerk was undecided. He doesn't like to be bluffed into going down for his small change, but in the dim future he sees a solemn procession, headed by a determined old lady, marching down the corridor to make a vacancy in the ranks of government.—Detroit Free Press.

A Criminal's Revery.

Two Chicago desperadoes, Lamb and Freeman, were arraigned for the murder of Police Officer Race. Freeman turned State's evidence, and, on his testimony, his associate in crime was convicted and is now under sentence of death. A newspaper reporter visited Freeman's cell immediately after the jury had rendered their verdict, and found him engaged in writing a letter expressing his feelings on the subject. A copy was obtained for publication, and is as follows:

> Sitting in my gloomy cell this night of nights, waiting for a verdict that is either to decide that I am the greatest villain on earth or that my once comrade John Lamb is the cold-blooded murderer of a noble, upright, honorable man, shot down in his tracks while doing his duty, I cannot refrain from penning my thoughts. In this solemn hour my soul is as calm as the ocean is said to be on a quiet summer eve, when the setting sun crowns the world in a halo of glorious hues—a scene that bends devout mortals to their knees, and from the fullness of their joyful hearts prayers like incense issue from their lips to the great "I Am," Creator of all—a scene that causes battling hearts to pause in their struggles for worldly prizes, and, resting on their armors, gaze with mute admiration depicted upon every lineament of their countenances, refreshing their souls with thoughts of hope, faith and charity. Such are my thoughts this night —a night in which my fate and that of my poor unfortunate comrade is to be decided on. God grant that we both be dealt leniently with! May the twelve good and true men remember that we are but poor, miserable, sinful human beings, whom circumstances over which we had no control placed in positions unenvied by mortal man. Oh that I had died when but an innocent, prattling babe! God, in His inscrutable wisdom, may mean all for the best, and my heart's wish is that He deal with us both as we deserve, according to our thoughts and our future acts. May He be with the men who are to decide our fate. May their verdict be His. May He bless the officials who have done their duty to God and man, is the sincere prayer of one who was blind, but who now doth see; one who feels a calm feeling pervading his soul such as he never has experienced in his life before. The bell has rang. John Lamb goes to receive his——. I fear the worst for his sake. Oh, God! may he be able to bear it, is the prayer of your humble servant and supplicant.

A Lady's Wit.

A young officer, present at an Irish breakfast party, thought he would fence with a lady noted for her wit.

"Miss P.," said he, "I'm told you're the most learned lady in Kildare. You know everything, so there's no puzzling you. Can you," poising his spoon over the top of his unbroken egg, "can you inform me why this duck-egg is blue?"

"Well," replied she, "I don't know; but perhaps you would look blue yourself if you were just about to be knocked on the head."

Sunstruck.

"Sam, wharfo' am de 'casion ob yer sore nose?" "Ise been sunstruck, Clem." "Dasso? How kim de visitation?" "Well, yer see, dat boy Rem an' me was heftin' punkins last night, and Rem p'inted one to'rds me rather sprightly, an' dar's de record ob de c'lision."

STRYCHNINE POISONING.

How It Feels to Take a Dose of Poison—An Indianapolis Man's Experience.

[From the Indianapolis News.]

Is death painless? The best medical authorities have about agreed that the last moments of a dying man are comparatively free from pain, and William Hunter, the greatest of English physiologists, upon his death-bed, as he felt his end approaching, said: "If I could grasp a [illegible] how easy [illegible] it is to die." But the last gasps, the stiffening of the muscles, the death-rattle, are they painless? Is death really a cessation of pain? These are questions that are yet unanswered. No man has ever taken the fatal step to come back and relate his experience.

Death from strychnine poisoning is generally supposed to be the most painful of all deaths. The agonies of the terrible tetanic spasms have been pictured as most horrible. From the "American Cyclopedia" the following is condensed:

> The symptoms it produces are difficulty of breathing and a sense of suffocation, twisting of the limbs and tetanic convulsions, the body becoming arched in the back, often resting on the head and heels. The features are convulsed, attended by spasms of the jaws and choking. The attack occurs in paroxysms, between which the intellect is often clear at first, but becomes clouded after a succession of paroxysms. Death occurs after an interval of suffering, lasting usually about three hours.

But the poisoning is not always attended by suffering.

C. C. Cook, the special State House policeman and night watchman, it will be remembered, took a dose of strychnine by mistake about a month ago. He was found in the State Library, lying upon the reading table, perfectly unconscious, his back arched and his head almost reaching his heels, in a violent tetanic convulsion. Medical aid was summoned, and, after three hours' pumping and rubbing, during which time he was knotted in spasms, he recovered. His first request was for a chew of tobacco, and, in an hour's time, he was apparently in his customary health, and, with the exception of a feeling of soreness in his muscles, he felt comparatively well. He slept remarkably sound that night, and got up in the morning none the worse for his evening's blunder. He described his sensations upon that occasion to a News reporter: "After I had taken the stuff, I went down to the Metropolitan Theater, and took a seat. I had hardly settled myself when I felt so strangely. I was hot all over. I grew dizzy and light headed; everything turned white, and I felt so queer that I got up and walked down stairs. I went to the State Library and laid down on the reading table. This was the last I knew until I was brought to. I didn't suffer any particle of pain, not a bit. After I came to I asked for some tobacco, got up and walked around, and if I hadn't been a little weak and sore I would have felt better than I do now. It is an experience I don't want to have again, though. There is too much danger in it to suit me."

A prominent physician and professor in the medical college was talked to about the case, and gave it as his opinion that it was very remarkable. The absence of pain does not occur more than once in a thousand cases.

Governments Last About Five Hundred Years.

The following is an extract from late sermon by the Rev. David Swing, of Chicago:

"As nations do not rise in a day, so in a day they cannot be overthrown. There are some singular records in history. It seems that a great nation cannot turn on its axis more than once in 400 or 500 years. Some of the old states lie outside of the bounds of history, but those inside these bounds show great uniformity in making the time of radical changes in dynasty. Egypt was under shepherd Kings for about 500 years. Her golden age, when she so flourished in art, spread over 300 years. The Hebrew republic ran from Moses to King David—500 years; and then came the empire to enter upon 500 or 600 years of success. The glory of Greek liberty covered about 500 years. Rome enjoyed all the splendor of a republic for the same strange period —482 years. Thus, between Cincinnatus, the farmer President, and the overthrow of the republic by Cæsar and Antony, there intervene the magical five centuries. Spain, France, and Germany, formed out of new countries which followed the breaking up of the Western empire, are now living well and happy in the 400th year of their separate lives. These statements are sufficiently truthful at least to assure us that those great stars which we call 'nations' can neither be placed in the sky in a day, nor in a day be blotted from the galaxy. Behold through what turmoils France has come! The atheist and Communist assailed her. Napoleon drained her of men and money by wars of ambition. Other revolutions came. Then came the usurpation of Napoleon, then the German war with defeat and a fine of a thousand million dollars; and yet to-day France comes out of those commotions a wise and powerful republic."

Specific Against Hydrophobia.

Dr. Grzyvala, of Krivoe Ozeroe, Podolia, Russia, for whose trustworthiness Prof. Gubler, of Paris, vouches, declares that, after a series of critical trials, which he describes at length, he has found that, after having had opportunities of treating at least 100 cases of men bitten by rabid dogs, with the Xanthium Spinosum, he has never in any one of these case failed to ward off the hydrophobia. He gives some startling examples. During the Crimean war, a family of twelve persons had been bitten by a hydrophobic wolf. Six of them entered his wards in the hospital of Olschanka, Government of Podolia, District of Balta. They were treated with infusion of the leaves of the xanthium, and all recovered. The six others, who were treated by the actual cautery and the daily use of genesta tinctoria and other drugs, died with hydrophobia in the course of twelve to sixty days. He recounts many other facts not less striking. For an adult, the dose is sixty centigrammes of the dry powder, repeated three times a day, and continued during six weeks. Children under 12 take half that quantity. The dose for animals is much larger. A herd of thirty oxen had been bitten by a mad wolf; eight had succumbed with symptoms of hydrophobia. The Commissary of Police came to Dr. Grzyvala for his "antirabic powder." He gave three ounces of the powder, with bran, daily to each of the remaining animals; none of them suffered from the disease. These are examples of which Dr. Grzyvala says he has 100 others.—British-American Journal.

A Mad Dog's Bite.

The report of a singular occurrence comes from Brecksville. About a fortnight ago Mr. Ritchie, a farmer living in Brecksville township, discovered, on going out one morning, that something extraordinary had taken possession of his flock of sheep, six in number. They were frothing at the mouth, and biting viciously at one another, and even tearing the wool from their own hips and sides. Nearly all bore marks of violence, as if they had been attacked by some wild animal, and their wool was bespattered with blood. Mr. Ritchie, becoming alarmed, and scarcely knowing how to act, drove them all into a pen and locked them up. Their malady increased, and one by one they all died. At the same time, another farmer by the name of Burt, a neighbor of Mr. Ritchie, passed through a similar experience. He had four sheep, and all were taken with the same malady, dying in the course of a day or two. These also bore marks of bites and scratches. The general conclusions arrived at after consultation was that the flocks had been attacked by a mad dog, and that hydrophobia had caused their death. The symptoms were those of the disease beyond any possible doubt, and the two men set themselves to work to bring about an explanation of the trouble. A few days after a 2-year-old steer, owned by Mr. Burt, showed the same signs of the sickness, and bore marks of bites and scratches. The animal still continues to suffer, and appears gradually to be growing worse. Now thoroughly aroused, the two families set out a day or two ago and made a careful examination of the ground where the sheep had been pasturing. In one place in the field they found unmistakable signs of a struggle, and, guided by the snow, they tracked the footprints of a dog to a distance of two miles. Here they came to the house of a laboring man, and found the cause of all the trouble to be a worthless, starved-looking cur, that barked and snarled as they approached. The men carried guns, and it took but a minute or two to send a couple of bullets into the dog's carcass.—Cleveland (Ohio) Leader.

Russian Loss in the War with Turkey.

The Russian General Staff is publishing an official history of the Turco-Russian war. It appears from the reports collected for the work that 129,471 Russian soldiers of all ranks lie buried in the Balkan peninsula. Apart from that, of 120,950 men sent back to Russia as sick and wounded, 42,950 have already died. The total of dead makes thus 172,400 men, exclusive of those who have succumbed in Asia Minor.

Land and Water.

A school-board inspector asked a small pupil of what the surface of the earth consists, and was promptly answered, "Land and water." He varied the question slightly, that the fact might be impressed on the boy's mind, and asked, "What, then, do land and water make?" To which came the immediate response, "Mud."

THE gas wells of East Liverpool, Ohio, furnish a continual supply of light and heat to the town, and, as the gas costs nothing, the street lamps are never extinguished. It is used almost exclusively for fuel, being conducted into the grates and stoves by pipes. For twenty years this has been going on, and there are no indications that the supply of gas is giving out.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.

BEEVES	$7 75	@	9 50
HOGS	4 25	@	4 40
COTTON	9¾	@	10
FLOUR—Superfine	3 50	@	3 70
WHEAT—No. 2	1 12½	@	1 16
CORN—Western Mixed	44½	@	46
OATS—Mixed	27	@	34½
RYE—Western	60	@	63
PORK—Mess	9 87½	@	11 00
LARD	6½	@	6¾

CHICAGO.

BEEVES—Choice Graded Steers	4 50	@	5 00
Cows and Heifers	2 75	@	3 75
Medium to Fair	4 00	@	4 20
HOGS	3 75	@	4 25
FLOUR—Fancy White Winter Ex.	5 25	@	5 60
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	3 75	@	4 50
WHEAT—No. 2 Spring	91	@	92
No. 3 Spring	80	@	81
CORN—No. 2	32	@	33½
OATS—No. 2	23	@	27
RYE—No. 2	46	@	47
BARLEY—No. 2	77	@	80
BUTTER—Choice Creamery	22	@	25
EGGS—Fresh	14	@	15
PORK—Mess	8 00	@	9 75
LARD	6¼	@	6½

MILWAUKEE.

WHEAT—No. 1	99	@	1 01
No. 2	91	@	92
CORN—No. 2	32	@	34
OATS—No. 2	24	@	25
RYE—No. 1	45	@	46
BARLEY—No. 2	72	@	73

ST. LOUIS.

WHEAT—No. 2 Red Fall	1 02	@	1 03
CORN—Mixed	32	@	33
OATS—No. 2	26	@	27
RYE	47	@	48
PORK—Mess	9 75	@	9 85
LARD	6¼	@	6½

CINCINNATI.

WHEAT	1 00	@	1 05
CORN	36	@	37
OATS	26	@	30
RYE	54	@	56
PORK—Mess	9 75	@	10 00
LARD	6¼	@	6½

TOLEDO.

WHEAT—Amber Michigan	1 05	@	1 06
No. 2 Red	1 06	@	1 07
CORN—No. 2	35	@	36
OATS—No. 2	27	@	28

DETROIT.

FLOUR—Choice	5 00	@	5 25
WHEAT—No. 1 White	1 05	@	1 06
No. 1 Amber	1 04	@	1 05
CORN—No. 1	37	@	38
OATS—Mixed	29	@	30
BARLEY (per cental)	1 00	@	2 10
PORK—Mess	10 25	@	10 50

EAST LIBERTY, PA.

CATTLE—Best	5 00	@	5 25
Fair	4 50	@	4 75
Common	3 50	@	4 25
HOGS	3 70	@	4 55
SHEEP	3 50	@	[illegible]

AUBURN COURIER.

THEODORE REED, [illegible]

HORSE-BREEDING FOR GENERAL FARMERS.

The following is a portion of an address delivered by J. H. Sanders, of the National Live Stock Journal, before the Iowa Fine-Stock Breeders' Association at its late meeting in Des Moines:

It is one of the peculiarities of the business, that every man should exaggerate the value and promise of his own horse. To use a slang phrase, but a very expressive one, "I know how it is myself; I've been there." I have also seen many of my friends in the same condition, and have noted the effect upon their purses. The situation was tersely expressed by a friend of mine, who, upon a certain occasion, was listening to the glowing account a third party was giving of the wonderful promise of his little bay mare, that, "without any training to speak of, could trot in 2:50." My friend heard him through, then shrugged his shoulders, and said: "So you have a 2:50 trotter, have you, and you intend to have her trained? Well, now, if you will go and buy a cow that sucks herself, you will have two pieces of property about equally valuable." And my friend afterward found out to his cost that it was true.

We meet with cases of this kind almost every day; nearly every neighborhood has some of these horses of wonderful promise, that are supposed to show marvelous bursts of speed. Their unsophisticated owners imagine that they possess the favored one that is to "set the world on fire." They put the price up in the [illegible] dreds of dollars [illegible] training, buy books [illegible] weights and bits [illegible] number; talk horse on every street corner; [illegible]; read the Spirit of the Times, and Turf, Field and Farm more closely [illegible] read [illegible] royal [illegible] fortune [illegible] straight before [illegible] and they are traveling upon it with a trotting horse at a 2:20 gait. You see one of these enthusiasts [illegible] years [illegible] has perceptibly abated, he talks less [illegible] horse, and, when you ask about his wonderful trotter, he talks about the crops or the weather; when pressed he reluctantly tells you that his mare has gone amiss—a little lame or tangled in her gait—and he has concluded to give her a season's run at grass. You see him again next year. He has lost all interest in turf sports, and denounces them on account of their immoral tendency. He has quit taking the Turf and Spirit, because he thinks "the influence on his boys is not salutary!" And when you ask him what has become of his little bay mare, he looks absent-minded, and at once remembers that he has an urgent business engagement around the corner!

This is no fancy sketch; the shoe will fit hundreds of cases in various parts of the country—the legitimate result of the disappointment which, in nineteen cases out of every twenty, follows the exaggerated hopes of those who breed or train trotting horses. There is any amount of fun in the business, but precious little profit.

The conviction grows stronger upon me, with each year, as I review the previous season, that the breeding of fast trotting horses must be left to gentlemen of large means, who, by the selection of the choicest strains of blood in both sire and dam, and by superior facilities for breaking, training and selling, may meet with a measure of success that will warrant its continuance as a business.

This has for many years been true of the business of breeding running horses in this country, and it is each year being concentrated into fewer hands. A half-dozen breeding establishments furnish 90 per cent. of the race-horses that appear on the American turf; and general farmers cannot compete with such establishments with any prospect of success. They cannot afford to train for themselves; they have but few opportunities for selling; and even were they able to secure brood mares of the choicest strains, and to secure the services of the most renowned sires of racers, they would be at a decided disadvantage as compared with such establishments as those of Mr. Alexander and Col. Sanford.

If we confine our discussion to the question—How can we breed the horse that is best adapted to the farmer's use? I cannot too highly recommend a cross of the thoroughbred. I have on many occasions, with both voice and pen, advocated the use of good, stout thoroughbred stallions upon the half and three-quarter-blood French or English draught mares, that are becoming so plentiful throughout the Western States, for the purpose of producing a class of horses pre-eminently suited to the uses of the farmer. And I am fully convinced that such a course of breeding will be found much more certain to produce from these grade draught mares a horse especially adapted to the farmer's use than a further infusion of the cart or draught horse; because the thoroughbred possesses, in a marked degree, action, courage and energy—qualities in which these heavy draught horses are usually deficient. It is true that all thoroughbreds are not superior horses even in these respects; but, from the very fact that for centuries they have been bred with an especial view to to the race course, we find that they have been perfected to a wonderful degree in speed, stoutness, energy and resolution as a breed. But with these qualities there have been perpetuated, and perhaps intensified, some vices—a restless, nervous, excitable temperament—which certainly are not desirable qualities in a farmer's horse.

The various breeds of heavy draught horses, as a rule, are just the reverse of the thoroughbred in these respects. They are rather heavy, dull and sluggish; hence that which in its intensified form is a vice in the thoroughbred, being carried to the opposite extreme in the draught horse, has also become a fault; and for this reason no fears need be entertained as a general thing in the matter of disposition from a cross of these breeds. If a change occurs in the character of all, as a result of cross-breeding, it is almost certain to be for the better; although it is a well-known principle of breeding that the produce will sometimes inherit the disposition or temperament of one parent, and the form of the other; but, as a rule, there is a more or less perfect blending of the peculiarities of the ancestry, modified somewhat by [illegible].

If the farmer [illegible] breeder is to produce horses especially adapted to driving on the road, or for the trotting-course, from good road mares, I should very much prefer a well-bred trotting sire to any thoroughbred; because I believe that, for this purpose, our American trotter is the best horse in the world. In many cases I would prefer a good, stout, well-bred trotting stallion to a thoroughbred for getting general-purpose or farmers' horses; the choice depending entirely upon the class of mares that are to be used. But in all cases, whether a thoroughbred or a trotting sire be chosen to produce a farmer's horse, the qualities of the animal himself should never be lost sight of in our admiration of the breed or family from which he springs. It should never be forgotten that he is quite as likely to transmit his defects, if he has any, as his good qualities.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY.

Renovating Manuscript.—Take a hair pencil and wash the part that has been effaced with a solution of prussiate of potash in water, and the writing will again appear, if the paper has not been destroyed.

Oatmeal Porridge.—Into one quart of perfectly boiling water, into which a small teaspoonful of salt has been added, stir one teacupful of granulated oats, and let them boil actively two hours. Boil them in a double boiler, and do not take off the lid or stir them until the very last, when they may be stirred thoroughly and poured into a mold.

Oatmeal Blanc-mange.—Take one quart of boiling milk, slightly salted, or boiling water will do, and two heaping table-spoonfuls of oat flour, mixed in a little cold water to form a paste, and stir into the boiling milk, and continue to stir it twenty minutes. Turn it into a mold. May be eaten either cold or warm, with sugar and cream. Total expense, 14 cents.

Potato Puffs.—Take cold roast meat—beef, mutton, or veal and ham together—clean from gristle, cut small, and season with pepper and salt; also cut pickles, if liked; boil and mash some potatoes, make them into a paste with an egg and roll out, dredging with flour; cut round with a saucer; put some of the seasoned meat upon one half and fold the other like a puff; pinch neatly, and fry a light brown.

Stuffed Eggs.—Boil the eggs hard, cut them in two lengthwise, and remove the yelks, which chop, adding to them some cooked chicken, lamb, veal or pickled tongue, chopped fine; season the mixture, and add enough gravy or the raw yelk of egg to bind them. Stuff the cavities, smooth them, and press the two halves together; roll them in beaten egg and bread crumbs. When just ready to serve, dip them, in a wire basket, into boiling lard, drain, serve on napkin. Garnish with parsley or leaves, or serve with tomato sauce.

Dyeing Blue and Green.—For five pounds of goods, take one ounce of prussiate of potash, 3 cents' worth oil of vitriol, one-quarter pound of copperas; dip your goods first in the copperas water, then in the potash; then pour in the vitriol, part at a time; prepare the copperas in porcelain, and heat it boiling hot; the potash in brass; now put as many of your blue goods as you want green into the sugar-of-lead water, and from that to potash the same as the yellow, and rinse in cold water; thus you have a beautiful green.

Imitation Marble.—Make your bracket of smooth, seasoned pine, or other soft wood. Cover every part with white muslin or linen—the latter is best if pure white. Secure it firmly either with liquid glue or with small tacks. There must be no wrinkle or unevenness whatever. Now mix, a little at a time, the finest plaster of Paris, in which a little white glue has been dissolved, and apply with a brush and work it thin. It sets at once, and rapid work only will succeed. Continue to coat it till the surface is a clear, even marble white.

The Right Way to Brush Velvet.—The art of removing lint, dust and light matters adhering to velvet consists in the proper mode of managing the brush. Take a hat-brush—not too soft, but having the bristles elastic, and returning at once to their original state after being pressed aside—hold it firmly under the palm of the hand, in the direction of the arm, and with the bristles downward, and pressing them first gently into the substance of the velvet, then twist round the arm, hand and brush all together, as on an axis, without moving them forward or backward. The foreign matters will thus be drawn up and flirted out of the flock without injury to the substance of the velvet, and the brush must be lifted up and placed in a similar manner over every part required to be brushed. By this means velvet will be improved instead of deteriorated, and will last for years.

One-third of Chicago's population is German, and a nearly equal proportion of the public-school teaching is done in the German language. The Board of Education proposes to exclude all languages except English from the schools, unless taught simply as accomplishments, and the Germans are holding public meetings in opposition to the measure.

The silver ore about Leadville is deposited in a layer about sixty miles long and four or five miles wide. The depth at which the ore is reached varies. In some mines it is only four or five feet under the surface; in others it is 250 feet.

FREE ELECTIONS.

The Responsibility for the Failure of the Appropriation Bills—Speech of Hon. J. D. C. Atkins, Chairman of the Appropriation Committee.

Mr. Speaker: After our exhausting labors I promise that I shall detain the House but a few moments. Members will bear me witness that I'm not in the habit of occupying the floor long at a time, indeed as seldom as my duty will permit.

I regret that the conference committee upon this bill, which I regard the most important of the Appropriation bills, have utterly failed to [illegible] discussed the question in every possible phase of it, and we have found it impossible to come to any agreement.

What might have been effected, if the whole subject had been left to the conferees themselves alone, it is not necessary for me here to say; nor am I warranted in saying even that they could have come to a conclusion. But they each felt that there was a power behind them which would admit of no agreement. The disagreement between them is radical. As you know, Mr. Speaker, the House has demanded in, I may say, unmistakable terms free elections, untrammeled elections. The House has demanded also intelligent juries, and that jurors should not be subjected to test oaths while members of Congress coming from the Southern States and representing the majesty of the people upon this floor are not subjected to such oaths.

Upon glancing at the clock I am reminded that I must be very brief. I had designed to discuss these subjects somewhat more at length than I will now do on account of the limited time, and because I owe to my colleagues on the conference committee a courtesy which I am determined to pay. I must, therefore, be as concise as possible.

There were about 100 amendments to the Legislative, Executive, and Judicial Appropriation bill. We were enabled to agree in regard to most of these amendments. We did not agree to the salaries of the officers and employes of the Senate and House of Representatives. I believe it is but candid to say, however, that if we could have agreed upon the other points we might have agreed upon that.

Mr. Speaker, the deliberate action of this House in attaching the repealing clause to the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation bill of certain sections of the Revised Statutes has been respected and firmly maintained by the majority members of the House conferees. Upon so grave a question, one not measured by a mere appropriation of money, but involving the rights and liberties of American citizens, the majority of the House conferees did not hesitate a moment to resolutely stand by the injunctions and carry out the action of the body which created our functions. Whatever individual opinions of mere policy in the beginning I or any other Representative may have entertained, and upon which it is usual to exercise the broadest latitude and the most liberal discretion in conference, here is a question involving the most sacred rights and privileges of the citizen, around which this House has thrown the ægis of its protection and over which this committee has been intrusted a special guardianship, and one which they had no disposition to disregard.

The committee could not agree upon that feature of the bill which proposes to repeal the test oath now applied to Federal jurors. The importance of selecting juries from among the most intelligent of the people is too plain to admit of argument. The rights of property, the well-being of society, and the safety of the best interests of the State, require the abrogation of a law which drives intelligence from the jury-box and installs it with ignorance and prejudice.

What public or private harm can result from the repeal of such a law is to my mind inexplicable. Without its repeal the substantial ends of justice will continue to be defeated and the sanctity of the verdicts and judgments of juries and of courts will sink into ridicule and contempt. Surely, any law which becomes contemptible in its execution, and irritates rather than appeases and assuages popular sentiment is radically wrong and ought to be repealed.

The conference committee were equally unfortunate in not agreeing upon the provisions of the bill which repeal the laws authorizing the appointment of Supervisors and Deputy Marshals. So far as the Supervisors are intended to supervise elections and see that a fair count is had, I have heard no complaint. These officers are selected from both political parties, and, if confined to simply supervising elections to prevent fraud, there is not any special objection.

But when these officers are used for police purposes—to make arrests and otherwise interfere with the rights of citizens—there is a vital and fundamental objection. There is no warrant in the constitution for clothing Supervisors with police powers; that power is lodged with the States. But grant that the constitution clothes them with police duties and powers, why should they, aided by an army of Deputy Marshals, turn upon that constitution and rend it by defeating a fair election? That such has been the unvarying and oft-repeated result for years past is not seriously denied that I am aware of. These Deputy Marshals are invariably selected on account of their known partisanship and efficiency in manipulating and managing elections; they are appointed by the administration on account of their facility and readiness to work for the attainment of party ends.

Realizing that the language of the constitution (article 1, section 4) only confers the power upon Congress to decide when, where and how the elections of members of Congress may be held and conducted, but does not extend to the qualifications of voters except such as are made necessary under State constitutions to render a citizen eligible as an elector for members of the most numerous branch of the State Legislature this House and the country feel that the system of laws which should protect the sanctity of the elective franchise may be, and has been, converted into an ingenious enginery to deny and even overthrow the purity of the ballot-box, which lies at the base of the very citadel of freedom. All agree that in America a free, unobstructed and unintimidated ballot is fundamentally essential to free institutions, and any supervision which prevents its voluntary and unfettered exercise is at war with the spirit of the constitution, no matter though its empty forms may be complied with.

The practical effect of these laws has been to prevent fair elections and arouse in the public mind the gravest apprehensions for that purity and legality without which elective government becomes a simple mockery. If intimidated and the fear of arrest drive electors from the polls or force them to vote against their will, in what does the plebiscite of France which elevated Napoleon to be the supreme ruler of that country differ from our boasted rights of suffrage? No more violent assault was ever made upon the freedom of the elective franchise in France during that period of simulated liberty to which I have just referred, when to have refused to support this mock hero of republicanism was equivalent to incarceration in the Bastile, than was made in the great city of New York and other places on the day of the election in November last, when thousands of American citizens were arrested and imprisoned with the sole view of preventing them from voting. That such acts of tyranny so utterly subversive of liberty may not be repeated this House has taken its stand in the sacred name freedom, and demands the repeal of the laws under the cover of which these wrongs were perpetrated.

The right of the representatives of the people to withhold supplies is as old as English liberty. History records numerous instances where the common feeling that people were oppressed by laws that the lords would not consent to repeal by the ordinary methods of legislation obtained redress at last by refusing appropriations unless accompanied by relief measures.

This is not an ordinary affirmative proposition which is here sought to be engrafted upon this bill to be carried through by virtue of its momentum, but it is simply a relief measure, a repeal of a bad law.

The system of laws so ingeniously blended to obstruct the free exercise of the elective franchise, and against which the majority in this House is now arrayed, grew out of the military ideas which have dominated the legislation of this country since the war. But the time has now come when these measures of injustice and inequality, so long and so patiently endured, must give way to the advancing and well-grounded sentiment of free elections in all the States of this Union, and the equal rights of all men at the ballot-box.

As long as these relics of military domination remain upon the statute-book just so long will the public mind continue to be agitated. As long as statutory contrivances continue to be used to defeat the popular will, so long will the people struggle to wipe them out. As long, too as these measures encumber the statute-book economic questions of administration will retire before their presence. For what matters any given line of policy if the people are denied the right of suffrage, or if the chosen Representatives of the people are ejected by arbitrary power from the places to which they have been elected? We, therefore, submit the general disagreement, and now relegate to the House the trust imposed by the expression of its judgment and action.

Speaking for myself alone, it seems to me that the majority, having demanded the repeal of these iniquitous laws, have reached a point [illegible] retrace their steps. Whatever responsibility attaches to either house or either party, or the individual members of each, either the one or the other, for the failure of these appropriation bills, the people will fix it where it belongs. That the majority of this House should be blamed for demanding the repeal of statutes which are unjust and unconstitutional, is hardly probable. Believing, therefore, that the repeal is justified by every consideration of fairness and right, the majority can well afford to submit this issue to the verdict of the people.

Remarks of Mr. Southard, of Ohio.

As the mover of a part of these amendments, I desire to say that it was with the highest, the purest, and the most patriotic motives. The positions taken are incontestably right, and will be maintained until these odious laws cease to exist. Laws prescribing test oaths for jurors and those creating Marshals and Supervisors of elections, clothed with the arbitrary power of arrest without warrant, should cease to exist in this free country, and the polling-places of elections should be free from the presence of the military. As it has been in England since the dawn of her civilization, so shall it be in America. The Democratic party have considerately and firmly planted themselves upon these truths. They now appeal to the people of these United States, confidently trusting in their patriotism, their intelligence, and their integrity.

INDIANA LEGISLATURE.

Thursday, March 6.—Senate.—The Senate took up the report of the conference committee Legion the slative Apportionment bill, and, after some filibustering, passed it....The conference report upon the Interest bill was concurred in. The rate was fixed at 6 per cent., with contract rate of 8 per cent.... The bill was also passed to submit constitutional amendments to the people at the April election of 1880....The State House bill was referred to a special committee....The Congressional Apportionment bill occupied the remainder of the session.

House.—The reports of the conference committees on the Legislative apportionment and Interest bills were taken up and concurred in. ....The bill fixing the time of holding the election to ratify constitutional amendments was passed....Joint resolutions authorizing the Governor to return the Morgan raid claims to their owners, and authorizing the appointment of a competent person to survey the Kankakee, Calumet and Beaver rivers passed....The Congressional Apportionment bill was then passed after an exciting debate, in which personalities were indulged in by several members....Bills were also passed: Abolishing the office of Town Assessor; constituting a board of claims against the State; regulating the election of Supervisors; exempting $1,000 worth of property from execution; prescribing the form of deeds to be made by Sheriffs and Coroners.

Friday, March 7.—Senate.—The bill defining libel was taken up and the House amendments thereto rejected....The House amendments to the bill submitting the constitutional amendments to the people at the April election in 1880 were concurred in....The Senate refused to take up the Specific Appropriation bill, thus rendering a special session necessary....The bill to prevent foreign corporations from removing suits against them to the Federal courts by forfeiting their charters when they do so was passed....The State House bill was then taken up and passed.... The Governor sent in his appointment of officers in accordance with the bill reorganizing the benevolent institutions. The following are the nominations: President of Board of Trustees, John Fishback; Trustees, Blind Asylum, Joseph Ristine, William V. Wiles; Deaf and Dumb Institute, F. C. Johnson, Milton James; Commissioners of the Insane Asylum, B. F. Spoor, R. R. Tarlton. They were confirmed. ....The resolution authorizing the committee to investigate the benevolent institutions to draw pay for fifteen days after the close of the session was adopted.

House.—The bill creating a Court of Claims failed to pass, and the bill allowing cities of 7,000 inhabitants or under to surrender their charters was passed....House bills for the purification of the ballot-box and abolishing spring elections failed to pass....House bills were passed: Regulating the manner of presentation of claims against counties; requiring the county printing to be let to the lowest bidder. The bills limiting appeals to the Supreme Court and reorganizing the system of working roads failed....The House receded from its amendments to the Libel bill, and it is now a law. This bill makes it a crime to publish or utter a libel.

Saturday, March 8.—Senate.—The Senate adopted a resolution declaring that there was no need for a special session and proceed at once to the consideration of the General Appropriation bill. Filibustering then commenced, and was continued until it was evident a special session was necessary.... The following nominations were sent in by the Governor and confirmed: Manager of the Female Reformatory, Emma Roach; Trustees of the Asylum for Feeble-Minded Children, J. P. Early, Robt. Brown and B. F. Ibach; Trustees of the House of Refuge, Finley Bigger and R. F. Burnett....A bill was introduced providing that hereafter no legalizing acts should be introduced until the Appropriation bill is passed. ....The remainder of the session was taken up in filibustering and motions to bring up all sorts of bills, none of which prevailed.

House.—Bills passed: Providing for a change of time of holding elections in case constitutional amendments are adopted; authorizing railroad companies to extend their lines; exempting one month's wages of laboring men and mechanics from garnishment; regulating the rights of married women; abolishing one of the Marion Superior Courts; providing for the creation of ditch companies; changing the time of electing Road Supervisors, and abolishing the land tax....The Drake-Bearss contest was dismissed by the contestant.

Monday, March 10.—Senate.—The House resolution allowing the reading clerk of each house $1 per day extra was adopted.....The House Homestead and Exemption bill was taken up, and, after considerable discussion, was laid on the table and ordered printed.... The Governor's proclamation convening a special session of the Legislature to-morrow was read.....The following is the amount paid to members of the Senate: For mileage and per diem, $20,214; to employes, $8,688.50..... At 5 o'clock the Senate adjourned sine die.

House.—Several attempts were made to vote money to employes, but all motions of that kind were rejected....A concurrent resolution was adopted allowing $500 for the pay and mileage of witnesses in attendance upon the State House investigation.....New bills were introduced: Fixing the method of collecting the tax from fast freight lines; compelling the Auditor of State to pay all insurance fees into the treasury, and abolishing the technical motion for a venire de novo....The Speaker made a report of all warrants drawn by him. The amount paid to members, for per diem and mileage, is $40,081, and to employes for per diem, $9,936....At 3 o'clock Gov. Williams sent in a proclamation convening the Legislature in special session, beginning to-morrow at 9 o'clock....The House then adjourned sine die.

Tuesday, March 11.—Senate.—Lieut. Gov. Gray called the Senate to order, and all the Senators responded to their names except Messrs. Davenport, Moore, Streight, Weir and Winterbotham....A resolution, offered by Senator Reeves, continuing the officers of the regular session in their respective positions, was adopted with but little opposition. The rules of the regular session were also adopted....The Senate took up the House amendments to the State House bill and concurred in those reducing the tax levy to two cents and appropriating $200,000 for this year. The amendment appropriating $100,000 for next year was not concurred in, and a committee of conference was asked for....The House bill concerning settlements between county boards and county, township and school officers, was taken up....Pending discussion, the Senate proceeded to the Hall of the House to hear the Governor's message read.

House.—The House was called to order by Secretary of State Shanklin. The members were sworn in by Judge Niblack, of the [illegible] was introduced requiring the Auditor of State to pay 75 per cent. of all fees received from the insurance department into the treasury....The Senate bills amending the Divorce law and making it a misdemeanor to conceal mortgaged property and the House bills authorizing towns to levy a tax for the purpose of lighting the streets, amending the Code and amending the Road law were passed.

The Message.—The Governor's message was read before the two houses in joint convention. Below are the points of the document: "Eighteen Senate and twelve House bills make up the list presented to me, and by these the labor of the session would have been judged had it not been for the opportunity afforded by the extra session. An examination of these acts suggests that modern ideas contemplate a special session and the devotion of a large portion of the regular session to setting right the errors of agents of the people, relieving sureties on official bonds, changing judicial circuits to accommodate prejudices, fixing the times of holding court to accommodate the few at the expense of the many, and enacting under the forms of general laws acts which are necessarily special and local, leaving the interests of he whole State to fall into confusion." The message then comments on the legalizing acts, which propose to legalize a number of ordinances of a town, but so drawn as to leave ten of them to be legalized two years hence. By one act the Legislature appropriated $125,000 for its own expenses and by another created two new Clerkships. He also comments on the other laws passed. The Legislative Apportionment will receive the hearty approbation of the Executive as being just and fair to all affected by it. The message also notices the growing disposition to increase the ministerial duties of the Executive by conferring on him different appointments, leaving the Legislature nothing to burden their peace of mind. He urges the passage of a fair fee and salary bill, the appropriation bills with provisions for the completion of the new insane asylum and cell-house at the S uthern prison. He also refers to he importance of appropriating $62,000 to save the grounds of the State Board of Agriculture, and protect the sum already invested by the State. An appropriation for carrying on work at the new State House is asked for. The fees of expert witnesses are recommended to be fixed by law. The law allowing each county two free scholarships at the State University should be repealed. The subject of a board of pardons is again referred to, and the message concludes with an emphatic suggestion that the session be brief.

Wednesday, March 12.—Senate.—The Lieutenant Governor announced that the standing committees of the regular session would be reappointed....Senator Wood offered a joint resolution requesting the Legislature of Illinois to adopt some measure for the removal of the dam over the Kankakee at Momence, which was referred to a special committee.... A bill was introduced and passed, under suspension of the rules, repealing and re-enacting the act establishing an asylum for feeble-minded children. This was made necessary that an emergency clause might be added, which was omitted from the original bill....The House resolution asking Congress to pay the Morgan claims was passed....The State House Appropriation bill was finally disposed of on report of the conference committee, which recommends the following: A tax levy of 2 cents, appropriating $200,000 for this year and $100,000 for next year, if there be so much in the treasury unappropriated, and that State officers be authorized to issue bonds to pay any portion of the existing debt of the State that may become due.... The following bills were passed: Granting towns power to issue liquor license; prohibiting officials from being interested in any manner in public contracts; amending the Justice act.... The bill making a stockholder liable for twice the amount of stock held by him, and regulating the practice of medicine failed for want of constitutional majority, and the bill abolishing the office of State Geologist was laid on the table.

House.—Bills passed: Permitting felonies to be prosecuted on information when the Grand Jury is not in session, compelling railroad companies to destroy Canada thistles, on the line of their roads; amending the act creating Horse-Thief Associations; permitting for protection of sheep; and Senate bills permitting townships to levy tax to keep up a library donated to the township; permitting husband and wife to testify for and against each other. ....The report of the conference committee on the State House bills was concurred in. ingo corporations to redeem property sold for taxes; making a jury in civil cases consist of six members; giving laborers' claims a precedence in cases of voluntary assignments; giving defendants in libel cases the right to prove facts, but forbidding the proving of rumors; amending the Ditch laws; for the

A Funeral Postponed.

There died a few days ago in Paris a lady, whose decease was duly and legally attested. The funeral was fixed for Sunday afternoon, and when the hour arrived the undertaker made his appearance, and was placing the corpse in the coffin, when suddenly one of his assistants exclaimed that the body was warm. At the same moment the lady moved; her eyes opened slowly and regarded with a stupefied expression those who were standing around. The police were immediately apprised of the strange occurrence, and several doctors hurried in, hastily summoned. The lady was really alive, but was only temporarily snatched from the grave, and actually expired at the end of a few hours. Perhaps the shock on discovering her awful situation had proved too much for her enfeebled constitution. The funeral, after all, was only postponed for a day.

Financial Condition of Southern States.

The following table shows the indebtedness of the Southern States, the assessed value of property, and the rate of taxation:

	Bonded debt.	Total assessment property.	Tax rate per $1,000.
Virginia........	$51,934,374	$316,6[illegible],872	$ 5.00
North Carolina..	29,410,045	148,584,587	3.50
South Carolina..	11,6[illegible],909	123,1[illegible]	7.20
Georgia.........	10,444,500	226,2[illegible],710	5.00
Alabama........	11,207,929	117,[illegible]	7.00
Florida.........	5,373,100	30,[illegible],947	9.00
Texas...........	5,126,974	316,000,000	5.00
Tennessee......	24,399,000	221,3[illegible],000	1.00
Arkansas.......	14,511,148	94,0[illegible],000	10.00
Louisiana......	12,156,166	177,000,000	11.00

Of all these, except Georgia and Texas, Tennessee is in the most prosperous condition. War and reconstruction did her less damage than any others except Texas. Of all these States she is every way in the best position to be a leading State, and nothing but utter blindness and lack of statesmanship can prevent her taking the lead in agriculture, manufactures, and mining.—Nashville (Tenn.) American.

A farmer in Staunton, Va., possesses a valuable breed of ducks which can be taken to a distance of forty miles and sold, and will next morning be found at home.

ALL SORTS.

Fried Liver is the tender name of an Arizona mining village.

English steel pens are almost exclusively made by women.

Last year in North Carolina 28,081 sheep were killed by dogs.

Kansas City in 1878 erected 706 buildings, at a cost of $1,040,000.

There are nearly twice as many Greeks in Turkey as in Greece.

At Lyons, France, a book has been woven in silk, letter-press and all.

An anti-treating society at Rochester, N. Y., has a large and increasing membership.

Twenty-seven corpses were cremated in Milan last year, at a cost of about 75 cents each.

The attempt of the Chinese to become permanent residents of this country looks like a misqueue.

This is the coldest winter remembered in Ireland. Birds have been discovered eating each other.

At the present rate of increase of the Slav race, Russia will have 300,000,000 of inhabitants in fifty years.

An Alabama poultry-fancier has obtained a beautiful fowl by a cross between a guinea and a turkey.

Three-fourths of all the tobacco consumed in Great Britain is purchased by poor people in half ounces.

Watertown, N. Y., reports thirty-one snow-storms since Dec. 19 last, in which 120 inches of snow have fallen.

A rumor from Paris hints that mother-of-pearl will be used for the ornamentation of evening dresses.

The three men charged with the murder of Lord Leitrim have been released on bail and their trial is postponed.

The workingmen of New Zealand have petitioned the Assembly of that province to have the immigration of the Chinese checked.

In the Old Bailey Court, London, the atmosphere is so full of dirt that the wigs of the lawyers become grimy, like the wool of sheep.

It has been proposed in the Texas Legislature that the State fit up a printing office in which deaf mutes shall be employed on State printing.

It is proposed to celebrate at Pompeii this summer the 1,800th anniversary of the destruction of that city by an eruption from Vesuvius.

A negro in Houston county, Ga., bit the finger of one of his colored fellow-citizens some time ago. A bone felon formed in the finger, inflammation set in, and the bitten negro died.

Mr. Dane, of Indianapolis, preserved for many years the pen with which his grandfather wrote a sermon on commercial honesty, and now his son has used the same pen in forging a check.

A bill introduced in the Rhode Island Senate requires all ballots in national, State and town elections to be on clear white paper, and to be inclosed in envelopes before they are placed in the boxes.

A San Francisco man, whose business partner publicly charged him with overdrawing his account, etc., has obtained a verdict for $8,000 damages against him in a suit for slander, after a ten-days' trial.

Lewis G. Goldsmith, of Boston, proposes to make a tour of the world in a boat only eighteen and a half feet long, six feet wide and three feet deep. His wife and a mate will be his only companions.

Recent legal decisions in Wisconsin and Illinois hold that when the views of a parent and a teacher in a public school differ as to the studies of a pupil, the decision of the parent must prevail.

Since Feb. 20, 1878, eight Cardinals have died, one has become Pope, and there remain only fifty-five in all at present. In the next Consistory Pope Leo XIII. will fill the vacancies in the college.

The latest invention is that of a Pittsburgh (Pa.) man, who, from much service as pall-bearer at funerals, has turned his experience to practical account by inventing an apparatus for lowering bodies into the grave.

London Spectator believes it to be far less desirable that woman should directly vote upon political questions than that she should retain those delicate considerations in the minds and manners of men which she now requires.

Police surveillance in Berlin has become so stringent that masqueraders who assume the attire of knights, bandits and similar characters are forbidden to carry the swords and other weapons that belong to their costumes, without a special permit.

During a debate in the Maine Legislature, the other day, a lawyer sneeringly remarked to a journalist who had the floor that it was the function of editors "to ferret out rogues and thieves." Whereupon the editor mildly rejoined that it was "the function of lawyers to defend rogues and thieves."

Count Moltke has directed the General Staff to make the Afghan war a subject of special study. The German war office follows the events in Afghanistan with unremitting interest, and a particular department has been instituted to take notice of what is going on and to report regularly to Count Moltke upon the progress of the campaign.

The secret of a "haunted" house at Newburgh, N. Y., which was supposed to be the resort of a termagant wife's spirit, is revealed, and proves to be that two cats and a dog had been imprisoned in the attic, and the supposed supernatural noises were occasioned by their simply having it out with each other starvation, and, finally, grim death.

The mania for spending large sums in forts and big guns still obtains in Italy. The forts around Spezia are now receiving a supply of 100-ton guns cast at Turin, to be placed so as to command the entrance of the vast harbor. Spezia itself is a miserable hole, not worth the powder and shot intended to protect it, even if it could be protected against any of the larger European navies.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, MAR. 20 1879.

THEODORE REED, - - - Editor.

It was said recently that the Nationals would control the organization of the Lower House of Congress. The Plan failed.

* * *

A new prison bill has been introduced in the legislature, which among other things, provides for a settlement of the difficulties no existing at the northern prison.

* * *

The Lower House of Congress met and organized on Tuesday. 144 votes elected Randall Speaker. The old clerk sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper were re-elected. All members were present except James of New York.

* * *

An accident occurred at Elkhart last week, by the falling of a scaffold, resulting in three men being fatally injured, and four more receiving slight injuries. The fall was forty feet. Those fatally injured are Loren Frederick, John Mier and O. Stover.

* * *

Will it be said now by the advocates of a high rate of interest that a statute upon the subject would have no effect? The new law making eight per cent. the contract rate does not take effect until next July, yet all the banks of Fort Wayne commenced making loans at the new rate last Monday.

* * *

At Corydon, Harrison county, this state, the county commissioners were engaged for ten days in deciding as to the disposal of a petition for license to retail liquors. The remonstrants were victorious, and Corydon is still without a licensed saloon, to the great joy of the temperance advocates.

* * *

The COURIER should drop that Trustee's announcement for Franklin township.—Waterloo Press.

No Sir; we received pay for publishing the notice referred to six months, and have had no orders to change it. The township has paid for the notice, and the COURIER will continue it until ordered changed.

* * *

Milligan & Moore, the Huntington attorneys, have brought suit against Drs. William H. Meyers, Herschel V. Meyers, Geo. H. Ames, Geo. F. Ames, James Emmanuel, Hamilton J. Emmanuel and John J. Hamilton to recover pay for defending them on their recent trials for body snatching.—Ft. Wayne Sentinel.

The Messrs. Emmanuel should not be included in the above list, as their fee was paid.

* * *

The committee appointed by the Legislature to examine the books of Hon. Eb. Henderson, ex-Auditor of state, with regard to fees collected in the insurance and land departments of that office, after a thorough examination, has submitted a report fully exhonorating Mr. Henderson from the charge made against him. However, as there is doubts in the minds of some, concerning the law regulating the fees in the departments named, it is the desire of the ex-Auditor that the matter be tested in the courts, and we understand the legislature has taken action with that end in view.

* * *

The National members of Congress have made public a communication to the representatives of the old parties in the forty-sixth Congress, which says: "We propose to co-operate with you by electing as speaker either S. S. Cox, of New York, or James Philips, of Connecticut, W. D. Kelly, or Hendrick B. Wright, of Pennsylvania, Thomas Ewing, of Ohio, Greenbury L. Foot, of Illinois, William H. Felton, of Georgia, John W. Bright, or H. C. Young, of Tennessee, each of whom, by their public record on the financial question, has secured the confidence of our constituents, or any other member of the House of experience, competent to conduct its business, who by his previous adherence to our principles, has shown that in their behalf he can raise above former political affiliation."

* * *

Quite a number of people from DeKalb county attended Ingersoll's lecture on "Hell," at Ft. Wayne last Thursday evening. All agree that "Bob" is an eloquent and forcible speaker, and quite a number in the vicinity are believers in his doctrine, it we are allowed to judge from a free expression of opinion. The Ft. Wayne Sentinel in referring to the lecture, says: "He denounced the doctrine of future punishment in the strongest terms of which the English language is capable, and brought to his support inexhaustible resources of keen satire, biting ridicule, scathing invective, burning eloquence, brilliant wit and touching pathos. He declared that there is not one word or syllable in the Old Testament referring to future punishment or an eternal existence. He analyzed the doctrine of rewards and punishments in another world, and succeeded in demolishing it to his satisfaction and that of a goodly portion of his audience. There were many listeners present belonging to different orthodox congregations, who dissented entirely from his conclusions, but all admitted the matchless power of his eloquence, and most of them were frequently betrayed into hearty applause. The Colonel concluded his lecture with an eloquent peroration, which was certainly one of the grandest pieces of oratory ever delivered."

The Grubbs libel law, to which we referred last week as being the most disgraceful act passed by the regular session of the legislature, did not reach the governor in time for his signature, and failed to become a law. The special session has taken it up, and wisely made some modifications, by striking out some of the objectional clauses. As amended it has passed both houses, and when signed by the Governor will be ready [illegible] before the supreme court.

* * *

A Card to Taxpayers.

Many persons have been accustomed to delay payment of taxes until near the close of the time fixed by law and to send word to the treasurer to make out their receipt. This having been done through courtesy, some have proptly redeemed them, others have been dilatory, and thrown their obligations upon the treasurer, to his loss. I hereby announce that no more receipts will be made out except as persons are ready to make payment.

TAKE NOTICE:—Tax paying will positively close hereafter according to law—on the third Monday in April, and the first Monday in November.

DAN'L GONSER, Treas. DeKalb Co.

* * *

EDITOR COURIER:—Permit me through the columns of your paper to return my thanks to the scholars of distrct No. 6, Union-tp., for the beautiful album they presented me on the last day of school. I regard it as a token that my efforts to make my school pleasant and instructive have not been in vain. I also return my thanks to the parents of the district for the kindness they have shown me the past four months, and for the position (as teacher) which they placed me in. Owing to the position I was in—generally known to the people—I take it as more than ordinary kindness. I have reason to believe in the addage that "A friend in need, is a friend indeed." Hoping they will continue to battle for the right, I remain

Yours Resp'y.,

AMOS B. WALSWORTH, Teacher.

* * *

Grand Jurors.

The following is a list of the Grand Jurors drawn by the Board of Commissioners to serve during the next ensuing six months.

1st, District	John Fink. Jesse Brumback,
2nd District	Daniel Lintz, Franklin Moody,
3rd District	J. W. Boyle, Jacob Leighty,

Their successors for the next six months to serve until another selection shall be made are.

1st, District	Aron Ash, Geo. B. Henning,
2nd District	James Latson, Hezekiah Carnahan,
3rd District	Geo. H. Munn. Sebastian Te tison,

* * *

The following incident related by the Indianapolis correspondent of the Ligonier Banner, is proof that DeKalb's Representative is not backward in defending the interests of the State, and that he uses rather forcible language when his motives are attacked. We don't blame him.

"Mr. S. S. Shutt, of DeKalb, is certainly the right man on committee on claims. He deals with claims against the State just as if they were claims against himself. If just he wants them paid; if unjust or dishonest, he will never consent to pay them. On Friday last Mr. Shutt reported a claim back to the House and recommended that it be rejected. Mr. Taylor, of Daviess county, seemed to be somewhat interested in this claim. When the report of the committee was concurred in, Mr. Taylor arose in his seat and said: "Mr. Speaker, knowing what I do of your committee on claims, I verily believe that were Jesus Christ to present a claim from the throne of Heaven, your committee would report it back to the House with a recommendation that it be rejected." (Sensation.) Mr. Shutt, like a flash of lightning, replied from his seat, his hair standing erect and his eyes flashing fire: "The gentleman from Daviess county is d—d right. If the claim did not show some signs of justice or honesty on its face, it would surely be rejected."—(Great applause, with indistinct sounds of the Speaker's mallet in the distance.)"

* * *

The Congressional Apportionment.

We are loath to believe that gerrymandering influences have reached Ft. Wayne, notwithstanding an editorial in Monday's Sentinel, of that city seems to be of the "take water" nature concerning the reapportionment of the State for congressional purposes. The Sentinel well says that "the most important matter now awaiting action by the legislature is the apportionment of the state for congressional purposes," and immediately following the above sentence it adds, that "the democrats feel themselves in duty bound to repeal the infamous gerrymander adopted by the republicans several years ago, which disfranchised a large number of the citizens of the state." In our opinion the proposed gerrymander as published in the Sentinel, and which originated in the brains of the congressional aspirants of Randolph county, is more infamous, and will disfranchise a larger number of citizens, democrats as well as republicans, than the present outrageous and unreasonable apportionment, of which democrats have made so much complaint, and concerning which the democratic party in convention assembled declared:

"That the last apportionment of the State for legislative purposes was grossly unjust and dishonorable, and we demand that the next legislature, in apportioning the State for legislative purposes, as will be their imparative duty shall have regard alone to population and contiguity of territory."

Can it be said, truthfully, that the proposed 12th district, composed of the counties of Allen, Wells, Adams, Jay, Blackford and Randolph is contiguous territory? or, that less than 80,000 is a very great regard to population? The now 5th district, which was the subject of considerable ridicule during the last campaign, will compare favorably as to shape with the proposed 12th district, which might with propriety be [illegible] [illegible]-stick district. There [illegible] districts in the proposed apportionment equally as illshaped, among which we might mention the 5th, shaped somewhat like a Quaker hat, perhaps on account of the large Quaker element in that district. In the 3d and 4th districts "contiguity of territory" is lost sight of. The 7th district almost surrounds Marion county, so arranged no doubt, with a view to holding the district conventions at Indianapolis, in another district. The Sentinel says, "this bill will not be satisfactory to the democrats of this section of the state, and will be accepted by them with reluctance. We had hoped that the apportionment which was received with so much favor in northeastern Indiana, and which has already been published in these columns, would be adopted, and we still hope that it may pass." No, it will not be satisfactory, neither will it be justice to the party, nor the people, and should not be accepted by the democrats in the legislature. The democratic party cannot afford to assume the responsibility of such an apportionment, if the state is to be disgraced with a gerrymander, we prefer to leave the responsibility where it is now. We therefore urge upon the democratic representatives in the legislature to stand by the pledges made in the last state platform, and to the people during the last campaign; allow no lobbyists in the interest of Randolph or any other county, to dictate a policy that ought to ruin any party:—DEMAND JUSTICE, and consent to nothing else.

* * *

The following provisions contained in the new proposed fee and salary bill, we find in the State Sentinel. The salaries proposed are as follows:

Governor's salary	$5,000
Governor's secretary	1,500
Governor's clerk	600
Secretary of state	3,000
Deputy secretary of state	1,200
Clerk	700
Clerk of printing bureau	1,200
Auditor of state	1,500
Auditor's deputy	1,500
Auditor's insurance clerk	1,500
Auditor's land department clerk	1,500
Adjutant general	1,250
Quartermaster general	250
Treasurer of state	3,000
Treasurer of state's deputy	1,500
Treasurer of state's night watch	800
Attorney general	2,000
Attorney general's clerk	600
Superintendent of public institutions	2,000
Two clerks at $900 each	1,800
Law librarian	1,000
State librarian	1,200
State librarian's assistant	750

County clerks fees have been reduced from 15 to 20 per cent. from the old schedules.

County auditors' salary, $1,800, when the population of his county exceeds 15,000, and does not exceed 20,000—the additional sum of $125 for each 1,000 inhabitants in excess of 15,000, shall be allowed the auditor in addition to the salary of $1,800—and if the population of the county shall be more than 20,000, the auditor shall be allowed $100 additional for each 1,000 inhabitants in excess of 20,000. In the matter of fees, there is a reduction made of 15 to 20 per cent. One per cent is allowed for the management of the school fund.

The county sheriff's fees have been decreased from 15 to 25 per cent.

In case of doubt as to the proper charge to be made, the question is left to the decision of the circuit judge of the county.

Any officer who shall charge any fee contrary to the act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not exceeding $100, to which shall be added the amount of the fees unlawfully charged, with 8 per cent. added. County treasurers, recorders or coroners are not mentioned in the bill. There will of course be come changes made in the report, but it is supposed that it will pass both Houses as reported, without any very extensive alterations.

* * *

Troy Items.

—Sugar making is now in order.

—Fish Creek is on an old fashioned high.

—Mrs. Sapheona Campbell is very low with lung fever.

—In three weeks there has been three deaths and one birth in the Campbell family.

—Mrs. Catharine has just finished reading her Bible through for the eighth time. How many of the COURIER readers have done as well?

—Sebery Dennis and family started for Kansas last Wednesday, in which state they intend to make their future home.

—There was a reunion of the McClellan family last Sabbath, in honor of their daughter, who has since departed for the west. There were present twelve children, fourteen grand-children, six sons-in-law and one daughter-in-law, one son and one daughter-in-law and three grand children not present. They report a good time and lots of good things to eat. May they all live to enjoy many such times. S. K.

Indigestible Bread.

The reason why adulterated baking powders make bread and biscuits very indigestible, is because they harden the gluten of the wheat and render it less soluble. The purity and perfect combination of Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder makes all articles easy of digestion.

* * *

The new State House bill, which has been signed by the governor, provides for a tax levy of two cents on each $100 in each of the years 1879 and 1880, and appropriates from the general fund $200,000 for use during the present year, 100,000 payable before May 1, and $100,000 before September 1, and for the 1880, $100,000. It prohibits any officer from borrowing money on the credit of the State, except through the governor, auditor and treasurer of the State, who shall have power to borrow money on the credit of the State for the purpose of paying any existing loans, as such loans may fall due. These loans amount to $910,000, and are called "the temporary loans."

* * *

Auburn Schools.

Pupils neither absent nor tardy during the month ending March 7th, 1879.

HIGH SCHOOL.

M. I. Hoffman, Jas. McClellan, A. Rowland, John Funk, Curtis Reed, Rebecca Shull, Ada Spangler.

SCHOOL OF MISS POWERS.

Flora Hoffman, George McKay, Bertie Robbins, Ida Swihart, Louie Henry, Albert Houghton, William Stameis, Ida Stahl, Warren Jacques.

SCHOOL OF MISS DANIELS.

James Hoffman, John Zimmerman, Marion Willis, Wm. Hoffman, Katie Otto, Frances Otto, Ada Spake, Frank Spake.

SCHOOL OF MISS CLARK.

Charley Rice, Charley Spake, Lizzie Treesh, Bertha Shaffer, Laura Hoffman, Josie Ashley, Lena Cloy, Willie Culberson, Auston Houghton, Alda Shaffer, Clara Walborn, Mary April, George Clark, Lizzie Ashley.

SCHOOL OF MISS MCTIGH.

Jennie Jones, Cora Smith, Blanche Peterson, Theresa Ashley, Luther Treesh, Lewis Willis, Ada Brandon, Alvin Sebring, Elis Somers, Jay E. Jones, John Clark, George Mitchell, Oliver Felman, Frank Elson, Eddie Klotz, Emmet Ensley.

SCHOOL OF MISS TRITCH.

Frank Campbell, John Slifer, Clay Jones, Katie Bergh, Eddie Fox, Eva Ensley, Charlie Hoffman, Estella Hague Clyde Sheets, Jona Treesh, Calvin Smith, Reba Houser, Laura Ober, Hattie Shearer, John Wolf.

M. SEILER Sup't.

* * *

St. Joe.

—Oh, the snow, the beautiful snow.

—John Widney is still confined to his room but is reported some better.

—J. P. Widney, of Auburn, is visiting his son, O. H. Widney.

—War on a small scale was declared in St. Joe on Monday, for further particulars inquire of O. H. or D. Young.

—J. R. don't like the way Joe used his saw logs, picking them up one by one and carrying them off the log way. Jim should not purchas such pipe stems for saw timber if he does not wish to have them thrown around like hand spikes.

—Lost about two weeks ago by J. J. White, two dogs. (hounds.) The last heard from them was in Union township, where they had caught a fox. Jake is badly worried over the loss of his dogs, and anyone knowing the whereabouts of a yellow and white dog with lop ears, will confer a favor by reporting the same.

—H. thinks that two dollars is a good round price for the calves, but then he paid it like a man, and now, that charging is all the go he would like to have settlement for use of brass kettle for the last 16 years at the rate of 50 cents per year.

—We are happy to inform the citizens of St. Joe and vicinity that Dr. Ed. White has located in the place and will attend to all calls. A specialty is made of chapped hands and other roughness of the skin. Any one in need of his services will find him at the store of Leighty and Bishop, between the hours of 7 a. m. and 9 p. m.

—Hicksville parties cannot Bulldose our Joe in the measurement of lumber, no use to try, Joe knows his buisness.

—R M. Lockhart of Waterloo, has some parties here buying and packing apples, for which they pay 25 cents per bushel, they have been here but a few days but have succeeded in getting 100 barrels or more, notwithstanding the very bad roads.

—We understand that the store at Concord has changed hands, F. B. Dragoo stepping out and Frank Herrick stepping in. It is understood that Frank will adhere strictly to the cash business. A good resolve if only lived up to. Already Frank has the appearance of a merchant, shiney boots and earsplitting collar already adorn his person.

—M. Bishop and family visited friends at Auburn during Saturday and Sunday.

—Gunsenhouser, Moody & Maxwell are shipping a lot of hickory timber from this station, they have already shipped five car loads and have some fifteen or twenty other loads which will be shipped soon. A nicer lot of lumber we never saw than is being shipped by the above named gentlemen.

A. A. A.

1879 SPRING 1879

Messrs. Root & Company's

CARPET DEPARTMENT!

Our constantly increasing business in this department warrants our offering to the public this spring a much larger variety and assortment than ever before.

PRICES THIS SPRING

Are lower than ever before, and parties who have delayed refurnishing their houses can now do it with economy and a certainty that they will never buy carpets any cheaper than they are at present.

The Choicest Designs Tapestry Brussels Carpets, 75c., 85c., 90c., $1.00 per yard.

The Choicest Designs Extra Super Ingrain Carpets, 75 cents per yard

All Wool Ingrain Carpets, 50, 60 and 65c.

Single and Double, Cotton Chain Carpets, 25, 30 and 35c per yard.

Hemp, Cottage, Rag and Dutch Carpets, 12 1-2, 15, 18 and 20c per yard.

New lines of Upholstery Goods, Curtain Goods, Floor Oil Cloths, Mattings, Rugs, Stair Rods, Cornices, Fixtures, Shades, Hollands, Picture cords, Tassels, &c.

N. B.—Parties desiring any repairing done to Curtains and Cornices, or to have Carpets relaid, will find our MR. BARRETT a competent and superior workman, who will attend promptly to any orders we are favored with.

ROOT & COMPANY,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER AND SPECIAL FLAVORING EXTRACTS.

Eminent Chemists and Physicians certify that these goods are free from adulteration, richer, more effective, produce better results than any others, and that they use them in their own families.

DR. PRICE'S UNIQUE PERFUMES are the Gems of All Odors.
TOOTHENE. An agreeable, healthful Liquid Dentifrice.
LEMON SUGAR. A Substitute for Lemons.
EXTRACT JAMAICA GINGER. From Pure Root.

STEELE & PRICE'S LUPULIN YEAST GEMS.
The Best Dry Hop Yeast in the World.

STEELE & PRICE, Manf'rs, Chicago, St. Louis, and Cincinnati.

For letter-heads, bill-heads statements, or any kind of fancy printing call at this office.

45 Years Before the Public.

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

CELEBRATED

LIVER PILLS

FOR THE CURE OF

Hepatitis, or Liver Complaint,

DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.

Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.

PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increases on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.

AGUE AND FEVER.

DR. C. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

For all bilious derangements, and as a simple purgative, they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

The genuine MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signatures of C. MCLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrappers.

Insist upon having the genuine DR. C. MCLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

W. H. Dills,

ATTORNEY AND NOTARY. Auburn DeKalb County Indiana.

Drs. Cowan & Allyn,

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, OFFICE in Case's block, Auburn, Indiana.

PENSIONS!

Under the new Pension law, soldiers wounded or injured, even if but slightly disabled, can obtain pension back from day of discharge. One of our firm in Washington to give personal attention to all claims before the departments. Do not delay, but write at once. Send stamp for our new soldiers circular.

W. [illegible] & Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Oldest Claim Agency in the U. S. [illegible]

Land for Sale.

The undersigned offers eighty acres of good land (50 acres cleared) one mile east and two miles south of Butler, for sale at a bargain. For further information inquire at my residence, one mile east of Butler.

9-4w PETER HAAS.

Discovered.

Dr. Price, by a new process extracts the subtle flavor from every delicious fruit and aromatic. In his Flavoring Extracts, the characteristic taste and freshness of the real fruit is preserved. Ladies that wish something superior in the way of flavoring extracts, should purchase Dr. Price's.

AUCTIONEER.

JAMES N. McBRIDE

Offers his services to attend sales any place in DeKalb or adjoining counties. He has had several years experience, and believes he can give general satisfaction. Any letters addressed to him at Waterloo, Ind., will receive prompt attention, as will all orders left at the office of John Butt, Justice of the Peace, at Waterloo, Indiana. 11-m.

People Want Proof.

There is no medicine perscribed by physicians, or sold by druggists, that carries such evidence of its success and superior virtue as Boschee's German Syrup for severe coughs, colds settled on the breast, consumption, or any disease of the throat and lungs. A proof of that fact is that any person afflicted can get a sample bottle for 10 cents, and try its superior effect before buying the regular size at 75 cents. It has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderful cures are astonishing everyone that uses it. Three doses will relieve any case. Try it. Sold by C. H. Hoyt.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe, with full directions for preparing and using, in German, French, or English. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. Sherar, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y. 6-eow 6-m.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous

—Inshavogue! Inshavogue!

—See the "Bould boy of '98."

—Tom Somers has a new sign.

—Inshavogue next Monday evening.

—Secure your tickets for Inshavogue.

—For doors, sash and glass, go to Kiblinger & Co's.

—For building hardware go to Kiblinger & Co's.

—Go to McQuiston & Ralston's for good trunks—cheap 10-8w.

—Bottom prices on new carpets at Schaab, Beugnot & Co's.

—Preparatory services this week at the Presbyterian church.

—Mr. O. H. Hoyt, the new druggist, visited Toledo this week.

—Mrs. Robbins is assisting her husband in the Auditors office.

—Four tin pails and one dipper for one dollar at Kiblinger & Co's.

—Rare treat at Ensley's Hall next week. Tickets at Willis & Co's.

—Carpet warp in all colors and at low prices at Schaab, Beugnot & Co's.

—Buy the Kidder barn door rollers the best in use, Kiblinger & Co. sole agents.

—Go to Kiblinger & Co. for tinware, they are selling at manufacturers prices.

—Harry Rush and family returned Monday last from an extended visit to Angola.

—Kiblinger & Co. sell hardware.

—Out of 856 cases on the docket at the beginning of the last term, 145 were disposed of. Well done.

—Mens' hats at from 30c to $3.50 boys hats at from 25c to $1.00 at McQuiston & Ralston's. 10-3w.

—The largest stock of clothing ever brought to Auburn just received at Schaab, Beugnot & Co's.

—Hemp carpets 4 and 6 yards for $1. Stair carpets—Ingrain carpets at McQuiston & Ralston's. 10-3w.

—A large spring stock of men's youth's and boys clothing just received at Schaab Beugnot & Co.

—Mitch Houston killed a beef recently that dressed 1614 pounds. Not so bad for a three-year old.

—There will be communion service at the Presbyterian church next Sabbath morning at the usual hour.

—Judge Peterson acquitted himself nobly during the last term of court. His rulings gave general satisfaction.

—Felix A. Vincent and troupe, at Ensley's Hall every night this week. Tickets for sale by Willis & Co.

—The Fort Wayne banks reduced the rate of interest on loans to eight (8) per cent., commencing last Monday.

—Remember Dr. Elson's office days, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

—Will open next week, fruit of the loom bleached muslin at 9c by piece or 9½c by yard.
10-3w. McQuiston & Ralston.

—Those desiring millet seed can purchase the pure seed of Mr. Rummel, superintendent of the poor farm. 12-4w.

—Clothing—McQuiston & Ralston are receiving mens', youths' and boys' clothing in new styles and at low prices. 10-3w.

—There is talk of another dry goods and clothing store on the north side of the public square. Opposition is the life of trade.

—Judge Lowry maintained his wide spread reputation for ability, during his occupancy of the bench in this county last week.

—Choice roasted coffee 18c per lb. Eight cakes of soap for 25 cents. Four bars Kirbs soap for 25 cents at McQuiston & Ralston's. 10-3w.

—The Greenback meeting was not a success, owing to the small number present the speech was deferred until some future time.

—Charley Baxter thought he had damaged Phillips about $10. worth but the jury thought differently on the evidence submitted.

—The lectures on "horse" were not appreciated by our citizens, about a half dozen persons constituted the audience each evening.

—Several members of the bar of this county are now at Indianapolis, some favoring and others opposing a change in this judicial circuit.

—Chenille shawls the latest out, beautiful wraps for ladies' spring and summer wear. Call at Schaab, Beugnot & Co's. and examine them.

—In the Phillips—Baxter damage suit, the jury rendered a verdict in favor of the defendant. We shall expect the Press as usual this week.

—A large lot of hemp and ingrain carpets of the latest patterns just received at the mammoth dry goods establishment of Schaab, Beugnot & Co.

—According to the Rochester Sentinel, W. D. Rickel formerly of this place is still looking for the fellow who shot and maimed his valuable and intelligent dog.

—The great six days walk at New York closed last Saturday night. Rowell, the Englishman wins, and is declared the champion of the world.

—The trial of Tate, the murderer commenced at Indianapolis last Monday. The great wealth of the prisoner will probably have some influence in the trial.

—Inshavogue, or, the "Bould boy of '98," at Ensley's Hall next Monday evening, to be followed by other famous plays every evening during the week.

—The Buckeye clothes wringer only $5.00. The best in the world. For sale by Kiblinger & Co.

—Examine Schaab Beugnot & Co's., new stock of carpets before buying, as they can give you the best goods for the least money of any store in Northern Indiana.

—Ladies will do well to call at Schaab Beugnot & Co's and examine their new stock of ladies fine dress goods for spring and summer wear. The new styles are beautiful.

—The largest stock of spring styles of Hats ever brought to DeKalb county just received at Schaab Beugnot & Co., at prices far below all competition call and see their goods and get their prices before buying.

—Children's meeting will be held in the M. E. Church next Sabbath evening the services will consist of singing and various exercises by the children. All young and old invited.

—Read the "Auctioneer" card of Mr. J. N. McBride, in another column. Mr. McBride is an auctioneer of considerable experience, and gives good satisfaction to those who employ him.

—Just received at McQuiston & Ralston's a car load of No. 1 stoneware—Jars from one-half gallon to eight gallons. Stone churns from five to eight gallons. Milk pans etc, at McQuiston & Ralston's. 10-8w.

W. H. Kiblinger & Co. has just received a new stock of bird cages of the very latest styles and designs, which they are selling very low.

—We call the attention of the readers of the Courier, to the advertisement of A. S. Lauferty & Co, proprietors of the C. O. D. Clothing House at Fort Wayne. We have known Mr. Lauferty personally for a number of years, and feel assured that those dealing with him will get value received.

—Mr. Geo. Ensley and Mr J. E. Shilling have secured the right for ten counties in the separator, which has been on exhibition in Auburn for several weeks. The machines will be manufactured in Auburn. Another step in the right direction, encourage home manufacture. We wish the new firm success.

—Mr. Nicholas Ensley is again in the market with a full line of dress goods of the leading styles for ladies. He is also offering special inducements in millinery goods for spring wear. The ladies will not regret a visit to his establishment, whether they want to buy or not. Remember the place, east of the public square.

—Mr. Henry Brown, east of town, and Mrs. Geo. Clark, west of town, are both reported dangerously ill.

Later.—Both the parties above have since died. Mrs. Clark will be buried in the Auburn cemetery to-day at 2 o'clock. We are not advised as to the time of Mr. Brown's burial.

—List of unclaimed letters in the post office at Auburn Ind. March, 15, 1879

Lorana Burtles, John Crouse, Joseph Dean, Samuel Filton, Levi Gearte, A. J. Harrington, N. Lockwood, James Oggard, John Stenry, P. W. Vannando, Henry Welch, Mrs, Dan Welch.

Jos. Rainier, P. M.

—Our enterprising manufacturer, Mr. James Anderson, is again in the market with a lot of first class carriages and buggies of his own manufacture, which he will sell at low figures, and on one year's time with approved security. He defies any shop in Northern Indiana to furnish better material than is used in his work. 9-9w

—A free book of nearly 100 large octavo pages for the sick. Full of valuable notes on scrofula; diseases of the breathing organs; diseases of men; diseases of women; aches and pains; heart troubles; and a great variety of chronic diseases, with evidence that in most cases that these diseases are curable. Sent for one stamp. Address

Murray Hill Pub. Co.,
No. 129 E. 28th St., N. Y. 11-4m.

—A lecture is announced this week for the Rev. Joshua Ervin, to be delivered in the M. E. Church, on the evening of March 28th, the lecturer receives no pay, and consents to let half the proceeds go to the public schools to be used in the purchase of books of reference. This is a move in the right direction, let Mr. Ervin's example be followed by the other ministers of the town.

What Zimmerman of the Valparaiso Messenger thinks of the Grubbs libel law. "We rise to ask the Indianapolis Sentinel whether it is a fact that the Legislature of Indiana has actually passed the Grubbs libel law. If so every member who voted for the infamous gag law ought to be kicked to death by Rev. George C Harding's jackass. "Put beggars on horseback, and they will surely ride to the devil." We spit upon such legislators."

Commissioners' Proceedings.

Liquor licenses were granted to Chas. Linkenholt and August Nass of Garrett, and Joseph E. Beugnot, of Auburn.

In matter of application for damages by Joseph Pepple, of Butler-tp., the Board ordered a continuance for want of proof.

Claim of Ezra M. Stahl & Co. for infringement on copyright, dismissed.

The superintendent of county property ordered to procure posters for the protection of public grounds and buildings.

Ordered that the court room shall not be used for public meetings.

The room in the north-west corner of the court house, on 1st floor, formerly occupied by Mr. Guy Plumb, and now by Mr. Moody, is assigned to the Sheriff, and shall be known as the Sheriff's office. The room in the southwest corner on the second floor, is ordered to be arranged for the use of witnesses during court.

Contract for the construction of a bridge in Newville-tp., awarded to S. H. Bartlett, at the rate of $1.63 per lineal foot.

Contract awarded to H. Griswold for repairing Webster bridge in Stafford-tp.

On petition of Horatio S. Hine certain lots, streets and alleys in the town of Lawrence, were declared vacated.

On petition of Charles Holk, certain lots, streets and alleys in the town of Garrett, were declared vacated.

Mr. W. H. Dills appointed attorney for the Board of Commissioners, and county Auditor to receive pay at the rate of $1.00 for each day the Commissioners are in session, with such extra allowance as the Board may deem proper for litigated cases.

Mr. J. B. Boyer appointed constable for Franklin-tp.

Petition of Parlee Stimley for transfer of license fee, to be applied on new license, not granted.

Contract for rendering medical services to the poor of the county, awarded to Dr. Jared Spooner for one year.

At a special session held March 15th, 1879, the Board purchased of William Lessig, administrator of the estate of Enos Weaver, dec'd., for the sum of $3,100, sixty-five acres of land for the use of, and in addition to the farm and asylum for the poor.

Ambrose Johnson et al. petitioners for ditch in Richland-tp., move for dismissal at the cost of the petitioners. So ordered by the Board.

Samuel Howver et al. petitioners for ditch in Butler-tp., move for dismissal at the cost of petitioners. So ordered by the Board.

Hugh Wyatt et al. petition for ditch in Union and Richland-tps. Messrs. J. J. VanAuken, Wm. Whetsel and Joseph Shryock appointed viewers.

John M. Lawhead petitions for ditch in Franklin-tp. Messrs. J. J. VanAuken Henry Hood and J. L. Harris viewers.

Albert Spurgeon et al. petition for ditch in Keyser and Butler-tps. Messrs. J. J. VanAuken, E. S. McDowell and T. C. Elson viewers.

Geo. Clark et al. petition for ditch in Keyser-tp. Messrs. J. J. VanAuken, R. N. Crooks and Frank Francis viewers.

Wesley Jackman et al. petition for ditch in Smithfield-tp. Messrs. J. J. VanAuken, Henry McClish and J. W. Clark viewers.

Messrs. J. J. VanAuken, Hoffman and Beard, viewers, report on ditch petitioned for by Wm. Boyd et al., in Wilmington-tp.

Final report of Messrs. VanAuken, Wisel, Shaffstall and McClish, viewers on ditch in DeKalb and Steuben Co's.

Final report of Messrs. VanAuken, Blair and Swartz, viewers on ditch in Franklin and Troy-tps.

Final report of Messrs. VanAuken, Blair and Swartz, viewers on ditch in Stafford-tp.

Messrs. VanAuken, Beard and Hoffman, viewers, make report on ditch in Union and Wilmington-tps., whereupon D. D. Metcalf makes application for damages, and a review is ordered to be made by the viewers above named.

Messrs. VanAuken, Hoffman and Beard, viewers, report on ditch petitioned for by Geo. D McGowen et al., in Union and Wilmington-tps.

Messrs. VanAuken, Hoffman and Beard, viewers, report on ditch petitioned for by Levi Bowman et al in Union and Wilmington-tps.

Messrs. VanAuken, Clark and McClish, viewers, report on ditch petitioned for by John Strack et al., in Smithfield-tp., whereupon diverse persons file petitions for damages, and the cause is ordered continued until the special session of the Board in April.

Petitions for the location of ditches filed by the following parties were ordered continued until the April special session of Commissioners Court, to-wit: J. D. Rowley, Butler-tp.; Geo. W. Feagler et al. Richland-tp.; Samuel Goodwin et al., Union-tp.; R. M. Lockhart, Franklin-tp.; John A. Hartman, Richland-tp.; Daniel McClellan et al., Troy-tp.; H. Zerkle et al., Union-tp.; Jacob H. Smith et al., Troy-tp.

Benjamin Kiplinger et al petition for highway in Smithfield and Franklin-tps. Messrs. Geo. W. Downs, Emanuel Neidig and Abram Buss appointed viewers.

Wilson S. Dancer et al. petition for highway in Jackson-tp. Messrs. Washington Teeters, Daniel Swihart and T. C Elson viewers.

Messrs. John Coy, John Osborn and Wm. Nelson, viewers of a proposed highway in Butler-tp., report favorable, whereupon Alonzo Lockwood pititions for damages, and Messrs. James McCosh, Charles Kelley and Daniel Kepler are appointed viewers to assess damages

B. M. Deniott et al. petition for highway in Concord-tp. Messrs. John Campbell, Charles Rempis and David Beery viewers.

Petition filed by Lewis Weaver for location of public highway in Jackson-tp., withdrawn.

Public highway established in Wilmington-tp., on petition of George W. Devor et al.

Messrs. Kelly, Bowman and Walker, viewers appointed to assess the damages which D. McClellan and M. & M. Thompson would sustain in consequence of a location of a highway petitioned for by Wm. Waller et al., in Troy-tp., filed their report, assessing the damage as follows: D. McClellan, $25.00; Maud Thompson, $15.00, which amounts are ordered to be paid out of the county treasury, and the highway is declared established.

THE OTHER SIDE.

That Increase of Legal Business.

Mr. Editor:—The article published last week in your paper and also in the Republican, as taken from the Ligonier Banner, does not show the true inwardness on that subject, nor in fact does it, as you say, "fully explain the cause of the over-burdened docket in the judicial circuit, &c." The cause and true inwardness of the whole thing is that Judge Tousley feels to-day as he said he did two years ago last summer, when he was a candidate for the office he now holds, that he does not want to work so hard, that he is old and poor and must have something to be supported upon. It was given him because he had the ability and experience over one of inexperience and doubtful ability, in a large republican circuit, who was the candidate of a ring. This ring, with their candidate the people ignored, have by pandering to the fancied infirmities of the Judge succeeded in winning him to their side in which they now seek to obtain the same prize—the judgeship they did then, by making a new circuit of the counties of Steuben and DeKalb, and take Whitley county away from Judge Long, of Warsaw, and give it to Tousley with Noble. Now, Mr. Editor, let me ask in passing if it would be just right to impose on the people of Whitley one they did not elect, nor want, over one they have elected, and are getting along well with? The people there are proud of Judge Long, and Judge Long is satisfied with his circuit and can readily do all his business. You say that the dockets in the circuits are over-burdened. That is not the fact. I am credibly informed that the Noble docket is not over-burdened, but is less than it has been for years, and that its term of four weeks will not be consumed in disposing of its business. The Steuben court commenced the first Monday of last month; Judge Tousley opened on Tuesday, and on Saturday left Angola, leaving Mr. Powers to receive the report of the Grand Jury and then adjourn court, but the lawyers, by consent, permitted one or the other to occupy the bench, and they ran court the most of the next week for fun, involving the county in a large expense, and the most of the business has to be done over again. Now, how is this county. Our court closed last Saturday with about two hundred cases standing over, notwithstanding, one case occupied three days of the term. Mr. Peterson held the term of court commencing on the fourth day, so that Mr. Peterson held only about twelve days, besides the three days above alluded to, yet he dispensed with over 150 cases. Let me inquire, and if you and your readers want to know the truth, you inquire, if there are not of the 200 cases on our docket, one fourth of them probate matters, which require no litigation, but as a form of law must go through the court to give validity to them. Then at least one-half of the whole number are cases that either will never come to trial, or are cases which are being kept from going into judgments because the defendants are not ready to pay nor to have their property sold, and the remaining fifty may have to be tried upon issues of fact and law, and could be rattled out of the way at the rate of at least three or four per day.

Good lawyers who have a large amount of business in our court, say that a one month term of court with an expeditious judge can clean up the whole blockade of our docket. The law authorizes the judge to have an extra session, but Tousley says he will not call one. He says in effect that the tax-payers and litigants may suffer, he will do nothing to help them out. He wants them to go to the annual expense of $3,000 per year in creating a new judge and prosecutor, when with the extra labor of a month or two which he has, and his salary going on at the same time, he will not turn his hand to obviate this suffering and expense. Even if he would not hold the court, another judge can be obtained under the law, at the rate of eight dollars per day to the state, and even if the whole summer vacation would be consumed, here in DeKalb, it would cost less than five hundred dollars per year.

One other thing it might be well to mention it is this: it can be proven that some of the lawyers in the ring who now want a new circuit, and feel so terribly bad about Tousley's health, and who are itching for the honor of the office, have declared they would blockade the docket, wouldn't try their cases so that it would make a big showing to the legislature, so they could get a new circuit and "get rid of old Tous."

In the fore part of the winter at the commencement of the regular session of the legislature, a great effort was made to induce that body to grant that which is now asked in the article you published. The ring sent down their democratic attorneys who did all they could against Tousley two years ago, but they were repulsed by the legislature, backed up by what our representatives knew to be the voice and wishes of the people. So now that we have an extra session of the legislature they kept Tousley away from our court, got him to write, and drive from Albion to Ligonier the worst day this spring, to have the article published you copied. And not satisfied with this, they (the ring) in order to allay opposition have offered and tendered the judgeship, in case of getting a new circuit, to almost every lawyer in the two counties. Every rag-tag and bob-tail of a lawyer has been approached by one member or the other of this coterie. In fact they even went farther, and had Judge Tousley to come over here last week, and what he could not do by coaxing he endeavored to do by brow beating the opposition into a consent to his and their scheme. But he went home a sadder and madder man, convinced that he did not own the consciences nor control the acts of others.

Lex.

Hazzard in Limbo Again.

The irrepressible Geo. Hazzard, the whilom Auburn banker, and hero of about 100 writs, turned up in the city again yesterday, reporting that he had been out to Colorado, and was thinking of emigrating to Arizona. Hazzard is a fellow of infinite check and assurance, and is cordially detested by Clerk Fishback, of the United States courts. Hazzard is aware of this fact, and having a dash of waggishness in his composition, always insists whenever he has any business in the Clerk's office on being waited upon by Mr. Fishback himself. Yesterday he stepped into the clerk's office and asked if "the polite and erudite Fishback" was in. About half an hour later he was in hot water, as usual, having been arrested and brought before United States Commissioner Henry for violation of the bankrupt law. The complaint was made by John J. Haws, his assignee in bankruptcy, and charged that he had changed $5,000 from the schedules. Hazzard's bond was finally fixed at $2,000, and at last accounts he was skirmishing around with a deputy marshal in search of bail.
—State Sentinel.

The Farm and Asylum for Poor.

The following items of interest we find in the report of the Supt. of the asylum for poor for the last quarter.

Male inmates........................ 20
Female inmates...................... 8

Total inmates....................... 28
Died since last report.............. 2

Males able to do duty............... 5
Females able to do duty............. 2

Total............................... 7

Grain consumed in last quarter, Wheat 60 Bushels; Oats, Corn beans & chop, 46 bushels; corn for meal, 16 bushels.

LIVE STOCK ON HAND.

4 mules, 1 colt, 18 sheep, 56 hogs, 11 milch cows, 11 yearling calves, 6 two year old, 1 bull, 5 calves, 76 chickens.

Stock killed for use at asylum, 37 hogs weight 7,400 lbs., 2 beeves weight 800 lbs. Died, 6 shoats, 2 hogs and 3 calves.

Lecture.

On Friday evening, March 28th, a public lecture will be delivered in the M. E. Church of this place by the Rev. Joshua Ervin, on "The battles between Truth and Falsehood." The entire proceeds of the lecture will be devoted to benevolence, the lecturer doing his work gratis. Half the proceeds will go to the school to be expended for books of reference. An admission fee of ten cents will be taken at the door from adults and children alike. It is hoped that every body will come.

The Schools.

Sale of Bank Stock.

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Directors of the First National Bank of Auburn, Indiana, will sell at public auction, at their Banking House in Auburn, Indiana, on MONDAY, APRIL 21st, A. D. 1879,

Sixty shares of the capital stock of said Bank standing in the name of George Hazzard on the books of said Bank, and now said to be in the hands of one Wm. Proctor, (or of the First National Bank of Chicago, Ill.) or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay an assessment of twelve (12) per centum thereon made by said Board of Directors on Dec 19, 1878, and due March 16th, 1879, together with interest thereon from said last date and the costs of such sale.

JACOB WALBORN, Prest.
G. H. K. Moss, Cashier.
Dated this 19th day of March, A. D. 1879.

'Stunning' Styles.

Strangers visiting Ft. Wayne this spring should by all means not neglect to visit A. S. Lauferty & Co's., better known as the C. O. D. Clothiers, and universally acknowledged as the one price, square dealers, unsurpassable nobby clothiers, and dealers in the best made garments for the least money. Their large and Commodious Establishment (presided over by Lauferty himself, assisted by a host of as gentlemanly and pleasant assistants as one can wish to meet;) is situated at No. 9 East Main St., exactly opposite the north door of the court house. You can find there the most complete, well made assortment of Clothing for old men, for middle-aged men, for young men, for boys for children, in fact, for the entire male sex, of any size, shape or descsiption, at prices within the reach of all. Beyond doubt, it is the place where one feels at home the moment he enters, and never leaves Unsuited or Dissatisfied. Their line of furnishing goods, hats, caps, trunks and valises is in itself simply an immense department, Remember the place,

A. S. LAUFERTY & CO.
9 EAST MAIN ST.
C. O. D. One-Price Clothiers.
Opposite North Door Court House.

TUTT'S PILLS!

A NOTED DIVINE SAYS THEY ARE WORTH THEIR WEIGHT in GOLD

READ WHAT HE SAYS:

Dr. Tutt:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended to me; I used them (but with little faith). I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and I have gained forty pounds solid flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

Rev. R. L. Simpson, Louisville, Ky.

A TORPID LIVER

is the fruitful source of many diseases, such as Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Dysentery, Bilious Fever, Ague and Fever, Jaundice, Piles, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint, Colic, etc.

Tutt's Pills exert a powerful influence on the Liver, and will with certainty relieve that important organ from disease, and restore its normal functions.

The rapidity with which persons take on flesh, while under the influence of these pills, of itself indicates their adaptability to nourish the body, hence their efficacy in curing nervous debility, dyspepsia, wasting of the muscles, sluggishness of the liver, chronic constipation, and imparting health and strength to the system.

CONSTIPATION.

Only with regularity of the bowels can perfect health be enjoyed. When the constipation is of recent date, a single dose of TUTT'S PILLS will suffice, but if it has become habitual, one pill should be taken every night, gradually lessening the frequency of the dose until a regular daily movement is obtained, which will soon follow.

Sold Everywhere, 25 Cents.
OFFICE, 35 MURRAY ST., NEW YORK.

HIGHEST REWARD

Cheap Homes in Michigan,
$3 to $10 per Acre.
STRONG SOILS! SURE CROPS!
Railroad through Centre of Lands.
HEALTHY CLIMATE! SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES!
INTELLIGENT POPULATION!

These lands are a long distance EAST of the Mississippi River. Large amount saved in travel and transportation of crops.

Descriptive pamphlets in English and German.

Address, W. O. HUGHART, Commissioner,
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Collar and Milker free to Agents. Neat, light, durable, cheap. No hames required—excells all others. Farmers want it. Outlasts all others. Adjustable. Fits any horse.

Our MILKER, the best on earth, ensures pure, clean milk. Saves its cost every week. Sells rapidly. Sent by mail to any part of the U. S. Send stamp for particulars.

J. W. GUERNSEY, Gen. Agent,
78 Courtlandt St., N. Y.

—Compound Elixir of Buchu for diseases of the kidneys, bladder and urinary organs is the best remedy known for rheumatism. It removes the cause, and effects a permanent cure in all cases. Sold by Davenport the Druggist. tf.

ANSWER TO CONUNDRUM.

Who sells the best Hat in town for one dollar?
Sam, Pete & Max

Who sells the best pair of Pants for one dollar?
Sam, Pete & Max.

Who sells a Linen Bosom, Wamsutta Shirt for one dollar?
Sam, Pete & Max.

Who sells four pair of genuine Brittish Hose for one dollar?
Sam, Pete & Max.

Who sells eight heavy four ply Linen Collars for one dollar?
Sam, Pete & Max.

Who sells everything of the Best for the very lowet prices!
Sam, Pete & Max

QUESTIONS OF THE HOUR.

"Do angels wear white dresses, say?
Always, or only in the summer? Do
Their birthdays have to come like mine, in May?
Do they have scarlet sashes then, or blue?

"When little Jessie died last night,
How could she walk to heaven, it is so far?
How did she find the way without a light?
There wasn't even any moon or star.

"Will she have red or golden wings?
Then will she have to be a bird, and fly?
Do they take men, like Presidents and Kings,
In hearses with black plumes clear to the sky?

"How old is God? Has He grey hair?
Can He see yet? Where did He stay
Before you know He had made—anywhere?
Who does He pray to—when He has to pray?

"How many drops in the sea?
How many stars?—well, then, you ought to know—
How many flowers are on an apple tree?
How does the wind look when it doesn't blow?

"Where does the rainbow end? and why
Did—Capt. Kidd—bury the gold there? When
Will this world burn—and will the firemen try
To put the fire out with the engines then?

"If you should ever die, may we
Have pumpkins growing in the garden, so
My fairy godmother can come for me,
When there's a Prince's ball, and let me go?

"Read Cinderella just once more—
What makes—men's other wives—so mean?" I know
That I was tired, it may be cross, before
I shut the painted book for her to go.

Hours later, from a child's white bed
I heard the timid, last queer question start:
"Mamma, are you—my step-mother?" it said.
The innocent reproof crept to my heart.

—Mrs. S. M. B. Piatt.

LOOKING UNDER THE BED.

It is the habit of many persons to take a look under the bed before retiring for the night. Mrs. Evergreen, my beloved wife, indulges, if indulgence it can be called, in this peculiar practice. I do not object to it in the least so long as she does not enforce the performance upon myself; but when, as is sometimes the case, she forgets it until she has put out the light and ensconced herself under the comforter, then it is hard that I, who am not troubled with nervous apprehensiveness, should have to get out in the cold and do it for her. I have often remarked to Mrs. Evergreen, when I have seen her prying under the bed, that it was a silly habit, and that the sooner she gave it up the better. To this gentle admonition my better-half invariably replies:

"La, Evergreen! what harm does it do? It's a kind of satisfaction to know that nobody's under there, and then I don't think of such a horrible thing after I'm in bed."

"I think, my dear, you might just as well pursue your investigations further and look into the bureau drawers and the clothes-basket."

"Evergreen," she will rejoin, "don't mention the idea, or I shall certainly do so. Come to think of it, a man could very easily get into the clothes-basket!"

"Certainly he could, my dear, quite as easily as Falstaff. You should certainly include the clothes-basket, and, by-the-by, there's the chimney; why not look up that as well?"

"Now, Evergreen, you're laughing at me. But I can't leave off the habit, and I never will. It's a comfort for me to know that there's nothing wrong about it, and I don't see why you should deprive me of it."

So, under the bed goes the candle, and, no signs of humanity being discovered, Mrs. Evergreen is able to repose in peace. But, as already observed, this precautionary act is sometimes forgotten, and I am myself obliged to rise, light the lamp and report. I've done it rather more frequently of late than is agreeable, and have intimated as much to Mrs. E. She says:

"Very well, Evergreen, I'll do it myself."

But this procedure is almost as bad, for she invariably lets the cold in on me both in getting out and getting in. If it were not for increasing this mental idiosyncrasy on the part of Mrs. Evergreen, by giving her some good reason to apprehend danger, I should relate to her what I am about to lay before the reader. In this narration, therefore, I ask the public most particularly to bear in mind that Mrs. Evergreen is of a sensitive nature, rather apprehensive and slightly superstitious, and that what I have to say must, under no circumstances, be imparted to that lady. If for two-and-twenty years (that is the period of our wedded life, and happy years have they been)—if, I say, I have for this long period refrained from imparting the matter to the beloved sharer of my joys and partaker of my sorrows, surely the public (which, as we know, always does keep a secret) will keep mine.

All young men, I suppose, have love affairs before they eventually fix their affections on the one who is to bless their lot in life. I know that I had, and I don't regret it. Regret it? far from it. Mrs. Evergreen is not present, and therefore I have no hesitation in saying that if I had my life to live over again I'd like to go through with the same sentimental experience, particularly if it was to be succeeded by again leading to the hymeneal altar the present Mrs. Evergreen.

I was not bad looking when I was in my twenties. I think I may go further, and confidently say that "Gus Evergreen" was a decided favorite among the girls of Oakville, and I really believed that I could have had any of them "for the asking." As I before remarked, Mrs. Evergreen is not present, and I indulge my thoughts somewhat more freely than would otherwise be the case. I don't think that I cared particularly for any of the Oakville girls, however, and I might have kept my heart whole to this day if it had not been for the circumstance which I am about to relate.

Fred Evans, who had been my chum at school, came to make me a visit at Oakville for "a day or two," as he said when he came; but he made it a week or two easily enough after I'd taken him about a little among the "young ladies." When that time had expired Fred said he really must go, as he didn't know what his father and mother would think of his long absence; but it ended in his relieving their anxiety by a letter and sending for his trunks. I knew how the matter was perfectly well, and that Belle Bronson had bewitched him out of his five senses. Fred tried to put it on to the "country air and the quiet which was benefiting his health, etc.," but it was no use trying to deceive me, and I told him so. Then he owned up frankly and I promised to help him all I could, if he required any help in the prosecution of his suit. I never thought Belle a flirt, or that she would willingly distress any human being; but she had a way of looking in one's eyes as if to captivate them, for her mere personal amusement. At any rate, she had a larger share of beaux than the other girls, but all their attentions came to nothing. I feared it might be so with Fred Evans, and warned him accordingly; but Fred said he'd "have her if he tried all his life;" that "without her life was naught to him;" that "she was the only living being who had ever awakened a real emotion in his breast," etc., etc. After that I said no more, but closely observed the lovers, and soon came to the conclusion that Fred was by no means disagreeable to her. Things went on in this way without any definite result until Fred received a sudden summons home on account of his mother's illness. When he came back to renew his visit, he insisted upon staying at the Oakville Hotel rather than wear out his welcome at our house, and, finding remonstrances unavailing, there he went. The landlord (honest old Downsbury—I wonder if he yet lives) gave Fred, at my suggestion, his best bedroom, "No. 20"—I am particular in mentioning the number. "He shall have No. 20," said Downsbury. "Any friend of yours, Master Augustus, shall have the best I have to give as long's I'm landlord." It was a pleasant room, looking out on the distant hills and the beautiful winding branch of the Blackwater; but what cared Fred for scenery? He was in the hands of the blind god, and could not see even as far as his nose, except in the direction of Belle's cottage. I used to go over to Fred's room and smoke my cigar, while he, poor wretch, expatiated on his sufferings, doubts and solicitudes. Did she love him? that was the question which disturbed every moment of his existence, and to which, with the closest reasoning, he could not bring himself a satisfactory reply. Sometimes he thought a word or a sign settled the point beyond a doubt in his favor; at others he fancied he read a coolness and indifference in her eyes. In this condition of uncertainty he dared not press the question lest a hasty step might bring him to grief.

At Fred's earnest solicitation I promised to sound Belle as to her sentiments, if a favorable opportunity presented itself, or at any rate to let her know, in an indirect way, that Fred was languishing in distress on her account, and thus give her no excuse for prolonging his misery. It so happened, however, that my services were not called into requisition. Belle Bronson, because of the sudden arrival at her house of some country cousins, was obliged to give up her room—her mother's cottage being a small one—and to occupy for a single night a room at the hotel. We would cheerfully have offered her guests accommodation at our house, but we were in the same predicament. An agricultural fair in the village had brought many strangers into the place, and our own guests were so numerous that I had given up my room to two of them, and had intended asking Fred Evans to let me pass the night with him.

For this purpose I went to the hotel at a late hour, and proceeded at once to Fred's room; but, to my surprise, found no one there. I did not even notice that his trunk was gone, or suspect the fact, which afterward became apparent, that, "to oblige some lady guests for this night only," as the landlord expressed it, Fred had consented to give up No. 20, and occupy a small room in the rear of the building. The gas being turned up, I took a book to await his return, and, hearing at last what appeared to be steps approaching the room, and supposing it to be Fred, in a momentary impulse to play a joke upon him, I slipped under the bed, a large and high one, intending to imitate a cat—of which animal I knew he had a detestation—so soon as he entered the room. The door opened, and I was on the point of indulging in my ventriloqual faculty by giving a long-drawn mieow, when from my hiding-place I beheld Belle Bronson take quiet possession of the apartment!

My astonishment was so great, and the sense of mortification so intense, that I did not, as I should have done, make myself immediately known to her. Thus the opportunity for discovery and explanation was lost. I dared not move a hair, but hoped sincerely that some excuse might take her out of the room for a moment, and so facilitate my escape. She, however, locked the door, removed the key, and, as I knew by the sound, prepared to retire. Finally she kneeled down beside the bed, and, clasping her hands and bowing her head (so fearfully near to mine that I could hear the soft words in my very ear), she offered up her evening prayer in a manner so full of feeling, and with such sweet accents of womanly tenderness and devotion, that I felt as if she was an angel bending over the vilest of mortals. That prayer went to my heart; but one portion of it went through it and held it captive. Never shall I forget my feelings of surprise and my deep emotion when I heard her utter these words: "Bless my dear mother, sisters and friends; bless all around me, and, O God! bless him I love, Augustus Evergreen, and shower down Thy mercies over him. Amen."

"Ah, Augustus," said my divinity to herself, as she arose from her devotional attitude, "if you but knew that I named your very name in my prayers, you would be less indifferent to me!"

If I breathed short before, after this my breath seemed to desert me entirely, and I verily thought that the beating of my heart would betray me. Belle, pure as an angel to me then, and white as a snow-flake, proceeded to turn off the gas and get into bed. I felt her soft pressure over my head, and shrunk closer and closer to the hard floor upon which I was extended. What thoughts rushed through my brain! Above me lay a young and unsophisticated girl wholly unconscious that the one she loved lay so closely to her, and who had for the first time been made aware of her interest in him, by hearing words which she supposed went only to heaven! I knew then that the night must pass away, and the morning come, and that Belle must first leave the apartment before I could venture to change even my position.

Belle had lain perfectly motionless for several minutes, and was, I flattered myself, losing herself in sleep, when suddenly she exclaimed to herself: "There—I haven't looked under the bed!" A horror ran through me; all is lost; what should I do? Belle rose, and I heard her feeling for the matches. She struck one, and was moving toward the gas-light when the match went out, leaving all darkness again. Blessed relief, but how brief! Again I heard her feeling for the matches and try to light one after another, as they failed to ignite; then an "Oh, dear, there are no more!" escaped from her lips. "Safe! safe!" whispered my soul to me, and I thanked God in silence for my deliverance. Belle groped back to the bed, but did not immediately get in; she stooped and lifted the curtains which hung around the bottom and cautiously passed her arm under and around as far as it could reach. I almost felt her fingers graze my face as I held myself fearfully and silently back against the wall, too far, just too far for her reach. Apparently satisfied that no danger was near her, she lay down in bed again and I counted her respirations till she was lost in slumber.

As for myself, sleep was utterly out of the question. I never was so wide-awake in my life. How I lay upon that hard carpet and thought the night out!—thought of her, and her love for me; thought of myself and my love for her. Yes, I was convinced from that moment that the hand of destiny was in it, and that a benign and all-wise Providence had seen fit in this extraordinary way to open my eyes to the path of happiness and peace.

With the morning light fresh fears came over me lest my unconscious room-mate might yet peer beneath the bed for robbers before she left the room; but my fears were groundless. She rose to join her cousins at an early breakfast, and she had overslept herself. When at last she took the key, unlocked the door and departed, I lost no time in slipping out of my shameful place of concealment and escaping from the hotel. On the stairs I met Fred coming out of his room, who exclaimed:

"Why, what's the matter with you, old fellow? You look like the last days of an ill-spent life. And your coat, too—why, it's all over feathers and dust. Where have you been?"

"Why, I slept—slept out last night; that's all. Our house is full, and so I had to find quarters elsewhere. I'm going home to dress."

"I should say so, decidedly. I see it all, old fellow! You've been on a lark, and had to put up in the watch-house; come now, own up and tell us all about it."

"No lark at all, Fred; nothing of the kind, I assure you."

"Well, if not a lark what kind of a bird was it? From the looks of the feathers I should say it was a goose."

"You're the goose, Fred. But, seriously, I've a word to say to you of a most important nature. Be a man, Fred, and make up your mind to hear something excessively disagreeable. It must be told you sooner or later, and I may as well tell it now."

"Good heavens, Gus! how earnest you look at me; you don't mean to say that—that anything has happened to Belle Bronson?"

"Don't mention her name again, Fred, or think of her any more, for she'll never be anything to you. I have it from one who knows all about it, that she has long been attached to somebody else, and that somebody else means to marry her. There's no mistake about it; so bear up and try your luck elsewhere."

But Fred Evans was not to be discouraged by mere hearsay. That very day he went to see Belle, determined to know his fate from her own lips. Soon after he left Oakville, and I did not see him again for several years, when, meeting him in the town one day, I insisted on bringing him home with me and presenting him to his old flame, Belle Bronson—the present Mrs. Evergreen.

"Ah, Fred!" said he, after dinner, when my wife and the little Evergreens had left us to ourselves; "ah, Fred, you served me a shabby trick when you allowed me to lose my heart to the girl you were all along intending to marry yourself—a very shabby trick, one of which I never suspected you!"

So I had to tell him (in strict confidence, of course, as I tell you, reader) all about the bedroom affair at the Oakville Hotel, and the love that grew out of it.

The Battle of the Duck and the Owl.

A novel battle, with a fatal termination, occurred at the Chalybeate and Auburn mineral springs last Thursday night, at a small pond prepared for water-fowl, and in which were one wild goose, three wild ducks (wood ducks), and six Pekin ducks. A very large reddish-gray owl has been noticed of late, apparently taking an inventory of this stock of water-fowl, and wishing they would spend a night on shore—which they never do, even with the mercury at 18 deg. below zero, although snug houses are arranged for them at the water's edge. But Thursday night Mr. Owl, thinking he had got a duck near enough on shore to answer his purpose, pounced upon him. The result of the battle was plainly to be seen by the first visitor Friday morning, as there lay both combatants—owl and duck—stark and dead, head to head, within six inches of each other. They were on a sand-bar, in about two inches of water, partially frozen in.—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

Has a person the right to read a newspaper in a theater instead of paying attention to the performance? While the Williamsons were playing "The Chinese Question" in Toledo, a man in an orchestra seat occupied himself with a perusal of the news, and seemed oblivious of what was being done on the stage. Williamson stopped acting and asked him to put away the newspaper or quit the theater. The offender granted the former favor, but revenged himself by regarding the play with a smile of great disdain.

KING OF THE ZULUS.

[illegible]

[From the English Official Correspondence.]

It is no exaggeration to say that his history from the first has been written in characters of blood. I do not refer merely to the long chronicle of his butcheries—from the slaughter of his brothers and their followers, early in his career, down to the more recent indiscriminate and wholesale destruction of all the unmarried women who attempted to evade his orders, given in a sudden fit of caprice, that they should accept as husbands the elderly unmarried soldiers of his army, the massacre being subsequently extended to all the relatives who took away for burial the exposed corpses of the slaughtered women—but I would take his character from his own account of himself; it was sent little more than two years ago to the Lieutenant Governor of Natal, who, on hearing of the massacre of the girls, wrote to remind him of what had very recently passed between him and the representative of the Natal Government, Sir T. Shepstone, in the way of promises of more merciful rule on the occasion of his installation as King, expressing a hope that the Lieutenant Governor might learn from him that the reports which had reached him were incorrect. Cetywayo replied, "Did I ever tell Shepstone? Did he tell the white people I made such an arrangement? Because, if he did, he has deceived them. I do kill, but do not consider yet I have done anything in the way of killing. Why do the white people start at nothing? I have not yet begun. I have yet to kill; it is the custom of our nation, and I shall not depart from it. Why does the Governor of Natal speak to me about my laws? Do I go to Natal and dictate to him about his laws? I shall not agree to any laws or rules from Natal, and, by so doing, throw the great kraal which I govern into the water. My people will not listen unless they are killed; and, while wishing to be friends with the English, I do not agree to give over my people to be governed by laws sent to me by them. Have I not asked the English Government to allow me to wash my spears, since the death of my father Umpandi, and they have kept playing with me all this time, and treating me like a child? Go back and tell the English that I shall now act on my own account, and, if they wish me to agree to their laws, I shall leave and become a wanderer; but, before I go, it will be seen, as I shall not go without having acted. Go back and tell the white man this, and let them hear it well. The Governor of Natal and I are equal. He is Governor of Natal, and I am Governor here."

All Squandered.

What is true of individuals is often also true in regard to nations. Money badly gotten goes badly, and this seems to be a rule no less common among nations than individuals. The immense idemnity derived by Germany from France is all expended, and there is, besides, a deficit in last year's budget of 11,000,000 marks. The Government being the principal proprietor of arable lands, forests, mines and railways, its revenue has naturally been largely decreased by the prolonged commercial depression. The losses thus incurred have been supplied by a continual increase of direct taxation, notwithstanding which there is still the above-mentioned deficit. While 13 per cent. of the British revenue and 25 per cent. of the French is derived from direct taxation, 45 per cent. of the German revenue is so raised. Therefore, it was with good reason that the Finance Minister stated in his budget speech that he dared not attempt an increase of direct taxes. It is not too much to say that during the last twelve years the taxes paid in large towns have been tripled, while the resources of the people have sensibly decreased. It would be well if the exhaustion of the French indemnity left the treasury undamaged, but such is not the case. The surplus wealth of the late prosperous years has not simply disappeared; it has been spent on public works, many of which are still unfinished, and their completion will be a drain for years to come. The revenue for the coming financial year not only cannot supply the funds required to complete them, but it lacks 10,000,000 marks for the ordinary cost of carrying on the Government.—Washington Chronicle.

A Good Word for the Hog.

Special trade journalism, which in this country has produced newspapers devoted to dry goods, iron, coal, drugs, and even plumbing, has lately in France given birth to a Pork Butchers' Monitor. One of its most thoughtful articles thus far has been on the hog, personally considered. This animal, hitherto "frightfully calumniated," says the Moniteur, "nevertheless, like all truly good creatures, repays ingratitude by benefits. And, first of all, what a lying, malicious proverb is that which says 'dirty as a pig.' He dirty? Come, now; you don't know him. Study him with attention, examine him seriously, loyally, as an upright, impartial judge, and you will agree with us that, on the contrary, he is of exemplary cleanness, and could give points to many a dandy strutting in clothes unpaid for." An advocate so eloquent ought to find friends also on this side of ocean—say, in Cincinnati.

Comparative Cost of Education and War.

A paper has been prepared by Mons. Lion Donnat, of Brussels, a member of several learned academies, and published in the L'Etat de California, which shows the comparative cost of education in different countries. The main statement is translated and furnished by the Bureau of Education. The annual cost of primary education for each inhabitant in the United States, according to M. Donnat, is $2.18, and the annual expense of war purposes for each inhabitant is $1.50. Prussia, education, 55 cents; war, $2.48. Saxony, 75 cents; war, $2.48. Bavaria, 57 cents; war, $2.48. Wurtemberg, 40 cents; war, $2.48. Austria, 37 cents; war, $1.50. Belgium, 52 cents; war, $1.82. Denmark, $1.05; war, $1.96. France, 31 cents; war, $4.86; Italy, 15 cents; war, $1.70. Netherlands, 72 cents; war, $4.01. England and Wales, 71 cents; war, $4.18. Scotland, 72 cents; war, $4.18. Russia, 8 cents; war, $2.83. Sweden, 37 cents; war, $1.36. Switzerland, 95 cents; war, $1.06. This table shows that when $10.05 is spent for education $40.09 is consumed for war purposes, a fact which, to most people, will be entirely new.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

CHAPS.—Hemlock bark grated and applied, or steep and wash; also alum water will cure and make less liable to chap.

PAPER AS DRESSING WOUNDS.—Paper, which has superseded costlier materials for so many different purposes, is now used instead of lint as a dressing for wounds.

DRYNESS OF THROAT.—A remedy for dryness of throat will be found in a small piece of muriate of ammonia, about ten or fifteen grains, every two hours. Use the best quality and allow it to dissolve slowly in the mouth.

BURNING FEET.—To relieve burning feet, first discard tight boots; then take one pint of bran and one ounce of bicarbonate of soda, put in a pail and add one gallon of hot water; when cool enough, soak your feet in this mixture for fifteen minutes. The relief is instantaneous. This must be repeated every night for a week, or perhaps more. The bran and bicarbonate should be made fresh after a week's use. Bicarbonate of soda can be purchased for about 10 cents a pound from wholesale druggists. The burning sensation is produced by the pores of the skin being closed, so that the feet do not perspire.

CURE FOR NEURALGIC TOOTHACHE.—A German physician recommends powdered quinine for neuralgic toothache. The sufferer should dip a finger into fresh water and then into the quinine powder, and rub it thoroughly on the gum in the neighborhood of the painful tooth. The application should be repeated two or three times in succession. The bitter taste of the medicine should be borne as long as possible. Dr. Darvaris tried this remedy first on himself, and then on numerous other persons; among the number were many who had tried other remedies in vain. It invariably produced a rapid alleviation of the pain.

FIVE HINTS ABOUT RHEUMATISM.—1. The disease is a standing "conundrum" to medical men, but Dr. Julius Pollock thinks that he has at last cleared the subject of some confusion that surrounded it. He says the term rheumatism is applied to several different diseases which are essentially distinct, although they have certain features in common. The two chief forms are articular and muscular rheumatism. The former is a disease of early adult life; more or less acute in character, with a tendency to get well in about six weeks. Articular rheumatism, when at all severe, is called rheumatic fever. It attacks the synovial membranes and also the similar nervous membranes, especially of the heart. There is a distinct predisposition to this disease in certain persons, which is sometimes inherited. The immediate exciting cause is exposure to cold or "taking a chill." It never attacks the muscles. Muscular rheumatism is a disease of middle and advanced life, is commonly chronic, and will continue indefinitely if not treated. It attacks, not the muscles themselves, but the tendons and other parts of the muscles which have a similar anatomical structure. Muscular rheumatism does not attack the heart, and is rarely fatal. 2. Tic doloreux and rheumatic pains are relieved by the fumes of carbon bisulphide. A piece of cotton wool should be melted with the carbon bisulphide and put into a wide-mouthed bottle. The mouth of the bottle may then be held closely on the affected part. When not in use the bottle should be well corked. 3. Recipe for a liniment that has always proved an infallible cure for rheumatism, bruises, &c: One pint highwines, one ounce spirits turpentine, one ounce British oil, one ounce sweet flag, one-half ounce Cayenne pepper, one-half ounce origanum. 4. Dr. Bonnet, of Graubet, France, recommends and prescribes for chronic rheumatism the use of the essential oil of turpentine by friction. He used it himself with perfect success, having almost instantaneously got rid of rheumatic pains in both knees, and in the left shoulder. 5. Just before retiring, bathe the parts affected with water, as hot as can be borne, in which potatoes have been boiled.

Heartless Doctor and Irate Patient.

A well-authenticated report comes to me of a recent case where a doctor from New York city, called to a supposed-dying patient, got so impatient waiting for the decease that he finally filled out and signed the certificate of death, leaving the date to be inserted thereafter, and hastened back to the delights of New York. In view of this fact the family abandoned hope and ordered their mourning goods, but when the nearly-dead patient heard of all this he was so irate that his health began to improve, and he is now considered out of danger, for the time being at least.—Hartford letter.

In the East.

"First class in astronomy, stand up. Where does the sun rise?" "Please, sir, down in our meadow; I seed it yesterday." "Hold your tongue, you dunce! Where does the sun rise?" "I know; in the east." "Right; and why does it rise in the east?" "Because the 'east makes everything rise."

THE Rev. Pardee Butler, who was placed astride a cottonwood log, his legs tied behind his back and set adrift on the Missouri river by border ruffians, at Atchison, Kan., some twenty-odd years ago, stepped into the Globe office, in Atchison, the other day, as though he had just escaped from his queer craft. It was his first visit to Atchison since his fight against slavery.

BODIE is a town of California. Six months ago it had 500 to 600 buildings and a population of 1,400. Now it has some 4,000 buildings and a population of 7,000.

THE DAYS THAT ARE NO MORE.

BY ALFRED TENNYSON.

Tears, idle tears, I know not what they mean,
Tears from the depth of some divine despair
Rise in the heart and gather in the eyes,
In looking on the happy autumn fields,
And thinking of the days that are no more.

Fresh as the first beam glittering on a sail
That brings our friends up from the under world,
Sad as the last, which reddens every one
That sinks with all we love below the verge;
So sad, so fresh, the days that are no more.

Ah, sad and strange as in dark summer dawns
The earliest pipe of half-awakened birds
To dying ears, when unto dying eyes
The casement slowly grows a glimmering square;
So sad, so strange, the days that are no more.

Dear as remembered kisses after death,
And sweet as those by hopeless fancy feigned
On lips that are for others; deep as love,
Deep as first love, and wild with all regret—
O death in life! the days that are no more.

PITH AND POINT.

THE ox has a neat foot.

ANCIENT Greece—Old butter.

THE stamp act—A clog dance.

THE feed waiter serves the best feed.

THE early revenue officer catches the worm still.

THE spring caw-cus begins to agitate the farmers.

A LOST tart—The one that was left alone with the small boy.

A LUMBER dealer failed last week—Could not pay his board bills.

NONE but the brave deserve their hair, is how the aborigine puts it.

POLICEMEN at the vegetable markets are not allowed to sit down on their beats.

WHEN does the rain become too familiar with a lady? When it begins to patter on her back.

GIRLS, if you want to be boss of the establishment and live happily, don't marry a man that—winks.

MODESTY is a priceless virtue; but, if, like the bloom on a woman's cheek, it is only "put on," it loses its value.

"I TRUST you will be true to me," he said in accents mellow. "Of course I will, my dear," she said, "till I get another fellow."

"YES, I'm a good dancer," said the barber as he sheared off the blonde locks of a customer. "See me clip the light fantastic toe."

IT is a base ball where one lady monopolizes partners enough to have nine on a side. Any other woman present will say so.

"BRILLIANT and impulsive people," says an exchange, "have black eyes." Impulsive people are only too apt to get black eyes.

A MEMBER of the Kansas Legislature has received a small coffin with the inscription, "From the people you misrepresent. Go bury yourself."

A YOUNG lady rejoices in the possession of a large and tawny St. Bernard which she calls Taffy, because, as she explains to inquirers, "it was given her."

JAPANESE used to have such a high sense of honor that they would commit suicide if caught in any bad business. Now they fee a lawyer, and plead "not guilty."

A NORTH CAROLINA editor declares that "the man who will read a newspaper three or four years without paying for it will pasture a goat on the grave of his grandfather."

AN exchange combically observes: "A hairdresser hopes to flourish in this world, and also in the world which is to comb." But is he hair to kingdom comb? —Chicago Commercial Advertiser.

AMONG the things the ancients knew about and we do not, was the art of making beef tea out of a species of ore dug out of the ground. Perhaps, though, it is not lost, but gone beefore.

A LADY writer is out with an article entitled "How to Catch a Husband." But her theory is all wrong. Ask any married woman how to catch a husband, and she will reply, "By the hair!" "They all do it."

"WHATEVER shall I do with such a bad, bad boy?" said a loving mother, as she strove to impress on the mind of her 6-year-old tow-head his manifold troublesomeness. "Oh, you let me alone; I ain't half as bad as I can be."

SHE wore a Dolly Varden the night when first we met; her chip hat, like a garden, with posies gay was set. A thumping, big blonde waterfall, when next we met, she wore; her skirts spread out from wall to wall, and dusted off the floor.

"DOES he know anything?" asked one friend of another, referring to a seemingly stupid man. "'No' anything!" replied the other—"I should say he did. He 'No's' so much that it is an absolute luxury to hear him say 'Yes.'"

"VAT a monster language," said a Frenchman. "Here I read in ze newspapers zat a man commit a murder, was committed for trial, and zen committed himself to a reportair. No wonder everyzing in America is done by committees."

THE day before a Turkish girl is married she is taken to the bath by her lady friends and lumps of sugar are broken over her head as a forecast of the sweets of matrimony. A year or so afterward her husband breaks the whole sugar-bowl over her head.

A COUNTRY deacon went on a free ticket to a circus. His pastor remonstrated with him on the wickedness of so doing. But he made answer: "Why, you see, pastor, I had a deadhead ticket, and I thought it my bounden duty to go and keep somebody out of that seat who might have been somewhat harmed by the circus."

THE professor said that he would illustrate his lecture with the spectroscope, and show his class the sublimity of the wheeling planets and the silent march of the stars. Then he had the blinds closed, and laid an embargo on the skylight, so that the blackness of darkness enveloped everything. Suddenly through the gloom came a whisper which, though faint, voiced the universal thought: "Oh, what a coeducation racket this would be." The gas was turned up.—Acta Columbiana.

PENNSYLVANIA newspapers are rejoicing over the hopeful sign of the times that renewed activity is permeating every branch of the iron trade.

GOSSIP FOR THE LADIES.

Husband and Wife.

BY CHRISTINA ROSSETTI.

"Oh, kiss me once before I go,
To make amends for sorrow;
Oh, kiss me once before we part,
Who will not meet to-morrow.

"And I was wrong to urge your will,
And wrong to mar your life;
But kiss me once before we part,
Because you are my wife."

She turned her head and tossed her head,
And puckered up her brow;
"I never kissed you yet," she said,
"And I'll not kiss you now.

"[illegible]
And forsworn marriage vow,
I never loved you yet," said she,
"And I don't love you now."

So he went sailing on the sea,
And she sat crossed and dumb,
While he went sailing on the sea,
Where the storm-winds come.

He's been a month and a day,
Counting from morn to morn;
And many buds had turned to leaves,
And many lambs were born.

And many buds had turned to flowers,
For spring was in a glow,
When she was laid upon her bed,
As white and cold as snow.

"Oh, let me kiss my baby once;
Once before I die;
And bring it sometimes to my grave
To teach it where I lie.

"And tell my husband, when he comes
Safe home from sea,
To love the baby that I leave,
If ever he loved me.

"And tell him, not for might or right,
Or forsworn marriage vow,
But for the helpless baby's sake,
I would have kissed him now."

—From "A Masque of Poets."

How to Choose a Husband.

That woman is wise, says the Springfield (Mass.) Republican who selects for her husband a man who desires to find in his home a place of rest. It is the man with many interests, with engrossing occupations, with plenty of people to fight, and with a struggle to maintain against the world, who is the really domestic man in the wife's sense, who enjoys home, who makes a friend of his wife, who relishes prattle, who feels in the small circle where nobody is above him and nobody unsympathetic with him, as if he were in a heaven of ease and recreation. The drawback of home life, its contained possibilities of insipidity, sameness and consequent weariness, is never present to such a man. He no more tires of his wife than of his own happier moods. He is no more bored with home than with sleep. He is no more plagued with his children than with his own lighter thoughts. All the monotony and weariness of life he encounters outside of his home. It is the pleasure-loving man, the merry companion, who requires constant excitement, that finds home life unendurable. He soon grows weary of it, and considers everything so very tame, and so like flat beer, it is impossible for him not only to be happy but to feel that he is less unhappy there than anywhere else. We do not mean that the domestic man, in the wife's sense, will be always at home. The man always at home has not half the chance of the man whose duty is outside of it, for he must sometimes be in the way. The point for the wife is that he should love home when he is there, and that love we contend belongs, first of all, to the active and strong and deeply-engaged worker, and not the lounger, or even the easy man. In marriage, as in every other relation in life, the competent man is the pleasantest to live with and the safest to choose, and the one most likely to prove an unwearied friend, and who enjoys and suffers others to enjoy when at home, the endless charm of mental repose.

A Female Jockey.

In a certain London boarding-house, not far from Regent's Park, the guest who comes in late at night will sometimes see a side-saddle lying on the floor in the lower hall. Usually it has disappeared before he is down in the morning. If not, a finely-formed, healthy young English women will be one of the Anglo-American company that gathers at the breakfast table. She is its owner. This boarding-house is her home. Riding horses at races and sales is her occupation. An orphan, of respectable parentage, obliged to support herself, the avenues that opened before such a young girl as she, in the crowded, elbowing life of England, were few and unpromising. She had an English woman's love of animals and out-door occupations. And she had dauntless, magnificent physical courage. To she drifted into this strange life. She finds employment from one end of England to the other. One morning she is off by cab, her saddle beside her, for a horse market in the east of London. The next, perhaps, she is hurrying from her early breakfast to take the train at King's Cross for Doncaster. There is no horse so vicious that she hesitates to mount him. He may fall with her; he cannot throw her. She is sent for to ride horses that men dare not or will not; horses that have killed their riders more than once, and that will do their best to kill her. But she has a reputation that, for bread's sake and shelter's sake, she cannot afford to lose, and she never declines to mount a horse because it is dangerous to do so. One night she comes home bruised and weak—her horse fell on her to-day. Another, her face flushes with satisfaction as she tells her kind friend, the landlady, that her horse won the race. Often she does not eat a mouthful from her early breakfast, before the rest of the house are up, until her day's work is done. Success depends on her being able to command every particle of nervous force she possesses: she can spare none of it for the processes of digestion. She is intelligent and womanly—just as womanly as if her work kept her in an office or behind a counter, instead of among stable-keepers, jockeys and sporting men.

The Jewish Wedding Cermony.

In some of its features the Jewish wedding ceremony is a very beautiful one. From a description of a fashionable wedding of this kind in New York, on Wednesday, we take the following paragraph:

There was a moment of silence, and then the band again poured forth its music, and the bride, a pretty brunette of some 19 summers, entered the hall, leaning upon the arm of her mother and her aunt, the latter taking the place of the groom's mother, who is dead, the Jewish custom being that the prospective mother-in-law shall lead the bride to the altar. The bride was elegantly attired in white satin, her features being concealed beneath a short lace veil fastened to her head-dress with a wreath of flowers. She also wore a necklace and bracelet of entwined flowers and pearls, and carried in her hand a beautiful bouquet. She was led to a seat in the middle chair, her mother and aunt sitting on either side of her. As the music ceased, Rabbi Wise stepped forward, and lifting his hands above the bride's bowed head, pronounced in German the marriage blessing of Rebecca. Another moment of silence ensued, and the groom, a young man about twenty-seven years of age, entered with his father and prospective father-in-law. He was attired in full dress, wore a nosegay in the lappel of his coat, and a new and shining beaver on his head. He walked slowly to the bride, and as she arose she took his right arm, and then both walked to the altar, where, after a chant by the reader, Rabbi Wise took up one of the silver goblets of wine, known as the "Cup of Joys," and stepping to the bride, gently lifted her veil and allowed her to sip a draught of the liquid, and then held the cup to the lips of the groom, who also partook of it. After another chant by the reader, the rabbi again addressed the couple, saying that as they had drunk together of the cup of joys, so must they drink from the cup of sorrows, and taking the second goblet, he raised it to the groom's lips, and after the latter had drank, again lifted the bride's veil, and she in turn drank from the goblet. Tears dimmed the eyes of the bride and groom, and of nearly all the assemblage, as the rabbi closed his remarks and lifted the second goblet to the lips of the husband and wife.

A Deserved Fate.

The awful fate of the professional flirt is thus vividly depicted by London Truth:

An honest man naturally assumes that a girl is ingenuous at any rate in her affections. He has a right to suppose, if she displays a preference for him, that she entertains it; and if she exhibits this sentiment beyond a certain point, he is entitled to conclude that she will accept him as a lover, and finally as a husband, in case his means are sufficient to justify him in aspiring to the responsible position of the head of a household. He has every cause of complaint if, after leading him to believe himself engaging, a young lady refuses to be engaged to him. It cannot but be mortifying to a man to feel affection for a girl, which she shows no symptom of returning; yet this is a lot to which no brave man would demur. It has happened to some of the best, the most virtuous, the most distinguished, and even the most fascinating of the male species. But it must be something more than mortifying to a man to fall in love, and to be made to fall in love with a girl who, all the time she was leading him on, was calculating what a triumph it would be to drive him off. That there are girls who do this is certain; and they are the girls who get the "no end of offers." Once a girl permits herself to indulge in this pastime, habit soon becomes a second nature, and she ends by being as incapable of loving a man as of not wanting men to love her. After a time she ends her career of disenchanting them by herself becoming anything but enchanting. She gets "blown upon," and the result of her numerous offers is that she cannot find a husband. It is not that men become afraid of being rejected by her, but rather that they would dread being accepted. She may still maintain all the deportment of a successful flirt, and some men may yet flirt with her. But they go no further. She must console herself with her doubtful reminiscences. Her passion for homage has survived in all its intensity; but it is a fire fed with very little fuel. It will then be found that she seeks comfort in imagining that men are still proposing to her, and she drops mysterious hints as to lovers who have still to be discarded. People smile and pity her. Yet she scarcely deserves to be pitied. She forgot that admirable truth:

"He comes too near who comes to be denied."

And after having spent her youth in denying others, she has to pass the middle age in denying herself.

Fashion Notes.

LONG gloves, extending half way to the elbow, are of creamy white undressed kid, either plain or with lace insertions and frills.

THE new flannel finished fabric for summer dresses is called beige de sante. It is sleazily woven, fine wool in gray, tan or beige shades of a single color, or else in invisible checks.

SHORT skirts have one deep plaited flounce, particularly the new cambric dresses in "trianon" patterns; silk or satin skirts have narrow plaitings half a finger deep, generally three set on close together.

SOME new mantles are made of either black sicilienne or cashmere, with a shawl-shaped trimming in the center of the back, embroidered with colored jet and edged with multi-colored marabout fringes. Others are embroidered in palm design, outlined with gold.

THE new flowers and leaves are rich in color, and wonderful copies of nature; they are made of shaded satin, or velvet, or fine, furry plush, mounted on flexible stems, and are often combined with field pods, burrs, and nuts just bursting their shell.

Two leading styles that will prevail in suits for the early spring will be the basque with a short round skirt on which the overskirt is permanently draped. The other has the princess back and a basque front with overskirt. The short, round, narrow skirt is merely a foundation.

THIN materials for ball dresses and for summer use are exhibited in all the stores. Madras linen, American net and the crimped muslins of last season are plenty, while a new India crimped gauze, in ivory and white, is an addition to the host of pretty fabrics already in use. Many of the silk brocaded gauzes have a satin leaf design on white gauze, the colors of the leaves being pale blue, yellow and sage green.

FLOUNCES are to be side plaited this summer, and stitched on the skirt an inch or more below the upper edge, to give it a standing heading. Another style of flounces is a plain straight band, eight inches deep, with side plaits, into which fans are inserted.

As the season approaches for renovating old dresses, a good plan for cleaning silks is suggested. It is to grate potatoes into clear, cold water—a large potato to every quart of water—of which five or six will do for a couple of dresses. The pan of water must not be stirred in the least for forty-eight hours; then very slowly and steadily pour off the clear liquor (but not a particle of the sediment) into an open vessel, dip the pieces of silk into this liquid up and down a few times, without in the least creasing them; then wipe them on a flat table with a clean towel, first on one side, then the other. After each piece is dipped it should be hung upon a line, to allow the drops to drain off a little before wiping. Iron one way on the soiled side.

How Lincoln Relieved General Rosecrans.

Gen. James B. Steedman, familiarly known as "Old Chickamauga," was never in happier frame than at the Ford Post reunion the other evening, when, with other valuable anecdotes and incidents of the war, he related the following: "Some weeks after the disastrous battle of Chickamauga, while yet Chattanooga was in a state of siege, Gen. Steedman was surprised one day to receive a telegram from Abraham Lincoln asking him to come to Washington. Seeking out Thomas, he laid the telegram before him, and was instructed to set out at once. Repairing to the white house, he was warmly received by Mr. Lincoln. Mr. Lincoln's first question was abrupt and to the point: "Gen. Steedman, what is your opinion of Gen. Rosecrans?" Gen. Steedman, hesitating a moment, said: "Mr. President, I would rather not express my opinion of my superior officer." Mr. Lincoln said: "It is the man who does not want to express an opinion whose opinion I want. I am besieged on all sides with advice. Every day I get letters from army officers asking me to allow them to come to Washington to impart some valuable knowledge in their possession." "Well, Mr. President," said Gen. Steedman, "you are the commander-in-chief of the army, and if you order me to speak I will do so." Mr. Lincoln said: "Then I will order an opinion." Gen. Steedman then answered: "Since you command me, Mr. President, I will say Gen. Rosenkrans is a splendid man to command a victorious army." "But what kind of a man is he to command a defeated army?" said Mr. Lincoln. Gen. Steedman, in reply, said cautiously: "I think there are two or three other men in that army that would be better." Then, with his quaint humor, Mr. Lincoln propounded this question: "Who, beside yourself, Gen. Steedman, is there in the army who would make a better commander?" Gen. Steedman said promptly: "Gen. George H. Thomas." "I am glad to hear you say so," said Mr. Lincoln; "that is my own opinion exactly. But Mr. Stanton is against him, and it was only yesterday that a powerful New York delegation was here to protest against his appointment because he is from a rebel state, and cannot be trusted." Said Gen. Steedman: "A man who will leave his own state (Thomas was a Virginian), his friends, his associations, to follow the flag of his country, can be trusted in any position to which he may be called." That night the order went forth from Washington relieving Gen. Rosencrans of the army of the Cumberland and appointing Gen. Thomas in his place.—Toledo (Ohio) Journal.

Cremation of a "Digger" Indian.

"Ned," a Digger Indian, was found dead alongside the railroad track near Auburn last Wednesday, having apparently fallen from the platform of a car and fractured his skull. His friends being notified, they placed the remains upon a horse and conveyed them to Clipper Gap, where they were duly cremated in the manner customary with red men of that section. The funeral pile, which is built of wood to the height of about four feet, is kept burning about five hours, during which time relatives and friends place upon it such articles as they desire to contribute to aid the deceased when he shall have arrved at the happy hunting grounds—one gives a blanket, another a bow and arrows, another a saddle, etc. When the flesh has all been consumed, and only the bones remain, these are raked together and a fire kept burning about them until they also become ashes. When the fire dies out the ashes are all collected, taken to the burial ground and interred, a little sugar loaf shaped mound being erected over them. The female relatives of the deceased, as evidence of mourning, smear their faces and heads with tar—the extent of the application indicating the closeness of their relationship—and this is left until it naturally wears off. There was a large attendance upon "Ned's" funeral, every train arriving at the Gap bringing a large number of bucks and squaws. As they are allowed to ride free, the train men usually press the bucks into service when it is necessary to wood up, but on such an occasion as this they sturdily refuse, replying: "No work; funeral to day."—Sacramento (Cal.) Record-Union.

Mute Animals.

In his lecture on Claude Bernard, M. Paul Bert narrated a singular stratagem which was invented by Bernard during the last Franco-German war, and might be utilized without difficulty, under similar circumstances. It was proposed to revictual Paris, which was strictly blockaded by the German forces. A large number of cattle had been collected, waiting for an opportunity to cross the German lines. But a difficulty was to silence these animals, as their cries would attract the attention of the enemy. Claude Bernard proposed to practice upon them the section of the nerve which enables them to emit their usual cries. The operation is so easy that it could be executed in a few seconds by any ordinary butcher. None of the animals appeared to suffer in any way by the mutilation which had made them mute. But the military movement proved a failure, and for other causes the revictualing could not take place.—Nature.

THE plow is said to be the oldest landmark.—Utica Observer.

A Tea-Drinking Turk.

Khalil Bey, who has just died at Constantinople, was well known in Paris high life. He first lived at M. de Lesseps's Moorish house in the Avenue de Marignan, and afterwards in a sumptuous apartment in the Rue Taitbout, until his return to Constantinople completely ruined, having spent in three years, from 1866 to 1869, all he had inherited from his father, some £400,000. Gambling was the principal cause of his ruin, his last loss amounting to £72,000. A friend of his trying to stop him was met with the profound rebuke: "Remember this, moncher, I prefer losing by doing what I please to winning by doing as you wish." The Cercle Imperial had in those days a rare collection of gamblers; with the exception of M. Sabatier, himself the husband of a Greek, and who died last week in Paris, they were almost all of them foreigners. I may name Mustapha Pasha, Myeski, Oselowski and Kalergis—the latter, then Minister for Greece, hated Khalil Bey, who cordially returned the compliment. When the Greek won he would taunt the Turk invariably in the same words: "The days are gone by when you could split my ears," at the same time showing his ear, which had been thus mutilated when he had been made prisoner of war by the Turks. A characteristic story is told of him and of his liberalities. One day Blanche de Revers rushed into her jeweler's and said, "Khalil Bey is coming to you presently to order a silver tea-service for me; do, for heaven's sake, make him understand that such a present is perfectly ridiculous, and by giving it he compromises his reputation as a man of the world. I far prefer a pair of nice dormeuses." The jeweler promised, and has since given the key to the mystery. Whenever Khalil Bey called on a lady for the first time he used to ask for a cup of tea, and then invariably came the remark. "I hope this will not be the last time I shall ask for a cup of tea; but I have one mania—it is that of handsome tea-services, and your's is quite unworthy of you. You must allow me to send you one, and by so doing you will put me under an obligation." These tea-services were always ordered at Blanche de Revers's jeweler, and knowing it she was determined to take time by the forelock, and not have the same present as so many others. During the three years Khalil Bey lived in Paris he thus bought no less than forty-seven tea services. Khalil Bey was owner of two horses in Major Fridolin's stable, Bigarreau and Sornette; but their success only came after his ruin.

Mexican Squalor.

The village of Guadaloupe is said to contain more than 3,000 inhabitants, and no doubt it does. But to see the small number of houses, if the little mud huts can be called houses, any American would put the population of the place at about 100. It has to be taken into consideration, however, that 30 or 40 people live in each house, and that a great many people live without any house at all. There is not a "house" in the place that any civilized person would be willing to live in. Every one of the buildings was erected at least a hundred years ago, and every one of them contains the filth of a century. At least half of the inhabitants, it is easy to see, must live in the open air; and that must be much preferable to living in one of the establishments that the Guadaloupe people call houses. Living in the open air naturally strikes an American as being a hardship; but in Mexico it is more of a luxury, for the houses are nests of discomfort, and nests of other kinds that need no description. The reliable encyclopedias and books of travel say that there are no insects on the table-lands of Mexico; but after spending two or three sleepless nights, and going thoroughly through his clothes every morning, and investing much wealth in fine-tooth combs, the traveler needs no information on this point. In the rainy season, lasting about two months, it would be uncomfortable to live under a fragile and leaky tent; but at this time of the year the al fresco population disappears, and goes into the same quarters as are occupied by our own tramps in midwinter—that is, nobody knows where. If you ask where they go, or any other unanswerable question, the Mexican always has a ready answer, "Quien sabe?"—who knows?—Corr. N. Y. Times.

Curious Coincidence in Age.

Dr. Irenæus Prime, in the New York Observer, mentions the following coincidence in ages: At a funeral of a distinguished citizen of New York a large number of the clergy were present by special invitation. The late Rev. Dr. Spring, pastor of the Brick church, was one who bore a part in the service. As we were leaving the house to enter the carriage in waiting, he took my arm, for his eyes were dim and his steps uncertain. I assisted him into the carriage, and Dr. DeWitt took a seat by his side. Dr. Vermilye entered also, and I was shutting the door when one of them bade me come in. I said, "No, my place is with the younger brethren." This was speedily overruled, and I was seated with these fathers of the church. As the procession moved Dr. Vermilye said to me: "You declined our company because of your youth; pray, how old art thou?" "I am fifty-one; and you?" Dr. V. responded "sixty-one." We turned to Dr. DeWitt and begged to know his age, and he said, "I am seventy-one." It was now the patriarch's turn to speak; we looked our desires to Dr. Spring, and he answered, "If I live until February next I shall be eighty-one." "Perhaps a more extraordinary coincidence in ages was never ascertained; four men finding themselves in the same carriage, with a decade between the years of their birth; now all of them beyond the half century, and ascending by tens to fourscore."

A Famine Kitchen in India.

A large quadrangle, surrounded by a high wall, and with one large guarded door, and inside, round the wall, sheds with pens made of bamboo; and down the middle were two rows of sheds, and under the sheds and in the pens little huddled heaps mostly asleep. "Are these animals or human beings?" I think, and then a thing comes toward me—a skeleton! It is easy to say a skeleton—to realize it with all its ghastliness is impossible. The limbs with no flesh, and the joints with nothing to conceal their articulation, are horrible enough; but far more dreadful the head—mostly shaved here—showing not only bone but suture, and worst the poor ribs, back and front, with the shoulder-blades sticking on as if they had been an afterthought; and the poor stomach, how full, but with skin stretched on so tight that one can fancy one can trace the organs within. Now this is not exaggerated in the least. I have described one; they are all the same. And to this [illegible] that would make even a Scotchman scratch himself, and imagine 400 of these beings in one relief kitchen! Yet the famine is over, and many of these are convalescent and making sheds for the rest.—Imperial India, Princeps.

A Fighting Band.

The band, whose strain inspires courage even in the timid, is generally placed behind the troops in action, so as to be sheltered from the enemy's fire; but when the battalions separate and advance in troops, the musicians' position becomes critical, and sometimes flight alone may save them. In the battle of Koniggratz it happened that the band of the Sixty-seventh regiment (Prussian) was cut off from their battalions and discovered by the enemy, who immediately attacked the defenseless musicians. They were almost unarmed, and, in the desperate struggle which arose, some fought with their musical instruments for weapons. Many were wounded, several killed—among the latter two intimate friends, one a married man; the other one charged by the anxious wife of the former to take good care of her husband and to watch over him. His promise that either both or none should return proved a true prophecy; the faithful friend was killed when endeavoring to ward off the blow which an Austrian soldier was about to deal on the other man's head. He sank down, calling out: "I do not surrender!" and expired. The Austrians challenged the surviving men to lay down what arms they had; but Germendorf was intent on revenging his friend; refusing to surrender, he fought like a lion, till several stabs from the bayonets and a shot in the side laid low the hero.—Chambers Journal.

A Sad Exposure.

Among some fresh stories relating to cards we reprint the following from the Evening Post of 5th, found in a very gossipy letter from London:

I hope the New Yorkers do not play cards on Sunday, or that, if they do, they are more careful not to expose themselves than was a gentleman of Birmingham recently. Two Sundays ago this gentleman, while at church, threw his overcoat over a wooden partition in full view of the entire congregation. Lo! just as the most solemn part of the service was rendered, a pack of playing cards fell out of one of the pockets, causing a a terrible clatter, and flying about in all directions. The scene may be imagined. The congregation were at first greatly startled; then the ladies began to titter, while the clergyman looked on "in holy anger and pious grief." The owner of the cards—a merchant living in the fashionable district of Edgbaston—was of course dreadfully embarrassed. He swears that he will eschew "Napoleon" in future, and is prepared to lay a heavy wager that he shall never forget to search his pockets in future before starting for church. Speaking of cards, reminds me that a young gentleman has lost $40,000 by them in in one evening at a well-known West End club in London, and there is a good deal of stir in consequence.

The Very Old Settlers.

Lieut. A. W. Vogeles contributes notes on a lost race of this continent to the January number of the Naturalist, basing his remarks on the discoveries made in the mounds at Tampa, Fla. Excavation of the Fort Brooke mound revealed the position of the original fire places, and a large portion of the animal remains consisted of human bones, the larger of which were charred and split. The human bones were intermixed with those of the dog and the deer, with burned oyster shells and portions of the shells of the common edible sea crab. The race was undoubtedly a cannibal one and the explorers had evidently come on the debris of the kitchen. The pottery and implements found were of a very primitive kind and indicated only a low stage of civilization. From what has been gleaned respecting this lost race the author infers that the habits, ceremonies and manner of interment were parallel with those of the ancient Danes who constructed artificial mounds for the sepulchre of their kings, and the cannibalistic characteristics are similar to those of the Troglodytes of the caverns of Mount Chauvaux, in the province of Namur, Belgium.

Saw Through the Meat.

Madame C——, dressmaker, has a great deal of trouble with her sewing-girls. The other day one of them came to her to say:

"Madam, I fear that I will not be able to work much longer. I think I am getting blind."

"Why, how is that? You seem to get along pretty well with your work."

"Yes; but I can no longer see any meat on my plate at dinner."

Madame C—— understood, and the next day the young ladies were served with very large but very thin pieces of meat.

"What happiness," exclaimed our Miss. "My sight has come back. I can now see better than ever."

"How is that, Madamoiselle?"

"Why, at this moment I can see the plate through the meat."

Promulgating a New Maxim.

"Give a beggar a copper, and it shall come back to you again," would make as good a maxim as any, and a more truthful one than most of them," remarked the philosophical-looking young man of the crowd.

"How so?" inquired the more venturesome members.

"You give him a cent?" gravely explained the first speaker.

"Yes."

"And immediately he bows assent in return!"

Then he looked all around, and they all looked all around, and one of the company with a more bulging brow than the rest leaned against a pillar and groaned as if in agony.

LITTLE KINDNESSES.

BY HANNAH MORE.

Since trifles make the sum of human things,
And half our misery from our foibles springs;
Since life's best joys consist in peace and ease,
And few can save or serve, but all may please;
Oh! let the ungentle spirit learn from hence
A small unkindness is a great offence.
Large bounties to bestow we wish in vain,
But all may shun the guilt of giving pain.

HUMOROUS.

A [illegible] protector—The baggage-master's check.—Cincinnati Saturday Night.

A FELON on the hand is worse than two in the penitentiary.—Boston Globe.

DRUMMER boys die young—cross the Styx at an early age.—Syracuse Times.

WE have plenty of remedies for hard times; now give us one for hard cider.

"ALL men are born free and equal," except the Indians and Chinamen.—Modern Argo.

As the days begin to lengthen, the hope begins to strengthen—that the gas-bill will ease up.—Boston Transcript.

HEARING the murmur of the mighty ocean the river run down to sea.—New Orleans Picayune.

AN accountant who visited Bunker Hill monument last summer, says it is the longest column he ever footed up.

"A SLIPPER in the hand is worth two on my feet," says the stern mother, as she doubles her youngster into a parabolic curve across her knee. Then knee set up a howl.—Syracuse Times.

LIFE is but a span. Marriage is a double team. Youth wedded to old age is a tandem. A cross old bachelor is single and all sulky.—New Orleans Picayune.

THE Indians used to "bury" their dead in the tops of high trees. This was considered an awful joke on the Ohio medical student, burrowing around in the ground beneath.

A SOMERVILLE Sunday school teacher had some remarks the other day about "the fire that never shall be quenched." "What, never?" asked the class in chorus. But he didn't tumble.

JEEMS—"I see, Robin, that the paper says we're tae hae anither storm next Monday." Robin—"Man, it's terrible. Since thae Yankees hiv gotten the weather intae their keepin' we've a storm every ither day."

THE Papyri are no mere ignorami; on the contrary literati and alumni, dilettanti and virtuosi and this sort of thing is so wearing on their eyes that nearly all of them have to wear glasses.—Boston Traveler.

"WHAT ever shall I do with such a bad, bad boy," said a loving mother, as she strove to impress on the mind of her six-year-old tow-head his manifold troublesomeness. "Oh, you let me alone; I ain't half as bad as I can be."

"AT First Hand:" Country connoisseur—"Now, are you quite sure those are real chromos?" Country dealer (draper and grocer, etc.,)—"Oh, yes, sir; we always has 'em direct from his studio, sir."

A NEVADA girl's love letter—"Dear Jimmy: It's all up. We ain't going to get married. Ma says you're too rough, and I guess she's right. I'm sorry—but can't you go to Europe and get filed down?"

THE village is flooded with spurious silver coin. We asked a witty Irishman if he had any idea where it came from. "Yes, sir, they come from some fellow's base-mint, and the buyer passes them to the seller again."

A BOY only 12 years of age, named Eddie Lawlor, has been sentenced by a Texas court to five years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. When the sentence was pronounced he laughed and said: "Five years ain't long. Why, I can stand on my head most of the time."

PROF. SMITH, the Rochester astronomer, has a son who when four years old one night saw the moon and gazed at it with curiosity. A few days after, when it was quartered, he looked at it again, and observed, "Somebody's been up and cut off pa's moon."

"SOUND," said the schoolmaster, "is what you hear. For instance you cannot feel a sound." "Oh, yes, you can!" said a smart boy. "John Wilkins," retorted the pedagogue, "how do you make that out? What sound can you feel?" "A sound thrashing," quickly replied the smart boy.

A LITTLE girl visiting a neighbor with her mother was gazing curiously at the hostess' new bonnet, when the owner queried, "Do you like it, Laura?" The innocent replied: "Why, mother said it was a perfect fright; but it don't scare me." Laura's mother didn't stay long after that.

THE fashion reporter who wrote with reference to a belle, "Her feet were encased in shoes that might be taken for fairy boots," tied his wardrobe up in a handkerchief and left for parts unknown, when it appeared next morning: "Her feet were encased in shoes that might be taken for ferry-boats."

JUDGE—"Your client had better make a compromise; ask her what she will take." Counsel—"My good woman, his lordship asks what you will take." Old woman—"I'm obliged to his lordship" (courtesy), "as he's so kind," (courtesy). "I'll just take a glass o' warm ale.—Patchwork, by Frederick Locker.

A FRENCH colonel, on a tour of inspection, addressed a soldier—"Are you content with your food?" The soldier—"Yes, Colonel." The colonel—"How do you divide the rations? Does it not often happen that some of you get a large portion, and others a small one?" The soldier—"No, Colonel, all the portions are small."

"SEE the moon," said a lady to her nephew, a bright little boy of five, as they sat looking out the window the other day. "The moon?" said the little man. "You can't see the moon in the daytime." "Yes you can, continued his aunt; "there it is over the trees." The little fellow had to admit that he saw it, but added, "Tain't lighted, anyway."—Boston Transcript.

A LITTLE three-year-old girl volunteered to say grace at the table, and did so as follows: "O Lord bress the things we eat; bress mamma and papa, and gamma and gampa," and here, casting up her eyes to her grandpa in the next seat, and discovering that he was smiling, the little one closed her prayer by saying, "Behave yourself, gampa—for Christ's sake. Amen.

FRUIT HOUSE BULLETIN

Great Reduction in Goods.

Syrups and Molasses all down ten cents per gallon.
Coffees reduced another two cents per pound.
Leghorn Citron down fifteen cents per pound.
Zantee Currents down five cents per pound.
Best Teas reduced 10 cents per pound.
Candies down three cents per pound.
Sugars all down one cent per pound.
Raisins down three cents per pound.

ALL REDUCED 10 and 20 per cent.

Rio Coffee.

The very best, 15 cents per pound. Second grade 11 cents per lb. Roasted coffee, 15 cts., best 19 cts. per lb.

Teas! Teas!

At no time in the history of the trade have Teas been so low. Another decline of 10c. per lb. brings the best of Teas within the reach of all. We now sell a good Tea for 20c. A choice extra drawing Tea for 40 and 50c, and the best Tea in the market for 70c. Young Hyson, 20, 40, best 70c., Imperial 40, best 70c., Oolong 20, 40, best 70c., Uncolored Jxpan 20, 40, best 60c., Gunpowder, eatra choice, 40, best 50 and 70c. per pound

Sugars Down 1c.

Coffee A Sugar 8c, Extra C 7 c, Yellow 6c, Grushed, Powdered and Granulated 9 cents.

Raisins, Currents, Citron, Lemon and Orange Peel,

Down 3 to 10c. per lb., best Valencia Raisins 8c., choice Zantee Currants 5c., best Leghorn Citron 15c, Lemon and Orange Peel 20c., Sicily shelled Almons 40c., Brazil Nuts 8c., Filberts 12c., Texas Peacans 8c

Toy Candies of all Descriptions.

Apples, Pears, Plums, Apricots, and the finest Candies at 25c per lb. Last year they were sold at 40c. Choice French mixed candy 15c, and the best stick candy 12c. 3ct. reduction on candy.

Tobaccos.

Good plug 40c., best 50c. Twin Brothers 65c. Smoking 30c., best 35c. Goldn Shorts, finest goods 35c. Uncle Ned, Fancy Turkish 45c.

Fish Oil and Neat's Foot Oil Down 15 cents per Gallon.

Best Fish Oil 70c, and Neat's Foot Oil 70c; Machine Oil 20c, best 40c, Coal Oil 12½c, Head Light 18c

CIGARS—In ½ boxes, full boxes and one-fourth boxes, extra choice Cigars $1.25 per 100; good Havanas $2, best $3 per 100

Fresh Oysters.

15c per can. Select Frying 17c and 2c8 per can. Cove Oysters 5c ents per can.

We are doing a rushing trade, continually increasing, and we guarantee our customers a saving of at least 20c. on the dollar at the

FORT WAYNE FRUIT HOUSE.

Family Groceries!

LANNING' SPRICE LIST.

TEAS! TEAS!

Young Hyson	60c very best 70c
Imperial	" " 65c
Japan	" " 60c
Oolong	" " 50c
Gun Powder	" " 40c

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Arbuckels' [Roasted]	23c per lb.
Rio	15c very best 18c " "

SUGARS! SUGARS!

White	10½ pounds for one dollar
Extra C	12 " " "
Grocers C	14 " " "

White Beans per lb. 3½c., Dried Peaches per lb. 6c., Hominy per lb. 3c., Cranberries per qt. 8c, Dried Sweet Corn 13 lbs. for $1.00, Oat Meal 7 lbs. for 25c., cucumber Pickles per doz. 8c. Besides a complete [illegible] of Confectioneries, Canned Fruits, Soaps, Notions, Flour, Butter, Eggs, Syrups, &c., &c.

Goods delivered at all times.

Geo. L. Lanning.

Davenport the Druggist.

Pure Drugs and Medicines,
Choice Soaps and Perfumery,
Excellent Combs and Brushes,
Fine Hair Oils and Pomades

ALL SOLD AND WARRANTED BY

DAVENPORT THE DRUGGIST

Also a splendid stock of Stationery Goods, such as

Wall Paper, Window Shades, Pocket Books,
School Books, Blank Books, Pens, Pencils,
Inks, Mucilage, Stationery, Gold Pens, etc.

All to be sold at the lowest prices by.

Davenport the Druggist, Auburn, Ind.

8-31-1 yr.

CLIPPINGS.

—Appearances are deceiving, judge not hastily.

—The winter of discontent is the coldest of all winter.

—In talking or writing, let your words be few but well chosen.

—The best way to condemn bad traits is by practicing good ones.

—All persons know when they are knaves; few when they are fools.

—Every art is best taught by example; good deeds produce good friends.

—He censures God who quarrels with the imperfections of men.—Burke.

—Little expenses, like mice in a barn, when they are many, make a great waste.

—Falsehood always endeavors to copy the men and attitude of truth.—Johnson.

—If a tree has not blossomed in the spring, you will vainly look for fruit on it in the autumn.

We have plenty of remedies for hard times; now give us one for hard cider.—Wheeling Leader.

Owing to the near approach of the hand-organ season, pianos have declined in price.—Philadelphia Chronicle.

—To be covetous of applause discovers a slender merit, and self-conceit is the ordinary attendant of ignorance.

—It is the heaven upon earth to have a man's mind move in charity, rest in Providence, and turn upon the poles of truth.—Bacon.

Next to a seal skin sacque, nothing will please a woman of 80 so much as to be mistaken for her niece of 16.—Brookville Democrat.

The foundation for the meanest man is laid when a small boy turns the worm-hole in an apple for his companion to bite from.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Now that crimped hair is becoming fashionable again, ladies are advised, if they want to get their hair in waves, to take an ocean both.—New Haven Register.

There are members of the Detroit Common Council whom the city would like to trade off even for mules. Don't hesitate because your mule is lame and poor.—Free Press.

A Vermont woman has sold her two-year-old daughter for $25. A pretty high price, considering that daughters of 18 years and upwards are so often given away.—Boston Transcript.

Tongue cannot tell the words or express the astonishment of the crippled soldier in Connecticut who awoke to find his wife using his wooden leg to pound the beefsteak for breakfast.—Donnelsville Sentinel.

The dey of Algiers has been disappointed in gaining the consent of a French woman for whose hand he recently proposed. Unfortunately for the ardent lover, she was already married. His Algerine excellency was a dey after the fair in more senses than one.—Boston Gazette

The shah of Persia has written a new book, and every newspaper critic in that land will say it is the most able and interesting work ever issued from the press. They would rather tell a lie than have their heads chopped off.—Norristown Herald.

—I despair of ever reaching the same degree of pleasure from the most exalted performances of genius which I felt in childhood for pieces which my present judgment regards as trifling and contemptible.—Burke.

—There is to me a daintiness about early flowers that touches me like poetry; they blow out with such a simple loveliness among the comman herbs of pastures and breathe there so unobtrusively, like hearts too gentle for the world.—Willis.

—The talent of turning men into ridicule, and exposing to laughter those one converses with, is the gratification of little minds and ungenerous tempers. A young man with this cast of mind cuts himself off from all manner of improvements.—Addison.

People make too much fuss altogether over these athletic exhibitions. In his greatest match O'Leary didn't walk as far by seven miles as a weak woman out on North Hill did while she was trying to match the shade of a ribbon.—Burlington Hawkeye.

When a poor clergyman is asked to accept a congregation with $5,000 salary, he says he has a "call" there, but when a rich pastor is called to a church with $500 a year, he never "sees" it; he "stays"—where he is.—Oil City Derrick.

How the hearts of American women must bleed when they reflect that their sex in South Africa are totally ignorant of the precious boon of a half peck of hair pins when dressing their tresses. Hair pins are a great civilizer.—Norristown Herald.

Slang is bad enough when uttered by a man; but when it proceeds from the rosy lips of gentle women it is unbearable. We heard a young lady at the table say—and she said it without blushing, too—"O, that is too fresh!" Horrible! horrible! She referred to the butter.—Boston Transcript.

A Bridgeport man stopped his paper because it didn't contain a sure cure for dyspepsia, as usual. The infallible remedy for consumption was there all right, but by accident the dyspepsia cure was left out. He was awfully indignant, and said he was 75 years old, had never known a paper to fail that way before.—Bridgeport Standard.

—The softest whisper excites vibrations in the atmosphere around us which ceases not this side of the boundless ether; so the act and thought of an immortal man, however insignificant may color a life-time, may leave influences which shall not cease until time shall be no longer; influences for good or evil, to millions of immortals like himself, for unending ages.

The Boston Post says over 36,000,000 pairs of striped stockings were worn in the United States last year. It can not be. There must be some mistake. In the whole course of our existance we never saw a striped stocking. Is not the Post thinking of the ribbons occasionally worn on the bonnet of the period? What is a stocking, and why should it have stripes? The Post's figures are worthless without further information.—Buffalo Express.

Remark of severe parent to blooming daughter upon discovering that one of the legs of the big chair in the parlor had been broken the Sunday evening previous: "I wish you to understand, Susan, that this chair was constructed with a view to the accommodation of one person at a time, and has not the strength and scarcely the capacity for two."—Newark Call.

No one ever succeeded in extracting honey from a spelling bee. Didn't eh? A young man who attended a spelling bee in this town three years ago took therefrom a young lady whom he recently married, and he calls her "honey" for short, and thinks she is ten times sweeter than that saccharine product of the bee. What he will call her a few years hence is a question we hand over to our puzzle solvers.—Norristown Herald.

The Nation's Boarding School.

Here are some of the scholars, their virtues, traits, etc:

Dela Ware—A petite damsel, generally talkative, but who, last year, was peachless.

Mary Land—National. Always with an ocean before her.

Minnie Sota—The flour of the school.

Flora Day—Displays great taste in her orangements.

Carrie Lina—To memory dear, yet ever forgotten.

Louisa Anna—A sorrowful maiden. Her lasses are found in tierce.

Mrs. Ippi—It is her namesake, not herself, which has the big mouth.

Miss Oury—Likes company. Misery always likes company.

Ida Ho—A near relative to "Whoa, Emma."

Miss Chigan—The sweet singer.

Allie Bama—A tom-boy—she belongs to the sonny climb.

A Hard Sunday.

[Detroit Free Press.]

The head of a boy about 10 years old might have been seen sticking through a picket fence on Beaubien street Sunday evening as a loud "yah-hoo!" signal was given to some one in the house. A lad of "thereabouts" finally opened the door and came out and asked:

"Is that you Jim? What yer want?"

"I didn't see ye down where we was riding on cakes of ice in the slip," replied the other.

"I know ye didn't. This has been the hardest Sunday I ever put in on earth."

"Dad sick?"

"No, dad's in Saginaw, but ma'm got some gold in her front teeth yesterday, and she was bound to go to church today if it killed her. I had to run all over and borry things for her, and then stay home and take keer of sis."

"Is it real gold, Jim?"

"I guess so, for she went in the morning, than in the afternoon, then to a lecture, and she's now gittin ready for the evenin' sermon an' practicin' on showin' her three front teeth. I'm goin to run away as soon as grass starts!"

An Awful Dance—Too Much Hugging, by All Odds.

A newspaper correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer writes: "That dreadful round dance, the new hug-and-jump waltz, is making the innocent blush all over New York. The posture couldn't be worse. The gentleman stands directly in front of the lady, puts his right arm clear around her and hugs her as close as a bear could hug a tree. Thus melted into each other's arms, they go hopping around the room like a saw-mill gate. The fellows like it. They say they've never had a dance where they could hug a girl up absolutely close—where they could put on the arm pressure and bring her so close that they could feel her heart beat against their vests. If Mrs. Gen. Sherman was in New York now she would go crazy. Country people, not accustomed to hugging, actually blush with shame, and delicate ladies hang their heads and turn their eyes away. What could be more pleasant than to put your arm around twenty beautiful young ladies in an evening, bringing their blushing faces to touch yours, and squeeze them tight, while their throbbing bosoms press against your heart? And this is fashion! I have joined Mrs. Sherman!"

A Key to a Person's Name.

By the accompanying table of letters, the name of a person or word may be found out in the following manner:

A	B	D	H	P
C	C	E	I	Q
E	F	F	J	R
G	G	G	K	S
I	J	L	L	T
K	K	M	M	U
M	N	N	N	V
O	O	O	O	W
Q	R	T	X	X
S	S	V	Y	Z
U	V	V	Y	Z
W	W	W	W
Y	Z

Let the person whose name you wish to know inform you in which of the upright columns the first letter of his name is contained. If it be found in but one column, it is the top letter; if it occurs in more than one column, it is found by adding the alphabetical numbers of the top letters of these columns, and the sum will be the number of the letters sought. By taking one letter at a time in this way, the whole can be ascertained. For example, take the word Jane. J is found in the two columns commencing with B and H, which are the second and eighth letters down the alphabet; their sum is ten, and the tenth letter down the alphabet is J, the letter sought. The next letter A, appears in but one column, where it stands at the top. N is seen in the column headed B, D and H; these are the second, fourth and eighth letters of the alphabet, which added give the fourteenth, and so on. The use of this table will excite no little curiosity among those unacquainted with the foregoing explanation.

To Township Trustees and School Boards.

We keep in stock a full line of copyrighted Records and Blanks for the use of Trustees. School Directors and road Supervisors, which we offer at low figures. We have the most complete system ever introduced in the state. For simplicity our Records excel all others. Call and examine the goods.

RAILROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R. R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after Sep. 29 1878, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST.

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accom.
Toledo	11 [illegible]	12 01 a m	10 pm
Wauseon	12 16 "	1 [illegible] "	"
Bryan	1 05 "	1 [illegible] "	"
Butler	1 32 "	2 25 "	"
Waterloo	1 [illegible] "	2 40 "	"
Sedan	2 10 "	2 50 "	"
Corunna	2 15 "	2 55 "	"
Kendallville	2 30 "	3 05 "	"
Ligonier	2 57 "	3 40 "	"
Goshen	3 28 "	4 10 "	"
Elkhart	4 00 "	4 35 "	6 15 "

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	1 10 p m	9 50 p m	3 05 "
Goshen	1 20 "	10 10 "	"
Ligonier	1 55 "	10 42 "	"
Kendallville	2 20 "	11 15 "
Corunna	2 40 "	11 22 "
Sedan	2 47 "	11 30 "
Waterloo	2 55 "	11 45 "
Butler	3 10 "	12 01 a m
Bryan	3 45 "	12 40 "
Wauseon	4 27 "	1 27 "
Toledo	5 40 "	2 40 "	9 50

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. R. CURTIS, Division Supt.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card Nov. 10, 1878.

GOING WEST.

	No. 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Night ex	No. 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 12	2 55	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 50	2 26	7 13	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	3 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	3 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 55	11 25
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 55	2 40
Plymouth	3 50	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 00	7 58

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 30 a.m.	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 48	8 55
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 25 pm	11 30
Lima	8 55	4 20	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 27	2 33
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 05
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 15	6 05am
Mansfield	12 35	7 45	4 55	6 55
Orrville	2 26	9 38	7 00	9 15
Alliance	4 00	11 15	9 00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 20 am	11 06	2 00pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15 pm	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect November 10, 1878.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1 Mail.	3 Express
FORT WAYNE	1 00 pm	5 40 pm
Bluffton	2 12 pm	6 53 pm
Montpelier	2 52 pm	7 32 pm
Hartford	3 7 pm	7 58 pm
MUNCIE	4 08 pm	8 50 pm
Newcastle	5 00 pm
Cambridge City	5 37 pm
Connersville	6 17 pm
Cincinnati	9 20 pm
INDIANAPOLIS	6 15 pm	10 55 pm
Louisville	11 00 pm	8 [illegible] am
Terre Haute		1 32 am
St. Louis		7 30 am

STATIONS	GOING NORTH 2 Mail.	4 Express	Accom.
St. Louis		8 40 am	7 00 pm
Terre Haute		3 27 pm	1 32 am
Louisville		2 00 pm	6 30 pm
Indianapolis		6 40 pm	4 15 am
Cincinnati	8 00 am
Connersville	11 13 am
Cambridge City	11 48 am
New Castle	12 25 pm
Muncie	1 25 pm	9 20 pm	6 45 am
Hartford	2 13 pm	10 08 pm	7 47 am
Montpelier	2 40 pm	10 31 pm	8 19 am
Bluffton	3 13 pm	11 09 pm	9 15 am
Fort Wayne	4 25 pm	12 15 am	10 45 am

Trains Nos. 1 and 2 run through between Fort Wayne and Cincinnati without change.

Through cars are attached to trains Nos. 1 and and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, via Muncie.

All trains daily except Sunday.

Trains run on Columbus time.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line.

75 Miles Shortest to Indianapolis, Louisville and all points South. 52 Miles the Shortest to St. Louis, Kansas, Texas, and all points West. Direct Route to Detroit and all Michigan and Canada points.

TIME CARD IN EFFECT DEC. 29. '78.

SOUTH.	MAIL.	EX.	ACC.
Bay City		6 30am
Saginaw		7 15am
Lansing		9 0 am
Detroit		7 00am	2 50pm
Ann Arbor		8 30am	4 05pm
Jackson	6 10am	11 45am	5 40pm
Jonesville	7 19am	12 45pm	7 55am
Bankers	7 36am	1 12pm	8 20pm
Waterloo	9 30am	2 50pm	11 37pm
Auburn	9 46am	3 00pm	11 25pm
Auburn Junc.	9 52am	3 08pm	12 08am
Ft. Wayne	10 45am	3 55pm	1 25am
Indianapolis	6 15pm	10 55pm
Cincinnati	9 20pm
Louisville	10 25pm	8 20am
St. Louis	7 30am	7 30am
Washington		8 10pm
Baltimore		9 10pm

NORTH.	X.	EX.	ACC.
Baltimore		7 10am
Washington		8 21am
St. Louis	8 00am	7 00pm
Louisville	2 00pm	6 30pm
Cincinnati			8 00am
Indianapolis	6 35pm	4 30am
Ft. Wayne	5 00am	11 40am	4 30pm
Auburn Junc.	5 55am	12 30pm	6 [illegible]pm
Auburn	6 00am	12 35pm	6 10pm
Waterloo	6 14am	12 46pm	6 55pm
Bankers	8 05am	2 22pm	10 10pm
Jonesville	8 18am	2 30pm	10 35pm
Jackson	9 25am	3 45pm	12 30am
Ann Arbor	10 46am	5 10pm	2 05am
Detroit	12 0 am	6 30pm	3 35am
Lansing		5 55pm
Saginaw		9 13pm
Bay City		10 00pm

All trains daily except Sunday. Through tickets to all principal points. For information as to routes and connections apply to

F. B. LOOMIS, Pres't & Gen'l Mang'r.
S. K. HOOPER, Gen'l Ticket Ag't.

J. BRINKERHOFF,

BOUNTY AND PENSION AGENT.

LAND WARRANTS

Obtained for Soldiers, their Widows and Heirs for services in the Revolutionary War, the Indian Wars, War of 1812 and the Mexican War. Bounties for Soldiers', their Widows and Heirs for service in the war of 1861. Also Pensions for Soldiers', Widows and Heirs for military services in any war of the United States. Many soldiers now drawing pesions are entitled to

INCREASE OF PENSION.

If you think you are more disabled now than when you received your pension certificate, give me a call. Having been engaged in this business for the past 20 years I hope to render satisfaction. Counsel in regard to all claims against the Government, gratis.

J. BRINKERHOFF,
Main street, Auburn, Ind.

Detroit Eel River & Illinois R R.

TAKE EFFECT DEC. 2, 1878.

GOING EAST.

Stations.	MAIL No. 2,	ACCOM. No. 4,	LOCAL FT No. 6,
lv. Logansport	8 20am	7 30pm	6 45am
Mexico	9 15	8 [illegible]	7 51
Denver	9 27	9 05	8 46
Chili	9 36	9 18	9 06
Roann	9 55	9 37	9 52
Laketon	10 13	10 00	10 36
N. Manchester	10 25	10 17	11 10
Liberty Mills	[illegible]	[illegible]	11 37
Collamer	10 41	10 36	12 20
S. Whitley	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
Columbia City	11 25	11 05	1 40
Collin's	11 40	[illegible]	[illegible]
Churubusco	12 00	12 15	2 50
La Otto	12 25	12 41	3 0[illegible]
Cedar Creek	12 36	12 53	4 15
Auburn Junct'n	12 50	1 12	4 54
Aubura	12 55	1 17	4 56
Butler	1 30pm	2 00am	6 30pm

GOING WEST.

Stations.	No. 1,	No.	No. 7,
Logansport ar.	7 10pm	1 55pm	5 50pm
Mexico	6 22	12 35	3 35
Denver	6 25	12 05	3 20
Chili	6 17	11 57	3 10
Roann	6 00	11 02	2 50
Laketon	5 40	10 26	2 51
North Manchester	5 36	10 12	1 30
Liberty Mills	5 26	10 12	1 09
Collamar	5 15	9 13	12 40
South Whitley	5 11	9 48	12 30
Columbia City	4 48	9 12	11 25
Collin's	4 30	8 46	10 37
Churubusco	4 15	8 29	10 04
La Otto	3 55	7 57	9 02
Cedar Creek	3 43	7 45	8 25
Auburn Junction	3 25	7 25	8 00
Auburn	3 20	7 18	7 18
Butler lv.	2 40pm	7 30am	6 30

FRANK J. BECKER,
Gen. Sup't

A PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE.

THE LOUISVILLE

Courier-Journal!

Largest, Best and Cheapest Family Paper in the United States.

EDITED BY

HENRY WATERSON.

The COURIER-JOURNAL is a combination (made in 1868) of three old Louisville papers, viz: the Journal, established in 1830; the Courier, in 1843, and the Democrat, in 1844. Its reputation is national, as well as its circulation, and it is pronounced one of the ablest and best arranged papers in the world; its matter being especially adapted to the merchant, the farmer and the family circle.

The WEEKLY COURIER-JOURNAL is not a mere hotch-potch thrown together from the daily edition, but a complete, able, spicy family newspaper, carefully and intelligently edited in every column and paragraph.

TO AGENTS AND CLUBS

Extraordinary inducements in the way of cash commissions and valuable premiums are offered to agents and clubs.

Choice from standard books of the times, and a choice selection of the leading magazines or illustrated periodicals of the day furnished in combination with the Weekly for a mere pittance in addition to the price of the COURIER-JOURNAL alone.

A new edition of Prentice's Poems, beautifully printed and bound and the Weekly Courier-Journal one year for $1.00.

A Splendid Map of the South

Size 28½x32 inches, handsomely colored, varnished, and hung on rollers, retail price $2 00; mailed free of postage, and the Weekly Courier-Journal, one year, for $2.00.

Terms of Subscription.

Daily Courier Journal, a year	$12.00
Sunday Courier-Journal, a year	2.00
Weekly Courier-Journal, with map, a year.	2.00

A liberal discount allowed to clubs raised for the Courier-Journal.

[Postage in all cases prepaid by the publishers]

Agent's outfit, specimen copies, list of books and magazines and descriptive circulars sent free on application. Send for outfit giving full particulars to agents.

Letters should be addressed to

W. L. HALDEMAN,
President Courier-Journal Co.
Louisville, Ky.

COMPETITION

Is the life of trade; therefore

Henry Gugerli!

Ha opened a new Merchant Tailor establishment, in which he makes a specialty of Ladies' Cloakings!

Which will be cut and fit, and made up if desired. For Gents' wear a

FULL LINE OF PIECE GOODS!

Always in stock to select from, at

Five to Ten Dollars

a suit less than the same goods can be bought for elsewhere. A full suit made to order, in the latest style, ready to put on, in

24 Hours Notice!

Remember that all work is done in the latest style, and satisfaction is guaranteed in every particular. 43-6m.

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,
Rogers & Bro. Silverware,
A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SETS

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry neatly repaired on short notice.

"Recorders Office"

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 9. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, MARCH 27, 1879. Number 13.

The Auburn Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY BY

THE COURIER COMP'Y.

THEODORE REED, Editor.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will be inserted under this head for $5,00 per annum. For each additional line 50 cents extra will be charged.

ATTORNEYS.

W. H. Dills.

ATTORNEY AND NOTARY. Auburn DeKalb County Indiana.

D. D. Moody,

ATTORNEY AT LAW. NOTARY PUBLIC Office in Court House. Auburn, Ind.

H. C. Peterson.

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' Hardware store, Auburn, Indiana.

A. F. Pinchin

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Butler, DeKalb county, Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

Thos. H. Sportt.

REAL ESTATE, COLLECTION AND INSURance Agent. Loans effected on improved farms. Kansas lands for sale or trade.
Auburn, Indiana

Guy Plumb,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over First National Bank. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for the Home Insurance Company

PHYSICIANS.

Drs. Cowan & Allyn,

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. OFFICE in Case's block, Auburn, Indiana.

Dr. W. S. Allen,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store, Auburn, Ind.

Dr. T. G. Matheny,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, OFFICE ONE Door North of City Bakery, Auburn, Ind. All callspromptly attended to.

Dr. J. Miller.

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON AND ACCOUCHER. Gunsenhouser's Corners, two miles east of Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind.

Dr. T. W. Tritch.

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN ANDSURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block.
Auburn, Indiana.

Dr. T. J. Dills,

Especial attention given to Diseases of the EYE and EAR. Rooms 1 and 2 Odd Fellows' building. Office hours—9:30 to 12 a. m.; 1 to 3 p. m.; 7 to 8 p. m. Fort Wayne, Ind.

D. J. Swarts, M. D.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO DISEASES of the Eye and Ear, Fistula in Ano, Hemorrhoids or Piles and Chronic Ulcers. Office on Main street, over Shaffer's Furniture Store, Auburn, Ind.

Dr. S. B. Johnson,

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

Central House,

TENTH STREET. EAST OF MAIN. GOOD Sample rooms, and low rates.
T. D. Gross, Prop'r Auburn, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Sands House,

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished Only $2.00 per day.
GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk. O. SANDS, Proprietor

Mayer House.

Fort Wayne, Indiana Under the Management of W. W. REED, rates, two dollars per day. Street Cars to and from the Pittsburgh, Wabash and Grand Rapids R. R. Depots.
S. BRUBAKER,
W. W. REED, JR., } In Office.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Tonsorial Artist.

HAIRDRESSING AND SHAVING EXECUted with special care, and in good taste. Room on West Seventh street. WM. EDDINGTON Prop'r. Auburn, Ind.

Trustee's Notice.

NOTICE is hereby given that I will be at my residence in Franklin township, for the transaction of township business, on Tuesday of each week.
B. F. GREENWOOD, Trustee.
2-6m.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examinations begin at 10 o'clock A. M.
JAMES A. BARNS Co. Sup't.

DEAR SIR:

If you are in want of anything in the way of GUNS, RIFLES REVOLVERS Pistols, ammunition, gun material, fishing tackle, or any other Fine Sporting Goods please send stamp for my large illustrated catalogue and price list.
Yours truly,
Address, JOHNSTON'S Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburgh, Pa. 31-3m.

METROPOLITAN RESTAURANT AND Confectionery Establishment,

The best brands of oysters always on hand in season, and served to suit customers. Warm meals served at all hours. Day boarders taken at low rates. Fancy candies and fine cigars made specialties.
42-6m. SHERMAN HOLLISTER, Prop.

SATAN'S SPOUSE.

A Murder Which for Fiendish Cruelty Has no Parallel on Record.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat Special.]

News travels slowly from the more remote and mountainous parts of Eastern Kentucky. Horrible crimes committed there are sometimes unheard of at the news centers for weeks after their occurrence. Such was a murder committed near Manchester, in Clay county, about two weeks ago, which for fiendish cruelty has no parellel on record. A man named Larcen Deering a laborer living upon the land of State Senator J. Hyden, being a widower with three daughters, concluded to marry again. He took to wife a woman considerable his junior, with a reputation none too good. The two eldest daughters of Deering, not liking their step-mother, left home to shift for themselves. The youngest, a child between nine and ten years of age, was left at the mercy of the cruel step-mother. The dislike which this woman conceived for this child became intense. When she herself became a mother she began a course of persecution which ran on for six or eight months and ended in murder. The narrator, a gentleman who arrived from Clay county this evening, a brother-in-law of Senator Hyden, hardly knew where to begin his recital of the cruelties that this murderess practiced. She was arrested and tried about six months ago for abuse of the child. During the recent severe cold weather our informant says she tried to freeze it to death, never allowing it to come near the fire, and on one occasion cutting off two of its frost-bitten fingers. She was in the habit of pinching the child's flesh, and with a knife or scissors cutting off the portions that were thus raised between her fingers. She varied this cruelty by sticking the point of her scissors in the little thing's limbs. In the wounds she rubbed soot and ashes. When the little body was washed and laid out before the coroner's jury, the strong, rude men shed tears of pity at the sight. Two fingers could not be laid on the child's body without covering flesh wounds, like those described. She had lost fingers and toes by frost-bite. Death was produced in this barbarous manner. Deering had gone with John Hyden to get some timber, leaving Hyden's horse hitched to a fence near the House. While they were absent the female brute seized the now thoroughly cowed and helpless child and then dealt it a blow on the back of the head with a board. She then made a rope of homespun skirting and suspended the little girl from a beam in the kitchen, putting on such additional weight as to effectually break the neck. Taking the body down she laid it on a bed, and then killed a chicken or two, which she ostentatiously displayed to account for the blood. Fearing that this plan would not prove successful, she carried the body out on the open lot, and, placing it on the frozen ground unhitched the horse and let him loose to roam in the same patch. She then sent word to her husband that the child was dead, and that Mr. Hyden's horse had killed it. Hyden and Deering returned, and were not long in suspecting the truth. The enraged husband and father proposed then and there to make a pile of fence-rails, and burn the inhuman wretch. Mr. Hyden let the law take its course, however The murderess was arrested and placed in London Jail to await the action of the circuit court. The people are much incensed against Deering, as well as against the woman, for permitting his child to be abused. The murderess laughed and attempted to be humorous when arrested, and apparently felt not a particle of compunction at the doing of a deed so horrible that to contemplate it made strong men sick.

* * *

Mr. Whiteaker's Quick Time Across the Continent.

While Rowell, Ennis and Harriman were making a race for the belt and the gate money. Congressman Whiteaker, of Oregon, was racing for Washington. Every Democratic vote was considered necessary for to-day's organization of the House and when the extra session was called Mr. Whiteaker started from Oregon. After various delays he reached San Francisco, but the train he required to reach Washington on time had been gone 24 hours. He hired a special train, started at noon on Wednesday last in pursuit of the one he had missed, and made the run of 1,928 miles to Omaha in 64 hours, the usual time being 101 hours. At Chicago the schedule train was overtaken, and yesterday at 9:02 he rolled into Washington, having made his journey across the continent in three hours less than five days which is said to be the quickest time on record. In 1852 Mr. Whiteaker crossed the plains in an ox team, and was five months in doing it.

Integrity and Courage.

The Democratic party has integrity and fidility. It is absolutely and preeminently the party of the constitution. From the principles of constitutional government, as declared by Jefferson, it has never swerved. It has battled straight on to the right, and the sober second thought of the people has always vindicated its patriotism. But there have been periods in the history of the country when the Democratic party evidenced a want of courage. Great questions have been before the courts, involving the constitutional rights of the people—and on more than one occasion the Democratic party permitted the Republicans to overwhelm it in defeat. But the time for weak concessions has past; the era of courage has dawned. It is not reckless, unseemly, vaulting bravado, but the courage which, when the right is seen, steadfastly maintains it. The lessons of the past are not to go unheeded. There is no mistaking the crisis now upon the country. The simple question is, says an exchange: "Shall fraudulent elections be perpetuated by law, or shall honesty, purity and freedom at the polls be restored by remitting to the people the control of their own affairs? The Federal election acts have worked fraud, and nothing but fraud. Under their operation, a drunken judge issued a midnight order forbidding a sovereign State to exercise its legitimate functions, and the army of the United States was called in to enforce that order. Under their operation John I Davenport, from his hotel parlor, sent out an edict ordering the arrest of any one of 10,000 voters who appeared at the polls bearing naturalization papers issued in the year 1868. Where these laws have not been used to foster and promote fraud, they have been simply a source of waste and extravagance."

Congress is pledged to the repeal of this Federal election law, as also to the repeal of the law permitting the use of bayonets at the polls. To do this it becomes necessary to make the repeal the condition of an appropriation. The laws are simply infamous. Their repeal is demanded by every consideration of right, and we conclude that the Democratic party has the courage necessary to complete what it has undertaken.—Ind. Sentinel.

* * *

Birthdays.

Keep the birthdays religiously. They belong exclusively to and are treasured among the sweetest memories of home, Do not let anything prevent some token be it ever so slight, that it is remembered. Birthdays are great events to children. For one day they feel that they are heroes. The special pudding is made expressly for them; a new jacket or trowsers with pockets, or the first pair of boots, are donned; and big brothers and sisters sink into insignificance beside "little Charlie," who is "six today," and is soon "going to be a man." Fathers who have half a dozen little ones to care for are apt to neglect birthdays; they come too often—sometimes when they "are nervous;" but if they only knew how much such souvenirs are cherished by their pet Susy or Harry, years afterwards, when away from the heartstone they have none to remind them that they had one more year to the perhaps weary round of life, or to wish them, in the old-fashioned phrase, "many happy returns of their birth," they would never permit any cause to step between them and a parent's privilege.

* * *

The Chicago Times in defining its position politically, says: "Thus far the next presidency, as the situation is now presented, between, say, Sherman or Blaine on the one side, and Hendricks or Thurman on the other, it would prefer either of the former to either of the latter; and so between Tilden and Grant it would infinitely prefer the former, because, objectionable as Tilden is in some respects, he would be unspeakably more desirable than Grant, whose infliction upon the country for another period would be the direst of calamities. Of all the gentlemen now prominently before the public, Bayard is preferable. But these are mentioned only as examples."

* * *

WILMINGTON TOWNSHIP.

MR. EDITOR:—This please give space in your columns. The school No. 11 closed on the 14th inst. The school was taught by Mr. Boyles, of Butler. They had a very good time the last day and had a good term of school and good attendance. School No. 12 closed on Friday 21, Miss Lotta Chilson, teacher. Our school No. 10 closed on the 13th. Good attendance [illegible] term. Perhaps I can do better next time.
BOWSER.

The Pedo-Motor.

From the parlor or roller skate has been evolved a curious device called a pedo-motor. The apparatus is practically a sandal shod with wheels and is designed to assist the lame and halt in walking and the ordinary walker in making good time. The sandal is provided with four wooden wheels bound with rubber, two on each side, and when strapped to the boot gives the wearer a firm footing. From the toe projects a point, or supplementary toe, shod with rubber, and at the heel is a similar projection almost touching the ground and shod with leather. In using these wheeled sandals the ordinary walking step is taken, one foot giving the body a slight push with the pusher, or toe, while the other foot rests flat on the four wheels. The result obtained is a greatly lengthened stride as the sandal rolls forward under the influence of the push and the walker practically gets over much more ground and with less exertion than in ordinary shoes. The pedomotor is reported to give a good walker a speed of twelve miles an hour over good sidewalks, and while the apparatus may be regarded as a mechanical curiosity, it is worthy some attention on account of its promises for the future. The roller skate was the result of innumerable inventions and patents before it was perfected, and, in like manner, this wheeled sandal may lead in time to something of value.

The "World's Work;" Scribner for April.

* * *

Hon. S. S. Shutt, DeKalb county's worthy representative in the Legislature, is a wealthy farmer, possessed of considerable money which he has loaned out among his neighbors. He never sues unless actually compelled to do so by the misconduct of those whom he has thus favored. Owing to the prevailing hard times he finds it quite difficult to collect interest due him, to say nothing of the principal. Though a heavy money-lender, he was and is today among the foremost advocates of a six per cent. law. He says farmers absolutely cannot afford to pay a higher rate of interest. There are several other moneyed men in the Legislature who occupy a similar position. These men have souls within them, and do not want to see the sons of toil crushed and robbed of their homes. Then there is another class that takes an opposite view. They speak learnedly of the laws of commerce, free trade in money, &c. The ability of the people to now pay war rates of interest is of no concern to them. These estimable gentlemen always know how to justify the demands of capitalists for the protection of their special interests, but when the laboring classes invoke legislative action to protect them against the wily schemes of soul-less money sharks, then they raise their hands in holy horror at the "unreasonableness of the rabble."—Ligonier Banner.

OBITUARY.

Henry Brown departed this life at his residence in Jackson township, March 18th, 1879, aged 68 years, 2 months and 18 days. He was born in Knox county, Ohio, and at the age of nineteen years was married to Aseuth Night. He removed from Ohio, to DeKalb county, Ind., in the month of September, 1837, when this part of the state was almost an unbroken forest, and the Indians yet inhabited the country. Being one of the first settlers, he underwent many hardships and privations incident to frontier life. Death claimed the companion of his youth July 23d, 1844. He married his second companion, Agnes Carper, March 20th, 1845. She died Oct. 11th, 1872. He was the father of thirteen children, nine sons and four daughters, and leaves eight children and sixteen grandchildren to mourn their loss. The funeral services were conducted by the writer at Concord, where a large concourse of bereaved relatives and sympathizing friends were gathered. He was a member of the Presbyterian church for over forty years, and was loved and regarded as a consistent christian. Peace to his ashes, and honor to his memory.
L. RICE.

* * *

The State Sentinel very truthfully says. "It is a fact worthy of universal acceptation that in taking account of stock the Republican party has just two pieces of old furniture, relics of its former power, which it does not want to surrender. One of them is the statute which provides for supervisors and deputy marshals, and the other statute is that which provides for the employment of Federal soldiers to control elections. To give up this machinery is to surrender all that the Republican party has left—excepting Hayes' veto. To take these things away from the Republican party is to extract its last remaining fangs. It may rattle, but it can't bite."

Hold on to the Hog.

If we were farming instead of publishing an agricultural paper, we should hold on to what stock hogs we might have, and buy more if we were able. The information received through our postal-card correspondents from most parts of the State show that stock hogs are scarce. This is somewhat surprising considering the low price at which pork has been selling during most of the packing season. It indicates that owing to the hard times and the indebtedness of farmers they have sold off about everything they could sell, thus keeping down the price during the season, and making a rise certain at its close, Packers learning that a short crop for summer packing is inevitable, and that the supply will be less than usual next fall and winter, felt safe in holding the stock of meats on hand for better prices, which they are already getting. We think it would be rank folly now for Western farmers to do, so many have talked of doing, give up the business of raising and fattening hogs.

* * *

WILMINGTON, March, 18th, 1879

TO THE EDITOR OF THE AUBURN COURIER:

An incident connected with the closing of the school No. 13 Wilmington tp., in which I have had the pleasure and the honor of being employed in the capacity of teacher for the term closing on the 15th inst, has brought me under the necessity of soliciting from you an opportunity to do justice to myself by the publication of a card through the medium of your paper. To state the facts of the case I am compelled to say my pupils whom I have endeavored to assist with the best of my humble abilities in their effort at climbing the hill of science, have got me in a tight place. This they have done by a plot conducted with the most profound secrecy, and brought to its consummation at the termination of the last act in our closing exercises. The presentation of a splended chromo of which they made me then and there the recipient, and in so doing overwhelmed me with surprise and embarrassment, before an assemblage of so many patrons and friends almost deprived me of the power to utter a word of thanks. I must however indulge a spirit of retallation to the extent of publishing the names which I have obtained of those who were in the conspiracy; of which the following is a list.

Manford Smith, Eddie May, Stella May, Rose Hablawetz, Willie Hablawetz, Minnie Swartz, Ollie Swartz, Cora Carmer, Cinderilla Carmer, John Lutz, Willie Roberts, Levi Roberts, Fanny Bovlick, Effie Wyatt, Paulina Weiss, Emma Click, Emma Kaellener, Freddie Kaellener.

And now I will only add an assurance of the kind rememberance of all my dear pupils that I have been laboring to assist in the pathes of learning during the term that is now closed, hoping their lot may be long lives devoted to the acquisisition of knowledge and improvement in every virtue that will guide them in the pathes of happiness through life, to the joyes of a better life beyond its close.

WILL C. CARMER, Teacher.

Newville.

(Last Week.)

—Mr. Cornelius Davis has been sick for some time.

—Our Reading Society met on Saturday evening as usual and had a good time.

—We have been having some lectures on frontier life by Wapohauskaskayuta, or the man that never sleeps. A man that was a prisoner with the Indians for 16 years. His real name in our vernacular language is Charles Lewis. He related some thrilling adventures with the savage red man of the forrest.

—Once more death claims a victim. Died, on Tuesday the 11th inst, in Newville, Mr. Jacob Friend, aged 67 years and 5 months. Mr. Friend was one of the old pioneers of this county, he came to this county in the year 1831, when it was yet a wilderness, and had to endure all the privations and difficulties of a pioneer life.

—The latest sensation was the surprise party on Saturday evening, given by Mrs. H. W. Coburn, in commemoration of the birth of her husband, a large and respectable number of invitted guests of the friends and acquaintances of the family assembled at the house of Mr. Coburn, at an early hour. When Mr. Coburn went home he was no less surprised than pleased to find the house filled with his friends and neighbors. After having a pleasant time in coversation, some excellent music and a few well timed remarks by the Rev. O. Q. Oviatt in relation to the hardships of a pioneer life, Mr. C. being one of the earliest settlers in this county, an excellent collation was served, to which ample justice was done by all, especially by the Rev. gentleman. The company took their leave of Mr. and Mrs. Coburn and retired well pleased with their host and hostess, themselves and all the company.

ALPHA.

Angola.

(Last Week.)

Mr. H. H. Day is visiting in Ohio.

—Fred Orton, formerly of this place is in Pueblo, Col.

—Dr. Bodley is repairing the old jail building into a residence.

—Mrs. Mary Carter died on Monday morning. Aged 69 years.

—Prof. Burgett has organized another singing class in this place.

—Mose Steifel, of the firm of Steifel & Son, is in New York buying goods.

—Mrs. E. White, of Stanton, Mich., is in town visiting her many friends.

—Bascom Black has resigned the position as foreman of the Herald office and is now practicing dentistry. Success to you, Bascom.

—A. T. Bratton, Frank Beech and L. A. Hicks and their families started for Tamace county, Nebraska, where they will make their future home.

—The royal Jim. editor of the Republican, says it was not his fault he did not get the post office. No, Jim, every body knows that, you have got too many horsewhippings to secure the post office. No, not this time, Jim.

—Rev. White, of Wauseon, Ohio, is in town assisting Rev. W. P. A. Rylsworth in conducting a series of meetings in the Disciple church. We are glad to learn that a great deal of good is being done by them.

A REPORTER.

LaOtto.

[Last Week.]

—School closes next Friday,

—The measles are raging in LaOtto.

—C. W. Weller has gone to Ohio on a visit.

—J. Hogue is preparing to go to Nebraska.

—Mr. Niman, of Lagrange, has located here.

—Miss Alpha Taylor is recovering from the measles.

—And still the population is increasing, if you don't believe it ask Newt.

—"Biddy" got another 'breeze' in the Kendalville News last week. The doctor says "being a country doctor is a low calling." Yes, we should think it was, the doctor should have taken up his aboce in Churubusco, Potter's Station or some other large place, this place is entirely too small for him. He winds up his "flowery" little squibs by reminding us of the fact, that we "asked the prayers of the church," the very last thing he could think of, we did not make a long speech and say big words that we did not know the meaning of, and then go up town and say we "quoted Shakespear," but did not suppose they would understand it, no we did no such thing, neither do we believe in infidelity.

BIDDY.

Commissioners' Allowances, March Term, 1879.

Expense of Poor.
W S Allen	$ 19 25	J. S. Barnett	$ 20 00
Brand & Duncan	102 39	Wm Merica	5 00
J Rummel	7 70	Byron Mason	2 50
M Douglas	2 00	D Tomlinson	31 84
Town of Auburn	14 20	S W Ralston	19 23
R J Fisk	15 19	C U Shaffer	73 25
Wm Park	5 60	J Emanuel	32 00
J W Helmer & Co	5 61	Waterloo cemetery	9 00
J B Bennett	8 50	G Barney & Sons	12 30
A J Mason	4 00	J U Chamberlain	14 50
Chas. Inius	1 75	W J Austin & Co	18 60
Stiefel & Straus	10 87	Kiblinger & Co	94 44
G W Stahl	1 75	F W Fanning	15 00
J M Otis & Son	29 00	S Stough	19 50
J & J A Shull & Co	89 09	J T Sheldon	48 00
F E Davenport	16 45	H B Leonard	8 00
L Shoudel	7 78	J B Shaffer	33 50
Geo Wagoner	10 21	Mrs R J Lent	15 00
McQuist'n & Ris'n	109 36	Nora Swander	87
H W Coburn	7 25	H Bumpus	5 51
Jacob Kahn	3 65	Mary Antwerp	13 32
F E Strebe	4 65	J Rummel	175 00
W U Askew	46 83	P N Calkins	51 57
D K Houghton	6 25	Geo Duncan	8 00
Jarvis Porter	15 00	B F Blair	18 50
J B Casebeer	18 75	A D Goetschius	10 03
M Rosenbury	5 00	A S Fanington	13 00
O C Clark	3 85	George Dile	1 25
D D Snyder	27 00	J W Clark	7 50
Jared Spooner	71 10	A H Philips & Co	7 75
W W Tomlinson	8 96
Expense of Salaries.
James A Barns	292 00	G H Duncan	30 00
Daniel Gonser	250 00	A D Goetschius	30 00
Albert Robbins	462 50	F D Ryan	18 00
B F Blair	36 00
Expense of Public Buildings.
Wm Meek	$ 1 25	B F Blair	18 00
James Anderson	3 85	A S Lens	8 27
Thos Baldock	20 08	A L Fausett	20 00
Bass Foundry and Machine Works	21 88	Geo Duncan	12 00
Expense of Ditches.
J J Van Auken	$258 60	Geo Swarts	3 00
Jacob Marks	30 00	A Robbins	4 20
A D Goetschius	10 00	W L Blair	6 00
T C Ford	6 20	F D Beard	32 75
O A Kingsley	3 00	D Z Hoffman	32 25
Henry Matlish	3 16	B F Blair	25 50
Expense of Criminals.
F Baird	$30 40	Jared Spooner	3 00
E Stafford	21 00	A S Lens	96 75
Expense of Courts.
A S Lens	$21 40	G A K Moss	$200 00
Benevolent Institutions,
Daniel Gonser			$38 40
Miscellaneous Expense.
Crane, Duncan	$ 60 00	B Berry	92 50
M L Duck	4 25	J L Davis	179 70
A Robbins	131 80	T C Ford	10 00
F E Davenport	8 35	A S Lens	3 50
C C Shaffer	2 00	G H K Moss	21 25
F D Ryan	3 00	Willis & Co	4 00
R Bumpus	3 50	M Boland	11 67
Kiblinger & Co	2 30	W H Dills	9 00
D Gonser	11 25
Expense of Stationery and Printing.
Courier Co	$57 15	W B Burford	247 84
C K Baxter	154 50
Illegal Taxes Refunded
Sarah Rohrbaugh			$13 85
Expense of Roads and Bridges.
J W Doty	$1 60	O A Kingsley	9 00
H Griswold	10 00	John Coy	1 50
David Culver	70 71	John Osburn	1 50
S H Bartlett	48 38	Wm Nelson	1 50
J P McCague	8 75	D Tomlinson	20 00
Geo W Duncan	29 70	J Tomlinson	20 00
A D Goetschius	24 87	D McClellan	23 00
B F Blair	54 95	M Thompson	15 00
I N Cool	12 00	J D Kelley	6 00
T C Ford	16 50	C Bowman	4 50
A S Lens	5 30	J R Walker	4 5

ALBERT ROBBINS, Auditor.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, MARCH 27, 1879.

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

SENATE COMMITTEES.

The Chairmanships of the leading committees of the United States Senate, as reconstructed under Democratic auspices, are distributed as follows:

STANDING COMMITTEES.

The Democratic members of the five leading committees are:

Finance—Bayard (Chairman), Wallace, Kernan, Voorhees, Beck.

Appropriations—Davis (W. Va.) (Chairman), Withers, Beck, Wallace, Eaton.

Foreign Relations—Eaton (Chairman), Johnston, Morgan, Hill, Pendleton.

Commerce—Gordon (Chairman), Ransom, Randolph, Hereford.

Judiciary—Thurman (Chairman), McDonald, Bayard, Garland, Lamar, Davis (Ill.).

Other Chairmanships are distributed as follows: Privileges and Elections, Saulsbury; Military Affairs, Randolph; Naval Affairs, McPherson; Postoffices and Post-Roads, Maxey; Public Lands, McDonald; Indian Affairs, Coke; Pensions, Withers; Claims, Cockrell; Manufactures, Grover; Agriculture, Johnston; District of Columbia, Harris; Patents, Kernan; Public Buildings and Grounds, Jones, of Florida; Territories, Garland; Railroads, Ransom; Mines and Mining, Hereford; Revision of the Laws, Wallace; Education and Labor, Bailey; Civil Service and Retrenchment, Butler; Printing, Whyte; Library, Voorhees; Contingent Expenses, Hill; Rules, Morgan; Enrolled Bills, Vance.

SELECT COMMITTEES.

On Transportation Routes to the Seaboard—Senator Beck.

To Examine the Several Branches of the Civil Service—Senator Vest.

To Take into Consideration the State of the Law Concerning Electoral Votes for President, etc.—Senator Morgan.

To Investigate the Treasury Department Accounts—Senator Davis (W. Va.).

On Census—Senator Pendleton.

On Epidemic Diseases—Senator Harris.

On Mississippi river—Senator Lamar.

[Note.—This replaces the select committee on "Levees of the Mississippi river."]

REORGANIZED.

The select committee to inquire into alleged frauds in the late elections, commonly known as the "Teller Committee," is reorganized, with Wallace as Chairman, and Bailey, Garland, McDonald, and Kernan as the other Democratic members.

The select committees on the subject of the removal of the Northern Cheyennes to the Indian Territory, and to inquire into all claims of United States citizens against Nicaragua, are to be continued with the same memberships as at present, their respective Chairmen being Senators Kirkwood and Hamlin. The caucus left three Chairmanships of standing committees to be filled by the Republicans, viz: those of the Committees on Public-Land Claims, on Revolutionary Claims, and on Engrossed Bills.

THE EAST.

The remains of the late Bayard Taylor were interred in their final resting-place, in the family ground at Kennett Square, Pa., last week. Gov. Hoyt and a committee of the State Legislature participated in the solemn ceremonies.

George Upton, manufacturer of glue and fertilizers, in Boston, has failed. Liabilities between $300,000 and $400,000.

THE WEST.

Chicago packers, during the packing season of 1878-9, slaughtered and salted 4,911,913 hogs, being 902,002 head more than in 1877-8.

The Chicago Times prints detailed crop reports from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and Missouri, which show that the growing crops of winter wheat are, almost without exception, owing to heavy snow, in fine condition. In Ohio increased acreage is reported, and the promised yield is set down at 30,000,000 bushels. In Indiana the acreage is increased, and the yield is expected to be 25 per cent. better than last year. In Michigan a similar result is anticipated, and in other regions the prospects are generally reported above the average. The question of blighted seed for a spring-wheat crop is now agitating several localities.

George H. Heafford, general passenger agent of the Missouri Pacific railroad prior to last April, is in jail at St. Louis, on a charge of embezzling a large amount of money from the railroad company.

Chicago elevators contain 7,725,725 bushels of wheat, 3,139,271 bushels of corn, 800,911 bushels of oats, 327,326 bushels of rye and 825,648 bushels of barley, making a grand total of 12,518,891 bushels, against 2,609,743 bushels at this period last year.

A letter to the public from Archbishop Purcell, of Cincinnati, explanatory of his financial difficulties, has been published. He narrates the causes which led to his present pecuniary embarrassment, gives in detail his expenditures in behalf of the diocese, which he says should have been borne by the members of the churches; recognizes the sympathy shown him by both Catholics and Protestants, and appeals for aid to "those who feel for others' woes."

Owing to the recent rains in California, the prospect for more than an average grain crop throughout that State is good.... Disastrous prairie fires are reported in Kansas, Nebraska and Dakota Territory.

THE SOUTH.

The President of the Illinois Central Railroad Company, who has lately returned to Chicago from a trip through the South, says there is not a single case of yellow fever remaining in Tennessee, Mississippi or Louisiana, nor is there any fear expressed in those States of a return of the disease in an epidemic form.

Fifty-two moonshiners delivered three revenue prisoners out of the Hartsville (Tenn.) jail a few days ago, and took away the wagon and train which had been seized by the revenue officers....Ex-United States Senator George Goldthwaite died suddenly at Montgomery, Ala., last week.

At Louisville, Ky., last week, twelve counterfeiters were sentenced by United States Judge Ballard to fines varying from $1 to $1,000, and terms of imprisonment from ten days to ten years. They are to be imprisoned in the Illinois penitentiary at Joliet.

Dispatches from Lynchburg, Va., state that the Grand Jury of United States Judge Reeves' Court has indicted the following-named County Judges for refusing to recognize colored men in impaneling juries: Haythe, of Campbell; Henry, of Amherst; Simmons, of Bobtown; Brown, of Nelson; Wharton, of Bedford; Griffin, of Roanoke; Parish, of Buckingham; Bowles, of Fluvanna.

New Orleans is threatened with a financial panic, and the banks have decided not to pay out on checks more than $200 to one depositor in one day.

WASHINGTON.

The President has nominated the following Consuls-General: James Reily Weaver, of West Virginia, for Vienna, and David H. Baily, of Ohio, for Shanghai.

Large subscriptions are being made to the Government 4-per-cent. refunding certificates....A general court-martial has been ordered for the trial of Cols. Stanley, of the Twenty-second Infantry, and W. B. Hazen, of the Sixth Infantry....Federal appointments: Gen. Francis A. Walker, Superintendent of the forthcoming census; Clarence King, Director of the Geological and Geographical Survey.

POLITICAL.

A correspondent has canvassed the Indiana Legislature on the Presidential question. Eighteen Democratic Senators out of twenty-five were for Hendricks first, and five of them were for Tilden for second choice. Two were for Bayard first, and one for Tilden. Four had no opinion or wish as to the candidate. Of twenty-one Republicans, sixteen were for Grant, two for Blaine, and one for John Sherman.

The Republican Representatives in Congress, at a caucus held March 17, unanimously nominated the following candidates for the various elective offices of the House: For Speaker, Gen. Garfield; Clerk of the House, ex-Congressman Rainey of South Carolina; Sergeant-at-Arms, Jeremiah M. Rusk, Wisconsin; Doorkeeper, James Malton, Tennessee; Postmaster, Gen. Harry Sherwood, Michigan; Chaplain, Dr. Naylor, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Washington. The following resolution was adopted: "Resolved, That it is the sense of this caucus that no legislation shall be entered upon during this session of Congress other than that for which the session was specially called."—The Democratic caucus met at about the same hour and renominated Mr. Randall for Speaker, he receiving 75 votes, to 57 for J. C. Blackburn, 4 for Cox, 3 for MacMahon, and 2 for Morrison. Messrs. Adams, Thompson, Field and Harrison were renominated by acclamation for their old positions of Clerk, Sergeant-at-Arms, Doorkeeper and Chaplain.—The Greenbackers also held a caucus, and decided to support Hendrick B. Wright, of Pennsylvania, for Speaker.

A new Democratic morning paper, called the Herald, has been started in Chicago. It is an eight-column folio, and is sold at 2 cents a copy....Ex-Congressman Carter H. Harrison has been nominated by the Democrats for Mayor of Chicago.

Western Republican Senators complain very much at the action of the Republican caucus in giving to the East all of the three Chairmanships of committees accorded to the Republicans by the Democrats. They say that this is a gross injustice to the West, and that either Senator Windom, or Senator Ferry, who has been President pro tem. of the Senate, and is the oldest Senator from the West in length of service, was entitled to one of the three Chairmanships which were given to Messrs. Edmunds, Anthony and Conkling.

The National Executive Committee of the National Greenback party has issued an address to the people of the United States, in which they state that no dependence is to be placed on the professions of the avowed friends to the cause; that the hope for financial relief within old party lines has been extinguished, and that they have been, in several instances, misled by nominees of the party and others who obtained its support. It is only possible through a new organization to found a party which shall accomplish the desired end. To succeed, a uniform effort must be made, and a position bold, aggressive, independent, and uncompromising must be taken.

The Democrats of Rhode Island have nominated the following State ticket: Governor, Thomas W. Logan; Lieutenant Governor, J. D. Bailey; Secretary of State, David S. Baker, Jr.; Attorney General, Charles H. Page. The Republicans, at their convention, renominated all of the present State officers.

GENERAL.

Victor Nunez, at Pueblo, Col., J. Q. Pinkham, at Concord, N. H., William H. Devlin, at Cambridge, Mass., and Henry Grovelin, at Windsor, Vt., were hanged for murder on Friday, the 14th of March....Dr. John M. Woodworth, Supervising Surgeon General of the Marine Hospital Service, is dead.

Last week's quarantine report states that there is not a case of yellow fever or small-pox in the United States, that both of these diseases prevail in Brazil, but the plague has disappeared inside the military cordon surrounding Astrakhan, and that small-pox is raging in London, England, and in Dublin, Ireland.

A six-days' pedestrian contest for the championship of the world was begun at Gilmore's Garden, New York city, on Monday morning, March 10, and concluded on Saturday evening, March 15. The contestants were Daniel O'Leary, of Chicago, heretofore champion of America and of the world; Charles Rowell, of London, England; John Ennis, of Chicago, and Charles A. Harriman, of Maine. O'Leary, who won the Astley belt for which the men were struggling, and brought it from England to this country, gave out and left the track on the third day of the race. The other three remained on the track to the end. Rowell made 500 miles, thus capturing the belt, which he carries back in triumph to England. Ennis traveled 475 miles, and Harriman succeeded in covering 450 miles. There was an immense attendance during the progress of the match, and the gate money, after paying all expenses, amounts to about $50,000, of which Rowell receives 50 per cent., Ennis 30 per cent., and Harriman 20 per cent.

The business portion of the town of Minden, Ont., has been destroyed by fire. Loss, $75,000.

FOREIGN.

The Szegedin (Hungary) calamity turns out to have been of more appalling proportions than even the first reports indicated. Of 9,700 houses, all except 261 were swept away by the avalanche of waters that rolled suddenly upon the doomed city. A dispatch from Pesth says "the lowest estimate now current fixes the number drowned at 2,000. Many persons believe that 4,000 perished, as the gale prevented a majority of the inhabitants from hearing the first alarm. The whole country below Szegedin and Temesvar is strewn with caravans of people. All villages and boroughs have hospitably opened their houses and stores to the refugees....A dispatch from London says the Portuguese explorer, Pinto, has arrived at Pretonia, South Africa, with eight followers, all that remain of 400, with whom he set out on the expedition....War has broken out between Chili and Bolivia.

There was an exciting discussion in the German Reichstag the other day. Herr Liebknecht, Socialist, declared that his party was the party of reform, not revolution. He defended the course of the Socialist Deputies in not rising from their seats when cheers were given for the Emperor. The President of the Reichstag, amid cheers, remarked that this conduct offended the moral sense of the Chamber. Herr Liebknecht continued: "If a republic is established in Germany—" He was unable to finish the sentence in consequence of the uproar which the words provoked. The President threatened to deprive him of his right of speech. At the close of Herr Liebknecht's speech, the President of the Reichstag threatened him with forcible removal from the tribunal. The tumult at the time was indescribable.

The Belgian explorer Wauthier has fallen a victim to the deadly climate of Central Africa.

A cable dispatch from Pesth, in Hungary, says that 120,000 persons were rendered homeless by the recent overflow of the river Theiss, that 8,300 houses were swept away, and 1,000 persons drowned....A dispatch from Kingston, Jamaica, reports that the British steamer Bolivar, plying between Liverpool and St. Thomas, came in collision with the Haytien steamer Michael. The latter sank, and sixty persons were drowned.... Many avalanches have recently occurred in the Austrian Tyrol. At Bleiburg ten houses were crushed, forty persons killed, eighteen seriously injured, and fifteen missing.

A dispatch from Calcutta says the origin of the trouble between the Burmese and the British residents at Mandalay is that the latter protect and refuse to deliver up to slaughter two of the royal Princes and their families who have taken refuge at the Residency. The King of Burmah, who is said to be mad with drink, urged by fanatics and the reactionary party, threatens to force the Residency.

Advices from India report that the Burmese King is constructing fortifications and making other warlike preparations. The Burmese residents at Rangoon have been summoned home, the King threatening to have their families executed in case of non-compliance....From Egypt it is reported that the Khedive has yielded to the demand of Rivers Wilson and M. De Bligniéres for the retention of Riaz Pasha as Minister of the Interior. The crisis is thus virtually ended.

FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

[EXTRA SESSION.]

The Forty-sixth Congress assembled in special session at Washington on Tuesday, March 18. The Senate was called to order by the Vice President. After prayer, the President's proclamation was read, and then the roll was called, and the new Senators and those who were re-elected were sworn in.—Clerk Adams called the House to order, and read the proclamation of the President convening Congress in extra session. The roll was called, after which the election of officers was proceeded with. All the nominees of the Democratic caucus were elected. The vote for Speaker was: Randall, 144; Garfield, 125; Wright, 13; Kelley, 1.—Neither House transacted any business beyond organizing.

The Senate, on the second day of the session, 19th, went to work as if it meant business. Numerous bills were introduced: One, by Mr. Eaton, to revive the Court of Commissioners of the Alabama Claims; by Mr. Burnside, to reorganize the army, and by Mr. Beck, to remove all political disabilities imposed by the Fourteenth article of the constitution; also, a bill to repeal the act of July, 1862, requiring the test oath. Mr. Edmunds offered a preamble and resolution, with a view to confining the business of the extra session to the objects for which it was called. The President's message was received, read and referred. It is as follows:

Fellow-Citizens of the Senate and House of Representatives: The failure of the last Congress to make the requisite appropriations for legislative and judicial purposes, for the expenses of the several executive departments of the Government, and for the support of the army, has made it necessary to call a session of the Forty-sixth Congress. The estimates of the appropriations needed, which were sent to Congress by the Secretary of the Treasury at the opening of last session, are renewed, and are herewith transmitted to both the Senate and House of Representatives. Regretting the emergency which requires a special session of Congress at a time when it is the general judgment of the country that the public welfare will be best promoted by permanency in our legislation, and by peace and rest, I commend these few necessary measures to your considerate attention.

(Signed) RUTHERFORD B. HAYES.

WASHINGTON, March 19, 1879.

The Vice President laid before the Senate a memorial signed by a number of members of the Legislature in Kansas, asserting that the election of Senator Ingalls was secured by bribery and corruption, and asking the Senate to give them a full opportunity to offer proof of these assertions. Referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.—The House occupied the day in discussing the disputed case from the Second Congressional District of Florida, Bisbee vs. Hull, which was decided in favor of Hull, the Democratic claimant.

Very little business was transacted by either house on the 20th. The Senate was in session but a few minutes, and did nothing. After adjournment the Democratic Senators met in caucus. John C. Burch, of Tennessee, was nominated for Secretary; Richard J. Bright, of Indiana, for Sergeant-at-Arms; ex-Congressman Schrober, of North Carolina, for Chief Clerk; Col. Sexton, of Virginia, for Executive Clerk, and Rev. J. G. Bullock, of Virginia, for Chaplain.—In the House, Mr. McMahon called up the petition of citizens of Cincinnati in relation to the election of Messrs. Butterworth and Young, and the whole matter was referred to a select committee, with leave to sit during the recess. The committee were also directed to inquire into the operation of the Supervisors' law in Cincinnati at the last election. A caucus of Democratic members of the House was held immediately after adjournment, for the purpose of considering the order of business, and measures to be taken during the present extra session of Congress. After considerable discussion it was decided to refer the whole matter to a joint committee of the Senate and House.

PERSONALS.

Edison is going to Europe.

Ex-Senator Conover, of Florida, is 5 feet 11 inches in height and weighs 169¼ pounds.

Senator Davis, of West Virginia, is 6 feet in height and weighs 194¼ pounds.

Senator Dawes, of Massachusetts, is 5 feet 10 inches in height and weighs 162 pounds.

Senator Cockrell, of Missouri, is 6 feet 3 inches in height and will weigh 196¼ pounds.

The Empress of Austria (incognito) is enjoying the pleasures of the chase in Ireland.

Ex-President MacMahon is suffering from ophthalmia, complicated with serious general symptoms.

R. V. Pierce, the patent-medicine man, is a member of the New York Senate and the Forty-sixth Congress.

George H. Butler, Ben Butler's nephew, was sent to jail for ninety days recently, on a charge of vagrancy.

Senator David Davis, of Illinois, is 5 feet 10¼ inches in height and weighs in the neighborhood of 300 pounds.

Richard Pearce, who has won the name of the "veteran base-ball player," because he has handled the bat since 1855, will play another season.

There are nineteen United States Senators over 60 years of age, thirty-four between 50 and 60, nineteen between 40 and 50, and three between 30 and 40.

Jefferson Davis has been visiting in Vicksburg. The Herald, of that place, says that the old man shows age, but though by no means vigorous could hardly be considered feeble.

Ole Bull has settled down in his new home at Madison, Wis. At the recent marriage of a poor Norwegian in that city he officiated in the capacity of an orchestra, to the delight of the pair and the company.

The tomb of Charles Louis Napoleon Achille Murat, nephew of Napoleon Bonaparte and son of Joachim Murat, ex-King of Naples, the great cavalry General, stands in the city cemetery at Tallahassee, Fla. Murat owned for many years a large plantation in Florida.

Miss Kellogg has signed a contract with Mr. Maurice Strakosch to appear in the principal cities of Europe. She will be released from her engagement to Mr. Max Strakosch after the 7th of April and will sail for Europe during the latter part of that month. She will probably be absent two or three years.

Senator Bayard, of Delaware, has nine children. His oldest son, aged about 19 years, is a student of the University of Virginia. Several of the older children go to school in Washington city. His wife has very little disposition for society life, and passes her time with her children, giving an occasional plain reception.

WALKING MATCHES.

Brutal Torture of Women.

The sport of long-distance and consecutive-period walking has, within the past few months, become a popular athletic entertainment. Weston is now engaged in attempting to perform the nearly-impossible feat of walking 2,000 miles in 1,000 hours over English country roads, while a female pedestrian has, in this country lately, accomplished 2,700 miles in 2,700 consecutive quarter hours, over a sawdust course, and several other women are now trying to beat her by doing 3,000 miles in 3,000 quarter hours. The Saturday Review calls attention to the fact that these tests of endurance have been imported into England from this country, and charitably suggests that, inasmuch as they began to become popular in the United States about the time of the enfranchisement of the negro, one fact may explain the other; the negro no longer being available for the gratification of our inhumanity and cruelty, we have developed the new form of pedestrianism to supply us with a sort of public "nigger," whose bodily sufferings and anguish we may get the same pleasure from that we used to get from the writhings of the African under the lash. Unfortunately for this ingenious suggestion, the new sport was invented, or at any rate has been chiefly developed, in the free and enlightened North. We fear that nothing short of an inborn love of cruel amusements will explain the phenomenon. There is in the spectacle itself absolutely nothing of the slightest interest. In almost all other sports there is some rivalry, some struggle, or an exhibition of the human form brought to a high pitch of muscular perfection; in this there is nothing but a woman, dressed in short skirts, her legs incased in some kind of worsted hose, walking monotonously round a sawdust ellipse, about which sit a number of stolid spectators, who every now and then break out, apparently without rhyme or reason, into frantic applause. After walking round a certain number of times she goes off into a room, where she falls asleep. After a certain number of days of this her feet begin to swell and become painful; later on she begins, it is said, to see visions, and walks round in a sort of dream, like those which people dying of hunger and thirst have; at any rate, she can barely stand upright, and has to be forced up to her work. When she finally leaves the track, she is in a condition which makes continuous medical attendance a necessity to save her life. We confess we cannot see why such brutal exhibitions as this should be allowed in a civilized community. It is nothing more nor less than a public trial by slow torture, which does not advance athletic sports in the least; for the actual walking done in these sawdust rings is not, as walking, good for anything. Three thousand quarter miles in 3,000 quarter hours is at the rate of twenty-four miles in twenty-four hours, which, with regular intervals of sleep, anybody can do. It is, in fact, in a new form, a revival of the mediæval torture of preventing a person from getting his sleep for a long time. It is immeasurably below prize-fighting, bull-fighting, and a number of other cruel sports which the police now-a-days break up. The curious part of it is that the test lasts so long a time that the gate-money taken in reaches a large sum, and a woman may, if she can accomplish the feat, earn a small fortune. The subject is one which those who are interested in woman's rights, and in the prevention of cruelty, might look into with advantage.—New York Nation.

Joaquin Miller's Fish Stories.

Joaquin Miller, the poet, being called upon, said he would not make a regular speech, but would instead tell a few fish stories, which were as true as gospel. He proceeded: "My father once had a trout-pond in Oregon, and the fish multiplied so fast and grew so large that he had to build a fence around the pond to keep the trout from coming out of the water and tramping upon the grass."

The President hoped that the speaker would remember George Washington and his little hatchet.

"But," continued Mr. Miller, "the fish clambered over the fence, which was not a very high one, and got into the grass, after all. Then my father built another fence, which was ten feet high, and I'll take my oath that some of the largest fishes jumped sleek and clear over that fence, and the grass was completely ruined."

"Oh, my! is that so?" inquired Mr. Seth Green.

"I am telling the truth," replied Mr. Miller. "Now I will tell you another ower true tale."

"Fish tale," suggested a gentleman.

"There is nothing fishy about the story I am now going to tell you," retorted Mr. Miller. "It is really the truth. There are some trout streams in Oregon in which the fish are so very numerous that they crowd each other awfully. I was once riding on horseback and came to one of the trout streams. There was no bridge, and the alternative was to ford the stream. I rode my horse into the edge of the water, but the fish were so thick that the poor animal could not wade through, and, although I urged him, he pointedly refused to go any further, and I was obliged to abandon the idea of crossing. The trout bit the horse's legs terribly."

At this point many of the hearers laughed derisively, and the speaker, with a countenance as solemn as a parson, looked about with an air of surprise. He evidently felt hurt because there were those present who doubted his assertions.—Report of the meeting of the American Fish Club.

A Costly Load of Hay.

A farmer of Towanda, Pa., sold a load of hay a few days ago, agreeing to deliver it. The barn of the purchaser is in the rear of a marble yard. The farmer was told to drive in on the west side of the shop. He thought he could get in better on the east side, where a number of marble monuments were standing. The hay struck one of these monuments. It fell over against a second one. The second one crushed against a third. All three were broken. He received $7 for his hay. He will be called upon for $1,200 for delivering it, as that was the value of the monuments destroyed.

Royal Marriage.

Prince Arthur, Duke of Connaught, son of Queen Victoria, born May 1, 1850, created Duke of Connaught in 1874, was married at Windsor Castle, near London, on the 13th of March, to the Princess Louise, daughter of Prince Frederick Charles of Germany, Field Marshal in the German army, born July 25, 1860, and betrothed to Prince Arthur, May 16, 1878. The bridegroom now has five brothers and sisters married—Princess Victoria to Prince Frederick William, the Prince of Wales to the Princess Alexandra, Prince Alfred to the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, the Princess Helena to Prince Christian, and the Princess Louise to the Marquis of Lorne; and there yet remain to be married Prince Leopold and the Princess Beatrice. The bride has two sisters, the Princess Marie, married to Prince Hendrik of the Netherlands, the Princess Elizabeth, married to Prince August, hereditary Grand Duke of Oldenburg, and one brother, Prince Friederich Leopold, who, being but 4 years of age, can hardly be expected to entertain serious thoughts of matrimonial alliance.

The marriage appears to have been eminently successful and attractive in all its surroundings. The skies smiled auspiciously upon the young pair, which is a good deal for London skies to do. The procession was a long and gorgeous one, and even the last man in it was cheered to the echo by the jubilant multitudes who thronged the streets. There was great profusion of tapestry, banners and flowers, and the costumes of silk and satin, trimmed with rare laces and blazing with diamonds and all sorts of precious stones galore, might have driven the ordinary society reporter wild with despair in attempting to describe them. The groom was ushered in with drums and trumpets, and the bride with the organ and the bands; and the Lord Chamberlain, who did the ushering, undoubtedly felt it to be the proudest day of his life. The bride's father, in the scarlet uniform which the German soldiers knew so well in the French war, gave away the bride, and the Archbishop of Canterbury, with four Bishops and no end of canons and minor canons, performed the ceremony in approved style, the Queen being "visibly affected," as all good mothers should be, though this is the sixth time that she has undergone the trial. At the conclusion of the ceremony the cannon on the outer wall announced the consummation to the populace, and thousands of lusty Britons answered the cannon peals with their huzzas.

What a Spider Can Eat.

In order to test what a spider can do in the way of eating, we arose about daybreak in the morning to supply his fine web with a fly. At first, however, the spider did not come from its retreat, so we peeped among the leaves, and there discovered that an earwig had been caught and was now being feasted on. The spider left the earwig, rolled up the fly and at once returned to his "first course." This was at half-past 5 a. m. in September. At 7 a. m. the earwig had been demolished, and the spider, after resting a while and probably enjoying a nap, came down for the fly which he had finished at 9 a. m. A little after 9 we supplied him with a daddy-long-legs, which he ate by noon. At 1 o'clock a blow-fly was greedily seized, and then immediately, with an appetite apparently no worse for his previous indulgence, he commenced on the blow-fly. During the day and toward evening a great many small, green flies, or what are properly termed midges, had been caught in the web; of these we counted 120, all dead and fast prisoners in the spider's nest.

Soon after dark, provided with a lantern, we went to examine whether the spider was suffering from indigestion, or in any other way, from his previous meals; instead, however, of being thus affected, he was employed in rolling up together the various little green midges, when he took them to his retreat and tea. This process he repeated, carrying up the lots in little detachments, until the web was eaten, for the web and its contents were bundled up together. A slight rest of about an hour was followed by the most industrious web-making process, and, before daybreak, another web was ready to be used in the same way.

Taking the relative size of the spider and of the creatures it ate, and applying this to man, it would be somewhat as follows: At daybreak a small alligator was eaten; at 7 a. m. a lamb; at 9 a. m. a young camelopard; at 10 o'clock a sheep, and, during the night, 120 larks. This, we believe, would be a very fair allowance for a man during twenty-four hours, and, could we find one gifted with such an appetite and digestion, we readily comprehend how he might spin five miles of web without killing himself, provided he possessed the necessary machinery.—New York Witness.

Sacred Music.

The owner of a steam sawmill in Nevada was until lately a member of a Methodist church, from which he was expelled, as he says, to gratify the personal spite of the pastor. He resolved to hold religious services of his own, and, to make them effective, he obtained a powerful calliope, and attached it to the steam boiler of his mill. On Sundays, the voice of the Methodist preacher is drowned by the sound of the calliope, as it screeches "The Sweet By and By," and other Moody and Sankey tunes. The clergyman has applied to a Justice's court for relief, but the magistrate rules that the use of the calliope on Sunday for sacred music is legal. The question has been carried to a higher court.

It is suspected that, were Poe still alive, he would render his most celebrated poem so that the refrain should read: "Said the raven, Never—that is, hardly ever-more."

NEW FASHIONS.

Window, mantel and table lambrequins are made of mummy cloths.

Jeweled balls of jet face the new bonnets, and ribbons and strings are fringed with it.

The first mouse worn by a lady was sported by a Russian Princess on a real sealskin cap.

Rings and wide bracelets of black enamel are worn by ladies to make their hands and arms look fair.

A peculiar lace-pin, with a snake coiled round the bar, has a swinging scarabee cut from [illegible] topaz.

Embroidered white linen vests, edged with plaited Breton lace or Valenciennes, are among new fancies. They are to be worn over silk dresses, with cuffs to match.

Buntings are to be worn again, especially for the country and sea shore, since nothing has as yet come up to take the place of this economical and durable material.

A neckerchief of delicate blue India muslin, very soft and fine, is trimmed with bands, set on, of crepe lisse, embroidered with bright carnations and shaded leaves.

Alsatian bows have become a rage, and are not confined to the trimming of bonnets. They are very popular as head-dresses, and are made into a sort of cap by fastening them to a band of lace, the ends of which are tied at the back, or fastened with pins.

White fichus for evening are made of a strip of India muslin or organdie, cut on the cross, and forming three plaits as wide as the finger, edged round with a plaiting of Breton lace. They should go around the shoulders and fasten in front, the ends falling over the bosom.

Veils are gradually being discontinued. The better-educated women are beginning to learn how hurtful and irritating the spotted and dotted veils, drawn straight across the face, are to the eyes, and restrict their adoption of these relics of Oriental seclusion to useful gauze as a protection from the winter's storm.

Among new accessories to the toilet in lingerie are some charming waistcoats of soft white linen cambric, beautifully embroidered, and edged with Breton lace, while others, also embroidered, are made of fine white linen. The new ruffs and cuffs are made very wide and very full, of Breton lace, plaited in close shell patterns. The wrist ruffles are mounted on bands of plain Swiss muslin.

Bad Bill Babb.

Bill Babb is a Texan of notoriety in his own State. He is uneducated, brutal, bold and ambitious. He began a wild kind of frontier life ten years ago, accumulated a great amount of land and cattle, gathered about him a company of desperadoes and aspired to be a despotic ruler in his neighborhood. His recklessness led the settlers for years to submit to his rude government, but recently the population increased, and a few men presumed to dispute Babb's authority. One of these was Henry Vaughan, who opened a country store in opposition to Babb's wishes, and was killed by a party of Babb's followers. John Stull endeavored to bring about an official investigation. Babb realized that his power was in jeopardy, and decided to make an example of this rebel. Stull's house was fired in the night, and three of the four inmates murdered as they emerged. Mrs. Stull escaped by hiding in a bush, from which she knew that Babb personally directed the butchery. She subsequently had him arrested, but a craven Judge released him on low bail. All this finally roused the people, and they are now hunting for Babb, meanwhile hanging the members of his gang as fast as captured.

Close Guessing.

A house made of candy has been on exhibition in Boston since Christmas, and the owner offered $50 to the person who would make the best guess of its weight. It was weighed one day last week, and the weight was found to 364 pounds and 15 ounces. The $50 were divided between four persons, each of whom guessed the weight to be 365 pounds.

The finest silk in the world is grown in Japan.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	$7 75	@10 25
Hogs	3 80	@ 4 00
Cotton	9½	@ 9¾
Flour—Superfine	3 25	@ 3 65
Wheat—No. 2	1 10¼	@ 1 16½
Corn—Western Mixed	43	@ 46½
Oats—Mixed	31	@ 32½
Rye—Western	60	@ 61½
Pork—Mess	9 50	@10 75
Lard	6½	@ 6¾
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	4 50	@ 5 25
Cows and Heifers	2 75	@ 3 75
Medium to Fair	3 75	@ 4 40
Hogs	3 60	@ 4 35
Flour—Fancy White Winter Ex.	5 25	@ 5 60
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	3 75	@ 4 50
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	90	@ 91
No. 3 Spring	80	@ 81
Corn—No. 2	34	@ 35
Oats—No. 2	21	@ 24
Rye—No. 2	46	@ 47
Barley—No. 2	75	@ 78
Butter—Choice Creamery	22	@ 25
Eggs—Fresh	12	@ 13
Pork—Mess	8 50	@10 17½
Lard	6½	@ 6¾
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	98	@ 1 00½
No. 2	90	@ 91½
Corn—No. 2	33	@ 34
Oats—No. 2	23	@ 24
Rye—No. 1	44	@ 45
Barley—No. 2	68	@ 70
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red Fall	1 02	@ 1 03
Corn—Mixed	31	@ 32
Oats—No. 2	26	@ 27
Rye	47	@ 48
Pork—Mess	10 00	@10 25
Lard	6¼	@ 6½
CINCINNATI.
Wheat	1 00	@ 1 05
Corn	35	@ 37
Oats	27	@ 30
Rye	56	@ 57
Pork—Mess	10 00	@10 25
Lard	6¼	@ 6½
TOLEDO.
Wheat—Amber Michigan	1 05	@ 1 06
No. 2 Red	1 06	@ 1 07
Corn—No. 2	37	@ 38
Oats—No. 2	27	@ 28
DETROIT.
Flour—Choice	5 00	@ 5 25
Wheat—No. 1 White	1 03	@ 1 04
No. 1 Amber	1 04	@ 1 05
Corn—No. 1	37	@ 38
Oats—Mixed	28	@ 30¼
Barley (per cental)	1 00	@ 2 10
Pork—Mess	9 75	@10 00
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Cattle—Best	5 00	@ 5 25
Fair	4 50	@ 4 75
Common	3 50	@ 4 25
Hogs	3 50	@ 4 00
Sheep	4 00	@ 5 50

AUBURN COURIER.

THEODORE REED, Editor.

FARM NOTES.

Seasonable Hints.

[From the Rural New Yorker.]

PLANS made in the two past month are now ready for execution, in whole or in part. The sun is getting higher, and his rays more penetrating. This stimulates activity in all out-door work. The melting snow and lengthening days of March infuse life into every human being if he has a spark of vitality left in him.

SELECT TREES AND PLANTS.—Almost every farm would be more valuable if it contained a few more fruit trees and grape vines of certain desirable varieties. For a choice of varieties, consult the reports of fruit growers in your immediate vicinity. Every farm, even every village lot, should have some grape vines. How many there are without this luxury. There is a sort of mystery about grape vines, which troubles beginners and often keeps them from planting.

SELECT GARDEN SEEDS.—Procure seeds early from a reliable source if you have not saved a full supply. Plan the garden and have everything ready, on the approaching spring, for manual labor. Sow clover seed, and, to insure a good catch, put on a fine-toothed harrow. This may seem to injure the wheat, but shut up your eyes and go ahead. Leave a strip without harrowing and you will be convinced that it pays to harrow wheat in the spring.

PRUNING APPLE TREES.—This may be done on warm days. There are often good rules for pruning trees, some of which the farmer is likely to ignore. In severe climates, do not try to make the head very open like an inverted umbrella. Thin out small limbs around the outside of the top rather than near the center or about the large limbs. Trim moderately every year, and not heavily once in three or more years. Make it a rule to cut off no limbs over an inch in diameter.

CELLARS.—Sort over the fruit and vegetables, and carry out everything which is decayed. The odor of rotted vegetables penetrates the cracks of the floor and the carpet above, and carries disease and sickness to the people who dwell there. It is customary to have a cellar under the house, but there are objections to such a custom. Ventilate the cellar when the air is cool and dry, and close it in the warmest part of the day, and on all wet, warm days. Give the walls a good heavy coat of whitewash.

THE HEALTH.—The warm days of spring, mixed with sudden cold snaps and raw winds, are the most trying part of the year to the health of farmers. The appetite should not be stimulated. Winter clothing should not be given up. In sloppy weather, the feet need especial care. Cold, wet feet are the cause of many ills. In some way, keep the feet warm and dry. It will often be well to change the stockings during the day for a pair that are dry. Warm weather relaxes the system, and man and teams feel less able to do hard work than in steady cold weather.

A CHANGE OF BUSINESS.—Just now pork is low and sheep are looking better. We have heard numerous inquiries for sheep, and know of men who are bound to get rid of their hogs at any price. There are many farmers who always buy at the highest price in the dearest times and sell off when there is a depression. Pork will not always be so low. It is a good time to buy improved swine and give them a good chance. It is probably a good time to sell part of the sheep if they will bring an extra price. The farmer generally does the best who keeps the even tenor of his way, paying little regard to the "ups-and-downs" of certain articles or lines of business.

LIVE STOCK.—The sight of bare ground and the approach of milder weather, and the long, monotonous diet of dry feed make all kinds of stock long for a change. If allowed, they will work for hours on an old meadow or pasture where there is the least chance for a taste of green grass. They should be kept from these fields, as they tread them full of holes, damage the grass, lose their appetite, and get nothing which is valuable to them. Let off the surface-water and keep the yards dry, if possible. In such times never feed on the ground, but in stalls or racks. The changing weather of spring "between hay and grass" is a critical one for most kinds of animals. Several well-littered box-stalls are convenient, and almost a necessity for brood mares and cows in calf. Such animals should be well fed, though not highly fed. They need a little oil-cake, bran, shorts or roots to keep them in the best condition.

HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY.

GOOD COFFEE.—Warm three tablespoonfuls of coffee in the tin coffee-pot, which must be dry; when well heated, pour on a pint of boiling water; stir with a wooden ladle for three minutes without boiling; then add a pint and a half of boiling water, and set the whole back on the stove to steep for ten minutes.

OAT MEAL.—To each cup of coarse oat meal have four of cold water and one teaspoonful of salt; put this in an earthen saucepan and let it simmer slowly for one hour; stir it often, as it burns very easily. Should an early breakfast be required, this can be cooked the day before and warmed over, as it cannot be cooked quickly.

TO WASH A FLANNEL SKIRT.—A flannel skirt, embroidered with blue (or other colors), to set the color should be soaked for ten minutes in a pail of cold water containing a teaspoonful of sugar of lead. Then, wash it in tepid water made soft with borax. Use very little soap—it hardens the wool. Rinse well, shake well and hang where it will dry quickly.

NON-EXPLOSIVE LEAD.—Many mechanics have been sorely tried when pouring lead around a damp or wet joint to find it explode, blow out or scatter, from the effects of steam generated by the heat of the lead. The whole trouble may be stopped by putting a piece of rosin, the size of the end of a man's thumb, into the ladle and allowing it to melt before pouring.

KNOTTED MATS.—Make a frame as large as you want your mat (I took an old slate frame); put small tacks around the frame at intervals of half an inch; then wind zephyr across the frame and around each tack; you will need thirty threads around each tack; then tie in squares with strong thread and cut all but two threads, allowing the others to drop in knots; draw out the tacks and tie in fringe.

INDESTRUCTIBLE WRITING INK.—An ink that cannot be erased even with acids is obtained by the following process. To good gall ink, add a strong solution of fine soluble Prussian blue in distilled water. This addition makes the ink, which was previously proof against alkalies, equally proof against acids, and forms a writing fluid which cannot be erased without destruction to the paper. The ink writes a greenish blue, but afterward turns black.

MAGIC LANTERN SLIDES.—Excellent slides can be made by any photographer, at very light cost, and they show up in strong resemblance to steel engravings. In painted slides transparent colors only are used, such as lakes, sap green, ultramarine, verdigris, gamboge, asphaltum, etc., mixed in oil and tempered with light-colored white damar-varnish. Draw on the paper the design desired, and stick it on the glass with mucilage; then with a fine pencil put the outlines on the opposite side of the glass with the proper colors; then shade or fill up with black or Vandyke brown, as you may deem best. The outline must be done very neatly, as the least defect is greatly magnified on the screen.

BOILED APPLES.—A friend who knows about good things to eat writes us that, "About the nicest morsel that ever tickled the palate is a boiled apple—not boiled like a potato, nor steamed like a pudding, but as follows: Place a layer of fair-skinned Baldwins—or any nice variety—in the stewpan, with about a quarter of an inch of water. Throw on about one-half cup sugar to six good-sized apples, and boil until the apples are thoroughly cooked and the sirup nearly thick enough for jelly. After one trial, no one would, for any consideration, have fair-skinned apples peeled. The skins contain a very large share of the pictous—jelly-making—substances, and impart a flavor impossible to obtain otherwise." He also says that "A wise housekeeper instead of throwing away the skins and cores of sound pie-apples, would use them for jelly. A tumblerful of the richest sort can thus be obtained from a dozen apples. Boil the skins, etc., a few minutes, and strain. Add a little sugar to the liquid, and boil until right to turn into the tumbler."

Margaret Fuller and Horace Greeley.

It was in December of 1844 that Margaret went to New York to take charge of the literary department of the Tribune. It was at first more the desire of Mrs. Greeley, between whom and Miss Fuller an intimate friendship existed, that induced Mr. Greeley to make her this proposition, which included a home in his family.

"For some months," says Mr. Greeley, "I did not fully appreciate her noble qualities. Though we were members of the same household, we rarely met save at breakfast, and my time and thoughts were absorbed in duties and cares which left me little leisure or inclination for the amenities of social intercourse. Fortune seemed to delight in placing us two in relations of friendly antagonism, or rather to develop all possible contrasts in our ideas and social habits. She was naturally inclined to luxury and a good appearance before the world. My pride, if I had any, delighted in bare walls and rugged fare. She was addicted to strong tea and coffee, both of which I rejected and condemned, even in the most homeopathic dilutions; while, my general health being sound and hers sadly impaired, I could not fail to find in her habits the cause of her almost habitual illness, and once, while we were still barely acquainted, when she came to the breakfast table with a very severe headache, I was tempted to attribute it to her strong potations of the Chinese leaf the night before. She told me quite frankly that she declined being lectured on the food or beverage she saw fit to take, which was but reasonable in one who had arrived at her maturity of intellect and fixedness of habits."

Interesting to Railway Travelers.

An English gentleman traveled over a railroad line where the fare was 7d., but, not having a ticket before entering the cars, the company undertook to charge him 8d., reckoning the distance from the terminal station, from which he had not started. The company sued for the 1d., and was beaten in all the courts. The Court of Appeal ruled that the company might insist on a passenger paying for his ticket before carrying him, or, if he was given credit, could insist on his paying such fare as they demanded, but only for the distance actually traveled.

A Mother Killing Her Daughter.

A sad accident occurred here to-day. Mrs. Colson, wife of Mr. D. F. Colson, to amuse her litte sick daughter Annie, gave her an old rusty pistol to play with. Annie tried in vain to snap it. Her mother then, thinking it unloaded, seized the weapon, and, laughingly saying "I will shoot Annie," she placed the muzzle to her daughter's head, and pulling the trigger fired. The ball entered Annie's head, instantly killing her.—Dresden (Tenn.) letter.

SEVEN HUNDRED men are employed to keep clean the streets of Berlin, but during January the number was increased by 1,700 in order to clear away the snow. In that month 100,000 cart-loads of snow were carried off, yet many of the streets were blocked. In six weeks the street-cleaning department had cost the city over $60,000.

HIGH LIFE.

Life on the Summit of Pike's Peak—The Highest Signal Station in the World.

[Cor. of the Boston Journal.]

The United States signal station at Pike's peak is the highest signal station in the world; it is also the highest inhabited portion of the globe. It was opened in the month of September, 1873. That it was a wise provision of the Government in establishing a signal station at this point is no longer questioned, the facts having already demonstrated its practicability, and the present success promises that Pike's peak signal station is yet to stand at the head of all astronomical meteorological stations in the world. This point is wonderfully favored by nature for the study of astronomy and meteorology. The rarity of the atmosphere brings out a remarkable brilliancy and clearness to the stars and all the heavenly bodies. The nights are almost always cloudless and cloudy days are the exception. Nine-tenths of the storms are below the peak.

The summit of Pike's peak contains sixty acres. It is 14,336 feet above the level of the sea. On the highest point of the summit stands the signal station, a rough stone building twenty-four by thirty, one story in height. It is divided into four rooms—officers' room, kitchen, store-room and wood-room. And here in this bleak spot, nearly twenty miles from the habitation of man, though three miles nearer the heavenly regions than most parts of New England, these men live the larger part of the year. The station is three miles from the timber line, where the greater part of vegetation ceases. Short grass tufted with delicate Alpine flowers struggle for an existence against the frigidity of the atmosphere and creep toward the mountain top; but there are hundreds of acres of cold, gray and reddish rocks where not a vestige of verdure exists.

Like the dwellers of the Arctic regions, the inhabitants of Pike's peak have but two seasons—summer and winter. Two months of summer—August and September—and ten long, cold months of winter. The summer season passes quickly. The atmosphere is genial; the many visitors at the peak enhance its social life with joy, wonderment and mirth. During the summer of 1878 upward of 900 people, in parties of from five to thirty, visited the peak, among them many ladies. They registered from the four quarters of the globe, and they all expressed admiration and astonishment at the grandeur of the peak. To behold a sunrise from the peak is an event of a lifetime, and for this purpose visitors often remain over night at the station to be ready to catch the first glimpse of the sun as it appears above the horizon, gilding with its bright rays the mountains, hills, valleys and plains, to the wonder and delight of the beholder.

The duties of the officers are various. Seven observations are taken daily; all storms are closely watched and each special and distinctive characteristic duly recorded. Sunrise and sunset demand close attention. Every peculiarity of the heavenly regions is viewed and record made of the same, and monthly reports of these records are sent to the headquarters at Washington. The present year has been unusually prolific in sun-dogs, which are said to prognosticate earthquakes, subterranean explosions, immense freshets, and troublous times. A Government office at Pike's peak is no sinecure, for the officer must buffet all storms and brave all weathers. Occasionally an electric storm visits the peak. There is but little thunder accompanying these storms, but the mountain seems all on fire. Sergt. Choate informs me that when he was out observing one of these storms it appeared as though the whole mountain top was a sheet of electric flames. It came out of every rock and darted around with wonderful audacity. It played around him, as he expressed it, shot down his back, and darted out of each boot toe, and so completely filled him with electricity that he could not retain his foothold, but bounded and rebounded from the rock like a rubber ball; he felt as though a powerful electric battery was pouring fiery darts all through him, and, deeming "discretion the better part of valor," he bounded into the signal station for preservation.

Spelling-Reform.

Dr. Edward North, of Hamilton College, in an address delivered before the Convention of School Commissioners and Superintendents, held at Ithaca, forcibly presented the advantages to be gained by a simplification of our spelling. He also offered grounds for the belief that the success of the movement toward simplification was only a question of time. He discards the theory of phonetic fanatics, and then goes on to say: "Noah Webster began the work of dropping the superfluous letter u from honour and similar words. F. W. Newman, an English writer of high repute, advocates the dropping of the silent b in lamb, and the silent a, as in dead. The Spanish Academy has succeeded in effecting a great simplification of the spelling of that language, and our best American philologists are heartily in favor of a like reform in the English tongue. The changes proposed for immediate adoption are these five: They would (1) omit silent a in such words as health and head; (2) omit silent e after a short vowel, as in have, give; (3) write f for ph in alphabet, phantom; (4) omit one of the double letters in cliff, shall; (5) change ed to st, when it has the sound of st."

No Employment for Chinese.

The new constitution to be submitted to the people of California in May next is very severe on the Chinese. It provides as follows: No corporation now existing or hereafter formed under the laws of this State shall, after the adoption of this constitution, employ, directly or indirectly, in any capacity, any Chinese or Mongolian. The Legislature shall pass such laws as may be necessary to enforce this provision. No Chinese shall be employed on any State, county, municipal or other public work, except in punishment for crime. Asiatic cooleeism is a form of human slavery and is forever prohibited in this State, and all contracts for coolie labor shall be void. All companies or corporations, whether formed in this country or any foreign country, for the importation of such labor, shall be subject to such penalties as the Legislature may prescribe. The Legislature shall delegate all necessary power to the incorporated cities and towns of this State for the removal of Chinese without the limits of such cities and towns, or for their location within prescribed portions of these limits, and it shall also provide the necessary legislation to prohibit the introduction into this State of Chinese after the adoption of this constitution.

New Burial of Sir John Moore.

Not a drum was heard, because the drummer was not feeling very well and asked to be excused, nor a funeral note of any kind, as his corpse to the ramparts we hurried; not a single, solitary son-of-a-gun of a soldier discharged his farewell shot o'er the grave where the remains of the late Mr. Moore were deposited. The farewell-shot business was omitted on account of the scarcity of ammunition. We buried him darkly at dead of night, and did the best job we could for him under the circumstances. We could not borrow, beg, or steal a pick or shovel in the entire neighborhood, and were obliged to turn the sods with our bayonets, which, by the way, was the first thing that had been turned by said bayonets since we had been drafted. We did all this by the struggling moonbeams' misty light, and the lantern dimly burning, with just about half enough oil in it, and a strip of an old flannel undershirt for a wick. Few and short were the prayers we said, the chaplain being home on a furlough, and no one within forty miles to take his place. We spoke not a word of sorrow, our time being somewhat limited, as the enemy was not far distant, and advancing with gigantic strides. We thought, as we hollowed his narrow bed, and smoothed down his lonely pillow with a canteen, that the foe and the stranger would tread o'er his head, and we far away on the billow; but not too far, however, as the enemy outnumbered us about seven to one. Lightly they'll talk of the spirit that's gone, and wonder where they can get another flask filled with the same, and o'er his cold ashes upbraid him, knowing, of course, that he is in no condition to defend himself; but he'll little reck if they let him sleep on in a grave where a Briton has laid him, and not bother him to get up and take out a burial permit, or ask him to pay ground rent. We wish here to correct the impression that slowly and sadly we laid him down from the field of his fame fresh and gory. We did no such thing. The corpse was washed and put in good shape, and we defy any man to show that there was a drop of gore about him. It is true that we carved not a line and we raised not a stone, because there was no stone-mason handy who would do the job at reasonable figures. About this time we heard the distant and random gun that the foe was sullenly firing, so we adjourned the funeral, left the deceased alone in his glory, and made ourselves scarce in that vicinity.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Pharmacopœia of the Period.

With a view to advancing the scientific accomplishments and popularizing the "practice" of our lady doctors of the period, we beg to herewith present young feminine practitioners with a few highly useful prescriptions for their pretty patients.

Lady Doctor—"Well, my dear, and how are we feeling to-day?"

Interesting Invalid—"Not much better, doctor. Do you know, I feel so awfully depressed."

Lady Doctor—"Depressed? Put out your tongue, please. Ah, yes, just what I thought! Now, to remove that feeling of depression, I'll order you a new bonnet."

Interesting Invalid—"And then I feel so dreadfully cold, I can't get warm anyhow."

Lady Doctor—"That's very bad. Well, in addition to the bonnet, I will give you a velvet coat, lined and trimmed with real fur, to be applied to the back. I think that will will relieve you."

Interesting Invalid—"Then, too, I can't sleep at night."

Lady Doctor—"Dear! dear! We really must take more exercise. We must positively go to the opera oftener than we do."

Interesting Invalid—"But it seems quite an exertion to stir from the house."

Lady Doctor—"Of course; I understand. Now, if I prescribe you a couple of silk dresses, do you think you can take them?"

Interesting Invalid—"I am sure I will try anything if I can only get well. I have such dreadful, dismal thoughts; I fancy all sorts of shocking things."

Lady Doctor—"We must be patient. We can't expect to be cured in a moment. I will tell you what we must do. To-night you shall put your feet in new boots, and whenever you go out be very careful to wrap round your throat a thick and new gold chain. We must cheer up. I will tell your husband to give you a stimulating draught, which they will make up for you at the banker's, and then I think we shall do very nicely. Good-morning."

Commercial Failures.

Below is a statement of the number of failures in England and the United States each year since 1872:

	England and Wales.	America.
1872	8,150	4,069
1873	9,000	5,183
1874	9,031	5,830
1875	9,191	7,740
1876	10,848	9,092
1877	11,247	8,872
1878	15,059	10,478

—A LARGE number of residents of Tulare county, Cal., have organized military companies to resist the proposed attempt of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company to eject them from their homesteads. They are located on railroad lands, to which they claim to have acquired a title. An attempt to eject them will bring about an armed insurrection.

A BOURBON COUNTY, (Ky.) man has eaten 1,500 apples since Nov. 1.

THE STAR OF EMPIRE.

What the Next Census Will Show, Concerning the Cities of the Future.

There is much speculation, says a Washington correspondent, as to what sections of the country will show the greatest growth and development in the census reports next year, and as to which are the coming young cities of the future. It is generally conceded that the Northwest will outstrip all other sections, and that the States of the Union showing most rapid growth will be Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, California, and Colorado. As to the coming young cities of the Union, that can be pretty nearly determined in fourteen of the States which took a census in 1875-6. It is calculated that a given city will increase from 1875 to 1880 at about the same rate as from 1870 to 1875, or at least approximately so. Upon this basis the growth of some of them, particularly in the Northwest, is found to be marvelous. In order to convey an adequate idea of the rapidly growing cities in several of the States, the table is prepared, as indicated above:

Cities.	Population. 1870.	Population. 1880.
Milwaukee, Wis.	71,440	131,000
La Crosse, Wis.	7,785	15,500
Minneapolis, Minn.	13,066	46,000
Fond du Lac, Wis.	12,764	18,000
Grand Rapids, Mich.	16,505	36,000
Hoboken, N. J.	20,297	28,500
Jackson, Mich.	11,477	16,000
Janesville, Wis.	9,789	12,000
Elmira, N. Y.	15,863	24,500
East Saginaw, Mich.	11,350	21,000
Dubuque, Iowa	18,434	29,000
Detroit, Mich.	79,577	121,000
Bay City, Mich.	7,064	22,000
Burlington, Iowa	14,030	24,500
Des Moines, Iowa	12,035	16,500
St. Joseph, Mo.	19,565	36,500
St. Paul, Minn.	20,030	45,800
Winona, Minn.	7,190	13,000
Rochester, N. Y.	62,386	101,000
Buffalo, N. Y.	117,714	149,000
Auburn, N. Y.	17,225	19,000
Newton, Mass.	12,825	18,500
Oshkosh, Wis.	12,663	21,000
Racine, Wis.	9,880	16,000
Springfield, Mass.	26,709	44,500
Troy, N. Y.	46,465	51,000

It will be shown from this table that, if the growth during the last half of the decade equals the first half, which ordinarily there is no reason to doubt, some of the Northwestern cities are making extraordinary strides, particularly Milwaukee, La Crosse, Minneapolis, Grand Rapids, Detroit, Bay City, and others.

From all that can be gathered from the sources of information at hand, the star of empire is making its way Northwestwardly with great rapidity.

Best Climate for Weak Lungs.

It is a question of great and general interest what sort of climate is suitable for that large class of invalids who suffer in greater or less degree from pulmonary complaints. Many such, having banished themselves from the comforts of home and the society of friends, have found too late that the location sought for health has proved wholly uncongenial, if not fatal. Those suffering from lung diseases will gain valuable information from an article by Dr. T. M. Coan, entitled "Climate for Invalids," which appears in the March number of Harper's Magazine. Dr. Coan is of opinion that a favorable climate for such invalids should exhibit but a small difference between the day and night temperatures in any given twenty-four hours; that it should show a comparatively small range between the different monthly mean temperatures of a given season, or between different seasons of the year; that there should be equability in the supply of moisture, and that the climate should be free from excessive wind, cloudiness, and dust. A heavy barometrical pressure is also regarded as beneficial in the prevention and cure of pulmonary diseases. The article of which mention has been made contains a table showing the season temperatures in about thirty-five different places, arranged in the order of equable climate. Funchal, Madeira, heads the list; the mean difference between summer and winter being only 8.10 deg. The Atlantic islands of the Gulf stream possess the most equable of all mild climates, and various localities in Western Europe and in the Mediterranean rank next. A visit to Georgia or Florida is often of the highest use for rest and relaxation, but Dr. Coan believes that it is these rather than the specific influence of the climate there that prove beneficial. He says, "Except in Southern California few spot in our country can rightfully claim to possess a climate that is beneficial for pulmonary complaints." In San Diego, Cal., the mean difference of temperature is but 15.88 deg. But at St. Paul, Minn., the mean difference between summer and winter is 52.94 deg., and at Denver, Col., 44 deg. The interior or mountain climate of the United States is in general a dry climate of excessive extremes, and dangerous for delicate invalids.

A Revolution in Stone-Cutting.

A revolution in stone-cutting seems likely to be accomplished by a machine invented by Mr. R. R. Atchison, of New York. It is operated by steam power, equivalent to that of a single horse; but it does the work of a dozen or more men, within a given time, in this laborious and unhealthy occupation, with the greatest accuracy and perfection. Heretofore it has seemed an impossibility to substitute machinery for hand-labor in the preparation of stone for costly buildings; but, after four years of unremitting thought and labor, Mr. Atchison appears to have accomplished that result. Few persons, except those engaged in building operations, can realize the amount of labor required to prepare a single stone designed for the walls of a substantial building, or the cost of the same. Days, weeks, and even months are sometimes expended in the cutting of a single block to the required dimensions. By the use of Mr. Atchison's machine great blocks of granite or other stone are smoothed with about the same rapidity that iron is planed by the well-known machinery used for that purpose.

Torn to Pieces by Hogs.

Mr. L. D. Shelton, of Liberty township, met with an accident last Friday which came near having a fatal termination. He has a fine lot of large Berkshire hogs, and in attempting to separate some of them it became necessary for him to get into the pen, when they attacked him, knocking him down and tearing his flesh with their teeth in a shocking manner. Fortunately several persons were present and he was rescued almost instantly, but not, however, until he was so badly injured that his life was despaired of. He remained for two days suffering the greatest agonies, but on Sunday he was reported as being somewhat easier.—Independence Kansan.

INDIANA LEGISLATURE.

THURSDAY, March 13.—SENATE.—The following bills, which were passed at the regular session but not presented to the Governor in time for him to act upon them, were introduced and passed under a suspension of the constitutional rule: To prevent foreign corporations from removing causes against them to Federal courts; defining libel; amending the act for elections for Supervisors of Highways; authorizing cities of less than 7,000 inhabitants to surrender their charters; exempting wages of laborers from garnishment for a period of one month; making laws governing October elections applicable to November elections in case the constitution is amended; legalizing the acts of the Common Council of Huntington, and the Lye Creek Drainage Association; regulating the use of human bodies for purpose of dissection, and preventing grave robbing; abolishing one of the Marion Superior Courts....The bill prohibiting the admission of children under 7 years to the House of Refuge passed....The General Appropriation bill occupied the remainder of the day.

HOUSE.—The committee to investigate into the Auditor's office reported. The majority report states that Auditor Henderson has no illegal fees from insurance companies, and that he is entitled to all he has received. The minority report recommends that the Attorney General ascertain what amount of fees have been collected by the Auditor and not paid into the treasury, and commence a suit on the official bond of the Auditor to recover the same. The minority report was adopted....The following House bills, which failed to reach the Governor in time for his action during the regular session, were introduced and passed under a suspension of the constitutional rules; legalizing the acts of the town of Edinburg; legalizing the purchase of lands by the Commissioners of Clinton county; legalizing the town of Auburn; authorizing the city of Evansville to change its name to Lamasco; for the incorporation of cemeteries; requiring school trustees in towns to have the authority of town trustees before issuing bonds for the erection of school-houses, and several relief bills....The Senate bills which passed the Senate this morning were taken up and passed by the House under a suspension of the rules.

FRIDAY, March 14.—SENATE.—No business of importance was transacted, only a short session being held.

HOUSE.—The bill passed making it lawful for barbers to serve customers on Sunday.

Nothing more of interest or importance occurred.

SATURDAY, March 15.—SENATE.—A resolution to adjourn sine die next Saturday was debated and voted down....The House sent in about a dozen bills, all legalizing acts, and the rules were at once suspended and the bills passed....The whole day was exhausted in matters of no general interest, the single important thing being ordering the General Appropriation bill to be engrossed....The balance of the day was occupied in debating the repeal of Savings Bank law.

HOUSE.—A bill was introduced to inflict additional punishment in cases of rape....The bill requiring all passenger trains to stop at all incorporated towns failed to pass....Several legalizing bills were introduced and passed.... About noon a number of members who wanted to adjourn until Monday commenced filibustering, and the result was that a quorum was broken, and, after several calls of the House had been made, the doors were locked and the absentees sent for. About 2 o'clock a quorum was got together, and the House adjourned until Monday.

MONDAY, March 17.—SENATE.—The Senate this morning agreed to adjourn next Monday, provided the General and Specific Appropriation, the Congressional Apportionment, and the Fee and Salary bills shall have been passed and approved. An attempt to include the Metropolitan Police bill was a failure. The Congressional Apportionment bill will hardly pass, as indefinite leave of absence has been granted to Senator Reeve, and without his vote twenty-five cannot be secured on political measures.

HOUSE.—A short session was held, but no business of importance was transacted.

TUESDAY, March 18.—SENATE.—The Fee and Salary bill was the special order in the Senate to-day, but it was postponed, and the Appropriation bills taken up. Several amendments were made, but not much progress was achieved. ....While the Prison bill was under consideration in the Senate yesterday, Senator Menzies offered an amendment that the Directors of the Northern prison shall elect Murdock Warden in place of Mayne. A special committee, after investigating the claims of Murdock and Mayne, reported favorably upon the amendment to-day....Majority and minority reports from the Senate Committee on Elections on the Saulsbury-Smith contest were made. The majority report—that Smith was entitled to the seat—was adopted.

HOUSE.—The House postponed consideration of the resolution fixing the date of adjournment till Saturday.

WEDNESDAY, March 19.—SENATE.—The House bill authorizing Boards of County Commissioners to make appropriations for the relief of citizens from debts incurred in voting aid to railroads was passed....The Fee and Salary bill was then taken up and the Senate substitute considered, which occupied the remainder of the day.

HOUSE.—Bills were introduced: Authorizing the redemption of certain lands sold for taxes; authorizing a loan for the payment of the temporary loan debt heretofore incurred, and several legalizing bills. Bills were passed: Limiting taxation in incorporated towns having less than twenty-five freeholders residing therein; providing for a more speedy distribution of the laws; regulating the collection of fees from insurance companies and requiring the Auditor of State to report the same; amending the Discount law; requiring Coroners to hold inquests without the aid of a jury; providing for the temporary loan to meet the payment of $710,000 State debt falling due this year; exempting five acres of land inside of a city corporation from taxation for any purpose at a greater rate than the lands of the township in which the city is located; defining the crime of embezzlement by adding to the persons who may embezzle clerks, lawyers and other persons who fail to pay over money; to enable farmers to form voluntary associations for protection from damages by lightning; for the protection of game. ....The joint resolution instructing the State Librarian to distribute the geological reports on his hands among the colleges and schools of the State was passed.

LITTLE has been said of late regarding the tunnel between France and England, but preparations for the work continue. Seven thousand five hundred and seventy-one soundings have taken place within 600 feet of the French coast, with a view of ascertaining the form and geological nature of the ground, and 3,267 specimens have been obtained. Similar soundings have also taken place on the English side.

THE Great Northern railway of England has contracted for a period of twenty-one years with the Pullman Palace Car Company for the use of its sleeping and hotel cars, the latter having never yet been introduced in Europe.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, MAR. 27 1879

THEODORE REED, - - Editor.

—Some of our attorneys claim that the limitation clause in the act creating the 40th judicial circuit, is not good in law, and that the supreme court will so decide. If such is the case, the lawyers who favored the passage of the bill certainly knew it, but we cannot believe that any democrat who desires the success of the party, would lend his influence to a project which would result in a republican victory. Such would be base treachery.

Goshen Democrat.—"Light Dawns." We have received form some friend at Elkhart, a very tasty little yellow circular, addressed to married ladies and gentlemen, giving the history of a new invention or instrument, called the "Double Action Depurator." There are four pages of the circular, and we have not had time to read it enough to know its purpose, but the author says, many ladies have had the instrument in their hands, and given it a fair and thorough trial, and not one has been disappointed in its use, but pronounce it safe and reliable The world moves.

Another send off for Hon. S. S. Shutt: DeKalb's honored representative, as taken from the State Sentinel. "Representative Shutt is the creditable chairman of the committee on claims. He has proven himself the foe of all kinds of jobs and questionable claims of all descriptions. Intimations of his being penurious or too economical, for any other reasons, are out of place. He is economical and penurious with other people's money. When it comes to using his own funds his heart and pocketbook will always be found in the right spot."

Will Auburn be a railroad center? The Chicago Times of Saturday says that the Grand Trunk and Great Western Railways of Canada find it necessary, in view of the crushing out policy which Vanderbilt has adopted toward them, to secure a line to Chicago which they can absolutely control. It is proposed therefore to build a new road from Detroit to Auburn and this city, thus obtaining a direct Chicago connection. It is said that for such a line the survey would be almost straight, and the grade would not exceed ten feet to the mile over a greater part of the distance. It is claimed that the proposed line would be only 265 miles long form Detroit to Chicago, and would cost only $15,000 a mile, and that on such a road a freight engine could haul fifty loaded cars, and a passenger engine could run the entire length with a load of coaches in seven hours.

THE NEW CIRCUIT.

C. A. O. McClellan, Judge.

An act, with an emergency clause, was passed by the legislature last week, creating the 40th Judicial circuit, consisting of DeKalb and Steuben counties. The Governor has appointed Mr. C. A. O. McClellan of Waterloo, Judge, and Mr. Geo. B. Adams of Angola, prosecutor. The new arrangement is only temporary, as the bill provides that the two counties named shall become a part of the 35th circuit as heretofore, on the 1st day of October 1880. The change was made with a view to clearing up the docket of this county, upon which a large number of cases have accumulated, owing to an increase of litigation, and the limited term time (3 weeks). Under the new law there will be no difficulty in disposing of all the old, as well as the new cases which may come up during the existence of the new circuit. Considerable feeling has been manifested by members of the bar and other interested parties, concerning a contemplated change in the old circuit, both individually and in factions, each faction admitting the condition of the docket in this county, and each suggesting a different remedy; one faction charging the other with "jealousy," and the other as freely charging "ring," &c. It is scarcely necessary to add that such charges result in no good to the parties making them, nor to the public.

The new circuit as a temporary arrangement will no doubt give general satisfaction, and is probably the best that could be done under the circumstances. Had we taken any part in the matter, we would have favored a permanent change by adding Steuben county to Judge Woods' circuit, leaving DeKalb and Noble to constitute the 35th circuit, thereby being enabled to retain Judge Tousley, and at the same time relieve him of some of the duties the discharge of which has greatly injured his health. We are in hopes however that the relief which the new law affords him by leaving him to preside over the courts of Noble county alone, will allow him to regain his former health, that he may return to us full of vigor, and alive to the interest of our people as in times past. We cannot close this brief article on the change, without extending our hearty congratulations to the new judge—our friend Mr. C. A. O. McClellan, upon the confidence placed in him by those who so zealously labored for his appointment, and by the Governor who made him the legal guardian of the peoples interests. Judge McClellan is too well known to need any further introduction.

The election of Randall is conclusive proof to us that Tilden and Hendricks will be the next democratic candidates. A solid South is certain for the nominees, no matter who they are, and all that is necessary to insure success is to control the votes of New York and Indiana. Tilden and a hard money platform will carry his State but can Hendricks on the same platform carry Indiana?—Terrell (Texas) Star.

—Yes, Tilden and a hard money (by the barrel) platform can carry his state, in a pinch; but without the aid of Mr. Hendricks it would worry Tilden and a hard-money platform to carry Indiana or any other western state. We are not so sure about it being necessary, in order to insure success to carry both New York and Indiana, we are inclined to the opinion that a platform that would be favorably received in Indiana would secure enough electoral votes in the west and south to afford a sacrifice of New York—a state that has done the democratic party more harm than good for the last twelve years, and will continue to do so as long as she is allowed to dictate the financial policy of the party, Tilden to the contrary notwithstanding. It is not Tilden as a man that we object to, it is the principles that him and his state advocate, and we are opposed to Bayard or any other eastern man for the same reasons; we hope to see the next democratic convention nominate a western man, and adopt a platform of western principles and take the chances on losing New York, of which we have little fear. However we will gracefully submit to the action of the national convention.

—Captain Boyton the great swimmer, who left Pittsburgh some days ago to swim to New Orleans by way of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, has probably passed Cairo by this time. A rowboat accompanies the Captain for the accommodation of his agent, and members of the press along the route who desire to take passage from one point to another. The Cincinnati Enquirer Representative says, "seated in this craft, a good view of the swimmer and his mode of traveling could be had, and the eye seemed never to tire in gazing on him and watching the automic play of his paddle and the apparent ease and buoyancy with which he rode the waters. But a small portion of his body appeared to be submerged, and the air-pillow under his head kept the latter thrown upward and forward so that he could see whither he was going and shape his course.

For the information of those who have not seen the swimmer, it may be stated here that he lies on his back, and moves feet forward, his paddle being worked across the lower portion of his stomach. In using it he grasps it with the backs of his hands upward, and, lowering one hand, dips one blade of the paddle into the water, as he does so, drawing it back toward his shoulder and at the same time pushing the other hand forward, to dip the opposite blade as he takes the other from the water. From long practice in using this paddle, the Captain has acquired a peculiar dexterity of movement, to which no written description can do justice. He keeps it revolving on his stomach as on a pivot, dipping it so quickly and regularly that it almost seems as if he used two paddles. His rate of speed in the water varies with the surrounding circumstances, such as currents, headwinds, &c."

St. Joe.

—Simon Ochs, of Butler, was in town Friday.

—Somerlot & Co. have completed their R. R. contract at Hicksville, Ohio, and have returned to St. Joe to enjoy the fruits of their labor.

—Capt. Jenkins disposed of his last year's crop of wheat at St. Joe last week and is as happy as a big sun flower.

—The grain buyers are paying $1 for wheat, 25c for oats.

—J. S. France has a force of workmen engaged on his residence and should the weather prove favorable, Joe will have a home of his own, where landlords will not dare to molest or make afraid.

—Our good natured friend, Adam Chubb, of Orangeville, on his way home from Auburn stoped at the store in St. Joe boiling over for some fun, bantering each one he met for the championship in wrestling, but when Alexander wanted him to go into the street, Adam wasn't there.

—Payday on the B. & O. R. R. Saturday last and of course all connected with the road are happy.

—While taking in some of Auburn's noted places on a recent visit, we with a friend (a good republican) visited the two printing offices, Republican and COURIER, and were surprised to see the difference in the two offices, that of the Republican occupying but one room and that not very large, while the COURIER office with its lively boys and two large and commodious rooms seemed all life and animation. Thanks for favors received at the office.

A. A. A.

—The Cincinnati Enquirer blandly remarks, "to those editors who think it their mission to hold Blue Jeans Williams by the coat-tails and make mirth and laughter of the patch on the seat of his pantaloons, we respectfully suggest that a patch is better than a protruding shirt-tail."

C. H. HOYT, Druggist,

AND DEALER IN

PIANTS, OILS;

DYE STUFFS,

PATENT MEDICINES,

TOILET ARTICLES,

PERFUMERY AND

Druggists' Fancy Goods,

AUBURN, INDIANA.

Our stock is from first class, reliable dealers and manufacturers, and we challenge competion in price of goods, and comparison as to quality, with any other store of the kind. Our assortment of

RELIABLE PATENT MEDICINES

IS COMPLETE.

WINES AND LIQUORS.

A Choice Selection for Medicinal Purposes only.

A very large and new assortment of Perfumery, Toilet and Fancy Articles and Druggists' Sundries, including all such goods as are usually kept in a first class Drug Store. Remember, all goods warranted as represented, and that we will not be undersold.

Prescriptions filled with the greatest care—day or night.

In connection with our Drugs, we have added a full line of Wall Paper, Window Shades, by the pattern or by the piece, and all of the latest styles. Also Curtain Fixtures of different styles.

C. H. HOYT, Druggist,

First door south of the First National Bank.

1879 SPRING 1879

Messrs. Root & Company's

CARPET DEPARTMENT!

Our constantly increasing business in this department warrants our offering to the public this spring a much larger variety and assortment than ever before.

PRICES THIS SPRING

Are lower than ever before, and parties who have delayed refurnishing their houses can now do it with economy and a certainty that they will never buy carpets any cheaper than they are at present.

The Choicest Designs Tapestry Brussels Carpets,
75c., 85c., 90c., $1.00 per yard.

The Choicest Designs Extra Super Ingrain Carpets,
75 cents per yard.

All Wool Ingrain Carpets, 50, 60 and 65c.

Single and Double, Cotton Chain Carpets,
25, 30 and 35c per yard.

Hemp, Cottage, Rag and Dutch Carpets,
12 1-2, 15, 18 and 20c per yard.

New lines of Upholstery Goods, Curtain Goods, Floor Oil Cloths, Mattings, Rugs, Stair Rods, Cornices, Fixtures, Shades, Hollands, Picture cords, Tassels, &c.

N. B.—Parties desiring any repairing done to Curtains and Cornices, or to have Carpets relaid, will find our MR. BARRETT a competent and superior workman, who will attend promptly to any orders we are favored with.

ROOT & COMPANY,

FORT WAYNE, IND.

A BONANZA,

Of greater interest to the people of DeKalb county than the rich mines of Colorado.

COME AND INVESTIGATE!

And satisfy yourselves that Merchandise can and will be sold by the undersigned in Auburn, at much less than Ft Wayne prices. Why? Because we have no rent to pay, we have no clerks to pay, our taxes are not so high, and our general expenses are light. We discount all our bills which enables us to buy goods at a large discount, all of which goes to the benefit of our customers.

We have just added a new line to our former large stock, in the way of

Ingrain and Hemp Carpets

which we are offering at very low prices—prices that will justify the use of carpets by the most humble, as well as the wealthy. Our object in adding this line of goods is to supply a long felt want in the DeKalb county market. We are offering our large stock of carpets at prices that will justify an investigation. We again call attention to our immense stock of staple and fancy.

DRY GOODS,

of all grades and brands. Among the staple goods we mention denims, tickings, muslins, drints, shirtings, carpet warp, &c., selected with special reference to the wants of the people of DeKalb and adjoining counties. In our fancy goods department will be found all shades of fine alpacca lusters, new spring styles of wash poplins, and a general assortment of fancy dress goods.

CLOTHING. CLOTHING.

Our stock is larger and more complete than ever. The new stock embraces suits of all sizes, large or small, coarse, or fine, from a wedding suit to a jeans suit, all bound to suit, or no sale. Our prices are based upon resumption and defy competition. Don't fail to get our prices before making purchases in this line.

HATS AND CAPS. We also carry a full assortment, bought especially for the spring trade, which embraces a number of new and nobby styles for men and boys—styles that have never before been introduced in this market. All we ask is an examination of our stock, feeling satisfied that we can compete with any dealer in hats and caps in this or any other county in the State.

FANCY NOTIONS.

This stock is full of attractions, embracing every variety of embroidery, of new and popular patterns; silk and linen handkerchiefs for ladies and gentlemen, at bankrupt prices; ladies' and gents' hosiery in endless variety, at prices that will startle you; corsets by the cart load, all sizes and styles at greatly reduced prices; a full line of gents' linen shirts and collars, from the leading manufactories of the country, and many other fancy articles too numerous to mention.

SELECT FAMILY GROCERIES.

All goods in this line warranted pure and strictly first class, at prices that command large sales. Goods in this department are sold on close margin, being carried more for the accommodation of our customers than with a view to profit.

COUNTRY PRODUCE taken in exchange for goods. Give us a call when you want a bargain.

SCHAAB, BEUGNOT & CO.,

West of the Public Square, AUBURN, IND.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe, with full directions for preparing and using, in German, French, or English. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. Sherar, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y. 6-eow 6-m.

WOOD'S HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE

Is a monthly, 100-page Scrap Book of the cream of the World's Literature. Single copy, 20c., or $2 per year. An Oil Chromo (14x20 inches) of "Yosemite Valley," price, $2; "Black Sheep," a $1.50 book, in paper binding; "Christian Oakley's Mistake," a $1 book, in paper binding, and a sample copy of "Wood's Household Magazine"—all post-paid, for only 30 cents in money, or in one-cent postage stamps. Agents wanted. Most liberal terms, but nothing sent free. Address S. S. Wood, Tribune Building, New York City

Wanted to cure one case of

CATARRH,

in each neighborhood to introduce our BLACK FOREST OIL CATARRH REMEDY. One dollar package free to those willing to pay express charges (25c; if received by Adams or Union Ex. Co's) Address, F. E. BOWER & CO. Gen. Ag't. Pittsburgh, Pa.

Agents Wanted

For letter-heads, bill-heads statements, or any kind of fancy printing call at this office.

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER AND SPECIAL FLAVORING EXTRACTS.

Trade Mark.

Eminent Chemists and Physicians certify that these goods are free from adulteration, richer, more effective, produce better results than any others, and that they use them in their own families.

DR. PRICE'S
UNIQUE PERFUMES are the Gems of All Odors.
TOOTHENE. An agreeable, healthful Liquid Dentifrice.
LEMON SUGAR. A Substitute for Lemons.
EXTRACT JAMAICA GINGER. From Pure Root.

STEELE & PRICE'S LUPULIN YEAST GEMS.

The Best Dry Hop Yeast in the World.

STEELE & PRICE, Manfrs., Chicago, St. Louis, and Cincinnati.

Auburn Courier.

Local and Miscellaneous

—New goods every week at the new store.

—For building hardware go to Kiblinger & Co's.

—For doors, sash and glass, go to Kiblinger & Co's.

—Mrs. E. Rushman has been quite sick for several days past.

—Miss Fannie Russel, a niece of Dr. Sebring, is visiting in the city.

—Mr. Charles Beugnot started west on a business trip last Monday.

—Four tin pails and one dipper for one dollar at Kiblinger & Co's.

—New Turkish Prunes 14 lbs for $1,00 or 8c per lb at McQuiston & Ralstons.

—Miss Celie Markle, of Hudson, was visiting friends in the city last week.

—The best 10c cotton sock in the market at McQuiston & Ralstons. 13-3w

—Spring goods at manufacturers prices at the boot up-side down April 1st.

—The Neoteric club closed their dances for the season Thursday night last.

—Embroideries in new styles at from 3c to 50c per yd, at McQuiston & Ralstons. 13-3w.

—Attend the dance for the benefit of Edgerley's Orchestra Thursday night next.

—Go to Kiblinger & Co. for tinware, they are selling at manufacturers prices.

—Coop Ralston says he has a good joke on "the fellow that looks like—an artist.

—Buy the Kidder barn door rollers the best in use, Kiblinger & Co. sole agents.

—The next thing to a Bonanza, hemp carpets 6 yds for $1,00 at McQuiston & Ralstons. 13-3w.

—Kiblinger & Co. sell hardware.

—Will Hazzard's bond be forfeited? Will the $2,200 ever be recovered! If not, why not?

—McQuiston & Ralston have the best and largest stock of China and Glassware in the city. 13-3w

—Coffee A Sugar 11 lbs for $1,00 Coffee C sugar 12½ lbs for $1,00 at McQuiston & Ralstons. 13-3w.

—The children's meeting at the M. E. church last Sunday night was regarded as a success in that line.

—The Good Templars will soon occupy the room over McQuiston & Ralston's drygoods department.

—Mr. Emmanuel and son, of Spencerville, passed through the city last Monday en route for St. Louis.

—Those desiring millet seed can purchase the pure seed of Mr. Rummel, superintendent of the poor farm.

—The new store had a large trade in millinery and fancy dry goods, notions and dress goods on last Saturday.

—Just received at McQuiston & Ralstons, 26 doz Hats and Caps. Come and see our stock before you buy. 13 3w.

—See those 1878 white cotton hose 10c per pr and elegant striped hose at 10 & 15c per pair at McQuiston & Ralstons.

—Go to the new store east of public square for spring millinery goods. Ladies hats latest styles, just received.

—A load of straw, a load of hay, or several loads of dry wood, would be very acceptable on subscription just now.

—Yes, a few gallons of thick maple syrup, or a nice cake of maple sugar, would be taken on subscription at this office.

—See those white bed spreads at McQuiston & Ralstons at prices from $1.15 to $2.75 cheaper than you can make quilts. 13-3w

—Battles between truth and lying will be discussed by Rev. J. E. Ervin to-morrow (Friday) night. Don't fail to hear the lecture.

—The assessors of the county will have a meeting at the Auditors office next Saturday to agree upon a uniform rate of assessment.

—Schaab, Beugnot & Co. have stacks of goods to sell, and they want the people to know it. Read their advertisement in the COURIER.

—Dr. Allyn goes to Michigan to-morrow, to be present at the marriage ceremony of a bachelor brother. The Doc. comes next on the list.

—Mr. C. H. Hoyt has the exclusive sale of the Holman Liver Pad Co's remedies. You will find a complete assortment always on hand.

—Should we sometimes tell a lie? or should we always tell the truth? Go and hear these questions answered at the M. E. church Friday night.

—All remedies manufactured by the Holman Liver Pad company are kept in stock by C. H. Hoyt at the the old drug stand of McIntyre & Son.

—N. & G. Ensley has opened their agricultural House, with a full line of plows and all kinds of farming implements. Farmers, call and see them.

—Don't overlook the big advertisement of Schaab, Beugnot & Co. in this issue. Read it carefully, and then go and examine their stock and get prices.

—Township Trustees should call on N. & G. Ensley and purchase the Huber Revolving Steel Scraper, the best in the world. Patronize home men, gentlemen.

—The bottom dropped out McQuiston & Ralston are selling a 16 oz plug of tobacco for 35c per plug. 13-3w —Hold your breath for the great inducement that will be offered by the Boot Up-Side Down next week.

—McQuiston & Ralston sell 2 good cigars for 5c also the Veto and Bellmans Red Bird the best 5 cent cigar sold, will furnish dealers cigars at jobbers prices.

—The Holman ague and liver pad is becoming very popular in this community. For full particulars inquire of C. H. Hoyt, special agent for Auburn and vicinity.

—C. Hoyt, the new drug gist at the old stand of McIntyre & Son, places an advertisement before the readers of the COURIER, in this issue. Read it carefully.

—The Tate murder trial is still in progress at Indianapolis. The evidence for the state is all in. The case will probably go to the jury the later part of this week.

—The general manager of the Holman Liver Pad Co's remedies was in our city on Monday, and appointed C. H. Hoyt special agent for the sale of their remedies in our city.

—Fred Yesbera, of West Unity, O., a brother of our enterprising merchant tailor, G. H. Yesbera, is in the city. He will learn the jewelry business with Mr. Joe. Abright.

—After spending an hour to get a shine on 'em, our "devil" spoiled the polish on his boots by filling a fellows' coat-tail full of them. Be careful boys whose boots you spit on.

—The rules of the bank of France prevent the clerks from wearing beards. The president of the bank has been petitioned to abrogate the rule, by two hundred of the employes.

—The Buckeye clothes wringer, only $5.00. The best in the world. For sale by Kiblinger & Co.

—COMPOUND ELIXIR OF BUCHU for diseases of the kidneys, bladder and urinary organs is the best remedy known for rheumatism. It removes the cause, and effects a permanent cure in all cases. Sold by DAVENPORT the DRUGGIST. tf.

—Examine our stock of Mens, Youths and Boys clothing, and compare prices with the best you can find, quantity, quality and prices to compete with anything in the city McQuiston & Ralstons. 13-3w

—Conductor Greenfield, of the Saginaw railroad, met with an accident at Waterloo on Tuesday afternoon by the falling of a scantling, which crushed his foot and toes. The wound was dressed by Drs. Cowan & Allyn.

—Schaab, Beugnot & Co. believe in telling people what they have to sell, and they recognize the COURIER, as being the best medium through which to reach the people of this and adjoining counties. See their advertisement in this paper.

—Last week we received a well written obituary notice which we were compelled to omit, owing to its great length. It was written by a lady, to whom we would return it if we knew the address.

—Abundance of gold is said to have been discovered about 30 miles southeast of Wichita, Kansas. The ore from a shaft, sunk some time ago, is said to have assayed over $2,000 to the ton. One farmer has been offered $30,000 for his farm and refused it.

—Every body that cares for the progress of the public schools will attend the lecture at the M. E. church to-morrow evening. The admission fee is but ten cents, yet if the church is well filled almost enough will be realized to buy a set of Chambers Encyclopedias.

W. H. Kiblinger & Co. has just received a new stock of bird cages of the very latest styles and designs, which they are selling very low.

—Our prompt and reliable correspondent at Spencerville, owing to unavoidable circumstances is compelled to discontinue his regular weekly communications from that place. We are sorry that such is the case, and would be glad to have him "resume" at any future time.

—A free book of nearly 100 large octavo pages for the sick Full of valuable notes on scrofula; diseases of the breathing organs; diseases of men; diseases of women; aches and pains; heart troubles; and a great variety of chronic diseases, with evidence that in most cases that these diseases are curable. Sent for one stamp. Address

MURRAY HILL PUB. Co.,
No. 129 E. 28th St., N. Y. 11-6m.

—Judge Tousley's health is no better. Parties who went up to Albion Monday to get his deposition in an important suit, found that he had gone over to Ligonier, for the benefit of his health. His friends, in this county, will be saddened to hear of his exceedingly frail condition.—Waterloo Press.

Judge Tousley has been very sick and under the care of a physician for several weeks.—Albion New Era.

—In the case of Wahlford vs Lehman which has attracted so much attention in Fort Wayne, the jury agreed to disagree. The suit was brought by Wahlford to recover on a note said to have been executed by Lehman for $10,000 in consideration of the plaintiff naming a child after Lehman, who died recently at an advanced age, without children.

—As I have disposed of my practice it will save costs for all who know themselves indebted to me to call and settle either by money or note before April 15th, my successor is Dr. W. B. Krider of Chicago and I bespeak for him the patronage of all friends of Homoeopathy.

T. W. TRITCH. M. D.

—Geo. Hazzard waived examination before the Commissioner on charge of violating the bankruptcy law by withholding certain assets from schedule, and gave bond. Edwar Henderson going surety for $2,000. After his release Sheriff Less demanded him on a warrant charging embezzlement, and Hazzard gave another bond for a like sum, with the same surety. Now all that is necessary is for Henderson to appear at the next term of court and renew the bond, and that will end the matter.

—An exchange says, "a railroad conductor combats the current hallucination that the coming generation of Americans will be puny and sickly. His experience of many years convinces him that the contrary is the case, and that the average American child of "under twelve" who travels on a half fare ticket is as large as a boy or girl of fifteen or sixteen used to be in ante-railroad days.

—While Geo. Hazzard was running around hunting bail in charge of a deputy marshal in Indianapolis, last week, he came across the defaulter Frank Bixby, and at once began to berate him for his lack of pluck. 'Why,' said Hazzard, "I've got more sand in my eye than you have got in your whole body. You've made a nice mess of it, haven't you? Why don't you brace up?" Hazzard continued in this strain for some time, but Bixby deigned no reply.

—Another boot and shoe establishment will be opened in Auburn about the first of April by Mr. Isaac Hague, an old well known citizen of this county; having served as county Auditor for the four years last past Mr. Hague has formed a large acquaintance which will be of value to him in business. Mr. Chas. Raut will be associated with Mr. Hague in the custom department, and will be glad to see his old friends and customers at the new establishment. Due notice will be given of the time of opening.

—Mr Henry Keene, living near Spencer, Ind., recently took his 11 months old child into his arms to rock it to sleep, and when in the act of laying it down his hand was pricked with what he thought was a house pin in the child's clothing. On looking for the pin Mr Keene discovered a needle protruding about 1-32d of an inch, from the right side of the child, near its hip. The needle was extracted and from its color and general appearance, as well as from the complaints of the child for the last two months, it is supposed to have been swallowed by the child, and worked its way to the place where found.

—At the division of the profits of the six day walking match which took place in New York, O'Leary was left out in the cold entirely, and will not receive the $1,000 which was originally promised him. Harraman refused absolutely to allow him a cent. Ennis was willing that he should get $1,000 if the other two were, but the little Englishman would not commit himself in any way, and finally Ennis and Harraman voted no. The amount divided was $40,796.61. Rowell gets $18,498.31; Ennis, $11,038.98; Walton, Harraman's backer, $3,679.66; Harraman the same amount; Kelly, for his services as manager, $2,000, and $2,000 is left in bank to provide against contingencies —The celebrated Gilmores Band, containing over 50 members, besides Levy the greatest cornet player in the world Miss Isabell Stone the eminent soprano, and Bernhard Mollenhaure the distinguished violinist. The whole under the direction of P. S. Gilmore of "jubilee" fame, will give a grand concert at the Academy of music in Fort Wayne on Tuesday evening April 1st. This is the finest musical organization in the world, seats can be secured of C. B. Woodworth six days in advance, orders by mail or telegraph will be promptly filled. This organization has been obtained upon the guarantee of the large sum of $800 for one entertainment.

—As noticed elsewhere in this paper, it is probable that Prof. Straub of Chicago will arrange for the instruction of another class in music during the coming spring or summer, in Auburn. We hope the Prof. and those interested will be encouraged in the undertaking, and in this connection we suggest that the public entertainment given at the close of the course of lessons be of a different nature from that of last entertainment by the same party, while it may be that CLASS singing is difficult to render in harmony, and that musicians admire that style of music, it is very certain that the public, those who are expected to patronize such entertainments do not appreciate a concert so much on the sunday-school order. The entertainment given by the Prof. and his class in this place last winter, showed marked musical talent in the majority of the participants—ability that ought not to have been wasted on a majority of the selections constituting the programme. More solos, duets and quartets and fewer choruses-by-the-class, would probably draw a larger audience.

Land for Sale.

The undersigned offers eighty acres of good land (50 acres cleared) one mile east and two miles south of Butler, for sale at a bargain. For further information inquire at my residence, one mile east of Butler.

9-4w PETER HAAS.

An Inquiry.

Is it not better to purchase Dr. Price's Special Flavoring Extracts, Lemon, Orange, Vanilla, etc., that have stood the test of years, than adulterated, unhealthy articles, because they are cheaper? Good pure articles have a fair valuation; and Dr Price's are unequaled in quality and purity.

—Our enterprising manufacturer, Mr. James Anderson, is again in the market with a lot of first class carriages and buggies of his own manufacture, which he will sell at low figures, and on one year's time with approved security. He defies any shop in Northern Indiana to furnish better material than is used in his work. 9-9w

Clergymen and Public Speakers.

There is no doubt that clergymen and orators, while speaking, would derive great benefit from perfuming their handkerchiefs with Dr. Price's Floral Riches, as its fragrance excites the mind to vigorous action and is gratefully refreshing. For fresh, flowery odor, no other cologne or toilet water equals it.

Prof. Straub Again.

We learn from a card received from S. W. Straub that he entertains the thought of making Auburn the point at which to hold his summer music normal this announcement will be read with pleasure by the many friends of Mr. Straub in this county and especially by those in Auburn, he announces his intention to visit Auburn about April 1st to see what can probably be done. Our citizens should give him every encouragement in their power. A successful music normal established here for six weeks and bringing in seventy-five or a hundred people from abroad would make things lively in town.

Lecture.

The people of Auburn are called upon in behalf of the schools to remember the lecture to be delivered to-morrow (Friday) evening at the M. E. church. The schools are sadly in need of books of reference, and any effort to meet a want of that kind should command the hearty co-operation of every friend of popular education. The lecture will be delivered gratis by J. E. Ervin, and half of the proceeds go to the schools. Subject, "Battles between Truth and Falsehood." Mr. Ervin has delivered this lecture several times elsewhere, and has found it to "take" immensely. An admission fee of ten cents will be taken at the door from adults and children alike. THE SCHOOLS.

Close of Auburn Public Schools.

The public schools of this place will close for the year at noon Friday, Aprill 4th. During the forenoon regular work will be done in all the grades. Patrons of the schools and all others interested are cordially invited to be present. For visiting, however, it will be better to come earlier in the week, as a half day is too short a time.

On Saturday evening following the close, an entertainment will be given at Ensley's Hall by all the schools, each one furnishing a few exercises, a full programme of which will appear in next week's papers. An admission fee of ten cents will be charged, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the purchase of reference books for the schools. M. SEILER, Supt.

Some person to the writer unknown, is responsible for giving a couple of our rising young men "dead away" last week. Of course we don't intend to mention it, because Charley bought us off with a nickel cigar, and if our compositors happen to find this memorandum and put it in type, we hope the subscribers to the COURIER will not read it, not that we care particularly, but then the boys might not like it you know. It appears that two very intelligent and prepossessing ladies from Bryan O. were visiting with a lady friend in Auburn, and Charley and Dan manifested a desire to call upon them, whereupon an invitation was extended and the two young gentleman elated with the honor, very gracefully accepted. The appointed time arrived, the gentleman started to church (?) and were soon in the presence of the admired visitors. The evening was pleasantly spent (Charley was especially delighted with the lady to whom he had paid the most attention) and the boys took their leave with the glory of having had the honor of an interview in advance of the other young men of the town. Sweet dreams and fairy visions reigned supreme during the remaining hours of the night. But, alas! how changed when morning came and Charley was informed to his utter dismay, that Mrs. K——, who has been married nine years, had been very pleasantly entertained by him during the evening before. We happened into Hoyt's drug store as the cigars were being passed at Charleys expense, and of course we took one (we always do) with the rest of the boys, all agreeing that nothing more should be said about the matter, lest Charley might be called upon to choose weapons, for that reason we will say nothing more about it, except to our wife, as all men do, but that would, for women never repeat what they hear.

Newville.

—Our neighbors are making sugar.

—Spring has put in an appearance once more.

—School meeting in Orangeville on Saturday evening have not learned the result.

—Good music at the Hall every Saturday evening by the ladies, with Miss Hull at the organ Come and hear it.

—Mr. Leon Rhodes and Mr. Charles Bartlet, left last week for Colorado for the benefit of their health. Well, Newville is an unhealthy climate—for some folk.

—School meeting on last Friday evening at the school house in Newville. Mr. Bell was selected as teacher for the upper department, and Mrs. Alice Denman for the lower.

—The Republican says that the Grand Jury indicted our druggist. We don't believe it, for he don't sell except for medical use. Take it back, Republican, or down comes your meat house.

ALPHA.

Spencerville Items.

—Rommy and Ett are seeking for a Boyle, each.

—Vest has developed a liking for Partica (Partee.)

—Bash Silberg has become a knight of the striped poll.

—Mr. Jonas Pelky is visiting his parents at Cameron, West Va.

—The "top-loftiest" young man of our town has gone to Mich. He forgot to pay his board and wash bill.

—Misses Lemon and Wise have opened a millinery shop in the building formerly occupied by Miss Knight.

—The celebrated hunter, scout and Indian scalper, Charles, Lewis (so called) visited our town last week and tried to imitate an Indian on our streets.

—Some of our county officials are making a record in this community that will aid them to a re-election. Another Carver affair will surely accomplish it.

—J. Y. Davis will move to town this spring, as we understand he has rented property of S. E. Bailey. He expects to make his fortune out of the Chadwick barrel churn.

Angola.

—Miss Belle Henwood is visiting in Fremont.

—The roads are in terrible shape in this vicinity.

—Prof. E. B. Smith, of Fremont, was in town on Monday.

—Chas. W. Buckland, of Waterloo, was in town over Sunday.

—Don C. Wood, Esq., of this place spent the Sabbath in Waterloo.

—Judge C A. O. McClellan, of Waterloo, was in town on Tuesday.

—Messrs. Davis and Davenport of Auburn, were in town Tuesday.

—Prof. H. H. Kepp, of Pleasant Lake, was in town last Saturday.

—The rumor is that we are to have a new hotel in this place this summer.

—Miss Stella Welch is in Waterloo. She will attend the Masquerade Ball at that place

—J. U. Miller's, father-in-law bought the half interest in the Republican, of the Germ Brown estate.

—We suppose C. K. Baxter, of the Press feels happy over the libel suit. But then, Charley, the costs you know.

—Rev. S. M. Siemon, of Ft. Wayne, preached a very able sermon at the Congregational church on last Sunday morning.

—The Ft. Wayne Gazette has a correspondent in this place. We would suggest that who ever it is (and we are almost certain who it is) get some lady to write his locals for him so that the compositor can make them out.

REPORTER.

We Don't Care.

Some dealers say: Yes, we know that Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is the best; but we don't care if others are made of saw-dust or arsenic; so long as they afford us a better profit, and we can sell them. The reason why adulterated baking powders are recommended is because Dr. Price's pay less profit.

People Want Proof.

There is no medicine perscribed by physicians, or sold by druggists, that carries such evidence of its success and superior virtue as Boschee's German Syrup for severe coughs, colds settled on the breast, consumption, or any disease of the throat and lungs. A proof of that fact is that any person afflicted can get a sample bottle for 10 cents, and try its superior effect before buying the regular size at 75 cents. It has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderful cures are astonishing everyone that uses it. Three doses will relieve any case. Try it. Sold by C. H. Hoyt.

'Stunning' Styles.

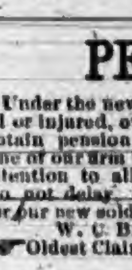
Strangers visiting Ft. Wayne this spring should by all means not neglect to visit A. S. Lauferty & Co's., better known as the C. O. D. Clothiers, and universally acknowledged as the one price, square dealers, unsurpassable nobby clothiers, and dealers in the best made garments for the least money. Their large and Commodious Establishment (presided over by Lauferty himself, assisted by a host of as gentlemanly and pleasant assistants as one can wish to meet,) is situated at No. 9 East Main St., exactly opposite the north door of the court house. You can find there the most complete, well made assortment of Clothing for old men, for middle-aged men, for young men, for boys for children, in fact, for the entire male sex, of any size, shape or descsiption, at prices within the reach of all. Beyond doubt, it is the place where one feels at home the moment he enters, and never leaves UNSUITED or DISSATISFIED. Their line of furnishing goods, hats, caps, trunks and valises is in itself simply an immense department, Remember the place,

A. S. LAUFERTY & CO.
9 EAST MAIN ST.
C. O. D. One-Price Clothiers.
Opposite North Door Court House.

PENSIONS!

Under the new Pension law, soldiers wounded or injured, even if but slightly disabled, can obtain pension back from day of discharge. One of our firm in Washington to give personal attention to all claims before the departments. Do not delay, but write at once. Send stamp for our new soldiers circular.

W. C. BERINGER & Co., Pittburgh, Pa.
☞ Oldest Claim Agency in the U. S. 11 1 m



Collar and Milker free to Agents. Neat, light, durable, cheap. No hames required—excells all others. Farmers want it. Outlasts all others. Adjustable Fits any horse.

Our MILKER, the best on earth, ensures pure, clean milk, saves its cost every week. Sells rapidly. Sent by mail to any part of the U. S. Send stamp for particulars.

J. W. GUERNSEY, Gen. Agent.
78 Courtlandt St., N. Y.

AUCTIONEER.

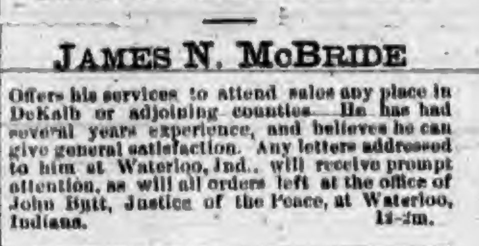
JAMES N. McBRIDE

Offers his services to attend sales any place in DeKalb or adjoining counties. He has had several years experience, and believes he can give general satisfaction. Any letters addressed to him at Waterloo, Ind., will receive prompt attention, as will all orders left at the office of John Butt, Justice of the Peace, at Waterloo, Indiana. 11-3m.

A Remarkable Result.

It makes no difference how many physicians, or how much medicine you have tried, it is now an established fact that German Syrup is the only remedy which has given complete satisfaction in severe cases of lung disease. It is true there are yet thousands of persons who are predisposed to throat and lung affections, consumption, hemorrhages, asthma, severe colds settled on the breast, pneumonia, whooping cough, &c., who have no personal knowledge of Boschee's German Syrup. To such we would say that 50,000 dozen were sold last year without one complaint. Consumptives, try just one bottle. Regular size 75 cents. Sold by C. H. Hoyt.

Portable Mulay Saw Mill,



With improvements recently made is unequaled, as a neighborhood mill. It can be run by either steam or water power, and is especially adapted to the engines used for threshing.

It may be operated by either two or three men, and will cut as much lumber in proportion to the power and number of hands employed as mills of larger capacity.

It makes smooth and even lumber, leaves no stubshot and will cut any sized log up to four feet in diameter. It may be transported from one locality to another and re-erected ready for sawing in from two to three days, and can be made profitable in localities where there is not sufficient timber to justify the erection of a large mill. Send for descriptive circular, price, etc., to CHANDLER & TAYLOR, Indianapolis, Ind.

ANSWER TO CONUNDRUM.

Who sells the best Hat in town for one dollar?

SAM, PETE & MAX

Who sells the best pair of Pants for one dollar?

SAM, PETE & MAX.

Who sells a Linen Bosom, Wamsutta Shirt for one dollar?

SAM, PETE & MAX.

Who sells four pair of genuine Brittish Hose for one dollar?

SAM, PETE & MAX.

Who sells eight heavy four ply Linen Collars for one dollar?

SAM, PETE & MAX.

Who sells everything of the Best for the very lowest prices?

SAM, PETE & MAX

A LIFE SCENE.

BY E. J. CROUCH.

They tell me I am sad,
A gloom is on my brow,
And ask me why I should
Let grief afflict me now.
They point me to the beauties,
That flit so bright and gay,
And urge it is my duty
To chase dull care away.

I muse me much on childhood,
Those sunny days of yore,
When all was true and faithful,
[illegible]
They little think their pleasures
Can have no charms for one
Whose inmost soul's deep treasures
Lie buried in the tomb.

My early vision opened
Upon a glorious day;
My aspirations towered
Among the stars away;
My life was bright and joyous,
My heart was light and free,
And all earth's pleasant voices
Spoke glowing truths to me.

There was an angel guardian—
She had no other name—
That lighted up my pathway!
Who lured me on to fame.
Her form was pure as ether;
A smile had crowned her brow;
Her voice was soft as evening—
I seem to hear it now.

We wandered oft together,
Through woods, o'er hills and dales;
Our thoughts were reaching ever
To pure Elysian vales,
Where mortals know no sin,
And bright hopes ever grow;
Where there no earthly chain
E'er thralls, as here below.

It was one summer evening,
The sun had sunk to rest—
As seated on a mossy bank
She reclined upon my breast.
Her eyes filled with emotion,
That pure platonic love,
She spoke to me of heaven,
The spirit world above.

She whispered that the angels
Had beckoned her to come;
She told me death, their messenger,
Would bear her quickly home.
She noted for a moment
The pallor on my cheek;
I could but murmur faintly
"Canst leave me, dearest—speak!"

Her eyes so softly beaming
Were turned again to mine,
In a sad, sweet smile reproachful,
In a look that seemed divine,
She said our life was happy—
Our joys were all complete—
As to the light of reason
We bowed in homage sweet.

"Look to our Great Creator;
His laws are bright as day;
We've thought and studied on them
And would not disobey.
But then His edict's issued—
I feel it plainly now—
To bear my soul to heaven;
To His blest command I bow.

"But then you will regret not,
Around thy path of life
My snowy wings I'll hover
And guard you in the right.
But fail not—be a teacher
Of our Great Father's laws,
And to earth's erring creatures
Unfold His holy cause.

"And lead them up to virtue,
That purest gem of life;
Seek to assuage corruption,
To turn the tide of strife."
The silent shades of twilight
Now deepened into night;
The moon, in bright effulgence,
Now shed her glorious light.

I turned to catch one whisper
From her, almost adored;
A smile was on each feature,
But she spoke no thrilling word.
I pressed her hand with fervor,
With a shudder all unknown;
The crushing truth flashed on me—
Her spirit bright had flown.

I held the priceless casket
Long hours while there again,
With hope the soul, its jewel,
Would soon return again.
But no! in child-like silence,
As one who walks in sleep,
I heard not and I cared not
For the sound of moving feet.

Beneath the weeping willow,
Within the old church-yard,
They made for her a pillow
Where grows the fresh, green award.
Years still are fleeting onward,
And memory still is true—
I but live for fame and honor
And the good that I can do.

Then urge no more your pleasures,
But keep them for your own;
I have a living fountain
This world has never known.
And, when in thought or action,
A wrong would enter in,
Bright wings are rustling over
To beguile me from all sin.

Chicago Ledger.

A BURGLARY AND AN ELOPEMENT.

"I tell you," cried Arthur Lambert, in a rage, "if I catch that sneaking scoundrel in this house again, I'll break every bone in his body!"

Rose Lambert laughed derisively.

"Take care that you don't come off second-best, my valiant brother. Charles is not a 'sneaking scoundrel,' and I think that if you came to blows with him you would be in danger of being the greatest sufferer of the two!"

"I'm not afraid of him, nor of all the Gores who ever sung psalms."

"I don't think that Charles was ever hurt by any psalm-singing. He has not been to church, that I know of, since he gave up preaching at St. Blossom, and never did like it. Indeed, I only wish he was a little more serious."

"He'll be serious enough after I've had hold of him."

Rose put on a highly-quizzical expression.

"Now, my dear brother, what on earth is the use of talking about Charley Gore in that way? You have forbidden him the house forty times, you have forbidden me to see him just as often, and have threatened to whip him ever since he first—first began to—pay attention to me. I am quite tired of your blustering, and know that it means nothing; so I advise you to put on a smiling face, let me have my own way, and make the best of it."

"I have done nothing but talk, so far," replied the wrathful young man, "and now I'm going to act. I warn you, if you care anything for Charles Gore, not to let him come here again; for if I catch him I shall certainly give him the worst thrashing any man ever got in this town!"

And off he went, and banged the door behind him.

The fact was that Charley Gore was very much in love with Rose Lambert, and Rose Lambert was very much in love with Charley Gore; but Arthur Lambert was tremendously prejudiced against the young man, and took every possible occasion to say bitter things about him before Rose.

Of course this only fanned the flame of her love for him. There is nothing like a little wholesome persecution to intensify a love affair; so the more Arthur swore his sister shouldn't marry Gore, the more she declared she would.

As for Gore, he was a terribly lazy fellow. He had gone into the church on leaving college, only because he thought a parson's life an easy one; but sundry little escapades he indulged in during his clerical experience created a great scandal about him, and, when he came into his property at his father's death, he found that even the slight labor of preparing two sermons a week, and making his pastoral visits, fatigued him too much; so he left his church in St. Blossoms, and retired to his old homestead, Cedar Point, and settled down in the sweet indolence of bachelorhood. He sat in his garden, or on the piazza that overhung the bay, and smoked and read all the afternoon for days and days together, until he met Rose Lambert, when an extraordinary fit of energy took hold of him, and he rowed down the bay three miles to her brother's house every day, and came back in the evening.

When Arthur Lambert forbade him the premises, they used to fix upon various secluded little nooks along shore for trysting places, and continued to meet as before. Charley would go to the house, too, once in a while; but he was always liable to discovery, and then there was an inevitable "scene" with Arthur.

"I'm not a bit afraid of him, you know," said the indolent ex-pastor, "but these scenes are so much trouble to a fellow; they're too much like work to suit me."

So Rose and he generally preferred to meet somewhere out of the house, until Arthur finally set his foot down that they should not meet at all, and the above conversation took place.

That very afternoon Charley rowed leisurely down the bay, keeping well in, near the shore, till he came to a picturesque little spot where two large rocks, standing at right-angles, left a sheltered, cozy corner, in which a primitive sort of seat was placed, just long enough for two. Here he grounded his boat, and sprung ashore.

"She isn't here yet," he soliloquized, looking at his watch; "but the time is hardly up."

He had just got the words out of his mouth when he saw the flutter of a shawl at the corner of the rock, and Rose presented herself, looking as blooming as her floral namesake.

Now I'm not going to tell all that they did and said when they first met, for most everybody knows all about it from experience; and, however nice such meetings are in real life, they are always a little flat to read in print. Therefore I shall omit the first ten minutes' conversation, and go at once to what concerns my story.

"What do you suppose Arthur is going to do?" asked Rose.

"I'm sure I don't know; whip me, I suppose."

"Yes; but that's not all. He is going to watch me, and if he finds out that we have met again he will lock me up in my chamber!"

"No—you don't mean it!"

"Yes—so he says."

"I tell you what it is, little maiden mine, I've got an idea."

"What is it?"

"The sooner we marry, the better."

The little maiden blushed, but didn't say anything against the proposition.

"This courting under difficulties," continued Charley, "is hard work, and you know I never had much taste for that. I had a good deal rather marry first and do the courting afterward. I shall have more time, and far better opportunities. In fact, it always seemed queer to me that men don't make love to their wives more than they do; they have such glorious chances! What do you say to our marriage now?"

Rose hadn't thought of it so soon. She blushed a good deal, and hesitated a good deal, but finally concluded that she had rather get ready in a few days, and be married without noise and ceremony, than to run the risk of being locked up, and having Charley insulted and troubled continually.

The rest of the conversation was, like the first part of it, altogether too personal to be appropriate for publication; and the young folks parted in the loftiest good humor. They were to meet once more, to make final arrangements, and on the next day but one Charley was to row down to the house and get Rose, who promised to contrive some means of sending Arthur away for a short while. They were then to return to Cedar Point together, where everything should be in readiness, and the knot would be tied.

Unfortunately, however, as Rose tripped down the shore toward home, after this last meeting, Arthur stepped up behind her and laid hold of her arm.

"Yes," sad he, sardonically, "a very nice plan. I heard you—all you said—both you and that lazy, loafing, conceited puppy. Run away with him, will you? I like that! Come along, now, and we'll see whether a little quiet won't tame you down!"

In vain Rose struggled and scolded; in vain she insisted that her brother had no right to detain her, and threatened him with all sorts of legal actions, about which she knew a little less than nothing. He forced her to go home to her own room, and locked her safely in. At supper-time he sent her tea up, and allowed her plenty of books, her guitar, etc., but would not permit her to cross the door-sill.

She was terribly angry. She cried for the first half hour, then stormed a little, and finally commenced making examinations of the premises, with a view of escaping. The windows were high, and the rose-bushes below would make a dangerous landing-place; so she gave that idea up. The door was too strong to be burst open—the chimney too narrow to climb up; and she was reluctantly compelled to abandon one attempt after another, till she despaired of escaping, and did a little more crying over it.

Charley Gore was at the trysting-place at the appointed time, and waited disconsolately until it was nearly dark, when he rowed down to Lambert's house to see if he could catch a glimpse of Rose. He saw no one except Arthur, who sat on the piazza in front of the door glancing defiance at him. A visit under those circumstances being impossible, the disappointed young man turned about and rowed home, wishing that there were no such things as brothers, and very much puzzled to know what to do.

In the meantime Rose passed her time slowly and anxiously. She endeavored to bribe her chambermaid to send a letter to Cedar Point, informing Charley of her position; but the discreet handmaiden delivered the epistle to Arthur, who burned it, and informed his sister that she need not take the trouble to write again.

At the hour agreed upon Charley Gore and a friend, who was in his confidence, armed themselves, and, taking the lightest and swiftest of the many boats kept at Cedar Point, proceeded to Lambert's house. Gore did not know, of course, what ill-luck had befallen Rose, but was prepared for almost anything. There was a light in her window, as agreed, and the rest of the house was auspiciously dark.

"I hope all is well," said the young man; "you stay in the boat, and I will go to the house alone. If I want you I'll whistle."

He walked cautiously across the little garden that lay between the house and the beach, and entered the front door, which was standing wide open. The parlor door was open, too, and the room in sad confusion. Two great bags of coarse canvas, filled with ornaments, etc., lay in the hall, and a quantity of clothing, tied up in a blanket, lay at the foot of the stairs.

Wondering what on earth could be the matter, Charley ascended the stairway, and just as he reached the second floor saw a man unlock Rose's door and coolly enter her chamber.

Rose, who was lying on the sofa, gave a scream of terror, and the man drew back alarmed. Gore made three steps from the head of the stairs to the door, and recognized in the stranger a man who had been committed to the St. Blossom jail for burglary, but who had been pardoned out.

"What, Jake Williams!" exclaimed Gore.

"Parson Gore, as I'm alive!" cried the burglar. "My game's up—I'd better sherry this crib!"

And he darted off before Charley could make out what he said. As he ran he dropped several silver spoons and forks, some skeleton keys, and a variety of articles, that showed what he had been about pretty plainly. He had seen Arthur Lambert ride into the village of St. Blossom that evening, and had hastened over to accomplish a robbery he had long been planning. The surprise of finding Gore in the house had frightened him, and he fled, leaving his booty behind.

Arthur, in the interim, had been much worried by a vague presentiment that Gore would prosecute his original intention of carrying Rose off that night, but some very urgent business had called him to St. Blossom, and he could not avoid going. He had left strict orders with the servants to admit no one; but two of them had taken advantage of his absence to go out visiting, and the chambermaid—the only one left—was so frightened by hearing the burglar's movements up stairs that she had hidden herself in the coal-cellar, and remained there speechless with terror.

Arthur transacted his business with all possible dispatch, and hurried home from the village as fast as his horse could carry him. Entering the yard in the rear of the house, he saw a small wagon standing by the high barn-yard fence, and perceived a man dart from the back door of the house toward this vehicle. The idea that it was Charley Gore, come to elope with Rose, flashed upon him instantly, and, swinging adroitly down from the saddle, he seized the retreating stranger and gave him a blow under the jaw that whirled him completely around. The man rallied, however, and administered a severe left-hander upon Lambert's nose that staggered him in turn. They then clinched and went down, Lambert choking his foe energetically, and the other endeavoring to get at a dirk concealed under his coat.

The fight was a severe one, and lasted several minutes, much "science" being displayed on both sides, and many contusions exchanged. At length, however, Lambert gained the victory, having choked the other nearly to death, and wrenched the dirk from his hand.

"Now, you infernal villain, you'll come here to steal my sister away, will you? When I forbid you the house again, I want you to stay away!" said he, with the heat of passion in his voice.

"Your sister!" gasped the fallen man; "your sister! Who the d—l wants her? When did you forbid me the house?"

"What do you mean?"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I told Rose that I would thrash you if you ever came to see her again; and now I've done it."

"Who is Rose? I never came to see Rose."

Arthur thought that this was not Gore's voice; and, now that his first excitement was over, he perceived that the stranger's shoulders were somewhat broader than that young gentleman's.

"Why, bless my soul, you—no, you are not Charles Gore!"

"Gore! Parson Gore! No; he's in the house there now; he scared me off!"

"Gore in the house now! Where?"

"I don't know; let me up—you're almost killing me."

Lambert was in a predicament. In the struggle the rest of the spoons and forks had fallen from the burglar's pockets, and he now saw, for the first time, what the man's real object had been in visiting the house. He did not want to let him go, yet he could not stay there, with Charley Gore on forbidden ground.

After a moment's thought, however, he decided that he must prevent the elopement at all hazards, and, leaving Williams on the ground, he rushed into the house and up stairs, with the dirk still in his hand.

I am afraid that the encounter would have been a severe one if the two young men had met, both being armed, and Lambert being actually crazy with anger. Fortunately they didn't meet. Rose's chamber door stood wide open—the lamp was burning—but she was gone, and a number of her dresses, etc., with her. Lambert rushed down to the shore, but could see nothing—the boat had gone far out of sight while he was engaged with the burglar in the back yard.

Like a prudent young man, he resigned himself to the ruling of destiny, and made the best of it, as he ought to have done before. He called up the trembling chambermaid from the coal-hole; bade her put her house in order, and pick up the spoons; washed the blood from his face, and sat down to a glass of brandy and water and a cigar as cheerfully as the circumstances would permit. The burglar had very naturally absconded, but had carried off nothing with him, and, beyond the pounding he gave Lambert, and a little damage to some of the parlor ornaments, there was no harm done by his visit except to himself. The authorities were set upon his track, and he was soon an inmate of the St. Blossom jail once more.

The next week Charley and Rose set off on their wedding tour, and when they returned Arthur generously apologized, and offered them the right hand of friendship, which they accepted. They now occupy one house—Cedar Point—and the two brothers-in-law have had many a hearty laugh over the accidents and incidents of the night when there was a burglary and an elopement from the same premises.

A Model Wife.

When the peddler rang Mr. Bird's door-bell the other day, Mr. Bird himself opened the door. Mr. Bird had the baby upon his arm, and there were four other children at his heels.

"Is the lady of the house in?" asked the peddler.

"Certainly she isn't," replied Bird. "She is out. She is perennially and eternally out!"

"Where can I see her?"

"Why, go down to the Woman Suffrage club-room; and if she isn't there, go to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals; and if she isn't there, visit the hall of the Association for Alleviating the Miseries of the Senegambians; and if she has finished up there, look for her at the Church Aid Society, or at the Ninth Ward soup-house, or the Home of the One-Legged, or at the Refuge for Infirm Dogs, or at the Hospital for the Asthmatic, or at the St. Polycarp Orphan Asylum, or at some of these places. If you get on her track, you'll see more paupers and strong-minded women and underclothing for the heathen than you ever saw in the whole course of your life."

"I wanted to sell her a cold-handled flat-iron, just out. Do you think she would buy one?"

"She will if you can prove that the naked cannibals in Senegambia are yearning for cold-handled flat-irons. She would buy diamond breast-pins for those niggers, if they wanted them, I believe."

"I intended, also, to offer her a new kind of immovable hair-pin, which——"

"All right. You just go down to the Home for the One-Legged, and persuade those cripples to cry for immovable hairpins, and she'll order 'em by the ton."

"Has she any children?"

"Well; I'm the one that appears to have 'em; just now, anyhow."

"Because I have a gum top for a feeding-bottle that is the nicest thing you ever saw."

"Now," said Mr. Bird, "I'll tell you what to do. You get the paupers to swear they can't eat the soup they get at the soup-house with spoons; they must have it from bottles with a rubber muzzle, and Mrs. Bird will keep you so busy supplying the demand that you won't have a chance to sleep. You just try it. Buy up the paupers! Bribe 'em."

"How'll I know her if I see her?"

"Why she's a very large woman with a bent nose, and she talks all the time. You'll hear her talking as you get within a mile of her. She'll ask you to subscribe to the Senegambian fund and to the Asthmatic Asylum, before you can get your breath. Probably she'll read you four or five letters from reformed cannibals. But don't you mind 'em. My opinion is she wrote 'em herself. It don't make any difference, but you might mention that since she left home the baby has had four fits. Johnny has fallen out of the pear-tree and cracked his skull. Mary and Jim have something like croup, and Tommy has been bitten by Jones' dog. It don't excite her. She won't care a cent; but I'd like her to have the latest news. Tell her if she can manage to drop in here for a minute between now and the Fourth of July, she might, maybe, wash the baby and give the other children a chance to remember how she looks. But she needn't come if it will interfere with the happiness of the one-legged mendicants, or make her asthmatic patients miserable. Mind and mention it to her now, will you?"

"I will."

"All right; then I'll go in and put some fresh sticking-plaster on Johnny's skull."

And with baby singing a vociferous solo, and the other children clinging to his leg, Mr. Bird retreated and shut the door. The peddler had determined to propose to a girl that night. He changed his mind, and resolved to remain a bachelor.—Cincinnati Times.

Neglected Presidential Homes.

Jefferson's home, Monticello, is to be sold at auction on the 20th inst. A bill has just been introduced into the Tennessee Legislature to give perpetual use and occupation of the Hermitage, the grave of Jackson, to Mrs. Sarah York Jackson and her heirs forever. The property is in a very dilapidated condition. In 1848 Tennessee bought the estate, some 500 acres in all, from Jackson's adopted son and namesake, for $48,000 in bonds, the tomb itself with the acre in which it is situated remaining the property of the family. The attempt now making, therefore, to restore the property to the family is simply an attempt to redeem in some measure the reputation of the Commonwealth.—New York World.

SEWAGE farms and modern manures make surface-water supply dangerous, and in England they are beginning to depend more and more on artesian wells. The London water companies have sunk several of late years.

MEXICAN BANDITS.

How They Rob Railroad Trains and Stage Coaches.

[Mexican Correspondence.]

The brigands have reduced the robbing of railway trains to a science. As each train is accompanied by a military guard, the usual freights and the money in the passengers' pockets are not worth the risk of capturing. It is only when the Government or some banking firm sends a large quantity of specie on one of the trains that there is any likelihood of an attack, and the thieves seem to have some sure means of learning when there is a large sum of money aboard. The trains on the railway from Mexico to Vera Cruz are usually very long, all drawn by a huge double locomotive. At the rear end of the train is always a small car, about half the size of the others, very much like the "caboose" at the end of American coal trains. This is for the escort or military guard, a dozen or fifteen men, under command of an officer. These men, like all the Mexican soldiers, are copper-colored, full or half-breed Indians, clad in very light stuff, wearing sandals, and very small in stature. The specie is on one of the freight cars that go ahead of the passenger cars—the thieves easily find out which one. Besides the escort on the train there is a small military guard that meets the train at each station, and gives the country the appearance, to a traveler by rail, of being full up to the brim with soldiers and running over. On account of this latter guard, the thieves are very careful that the robberies shall be committed between stations. They have a very ingenious way of getting rid of the military escort that accompanies the train. They get in the cars separately at different stations, and, when the proper time comes, one of the band, who has previously been selected, goes to the rear of the last passenger car and uncouples the car containing the soldiers. This is always done on a sharp curve, when the engineer cannot see the end of his train, and always on an up-grade, so that the uncoupled car will soon stop; and there are plenty of such places on this steep and crooked railroad. Then they go through the train till they come to the treasure car, break into it, saw a hole through the bottom, and, when the place is reached that has been determined upon, the boxes containing the money are dropped out through the hole. Another part of the brigand party, of course, are awaiting at the appointed place, and pick up the specie and make off with it as soon as it is dropped. The specie and the brigands disappear together, and the Government, the only loser, hushes up the story as much as possible, and seizes another church to make up for the loss. The passengers, perhaps, know nothing about the robbery, or, if they do, they know better than to interfere. And all this time the twelve soldiers in the rear car, finding that they are in no personal danger, sit still and resolve to defend their car to the very last gasp.

The process of robbing a stage coach is very simple. I cannot tell it better than in the words of a man who had had the experience:

"The first thing we knew," said he, "there were forty or fifty brigands around the diligence, and the horses were stopped. Before I had time to turn around, I had a revolver pointed at each side of my head, and I was told to hand over my money. I had $300 in notes along, but I had hidden that in one of the cushions, and had only $2 or $3 in silver in my pockets. They helped themselves to my watch and everything else in my pocket that I cared anything for; but my having so little money seemed to excite their suspicions, and one of them took me to one side of the road, away from the coach, making me bring along a small sachel I was carrying with me. He told me to take off my clothes, and I did. The sachel contained an old suit of light clothes belonging to a friend of mine, much too small for me; but he said he thought my clothes would about fit him, and he made me put on the old ones. He did not take time to search the pockets, as he was taking clothes and all; but, when I told him that I should need two or three more meals and a lodging before I got to the end of my journey, he gave me back the $2 or $3 in silver. But he left me a bad-looking specimen, in the old suit of clothes, though I was better off than most of the other passengers, for they were sitting around in their underclothes, and one woman, whose clothes had been stolen, was wrapped up in a horse blanket. Then we went on."

Where Does Dew Come From?

The general belief is that the soil obtains water from the air at night by absorption and condensation to such an extent as to be of the "utmost agricultural value," and that in times of drought this moisture of the air invigorates and sustains plants which otherwise would perish. The observations of Prof. Stockbridge show the soil, from May to November, both at the surface and five inches deep, to be warmer than the air; it is hardly possible that moisture on the surface in the morning was deposited from the air. A more reasonable conclusion is that the vapor which rises from the surface is condensed as it comes in contact with the colder air. The phenomenon of so-called "dew-fall" is usually attributed to the supposed fact that soil and plants are colder than the air at night, and so condense its moisture in the form of "dew." The "dew" on the ice-pitcher is the common illustration to prove the theory; but, as we have seen, the conditions in this case are the reverse of those with soil and plant, which are both warmer than the air at night, while the ice-pitcher is colder. Further investigations were made in the study of this question. A tin box, without top or bottom, was filled with soil and placed in growing grass; the next morning the grass was loaded with dew, but not a trace appeared on the box, and the temperature of the soil was 66 deg., and of the air 60 deg. This experiment was repeated many times with the same results. Then a loose tin cover was placed on the box; in the morning the top of the cover was dry, but the under side was "thickly studded with drops of water"—dew.—American Agriculturist.

MY NEIGHBOR.

Love your neighbor as yourself—
Thus the Good Book readeth;
And I glance across the way
At my neighbor Edith,
Who, with garden-hat and gloves,
Through the golden hours
Of the sunny summer-morn,
Flits among her flowers.

Love your neighbor as yourself—
Winsome, blue-eyed girlie,
Golden gleams of sunny hair,
Dimpled, pink and pearly.
As I lean upon the stile
And watch her at her labor,
How much better than myself
Do I love my neighbor!

Love your neighbor as yourself—
How devout I'm growing!
All my heart with fervent love
Toward my neighbor glowing.
Ah! to keep that blest command
Were the sweetest labor,
For with all my heart and soul
Do I love my neighbor!

LIZZIE CLARK HARDY.

PITH AND POINT.

A LONG tramp—A tall vagrant.

AN inn-specter—A hotel-spook.

A BAD sign—A defaced guide-board.

A LIEN business—Drawing a mortgage.

A HIGHLY colored tale—The peacock's.

"CROOKED whisky" is not whisky straight.

OLD topers are famous for their dry remarks.

IS NOT Lent a good season for the loan fisherman?

READY-MADE—The young lady waiting for an offer.

A RETIRED Boston fireman calls himself an ex-spurt.

THERE is nothing gun under the sun but the horned horse.

WHY are swine like trees?—Because they root in the ground.

WHAT winter has no Christmas? The "winter of our discontent."

DANCING is forbidden during Lent, but fish balls are allowable.

WHY are obstinate people like facts? Because they are stubborn things.

WHAT bridle most surely holds an unruly lover? The bridal of the bridal day.

THE more a man preys, the more certain is he to be damned—by those he preys upon.

IT is painful to see a man trying to "make up his mind," who has no mind to make up.

A HANGMAN, being asked by a stranger what trade he pursued, replied that he was a finisher.

JUST because she snores, a refined man will not refer to his wife as "a regular snorter."

"CAWS and effect," said the farmer, as he ruefully surveyed a field of corn devastated by crows.

IT is vulgar to call a man "bow-legged." Just speak of him as a parenthetical pedestrian.

CHINA merchants never have to invite American sea Captains to dine, as they always come after tea.

AN unassuming traveler can make a fare display by keeping his railroad-ticket where it will be seen.

NO SELF-RESPECTING old colored woman now-a-days thinks of dying until she has reached the age of 101.

IN these artistic days, when you are asked to take a drink, you are requested to come and "decorate your inside."

SOLILOQUY by a tippler: "The public always notices when you have been tippling, but never when you are thirsty."

THE boy who was getting a little too large to enjoy the flattery of his mother's sisters, said he had got "syc-ophants" long ago.

"SUPPOSE I should work myself up to the interrogation point?" said a beau to his sweetheart. "I should respond with an exclamation!" was the reply.

"SEE how I ride o'er the raging mane!" exclaimed a man who was thrown over his horse's head into a ditch on the other side of the fence.

THE Chinese Encyclopædia meets a long-felt want; no family should be without it. It is published in Pekin, and has only 5,020 volumes. Price, $7,500.

EDITOR Holden, of the Yonkers Gazette, had a cat which he named Plutarch, because it had so many lives. Quite an appropriate name for a son of the mews.

GLADSTONE has been presented with a silver hatchet. This places him under an awkward responsibility for the future. He cannot tell a lie.—Harvard Lampoon.

"DO YOU say your prayers every night and morning?" asked a sympathetic lady of a little shoeblack to whom she had just given a trifle. "I allus sez 'um at night, mum; but any smart boy can take care of hisself in the day time," was the little rogue's reply.

IF a lady meet a lady
Coming down the street,
Need a lady tell a lady
That she looks "so sweet?"
For well she knows before she gets Fairly out of sight,
She'll turn around and say aloud,
"What a horrid fright!"

—Exchange.

A LITTLE boy from New York went into the country visiting. He had a bowl of bread and milk. He tasted it, and then hesitated for a moment, when his mother asked him if he didn't like it, to which he replied, smacking his lips: "Yes, ma, I wish our milkman would keep a cow."

On a Lark.

A teacher in one of the Westfield (Ct.) public schools was startled the other day at the answer she got from one bright little fellow. On the black-board was the picture of an ostrich, and the teacher described its great strength and power of endurance, closing by saying it was the only bird upon which a man could ride. "I know another," spoke up a little chap. "Well, what is it?" "A lark." Unsuspectingly the teacher asked, "How can you prove that, Johnny?" "All I know about it," said the boy, "is that mother every little while says father's off on a lark, and when he comes home he looks as if he had rode awful fast."

BRAZIL is full of impecunious Americans.

GOSSIP FOR THE LADIES.

Going Out With the Tide.

Raise me up in my bed, wife;
There's the sound of the sea in my ears,
And it sings to my soul in a music
That earth is not blessed to hear.
Open the little window, wife,
Then come and sit by my side;
We'll wait God's sweet flood-water
To take me out with the tide.

I see the harbor-bar, wife,
And my dear little boat in the bay;
But who shall be able to guide her
When her master hath passed away?
I know that her helm, so trusty,
Will answer no other hand
As it answered mine when I knew, wife,
[illegible]

Our boys are all before us, wife;
Wee Jack is beneath the wave;
And blue-eyed Freddie sleeps, wife,
In yonder [illegible] grave,
Where the early daisies cluster
Around his baby bed,
And the thrush sits crooning softly
In yon tree that shades the dead.

There's a chill runs through our hearts, wife,
When the harbor-bar doth moan;
But a darker grief will be yours, wife,
When you're left in the cot alone;
But a few more flows of the sea, wife,
And a few more ebbs of the tide,
Then God's sweet flood shall bring you
Again to your old man's side!

The red sun is in the west, wife,
And the tide sinks down with the sun;
We will part with each other in love, wife,
For sweetly our lives have run.
Give me your hand, my own love,
As you have given it in days of yore:
We will clasp them, ne'er to be sundered,
When we meet on the far-off shore!
—Chambers' Journal.

A Railroad Romance.

Here is a romantic incident, as we find it related in the N. Y. Tribune:

On a railroad train—no cards. A section of a sleeping-car of the night express which left Pittsburg Friday evening was occupied by a lady, who had informed the conductor that upon the arrival of the train at Harrisburg she expected to meet a beautiful man. He was all the world to her, she explained, with downcast eyes, and he would be accompanied by a minister. The train bowled into the depot at 3:50 A. M., and bridegroom and minister enter the bridal-car. The conductor shouted "All aboard;" the train thundered on through the night; the porter held a lantern, by the light of which the minister read a brief marriage service, and the young couple, who stood before him, holding on to the seats and more or less to each other, were declared one. Not long afterward the eastern sky was streaked with pink and gray; anon a morning newspaper was cried in the car, and ere a great while a train-boy stared the travelers out of countenance and murmured, "Peanuts and lozenges." Their wedding journey had begun!

Cooking Schools.

A good cooking school has been started in Boston. Private classes are opened, and great things are expected of the venture. Commenting upon the enterprise the Boston Advertiser says:

Probably the best cooking school for an ignorant girl is the kitchen of a kind and intelligent mistress, who is willing to spend a large part of her life in that best missionary work—training Irish and German girls in ways of thrifty housewifery. But since the days of our grandmothers, housekeeping has taken on new aspects. The young mother once had her kitchen within easy reach from her nursery, but now a separation by long flights of stairs makes it practically impossible that she shall spend much time in teaching her cook. It is hoped, then, that this cooking school will be of great benefit to families in providing good cooks; that it will be of still greater benefit to many unemployed or poorly-paid women by providing a way by which, at small expense, they can fit themselves to obtain comfortable homes and to receive good wages. When shirts are sold for fifty cents each there must be many women working at extremely low wages. Cannot some of these be induced to fit themselves for domestic service? It is hope that this cooking school will be an aid, too, in the cause of temperance. Nourishing, well-seasoned food will, without doubt, prevent that craving for spirits which, before it becomes an uncontrolable appetite, is often merely the cry of hunger.

Scallops.

We are permitted to make the following extract from a private letter to a lady residing in Syracuse, which will at least amuse lady readers of the Journal:

"I have just come from the daily task of scalloping my hair, and I feel that I must relieve my mind to you on this subject. If I were a school girl, I would make this my subject for an essay, and try to portray, feebly though it must be, the misery and weariness attending it. I think the person who invented this unique style of hair-dressing—which heretofore I have silently admired—was either an oculist or manufacturer of glass eyes, for, of all things to make a person cross-eyed or blind, I consider this the most effectual. Woe is me that the edict went forth, 'Scallops are becoming to you; henceforth wear scallops.' Since then all peace of mind has forsaken me. I have a dread of retiring, for that spoils my scallops; my dreams are disturbed, fancying morning is near and—'henceforth you must wear scallops' sounds in my ear. Spite of all I can do, these words of art are ever keeping me in an unhappy state of mind. I had one day of absolute rebellion in my heart. I was giving this too much time and strength. So little was left for the practical and delightful ways I had been wont to spend my time. I could not, no, not even for the good opinions of my friends, dress my hair after this style of architecture any longer. I fled to a hair-dresser, placed myself in her hands, told her to dress my hair in some simple, easy manner. She scalloped it! So with fingers weary and worn, with eyelids heavy and red, I—scalloped my hair. Good-bye, write to me, if you have time, for I have no time, no strength, no heart, for anything so trivial as letter-writing. I scalloped my hair!"—Syracuse Journal.

A Wedding-trip Down the Mountain on a Hand-sled.

On Tuesday last a wedding party in high life came off at Carpenter's. Why it may be termed a wedding in high life is because it occurred on top of the high mountain directly opposite the station. After the wedding ceremony was performed, the newly-married couple made a somewhat novel start in life. From the top of the steep mountain they concluded to go to the station on a hand-sled. The time for starting came, and their friends, after helping to fix them and their baggage solidly on their sled, gave the sled a push, and away they went, shooting over the ground at the rate of forty miles an hour. Half way down they turned a sharp curve, when to their horror they discovered a span of mules not far distant coming up the mountain. They saw at a glance that there was not room enough to pass those mules, and that the mules would not have time enough to get out of the way. And what made matters worse, there was a high embankment to the road. However, they did not hesitate as to what was to be done, for stop they couldn't, and to strike in among the legs of those mules, they well knew, would be to be kicked out of the world at once. John, the husband, of course was pilot to the sled, and bracing himself to meet the rapidly approaching trouble, he exclaimed:

"Now, Maria, as you swore this morning to cling to me until death, I would advise you to give extra fastenings to your arms around my waist, for over the bank we must go!"

"Let her slide, John, I'm praying for both of us!" replied the faithful wife.

And John did let her slide, by bravely turning the sled to one side, and letting it shoot over the embankment, down a distance of twenty feet into the snow below, carrying with it a bride, groom and carpet bags into one promiscuous heap. Fortunately the snow was deep enough to break the force of the fall, and nothing serious, save the smashing of John's new high hat, followed. Even this would not have happened if Maria had not fastened her teeth on the rim of it just as they were about making the plunge over the embankment. Suffice it to say that the wedding party gathered themselves together again in a little while and resumed their bridal trip, John occasionally pulling off his tile to see if any improvement could be made in its appearance, his only words of censure being, "If you had allowed that hat to fly, my darling, it would have taken care of itself.—Williamsport (Pa.) Bulletin.

A Texas Reporter's Description of a Bride and Bridesmaids.

At the hour of 8 a hush told that the bridal party were approaching, and in a moment, leaning on the arm of J. D. G., Esq., like a pale, soft shadow from dreamland, with hair flowing down in dazzling confusion, like the faintest rays of a summer sunset, eyes like the violets, lips like the coral and brow like the lilies, came Miss M. I. She wore blue and white, and looked the Hyacinthe Pale as she took her position on the left of the entrance.

The came with Capt. W. M. R. Miss M. McK., beautiful like Miss I., and if she were thought less fair you would forget it in watching the calm and quiet brow, the gentle and loving eyes, as with womanly dignity and grace she moved toward her place on the right, opposite Miss I., dressed also in blue and white, to represent a wood violet.

Next came with W. R. N., Esq., Miss A. G., with sparkling eyes and cheeks aglow with a freshness of health and perfect beauty, such as few earth-born people possess, and that Diana herself might have envied, as she took up her position on the left, dressed in white trimmed with pink, and represented (what she was) a dark eyed beauty of the south.

Now came with Dr. J. McK. Miss K. B., floating in like Titania, queen of the fairies, such a picture of diminutive loveliness as haunts the sleep of "wild, dreaming boys," and as she moved to her place on the right, and as our eyes caught a glimpse of the dainty little foot that for a moment peeped from her trailing garments, we whispered, "this is the veritable Cinderella." She was clothed upon with white trimmed with pink, and was a Humming Bird of the Andes.

Next came with J. C. E., Esq., Miss B. H. J., the sister of the bride, with her great dreamy eyes half hidden beneath the long, soft, drooping lashes, moving timidly, like a bashful child, to her place on the left, dressed in green and white to represent her purity and the jealousy of all the other young ladies, and leaving the beholder in wonder as to where the boundary was betwixt perfect artlessness and perfect art.

Next came with Mr. F. J. Miss I., who, as she moved to her place on the right, made one think that it was of her Byron wrote:

"She walks in beauty like the night,
Of cloudless climes and starry skies,
And all that's best of dark and bright,
Meet in her aspect and her eyes,
Thus mellowed to that tender light
That heaven to gaudy day denies."

Dressed in white, trimmed in green, a Lotus of the Nile.—San Antonio Express.

Fashion Notes.

Garnet, with all kindred reds of Bordeaux, ruby, maroon, cardinal and nacaret is immensely popular.

Among the novelties are found side satchels of Duchesse and Brussels point, lined with colored silk, satin or velvet.

Black cambrics, with bouquets over them of small flowers, will be much worn this spring.

Buntings are seen again this spring in finer qualties than heretofore. Debeges are to be as popular as ever, and are in every delicate and pretty shade.

A new idea in button-holes is to cut them diagonally in cloth, as it is said the buttons lay more flat, and are less liable to work out.

Vests are a prominent feature of all the spring costumes. Satin is much used for them, and some of them are richly embroidered in colors as well as in black.

Embroideries in black tulle worked with garnet beads are much used, especially on garnet satin and velvet dresses. The bonnets matching these toilets are bordered with cordings worked with garnet-colored beads.

Flounces are to be side-plaited this summer, and stitched on the skirt an inch or more below the upper edge, to give it a standing heading. Another style of flounce is a plain straight band, eight inches deep, with side plaits, into which faus are inserted.

The heavy gold chains and pendant lockets have been discarded, and the newest sets consist of a tiny bar, with perhaps a tiny padlock suspended from the center, the ear-rings corresponding, only small.

The broad-brimmed Leghorn hat will again adorn the would-be "Maud Muller." Its brim will be caught down with square bows of ribbon, white feathers will adorn its crown, and all the homely and old women will want to wear it.

Dressy wraps for spring will be mantles of plain camel's hair trimmed with rich fringes. One of the new shapes for the visite cloak has sleeves ending in long fichu or scarf ends which are tied tightly across the front, giving a scarf effect to the cloak.

Two leading styles that will prevail in suits for early spring will be the basque with a short round skirt on which the overskirt is permanently draped. The other has the princess back and basque front with overskirt. The short, round, narrow skirt is merely a foundation.

The Peculiar Dangers of George Bank Fishing.

George Bank, upon which the Gloucester fleet was lost, is situated about 140 miles east-southeast from Gloucester, and is the famous feeding ground for codfish and haddock. The water shoals gradually from the deep sea to the center of the bank, where it ranges in depth from six to twelve fathoms. A very strong tide runs across it, making as high as three knots an hour on a full course. A heavy wind, as can at once be understood, especially when it blows against the tide, rolls up across the shoals a tremendous, short, combing sea, in which a vessel cannot be controlled by human power; it is entirely at the mercy of the wind and waves. The fleet usually anchors in from twenty-five to thirty fathoms of water, and the men fish from over the sides of the vessels. The great danger of Georges fishing is the liability of vessels being blown upon the shoals and foundering. To guard against this they carry two five hundred pound anchors, and lie with a long scope of the best eight or eight and a half inch manilla cable. Another terrible danger which undoubtedly causes the destruction of many a stout little craft and the death of all on board, is the liability of collision between two or more vessels. If one vessel on the outside or in the midst of the fleet drags and drifts down upon another, a thing which is supposed frequently happens in a thick night, both are smashed to pieces like egg-shells. About one hundred sail from Gloucester are engaged during the winter and early spring months in the Georges fisheries. They are the staunchest in the whole fishing fleet, and are manned by the bravest and most hardy fishermen who, season after season, face the perils and terrible hardships of this branch of their business.

Outraged Scientists.

Of Mr. Arthur O'Shaughnessy, one of youngest British poets, and the son-in-law of Dr. Westland Marston, an amusing story is told. Mr. O'Shaughnessy was a protege of Sir Edward Bulwer-Lytton, who assisted in getting the poet appointed to a position in the Natural History department of the British Museum. One day the unfortunate O'Shaughnessy accidentally sat down on a number of very rare South American butterflies which had just arrived at the Museum. Horrified, he proceeded secretly and hurriedly to repair damages, but being in truth rather ignorant about butterflies and natural history generally, he got the pretty insects very much mixed up, gluing wrong wings on wrong bodies in the most reckless manner. Great was the astonishment of the wise men when they came to contemplate and classify the new contribution. Such species were never seen before; the insect world and its history was revolutionized. And many were the discussions that occurred before Mr. O'Shaughnessy's awful misdeed and skillful gluing were discovered. Then there was a very mad collection of scientists, and the young man would have been dismissed had not Bulwer used his influence. Warned by his blunder, Mr. O'Shaughnessy undertook the study of natural history, and their is now no one in the Museum better skilled in that department.

A Question of Damages.

Some lawyers take very practical views of cases in which they are retained. In a certain town in Missouri, Squire G—— was defending a charge of malpractice. A colored man was suing for damages, his wife having died shortly after an operation for removal of cancer. When it came Squire G——'s turn to cross-examine the plaintiff, he asked: "Mr. Wilson, how old was your wife when she died?"

"About forty-five, sir."

"Been in feeble health a long time, has she not, Mr. Wilson, and cost you a great deal of medicine and help?"

"Yes, sir."

"You have married again, have you not?"

"Yes, sir."

"How old is your present wife?"

"About thirty-five, sir."

"And she is stout and healthy, Mr. Wilson?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then, Mr. Wilson, will you please state to the jury how you are damaged in this case?"

Mr. Wilson had evidently never taken this view of the matter, and could make no answer. The good and true men thought he had made rather a good thing by his bereavement, and brought in a verdict for the defendant.—Harper's Magazine.

An Unpleasant Predicament.

Of Mr. Shelley, a nephew of the poet, Mr. Conway tells an interesting story: This gentleman while searching for adventure in Africa, got among a tribe whom he found suffering for a little knowledge about cattle breeding, agriculture and other things that he was competent to give. He remained with them for a while, taught them what they most needed, and as matters began to improve the Africans desired to worship him as a god descended among them. Mr. Shelley's only trouble was that they so loaded him with their favors and environed him with their devotion that he could not get away. The one thing they would not hear of was his leaving. It had become a necessary that he should return to England, he was forced to have recourse to stratagem. He proposed to go on a expedition with mounted company, and carrying these with him to a point not far from an English colony he got up silently in the night and rode off furiously, making good his escape.

A RIDE FOR LIFE.

The Romance of a Torn Shoe—An Obstruction in the Path Through Deadman's Hollow.

The following is a vivid account of escape from Lawrence, Kansas, of Jack Henderson, the famous pro-slavery leader, editor and politician, in the days of the border troubles:

"There were three free state ladies at the Lawrence Hotel—Mrs. Duncan, Mrs. Donnelly and Miss Kehoe. Like woman everywhere, they wanted to save my life. I told Miss Kehoe to get a buggy and take one of the children about the hotel, as if for a little drive around town, and to slip off to Lecompton, 15 miles distant, and have me a saddled horse sent down that night and placed in the ravine back of the hotel. It was the 8th of January, and there was a ball in the hotel. All the day, and night, too, Gov. Denver had been filling the sheriff up with whisky and he felt good. I prepared Miss Kehoe's shoe by cutting the stitches down the instep, so that she could burst it in the dance. That night we danced several times, and after we got through a schottische, at about 10:30 o'clock, we stopped before the sheriff, who was on the platform, and the young lady said: 'Sheriff, see my shoe, all burst! Won't you let Mr. Henderson step in the hall with me while I change my shoes?' 'Oh, yes,' said the sheriff, 'I guess Jack won't run!' As soon as we got into the hall, and the door closed behind us, Miss Kehoe opened the back door of the hotel, and we both stood on a sort of stairway which led down into the ravine behind the house. She held that door from the outside, though it was sleeting, and she had a white dress on. Meantime, I had no overcoat at all. If I had been seen with an overcoat, the sheriff would have looked out for me. Wearing a party coat of thin cloth, I felt the cold extremely. I put my fingers in my mouth and blew a whistle familiar to our men; and it was immediately answered in the darkness below. There was my horse held by a young fellow from Virginia. I jumped into my saddle, and went at the top of my speed across the prairie, consuming little more than an hour in my ride to Lecompton, but I almost froze to death. It was 12 o'clock when I rode into Lecompton, and there was a fresh horse, a pair of dry revolvers, and a big overcoat with a bottle of champagne in each pocket. I changed horses and started right on for Leavenworth, 40 miles distant; because I knew that I should be followed from Lawrence; and I knew also that Jim Lane had thrown his pickets out to the Kaw river and beyond it, and his troops could cut me off anywhere west of the Stranger river. I went down into the Kaw bottoms, forded the river, and on the other side I espied one of Lane's pickets. Bending my head down on the horse's neck, to avoid the trees which covered the bottom, I rode at the top of my speed. At the Kaw river I opened one of the bottles of champagne, drank part myself, and, making a knot round the horse's jaw, gave it a twist, and forced the rest of the champagne down his throat. A picket fired on me; but it was a very cold night, and they were sleepy, and I was not harmed. I went along at a hard pace till I got to Deadman's Hollow. There it was so dark that I could see nothing, when suddenly my horse stopped, and for the first time in my life, that I can remember, I felt a chill of real fear come over me there. As the horse would not move, I jumped down and put my ear to the ground to see if there was pursuit. Nothing was behind me. Still the horse would not move, and I felt along the ground and put my hand on something soft. It was a dead man. I felt down toward his pistol belt, and found that gone, and his pockets turned inside out. Then I knew that he had been robbed and murdered. As soon as the got past the obstacle he went like lightning, and did not stop till he got to the Stranger river. As I was going down the river bottom, I saw a man on horseback, and said: 'You will swap horses with me!' 'Why, Henderson!' he replied. It was a gambler whom I knew very well in Leavenworth. He gave me his horse, and little after daybreak I rode into Leavenworth, having come 55 miles in night. The first person I saw was Tom Ewing, who shook me by the hand warmly. It had cost me $80—all I had—in Lawrence, to treat and keep the peace. Everybody in Leavenworth supposed that I had been hanged, and that was the news not only all over the territory, but throughout the state, and my poor wife in Baltimore supposed me dead for some time. I lost no more time in the territory, but came right on to Jefferson City and Washington.

Wonderful Pedestrian Feats.

Lazy as we are wont to consider the Orientals, many of the "matches against time" acheived by them may bear comparison with the best of those now pending among ourselves. An Arab donkey-boy will go at a run all the way from Cario to the Pyramids and back again, without any visible sign of fatigue. A Skh dispatch-bearer will scamper through miles of jungle in the dark, with a heavy bag on his shoulders, shaking a bunch of metal rings to scare away the tiger and hyenas. Four meager Hindoos, who appear barely able to carry a hand-bag, will take a heavy palanquin, containing an officer and all his belongings, over the ground at a smart trot for hours together. Even more marvellous are the achievements of the Persian shatirs (professional couriers,) who, trained from their very childhood to feats of strength and activity, daily accomplish distances bordering upon the incredible. Not many years ago one of these men reached Teheran two hours before his appointed time, having covered an immense tract of very difficult country in fourteen hours of almost incessant running; but his chief, so far from praising him, simply remarked: "Could you not have done it in twelve?" and on his return journey the indomitable man actually did so. The occupation is a dangerous one, not only from the extraordinary exertions which it demands, but also from the fact that the runners being so tightly girded that a fall or even a stumble would be certain death. Persian chroniclers relate that a certain native once promised his daughter to any man who would keep up with his chariot all the way from Teheran to Ispahan. A celebrated shatir undertook the task; and held out till the gate of Ispahan was full in view, when the shah, alarmed at the prospect of having to make good his rash promise, let fall his whip. The runner knowing that it would cost him his life to stoop, contrived to pick it up with his feet. The treacherous monarch then dropped his ring, then the shatir, seeing that his fate was sealed, exclaimed reproachfully: "Oh! King, you have broken your faith, but I am true to mine!" picked up the ring and fell dead on the spot.—New York Times.

Given Away on His Dodge.

The old man Bendigo keeps a pretty sharp eye on his daughter Mary, and many a would-be lover has taken a walk after a few minutes conversation with the hard-hearted parient. The old chap is stuck this time, however, and cards are out for a wedding. After the lucky young man had been sparking Mary for six months the old gentleman stepped in as usual, requested a private confab, and led of with:

"You seem like a nice young man, and perhaps you are in love with Mary?"

"Yes, I am," was the honest reply.

"Haven't said anything to her yet, have you?"

"Well, no; but I think she reciprocates my affection."

"Does, eh? Well, let me tell you something. Her mother died a lunatic, and there's no doubt that Mary has inherited her insanity."

"I'm willing to take the chances," replied the lover.

"Yes, but you see Mary has a terrible temper. She has twice drawn a knife on me with intent to commit murder."

"I'm used to that—got a sister just like her," was the answer.

"And you should know that I've sworn a solemn oath not to give Mary a cent of my property," continued the father.

"Well, I'd rather start in poor and build up. There's more romance in it."

The old man had one more shot in his carbine, and he said:

"Perhaps I ought to tell you that Mary's mother ran away from my home with a butcher, and that all her relations died in the poorhouse. These things might be thrown up in after years, and I now warn you."

"Mr. Bendigo," replied the lover, "I've heard all this before, and also that you were on trial for forgery, had to jump Chicago for bigamy, and served a year in state prison for cattle-stealing. I'm going to marry into your family to give you a decent reputation! There—no thanks—good bye!"

Mr. Bendigo looked after the young man with his mouth wide open, and when he could get his jaws together he said:

"Some infernal hyena has went and given me away on my dodge!"—Detroit Free Press.

A Whisky Spring.

In the summer of 1838 the Third United States artillery, commanded by Col. Gates, was encamped at the foot of the Missionary ridge, engaged in the removal of the Cherokee Indians. One day the colonel ordered out a fatigue party to clean out the spring, a beautiful fountain bubbling up at the foot of the ridge. Shortly after the sergeant reported to headquarters that his men were all drunk. Says the colonel, "You should not have let the men drink whisky." "I did not," replied the sergeant; "they drank nothing but water from the spring." The sergeant and men were ordered into the guard-house and a new detail ordered and a lieutenant placed in command, with orders to not let the men have access to any spirits. Not long after the lieutenant reported the men all drunk. The men were ordered to the guard-house and the lieutenant under arrest. Another party was ordered out, of which Col. Gates took the command. He took a seat on a stump so he could overlook the whole ground, determined that there should be no getting drunk this time. But behold! in a short time his men were all drunk. He was certain they had drank nothing but water, which they frequently did, getting down on their knees and drinking from the branch just below the spring. The colonel was at his wit's end. The men were ordered to the guard-house, and he repaired to his tent to think. After weighing the matter pro and con., he had to give it up, and repairing to the guard-house he told the men that if they would show him how it was done he would release them, otherwise he would punish them severely. To this they agreed and took him to the spring; just below the spring in the branch they unearthed a five-gallon jug partly filled with whisky, the mouth of which was stopped with a cork, in which was inserted a quill that reached to the bottom. When buried in the sand the upper end of the quill was just above the surface of the water, and when they when they wanted to drink they stooped down, inserted the quill in their mouth, and while apparently drinking pure water were drinking pure whisky, and the colonel, sitting on the stump in plain view, was none the wiser for it.—Chattanooga (Tenn.) Commercial.

An Eel Story.

The following is published in the Easton (Penn.) Express as a true fish story: "George Bryant, train-master at High Bridge, N. J., and William Hibbler, conductor on the Central railroad of New Jersey, were fishing from the Newark bay bridge, three years ago. Bryant lost his sinker and substituted for it a Central railroad switch key. He got a 'huge bite,' and in drawing his line discovered a large eel on his hook; but before he could land him, the eel broke loose, carrying away the hook and the switch key. Eight months after an eel was caught by Capt. Simon Chapman in an old barge at Chapman's wharf, on the Thames river, three miles above New London, Conn. When the eel was cut open the lost Central railroad switch key was found inside of it. Last evening on Conductor Hibbler's train, the son of Capt. Chapman introduced himself to Mr. Hibbler, and said his father still had the key in his possession. Arrangements were made to have it returned to Mr. Bryant at High Bridge."

The widow of Richard Realf is employed as a nurse on Long Island.

A REPROACH IN ITS ANSWER.

The sun cried to the laughing sea,
"Leave thy sweet wiling!
Hast thou no depths of love in thee,
Too deep for smiling?"
But ever, till the day was done,
The sea turned laughing to the sun.

But in the darkness and the storm,
Could he discover
What terrors [illegible], what fears deform
His laughing lover?
Oh! vainly love prays love be sad,
When his mere presence makes her glad.

COMICALITIES.

"Baby Mine" should be "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep."

A Leadville correspondent says that wages are very high there—about 9,000 above the sea level.

The old schoolmaster, faithful over a few things, holds the ruler over many.—New Orleans Picayune.

Arnaud, the private secretary of Gambetta, is only six feet three. He labors for love, as he receives an income of $20,000 a year from Mme Guichard.

It has been proved that after kindling his fire a miser stuck a cork in the nossle of the bellows to save the little wind that was left in it.

It was Brougham who said that a lawyer is a very learned gentleman who rescues your estates from your enemies and then keeps it for himself.

Mrs. Partington, in illustration of the proverb, "A soft answer turneth away wrath," says "it is better to speak paregorically of a person than to be all the time flinging epitaphs at him."

An exchange says that the only jokes women like to read are those which reflect ridicule on men, and asserts in proof that on taking up a paper a woman invariably turns to the marriage column. This is a high-menial charge against the fair sex.—Graphic.

"There was one thing my farm never could raise," said the old man, as he softly worried the roll of tobacco, and then expectorated on the stove. And as the statesmen who were sitting around the cracker barrel patiently waited his explanation, he continued: "And that was a mortgage."—Rockland Courier.

"What's sauce for the goose." Passenger (in second class)—"I think I've got into the wrong carriage." Ticket inspector (sternly)—"The difference must be paid!" Passenger (triumphantly)—"Oh, just so! Then I'll trouble you for three shillings; I've a first-class ticket."—Punch.

A school girl of tender years writes to a bosom friend: "Dear Susa—I shan't attend school again until I Get some new cuffs, collars and Jewelry—dear Mama agrees with me that it is my Dooty to take the shine off that Upstart Mary Jones, and I'll do it if I never learn nothing."

A little 3-year-old in town, who observed her grandfather writing a postal card, requested that she might be allowed to write a letter. Upon being asked if a postal card wouldn't answer her purpose, she replied, "No, sir! I want paper and 'velope; I don't want my letter to go bareheaded like 'urs!"—Waterloo Observer.

A little mite of a down-towner was visiting another of about the same size, and being accosted by one of the members of the family with, "Hello, Louie? haven't seen you in a long time. Where've you been?" "Had the measles; that's where I ben." "Had measles, eh! how many did you have?" "I didn't tount them."—Kingston Freeman.

"Amanda, I wish you to put the large Bible in a prominent place on the center table, and place three or four hymn books carelessly round on the sofas. I have advertised for a young man to board in a cheerful Christian family, and I tell you what, if you girls don't manage, either one of you, to rake him in, why I'll never try anything again, for I'm tired out.—Andrews' Bazar.

The witty Burlington Hawkeye says: "The women in Kansas vote at the school elections. At a recent election at Osage City one woman went up to vote, but before she got through telling the judges what a time her Willie had with the scarlet fever when he was only two years old, it was time to close the polls and she had forgotten to deposit her ballot."

I should like to have you raise a club," said a 7x9 book-canvasser to a daughter of Erin, as he stood on the front step trying to talk her to death on the subject of the "Extinction of the Tribes of the Seventh Century." "I will," said Biddy, as she reached around behind the door, "but bad luck to your picture if you're lingering around here when I get it raised." He didn't linger.—Elmira Gazette.

A Scotch friend of ours is disgusted with "Pinafore." He says: "Why now, d'ye mind, noo, it's pairfectly redecculous to suppose that the rules o' the navy wad alloo sic fameeliarity between the officers and the men, or that yon man Porter could tak about twa dozen weemen along wi' him on board the ship. An' the captain an' admiral wadna sing sic-like songs, for hoo could deescipline be preairved? It's a nonsensical trash, mon."—Boston Traveler.

"My brudren, I was passin' fru de paster dis mawnin', and I saw a mighty fine bush o' huckleberries, and I thought I would tote some of 'em hum to de ole woman, and I hadn't no basket nor nuffin' to pick 'em in, and I looked aroun' and foun' a shingle, and I begun for to pick off de berries and put 'em on dat shingle; but dey'd roll off jes' as fas' as I put 'em on, and I brung no berries hum to de ole woman. Brudren, your prayers is jes' like pickin' huckleberries on a shingle; dey roll right off; dey don't none of 'em go hum to de Heabenly Farder."

Burdette, in his letter to the Hawkeye, magnanimously yields the palm to the east in the matter of Revolutionary relics, but in the next breath is inclined to take it back. He says: "I remember in 1876, when we had the great Centennial tea party at Burlington, that I saw more Revolutionary relics at Union Hall than I have seen in all New England. And they were better relics too. Those I saw in Old South Church were very old and battered and faded, and altogether shabby looking, while the Iowa relics had a bright fresh, modern look to them, that was much pleasanter to contemplate."

FRUIT HOUSE BULLETIN

Great Reduction in Goods.

Syrups and Molasses all down ten cents per gallon.
Coffees reduced another two cents per pound.
Leghorn Citron down fifteen cents per pound.
Zantee Currents down five cents per pound.
Best Teas reduced 10 cents per pound.
Candies down three cents per pound.
Sugars all down one cent per pound.
Raisins down three cents per pound.

ALL REDUCED 10 and 20 per cent.

Rio Coffee.

The very best, 15 cents per pound. Second grade 11 cents per lb. Roasted coffee, 15 cts., best 19 cts. per lb.

Teas! Teas!

At no time in the history of the trade have Teas been so low. Another decline of 10c. per lb. brings the best of Teas within the reach of all. We now sell a good Tea for 20c. A choice extra drawing Tea for 40 and 50c, and the best Tea in the market for 70c. Young Hyson, 20, 40, best 70c., Imperial 40, best 70c., Oolong 20, 40, best 70c., Uncolored Jxpan 20, 40. best 60c., Gunpowder, eatra choice, 40, best 50 and 70c. per pound

Sugars Down 1c.

Coffee A Sugar 8c, Extra C 7 c, Yellow 6c, Grushed, Powdered and Granulated 9 cents.

Raisins, Currents, Citron, Lemon and Orange Peel,

Down 3 to 10c. per lb., best Valencia Raisins 8c., choice Zantee Currants 5c., best Leghorn Citron 15c, Lemon and Orange Peel 20c., Sicily shelled Almons 40c., Brazil Nuts 8c., Filberts 12c., Texas Peacans 8c

Toy Candies of all Descriptions.

Apples, Pears, Plums, Apricots, and the finest Candies at 25c per lb. Last year they were sold at 40c. Choice French mixed candy 15c, and the best stick candy 12c. 3ct. reduction on candy.

Tobaccos.

Good plug 40c., best 50c. Twin Brothers 65c. Smoking 30c., best 85c. Goldn Shorts, finest goods 35c. Uncle Ned, Fancy Turkish 45c.

Fish Oil and Neat's Foot Oil Down 15 cents per Gallon.

Best Fish Oil 70c, and Neat's Foot Oil 70c; Machine Oil 20c, best 40c, Coal Oil 12½c, Head Light 18c

CIGARS—In ½ boxes, full boxes and one-fourth boxes, extra choice Cigars $1.25 per 100; good Havanas $2, best $3 per 100

Fresh Oysters.

15c per can. Select Frying 17c and 2c8 per can. Cove Oysters 5c cents per can.

We are doing a rushing trade, continually increasing, and we guarantee our customers a saving of at least 20c. on the dollar at the

FORT WAYNE FRUIT HOUSE.

Family Groceries!

LANNING' SPRICE LIST.

TEAS! TEAS!

Young Hyson	60c very best 70c
Imperial	" " 65c
Japan	" " 60c
Oolong	" " 50c
Gun Powder	" " 40c

COFFEE! COFFEE!

Arbuckels' [Roasted]	23c per lb.
Rio	15c very best 18c " "

SUGARS! SUGARS!

White	10½ pounds for one dollar
Extra C	12 " " "
Grocers C	14 " " "

White Beans per lb. 3½c., Dried Peaches per lb. 6c., Hominy per lb. 3c., Cranberries per qt. 8c., Dried Sweet Corn 13 lbs. for $1.00, Oat Meal 7 lbs. for 25c., cucumber Pickles per doz. 8c. Besides a complete stock of Confectionéries, Canned Fruits, Soaps, Notions, Flour, Butter, Eggs, Syrups, &c., &c.

Goods delivered at all times.

Geo. L. Lanning.

Davenport the Druggist.

Pure Drugs and Medicines,
Choice Soaps and Perfumery,
Excellant Combs and Brushes,
Fine Hair Oils and Pomades

ALL SOLD AND WARRANTED BY

DAVENPORT THE DRUGGIST

Also a splendid stock of Stationery Goods, such as

Wall Paper, Window Shades, Pocket Books,
School Books, Blank Books, Pens. Pencils,
Inks, Mucilage, Stationery, Gold Pens, etc.

All to be sold at the lowest prices by.

Davenport the Druggist, Auburn, Ind.

8-31-1 yr.

A Broad Fellowship.

Writing in Scribner for April of "Some Thin Virtues," and especially of toleration, Dr. Holland says:

Men tolerate each other and each other's sentiments and opinions, and are much too apt to be content with that. They altogether overestimate the value of it, but beyond this there is in some quarters, and ought to be in all quarters a sense of brotherhood among all honestly inquiring souls. There is no reason why Dean Stanley and Mr Darwin should not be the most affectionate friends. There is no good reason why Cardinal Manning and Mr. Matthew Arnold should not be on the most delightful terms of intimacy. There is no good reason why Mr. Frothingham and Dr. Hall, Dr Draper and Dr. Taylor should not be bound up in a loving brotherhood. They undoubtedly tolerate one another now. It would be simply indecent for them to do anything less, but we fear that we have not quite reached the period when these men, with a profound respect for one another' manhood, truthfulness and earnestness, recognize each other as seekers for truth, and love and delight in each other as such. We are all interested in the same things, but we happen to be regarding them from different angles.

Some of the sincerest men in the world are the doubters.

> "There is more faith in honest doubt,
> Believe me, than in half the creeds."

These men get very little of the sympathy that by right belongs to them. They have as great a love for truth as anybody, and are looking for it, but by the constitution of their minds, or by the power of an unfortunate education or the influence of an untoward personal experience, they find themselves thrown off into a region of skepticism, where they have no congenial companionship. They do not get even toleration,—from those particularly who inherit their creeds, and to whom faith is as natural as breathing. These men ought all and always to be brought affectionately into the great brotherhood of truth-lovers and truth-seekers, and a Christian of any name who cannot throw his warmest sympathies around these, and regard them with a peculiarly affectionate interest, must necessarily be a very poor sort of creature. All honest truth-seekers are always truth-finders, and all have something in possession that will be of advantage to the others. The differences between them are sources of wealth to the whole.

This is true of all truth-seekers, and it is particularly true of the different sects of Christendom. Let not the Catholic think for a moment that he has nothing to learn of the Protestant, and let not the Protestant think that he holds all truth to the exclusion of his Catholic brother. The fact that all these sects exist and find vitality enough in their ideas to keep them prosperously together, shows that there is something to be learned, everywhere, and among them all, and that the policy is poor which shuts them away from one another's society. It is better to remember that truth is one, and that those who are earnestly after it, whether they deny Christianity or profess it, whether they are called by one name or another, belong together, in one great sympathetic brotherhood of affection and pursuit.

* * *

The Oliver—Cameron breach of promise suit was set for last Monday. After a delay of several years, the widow has finally succeeded in bringing "Old Simon" into court, and rich developments are expected during the progress of the trial. The following brief history of the case we get from the New York Sun:

"The widow's history in connection with Simon is all essential to a fair understanding of the grounds on which the suit is said to be based. In the early part of 1865 she first visited Washington from Georgia in search of a position under the Government; having, as she supposed, a claim for the loss of her husband in the war. Here she became acquainted with Mr. Cameron, who had recently returned from the Russian mission. He had known her husband prior to the war, and hence he took a great interest in her. After a visit to New Orleans, where Mr. Cameron is said to have visited and showed her marked attention, she returned to Washington on his advice. He addressed a letter to Secretary Bristow, of which the following is a copy:

HARRISBURG, Sept. 25 1875.

DEAR MR. SECRETARY: The bearer, Mrs. Oliver, is the daughter of an officer of the United States navy in ante-war times, and the wife of another officer of the navy who was killed or died on the other side during the rebellion. She has come to Washington in search of employment, with letters to me from friends of mine in New Orleans. I knew her father, and she is highly recommended as a good woman. She is poor, and thinks a letter from me to Col. Bristow will procure her employment. If you think so it will make her happy, and I have often found happiness in making others happy. Truly Yours.

Hon B. H. BRISTOW. SIMON CAMERON.

Accompanying this, which was sent to Mrs. Oliver, was the following private note, according to the Widow Oliver:

HARRISBURG, Sept. 25 1875.

MY DEAR MRS. OLIVER: I will carry you to a better home than Washington. You should not stay there. I think I shall have a safe place for you with relations to protect you. You will be my wife. S. C.

Through this introduction to Mr. Bristow, the Widow Oliver obtained a place in the Treasury Department, which she retained for some time. At this time, she claims, her ancient admirer wrote her a letter asking her to be his wife. This letter contained a request that she should write her answer on the back of the letter and return it. It was dated from Harrisburg on the 7th of December, 1875, and it is said contained expressions of the most ardent affection. She, in view of this offer, which she accepted on the same letter, made preparations for marriage, but was disappointed, Cameron not coming to time. Losing her position in the Treasury she was out of employment for some weeks. Then she applied to Mr. Cameron for aid and requested him to keep his promise. His love had, however, grown cold, and he refused at first to do anything for her. Then came the first attempt to coerce her recalcitrant lover. She informed him through her attorney, Mr A. G. Riddle, that she was in an interesting condition. Before the fraud was discovered, Mr Cameron had been induced to plank down a $1,000 check "to pay expenses." Mrs. Oliver will be the first witness called, and she says she will reveal all of Mr. Camero's relations with her since their first acquaintance. Her testimony is expected to be sensational.

Dr. D. W. Bliss has been subpœnaed by the plaintiff to prove that he was in attendance upon her when she was confined at a certain hotel in the city, and the clerk of the hotel at that time is expected to testify to other facts in that connection."

Sick Headache

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively Cured by these Little Pills. They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, &c. They regulate the Bowels and prevent Constipation and Piles. The smallest and easiest to take. Only one pill a dose. 40 in a vial. Purely Vegetable. Price 25 cents. Sold by all Druggists.

CARTER MEDICINE CO., Prop'rs, Erie, Pa.
Five Vials by mail for one dollar.

To Township Trustees and School Boards.

We keep in stock a full line of copyrighted Records and Blanks for the use of Trustees, School Directors and road Supervisors, which we offer at low figures. We have the most complete system ever introduced in the state. For simplicity our Records excel all others. Call and examine the goods.

TUTT'S PILLS!

A NOTED DIVINE SAYS THEY ARE WORTH THEIR WEIGHT in GOLD

READ WHAT HE SAYS:

DR. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended to me; I used them (but with little faith). I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and I have gained forty pounds solid flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

REV. R. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

A TORPID LIVER

is the fruitful source of many diseases, such as Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Dysentery, Bilious Fever, Ague and Fever, Jaundice, Piles, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint, Colic, etc.

Tutt's Pills exert a powerful influence on the Liver, and will with certainty relieve that important organ from disease, and restore its normal functions.

The rapidity with which persons take on flesh, while under the influence of these pills, of itself indicates their adaptability to nourish the body, hence their efficacy in curing nervous debility, dyspepsia, wasting of the muscles, sluggishness of the liver, chronic constipation, and imparting health and strength to the system.

CONSTIPATION.

Only with regularity of the bowels can perfect health be enjoyed. When the constipation is of recent date, a single dose of TUTT'S PILLS will suffice, but if it has become habitual, one pill should be taken every night, gradually lessening the frequency of the dose until a regular daily movement is obtained, which will soon follow.

Sold Everywhere, 25 Cents.
OFFICE, 35 MURRAY ST., NEW YORK.

THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

Celebrated American

WORM SPECIFIC

OR

VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a gnawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy, not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,
DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE
will certainly effect a cure.

IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY

in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

The genuine DR. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS. on the wrapper.

—:o:—

DR. C. McLANE'S

LIVER PILLS

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine.

As a simple purgative they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Each box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

Each wrapper bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS.

Insist upon having the genuine Dr. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.

RAILROADS.

Lake Shore & Mich Southern R. R

AIR LINE DIVISION.

On and after [illegible] 1878, trains will run as follows:

GOING WEST.

	Special Ex.	Pacific Ex.	Accom.
Toledo	11 05 a m	12 01 a m	10 p m
Wauseon	12 16 "	1 08 "	"
Bryan	1 05 "	1 54 "	"
Butler	1 42 "	2 24 "	"
Waterloo	2 00 "	2 40 "	"
Sedan	2 10 "	2 50 "	"
Corunna	2 16 "	2 55 "	"
Kendallville	2 30 "	3 05 "	"
Ligonier	3 07 "	3 40 "	"
Goshen	3 38 "	4 10 "	"
Elkhart	4 00 "	4 35 "	4 15 "

GOING EAST.

Elkhart	1 10 p m	9 50 p m	3 05 "
Goshen	1 29 "	10 10 "	"
Ligonier	1 56 "	10 42 "	"
Kendallville	2 30 "	11 18 "
Corunna	2 40 "	11 32 "
Sedan	2 47 "	11 36 "
Waterloo	2 55 "	11 45 "
Butler	3 10 "	12 01 a m
Bryan	3 45 "	12 40 "
Wauseon	4 27 "	1 37 "
Toledo	5 40 "	2 40 "	9 50

CHAS. PAINE, Gen. Supt.
J. W. CARY, Gen Tic. Agt
J. R. CURTIS, Division Supt.

Pittsburg, Ft. W. & C. R. R

Condensed time card Nov. 10, 1878.

GOING WEST.

	No. 1 Fast ex.	No. 7 Pac. ex.	No. 3 Night ex	No. 5 Mail.
Pittsburgh	11 45 pm	9 00 am	1 50 pm	6 00 am
Rochester	12 53 am	10 12	2 55	7 45
Alliance	3 10	12 50 pm	5 35	11 00
Orrville	4 50	2 26	7 13	12 55 pm
Mansfield	7 00	4 40	9 20	2 11
Crestl'e ar.	7 30	5 15	9 45	2 50
" lv.	7 50	5 40	9 55
Forest	9 25	7 35	11 25
Lima	10 40	9 00	12 25 am
Ft. Wayne	1 20 pm	11 55	2 10
Plymouth	3 50	2 46 am	4 55
Chicago	7 00	6 00	7 58

GOING EAST

	No. 4 Night ex	No. 2 Fast ex.	No. 6 Pac. ex	No. 8 Mail
Chicago	9 10 pm	8 30 a.m	5 15 pm
Plymouth	2 46 am	11 48	8 55
Ft. Wayne	6 55	2 25 pm	11 30
Lima	8 55	4 20	1 30 am
Forest	10 10	5 27	2 33
Crestl'e ar.	11 45	6 55	4 05
" lv.	12 05 pm	7 15 pm	4 15	6 05am
Mansfield	12 35	7 45	4 55	6 55
Orrville	2 26	9 38	7 00	9 15
Alliance	4 00	11 15	9.00	11 20
Rochester	6 22	1 20 am	11 06	2 00pm
Pittsburgh	7 30	2 30	12 15 pm	3 30

Trains Nos 3 and 6 run daily. Train No. 1 leaves Pittsburg daily except Sunday. Train No 4 leaves Chicago daily except Saturday. All others daily except Sunday.

F. R. MYERS,
Gen. Pass. and Ticket Agent.

Ft. Wayne, Muncie & Cin. R. R.

Muncie Route.

THE SHORT LINE TO INDIANAPOLIS,
—AND—
THE SOUTHWEST.

Time Card in effect November 10, 1878.

STATIONS.	GOING SOUTH. 1. Mail.	2 Express
FORT WAYNE	1 00 pm	5 40 pm
Bluffton	2 12 pm	6 53 pm
Montpelier	2 52 pm	7 32 pm
Hartford	3 7 pm	7 58 pm
MUNCIE	4 08 pm	8 50 pm
Newcastle	5 00 pm
Cambridge City	5 37 pm
Connersville	6 17 pm
Cincinnati	9 20 pm
INDIANAPOLIS	6 15 pm	10 55 pm
Louisville	11 00 pm	8 20 am
Terre Haute		1 32 am
St. Louis		7 30 am

STATIONS	GOING NORTH 2 Mail.	4 Express	Accom.
St. Louis		9 10 am	7 00 pm
Terre Haute		3 27 pm	1 32 am
Louisville		2 00 pm	6 50 pm
Indianapolis		6 40 pm	4 15 am
Cincinnati	8 00 am
Connersville	11 13 am
Cambridge City	11 46 am
New Castle	12 25 pm
Muncie	1 35 pm	9 20 pm	6 55 am
Hartford	2 13 pm	10 08 pm	7 47 am
Montpelier	2 40 pm	10 31 pm	8 19 am
Bluffton	3 13 pm	11 09 pm	9 15 am
Fort Wayne	4 25 pm	11 15 am	10 45 am

Trains Nos. 1 and 2 run through between Fort Wayne and Cincinnati without change.

Through cars are attached to trains Nos. 1 and and run between Fort Wayne and Indianapolis, via Muncie.

All trains daily except Sunday.

Trains run on Columbus time.

GEO. W. MULLEN, Act'g Gen. Tick. Ag't.
W. W. WORTHINGTON, Gen. Supt.

Ft. Wayne, Jackson & Sag. R. R

Short Line.

75 Miles Shortest to Indianapolis, Louisville and all points South. 52 Miles the Shortest to St. Louis, Kansas, Texas, and all points West. Direct Route to Detroit and all Michigan and Canada points.

TIME CARD IN EFFECT DEC. 29. '78.

SOUTH.	MAIL.	EX.	ACC.
Bay City		6 30am
Saginaw		7 15am
Lansing		9 00am
Detroit		7 00am	2 30pm
Ann Arbor		8 30am	4 05pm
Jackson	6 10am	11 45am	5 40pm
Jonesville	7 19am	12 45pm	7 55am
Bankers	7 36am	1 12pm	8 20pm
Waterloo	9 30am	2 50pm	11 30pm
Auburn	9 48am	3 00pm	11 25pm
Auburn Junc.	9 52am	3 05pm	12 01am
Ft. Wayne	10 45am	3 55pm	1 25am
Indianapolis	5 15pm	10 55pm
Cincinnati	9 20pm
Louisville	10 25pm	8 20am
St. Louis	7 30am	7 30am
Washington		8 10pm
Baltimore		9 10pm

NORTH.	X.	EX.	ACC.
Baltimore		7 10am
Washington		9 25am
St. Louis	8 00am	7 00pm
Louisville	2 00pm	6 50pm
Cincinnati			8 00am
Indianapolis	6 55pm	4 30am
Ft. Wayne	5 00am	11 40am	4 30pm
Auburn Junc	5 55am	12 30pm	6 00pm
Auburn	6 00am	12 35pm	6 10pm
Waterloo	6 14am	12 46pm	6 35pm
Bankers	8 05am	2 22pm	10 10pm
Jonesville	8 18am	2 39pm	10 35pm
Jackson	9 25am	3 45pm	12 30am
Ann Arbor	10 46am	5 10pm	2 05am
Detroit	12 0 am	6 30pm	3 35am
Lansing		5 55pm
Saginaw		8 13pm
Bay City		10 00pm

All trains daily except Sunday. Through tickets to all principal points. For information as to routes and connections apply to

P. B. LOOMIS, Pres't & Gen'l Mang'r.
S. R. HOOPER, Gen'l Ticket Ag't.

J. BRINKERHOFF,

BOUNTY AND PENSION AGENT.

LAND WARRANTS

Obtained for Soldiers, their Widows and Heirs for services in the Revolutionary War, the Indian Wars, War of 1812 and the Mexican War. Bounties for Soldiers', their Widows and Heirs for services in the war of 1861. Also Pensions for Soldiers', Widows and Heirs for military services in any war of the United States. Many soldiers now drawing pesions are entitled to

INCREASE OF PENSION.

If you think you are more disabled now than when you received your pension certificate, give me a call. Having been engaged in this business for the past 20 years I hope to render satisfaction. Counsel in regard to all claims against the Government, gratis.

J. BRINKERHOFF,
Main street, Auburn, Ind.

Detroit Eel River & Illinois R R.

TAKE EFFECT DEC. 2, 1878.

GOING EAST.

Stations.	MAIL No. 2,	ACCOM. No. 6,	LOCAL FT No. 8,
lv. Logansport	8 30am	7 30pm	5 44am
Mexico	9 15	8 32	7 51
Denver	9 27	8 08	8 48
Chili	9 36	8 15	9 00
Roann	9 54	8 37	9 15
Laketon	10 12	10 00	10 25
N. Manchester	10 30	10 17	11 10
Liberty Mills	10 39	10 30	11 35
Collamer	10 52	10 50	12 30
S. Whitley	10 58	10 58	12 50
Columbia City	11 25	11 31	1 40
Collin's	11 45	11 55	2 20
Churubusco	12 00	12 12	2 55
La Otto	12 20	12 49	3 56
Cedar Creek	12 34	12 53	4 16
Auburn Junct'n	12 50	1 12	4 54
Aupurn	12 55	1 17	5 05
Butler	1 30am	2 10am	6 30pm

GOING WEST.

Stations.	No. 1,	No.	No. 7,
Logansport ar.	1 10pm	1 00pm	8 30pm
Mexico	6 35	11 56	3 35
Denver	6 29	11 38	3 30
Chili	6 17	11 27	3 10
Roann	6 02	11 02	2 30
Laketon	5 46	10 28	2 51
North Manchester	5 35	10 18	1 35
Liberty Mills	5 20	10 12	1 00
Collamer	5 15	9 38	12 40
South Whitley	5 11	9 48	12 30
Columbia City	4 45	9 12	11 25
Collin's	4 30	8 46	10 37
Churubusco	4 19	8 29	10 04
La Otto	3 55	7 57	9 05
Cedar Creek	3 46	7 45	8 30
Auburn Junction	3 25	7 25	8 05
Auburn	3 20	7 18	7 15
Butler lv.	2 40pm	2 30am	6 20

FRANK J. HECKER,
Gen. Sup't

A PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE.

THE LOUISVILLE

Courier-Journal!

Largest, Best and Cheapest Family Paper in the United States.

EDITED BY

HENRY WATERSON.

The COURIER-JOURNAL is a combination (made in 1868) of three old Louisville papers, viz: the Journal, established in 1830; the Courier, in 1843, and the Democrat, in 1844. Its reputation is national, as well as its circulation, and it is pronounced one of the ablest and best arranged papers in the world; its matter being especially adapted to the merchant, the farmer and the family circle.

THE WEEKLY COURIER-JOURNAL is not a mere hotch-potch thrown together from the daily edition, but a complete, able, spicy family newspaper, carefully and intelligently edited in every column and paragraph.

TO AGENTS AND CLUBS

Extraordinary inducements in the way of cash commissions and valuable premiums are offered to agents and clubs.

Choice from standard books of the times, and a choice selection of the leading magazines or illustrated periodicals of the day furnished in combination with the Weekly for a mere pittance in addition to the price of the COURIER-JOURNAL alone.

A new edition of Prentice's Poems, beautifully printed and bound and the Weekly Courier-Journal one year for $1.00.

A Splendid Map of the South

Size 28½x32 inches, handsomely colored, varnished, and hung on rollers, retail price $2.00; mailed free of postage, and the Weekly Courier-Journal, one year, for $2.00.

Terms of Subscription.

Daily Courier Journal, a year	$12.00
Sunday Courier-Journal, a year	2.00
Weekly Courier-Journal, with map, a year	2.00

A liberal discount allowed to clubs raised for the Courier-Journal.

Postage in all cases prepaid by the publishers.

Agent's outfit, specimen copies, list of books and magazines and descriptive circulars sent free on application. Send for outfit giving full particulars to agents.

Letters should be addressed to
W. N. HALDEMAN,
President Courier-Journal Co.
Louisville, Ky.

COMPETITION

Is the life of trade; therefore

Henry Gugerli!

Ha opened a new Merchant Tailor establishment, in which he makes a specially of Ladies' Cloakings!

Which will be cut and fit, and made up if desired. For Gents' wear a

FULL LINE OF PIECE GOODS!

Always in stock to select from, at

Five to Ten Dollars

a suit less than the same goods can be bough for elsewhere. A full suit made to order, in the latest style, ready to put on in

24 Hours Notice!

Remember that all work is done in the latest style, and satisfaction is guaranteed in every particular. 42-6m.

JUST RECEIV'D

—AT—

J. ABRIGHT'S

Fine Gold and Plated Jewelry,
Ladies Gold Watches,
American Watches,
Rogers & Bro. Silverware,
A splendid line of imported Vases
Watch Chains, magnificent
Holiday Gifts, Lockets,
Ladies Sets, Gents

GOLD & SILVER SETS

Sleeve and Collar Buttons, Jet
Shell and Horn Jewelry,
All at astonishingly

LOW PRICES.

Watches and Jewelry neatly repaired on short notice.

Recorders Office

THE AUBURN COURIER.

Devoted to the Interests of the Democratic Party and to the Collection of Local and General News.

Volume 9. AUBURN, DeKALB COUNTY INDIANA, APRIL 3, 1879. Number 14.

The Auburn Courier

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY BY

THE COURIER COMP'Y.

THEODORE REED, Editor.

BUSINESS CARDS.

Cards not exceeding five lines each will be inserted under this head for $5,00 per annum. For each additional line 50 cents extra will be charged.

ATTORNEYS.

W. H. Dills.

ATTORNEY AND NOTARY. Auburn DeKalb County Indiana.

D. D. Moody,

ATTORNEY AT LAW, NOTARY PUBLIC Office in Court House. Auburn, Ind.

H. C. Peterson.

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over Davis' Hardware store, Auburn, Indiana.

A. F. Pinchin.

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Butler, DeKalb county, Ind. Insurance and real estate business promptly attended to.

Thos. H. Sportt.

REAL ESTATE, COLLECTION AND INSURance Agent. Loans effected on improved farms. Kansas lands for sale or trade. Auburn, Indiana

Guy Plumb,

ATTORNEY AT LAW and notary public. Office over First National Bank. Special attention paid to the collection of claims. Also agent for the Home Insurance Company

PHYSICIANS.

Drs. Cowan & Allyn,

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. OFFICE in Case's block, Auburn, Indiana.

Dr. W. S. Allen,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, Office West of Court House, on Main Street, over Eldridge's store, Auburn, Ind.

Dr. T. G. Matheny,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, OFFICE ONE Door North of City Bakery, Auburn, Ind. All calls promptly attended to.

Dr. J. Miller.

PHYSICIAN, SURGEON AND ACCOUCHER. Gunsenhouser's Corners, two miles east of Butler, DeKalb Co., Ind.

Dr. T. W. Tritch.

HOMEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON Special attention given to Surgery and Chronic diseases. Office in Case's Block. Auburn, Indiana.

Dr. T. J. Dills,

Especial attention given to Diseases of the EYE and EAR. Rooms 1 and 2 Odd Fellows' building. Office hours—9:30 to 12 a. m.; 1 to 3 p. m.; 7 to 8 p. m. Fort Wayne, Ind.

D. J. Swarts, M. D.

SPECIAL ATTENTION GIVEN TO DISEASES of the Eye and Ear, Fistula in Ano, Hemorrhoids or Piles and Chronic Ulcers. Office on Main street, over Shaffer's Furniture Store, Auburn, Ind.

Dr. S. B. Johnson,

DENTIST, WATERLOO, INDIANA, Does all work in the line of his profession at as low figures as possible. Special attention given to gold filling and making new teeth. All work warranted.

HOTELS.

Central House,

TENTH STREET. EAST OF MAIN. GOOD Sample rooms, and low rates. T. D. Gross, Prop'r Auburn, Ind.

BUTT'S HOTEL,

FORMERLY THE BIGLER HOUSE, JOHN BUTT & A. B. RICHARDS, Proprietors, Waterloo, Ind. Free omnibus to and from all trains Good sample rooms on first floor.

Sands House,

COR. WABASH AVE. & MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL. New House, elegantly furnished. Only $2.00 per day.
GEO. S. PALMER, Clerk. O. SANDS, Proprietor

Mayer House.

Fort Wayne, Indiana Under the Management of W. W. REED, rates, two dollars per day. Street Cars to and from the Pittsburgh, Wabash and Grand Rapids R. R. Depots.
S. BRUBAKER, W. W. REED, JR., } In Office.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Tonsorial Artist.

HAIRDRESSING AND SHAVING EXECUted with special care, and in good taste. Room on West Seventh street. WM. EDDINGTON Prop'r. Auburn, Ind.

Trustee's Notice

NOTICE is hereby given that I will be at my residence in Franklin township, for the transaction of township business, on Tuesday of each week. B. F. GREENWOOD, Trustee.
2-6m.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.—Examinations will be held in Auburn on the first Saturday, and in Waterloo on the last Saturday in each month, beginning March 4, 1876. Examinations begin at 10 o'clock A. M.

JAMES A. BARNS Co. Sup't.

DEAR SIR:

If you are in want of anything in the way of GUNS, RIFLES REVOLVERS Pistols, ammunition, gun material, fishing tackle, or any other Fine Sporting Goods please send stamp for my large illustrated catalogue and price list. Yours truly,
Address, JOHNSTON'S Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburgh, Pa. 11-1m.

METROPOLITAN RESTAURANT AND Confectionery Establishment,

The best brands of oysters always on hand in season, and served to suit customers. Warm meals served at all hours. Day boarders taken at low rates. Fancy candies and fine cigars made specialties.
43-6 m. SHERMAN HOLLISTER, Prop.

HOROSCOPES OF CELEBRITIES.

What Fate Has in Store for Rutherford B. Hayes, John Sherman, Samuel J. Tilden, Benjamin F. Butler, Jay Gould and Peter Cooper.

[New York Mercury.]

At the table of a well-known up-town physician, whose name is by special request omitted, the subject of Astrology being mentioned, excited considerable discussion. Among those present were several celebrated medical gentlemen, leading lawyers and literary men. The host, who for a time had taken little or no part in the discussion, at length said that he, too was a believer in Astrology and, not only that, but that for years he had been in the habit of casting the horoscopes of his patients and diagnosing their diseases therefrom. The writer, who was one of his guests, and had expressed his skepticism in somewhat strong terms, thereupon asked the doctor whether all that he required in order to cast "a nativity" was the date of birth. "That's all," the physician answered. "Of course, the more approximately you can give me the hour of birth the more likely am I to be correct in my divinations?"

It was then arranged that a meeting should take place at the Doctor's residence the following evening, when he would not only "cast" the horoscopes of such persons as should be offered to him but would give the history of their lives as foretold by the stars.

Accompanied by an Ex-Judge, who had been present at the dinner, the writer called at the appointed hour the next morning, and after a few minutes' general conversation the trial began by the Doctor's being handed first a slip of paper bearing the date of the birth of the Acting President of the United States only, no name being appended. How either incorrect or true Dr. W.'s divinations were readers must judge for themselves.

RUTHERFORD B. HAYES,

Born about twenty minutes past ten o'clock on the morning of the 4th of October, 1822. A man of uncertain and unstable character; a man who always stands in his own light. The planet Jupiter, under the sign of "Sagitarius," under whose influence he was born, is opposed to his house; that signifies that troubles, numerous and severe, will dog his footsteps. Here the scientist studied the horoscope intently for a few moments, and then said quickly: It is written in this book of fate that within eighteen months he will be ejected from his high position. Fortunate both as to wife and fortune—for he not only has the power of making but also of keeping—he will, in the latter days of his life, be unfortunate with his children, who are of inferior capability. If it will be of any consolation to him to know that his lease of life is a good one, print it: He will die at sixty-five years of age, not before.

JOHN SHERMAN.

Born May 10, 1823, at the same time, day and hour as William M. Tweed. Now before I proceed further allow me to say that I know myself of over two dozen of the greatest swindlers and tricksters that the world has ever known who have been born on that day. Born under Capricornus, his representative star is Saturn. Characteristically he is of an unscrupulous and uncertain turn of mind and beyond that, his mind is stronger than that of any other whose horoscope I have ever cast. Up to the age of thirty-eight he was in most straitended circumstances. Then there was a change, and money began to accumulate in his hands rapidly, and for twenty years he will bask in the sunshine of prosperity. But the testimony of the stars is against him, and a change will come. I see loss of fortune, beggary, disgrace. These are already at hand; nay, so to speak, he is on the brink of the precipice, for ere the 1st of July his lot will be a hard one mentally physically, financially, and this will again be repeated in October and in February, 1880, when his disasters will culminate, and he will be lost in a whirlwind of his own creating, to die at the age of sixty-three, "unwept, unhonored and unsung."

SAMUEL J. TILDEN,

Born March 15, 1814. His star is Jupiter, with "Sagitarius" A man of marvelous intellect, shrewd, far-seeing and far-reaching, and remarkably secretive, and unwilling to trust even a wife. A natural accumulator of money, he will die rich; but that time is far off, and before that, if the stars tell but the truth, the highest honors and dignities of the country will be offered to him; and these high honors and dignities are at hand. Eighty summers and winters will have passed over his head ere the final summons to depart arrives.

BENJAMIN F. BUTLER,

Born at sunrise on the 5th of November, 1819. One of the boldest, keenest, brightest minds that have ever flashed meteorically through the world; kind, clever, generous, whole-souled, he never "sold" a friend or discounted a foe. Free from treachery, he delights in bold strategy. I see in the near future looming up honors and power beyond what he has ever before possessed. As a speculator in real estate he will be lucky beyond belief, and he will die immensely wealthy, but not for many years to come, for ere that his honors will also culminate in the highest that it is in the power of the nation to confer. Strong physically as mentally, it will take more to kill him than almost any other man, and he will live to be not less than seventy-eight years of age.

JAY GOULD,

Born May 27, 1836. An abnormally-developed brain in a weak and suffering body, with one of the most unique minds the world ever saw. Active and far-seeing, and in his own line of business "all comprehending." Recently a marked period of danger in his career has been safely passed through, as will be the more trying and disastrous period that in the next few weeks will most surely have to be passed through. His chances are so evenly balanced that throughout his life he will always by fighting to retain what he has got, or to get the better of others, and this, not from any desire to "trick," but simply because the planets in conjunction with his birth are alternately opposed to one another. In March, 1880, he will meet with a great financial success, to be followed immediately by some trouble that will have a most depressing effect upon him, and his career will be cut short, and—Once again the astrologer paused to study the horoscope, as the writer interrogated as to the probabilities of life. "Ask me no further," he said, "the end is at hand."

PETER COOPER,

Born February, 1791. A man of remarkable, evenly-balanced and well-constructed brain, mathematically and in detail, and gifted with a most powerful memory. At present, laboring under some physical ailment, which, however, he will safely pass through ere the end of the month. Warm and kindly in disposition and fortunate in his family relations. The planets which were in conjunction at his birth are now in their most favorable aspect, and he will live to the age of ninety-four. Still, when in his eighty-first, he passed through a severe illness, and, too, that almost had proved fatal. Here the astrologer drew his chair alongside the writer's and showed him how, at that period of his (Cooper's) life, two planets moving in different circles were crossing one another, and, said he, "what saved him was, the motion of the planet under which he was born was sufficiently greater than that of the opposing planet to pass it."

JAMES G. BLAINE,

31st January, 1830, is of a pretty straightforward and by no means vindictive temperament; wandering and unsettled in mind, but with great capacities and capabilities; has had much vexation and trouble during his life; recently had a little streak of financial luck, which, however, will be more than overbalanced by a financial loss which he will suffer in April. This however, will only be temporary. When comparatively young he will have risen to the highest point of the ladder to which he can climb, and although he will remain upon the boards for years, and be prominently before the public, no further or higher honors than he has already attained will be his. Death will come when least expected, the result of bad treatment rather than of disease, and he will die at the age of sixty-four—not before. "Now," said the writer, as, after showing the horoscopist the names of those whose horoscopes he had been casting, he rose to depart, "give me, if you have it, the horoscope of

GENERAL GRANT,

With reference to his future." Taking a small, neat-bound book from a private drawer in his escritoire, the astrologer turned to the index, and, having found the page, opened the book and read from foot-notes: "General Grant's future," he read, "will be peculiar. He will be the people's idol, the people's god, for a time, but he will fail. I foresee great disasters, disgrace ruin—financial and moral, circling and circling, and coming nearer and nearer, and, mark me, the day is not far off. I mean only eight or nine years at the furthest, when U. S. Grant will be an alien from his native soil." "Sic transit gloria mundi," echoed the reporter, as the door closed quickly upon him as he departed.

* * *

—McQuiston & Ralston sell 2 good cigars for 5c also the Veto and Bellmans Red Bird the best 5 cent cigar sold, will furnish dealers cigars at jobbers prices.

The Policy of Congress.

It is with indecent haste that the Republican press of the country endeavor to pave the way for an exercise of the veto power unprecedented in our history. The scope of the veto power vested in the President is indicated in the letter of the Constitution, and is still more manifest in the spirit of that instrument of Government. It was not intended that the Executive should be the legislative power of the Government. It was not intended that the Executive officer of the Government should in any degree usurp the Legislative authority. It was not intended that the mere opinion of the Executive should override the constitutional law-making power. The philosophy of the veto power contemplated no such abuse of it. The veto was designed to prevent, or to stay (for the veto can not altogether prevent) legislation that is comprised in two classes—hasty legislation and unconstitutional legislation. It was assumed that Congress might enact new measures against public policy in haste. The refusal of the President's signature would call a halt, would command reflection, and the giving of the reasons for the refusal would invite the sober consideration of Congress when the question should be a second time presented. When the Constitution was framed and the veto power given there was no party division, as now. There was but one party. This veto provision was incorporated for the benefit of one party, for the common interest. It was not designed to make the President, an executive officer, the law-making power of the land. The President is sworn to "preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States." If any bill has passed Congress that is in plain violation of the Constitution the President has the unquestioned authority to veto that measure, and these are about the limits of the constitutional veto power intended to be given to the President.

It is widely advertised by the Republican press that during this extra session of Congress the President will carry the veto power wholly beyond these limits, if occasion requires, and this talk is carried to the extent of attempting to intimidate Congress, of endeavoring to browbeat the Legislative power of the land into a suppression of its convictions because of a fear of a veto. This is "crowding the limit" of the veto power. In what interest is it to be invoked? There are laws on the statute books authorizing the Executive Department of the Government to move the Federal Government into any town or city of twenty thousand inhabitants, and to hire men at from $5 to $50 a head to vote and electioneer for the Republican party, and this money is to be paid out of the public funds thus compelling Democrats to contribute one-half, more or less, of the money to secure their own defeat, and, which is far more heinous, recognizing the right of the Federal Government to move into town and take charge of election. It is announced that the President will veto any bill repealing these laws. It is said that, as this is the President's intention, the Congress, whose opinion upon this infamous legislation is known should not insist upon the passage of any law repealing the outrageous legislation, because the Democratic Congress should not be revolutionary. It is the legislation that the Democracy would repeal that is revolutionary of our system of Government, not the Congress that holds fast to the traditions of the fathers of the Republic. The Republican press threaten the Democratic party with a veto if it attempts to repeal these laws. This advertised veto can not be to prevent party legislation; for these laws have been on the statute books several years, and have been thoroughly tried and understood. It is not proposed to enact new laws, but to repeal old ones. That can not be hasty. How can it be unconstitutional? To repeal an act of Congress can never be unconstitutional. It might never be constitutional to enact such laws as it is proposed by the Congress to repeal, but it certainly could not be a violation of the Constitution to repeal them. As the repeal of laws that have been tried long and well can not be party legislation, and as it is difficult to see how the repeal of any law could be unconstitutional, the President, in this controversy doesn't seem to have a good place where to stand. What is the duty of the Congress under such circumstances? Plainly, to pass these repealing laws, and adhere. If the Republican party endeavors to perpetuate its power by the methods we have indicated, it will be mistaken. The policy of Congress upon these questions touching personal and civil liberty will be maintained. The new Congress will be as devoted as the old one to the main questions. The policy of Congress is to do its duty to the people, and await the results.—Cincinnati Enquire.

Mr. Hendricks on the Negro as a Voter.

[State Sentinel.]

—Aside from the historical bearings of the question, there is little need of discussing the whys and the wherefores of negro suffrage. It is an established fact in American politics, and must be accepted. There is, however, a phrase of this negro suffrage question which is very properly undergoing review, and the discussion is likely to have a marked and healthy influence upon the public mind. The question now considered is, not why the negro should vote, but how he should vote. The reason why the negro should vote is settled beyond all controversy; But how he should vote involves all the considerations that apply to intelligence, welfare of the country, to individual convictions, and to free, untrammeled and unrestricted citizenship: and to the elucidation of this subject, the importance of which cannot be dwarfed, it is gratifying to know that some of the best minds of the country are engaged. Under the caption of "Retribution in Politics," Hon. Thomas A. Hendricks has a paper in the American Review for April, which we conclude will be regarded as a masterly presentation of the subject in all of its more important bearings upon the well-being of the negro, the wellfare of the country and the ascendency of political parties. The article referred to bears evidence of thorough acquaintance with the subject, and is in Mr. Hendricks' best style. The diction is terse, the argument cogent and exhaustive. If the paper obtains as wide a reading as its commanding merits demand, it can not fail of having a most salutary effect upon the minds of thinking men. The purpose of Mr. Hendricks in writing the article for the North American, was evidently to combat the pernicious views of leading republicans, which, from time to time, find their way into the public prints. In the list of these republican stalwarts, who are dissatisfied with the course a great many negroes have seen fit to pursue, James G. Blaine occupies a front place—not more on account of his acknowledged abilities than from the fact that he is regarded as the leader of the Republican party—and it is worthy of remark that such men as Blaine and Garfield, as others of less note in the ranks of the republican party, are now giving expression to doubts as to the wisdom of the negro enfranchisement policy, and are openly discussing the question, ought the negro be disfranchised? Democrats take the negative, while many Republicans are ranging themselves on the affirmative side of the question—and this course is pursued by them from the simple fact that the negro, in exercising the right of suffrage, has in numerous instances voted the Democratic ticket rather than with the Republicans. It is this exhibition of independance on the part of the negro that has aroused the ire of the leading Republicans, and it is in the discussion of this phrase of the subject that Mr. Hendricks rises to the full proportions of the largest statesmanship. The Republicans would hold the negro in perpetual bondage to party, while the Democrats seek to enlighten him upon all questions relating to the responsibilities of citizenship, and then leave him to exercise his judgment in the matter. In commenting upon this branch of the subject Mr. Hendricks says:

"Mr. Blaine makes the argument (or rather the claim) that for emancipation, for citizenship, for civil rights, and for political privileges, the negro is indebted to the Republican party, and that, therefore, his allegiance is to that party, and that, so long as he is allowed the freedom of choice, he can and will vote with no other party. He declares it the "recklessness of assumption," "the very bravado of argument," to claim that, upon his own choice, he would vote with the Democrats. That is the strongest statement ever made against negro suffrage. The vote is nearly 1,000,000. The claim is that it is not free—is never to be free, but belongs to a party; that because of past obligations, it cannot change. In its membership and in its aggregate it can not change. It can not consider questions of principle or questions of policy. It may not listen to the demands of patriotism, nor the appeals of self interest, as opposed to the requirements of the party. Its obligation to party can never be discharged. Whether in questions relative to the honor of the country or the welfare of the people, it can exercise no free and independent judgment. It would be a matter of serious concern, could a party claim a vassalage so numerous and so abject. But that claim is being repudiated by the colored vote itself. In the demonstrations preceeding the elections, and at the polls, its independent action in many of the states has stamped the claim of ownership as false and arrogant. But Mr. Blaine asks the question: "Why should the negro have been disposed to vote with the Democratic party?" Is that question asked by one who sincerely believes in the capacity of the negro to vote intelligently upon questions affecting the public welfare, and that his action will be governed by an enlightened judgment and a patriotic purpose? Then I answer that the same considerations should govern the negro that ought to govern any other voter. He should vote upon his convictions of right and duty. If Democratic policy is more likely to promote the public good, then it should be supported by the white and colored voter alike. He who tells me how the white man should vote tells me as well how the colored man should vote. When once in the box the ballot has no color. Its only quality depends upon the fitness of the candidate it may help to elect, and upon the views he may carry into legislation, or the measures he may adopt in the administrative service. A full answer to the question would require a statement of the reasons why any citizen should give that party his support. Such reasons might be found in its devotion to constitutional obligations; in its adherence to the "supremacy of the civil over the military;" in its maintenance of the separation and mutual independence of church and State, "for the sake alike of civil and religious freedom;" in its hostility to a "corrupt centralism," which threatens the destruction of the right of local self government; and in its devotion to economy in public expenditures.

It would be difficult to state the case more clearly. But those who would understand the full scope of Mr. Hendricks' arguments should read the entire article in the North American upon "Retribution in Politics."

* * *

Ingersoll and the Bible.

EDITOR COURIER—I read your quotation from the Sentinel in regard to Mr. Ingersoll's late lecture at Ft. Wayne on "Hell," and would remark that when he says "there is not one word or syllable in the Old Testament referring to future punishment, or an eternal existence," he manifests a disregard of truth, and apparently presumes largely on the ignorance of his audience. I believe the bible means what it says, and says what it means. The following quotations from the Old Testament would appear (at least to an ordinary reader) to contain quite a number of words and syllables referring to future punishment and an eternal or everlasting existence. I Psalms, XVI chapter, "In Thy presence is fullness of joy, at thy right hand there are pleasures forevermore." Isaiah, LI chapter, "There fore the redeemed of the Lord shall return and come to Zion with singing, and everlasting joy shall be upon their head. They shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and mourning shall flee away." Daniel, XII chapter, "And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." Psalm, IX, "The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God." If objectors say hell here means the grave, I reply, why then does it not say all nations shall be turned into hell? why only the wicked and the nations that forget God? Again, Job, XIX chapter, "And though after my skin, worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God." See also Isaiah, XXX chapter, and Hosea, XIII chapter. If the references in the Old Testament are so decisive, those in the new are overwhelming. The Sentinel says Mr. Ingersoll brought to his support inexhaustible resources of satire, ridicule, wit and eloquence. True, this is one kind of support, but quite another, and far more satisfactory, would have been clear and substantial proof. This doctrine of no hell was first promulgated in the Garden of Eden by the devil himself, see Genesis, chapter III, 4th verse. Satan however is no infidel. He knows too much. The devils believe and tremble, see James, II chapter. When a man begins to fight the Bible he fights against God. He then has a difficult task before him A hard road to travel. And to see the poor puny arm of humanity seek to measure strength with the Almighty, only excites our horror, pity and disgust. This Book like every other truth never has been nor never will be overthrown by sarcasm, by ridicule, by wit or eloquence. "Truth crushed to earth will rise again. The eternal years of God are hers, while falsehood wounded writhes in pain, and dies amid its worshipers."

J. BLINKERHOFF.

* * *

—Coffee A Sugar 11 lbs for $1,00 Coffee C sugar 12½ lbs for $1,00 at McQuiston & Ralstons. 13-3w.

THE AUBURN COURIER.

AUBURN COURIER.

THEODORE REED, Editor.

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

A sensation has been caused at Boston by the defalcation of Nathan P. Pratt, Treasurer of the Savings Bank of Reading, a town about ten miles from the Hub. Pratt has always borne a good reputation, and the news fell like a thunderbolt upon the community. The total amount lost is about $100,000.

By a collision of two trains on the New York elevated railroad, last week, fifteen passengers were injured, some of them seriously....The New York Court of Appeals has decided the Brooklyn bridge case against Comptroller Kelley, that New York city will have to pay her share.

THE WEST.

Ex-Gov. L. P. Bradley, of Nevada, is dead.

At Fort Scott, Kan., a few days ago, a negro named Bill Howard, having been detected in a horrible crime, was taken from jail and hanged to a lamp-post. After the body had hung some fifteen minutes the infuriated mob took it down and dragged it to the square, in spite of the resistance and objection of the more calm and peaceable portion of the crowd, and literally roasted and burned the remains in a fire of dry-goods boxes and coal-oil, amid demonstrations that rivaled pandemonium.

THE SOUTH.

A New Orleans dispatch announces that the banks of that city have resumed full payment in currency.....A Paducah (Ky.) dispatch says: "Jerry Ewing (colored) was seized by twelve masked men and shot to death, after which, a bag of sand being tied to his body, he was thrown into the Ohio river." He had been detected in a brutal assault upon a young white girl.

Patrick Smith and Julius Christian, negroes, convicted of the murder of John C. Lacy (white) on the 17th of January last, were hanged, on the 25th of March, at New Kent Court House, Va.

Judge J. M. Elliott, of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, was shot down in the streets of Frankfort, a few days ago, by Col. Thomas Buford. Elliott had rendered a decision in a case Buford has had in the court against him. Buford loaded a double-barreled shot-gun and waited for Elliott to come to dinner, and, walking up to him, shot him through the heart without warning. The assassin then leveled his gun at Judge Pryor, and would have given him the contents of the other barrel had not the Judge dodged behind a corner. The murder created intense excitement throughout Kentucky. The friends of the assassin claim that he is insane.

Four persons lost their lives by the burning of a wharf-boat at Hickman, Ky., a few nights ago....At Sugar Tree Spring, Taylor county, Ky., the stable of a colored man named Howard was burned, and Howard's two sons, attempting to rescue the horses, were caught by the falling roof and burned to a crisp.

WASHINGTON.

The charge that is made against Senator Ingalls in Washington is that he bought thirteen members of the Kansas Legislature to vote for him. He claims that political enmity alone is at the bottom of the asseverations.

Senator Jonas, the new Democratic Senator from Louisiana, does not hesitate to say that he will do all he can to oust Kellogg and seat Judge Spofford, Kellogg's former contestant.

The President has nominated John B. Hamilton, of Illinois, Supervising Surgeon General of the United States Marine Hospital service; John M. Wilson, of Ohio, Consul at Panama; Jefferson P. Kidder, of Dakota, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Dakota.

Appointments by the President; To be members of the National Board of Health: Dr. S. M. Bemis, of New Orleans, La.; Dr. H. I. Bowditch, of Boston; Dr. J. L. Cabell, of Charlottesville, Va.; Dr. H. A. Johnson, of Chicago; Dr. Stevens Smith, New York city; Dr. T. S. Verdi, of Washington, and Dr. Robert W. Mitchell, of Memphis. Henry W. White, of New Jersey, to be Assistant Collector of the Port of Jersey City. William J. Pollock, of Illinois, to be Indian Inspector.

The President has nominated Andrew D. White, of New York, to be Minister to Germany, and Cornelius A. Logan, of Illinois, to be Minister Resident to the Central American States.

The reports of the movements of Sitting Bull on the Northwest boundary are causing some agitation at Washington, and the matter was fully discussed at a Cabinet meeting last week. It appears that at the time when Sitting Bull was visited by the military commission, sent out by our Government in 1877, there was a distinct agreement that Sitting Bull became a Canadian Indian, and that the representatives of the Canadian Government agreed to this. Mr. Evarts will now notify the Canadian Government that if Sitting Bull comes over the border and engages in hostility on this side the Canadian Government will be held responsible.

POLITICAL.

Washington dispatches state that "the Republican leaders have become thoroughly alarmed over the unqualified assertions of leading Democrats that, as a result of conferences with the President and members of the Cabinet, the President would sign a modified bill repealing the Election laws."

A caucus of the Greenback members of the House was held at Washington last week, at which the subject of attaching political measures or any foreign legislation to appropriation bills was generally discussed. There was a unanimous expression of opposition to this way of legislating. The Greenbackers, however, expressed themselves as being in favor of all measures proposed by the Democrats, except the repeal of the law relating to Supervisors of Elections, which they are in favor of in a modified form. They are opposed to the test oath for jurors and favor its repeal. They are also opposed to the use of troops at the polls and to the election laws which authorize Federal interference at the polls, and favor their repeal, but they ask that these repealing clauses be introduced as separate measures. A committee of the caucus has been appointed to draft financial measures to present to Congress embodying all greenback ideas.

GENERAL.

Col. Walsh the commander of the Canadian mounted police, reports that Sitting Bull has 2,000 warriors well armed and equipped, and that an ugly and insubordinate disposition is manifest among them.

It is intimated that the decision of the Fitz John Porter Court of Inquiry will be favorable to the accused.

The New York World pronounces the electric light a failure.

FOREIGN.

The French floating battery Arrogante foundered during a storm in the Mediterranean sea, off Hyeres, France, and forty-seven men out of a crew of 122 were drowned....Prof. Anderson, the famous chess-player, has just died at Breslau....Switzerland has decided to restore capital punishment....Emperor William, of Germany, celebrated his 82d birthday on the 22d of March....The German shipping trade is very much depressed, and a large number of the owners of sailing vessels have decided not to put them into commission this spring.

A Paris dispatch announces the death of Mario, the celebrated tenor....The French Chamber of Deputies has voted, by a large majority, to remove the seat of government from Versailles to Paris.

The King of Burmah is engaged in fortifying his capital, in anticipation of British interference....The Greek [illegible] addressed a circular to the powers invoking their mediation on the frontier question between Greece and Turkey....The London Times reports that there were shocks of earthquake in Northern Persia during the 22d and 23d of March. Minach was much damaged, and the adjacent villages of Tark and Mannan totally destroyed. Out of 1,100 inhabitants only a few escaped death.

Fresh cases of plague are reported in the Astrackan district, and Gen. Melikoff has been sent back. He will destroy a considerable number of infected houses, and make a determined effort to arrest the further development of the pestilence. The approach of the warm season increases the danger.

An unsuccessful attempt was recently made at St. Petersburg to assassinate Gen. Von Drenteln, Chief of the Gendarmerie. He was driving along the Neuva quay, when a man on horseback fired twice into his carriage window. The General was not hurt. The would-be assassin rode a short distance, then leaving his horse escaped.

Dispatches from India report a battle between 3,000 British troops and a large force of Afghans, in which the latter were defeated with the loss of 300 men....The Queen of England started on a tour to the Continent of Europe on the 25th of March....A Paris dispatch says that Paul de Cassagnac justifies his vote favoring the return of the Chambers to Paris, on the ground that the return will be a deliberate act of suicide on the part of the republic.

A cable dispatch says the famine in Upper Egypt causes terrible suffering. In some villages the people, naked like wild beasts, dig for roots. In one town women and children fought over scraps of bread. The inland villagers are said to be starving like dogs.

The King of Burmah has grown more peaceful and conciliatory, and is now reported willing to concede anything the British may demand....It is admitted in London that the Russian candidate, the Prince of Battenburg, will be elected to the throne of Bulgaria by the National Assembly now sitting at Tirnova.

The German Parliament, by a unanimous vote, has decided to confer upon the newly-ceded province of Alsace-Lorraine an autonomous form of government.

FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

[EXTRA SESSION.]

A large number of bills were introduced in the Senate on the 21st. Mr. Beck introduced a bill to repeal that section of the Revised Statutes which provides that no person who held any position in the Confederate service shall ever be appointed to any position in the army or navy of the United States. Mr. Beck also introduced a bill to call in the trade-dollars and recoin them into standard dollars. Mr. Windom introduced a bill to extend the time for the completion of the Northern Pacific railroad. Mr. Edmunds called up his resolution providing that all bills and resolutions other than appropriation bills should be referred to appropriate committees, and not be acted on until the meeting of Congress in regular session. On motion of Mr. Wallace it was laid on the table by a strict party vote. Mr. Hoar introduced a resolution that the action of one branch of Congress, in refusing to pass the necessary Appropriation bills, is revolutionary, and, if persisted in, will endanger the national life. Mr. Wallace objected, and the resolution went over. There was a sharp debate over Mr. Wallace's resolution directing Secretary Sherman to inform the Senate as to the amount of salary paid to Deputy Marshals employed in the States of Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York and Maryland, in October and November, 1878. Mr. Conkling moved to amend the resolution so as to include Deputy Marshals in all the States, instead of in the four named, which was rejected. Mr. Conkling then offered his amendment as an additional resolution, but providing that the information called for be distinct from that called for in Mr. Wallace's resolution, which was agreed to. Mr. McMillan submitted a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution of the United States giving the President power to except, in his approval of bills, other items of appropriation or special legislation, giving his reasons to Congress, the item so disapproved to be treated as in the case of a veto. Mr. Logan introduced a bill to equalize the bounties of soldiers, sailors and marines of the late war for the Union; also a bill for the relief of the Chicago Soldiers' and Citizens' Colony. Referred. The Senate then adjourned until the 25th.——The House was in session but a short time, and transacted no business. Adjourned till the 25th.

Neither house of Congress was in session on the 22d, but the committees of the House and Senate Democratic caucus to make recommendations concerning the order of business for the extra session held a joint meeting. The first question discussed was whether the political legislation desired by the dominant party in Congress should be effected by the passage of a separate measure or by the incorporation of the repealing clauses in Appropriation bills. It was determined, after a discussion, that the latter course would be the most expedient. The next question considered was whether the political portions of the Appropriation bills should now be passed in the same terms in which they were passed at the last session, or whether the repealing clauses in regard to the Federal Election laws should be modified so as to repeal only those sections which authorize the appointment of Chief Supervisors and Deputy Marshals for elections, together with the sections conferring police powers on Supervisors, thus continuing the authorization for the appointment of two Supervisors of different politics to serve in a testimonial capacity at each poll as witnesses of the count of votes. After an exhaustive discussion, it was decided to recommend the adoption of a modified proposition. The joint meeting also considered whether the legislation of the present session be strictly confined to the Appropriation bills, including the measures above indicated, or whether general business should be transacted by either house when not engaged on an Appropriation bill. A decided majority favored the restriction to the Appropriation bills, and the enactment of what is known as the "Yellow Fever bill."

The Senate was the scene of a long and warm political debate on the 24th, over the resolution of Mr. Wallace (Democrat) to proceed to the election of officers of the Senate. The Republicans opposed the removal of the old officers, and charged the Democrats, in pursuing such a course, with a violation of precedent and custom as old as the Senate itself. The Democrats urged the removal of the old officers because they had made themselves unusually conspicuous as partisans while the Republican party held sway in the Senate, particular stress being laid upon the case of George C. Gorham, the old Secretary of the Senate. A circular signed by him during the campaign of 1878 was produced by the Democrats. This circular stated that "it is almost certain that the next Senate will be Democratic" and asserts that, "foremost among the schemes of that party is the intention to attempt the revolutionary expulsion from his office of the President." The Democrats, during the debate, pronounced the circular false in every particular, and held that any man guilty of signing his name to it was unfit to be Secretary of the Senate. The Republicans defended Gorham, and claimed that the then existant facts justified the issuing of the circular. After a five hours' debate, participated in by Messrs. Anthony, Hamlin, Wallace, Conkling, Bayard, Beck, Voorhees, Blaine, and Eaton, the Wallace resolution was adopted by a strict party vote, and all of the Democratic caucus nominations for officers of the Senate were elected.——The House was not in session.

A communication from the Secretary of the Treasury, in answer to Mr. Wallace's resolution calling for information in regard to fees paid Deputy Marshals in elections in October and November, was laid before the Senate on March 25. Mr. Hoar called up his resolution declaring the failure of one house to pass the appropriation bills, except upon condition of repeal of the existing laws, is revolutionary, and took the floor for a speech. Mr. Hoar took the ground that there is no historical precedent for the refusal of the House to grant supplies except upon the conditions it has fixed. The notion that English history furnishes warrants for this action was a mistake. He went back into English history and made numerous citations. At the close of Mr. Hoar's speech the Senate adjourned.——In the House, Messrs. Harris and Cox asked leave to introduce resolutions, but Mr. Conger stated he would object to the introduction of anything unless it had reference to the appropriation bills, whereupon the House adjourned.——The joint committee of the Senate and House Democratic caucuses held another meeting, at which the report of the joint sub-committee was received and considered. The result of the [illegible] to attach precisely the same amendments to the Legislative bill as passed the House at the last session, without the modifications suggested and favorably considered at the last meeting of the committee. They, however, agreed to provide for two Supervisors of Elections, after stripping them of every function except that of witnesses.

Neither house of Congress did anything on the 26th, everything being postponed to await the decision of the Democratic caucus. This met in the afternoon, and their final determination was that they would incorporate in the Appropriation bills legislation like that of the last session, with some modifications. The law authorizing the presence of troops at elections is to be repealed, as is also the jurors' test-oath law. The sections of the Revised Statutes which bear upon elections are not all to be repealed outright, but are to be greatly modified. Two Supervisors are to be allowed in each election precinct, and they are to be of different political parties, and all distinctions between Supervisors in suburban and in rural districts are to be abolished. The Supervisors are to be shorn of their power to make arrests in advance of voting.

Numerous bills were introduced in the Senate on the 27th; none of them, however, were of any considerable importance. Mr. Hoar's resolution declaring the course of the majority revolutionary, etc., was taken up. In a running debate, Mr. Hoar charged that the majority had usurped the functions of legislation by maturing measures in caucus, thus anticipating constitutional forms. Messrs. Beck, Bayard and Voorhees replied, saying that the Democrats were acting with caution and circumspection, which was more than the Republicans had done when in the majority. Without disposing of the subject, the Senate adjourned until the 30th.——In the House, Mr. Sparks introduced the Army Appropriation bill. He stated that it was substantially the bill which passed the last House, with the reorganization features stricken out. It retains the clause prohibiting the use of troops at the polls.——A caucus of the Republican members of the House was held for the purpose of discussing the situation in regard to the political clauses which the majority has determined to incorporate in the appropriation bills. The subject was very generally discussed, and it was finally agreed that every endeavor should be made by the minority to prevent the passage of the appropriation bills unless they shall be relieved of the provisions in question. The sense of the caucus was that if the Democrats should insist upon carrying out the plan already adopted by them, the effect would be the stoppage of the wheels of the Government, and the majority would be responsible for the result. The following resolution was adopted without opposition: "Resolved, That it is the sense of this caucus that hereafter, and until the appropriation bills are disposed of, no pairs by Republicans shall, under any consideration, be made." This resolution appears to indicate a determination on the part of the Republicans to resort to filibustering rather than recede in any manner from the position they have taken.

THE ELECTION INVESTIGATION.

RESUME OF THE EVIDENCE TAKEN BY SENATOR WALLACE'S COMMITTEE.

The Senate committee inquiring into the alleged frauds in the late election, of which Senator Wallace is Chairman, and heretofore known as the Teller Committee, resumed the taking of testimony at Washington last week. George C. Gorham, late Secretary of the Senate, and also Secretary of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, was the first witness examined. He said that during the Congressional campaign of 1878 about $106,000 was raised for Republican campaign purposes; $93,000 from Federal officers and employes by voluntary contribution, and the remainder from friends of the party not holding office. Perhaps $7,000 or $8,000 came from Congressmen. No contributions were asked from national banks, as such. A canvass among wealthy friends of the cause in New York city resulted in obtaining about $13,000. There may have been some bankers contributing. Some lady employes of the Government insisted on contributing. Of $106,000, about $25,000 was expended for documents, about $12,000 was paid employes of the committee, and $8,000 for furniture and general expenses. This left $55,500, of which $54,000 was sent to different States, and $1,500 was paid to speakers for expenses. Of the balance, $5,700 was lost by the failure of the German-American National Bank, and $300 remains on hand.

Ex-Secretary of the Senate Gorham was before the committee again on the second day of the sitting, and produced the books of subscriptions in the departments, and the list of moneys sent to different States. The National Committee aided nineteen Southern Congressional districts with an average of $663, and fifty-eight Northern districts with an average of $712. No aid was given to 212 districts. The policy was to devote the money to close districts. About nine districts in Ohio were thus helped. The witness thought the subscription in the Treasury Department might amount to $12,000 or $13,000, instead of $7,000 or $8,000, as stated the day before. About $2,000 was subscribed in the Postoffice Department. Very little was got from the Interior Department. James M. Kerns, United States Marshal for the Eastern district of Pennsylvania, testified that he thought, as far as United States Supervisors and Marshals are concerned, Philadelphia could do without them very well. The expenses of United States Supervisors in 1878 amounted to $27,440. Special attention was paid to Randall's district, because it was in a bad part of the city, where riots frequently occur.

Matrimonial Mishaps.

The dying wish of Matthew Crooks, a San Francisco millionaire, was to witness the marriage of his daughter, and the ceremony was performed at his bedside, several weeks before the time that had been appointed. The deathbed desire of Mr. Hayden, of the same city, was to break the engagement of his daughter, and he made her promise on her knees to discard her lover. Detroit has had a variation of the common foreign Count matrimonial episode—the husband running away with the bride's money and jewelry, but proving, after all, to be a real Count. A young woman engaged a section in a sleeping car at Pittsburgh, blushingly explaining that she would be joined by a husband at Harrisburg. When the train arrived at Harrisburg a young man got aboard with a clergyman, who married him to the purchaser of the section, and the honeymoon tour was at once commenced. A rustic couple dashed into a Washington oyster saloon, and implored the proprietor to get them married as soon as possible. They had eloped, and parents were on their track. The oyster man not only summoned a Justice of the Peace to tie the knot, but provided stews for the party after the ceremony. Miss Locke married Mr. Aiken, in Denver, Col., on his assurance that he was, as she phrases it, "a wealthy Christian gentleman;" but within four days she learned that he was a professional horse thief, and parted from him. Miss Ruggan's wedding day was appointed in Cleburne, Texas, and she made herself ready; but in the morning she received a note from her faithless lover inviting her to come and see his marriage to another girl. She committed suicide.

The owner of a Chicago peanut stand has formally gone into bankruptcy.

MR. SPEAKER.

The Men Who Have Presided Over the House.

Of the fifty-six Speakers who have presided over the past forty-five Congresses, the Northern States have given half and the Southern States half. There have been many illustrious men in the Speaker's chair, as the following list of Speakers from the first Congress shows:

Congress.	Speakers.	States.
1	F. A. Muhlenberg	Pennsylvania.
2	Jonathan Trumbull	Connecticut.
3	F. A. Muhlenberg	Pennsylvania.
4	Jonathan Dayton	New Jersey.
5	Jonathan Dayton	New Jersey.
——	George Dent, pro tem	Maryland.
6	Theodore Sedgwick	Massachusetts.
7	Nathan Macon	North Carolina.
8	Nathan Macon	North Carolina.
9	Nathan Macon	North Carolina.
10	Joseph B. Varnum	Massachusetts.
11	Joseph B. Varnum	Massachusetts.
12	Henry Clay	Kentucky.
13	Henry Clay (1st session)	Kentucky.
——	Langdon Cheves (2d session)	South Carolina.
14	Henry Clay	Kentucky.
15	Henry Clay	Kentucky.
16	Henry Clay (1st session)	Kentucky.
——	John W. Taylor (2d session)	New York.
17	Philip B. Barbour	Virginia.
18	Henry Clay	Kentucky.
19	John J. Taylor	New York.
20	Andrew Stevenson	Virginia.
21	Andrew Stevenson	Virginia.
22	Andrew Stevenson	Virginia.
23	Andrew Stevenson (1st ses.)	Virginia.
——	Henry Hubbard, pro tem	New Hampshire.
24	John Bell	Tennessee.
25	James K. Polk	Tennessee.
26	James K. Polk	Tennessee.
27	Robert M. T. Hunter	Virginia.
——	John White	Kentucky.
28	John W. Jones	Virginia.
——	Geo. W. Hopkins, pro tem	Virginia.
29	John W. Davis	Indiana.
30	Robert C. Winthrop	Massachusetts.
——	Armistead Burt, pro tem	South Carolina.
31	Howell Cobb	Georgia.
——	R. C. Winthrop, pro tem	Massachusetts.
32	Linn Boyd	Kentucky.
33	Linn Boyd	Kentucky.
34	Nathaniel P. Banks	Massachusetts.
35	James L. Orr	South Carolina.
36	William Pennington	New Jersey.
37	Galusha A. Grow	Pennsylvania.
38	Schuyler Colfax	Indiana.
39	Schuyler Colfax	Indiana.
40	Schuyler Colfax	Indiana.
41	Theo. M. Pomeroy (one day)	New York.
——	James G. Blaine	Maine.
42	James G. Blaine	Maine.
43	James G. Blaine	Maine.
44	Michael C. Kerr	Indiana.
——	Sam'l S. Cox (part of session)	New York.
——	Sam'l J. Randall (part of ses.)	Pennsylvania.
45	Samuel J. Randall	Pennsylvania.

The Bushman After the Lion.

Capt. Aylward tells a droll story of a rencontre between a bushman and a lion. The narrator was acquainted with the man, and has no doubt of the truth of the story. The bushman, while a long way from his home, was met by a lion. The animal, assured that he had his victim completely in his power, began to sport and dally with him with a feline jocosity which the poor little bushman failed to appreciate. The lion would appear at a point in the road and leap back again into the jungle, to reappear a little further on. But the bushman did not lose his presence of mind, and presently hit upon a device by which he might possibly outwit his foe. This plan was suggested by the lion's own conduct. Aware that the brute was ahead of him, he dodged to the right, and feeling pretty sure of the lion's whereabouts, resorted to the course of quietly watching his movements. When the lion discovered that the man had suddenly disappeared from the path, he was a good deal perplexed. He roared with mortification when he espied the bushman peeping at him over the grass. The bushman at once changed his position, while the lion stood irresolute in the path, following with his eye the shifting black man. In another moment the little man rustled the reeds, vanished, and showed again at another point. The great brute was first confused, and then alarmed. It evidently began to dawn upon him that he had mistaken the position of matters, and that he was the hunted party. The bushman, who clearly recognized what was passing in his enemy's mind, did not pause to let the lion recover his startled wits. He began to steal gradually toward the foe, who, now in a complete state of doubt and fear, fairly turned tail and decamped, leaving the plucky and ingenious little bushman master of the situation.—Chambers' Journal.

Lincoln, Clay and Greeley.

"Whom do you regard as the greatest men of your time?" "Well, that would be difficult to tell. All such things are comparative. I could name a great many men who have served their country and their time with eminent ability. But a man's public usefulness depends largely on circumstances. Mr. Lincoln, for instance, had a great opportunity, and he was equal to it. If circumstances had not found him; if he had not been the right man, at the right time, in the right place, he would have remained in obscurity all his life. I regard Henry Clay as foremost among the men laboring all their lives to elevate themselves, and who labored always for the object by promoting the welfare of the country, and the interests of the people. Horace Greeley labored with equally pure motives, as I think, up to the point where he allowed his ambition to rule him. I knew him intimately for years. A truer, more useful and more devoted practical philosopher I never knew. He labored with a single eye and a single heart and both hands for the public good, till he thought he could be still more useful in office. He was a frank, honest man, with nothing tricky about him. The very moment he found his aspirations in conflict with Mr. Seward, he wrote that well-known letter dissolving the political partnership which had existed between us."—Interview with Thurlow Weed.

Cost of Congressional Contests.

There is a provision in the Sundry Civil bill passed by the last Congress limiting the amount to be paid to each contestant or contestee for a seat in either house of Congress to $2,000. In the last Congress there were twenty-six parties to contests, and to these there was paid by the same bill $46,616. The cost of these twenty-six election cases, including the sum named, which was paid as salary and expenses, was about $80,000, or on an average of more than $3,000 for each man. Not half of these cases were ever determined by the House, and in those which were considered by the Committees on Elections, very much of the evidence taken was ex parte or irrelevant. In the case of Nutting vs. Reilley, of the Thirteenth Pennsylvania district, the testimony covered more than 1,200 closely-printed pages, much of which was ruled out on the ground of irrelevancy. The case was never acted upon, but the Government paid the parties to the contest $4,000 each. The Bisbee case, which was taken up and settled just before the adjournment, cost $6,000. If the new law had been in operation at the time the entire cost of these twenty-six contests could only have been a little more than $50,000, being a saving of over $30,000.

The Chinese in Havana.

Havana has a very large Chinese population. Coolies were imported until within a few years in great numbers, and sold under a contract of eight years of service. When this period expired the coolies naturally gravitated toward the cities, and, a nucleus once formed, soon spread, until whole sections are now peopled with these Mongolians. A few of them have accumulated some wealth, nearly all are industrious, but with the great mass it is a serious question as to the provision for even the meager food which satisfies their idea of living. Their young men are fond of imitating the ways, dress, and diversions of the Cuban "blood." There is something exceedingly funny, not to say grotesquely pathetic, in the sight of a Chinaman peering out from the highest of "Piccadillies," and adorned with a stylish silk hat, a cane, and lavender kids. These young fellows acquire all the vices, if not all the virtues, of this cosmopolitan city.

The Chinese, too, have their theater. The approach thereto is through dark and narrow streets, meagerly lighted by a sickly light here and there from saloons and eating-houses, whose signs are in Oriental characters. A little hole in a stone wall, barely as large as a stove-pipe, denotes the ticket office. Our guide, intrusted with ample funds thrusts his hand into the mysteries beyond, giving vent to a torrent of vocalisms unmistakably heathenish. The demand for best places creates an evident excitement in the breasts of the dispensers of tickets. It is clear that the boxes are in very little use in this establishment. Thus we find ourselves, a moment later, looking down in solitary grandeur upon a mass of mixed humanity which is too much absorbed in the scene upon the stage to pay attention to our entry. The room, quite large, is dimly lighted by candles set against the supporting posts, and arranged with an ingenious disregard of effects. A number of musicians keep up a desultory din with horns, drums, and cymbals, its volume of intensity rising and falling with the action of the play. The drama itself culminates in frequent well-simulated acts of domestic violence, giving the finely-formed athletic actors an opportunity to display surprising agility. All female parts are assumed by men. It is understood that the most lucrative department of this home of histrionic art is to be found below the stage, where those initiated and well known to the proprietors may indulge in the Chinese passion for gaming.—Frank H. Taylor, in Harper's Magazine for April.

Miss Wharton's Pie.

Miss Margaret Wharton was a lady of good family and large fortune. She was one of the Whartons of Skelton Castle, Cleveland, and possessed £200,000, half of which she gave to a nephew. She was well known in Scarborough, where she used to send out for "a pennyworth of cream" and "a pennyworth of strawberries," always paying her penny down. From this little peculiarity she became known as Peg Pennyworth. On one occasion, while in Scarborough, she had a meat pie made. It was very large, as it was for herself, some visitors and the servants. She ordered her footman to take it to the bake house. He refused, saying it was not consistent with his dignity to be seen, dressed in plush and tags, carrying a meat pie. Mistress Peg then desired the coachman to take it, but he also declined. "Bring out the carriage," was the command. The carriage was harnessed, the coachman donned his powdered wig and mounted the box, the footman ascended behind, and Mrs. Margaret Wharton, sitting in state in the carriage, bore the meat pie on her lap. "Drive to the bake house," was her command. In an hour or two, the same state being observed, the pie was brought back. "Now," she said to the coachman, "you have kept your place, which is to drive; and you," turning to the footman, "have kept yours, which is to wait; and now we will all have some of the pie."—Chambers' Journal.

The Ways of Trade.

When young Hyson, who is a commission merchant and an importer, came home to dinner one evening last week, he found Mrs. Hyson just parting with a caller and describing some "lovely" Chinese lanterns she had bought at Veneer's, on Washington street.

Hyson's face grew dark as the narrative proceeded, and when the door closed upon the visitor he turned to Mrs. H. with lowering brow and asked, "What have you been fooling money away on at Veneer's?"

"Don't be such a bear, Harry," said Mrs. H., "I only bought a dozen of these lovely lanterns, nice for ornaments and pretty to use in the country next summer, and they were only $1 each; did you ever see anything like them before?"

"See 'em!" groaned Hyson; "they sent me 4,000 of 'em in the Mandarin, and I have only sold one lot, and that was 100 to Veneer for $15." Tears and tableau.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

The Supreme Court of Ohio has decided that when a drunken and unruly passenger is put off a railroad train, and is then run over by another train, the railroad company is not liable. It was the duty of the conductor to protect other passengers against him by ejecting him, and if he was too drunk to take care of himself after that, it was his own fault. Similar law has been laid down in this and in most of the other States in the Union, and it seems to be about settled that if a man will get drunk, the safest place to do it is at home.

THE POSTAL SERVICE.

Figures Indicating the Growth of the Business of the Country.

By a recent readjustment of postoffice salaries, according to the stamps canceled (says a Washington correspondent), newspapers sent, and cash receipts of the offices, 145 were added to what is called the "Presidential list," that is, the salaries were fixed at over $1,000, and Postmasters receiving this salary or more are appointed by the President, while under that they are appointed by the Postmaster General. Judge Key thinks that the growth of postoffice receipts is a pretty fair indication of the growth of the business of the country. "The sale of stamps and postal-cards, and circulation of newspapers," says he, "is a good barometer to measure the business and intelligence of communities."

Judge Key expresses some surprise, in the recent readjustments of salaries, to find the Southern States falling so far behind. Compared with the Northern and Western States, they make hardly any "show" at all. The most rapid increase is in the Northwestern States, and, so far as can be gleaned from postoffice receipts, that section of the country will outstrip all the others in the race.

The State of Nebraska, admitted to the Union at a comparatively recent period, and containing so small a population in 1870 that she has but one member of Congress—this young State now has as many Presidential postoffices as Tennessee with 1,250,000 population and ten members of Congress! The number which each State has is seventeen. The comparatively new State of Iowa now has more Presidential postoffices than the States of Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, and South Carolina combined. Following are some of the figures in detail:

Illinois:	152	Alabama	16
Iowa	96	Arkansas	8
Kansas	33	Georgia	21
Michigan	71	North Carolina	11
Wisconsin	58	Louisiana	9

Judge Key, who gives close attention to all the details of the postoffice business, thinks that the increase of postoffice receipts is a pretty fair indication of the commercial and intellectual growth of the country.

A Patagonian Dinner.

The piece de resistance is principally ostrich, but this can be served with rice as pot-au-feu, or steaks can be broiled, the wings, which are the greatest delicacy—something like turkey, "perhaps even finer"—being sent up as a separate dish, the gizzard roasted a l'Indienne; and for the third course, a custard of ostrich eggs, sugar and gin. The guanaco, when fat, is said to be not unlike beef; but at certain seasons of the year it is terribly lean, and in that case only the head can be consumed, and it is usually roasted under the embers and eaten cold. The mulito, or small variety of the armadillo, is considered a great delicacy, and during the winter and spring months, when it is fat, the puma is greatly prized. Indeed, puma fat seems to be invaluable to the hunter, who finds it impossible to subsist on a diet of lean meat; and to this he is often reduced when his stores of biscuit and other provisions, and even salt, are exhausted.—The Spectator.

Hard on the Neighbors.

When the A. B. C. F. M. held its annual meeting in Hartford, Ct., some two or three years ago, the Rev. Dr. P——, of New Jersey, was a guest of Mrs. B——. One day, while at dinner, the topic "the prayer of faith" came up in the course of conversation, and Mrs. W——, Mrs. B——'s mother, who was a strong advocate of the doctrine, cited this incident: A farmer in Kansas during the grasshopper plague prayed to the Lord that his crops might be spared from the ravages of the grasshoppers. Such was his faith that his prayer would be answered that, when the grasshoppers came, they divided and went each side of his farm, and his crops were spared. Dr. P—— was silent a moment; then, looking over at Mrs. W—— with a merry twinkle in his eye, he said, "I think it was rather hard on the neighbors." Mrs. W—— was silent, but the party at the table shouted with laughter.—"Editor's Drawer," Harper for April.

THE MARKETS.

NEW YORK.
Beeves	$9 00	@	$11 50
Hogs	4 00	@	4 70
Cotton	10	@	10½
Flour—Superfine	3 25	@	3 75
Wheat—No. 2	1 04	@	1 15
Corn—Western Mixed	44	@	45
Oats—Mixed	31	@	32
Rye—Western	58	@	60
Pork—Mess	9 25	@	10 45
Lard	6	@	6½
CHICAGO.
Beeves—Choice Graded Steers	4 75	@	5 20
Cows and Heifers	2 75	@	4 00
Medium to Fair	4 20	@	4 45
Hogs	2 75	@	4 15
Flour—Fancy White Winter Ex.	5 25	@	5 60
Good to Choice Spring Ex.	3 75	@	4 50
Wheat—No. 2 Spring	91	@	92
No. 3 Spring	80	@	81
Corn—No. 2	34	@	35
Oats—No. 2	21	@	22
Rye—No. 2	44	@	46½
Barley—No. 2	66	@	69
Butter—Choice Creamery	22	@	25
Eggs—Fresh	10	@	12
Pork—Mess	8 40	@	9 90
Lard	6¼	@	6½
MILWAUKEE.
Wheat—No. 1	96½	@	1 00½
No. 2	91	@	92
Corn—No. 2	33	@	34
Oats—No. 2	23	@	24
Rye—No. 1	44	@	45
Barley—No. 2	61	@	63
ST. LOUIS.
Wheat—No. 2 Red Fall	1 02	@	1 03
Corn—Mixed	32	@	33
Oats—No. 2	26	@	27
Rye	47	@	48
Pork—Mess	10 00	@	10 10
Lard	6	@	6¼
CINCINNATI.
Wheat	1 00	@	1 05
Corn	36	@	37½
Oats	27	@	30
Rye	55	@	60
Pork—Mess	9 75	@	10 00
Lard	6¼	@	6½
TOLEDO.
Wheat—Amber Michigan	1 05	@	1 06½
No. 2 Red	1 06	@	1 07
Corn—No. 2	35	@	36
Oats—No. 2	26	@	27
DETROIT.
Flour—Choice	5 00	@	5 25
Wheat—No. 1 White	1 03	@	1 04
No. 1 Amber	1 05	@	1 06
Corn—No. 1	37	@	38
Oats—Mixed	28	@	29
Barley (per cental)	1 10	@	1 15
Pork—Mess	10 00	@	10 50
EAST LIBERTY, PA.
Cattle—Best	4 75	@	5 00
Fair	4 50	@	4 75
Common	3 20	@	4 50
Hogs	3 90	@	4 70
Sheep	4 00	@	5 50

AUBURN COURIER.

THURSDAY, APRIL 3, 1879.

FARM NOTES.

Treat the family cow to a little oilcake meal every day, and she will quickly respond in more and much richer milk.

Parsnips contain about twice as much dry matter or real food as turnips, and this of a superior quality. Carrots, again, contain about as much dry substance as mangolds, but are richer in sugar and of better feeding quality.

Potato water, or water in which potatoes have been boiled, is now recommended in various quarters as not only an effective but an immediate remedy for lice on cows and other cattle, also of ticks. The affected parts are to be bathed with the potato water; one application is generally sufficient. This remedy (if remedy it proves) has the merit of being exceedingly simple, easily employed and without danger of injury to the cattle.

Fighting the Potato-Bug.—The forthcoming report of the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture will contain a valuable paper by Dr. Jabez Fisher, of Fitchburg, on "The War with Insects." The paper is especially devoted to discussing the best method of fighting the potato-bug, and the essential parts of it are as follows: "It is an insect that has brood after brood in the same season. As soon as the young have time to hatch, you will find them at all times and stages of development during the whole season. There is, in my view, but one remedy, and that is what some of you are afraid of; but you have to come to it—Paris green, arsenite of copper. I have tried two or three modes of applying Paris green, and have settled upon one. I think the best way is to use 100 pounds of plaster (the finer ground the better) to one pound of Paris green. One pound is ample for 100 pounds of plaster. I am not sure but that proportion of green is too much. Most of you have applied it very much stronger. The great point is to get a single particle of Paris green upon the potato-leaf. Now, Paris green is an impalpable powder; it is exceedingly fine. It is necessary to apply but a single atom of it in one spot; but you want to apply it evenly over the whole foliage of the potato, and to do it, the best dilutent, the best thing to dilute it with is plaster. I apply it by means of a dredging-box, after the form of the ordinary flour dredging-box used in the kitchen. I have one that holds about a quart, with a cover pierced with holes, which is on the end of a handle about three feet long. All that is necessary when it is filled is to give a slight turn to the handle, and you can apply it to the potatoes as fast as you can walk beside a row. It is not necessary to cover the whole potato leaf with the green; but it is better to put it on pretty thoroughly. You will find that the green colors the plaster even in this proportion—1 part to 100. It colors it quite distinctly, and you can see it on the potato vine very readily. You do not want to put much on; it is a waste of the poison and a waste of time to do so. All you want is the slightest possible dusting; nothing more nor less than that. I will say a word about mixing. A great many people have trouble in mixing Paris green. They are terribly afraid of it; it is poison, and they do not like to handle it at all. The best way I have found is to take a large wrapping paper (heavy brown paper), as large as you can conveniently handle. Your plaster should be sifted to get all the lumps out of it. Spread a layer of plaster on the paper, and then spread the green as thoroughly over it as you can carelessly; then take your paper (one end in each hand) and move it from side by an alternate rising and falling motion, rolling the mixture from side to side until you cannot see a particle of plaster nor a particle of green. It does not take a great while to do it. You should not take too much at a time. The quantity will depend on the size of your paper. When it is perfectly homogeneous in color, then it is in a condition to use. The plaster will be washed off by the first rain, more or less; but the green is more persistent than most people suppose. Being a very fine, inpalpable powder, it remains on the somewhat-even surface of the foliage of the potato; after the plaster is washed off, the green is still there, and will continue to kill the larvæ of the potato-bugs that eat it. The theory of its action is, that the larvæ eats the green; and it must eat it in order to produce any result. It does not hurt the larva to put Paris green upon him; it does not kill him; must enter into his circulation to do that. One atom of the green, as I have said, will kill him, and is just as good as a pound. The same effect will be produced on any worm that eats leaves in the same way. The currant-worm and the gooseberry-worm eat the leaf in the same way; their mouth takes both sides of it, and, wherever the green is, it will kill them the same as it does the potato-worm. You may say that it will not do to put Paris green upon the currant or the gooseberry, because we are going to eat the fruit. I would not use it upon currants or gooseberries, except for the first crop of worms, which generally comes before the fruit has formed, or when it is very small; and ordinarily it will all be washed off the smooth skin of the berry before any of the fruit is eatable; or, if you should chance to eat any of it, the quantity would be so infinitesimal, in the way I advise its application, that no harm would be likely to arise in consequence. I should have no fear in applying it to the currant or the gooseberry early in the season, before the fruit has grown, but after that I should use something else."

Household Economy.

Potato Salad.—Six large cold boiled potatoes cut fine, two small heads of lettuce broken in small pieces, half a small onion cut fine, two hard-boiled eggs, one table-spoonful capers, Mayonnaise dressing, or a dressing made of French mustard, oil and vinegar.

Ginger Snaps.—Three cups of molasses; one cup of shortening; three teaspoonfuls of ginger; three teaspoonfuls of saleratus; two table-spoonfuls of water; one-half teaspoonful of salt; roll together and bake in a quick oven.

Turkey Salad.—One teacupful each of chopped turkey and celery. Mix, and then turn over it a dressing made after the following recipe: One raw egg, beaten; one hard-boiled egg, mashed fine; one-half teaspoonful of salt; one teaspoonful of prepared mustard; one teaspoonful of melted butter; a large spoonful of vinegar.

Fried Chicken.—After neatly dressing and carving in pieces of the proper size, parboil half an hour or longer until tender; take out with a fork and place in a frying-pan of melted butter; fry brown by frequent turning to keep from burning. A nice gravy is made by pouring the broth in which it was boiled into the frying-pan with a thickening of flour and any seasoning preferred. Curled parsley arranged as a garnish adds to the general effect.

Soup of Turkey Bones.—Break the bones, place in a kettle and add two quarts of cold water. Cover closely and set on the back of the stove to simmer for an hour. Season with pepper and salt, and add one large spoonful of rice. Let the soup boil until the rice is done; then pour into an earthen dish and put away in a cold place until the next day. When wanted for dinner, remove the layer of fat and heat the soup. Serve very hot with crackers and pickles.

Doughnuts.—One cup of soft yeast; one cup of warm sweet milk; one cup of shortening—half butter and half lard; one cup of sugar; two well-beaten eggs; one-half teaspoonful of salt; flavor with nutmeg, allspice or cinnamon. Knead all together; set in a warm place at night; in the morning, if light, knead again; roll about two-thirds of an inch thick; cut out in cakes a little larger than a silver dollar; let them rise; then fry in lard and roll in pulverized sugar.

Chicken Pie.—Cut up your chicken; parboil it; season it in the pot; take up the meat, put in a flour thickening, and scald the gravy; make the crust of sour milk made sweet with soda; put in a piece of butter or lard the size of an egg; cream is preferable to the sour milk, if you have it. Take a large tin pan, line it with the crust, put in your meat, and pour in your gravy from the pot; make it nearly full, cover with crust, and leave the vent; bake it in a moderate oven two hours, or two and a half.

A Novel Wedding Trip.

On Tuesday last a wedding party in high life came off at Carpenters, this county. Why it may be termed a wedding in high life is because it occurred on the top of a high mountain directly opposite the station. After the wedding ceremony was performed, the newly-married couple made a novel start in life. From the top of the steep mountain they concluded to go to the station in a hand-sled. The time for starting came, and their friends, after fixing them and their baggage solidly on the sled, gave the sled a push, and away they went, shooting over the ground at the rate of forty miles an hour. Half way down they turned a sharp curve, when to their horror they discovered a span of mules not far distant coming up the mountain. They saw at a glance that there was not room enough to pass those mules, and that the mules would not have time enough to get out of the way. And, what made matters worse, there was a high embankment to the road. However, they did not hesitate as to what was to be done, for stop they couldn't, and to strike in among the legs of those mules they well knew that that was to get kicked out of this world at once. John, the husband, of course, was pilot of the sled, and, bracing himself to meet the rapidly-approaching trouble, he exclaimed:

"Now, Maria, as you swore this morning to cling to me until death, I would advise you to give extra fastenings to your arms around my waist, for over the banks we must go."

"Let her slide, John, I'm praying for both of us!" replied the faithful wife.

And John did let her slide, by bravely turning the sled to one side and letting it shoot over an embankment, down a distance of twenty feet, into the snow below, carrying with it the bride, groom, and carpet-bags in one promiscuous heap. Fortunately the snow was deep enough to break the force of the fall, and nothing serious, save the smashing of John's new high hat, followed. Suffice to say, that the wedding party gathered themselves together again in a little while, and resumed their bridal trip, John occasionally pulling off his tile to see if any improvement could be made in its appearance, his only words of censure being, "If you had allowed that hat to fly, my darling, it would have taken care of itself."—Williamsport (Pa.) Bulletin.

A Candid Opinion.

A Detroit lawyer, famous for his wise and and candid opinions, was the other day visited by a young attorney, who explained:

"I was admitted to the bar two years ago, and I think I know something about law, yet the minute I arise to address a jury I forget all my points and can say nothing. Now, I want to ask you if this doesn't show lack of confidence in myself, and how can I overcome it?"

The wise attorney shut his eyes and studied the case for a moment before answering:

"My young friend, if it is lack of confidence in yourself it will some day vanish, but, if it is lack of brains, you had better sell out your office effects and buy a pick-ax and a long-handled shovel."

"But how am I to determine?" anxiously asked the young man.

"I'd buy the pick-ax, anyhow, and run my chances!" whispered the aged adviser, as he moved over to the peg for his overcoat.—Detroit Free Press.

A TRUE STORY OF THE WAR.

Gen. Gordon and Col. Morrow at the Battle of Gettysburg.

[From the Washington Sunday Herald.]

While conversing with Col. Bachelder, the historian of the battle of Gettysburg, a few evenings ago, at one of the leading hotels, he remarked: "This jostling crowd little realize that those two gentlemen in pleasant conversation yonder, pointing to Senator Gordon, of Georgia, and Gen. Morrow, of the United States army, were prominent actors on opposite sides at the battle of Gettysburg." And, as these gentlemen continued their conversation, and the crowd came and went, we drew from his never-ending fund of Gettysburg incident the following story: "The officer conversing with Senator Gordon is Gen. Morrow, now sitting on the Army Equipment Board in this city. He was among the wounded Union officers captured at Gettysburg when that place fell into the hands of the Confederate troops on the evening of the first day's battle. Col. Morrow commanded the Twenty-fourth Michigan Volunteers, which belonged to the famous 'Iron Brigade,' composed of Wisconsin, Michigan, and Indiana troops, and formed a part of the division that opened the battle, and it was with this brigade that Gen. Reynolds was killed. And it was also Col. Morrow's regiment which enveloped the flank of Archer's brigade, compelling the surrender of Gen. Archer with a large number of his men.

"Col. Morrow's regiment went into the engagement with 496 officers and men Its casualties on the first day were 22 officers killed or wounded out of 28, and 22 non-commissioned officers and 49 privates killed, and 41 non-commissioned officers and 182 privates wounded, making a grand total of 316 placed hors de combat out of 496. The sanguinary character of the engagement of these troops will be better realized when it is known that this regiment lost seven color-bearers in killed and wounded and all its color-guard; after which Col. Morrow took the flag to rally the regiment, and was himself wounded while carrying it, and obliged to leave the field. He was struck on the top of the head by a minie ball, producing a serious scalp wound, from which the blood flowed freely, completely covering his face; while engaged in washing it away the Union forces fell back through the town, followed by the victorious foe, and Col. Morrow found his retreat cut off. On the morning of the 2d, when the Union prisoners were about to be started for Richmond, the Confederate surgeon, who had examined his wound, humanely suggested that it would endanger his life to make such a trip in the heat of the summer, which being communicated to Col. French, Fifteenth Virginia cavalry, he sent Col. Morrow into the village, detailing a guard to accompany him to see that he was not molested. And to the kindness of these officers he believes he owes his life. A night's rest, with good surgical care, so far restored him that he was able to be out the next day and mingle with the troops, from whose conversation he learned the movements of the armies, and how the battle progressed. At the commencement of the great cannonade on the third day he went to the cupalo of the Court House, from which he saw the grand advance of Longstreet's assault as it swept across the plains, saw the lines tremble, waver, recoil, and break in confusion under the withering fire of the Union troops. It was after this that he learned that the Union wounded of the first day's battle had not been attended to, and he determined to relieve them if possible. Acting upon the suggestion of the wife of Judge Wills, whose guest he was, he allowed her to tie a green scarf (the insignia of a surgeon) about him. He then sallied out, and soon met Gen. Gordon and staff. Approaching him with the customary salute he said: 'General, I am informed that our wounded of the first day's battle lie uncared-for on the field where they fell, and I ask your assistance in having them attended to.' 'You astonish me; it cannot be,' answered the General, and, turning to a surgeon, he said: 'Is this so; and if so, why is it?' The surgeon assured him that the wounded of both armies had been cared for alike, but that they had been unable to visit that extreme part of the field. Turning to Col. Morrow, Gen. Gordon said: 'Doctor, I will give you a detail of ambulances this evening to bring in your wounded. They will be in the central square at 7 o'clock.' Col. Morrow was promptly on hand, and at nightfall started with a train of twelve ambulances, with Confederate drivers and stretcher bearers, for that part of the field where the battle opened. It was a weird sight, that long train of army hearses, as, by the fitful light of a half-clouded moon, made more obscure by the lanterns they bore, this party threaded its way among the blackened and swollen corpses, which lay where they they had fallen two days before, and the moans and cries of the wounded for assistance, and their supplications for water were heartrending. Some were delirious, and talked of home and friends, and wondered that they neglected them so long; while others, in their wild delirium, cheered on their comrades, as they fought over again in imagination the terrible battle in which they fell. But by midnight they were all tenderly borne away to receive the care they so much needed, and thus many a valuable life was saved. As Col. Morrow was about to leave for town he was casually told by a guard that there were five more wounded at the artillery quarters which had better be removed early in the morning, as orders had been received to fall back. The Colonel returned to town, and when he awoke the next day the Confederate troops were moving out, and he was soon able to join his command on Culp's hill."

From recent statistics it appears that here are no fewer than 1,190 daily, weekly, and monthly journals published in the French capital. Of these, 71 are devoted to religion, 104 to jurisprudence and administration, 153 to commerce and finance, 23 to geography and history, 139 to recreation, 31 to instruction, 60 to literature and philology, 18 to fine arts, 4 to photography, 8 to architecture, 15 to music, 17 to the stage, 70 to fashions, 134 to industry, 80 to medicine, 48 to science, 29 to the army and navy, 38 to agriculture, and 23 to sport. The number of daily papers published in Paris is 49, and political reviews, 17.

PERSONALS.

An American named Livingstone drives a fourteen-horse team in Florence.

Senator Dennis, of Maryland, is 5 feet 11 inches in height and weighs 200 pounds.

Senator Eaton, of Connecticut, is [illegible] feet [illegible] inches in height and weighs 161 pounds.

Senator Edmunds, of Vermont, is 6 feet 2 inches in height and weighs 176 pounds.

Senator Ferry, of Michigan, is 6 feet 2 inches in height and weighs 198 pounds.

Senator Gordon, of Georgia, is 6 feet 2 inches in height and weighs 176 pounds.

Senator Grover, of Oregon, is 6 feet 1 inch in height, and weigh 191 pounds.

Gen. Mite, the midget, has a baby sister a few days old, who weighs more than her 14-year-old brother.

Frank De Moulton, once known to fame, is in the butter and cheese business in Liverpool.

Eben Leathers, of Barrington, N. H., recently had his name changed to Rutherford B. Hayes.

John Connor is a Brooklyn person who challenges the world to drink 1,000 gallons of beer in 1,000 hours.

A descendant of Elliot, who translated the Bible into the language of the Natick Indians, died a pauper at Cleveland, Ohio, recently.

It is said that the wife of President Grevy can ride a steeplechase, paint a landscape, compose a poem and play on the piano like an angel.

Wade Hampton now goes out hunting every clear day. He rides almost as well as before his unfortunate experience, but never tackles a mule.

Capt. Paul Boyton, the swimmer, says that his great peril in his present undertaking comes from ignorant persons who mistake him for some marine animal and aim their guns at him.

Senator Hamlin, of Maine, is 6 feet in height and weighs 168 pounds. His height is lessened in appearance by the fact that he is so round-shouldered.

Mr. M. C. Williams, the President of the State National Bank, of Raleigh, N. C., died recently, and his wife has been elected to the directory, and has become President of the institution.

The Delaware Senators are both tall. Mr. Saulsbury measures six feet three and Mr. Bayard six feet two. Joined toe to toe and thrown open like a jackknife, the head of Mr. Saulsbury would lap over into Maryland, and Mr. Bayard's head rest gently on Pennsylvania sod.

The heaviest verdict for personal damages ever secured against a railroad is probably that for $39,501, which Dr. Charles W. Hackett, of Maplewood, Mass., a rising young physician, has just been awarded against the Eastern railroad for having destroyed his health and so cut off his income for life, by an accident.

Mrs. Alfred Tennyson Dickens, one of the young daughters-in-law of Charles Dickens, was killed in Australia a few weeks ago. She was driving out with her little daughter, when the horse ran away, killing both the occupants of the carriage. Alfred Tennyson Dickens, son of the novelist, has been living in Australia for several years.

How to Plant Peas.

Last spring I put in my first peas and potatoes on the 15th of March, and had splendid crops of both, but usually we cannot do much in the open soil before the first week in April. As soon, however, as the frost is out and the ground is dry enough, I shall plant in my driest and warmest soil some Little Gem and Laxton's Alpha peas. I shall open furrows three inches deep for the Gems, and one foot apart, and in these furrows scatter compost about an inch deep, draw a pointed hoe through the furrow to mingle the manure with the soil, and then sow thickly—three peas to an inch. I will treat the Laxton's Alpha in the same way, with the exception that the rows will be two and a half feet apart. The Little Gems grow only a foot high, and require no support. The Alphas require two-and-a-half feet brush. Two weeks later I shall plant for second crop Little Gem, McLean's Advancer and Champion of England. I have tried a great many kinds, and have come to the conclusion that the four kinds I have named are the richest-flavored and sufficiently productive—in brief, all things considered, the best. It is a pleasant and inexpensive amusement to try fifty other kinds in a small way. Since "Let us have peas" is such a frequent and emphatic remark at our dinner table, I shall plant liberally every ten days until the Fourth of July, burying the seed deeper as the season advances, and choosing shadier and moister localities. Very late plantings are usually so injured by mildew that, were the vegetable not such a favorite, I would not plant it after the middle of May. Deep planting of the seed late in the season insures longer bearing. I prefer Champion of England for the main crop, as it is by general consent regarded as the flower of the pea family. The short, low-growing kinds like Little Gem will be the better for any amount of manure, but tall varieties like the Champion do not need fertilizers in the drill unless the ground is poor. When gardens are small and brush is not convenient, it may be best to plant the dwarf kinds only. They can be sown on ground designed for tomatoes, Lima beans, melons, squash, etc., as they do not shade the ground, and soon mature. I put them in such spaces almost altogether, and in rows three or four feet apart, and plant the later vegetables between them. As soon as the green pods are picked, I have the vines dug under, thus returning at once to the soil what was taken from it.—E. P. Roe, in Harper's Magazine for April.

INDIANA LEGISLATURE.

Thursday, March 20.—Senate.—The Senate took up and passed the Congressional Apportionment bill, under the operation of the previous question....The Fee and Salary bill was amended to a great extent, but not finally acted upon....Several legalizing bills were taken up and passed under a suspension of the constitutional rules.

House.—New bills introduced: Amending the act establishing judicial circuits; authorising County Commissioners to fill vacancies in the office of Justice of the Peace; reducing the jurisdiction of Circuit Courts and increasing jurisdiction of Justices; repealing certain sections of the act for inspection of petroleum; authorizing cities and towns to remove any cemetery or [illegible] become included in the city limits, and a new cemetery is provided.... A resolution was adopted instructing our Senators and Representatives in Congress to endeavor to secure the passage of a law amending the National Bank act, in relation to the jurisdiction of the courts over controversies between banking associations located in any State or Territory....A resolution to adjourn on Saturday was made the special order for Saturday, at 2 p. m.....The Senate substitute for the House Congressional Apportionment bill was taken up as soon as reported from the Senate, and the substitute adopted.... Bills were passed: Appropriating $25,000 to defray expense of the special session of the Legislature; to prevent the sale or transfer of county orders in the possession of any one owing county taxes; regulating the practice of dentistry; abolishing the publication of Sheriffs' sales in newspapers; prohibiting playing of billiards, pool, etc., in connection with saloons, and abolishing concert saloons; requiring County Auditors in making a loan when the funds belong to various townships to take but one mortgage; regulating weights and measures; authorizing cities to construct water-works; abolishing the color line as to orphan children in admission to asylums, and legalizing judicial sales in certain cases.

Friday, March 21.—Senate.—The consideration of the Fees and Salary bill occupied almost the entire time of the Senate....An effort was made to take up the Metropolitan Police bill, but it failed....The Specific Appropriation bill was then taken up and passed....The House Loan bill was taken up and read a first time....A resolution was adopted fixing the time for the final adjournment on Monday.

House.—A resolution was adopted appointing the Attorney General, Auditor and a third person, to be named by the Governer, a commission to revise and codify the insurance laws....On the reading of the journal it was discovered Mr. Caldwall was recorded as voting in favor of the bill to prevent billiard, pool and other gaming tables, music or other amusement in saloons where intoxicating liquors are sold. He was not present at the time the vote was taken, and his name was stricken from the roll-call, leaving the bill without a constitutional majority...... Bills were passed: Defining burglary; enabling incorporated cities to aid in the construction of railroads, gravel roads, water-works and bridges; enabling owners of wet lands to drain to reclaim them when the same can be done without affecting the land of others; providing for the appointment of guardians of insane persons; authorizing insurance companies to reinsure risks; regulating duties of Justices; limiting the levy of taxes by school trustees, and requiring county boards to take charge of free gravel roads.... The bills for the protection of purity in election, defining duties of city Judges, and authorizing transfer of Morgan raid claims from the Governor's office to the office of Adjutant General, were defeated.

Saturday, March 22.—Senate.—Several legalizing bills were rushed through as a starter, and then the Senate took up the House bill appropriating $25,000 to defray the expenses of the present session of the General Assembly, amended it so as to appropriate $35,000, and passed it under a suspension of the constitutional rules....The Fee and Salary bill was then taken up and passed....The conference committee on the bill removing the legal disabilities of married women reported, recommending an amendment prohibiting married women from mortgaging any property derived by inheritance, or to otherwise endanger their possession by becoming surety for husbands. This report was concurred in. ....The conference committee on the Fort Wayne Water-Works bill also reported certain amendments, which were agreed to.....The Senate passed the following bills: Authorizing cities and towns to fund their indebtedness; compelling the Auditor of State to pay 75 per cent. of his insurance fees into the State treasury; concerning warehouses....The bill concerning the redemption of real estate from sale or execution was taken up and passed.

House.—A local-option bill was ordered engrossed....The Senate amendments to the bill appropriating money to pay expenses of the present session was concurred in....The House then took up the Specific Appropriation bill and refused to concur in several amendments made by the Senate....A few minor items of the bill were considered, and the House adjourned.

Monday, March 24.—Senate.—About 100 House bills were read the first time. The Metropolitan Police bill came up in the lot, and was killed by being indefinitely postponed.... The following House joint resolutions were adopted: Requesting a modification of the National Banking law so as to subject banking associations to regular rules of law; creating a commission to codify the insurance laws, and appointing a committee on the part of each house to ascertain what amount, if any, is due Marion county for gas, heat, water, etc., used by the General Assembly....Senator Reeve introduced a bill providing for the appointment of five attorneys to make a revision of the laws of the State now in force and publish them.... The House Homestead bill was taken up, and a substitute adopted, allowing forty acres of land in country and one-half acre in city as a homestead, provided it is not worth more than $700. It also exempts $300 worth of personal property from sale on execution. The bill as amended was then passed.

House.—Bills were passed: Including railroad tickets in the articles that may be embezzled; authorizing patrons of district schools to select the teachers, and the Senate bill declaring certain patents for swamp lands evidence of title to such lands....Conference committees were asked for upon the Specific Appropriation and the Fee and Salary bills....The House passed a resolution to adjourn sine die next Monday, provided that the Fee and Salary and Specific Appropriation bills have been passed.

Tuesday, March 25.—Senate.—A large number of House bills were read a second time and placed on the files for a third reading to-morrow....Bills were passed as follows: Giving laborers a preferred claim of $50 on the property of an insolvent corporation which is indebted to them; allowing appeals from County Commissioners in cases of annexation of territory to cities and towns; creating a commission to revise and codify the laws of the State and report the same to the next General Assembly, with such recommendation of changes in the existing laws as they may deem necessary....The report of the Conference Committee on the Specific Appropriation bill was concurred in.

House.—Bills were introduced: Providing for the more speedy determination of causes in Circuit and Superior Courts; prescribing the duties of the Attorney General....Bills passed: Providing for the appointment of receivers by Judges of courts during vacation; providing for the erection and management of workhouses; protecting the purity of the ballot-box by disfranchising persons found guilty of selling their votes; providing for appeals in cases of changes of highways; permitting notaries public to solemnize marriages....The conference committee on the Specific Appropriation bill reported certain amendments agreed on, which were agreed to.... The committee appointed to investigate into the affairs of the Attorney General's office reported, and were instructed to continue the investigation, and report what steps should be taken to recover the money illegally taken for fees .... The House refused to concur in the Senate amendments to the Homestead Exemption bill.

Wednesday, March 26.—Senate.—Bills passed: For the transfer to the United States of the title of Indiana to the Antietam National Cemetery; authorizing a loan to pay the temporary loan debt; in relation to the transaction of business by foreign express companies; amending the Fish law; to prevent the sale of adulterated fertilizers; regulating the practice of medicine and surgery; amending the act authorizing street-car companies to use certain highways; authorizing incorporated towns to contract for lighting streets with gas; providing for issuing letters testamentary and of guardianship; and several legalizing and relief bills....The bill repealing the Railroad Aid law was indefinitely postponed....The Senate resolution to adjourn sine die on Saturday was returned from the House with an amendment fixing Monday as the time. The amendment was concurred in, and the Legislature will without doubt adjourn at that time.

House.—The House adopted the Senate resolution authorizing the transfer of the Morgan raid claims from the Governor's office to that of the Adjutant General, and allowing their owners to withdraw them....The bill fixing railroad passenger rates at 3 cents a mile failed to pass....The bill for the revision of the laws was passed....The House refused to concur in the Senate amendments to the bill creating a bureau of statistics, and it went to a conference committee.... Bills regulating elections in towns and defining the duties and powers of town officers, regulating the levy of taxes for school purposes, prohibiting courts from garnasheeing wages of laborers and providing for redemption of real estate in certain cases, were passed....Mr. Osborne offered a resolution creating a commission consisting of two Senators, two Representatives, and the Superintendent of Public Instruction, to investigate and report whether the three State educational institutions cannot be consolidated. The consideration of the resolution was postponed for the present.

The Congressional Districts.

The following are the Congressional districts as fixed by the bill, as it finally passed:

First—Posey, Gibson, Vanderburg, Warrick, Pike, Spencer and Perry.

Second—Knox, Sullivan, Green, Lawrence, Martin, Daviess, Orange and Dubois.

Third—Jackson, Jennings, Washington, Scott Clarke, Floyd, Harrison and Crawford.

Fourth—Union, Franklin, Decater, Ripley, Dearborn, Ohio, Switzerland and Jefferson.

Fifth—Putnam, Hendricks, Morgan, Owen, Monroe, Brown, Johnson and Bartholomew.

Sixth—Rush, Fayette, Henry, Wayne, Randolph and Delaware.

Seventh—Marion, Hancock and Shelby.

Eighth—Warren, Fountain, Montgomery, Vermillion, Parke, Vigo and Clay.

Ninth—Tippecanoe, Clinton, Boone, Tipton, Hamilton and Madison.

Tenth—Lake, Porter, Newton, Jasper, Pulaski, White, Carroll, Cass, Fulton and Benton.

Eleventh—Miami, Howard, Wabash, Grant, Huntington, Wells, Adams, Blackford and Jay.

Twelfth—Lagrange, Steuben, Noble, DeKalb, Whitley and Allen.

Thirteenth—Laporte, Starke, St. Joseph, Marshall, Elkhart, and Kosciusco.

ALL SORTS.

A speech from the thrown—"Blame that mule!"

The peanut crop of North Carolina is short 40,000 bushels.

It is said that 900 of Tennessee's 1,300 lunatics are confined in jails.

An economical family of three persons near Wilmington, Del., live on 20 cents a day.

Since Paris opened her first horse butchery 132,133 horses, 4,870 asses, and 203 mules have been eaten there. In the country they eat less of such viands.

Tramps are defined by Michigan law to be "persons refusing to work for the usual and common wages given to other persons for like work in the place where they be."

A sign before a Boston grocery reads as follows: "Wooden pails, 6 cents each. Notice.—We did not steal these pails, but we think the man we bought them from did."

The current feeling among thinking men in Germany seems to be that, however ably Prince Bismarck may deal with politics, he knows nothing about finance.

There is now four times as much wheat produced in the United States as there was only twenty-nine years ago. Then, 100,485,944 bushels; last year, 425,000,000 bushels.

A great East African company is to be formed in London on the model of the extinguished East India Company. Sir John Lubbock and Capt. Burton are among its promoters.

When we humans are asked for a dollar to help bury a poor fellow, we shell out immediately, but there are those among us who would not give the dollar to the poor fellow before he died.

France produced, in the year ending September last, the enormous amount of over 800,000,000 pounds of beet-root sugar. There are 501 manufactories of beet-root sugar in that country, and all successful.

Gen. Crook's Court of Inquiry concerning the Cheyenne massacre at Fort Robinson, Neb., attaches no blame to any one in the military service, and recommends no further action. Gen. Crook approves the finding.

A project is on foot to have the National Guards of Pennsylvania assemble on the Gettysburg battle-field some time during the coming summer, and go into camp for a week. It is intended to make it the largest encampment ever held in the State.

A bill making prepayment of poll tax a prerequisite to voting has passed the lower house of the Texas Legislature. One member made a speech in Spanish, advocating the bill, and said at the last election 1,000 Mexicans had crossed over and voted in Texas.

The Paterson (N. J.) clergymen have decided to issue a memorial to the inhabitants of that city requesting them not to hold so many funerals on Sunday. They complain that in consequence of the number of funerals on Sunday they sometimes do not find time for their meals.

The London Queen chronicles a splendid ball given in Paris by Mrs. Hungerford, a rich American lady, at which Mrs. Mackey wore white satin, trimmed in front with a profusion of red flowers. The sleeves were fastened up with diamond and sapphire agraffes, and her shoes were ornamented with buckles set with large diamonds.

TO A LITTLE GIRL.

Little girl, with dainty feet,
Blithely flying down the street,
The toughest heart you would beguile
With your pretty face and winning smile.
Little girl, you are very fair;
With your rosy cheeks and flowing hair;
Your eyes are bright, your heart is young,
And words are music from your tongue.
Little girl, I love you well,
How much my verse can never tell,
But if the truth must be confessed,
I love your grown-up sister best.
—W. F. Norris, in Scribner.

Auburn Courier.

AUBURN, INDIANA, APR. 3d, 1879

THEODORE REED, - - Editor.

Paul Boyton will soon intrude on Mr. Alligator.

It is said that good mechanics make $30 a week at Leadville. Expenses $34.

County commissioners will receive $3.00 per day, under the new fee and salary bill.

The Democrats of Ohio will hold their State convention on Saturday, the 14th day of June, next.

The new exemption law provides that real or personal property of the heads of families, amounting to $600, shall be exempt from levy and sale on execution.

Is it not about time for the democrats of Auburn, and other incorporated towns in the county, to be thinking about the selection of candidates for town officers?

The legislature has passed the bill abolishing coroners' juries. There will be less sitting upon dead bodies in Indiana hereafter.

The new telegraphic scheme, by which it is proposed to transmit ordinary business letters all over the country for ten cents, will be, if successful, a big thing for journalism. Let us have it by all means.

The new fee and salary bill allows township trustees $2.00 for each day's actual service, payable out of the township fund; and extra pay to be allowed by the county commissioners, for services as overseers of the poor.

Considerable controversy has been going on between the News and Sentinel, of Ft. Wayne, in regard to Mr. Fleming's interest in the water-works bill and the canal. Here is one instance where great minds don't run in the same canal

The Chicago Daily News thinks that "congress might as well establish a confessional, as to be continually pattering with investigating committees," and adds the suggestion that a big reward would have a tendency to induce confession.

Knox Martin, the darkey who was hanged last Friday, at Nashville, preferred to be hanged at once than to lengthen his days by taking advantage of an appeal; because, he said, he couldn't stand the horrors that night brought to him in the shape of hideous dreams.

The Warsaw Union of last week publishes comments from "The Indiana Democratic Press on the Presidential Question." As the items published only include those that might be construed as favorable to Tilden, we are led to believe that Frank has made use of a recent issue of the Albany (New York) Argus. The Union will probably furnish another list next week, as another copy of the Argus has been sent out with additional and later advices.

If the governor signs the bill amending the school law, county superintendents will be elected by the county commissioners, instead of the township trustees. It is of some importance to the democracy of DeKalb county that the law should take effect at once, owing to the auditor's hasty appointment of a republican trustee of Richland township, vice Mr. Greenwood (democrat) deceased, in order to secure a majority of the trustees in the county for the purpose of electing a republican county superintendent.

The Congressional Apportionment.

The new apportionment for congressional purposes places DeKalb county in the 12th district, which is composed of Allen, Whitley, Noble, DeKalb, Steuben and Lagrange counties. Greater reference to the requirements of law, or to population and contiguous territory, could not well be imagined, and yet there is not a republican leader in the district that is not yelling, gerrymander! gerrymander! There is not a republican paper in the district that pretends to say why the apportionment is not just, (as the republicans claim). The 12th district is all wrong in the estimation of partisan radicals because it is democratic, no other reason can be offered. The other districts created by the late law, with the counties constituting each, are shown on page 3 of this paper, by referring to a map of the state each district can be outlined, and every unprejudiced voter who will take the trouble to investigate for himself, and compare the outlines of the new districts with those of the old districts, will see at once that the new apportionment was made with a view to contiguity of territory, and an investigation as to the voting population in each of the several districts, will or ought to convince any sensible man that justice has been done in that regard. In order to convince the people that the democrats have followed the example of the republicans in the gerrymander business, it will be necessary to produce more conclusive evidence than has yet been offered.

—McQuiston & Ralston sell 2 good cigars for 5c also the Veto and Bellmans Red Bird the best 5 cent cigar sold, will furnish dealers cigars at jobbers prices.

Marriage licenses were issued by the county clerk during the month of March to the following persons, in search of happiness.

Joseph R. Shilling, and Alice J. Gill, James W. Griswold, and Francis E. Gillett, Joseph J. Walter, and Miranda M. Moody, Daniel W. Hurraw, and Kate Rickley, Frederick Dull, and Alice Slippy, Wm. H. Brown, and Jennie E. Monroe, Geo. W. Slentz, and Elvina Riddick, Elias [illegible], and Catherine DePew, Robert Speer, and Jane Lawrence, Wm. H. Brown, and Ella Likens, Frank Fisk, and Ada Ackerman, Henry Myers, and Lenora Zimmerman, Joseph DePew, and Emily Swanders, Benton Beard, and Martha J. Sulton, John M. Brown, and Amanda J. Musser, Allison Conrad, and Drusilla Shull.

—The following rates have been agreed upon by the township assessors of this county, as a basis for the assessment of personal property for the year 1879.

Bonds	½	cash	value.
Goods and merchandise	½	"	"
Articles for manufacturing	½	"	"
Manufacturing tools, etc.	½	"	"
Agricultural tools, etc.	½	"	"
Gold & siver plated ware	½	"	"
Jewelry	½	"	"
Libraries, etc.	½	"	"
Nursery stock	½	"	"
Saloons	½	"	"
Eating houses	½	"	"
Slaughtered animals	½	"	"
Building material	½	"	"
Steam engines	½	"	"
Safes	½	"	"
Billiard tables, etc.	½	"	"
Piano-fortes	½	"	"
Organs	½	"	"
Sewing machines	½	"	"
Additional improvements	½	"	"
Cord wood	½	"	"
Carriages and wagons	½	"	"

Hogs $1 per cwt.
Sheep $1 per head
Cattle $9, $7, $5 and $3
Yoke of oxen—same as one horse
Household goods $5.00 and upwards
Horses and mules $50, $35, $25 and $15
Watches and clocks $1,00 and upward

Wheat	per	bu.	70c
Corn	"	"	20c
Rye	"	"	30c
Oats	"	"	10c
Potatoes	"	"	40c
Barley	"	"	30c
Cloverseed	"	"	$2.00
Timothy seed	"	"	80c
Flax seed	"	"	50c
Green fruit	"	"	10c
Timothy hay	"	ton	$ 8.00
Clover hay	"	"	2.00
Beef	"	cwt	2 00
Pork	"	"	3.00
Lard	"	lb.	8c
Wool	"	"	20c
Maple Sugar	"	"	5c
Cider	"	bbl.	50c
Vinegar	"	gal.	5c
Wine	"	"	50c
Sorghum molasses per gal.			20c
Bees per swarm			$1.00

Auburn Schools Closing Entertainment.

As announced in last weeks papers, a public entertainment will be given by all the schools, at Ensley's Hall, on next Saturday evening. We announce the following programme of exercises for the evening:

PART FIRST.—"The Lords Prayer," (Tableau). "Little Chatterbox," Rilla Holopeter, "Little Gymnasts," Class. "Good Night," (Tableau). "Dolly's Doctor," Linden Coleman and Nettie Montgomery. "The Party," Blanche Peterson and Olive Gonser. "The May Queen," (tableau, two scenes.) "Boy's talk," Linden Coleman, Arthur Miller, Harry Henry, Lewis Willis, "The Rich and Poor," Maud Abright, "Fashionable Follies," Aggie Leas, "The Smoke Friend," Harry Swartz, James Rose, Dannie Gonser, Charley Ervin. "Lifting the Vail," (tableau). "The Drum," Walter Ervin and Bertie Casebeer. "You put no Flowers on my Father's Grave," Fannie Peterson. "The boy who kept his word," Jno. Zimmerman. "Lulu's Picture," Alza Ralston, Ada Gross, Charley Rice.

PLAY.—"Centennial tea party," Ettie Gilliland, (Columbia,) Howard McCord (Brother Jonathan,) Herby Weaver, (Uncle Sam,)

PART SECOND.—"I Drempt that I dwelt in marble halls" from opera of "Bohemian Girl," Sadie Hare, "Experience with an Intervierer," Ella Gross, "When you're down," Louie Henry. "Success in Life," Eliza Stahl. "The Bridge," Flora Hoffman. "The Nine Muses," (tableau), Minnie McDowell, Nellie Potter, Louie Henry, Ella Gross, Bell Lanning, Mary Baldock, Mary Griswold, Zorah Baird, Ettie Gilliland. "Life's Thermopolae," J. W. McClellan. "Borrowing Trouble," (A Farce.) F. McDowell, (Mr. Borrow,) Sadie Hare, (Mrs. Borrow) Anise Cowan, (Sopha,) Mary Sprott, (Mrs. Wiggins.) Mark Rush, (Dr. Drench) Laura Ensley, (Mrs. March) Jay Sheets, (Lina) Ezra Ensley, (Detective Spotem.

In addition to the above exercises, should there be time, one or two humorous selections will be presented by a gentleman from Fort Wayne.

The hall will be opened at a quarter after seven, the programme will be commenced at eight. As already announced, an admission fee of ten cents will be charged, the net proceeds of which will be applied to the purchase of books of reference for the school. Tickets can be secured at the door.

M. SEILER, School Sup't.

—Coffee A Sugar 11 lbs for $1,00 Coffee C sugar 12½ lbs for $1,00 at McQuiston & Ralstons. 13-3w.

Cleverly Counterfeited.

Dr. Price's celebrated Cream Baking Powder is extensively imitated. The Genuine may be known from the imitations by the words 'Dr Price,' 'Steele & Price,' and the Hand and Cornucopia on the label. These are the trade marks. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is not sold in bulk.

Butler Township.

—The roads are very muddy.

—The literary society at Butler Center closed last Tuesday evening.

—Butler Center can again boast of the presence of a minister.

—T. S. Merica, who was injured by the falling of a tree, is again able to be around.

The promised exhibition at Butler Center will be given Saturday evening April 12th.

—We learn that our friend John Hogue, is soon going to make his home in the west.

—The summer term of the Butler Center school began Monday, March, 31 with Miss Florence Wyant as teacher.

—Cedar Creek is in a great excitement. Last Saturday evening a window in Taylor's store was broken by burglars but nothing valuable was taken.

NED.

Newville.

—Mrs. Will Countryman says that if the boys who roasted her chickens the other night, will come over and own up and pay for the fowls, and promise to let other peoples' henroosts alone, she will say nothing to the grand jury, but if not perhaps their names may appear in print.

—That wedding has not taken place yet.

—Rev. Oviatt delivered his last discourse for this year on last Sabbath, at the Disciple church.

—The boys who are in the habit of playing euchre had better rent a room of their own, and not disturb other people by going into their places of business.

—School commences on the 14th of April next, in Newville, by Mr. Bell and Mrs. Dedman.

ALPHA.

Economic Aspect.

The economic aspect is a strong point in favor of Dr. Price's Special Flavoring Extracts, Vanilla, Orange, Rose, Almond, Lemon, etc. They are three times the strength of the ordinary extracts; the bottles hold nearly twice as much as those sold for the same size.

Ask Yourself these Questions.

Are you a despondent sufferer from Sick Headache, Habitual Costiveness, Palpitation of the Heart? Have you Dizziness of the Head? Is your Nervous System depressed? Does your Blood circulate badly? Have you a Cough? Low Spirits? Coming up of the food after eating? &c., &c. All of these and much more are the direct results of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and Indigestion. Green's August Flower is now acknowledged by all Druggists to be a positive cure. 2,400,000 bottles were given away in the U. S. through Druggists to the people as a trial. Two doses will satisfy any person of its wonderful quality in curing all forms of Indigestion. Sample bottles 10 cts. Regular size 75 cts. Sold by C. H. Hoyt, Auburn, Ind.

Sick Headache

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

Positively Cured by these Little Pills.

They also relieve Distress from Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Too Hearty Eating. A perfect remedy for Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Coated Tongue, Pain in the Side, &c. They regulate the Bowels and prevent Constipation and Piles. The smallest and easiest to take. Only one pill a dose. 40 in a vial. Purely Vegetable. Price 25 cents. Sold by all Druggists.

CARTER MEDICINE CO., Prop'rs, Erie, Pa.
Five Vials by mail for one dollar.

HIGHEST REWARD

Cheap Homes in Michigan,
$5 to $10 per Acre.
STRONG SOILS! SURE CROPS!
Railroad through Centre of Lands.
HEALTHY CLIMATE! SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES!
INTELLIGENT POPULATION!

These lands are a long distance EAST of the Mississippi River. Large amount saved in travel and transportation of crops.

Descriptive pamphlet in English and German.

Address, W. O. HUGHART, Commissioner,
GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

IF YOU WANT A
SILK HAT,
A Soft or Stiff Hat,
A Street or Traveling Cap
A Youth's or Boy's Hat.
A Child's Turban,
Or anything in the line of
GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS!
Call On
K. B. Miller & Co.,
THE HATTERS,
34 Calhoun Street, Ft. Wayne.
SHIRTS MADE TO ORDER,
A SPECIALTY. 14-6m

1879 SPRING 1879
Messrs. Root & Company's
CARPET DEPARTMENT!

Our constantly increasing business in this department warrants our offering to the public this spring a much larger variety and assortment than ever before.

PRICES THIS SPRING

Are lower than ever before, and parties who have delayed refurnishing their houses can now do it with economy and a certainty that they will never buy carpets any cheaper than they are at present.

The Choicest Designs Tapestry Brussels Carpets,
75c., 85c., 90c., $1.00 per yard.
The Choicest Designs Extra Super Ingrain Carpets,
75 cents per yard
All Wool Ingrain Carpets, 50, 60 and 65c,
Single and Double, Cotton Chain Carpets,
25, 30 and 35c per yard.
Hemp, Cottage, Rag and Dutch Carpets,
12 1-2, 15, 18 and 20c per yard.

New lines of Upholstery Goods, Curtain Goods, Floor Oil Cloths, Mattings, Rugs, Stair Rods, Cornices, Fixtures, Shades, Hollands, Picture cords, Tassels, &c.

N. B.—Parties desiring any repairing done to Curtains and Cornices, or to have Carpets relaid, will find our MR. BARRETT a competent and superior workman, who will attend promptly to any orders we are favored with.

ROOT & COMPANY,
FORT WAYNE, IND.

Davenport the Druggist.

Pure Drugs and Medicines,
Choice Soaps and Perfumery,
Excellant Combs and Brushes,
Fine Hair Oils and Pomades
ALL SOLD AND WARRANTED BY
DAVENPORT THE DUGGIST

Also a splendid stock of Stationery Goods, such as
Wall Paper, Window Shades, Pocket Books,
School Books, Blank Books, Pens, Pencils,
Inks, Mucilage, Stationery, Gold Pens, etc.
All to be sold at the lowest prices by.
Davenport the Druggist, Auburn, Ind.
8-31-1 yr.

A BONANZA,
Of greater interest to the people of DeKalb county than the rich mines of Colorado.
COME AND INVESTIGATE!

And satisfy yourselves that Merchandise can and will be sold by the undersigned in Auburn, at much less than Ft Wayne prices. Why? Because we have no rent to pay, we have no clerks to pay, our taxes are not so high, and our general expenses are light. We discount all our bills which enables us to buy goods at a large discount, all of which goes to the benefit of our customers.

We have just added a new line to our former large stock, in the way of which we are offering at very low prices—prices that will justify the use of carpets by the most humble, as well as the wealthy. Our object in adding this line of goods is to supply a long felt want in the DeKalb county market. We are offering our large stock of carpets at prices that will justify an investigation. We again call attention to our immense stock of sta le and fancy.

Ingrain and Hemp Carpets

DRY GOODS,

of all grades and brands. Among the staple goods we mention denims, tickings, muslins, drints, shirtings, carpet warp, &c., selected with special reference to the wants of the people of DeKalb and adjoining counties. In our fancy goods department will be found all shades of fine alpacca lusters, new spring styles of wash poplins, and a general assortment of fancy dress goods.

CLOTHING. CLOTHING.

Our stock is larger and more complete than ever. The new stock embraces suits of all sizes, large or small, coarse, or fine, from a wedding suit to a jeans suit, all bound to suit, or no sale. Our prices are based upon resumption and defy competition. Don't fail to get our prices before making purchases in this line.

HATS AND CAPS. We also carry a full assortment, bought especially for the spring trade, which embraces a number of new and nobby styles for men and boys—styles that have never before been introduced in this market. All we ask is an examination of our stock, feeling satisfied that we can compete with any dealer in hats and caps in this or any other county in the State.

FANCY NOTIONS.

This stock is full of attractions, embracing every variety of embroidery, of new and popular patterns; silk and linen handkerchiefs for ladies and gentlemen, at bankrupt prices; ladies' and gents' hosiery in endless variety, at prices that will startle you; corsets by the cart load, all sizes and styles at greatly reduced prices; a full line of gents' linen shirts and collars, from the leading manufactories of the country, and many other fancy articles too numerous to mention.

SELECT FAMILY GROCERIES.

All goods in this line warranted pure and strictly first class, at prices that command large sales. Goods in this department are sold on close margin, being carried more for the accommodation of our customers than with a view to profit.

COUNTRY PRODUCE taken in exchange for goods. Give us a call when you want a bargain.

SCHAAB, BEUGNOT & CO.,
West of the Public Square, AUBURN, IND.

Auburn Courier.

Our Associate.

With this issue we have the pleasure of introducing Mr. Rob. J. Lowry, our associate in the editorial duties and business management of the COURIER. Mr. Lowry is a young man of fine attainments, which, together with his knowledge of the newspaper and the printing business, will add greatly to the resources of the COURIER, which, we have every assurance is daily growing more popular and influential among the people as a general NEWSPAPER and family journal. Having known Mr. Lowry for a number of years, we have unlimited confidence in his ability to fill the position he now occupies. We cheerfully commend him as being worthy of the confidence of our former patrons, and the people of DeKalb county generally. Under the new management the COURIER will in the future, as in the past, be strictly democratic in politics; it will advocate such measures as are deemed best for the public good, and will devote a large amount of space to local and general news. With this brief mention of the change, and with the assurance of renewed energy on our part, we leave the future of the COURIER with the people of DeKalb and adjoining counties. THEO. REED.

In coming among the people of Auburn and DeKalb county, we come with the fixed purpose of remaining and becoming a permanent resident. We therefore greet the readers of the COURIER as one of their number—one who will endeavor as best he can, however meagerly that may be, to merit some feelings of a reciprocal nature on the part of the good citizens of our adopted home. We come as a comparative stranger in an almost strange land, and with not a few misgivings as to our ability to discharge the humble duties we thus assume; we ask the indulgence of our readers, however, for any errors that may occur, promising to do out best.

The politics and principles of the COURIER, as established and maintained by our partner, Mr Theo. Reed, who himself came here but a few months ago and has so faithfully striven to subserve the interests of this section and its people, will of course continue unchanged, as our mutual aim will be to do the most good to the greatest number; and, at the same time, it is doubtless unnecessary to state that one of our objects is to make—a living.

ROB. J. LOWRY.

Auburn Dairy Farm.

I wish to announce that I have made arrangements to supply the citizens of Auburn, Ind., with pure sweet milk, and that I will begin to deliver the same, daily, on the 1st day of April, 1879. I have made arrangements with David S. Ober to supply his customers and all parties that have been supplied by him. I will furnish fresh milk every morning from my dairy, after the date above named. My facilities are such that I can supply hotels, restaurants, and private families with any quantity of milk at any time. I will also furnish my customers with sour milk twice each week (Tuesday and Friday) free of charge. As soon as arrangements can be made, I will furnish my customers select dairy butter on Tuesdays and Saturdays of each week. I wish to assure the people that everything in my line will be strictly first-class, and will be delivered promptly. Hoping that my efforts in this direction will be fully appreciated, and that I will receive a liberal patronage, I am,

Respectfully,
CAL. HUSSELMAN.

Chambers's Cyclopeuia of English Literature.

Volume 1 of the new and beautiful Acme edition of this excellent work, just received from the American Book Exchange, 55 Beekman Street, New York, embraces the history of our literature from the earliest period to the times of Queen Elizabeth, with lives of all noted authors, and choice specimens from the writings of each. All who are interested in the higher class of literature will welcome this newly-revised edition, with its clear type and handy form; and all who have been longing for the era of cheap and good books will be more than pleased with its wonderfully low price. The entire work in eight volumes, numbering nearly 3,500 pages, elegantly bound in cloth, gilt title, is offered to those who order this month for the price of $2.50. Specimen pages are sent free on request or a sample volume, complete in itself, post paid for 43 cents. The publishers sell only to subscribers direct, instead of giving to agents or dealers the usual 50 or 60 per cent. discount to sell for them, and this, with the fact that the actual cost of making books has decreased fully one-half within a few years accounts in a measure for the remarkably low prices.

A specimen volume can be seen at this office, and those who desire to order can add their names to a club which will soon be forwarded.

Extraordinary Opportunity for the Relief of the Afflicted.

Dr. Hartman, the well-known Oculist, Aurist and Orthopedic Surgeon, will visit Auburn, Ind. and stop at the Swineford House on the 14th, 15th, 16th, of April. He will have with him a complete outfit of Surgical appliances and apparatus, &c., and will be fully prepared to treat all cases of Paralysis, Deformities of the head, body and limbs, Diseased Joints, Clubbed Feet, Diseased Eyes, Cataract, Piles, Fistula, Stammering, Chronic Diseases, &c. No cases will be undertaken without a fair hope of relief. In consequence of the great expense of such a trip he will not make another; therefore, all who wish to avail themselves of his great skill and experience without a journey to his Eastern Office, must do so at this time.

For Illustrated Journal call at your Post Office.

Local and Miscellaneous

—Spring chickens will soon be ripe.

—Jackson township items on the first page.

—The Vincents are in Angola this week.

—Passenger travel on the railroads is improving.

—For building hardware go to Kiblinger & Co's.

—C. H. Hoyt [illegible] the best line of wall paper in town.

—Call on D. D. Snyder and see the Ohio chilled plow.

—For doors, sash and glass, go to Kiblinger & Co's.

—D. D. Snyder has some plows which he is selling for $6.

—Go to Abright's, young man, and buy yourself a tie pin.

—C. H. Hoyt's is the place to buy your wall paper cheap.

—Choice steak and roast furnished at all times by M. Houston.

—A good housekeeper will find employment at A. J. Little's.

—James A. Potter is now helping to hold the boot up-side down.

—Official meeting at the M. E. church to-morrow (Friday) evening.

—Spring styles of Jewelry in every pattern at Abright's. Cheap.

—March passed into oblivion with the meekness of a little lamb.

—Four tin pails and one dipper for one dollar at Kiblinger & Co's.

—Angola and New Era items came to hand too late for publication.

—Holman's liver-pads works miracles. Hoyt the druggist sells it.

—If you want ever-green trees, water them well during the dry season.

—All goods warranted to be as represented, at the boot up-side down.

—Will somebody please turn the mud over? It's well done on one side.

—Go to C. H. Hoyt to buy your window shades of the latest styles.

—Mr. Geo. Patterson, of Warsaw, Ind., was in the city Tuesday last.

—Curtain fixtures, cord and shade tassels, at C. H. Hoyt's the druggist.

—New Turkish Prunes 14 lbs for $1,00 or 8c per lb at McQuiston & Ralstons.

—When in need of wall paper, call on C. H. Hoyt and get some at low prices.

—The best 10c cotton sock in the market at McQuiston & Ralstons. 13-3w

—Go to Kiblinger & Co. for tinware, They are selling at manufacturers prices.

—Read the card of Mr. Cal. Husselman in another column, which explains itself.

—Embroideries in new styles at from 3c to 50c per yd, at McQuiston & Ralstons. 13-3w.

—James A. Potter is now foreman at the boot up-side down, bring on your feet.—

—Buy the Kidder barn door rollers the best in use, Kiblinger & Co. sole agents.

—Miss Abbie Potter is teaching the spring term of school at Sugars' school house.

—Hereafter township assessors will receive $2.00 for each day's actual service.

—The next thing to a Bonanza, hemp carpets 6 yds for $1,00 at McQuiston & Ralstons. 13-3w.

—Owing to the bad condition of the roads, trade has been a little dull for a few days.

—Kiblinger & Co. sell hardware.

—On account of the hard rain storm last Friday evening, the lecture was postponed.

—Mr Wilson Baughman and lady, of Mansfield, Ohio, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Abright.

—McQuiston & Ralston have the best and largest stock of China and Glassware in the city. 13-3w

—Mitch Houston buys none but the best when he selects his stock for butchering purposes.

—The invitations and programmes for the orchestra benefit, were printed at the COURIER office.

—Bucher, Gibbs & Co's. all steel plow is the best in the market. D. D. Snyder bought 50 of them.

—Spectacles of every style and price, at Abright's, from 25 cents to ten dollars. He warrants a fit.

—D. D. Snyder has sold 12 wagons since January 1, 1879, and has 8 more that he will sell for $50 each.

—The Good Templars will soon occupy the room over McQuiston & Ralston's drygoods department.

—The bottom dropped out McQuiston & Ralston are selling a 16 oz. plug of tobacco for 55c per plug. 13-3w.

—Holman's fever and ague pad recommends itself. Call at Hoyt's drug store and examine the article.

—Snyder's hub and spoke factory is running 15 hours each day, and wants more timber for hubs and spokes.

—Just received at McQuiston & Ralstons, 26 doz Hats and Caps. Come and see our stock before you buy. 13-3w.

—When you want a "plug" hat, call on Yesbera; he will show you a sample and have you a hat made to suit you.

—We never knew until we read the Republican of last week, that Parker, of the Kendallville News, was a tailor.

—Mr. Frank Kline and Mr. James Goetschius departed for Montana last Monday. We wish the boys success.

—See those 1876 white cotton hose 10c per pr and elegant striped hose at 10 & 15c per pair at McQuiston & Ralstons.

—When you want first-class bologna, in large or small quantities, you will find the very best at Houston's meat market.

—Where's Tice and his little weather-machine? He has evidently [illegible] ed, and we want to see him for so long as so.

—The sixty-fifth anniversary of the order of Odd-Fellows of Northern Indiana will be celebrated at Elkhart on the 25th.

—A Fort Wayne attorney had the cheek to donate one cent to a lady who was soliciting aid for the home of the friendless.

—Mr. Brinkerhoff's article on Ingersoll, which appears on the first page, was received last week, but too late for publication.

—And still another boot and shoe store in Auburn. Messrs. Craft & Co., will open a large stock, the latter part of this week.

—See those white bed spreads at McQuiston & Ralstons at prices from $1.15 to $2.75 cheaper than you can make quilts. 13-3w

—Kendallville has eight churches and nine saloons, with a doctor for each case of jim-jams, allowing one subject for every bar.

—Judge Best, of Waterloo, will continue the law business of Best & McClellan, that firm having been necessarily dissolved.

—Charley Baxter is full of business. He is trying to manage the business affairs of the Press, the COURIER and Franklin township.

—It will be gratifying to parents to know that hereafter text books in public schools cannot be changed oftener than once in ten years.

—Corn in Florida is a foot high. Ours isn't that high; it has been tramped on too much. But it covers our whole foot, all the same.

—Mr. Joe. Beugnot has made a great change in the appearance of his saloon. Those who have not been in lately would scarcely know the place.

—Owing to the closeness of the times the town trustees have extended the time of paying town tax fifteen days from this date, April 3rd, 1879.

—Our esteemed friend Mr. D. D Moody has been appointed deputy Prosecutor for DeKalb county. He has the congratulations of the COURIER.

—Miss Maggie Willard will teach a subscription school in the ward school house, this spring, commencing April 14, 1879. Terms very reasonable.

—Do not buy your new spring hat until you have examined the new stock at Yesbera's. He has the latest styles, and is offering goods at low prices.

—Holman's liver pad is the wonder of the age. Call at Hoyt's drug store and get a pamphlet giving full particulars concerning the great discovery.

—"Euchre parties, of late," says the Kendallville Standard, "has been the rage with some of our citizens." They "has been" somewhat frequent here, also.

—Sherman Hollister reduced the price of peanuts, April 1st. He finds ready sale at the reduced prices—a quarter of a dollar's worth, for a quarter of a cent.

We hear a rumor to the effect that certain republican ringsters are endeavoring to start another daily in Fort Wayne. Heavens! what has that city done to merit this?

—Rev. J. E. Ervin will preach his last sermon for this conference year next Sabbath morning. He expects to leave for conference next Tuesday on the early north train.

—It is a source of gratification to the proprietors of the COURIER establishment to know that the balance sheet, at the end of another quarter, shows a large increase of business.

—COMPOUND ELIXIR OF BUCHU for diseases of the kidneys, bladder and urinary organs is the best remedy known for rheumatism. It removes the cause, and effects a permanent cure in all cases. Sold by DAVENPORT the DRUGGIST. tf.

—An Illinois paper brags enthusiastically over an 850-pound hog, claimed to have been lately killed in its county. We believe it, for it only serves to prove that where there's swill, there's a weigh.

—The Buckeye clothes wringer only $5.00. The best in the world. For sale by Kiblinger & Co.

—If you have any desire to ascertain the "calibre" of Treasurer Gonser's foot, just ask him if Pete P—— has paid his taxes. We warn you to be ready to "fly" before putting the question.

—Examine our stock of Mens, Youths and Boys clothing, and compare prices with the best you can find, quantity, quality and prices to compete with anything in the city McQuiston & Ralstons. 13-3w

—The closing hop of the season, for the benefit of Edgerly's orchestra, will be given by the Neoteric club, at Ensley's hall this evening. A large attendance and general good time is anticipated.

—Have you seen Yesbera's fine stock of gents' furnishing goods? He carries the finest line of collars and cuffs, half hose, neckties, suspenders, &c., that can be found in town.

—The boot up-side down has a ten thousand dollar stock of boots and shoes to select from, and they can and will sell goods 20 per cent. cheaper than any other store in the county, call and get the proof.

—There is so much demand for advertising space in the COURIER, that our customers have to "take turns," like going to mill. There are hundreds of people in DeKalb county that read no other county paper.

—On last Tuesday the county commissioners made an inventory of the personal property belonging to the county, and in use at the poor-farm. The total valuation of live stock, farming tools, household furniture, etc., amounts to $4,106.49.

—The post office at this place has been designated by the Secretary of the Treasury as a Government depository, and post master Rainier is authorized and prepared to furnish TEN DOLLAR FOUR PER CENT. BONDS in such amounts as may be desired by our citizens.

—As the traditional "beautiful spring" opens up, so does the one-horse peddler, most of whom, like the weary tramp, it is better to give a wide berth. Beware of them, or you may find occasion to weep and wail.

—A. C. Dawson, formerly a resident of this region but now of San Francisco, California, paid the COURIER office a pleasant and substantial visit yesterday. He returns to his "home near the setting sun" in a few weeks, the climate of which apparently agrees with him.

W. H. Kiblinger & Co. has just received a new stock of bird cages of the very latest styles and designs, which they are selling very low.

—T. D. Gross, proprietor of the Central hotel, contemplates building a substantial addition to his house. It will extend from the present building, on 10th street, out to the corner of Main, and will be of brick. Such enterprises should be encouraged, and we hope to see many more of them.

—Jurors in the Circuit court are only allowed $1.00 per day for the time in attendance, and 5 cents per mile for the distance necessarily traveled. In trials before a justice of the peace, jurors are allowed 75 cents per day and mileage. So says the new fee bill.

—Our friend across the way appears to be anxious to get into the mud-slinging business. If there is anything left of him when he gets through with the Waterloo Press and Butler Record, he will probably be better enabled to judge of the advisability of attacking the COURIER.

—Our enterprising manufacturer, Mr. James Anderson, is again in the market with a lot of first class carriages and buggies of his own manufacture, which he will sell at low figures, and on one year's time with approved security. He defies any shop in Northern Indiana to furnish better material than is used in his work. 9-9w

—The COURIER advertising and job department is overrun with business. We have demands for twice the amount of space set apart for business advertisements. The wide-awake business men of Auburn and neighboring towns have learned to put their money where it will do the most good.

—Messrs. Canon & Steele have proven themselves artists in their profession, in the completion of a sign for the Detroit Stove Co. The sign was forwarded to Detroit last Monday as a sample, and if satisfactory, the Auburn firm above named will secure a contract for one thousand more of the same kind.

—A young fellow with an over-loaded tank gave ten dollars to a companion Monday evening, at one of our hotels, for safe keeping; but when he got braced up next morning, he had forgotten what bank it was deposited in and was frantically hunting up the trail. He found it, and forthwith proceeded to set 'em up.

—The funeral of Mrs. Geo. Clark was very largely attended on last Thursday. Mrs. Clark was born in Richland county, Ohio, and was fifty-one years old at the time of her death. She was an exemplary member of the Presbyterian church of this place, where the last sad rites of this world were solemnized in honor of the departed.

—On last Thursday evening Mr. Henry Bade was run over by a train on the B. & O railroad at Defiance, Ohio. One of his feet was crushed so as to necessitate amputation between the knee and ankle. The operation was performed on Friday morning by Dr. Spooner of this place, who is surgeon of the road, assisted by L. G. Thacker, assistant surgeon. The injured man was doing well when last heard from.

—Mr. F. X. Craft, formerly traveling salesman for the boot and shoe house of Phelps, Dodge & Palmer, of Chicago, after having traveled through several western states, decided upon Auburn as being the best opening for a first class stock of boots and shoes. He at once purchased a large stock for cash, and will be ready to make our people happy in a few days. The new firm has the best wishes of the COURIER. Hurrah for Auburn!

—The Ladies Missionary society of the M. E. church, will have an entertainment in the audience room next Sabbath evening. The programme for the evening will consist of essays, addresses, select reading, singing, &c. A cordial invitation to all.

MRS. ENOS CASEBEER, SEC.

—A free book of nearly 100 large octavo pages for the sick. Full of valuable notes on scrofula; diseases of the breathing organs; diseases of men; [illegible] heart troubles, and a great variety of chronic diseases, with evidence that in most cases that these diseases are curable. Sent for one stamp. Address

MURRAY HILL PUB. CO.,
No. 129 E. 28th St., N. Y. 11-6m.

—The mite society connected with the M. E. church will be entertained by Mrs. W. E. Rush, on next Wednesday evening. A cordial invitation is extended to all. The members are all earnestly requested to be present as there is important business to be transacted.

MRS. A. ROBBINS, SEC.

—We want spicy news from adjoining towns in this county. Correspondents can aid us materially by sending in brief accounts of the happenings in their respective localities, for which we will be under obligations. Jot down fights, frolics, or foot-races and send them in; also deaths, marriages, births and other calamities.

—"The Man who Tramps," a new book, just out, by an Indiana author, has been placed on sale at the book store of Willis & Co. This new work is full of interest from the beginning to the end. Those who desire to know how tramps are organized into bands for the purpose of committing depredations of all kinds, should read this book.

—Prof. Dunn, of Hillsdale college, will deliver a lecture on "Common Sense," this (Thursday) evening, April 3, at, Waterloo. Excursion tickets, there and return, can be had for twenty-five cents; trains convenient, leaving Auburn at six and returning at eleven. Haines' Hall has been secured for the occasion, and excellent music will be in attendance.

—An agent was around town this week selling a little paper-bound book entitled "The book of knowledge," published by the Star Publishing Co., of Buffalo. It is apparently a useful little volume, containing much general information, and sells for twenty-five cents. If "knowledge is power," those who invested probably got a powerful large quarter's worth of it.

—The Wabash Courier, our fearless and enterprising namesake, sits down on Judge Pettit quite forcibly in its last number. Amongst a number of free local "ads" it says:

"The meaning of the word Pettit is little, small. The wisdom of man couldn't devise a more appropriate name for the creature who presides over the Wabash circuit court." Pretty rough on the judge; but if he can stand it, we can.

—D. D. Snyder is getting the largest stock of reapers, mowers, plows, &c., ever brought to DeKalb county. He has bought 50 Empire reapers and mowers, and 50 steel plows. He is also selling the horse rake manufactured by Mrs Wilson, the only article of the kind manufactured by a woman in the world. Call and see the rake; also all kinds of corn-planters, plow-points, &c. Repairing of all kinds.

Farmers Attention.

If you want fruit trees, I will furnish No 1 stock at low prices. Trees delivered the same day they are taken out of the ground. Orders taken at any time.

14 2w S. U. TARNEY.

In the First Rank.

The just reputation of Dr. Price's Unique Perfumes places them in the first rank of the very best handkerchief extracts that have ever been made. Their odor is truly rich, fresh and flowery. Dr. Price has spent much time and study in perfecting these perfumes.

Select School.

I will teach a select school in Auburn beginning the second Monday in April, and continuing two months. Will sustain two classes in Arithmetic two in Grammar, two in Geography, one in U. S History, and one in Physiology, if a sufficient number desire to take the subject, together with reading and general work. Tuition $3. Let all who desire to attend come in promptly on the first morning.

LIDA A. POWERS.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure for Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who desire it, this recipe, with full directions for preparing and using, in German, French, or English. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. Sherar, 149 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y. 6-cow 6-m.

'Stunning' Styles.

Strangers visiting Ft. Wayne this spring should by all means not neglect to visit A. S. Lauferty & Co's., better known as the C. O. D. Clothiers, and universally acknowledged as the one price, square dealers, unsurpassable nobby clothiers, and dealers in the best made garments for the least money. Their large and Commodious Establishment (presided over by Lauferty himself, assisted by a host of as gentlemanly and pleasant assistants as one can wish to meet,) is situated at No. 9 East Main St., exactly opposite the north door of the court house. You can find there the most complete, well made assortment of Clothing for old men, for middle-aged men, for young men, for boys for children, in fact, for the entire male sex, of any size, shape or descsiption, at prices within the reach of all. Beyond doubt, it is the place where one feels at home the moment he enters, and never leaves UNSUITED or DISSATISFIED. Their line of furnishing goods, hats, caps, trunks and valises is in itself simply an immense department. Remember the place,

A. S. LAUFERTY & CO.
9 EAST MAIN ST.
C. O. D. One-Price Clothiers.
Opposite North Door Court House.

For letter-heads, bill-heads statements, or any kind of fancy printing call at this office.

Notice of Administration.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been appointed by the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court of the State of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Henry Brown, deceased, late of said county. Said estate is supposed to be solvent. Attest, G. H. K. Moss, Clerk.

HENRY HINES, Adm'r.
April 1, 1879. 14-4w.

Wanted to Cure one Case of CATARRH,
in each neighborhood to introduce our BLACK FOREST OIL CATARRH REMEDY.
One dollar package free to those willing to pay express charges (25c. if reached by Adams or Union Ex. Co's)
Address, F. E. BOWER & CO. Gen. Agt's.
Pittsburgh, Pa.

PENSIONS

Under the new Pension law, soldiers wounded or injured, even if but slightly disabled, can obtain pension back from day of discharge. One of our firm in Washington to give personal attention to all claims before the departments. Do not delay, but write at once. Send stamp for our new soldiers circular.

W. C. BERINGER & Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.
Oldest Claim Agency in the U. S. 11 1 m

AUCTIONEER.

JAMES N. McBRIDE

Offers his services to attend sales any place in DeKalb or adjoining counties. He has had several years experience, and believes he can give general satisfaction. Any letters addressed to him at Waterloo, Ind., will receive prompt attention, as will all orders left at the office of John Butt, Justice of the Peace, at Waterloo, Indiana. 13-2m.

Administrator's Sale.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, administrator of the estate of Henry Brown, deceased, will offer for sale at public auction, at the late residence of the deceased, in Jackson township, DeKalb county, Indiana, on the personal property of said estate, consisting of one set of double harness, one span of horses, one wagon, one cow and calf, several head of young cattle, four head of hogs, corn in the crib, wheat by the bushel and in the ground, one two-horse cultivator, plows, drags, household furniture and other articles. Sale will commence at 10 a m.

FRIDAY, APRIL 25, 1879,

Terms will be made known on day of sale.
14-4w. HENRY HINES, Adm'r.

ROSE & HARTMAN, ATTORNEYS.

STATE OF INDIANA } Sct.
DEKALB COUNTY. }

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, May term, 1879.
Lucie W. Humes, }
versus } No. 373, Divorce.
William W. Humes. }

Now comes the plaintiff by her attorneys and files her petition for a divorce, together with an affidavit that said defendant, William W. Humes, is not a resident of the State of Indiana.

Notice is, therefore, given said defendant that unless he appear on the second day of the next term of the DeKalb Circuit Court, to be holden on the 4th Monday of May, A. D. 1879, at the Court House in Auburn, in said county and State, and answer or demur to said petition, the same will be heard and determined in his absence.

Witness, my name and the seal of said court at Auburn, this 2nd day of April, [illegible] DeKalb Circuit

...ack door-step, eats his d... peace, all the time inventing new ... words" for house decorators in general.—New Haven Register.

"THERE's no place like home, exclaimed a married man with a sigh of relief, as he threw down his hat, pulled off his coat and boots, slipped his feet into his slippers, and flung himself down on the sofa. As soon as he was comfortably settled, his loving wife ordered him to go out and get a pail of water, bring in a scuttle of coal, lock up the hen-house, feed the pigs, and split some wood for the morning. Then he angrily gathered himself together, spitefully kicked off his slippers, savagely drew on his boots, hastily climbed into his ulster, jammed his hat down over his eyes, and as he went out of the back door, he muttered, "There is no place like home."—Hackensack Republican.

THE DOORSTEP.

The conference meeting through at last,
We boys around the vestry waited,
To see the girls come tripping past,
Like snow-birds, willing to be mated.

And one, she blushed and took my arm!
We let the old folks have the highway,
And started toward the Maple farm
Along a kind of lovers' by-way.

The snow was crisp beneath our feet;
The moon was full, the fields were gleaming;
By hood and tippet sheltered sweet,
Her face with youth and health was beaming.

The little hand outside her muff—
Oh, sculptor! if you could but mold it!
So lightly touched my jacket-cuff,
To keep it warm, I had to hold it.

To have her with me there alone,
'Twas love, and fear and triumph blended;
At last we reached the foot-worn stone
Where that delicious journey ended.

The old folks, too, were almost home;
Her dimpled hand the latches fingered;
We heard the voices nearer come,
Yet on the doorstep still we lingered.

She shook her ringlets from her hood,
And with a "Thank you, Ned," dissembled,
But yet I knew she understood
With what a darin wish I trembled.

A cloud passed kindly overhead;
The moon was slyly peeping through it,
Yet hid its face, as if it said,
"Come, now or never! do it! do it!"

My lips, till then, had only known
The kiss of mother and of sister;
But somehow, full upon her own
Sweet, rosy, darling mouth—I kissed her!

Perhaps 'twas boyish love, yet still,
Oh listless woman, weary lover!
To feel once more that fresh, wild thrill,
I'd give—but who can live youth over?

BY DRUM-HEAD COURT-MARTIAL.

A Thrilling Episode of the Civil War.

When Gen. Bragg established his headquarters at Murfreesboro he had a most brilliant staff around him. None among them, however, could compare with Col. Orton, lately transferred from the Army of Virginia, and who now held the position of Inspector General with the rank of Colonel. He was tall and had a physique not often equaled, rarely if ever excelled. Added to the grace of his person was a facility of speech that was truly wonderful. His tones were full and sonorous, his mind stored with every species of knowledge, and all seemed to be at the call of the owner. Graduated in a university and at West Point, it was supposed that he was well calculated to shine in society. But, though possessed of those wonderful gifts of mind and person, he lacked one thing, and that defect rendered all his accomplishments of little force in the army. He was haughty and supercilious to a degree that repelled all intercourse with his inferiors. He was a martinet, and did not hesitate to use the most opprobrious language toward those having business with him. He was a spoiled child of fortune. Possessed of a liberal competence, being connected with the highest families in the nation—he was an own cousin to Gen. Robert E. Lee—he thought no one good enough for his associate. The result of this unfortunate disposition rendered him exceedingly unpleasant to all grades of military rank, and thus it was he was transferred from one department to another, no General being willing to keep him long and be responsible for his conduct. On this account he became soured toward every one and acquired a recklessness that at last led to a miserable end. His true name was Laurence Williams, and I have no means of knowing why he changed it to Orton, as he sometimes signed it. But change it he did, and, while in the South, he signed himself Laurence Williams Orton.

At the beginning of the war he was the confidential aid of Gen. Winfield Scott, but just before the battle of Manassas frankly acknowledged to his chief his Southern proclivities, and told him he could not bear arms against his native State of Virginia. He was, however, too much in the confidence of Gen. Scott to be released, and so the General sent him to Fort Warren and there confined him until information would be harmless. He remained immured in prison for three months, when he was freed and sent through the lines. His brilliant accomplishments, his martial bearing and his high connection gave him a prestige that at once secured him a hearty welcome and a ready promotion; and, but for his unfortunate temper, he would have made an ornament to the South, for he possessed unquestionable military talent and courage.

